A case has just come to our attention from Albany, N. Y. Mrs. H. Hartman says: "I was in a run-down condition for about five years until this spring, when I learned what a good tonic and strengthener Vinol is. It is certainly the best tonic I have ever used and it has done wonders for me."

London Times on Bryce

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The Times this morning editorially criticizes Mr. Bryce's handling of the reciprocity and Panama negotiations as justifying "the criticisms which will always be heard against the choice of a statesman with a political record but no diplomatic training for a great office."

The Times adds: "However, these matters are of little account in comparison with the general influence for good which Mr. Bryce's reputation and personality exerted on Anglo-American affairs. He has been a dignified and capable ambassador."

The Chronicle in an editorial pays a tribute to Mr. Bryce's valuable services "in having notably quickened the sense of co-operation between the British and American policy."

A Belgian Sensation

NAMUR, Belgium, Nov. 12.—The close attention paid by both the French and German army staffs to the fortifications of Belgium has come to light through the sudden grave illness of General Marie George Picquart, formerly French minister of war, while staying here.

It now appears that he and three other distinguished strangers were recently observed making extensive automobile excursions, during which they closely studied the ground with the aid of staff maps. They were discreetly watched by the Belgian secret service police, and were finally asked their names.

A sensation was caused when it was learned that the party was composed of prominent French staff officers, including Gen. Picquart, and public excitement was added to by the publication of the fact that a month ago a party of German staff officers passed over the same ground and carefully examined the fortifications, at the same time asking innumerable questions of the inhabitants.

The announcement was made here tonight that the French officer who is ill here, is not Gen. Picquart, but a staff colonel named Piskard.

Jury Ready to Try N. Y. Gunmen

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The jury that is to decide the fate of 'Gyp the Blood' (Harry Horowitz,) 'Lefty Louie' (Louis Rosenberg,) 'Dago Frank' (Frank Cirofici) and 'Whitey Lewis' (Frank Muller), the four young Zelig gangsters indicted for the actual killing of Herman Rosenthal, was secured after a session yesterday that lasted from 10.30 in the morning until 7.15 o'clock at night a recess of one hour only having been taken in the middle of the day.

The people's case against the four gunmen will begin to-morrow morning at 10.30 o'clock. Jack Rose, the State's star witness, is then expected to take the stand to tell in a general way the same story he told in the Becker trial.

Awoke Just in Time

ORANGEVILLE, Nov. 12.—Samuel Stump, a laborer, living in East Broadway here, was seen to stagger out of his back door early yesterday by a neighbor, Mrs. Gray, and to fall into a cellar area. When picked up the man was unconscious, and was found to be suffering from the fumes of a coal stove in his house. His wife and child were also found in bed unconscious, and had not prompt aid been rendered a triple fatality would have occurred in a few minutes.

Dr. Kyles was summoned, and today the family, although out of danger, are confined to bed from the effects. There was no ventilation in the house.

WEDDING BELLS.

HODGSON—BONAR

The Montreal Herald of November 7th contained the following. The contracting parties have friends in this vicinity.

A pretty house wedding was that of Miss Ruby Irene Bonar, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Bonar, to Mr. Thomas White Hodgson, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Hodgson, Rosyln avenue, Wesmount, which took place very quietly at six o'clock last evening at the residence of the bride's parents, 10 St. Luke Street, decorated with chrysanthemums and roses, and an arch of ferns. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Main, the couple standing under a bell in the drawing-room.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore white Duchesse satin, made with a train, and having a collar of Duchesse lace, and an embroidered chiffon yoke. The gown opened over a panel of Duchesse lace and was caught at the waist with orange blossoms. She wore a veil and orange blossoms in mob cap effect and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Gladys Bonar attended her sister, and was gowned in yellow satin draped with yellow crepe de chine and lace, and wore a mob cap of gold net trimmed with lilac flowers. She carried a shower bouquet of yellow roses. The groomsman was Mr. Sydney Hodgson, cousin of the groom.

The bridegroom gave to the bride a set of black fox furs and a watch bracelet, and to the bridesmaid he gave a pendant of pears and aquarmarine. He gave gold bar pins with bow knots of pearls to Miss Phyllis Jones, who played the wedding march and to Miss Thelma Hutchison, who sang 'Because'. To the groomsman he gave a tie pin. A reception was held after the ceremony.

The bride's going-away costume was a suit of grey and black pinstripe plush, and a small black hat with feather mount. Mr. and Mrs. Hodgson will spend their honeymon in the Atlantic City and New York, and on their return will reside in the city.

Mrs. John Bonar, of Cobourg; Mrs Joseph Charlton, of Hamilton; Mr. Hary Conley, of Cranbrook, B. C.; Mrs. Thomas White, Miss Laura White and Mrs. John Cotton, of Ottawa, were among the out-of-town guests.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 there will be held the monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary. A large attendance is requested.

Tonight, Mr. Hammond, the enthusiastic promoter of the Boy Scout Movement for Ontario, will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Marsion, Bridge street. Mr. Wills Maclachlan, the new chairman of the Boy Scout Movement in this city, has invited Mr. Hammond to meet all who are interested in the scout movement in Belleville, at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock. Mr. Maclachlan desires that all Sabbath school superintendents, public school masters, as well as any others who are interested, to be present, for it is contemplated to have a thorough reorganization. Those having any other engagement are asked to come in as early as circumstances will permit.

The Board of Directors held their monthly business meeting last night. They have ordered that an illuminated sign be placed at the corner of Campbell and Front streets.

This week is being observed here as in all centres throughout the world, as "The week of prayer."

Canadians Gather In New York City

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Five hundred men and women, natives of Canada, and their friends assembled tonight at the Hotel Astor for the eighth annual dinner of the Canadian Club, which was followed by a dance. At the guest table with T. Kennard Thompson, the President, were Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia; Sir Alexander Lacoste, Montreal; W. C. Brown, President of the New York Central; Sir Edmund Walker, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Sir Robert Williams; A. S. Goodeve, of the Canadian Railway Commission; Ernest Thompson Seton, Royal Ewing; David R. Forgan, President of the National City Bank of Chicago; J. A. Stewart, A. C. Chisholm; Newman Erb, President of the British Columbia Copper Company, and many other distinguished guests.

His excellency the Duke of Connaught wired, his regret at his inability to attend, and testified to the value of Canadian Clubs throughout Canada in fostering national spirit and in disseminating knowledge of subjects of Imperial and of world-wide interest.

Hon. R. L. Borden, on behalf of himself and Mrs. Borden, also sent his regrets.

W. T. Robson of the Canadian Pacific, the first President of the Canadian Club in New York, came from Montreal for the occasion, and brought along some striking samples of the apples produced in the Okanagan Valley of British Columbia.

Sir Edmund Walker made the speech of the evening in reply to the toast of "Canada."

Socialist Editor Suicide

GIRARD, Kan., Nov. 12.—J. A. Wayland, founder and owner of the Appeal to Reason, a Socialist weekly published here, shot and killed himself in his home, and was found by his housekeeper early yesterday. Between the leaves of a book on the bed the following note was found:—

"The struggle under the competitive system isn't worth the effort; let it pass."

Friends of Mr. Wayland attribute his act to despondency over the death of his wife, who was killed in an automobile accident a year ago.

Mr. Wayland was fifty-eight years old. As a writer and worker he was well known among Socialists throughout the world.

Light Sticks Best

The golf-clubs used by ladies are in almost every case rather lighter in weight than men's clubs, and, of course, shorter, in proportion to the height of the player. All good professionals advise ladies to use light clubs, especially light drivers and brassies, and in very many instances this advice is followed by complete success.

A girl's team is not among the impossibilities, and when they begin to move——!!

A SERIOUS CHARGE

A Dane named Masden was this afternoon on trial before Judge Deroche, charged with a serious offence, namely indecent asasult. The accused was committed to trial by two justices of the Peace of Tweed Village. It is alleged that the offence was committed a few weeks ago in the Township of Hungerford. Madsen pleaded not guilty. M. Anderson represented the Crown and Mr. Carnew for the accused.

MEETING OF POULTRY ASSO.

A meeting of the Poultry Association was held on Monday evening in the Cheese Board Room, Standard Bank building, which was the largest turn out of the Association and the enthusiasm displayed by the members present speaks well for the wellfare of the coming show. Several committees were appointed in connection with the coming show in January.

AN UNFORTUNATE WOMAN

Last evening the police were called to Moira Street east, it being reported that a woman was lying on the side of the road apparently intoxicated. It proved to be Margaret McCarthy, whose home is not in the city, but who occasionally comes here and usually gets full. This morning the Magistrate imposed a fine of $5 or 15 days. Margaret took the latter remarking it would give her an opportunity to clean her clothes which were some what soiled.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED

John Goldsmith, the young man who was committed for trial on a charge of stealing a suit of clothes from a fellow boarder named Wm. Jeffrey, came up this morning before Judge Deroche. The accused through his counsel, Mr. Carnew, pleaded guilty to the charge and explained in an explicit manner the circumstance of the case. Owing to Goldsmith's youth and the fact that he had previously borne a good character, sentence in the case was suspended for one year. In the meantime Goldsmith has to make restitution to Jeffrey, pay some costs and gave a bond for his good behaviour.

POLICE INTERRUPT SUIT

A short time ago Clem Ellis, who is well-known in the city was fined $25 and costs or in default one month in jail for providing liquor to a person who was upon the prohibited list. Ellis was not in the city at the time he was convicted as he suddenly left when receiving the summons to appear in court. Yesterday he came back and was later in the day arrested on the old charge and also for being drunk. When brought before the Magistrate this morning, Ellis denied being drunk but he was convicted and fined $5 and costs or in default 5 days in jail. He went up to Ketcheson's castle where he will have to remain for 45 days unless the $30 and costs are paid.

Two Men Badly Burned From a Gasoline Accident

WINDSOR, Nov. 12.—William Langlois and Leslie Lewis, plumbers, were badly burned about the face and hands today when a gasoline tank in L'Heureux's plumbing shop on Wyandotte st. exploded. Langlois, it is feared, will lose the sight of both eyes. His hands are also painfully burned. Lewis is in a less serious condition, but likely will be scarred for life. The explosion is said to have been caused from a lighted match coming in contact with leakage from the gasoline tank. The building was badly damaged, the front and back being blown out.

Jews To Smash The Food Trust

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.—Special—Matters concerning the high cost of living in Montreal took a new turn this morning, when it was announced that at a mass meeting of Jewish workers which is to be held in Coronation Hall, St. Lawrence Boulevard, on Thursday evening next, resolutions would be adopted calling upon the 60,000 Jews living in the city, to help smash local "food trusts" and "combines" by buying all their necessaries, food, clothes, coal, wood and effects from dealers known to be outside the pale of any combination in restraint of trade.

The Turks Lost Several Thousand

BELGRADE, Servia, Nov. 12.—The Servian casualities at the battle [illegible] Perlepe (Prilip) are now stated to have numbered about 3,000, mostly slightly wounded. The Turks lost 8,000 men.

At the battle of Krushovo the Servian losses totalled 300 and the Turkish casualities 1,700.

Bad Smallpox Plague

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.—Special—Since the dreadful smallpox scourge of 1885 in Montreal, the present smallpox outbreak is the most serious that has confronted the civic and provincial health officials.

Seven new cases were reported to the city health officers today, and there are now twenty-one cases in the new smallpox hospital. Of the patients in the hospital none had been vaccinated. One case is of the malignant type, and fears are felt for the recovery of the victim.

NICKEL AND BRASS FOR DINING TABLE

Dainty and Useful It Takes the Place of Silverware and Is Much Less Expensive

The woman who loves dainty table accessories for her dining-room table should be pleased with the new crumb trays and scrapers which have come out, some made of nickel, while others are fashioned from brass and copper. Narrow bands of pierce work border the sides.

So many people are using the new nickel-silverware for vegetable dishes, as well as for the various small table pieces, that the nickel crumb trays will appeal to many housewives. It is sometimes hard, or at least it used to be difficult to get these little table accessories without paying a large price for them, as the silver crumb trays were the only ones which a few years ago could be used at the dining-room table.

In those days only a millionaire was supposed to have a well-set table, but now any family whose mistress and mother has good taste and an artistic nature can set a table which will be both attractive and low in cost.

Don't imagine because you cannot indulge in solid silver that you cannot have an attractive table; for any woman has only to look in the large stores to-day to find all the necessary pieces in either nickel-plated on brass or in the new nickel-silverware referred to above.

A house may tell many of the thoughts of its owners, but a table correctly or incorrectly set reveals at once, to the woman who knows, the culture and good breeding of the occupants. Try, then, always to arrange the dinner, luncheon and breakfast table in an attractive manner and with as many of the correct pieces as one's pocketbook will allow. Far better to have a complete dinner set in nickel-silverware than an incomplete one of real silver.

MISS BRADDON'S FIRST EFFORT

When Miss Braddon, who lately celebrated her seventy-third birthday, was asked some time ago as to her first appearance in print, she replied, "To the best of my recollection, the first thing of mine that ever appeared in print was a song, in the seventeenth-century style, that was published in the 'Beverley Recorder' in May, 1857." This first printed effort of the prolific and popular authoress, which was entitled "Rest," and signed "Mary Seyton," consisted of four verses, and opened thus:—

All joys on earth have we,
All fears on earth we see,
All cares on earth there be,
But never rest.

NEW HARBOR FOR HALIFAX

The announcement of the Government's intention to commence at an early date extensive terminal and harbour improvements at Halifax, is of importance to all Canada. It is a notable step in the working out of a policy of national trade development. The Government realizes that if Canada's growing trade is to pass through Canadian channels for the benefit of Canadians, the great seaports of the Dominion must be so equipped as to provide ample and safe accommodation for the largest ocean-going ships and for the expeditious handling of cargoes. It is this realization which has prompted the Borden Government to embark upon the gigantic task of extending the harbor facilities on both oceans. Contracts have already been let for important works on the Pacific coast; provision is being made on a generous scale for the harbor needs of Montreal and Quebec. The same is true of St. John, and the climax of the general scheme is now being reached in the comprehensive plan for the creation of a great still water harbor at Halifax, with ample ocean and railroad terminals.

The Halifax scheme, as outlined by the Minister of Railways, Hon. Frank Cochrane, is as follows:—

"Docks are to extend for one and a half miles from the Lumber Yard to Point Pleasant Park, and will consist of SIX PIERS, 1,250 feet long and 300 feet in width, with capacity sufficient to dock at least thirty ships. There will be one bulkhead loading pier 2,000 feet in length, at which the ocean greyhounds will land. This pier will be equipped with immigration buildings, sheds and a grain elevator.

A new union passenger station will be erected at the end of Hollis street, which will be of ample size and suitable architecture.

These terminals will be approached by a double tracked railroad, which will branch off the main line at the Three Mile House and extend southerly through the low divide between Bedford Basin and the head of the North-West Arm. It will then skirt the Arm in such location as will do the least damage to property in that vicinity, avoiding all level crossings and, for the most part, passing through deep cuttings, so as not to mar the beauty of that district, and, finally reaching the terminals by passing under the lower end of Young Avenue.

The streets in the residential district, where the railway is submerged, will be carried over the cutting on artistic bridges in keeping with the present surroundings. At the terminal ample tracks will be provided for the economical handling of the business for the wharves and Union station; also proper facilities for the housing of engines and the care of passenger cars."

This scheme is the splendid result of months of careful consideration and study by the Government at Ottawa, based upon the reports of expert engineers who have gone thoroughly over the ground. The plan as outlined has been enthusiastically received and endorsed by the business men of Halifax, irrespective of politics. Leading Nova Scotia Liberals recognize the national importance of the work as well as the enormous local advantage to be derived from it. The Government is undertaking the work only after a most thorough examination and study by its experts.

AN INPERIAL CALL

The Mansion House speeches, says the Toronto News, put to shame those little Canadians who have argued that there is no special need for extra defence preparations on the part of the British Empire. From the First Lord of the Admiralty, we have the announcement that the sixth battleship squadron of the Imperial navy is being rushed to completion a year ahead of the original programme, and that the whole force is being raised to a new standard of equipment, personnel and efficiency. For this purpose the British taxpayers are contributing larger sums of money than ever before, but in making these sacrifices they are counting on the taxpayers in the over-sea portions of the Empire doing their duty also. As Mr. Churchill has said, this year will be memorable in the annals of the navy because of "the spontaneous and simultaneous movement on the part of the great dominions of the Crown towards effective participation in Imperial defence."

In whatever part of the globe they live Britons have a common interest in the maintenance and defence of the Empire. This conviction is widespread in Canada, and that is why Mr. Borden's decision to go to the aid of the oMther Land in this present crisis meets with such general approval from Liberals as well as Conservatives. That is why the misleading cry over "autonomy" falls on deaf ears. The Government will submit its permanent defence policy to the electors, but while that is in preparation no true Canadian wants anything left undone that will strengthen the Imperial navy in what is clearly regarded by those who should know as a genuine emergency.

LOOKING AFTER THE SLUMS

In a new country like Canada there is a chance to head o ffthe slum evil by never permitting it to arise. We have the experience of the older lands before us; we have modern sanitary science; we know that prevention is better than cure. That it is high time for action will be seen in the fact that already the nuclei of great slums have appeared in Montreal and Toronto. The state of affairs in "The Ward" of Toronto has been repeatedly investigated, and fortunately is now under constant scrutiny. In Montreal conditions appear to be much worse, and to have received less attention. A correspondent of the Montreal Gazette says: "I have seen poverty in all its stages, but I tell you that poor degraded, down-trodden misrepresented Ireland, in all her so-called filthiness would blush were her people to live under such housing conditions as I have witnessed in this city. I unhesitatingly say that the mode of housing of the majority of the poor, defenceless laboring classes is disgraceful. Here we find human beings huddled together, irrespective of sex, in pigsties, situated in lanes, where not even sunlight can penetrate. Is it any wonder that immorality in every form is on the increase, and that 70 per cent. of the children born in these slums die every year?"

RAILROAD MAN HAD TO LAY OFF

Until He Took GIN PILLS

Buffalo, N.Y.

"I have been a Pullman conductor on the C. P. R. and Michigan Central for the last three years.

About four years ago, I was laid up with intense pain in the groin, a very sore back, and suffered most severely when I tried to urinate.

I treated with my family physician for two months for Gravel In The Bladder but did not receive any benefit. About that time, I met another railroad man who had been similarly affected and who had been cured by GIN PILLS, after having been given up by a prominent physicians who treated him for Diabetes. He is now running on the road and is perfectly cured. He strongly advised me to try GIN PILLS which I did—with the result that the pains left me entirely."

A young woman who set fire to a hotel in St. Louis, Mo., in which four persons perished, has confessed and gives as an excuse that a dual personality caused her to commit the crime. She further says that she is ambitious and good, while the dual self is bad and likes to see people excited. The dual person should be convicted on the other's evidence and given a long term in prison, where it could not harm ordinary individuals.

The arrival of the great dry dock at Montreal was of greater significance than most people are apparently aware. The chief public interest was the voyage of the huge bulk across the sea, and the prodigious task and risk involved. But its presence in the dock in Montreal, equipped for the repair of Canadian shipping means a very great deal. It gives a degree of self-reliance to Canada which before was lacking in this particular regard.

Mr. J. G. Elliott, editor in chief of the Kingston Whig, has been for thirty-five years continuously the guiding spirit of that well known paper, and is largely responsible for its reputation as the best small city daily in the country. Mr. Elliott is receiving many congratulations, and he deserves them well, for he is not only a good newspaper man, but a good citizen and companion in every way. The man who endures the unceasing grind and strain of daily newspaper work for thirty-five years is entitled to more than congratulations.—Brockville Times.

We always did appreciate the spirit of the Whig. Heres' our hand, Brother Elliott.

German Comment Favors Asquith

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—The German Foreign Office states that the Austro-Servian situation is in nowise acute, and undoubtedly will be solved internationally on the lines of the suggestions advanced by Premier Asquith of Great Britain.

The newspapers mostly support this view, and their comment is very favorable to Mr. Asquith's proposals.

Centuries in Building

The four centuries between the Panama Canal's first conception and its completion are by no means a record in the annals of canal construction. The completion in 1893 of the canal across the Isthmus of Corinth was the finish of a scheme for which the first survey was made in the year 600 B.C., when Periander employed Egyptian engineers to carry out the work. Nero actually commenced work along the site of the present canal, but at his death it was abandoned, and the project was not revived until 1882, and this though the total length of the canal is under four miles.

Minimized Ice Danger

On the steamship Royal Edward from Bristol, was Dr. Meyer Coplans, bacteriologist of public health in the University of Leeds, Eng. Dr Coplans made the voyage for the purpose of testing an apparatus he has invented as an aid to navigators in fog and haze and for detecting the presence of icebergs. His instrument "nosed" the presence of icebergs three miles and a half away and sounded an alarm on three occasions in the vicinity of ice.

Children's Preference for Pastry

Dr. Gilmour, school medical officer for Paisley, in his annual report, said children belonging to the poorest families were not necessarily the most ill-nourished, and he attributed the numbers of poorly nourished children amongst scholars from the artisan class to the fact that the children were in many cases allowed to dictate as to their personal likes and dislikes in the way of food, with an actual preference for pastry and similar articles. Twelve per cent. of the boys and nine per cent. of the girls examined were poorly nourished.

Attack on a Prison Warder

The Admiralty quarry at Stirlinghill, Scotland, was the scene of a desperate attack by a convict on a warder. The quarry stands high on a desolate hill, and while convicts are at work is carefully guarded by warders armed with loaded rifles. The warder managed to clutch the ledge of a rock, and held on to it until another convict came to the rescue and pulled him to the top.

BALKAN TROUBLE A QUEER TANGLE

Little States Formerly Part of Turkish Empire—Russia a Political Factor

Perhaps the most peculiar thing about the trouble in the Balkan Peninsula is that it is caused by the uprising of the group of little states themselves that have hitherto been only pawns in the diplomatic game of the great powers.

That the four little States which have taken it on themselves to defy the Ottoman Empire—Greece, Bulgaria, Servia and Montenegro—should have formed a coalition as they now have is one of the surprising features of the whole affair. Only a few years ago most of the world had begun to believe that racial and national prejudices which the Turks in Abdul Hamid's day had played upon so effectually would make any approach to an understanding impossible.

Once Belonged to Sultan

Each of these four States was once part of the great Ottoman Empire that at one time reached almost to the gates of Vienna. Through their own insistent struggles and finally through the intervention of the Powers they obtained their independence and today they demand of Turkey that the same blessings of independence they are themselves enjoying shall be extended to those of their own race who yet remain under Ottoman rule.

The Berlin treaty, signed in 1878, at the close of the Russo-Turkish war, was the most notable and probably the most carefully worked out of all the attempts to adjust and balance the conflicting claims and interests in the Ottoman Empire. Russia had fought a successful war and was looking for rich rewards. If she really had ambitions for the acquisition of Constantinople, which had been one of the great points of Russian diplomatic policy as laid down by Peter the Great, she did not attempt to urge them. Instead through the treaty of San Stefano, which she had entered with Turkey, she had hoped to establish a great Bulgarian State that would be bound to her by race, religion and political necessities. This Bulgaria was to include most of Macedonia, with a seaport on the Aegean and a boundary that extended almost from Constantinople to Salonica. This would have made Bulgaria by far the most powerful of the Balkan States and would have given Russia the predominating influence.

Russia's Plan Frustrated

But at the very first sitting of the congress of Berlin, Prince Bismarck suggested that the question of the greatest importance was the "delimitation and the organization of Bulgaria." Thus Russia was compelled to give up her grand designs and the new Bulgaria was restricted to the part of Turkey lying between the Danube and the Balkan Mountains.

The congress also established as independent States Montenegro, Servia, Bulgaria and Roumania. There still remained unsettled, however, two great questions, the disposition of Crete and of Macedonia. Plan after plan has been formulated and commission after commission has been appointed by the Powers to bring peace and quiet to each of these disturbed lands. Everything has proved ineffectual. Crete has been the great disturbing factor in the internal politics of Greece, and the condition of Macedonia was more recently put forward as a reason for war.

JAPAN'S WAR LOSS

The Japanese are not fond of giving away information, and the report of the casualities sustained in the war with Russia has been delayed till it can be of no service to their late opponents. The figures were made public only recently. It is now learned that the Japanese casualities in round numbers included 40,000 killed and 135,000 wounded, of which 70,000 occurred at Mukden alone and 44,000 at Port Arthur. The infantry lost just ten times as many in proportion as the artillery. This may account for the idea now prevalent in the Japanese army that the artillery did not adequately support the infantry and that they should have pressed forward closer to the enemy and taken their share of the bullets.

Mrs. J. Isnop, of 221 S. Bentalon Street, Baltimore, Md., says: "I wrote you about nine months ago, telling you of my condition. I have a fine baby girl—she weighed nine pounds when born. She is my third child and the strongest of them all. My suffering was only for two hours. I took several bottles of "Favorite Prescription" and one of Dr. Pierce's Smart-Weed. I never had a well day before I took your medicines. I was surprised how well I felt—could eat—was always hungry, and never had a sick stomach. The nurse who was with me said the medicine was wonderful because I got along so nicely after having had so much trouble before. She intends to recommend it to all her suffering patients. Everybody is astonished at me because I only weighed 102 pounds before and now I weigh 135. I have had several ladies come to me and ask about Dr. Pierce's medicine. I am willing to recommend it to all who suffer and want help. If any want information I will be glad to give it to them."

A new craze has been provided in Paris. The idea is that, instead of using morphia, cocaine, or cafeine, they should employ as a stimulant hypodermic injections of otto of roses, violet, and cherry blossom perfumes. These fragrances remain. An actress, who was the first to try it, declared that forty-eight hours after an injection of one of these perfumes her skin was saturated with the aroma. The experiment is proving attractive.

SAILOR WAS MADE A JUNGLE KING

Fought Black Ruler for His Throne and Won Sixteen Wives as Well

Stranger adventure than that which befell an Englishman—Hugh Gilhespie of Newcastle—on the east Coast of Africa is seldom met with outside the realms of fiction. Gilhespie was, and still is, second engineer on the steamer Royal Prince, which makes periodic calls at Mombassa. At this port Gilhespie secured leave and, with a guide, set out for the jungle to do some big game shooting. Coming on the trail of elands, they followed it up until the tracks became stronger. The guide suggested their separating so as to come on the game from two sides, and this was done.

Alone, Gilhespie followed the trail until he was tired, weak and hungry, he sat down to contemplate the situation, and fell asleep. He was roughly awakened by a number of natives, who took possession of his rifle and revolver, and marched him to their village and before their king.

The natives kow-towed to their monarch, and tried to make the Englishman do the same. This he refused to do, and, as they persisted, he lost his temper, and struck out with such effect that three of the natives were knocked down.

The King, evidently incensed at the treatment of his men, made a blind rush for Gilhespie. As he came on with his head down, like a mad bull Gilhespie stepped aside and delivered a telling blow which laid him on the ground. Then he tried close quarters and for fully half an hour the two fought, wrestled, and wriggled on the ground, each getting a blow in when the opportunity offered. At last Gilhespie delivered the "knock-out," and while he was recovering his breath and generally pulling himself together a little monkey, which had been sitting at the side of the throne, ran to Gilhespie and climbed on his shoulder. The natives immediately prostrated themselves face down on the ground and gave utterance to weird cries.

Received as King

The rest of the story is best told in Mr. Gilhespie's own words.

"An old chap, with a big staff, the head carved in the shape of a strange bird, came towards me and kowtowed. Then he pointed to me and motioned towards the throne. I then began to realise that I was chosen to be their king. I walked towards the throne, and the natives chanted a weird heathen song. When I sat down, with the monkey still on my shoulder, they cheered so loud that they brought the king back to consciousness. He took a good look at me upon the throne, and fled madly into the forest.

"I was duly made king by the chief medicine man. I soon learned how it all came about. The monkey, it seems, was a sort of personification of the god which lived in the depth of the jungle, whom the natives worshiped, and when it jumped on my shoulders they accepted that as a sign that their god had chosen me as their ruler.

"But my troubles began very soon. All because of the royal wives, of whom there were sixteen. The man who finds himself henpecked by one wife is to be pitied, but think of a man henpecked by sixteen! That was my case.

"These wives wore strings of lions' teeth as necklaces, and they were always wanting more. I sent the hunters of the tribe out to get more, but they were unsuccessful, and my wives yammered and scolded day and night in consequence. After I had been king of the tribe for about three weeks I concluded that the job was not to my liking, and I decided to escape.

Escaped Into the Jungle

"One night, when the sixteen females had nagged me until my head was swimming, I tip-toed out of the hut, stole through the village, and made for the woods, followed, however, by the monkey. All night I stumbled through the jungle with the monkey as my only guide. That monkey was my salvation, for it took me in the right direction. About sunset next day, when I was famishing for food and water, I came on the camp of an English hunting party. The Englishmen guided me back to Mombasa, and when I went on board the Royal Prince the crew thought I was a ghost."

Mr. Gilhespie's fellow engineers— [illegible] his story of his adventures.

A Gigantic Barometer

The remarkable discovery has been made that the Eiffel Tower sinks over an inch into the ground in certain atmospherical conditions, rising again later to its normal state. It was known that the Tower swayed horizontally to the extent of several centimeters, and M. Guillaume of the Academy of Science conceived the idea of stretching a piece of wire from the second storey to the ground. Leaving the wire taut he found that twice after storms it had loosened to the extent of an inch or more. Further investigations have shown that the Tower sinks several hours before the approach of stormy weather—in other words, the great structure is an admirable barometer.

The King's Resignation

Since there is no precedent for the Sovereign's holding office in any university of the Empire, King George has resigned the Chancellorship of the Cape University, with which his Majesty was invested on the occasion of his visit to South Africa in 1901 as Duke of Cornwall.

The Duke of Connaught has accepted the nomination to the Chancellorship in succession to the King.

The King's Pigeons

Just recently King George has constructed a magnificent new pigeon loft in place of the old one standing at Sandringham. King George's original loft was a cottage with an aviary attached to one of the lower rooms in which the birds could take air when not at liberty, but the new loft has been designed by Mr. J. Walter Jones, the Sandringham schoolmaster, who is the trainer of the Royal pigeons; and there is most excellent accommodation for the birds. The loft is divided into three pats; one part is set aside for stock birds—that is to say, the pigeons that are kept to breed the racers. The largest part of the loft is for the racing pigeons that have to fly in competitions; and the other portion is for the youngsters.

The new Royal loft is in the form of the letter L, twenty-eight feet one way and twenty feet the other, while the centre of the "L" is filled in by an aviary twelve feet wide. There are thirty-six nest boxes in the old-bird loft, and sixteen in the stock-bird loft, so that accommodation is provided in the new Royal pigeon loft for fifty-two pairs of racing pigeons. The interior of the new pigeon loft is seven feet from floor to ceiling, and the roof is flat, and in order that, when the birds arrive home from training and racing, there may be no time wasted the entrance is fitted with an electrical appliance that notifies at once when the birds have entered.

There is no doubt that the association of King George with the sport of pigeon racing, like the association of the late King Edward, has done much to give an impetus to the sport. It is only further evidence of the interest the King takes in his subjects' pastimes, and it can be truly said there is no more honest pastime than pigeon racing, because it requires much study to breed and produce birds endowed with such a high degree of intelligence as racing pigeons. Not only must their intelligence be cultivated and improved, but also their physical properties must be brought to the best possible state of perfection.

ELEPHANTS OF THE SEA

Huge Creatures of the Seal Family About Which Little is Known

Mr. C. H. Townsend, director of the New York Aquarium, paid a visit to Guadalupe Island, 140 miles off the northern par of the peninsula of Lower California, and made an interesting study of the sea elephants which inhabit the waters about that island. he found a herd of 125 of these great seals located on Elephant Beach. This herd consisted chiefly of adult males, and included not more than fifteen females, of which half a dozen were accompanied by newly-born pups. Three of the largest males were killed for museums, and likewise an adult female, the former averaging 16 feet in length by 11 feet in girth, while the latter was close on 11 feet in length. Males of 22 feet in length have, however, been previously recorded. The "pups," which appeared to be about a week old, were dusky black in color, and thus different from the yearlings, which were greyish brown. The old males frequently engaged in fighting among themselves, although such combats were far less serious than those which take place between male fur-seals, there being apparently no actual seizure by one combatant of the skin of the other, and the head being quickly withdrawn and raised aloft after the infliction of every blow. The nursing females were in most cases accompanied by a yearling as well as by a newly-born pup. Some of the yearlings were captured without difficulty by throwing over them pieces of heavy netting in which they were tightly rolled.

In addition to recording the black color of the newly-born young, Mr. Townsend claims to have discovered that the trunk of the old males is incapable of being inflated, and that it is retracted into heavy folds on the top of the head by muscular action. It was also noticed for the first time that the yearlings emit a cry or scream unlike the voice of any other seal; and that the favorite food of young sea elephants is fish.

HOCKEY

KINGSTON, Nov. 12.—Although they have lost the services of Leo Trimble and Greg George, Queen's hockey enthusiasts are optimistic over the prospects for the coming year. Besides McKinnon, Box, Smith, Blakesley, Dafoe, Elliott and E. Moxley, there are a number of promising freshmen with a hockey reputation.

Dr. J. J. Harty, it is expected, will again coach the team, and Physical Director Jas. Bews will start next Monday to get the team in good physical condition by giving regular gymnasium classes to the prospective players.

BOWMANVILLE, Nov. 12.—Bowmanville hockey enthusiasts have organized ofr the coming season, electing these officers: Honorary president, Alex. Taylor; president, J. J. Moriarity; 1st vice president, Charles Wattleworth; 2nd vice president, Geo. W. James; secretary, Gordon A. Beith; treasurer, P. G. Nixon; manager, W. E. Kavanagh; managing committee, Jas. G. Seales, Frank H. Morris, G. A. Beith; representatives to Ontario Hockey Association meeting, Geo. W. James and G. A. Beith.

It was decided to enter a team in the intermediate series of the O. H. A. Unusual interest is being taken in hockey in this town this season.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.—Several important announcements were made at the general meeting of the Interprovincial Hockey Union Saturday evening. The meeting finally adjourned to Saturday, Nov. 23, when the schedule will probably be given out.

The election of officers resulted in J. C. Riddell of Montreal being made president; P. Blinco of Grand Mere, vice-president; W. Iveson of New Edinburgh, second vice-president, and H. Hicks, secretary-treasurer.

Sixteen clubs are now affiliated with the union, the Montagnards, a Montreal club who figured prominently in hockey formerly, as well as St. Patricks of Quebec, being admitted at Saturday's meeting. The application of Shawinigan Falls was held over until the next meeting.

There is also some talk or trying to get Arnprior, Almonte and other Ontario towns to enter the Ottawa section.

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—The National Hockey Association, having declared war on the Pacific Coast League by refusing their terms for a National Commission, is now going to have a little internal discussion. The Ottawas are up in arms over the decision of the league to retain the six-man game. They claim that the Torontos promised they would vote to revert to the seven-man style, providing they were given the services of Bruce Redpath.

The Torontos, according to the Ottawas, double-crossed them. Now the Ottawas demand $500 for Bruce Ridpath's release, otherwise they will retain him. The Ottawas will use Fred Taylor on their defense and will also carry both Shore and Lake. General regret is expressed at the failure of the league to revert to the seven-man team, for the hockey last winter was of a very inferior quality and hundreds will refuse to patronize it again.

THE RING.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Fred Welch, the English lightweight, regained his title of lightweight champion of Great Britain in a twenty-round fight last night with Matt Wells, the British title-holder. The fight went the full distance, Welch winning on points.

A great crowd gathered in the National Sporting Club, where the contest was held, and witnessed a clever bout in which the honors were fairly even throughout. Welch was a slight favorite in the betting. There was some holding, and the referee several times cautioned the men to box cleanly.

In the early rounds Welch had slightly the better of it, Wells' work being a little ragged. Both tried desperately in the final rounds to score a knockout.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Al Palzer, back under the management of Tom O'Rourke, who first brought him to the front, is again showing evidence of some day becoming the real "white hope" of pugilism. Out at Woodlawn Inn, where the late Stanley Ketchel used to prepare for his battles, Palzer is going through a course of training that is sure to make him a most formidable man with the mitts. During his long lay-off, Palzer accumulated a vast amount of flesh, and it has been no easy task to get him down where he belongs. Even after several weeks of arduous labor, Palzer is considerably on the heavier side. He weighs in the neighborhood of 225 pounds at present, and his best weight, O'Rourke says, is 218 pounds. So that is about what he will tip the scales at when he shapes up in his next fight. Palzer has been patient and has done well since getting down to real hard work. He was big and soft and flabby and weighed more than 250 pounds when he started in to reduce his weight. O'Rourke, too, has been very patient. He is nursing the big fellow along very carefully. When Al starts he will be fit. His long absence from the ring may make him appear awkward and rather strange, but as he will have easy pickings he will be able to round into his best form before he is sent out to tackle any of the hard propositions.

Sir Thomas Lipton left yesterday for Seattle and San Francisco, he discussed the great yachting event which is being planned for the latter city for 1915, and expressed his willingness to cooperate in making it one of the greatest in yachting history.

He said if he carried out his present intention of building Shamrock IV. he will bring her through the Panama Canal to San Francisco. He suggested that the Yacht Racing Union of Great Britain be invited to participate, and this would result, he believes, in the greatest fleet of racing yachts that ever crossed the Atlantic, meeting at San Francisco, which also would come through the canal. On his arrival at San Francisco Sir Thomas will discuss the matter fully with the promoters and will suggest that King George, Emperor William of Germany and the King of Spain be invited to send their yachts to take part in the great event.

RUGBY

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—As a rule the Rugby critics, the papers and the Ottawa players concede that the Argos proved the better team, although all claim that a considerable element of luck allowed the oarsmen to secure three touchdowns, two coming on fumbles, while the other was on a onside kick which any one of half a dozen Ottawa players was in a position to prevent. It is also claimed locally that the Ottawas received decidedly the short end of it from the officials, Messrs. Ben Simpson and Tommy Riddell. Local fans think that both appeared anxious to rule Ottawa men off for any trifling offence, Simpson coming in for the greatest blame. They also declare that the Argos put up a very rough exhibition in the first half. The Argos are very much in favor with the local players and Rugby followers and they are the popular choice here for the Grey Cup representing the Dominion championship.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.—The game that will decide where the laurels of the Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union will rest this season will be played by Varsity and McGill at Lansdowne Park at Ottawa on Saturday next, commencing at 2.30. On the refusal of McGill to accept the sporting offer of Varsity to toss a coin for the choice of Rosedale grounds at Toronto or M.A.A.A. grounds at Montreal, the representatives from Queen's, McGill and Varsity argued for nearly three hours before coming to a decision.

McGill was represented by Graham Ross, Queen's by E. Malcolm, and Varsity by Jack Maynard, the secretary of the Intercollegiate Union. The first matter taken up was the choice of officia's. Phil Mackenzie was decided on, with Dr. Hendry as umpire. They have been empowered to select their own assistants, such as goal umpires, touch judges, timekeepers and linesmen.

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—Secretary Reg. Gaisford of the Ottawa Football Club, wrote President John Davidson of the Canadian Rugby Union, Sunday, requesting information as to where the intermediate finals and semi-finals should be played.

As matters stand, the Ottawas take it for granted that the Royal Military College Cadets will play here, in the semi-finals a week from Saturday, viz., Nov. 23rd, and that the survivors will meet the Hamilton Rough Riders in the final. The Cadets, however, want Varsity to default their return game, and would like to see Ottawa and Hamilton play off next Saturday, then meeting them in the final. If the Rough Riders guarantee expenses the Ottawas will go to Hamilton, otherwise they will insist on the Cadets coming here on the 23rd. The Ottawa club may not care to finance the trip to Hamilton should the youngsters qualify, but it is proposed that the Ottawas' share of the receipts should be set aside to hold out the seconds, who have done splendid work this season, and who are deserving of assistance.

As soon as they get word from President Davidson the Ottawas will proceed with their arrangements; meanwhile, the seconds will work out daily at Lansdowne Park under Jim McQuaig. Jack Ryan will help coach the wings and Eddie Gerard may also lend a hand. The intermediates have not been beaten this season, and are naturally keen on landing the championship.

HAMILTON, Nov. 12.—The big game will be surely played. Articles have been signed, training has started, and the fans are doping the matter out. On Saturday, November 23rd, the Tigers and Alerts will settle the question of the city championship. This will be a great game, and will be the biggest betting event of many a day. An enormous crowd will see the game. At present the Alerts are favorites.

GUELPH, Nov. 12.—The Ontario Agricultural College, which defeated Kingston in the junior Intercollegiate, intends to challenge the O.R.F.U. for the junior championship, and, should these games be arranged, they expect to bring the championship to the Intercollegiate Union.

Stole Breakfast Of The Emperor

BUDAPEST, Nov. 11.—Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, who is here, had his breakfast stolen yesterday. His Majesty is a very early riser, and is always ready for his simple cold breakfast at half-past four in the morning. On Saturday the attendants found that the larder had been cleaned out. There were marks of soot about the icebox, and this started a suspicion that a chimney sweep who was employed about the palace might know something about his Majesty's breakfast. Detectives who got on the track found the sweep at home enjoying the King's meal. What will happen to the sweep will appear later.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

CANALEJAS MURDERED

Prime Minister of Spain Assassinated by Anarchist.

Radical Statesman Is Shot Down From Behind While Walking Along the Street—Motive For Outrage Is Unknown—Murderer Attempts Suicide But Is Still Living—Marquis Prieto Is Premier Pro Tempore.

Madrid, Nov. 13.—Jose Canalejas y Mendes, the Prime Minister, whom Spain has regarded as one of the greatest of statesman, was shot and killed yesterday by a young anarchist named Manuel Pardanis. The assassin attempted suicide and it was first thought he was dead, but when he had been carried to the hospital he was found to be living.

No event since the throwing of the bomb at the carriage of King Alfonso on May 31, 1906, while the king was returning from the church after his marriage, has created such general consternation and such public sympathy.

So far as can be learned at present the assassination seems to be in no way a part of a widespread political plot or revolutionary movement, but an isolated crime for which the exact motive remains obscure.

The assassin, who was of Spanish birth, came recently from Buenos Ayres, by way of Paris. Practically nothing is known of him.

The King has appointed the Foreign Minister, Marquis Manuel Garcia Prieto, as Premier pro tempore, and the Liberal Government, which Senor Canalejas so conspicuously conducted for several years, remains in power.

After a meeting of the Cabinet last night it was announced that General Weyler, captain-general of Catalonia, and once commander-in-chief of the Spanish forces in Cuba, or Count Romanones might be appointed permanent Premier.

Canalejas was shot in the back three times as he was walking to the Ministry of the Interior in the Poerta del Sol. He had stopped to glance into the window of a bookshop.

In the morning he went to the royal palace, to submit several decrees to the king. He emerged smiling and happy. As an attendant opened the door leading to the street a strong gust of wind struck the Premier in the face, causing him to exclaim gaily: "Oh, what a wind. We are going to have a bad day."

About an hour later his unconscious prophecy was fulfilled. As he stopped for a moment at the shop window a man darted from a nearby doorway. He ran up behind the Premier and fired four shots at close range. Three bullets, as it was afterwards found, took effect.

Canalejas sank to the sidewalk. A friend who was passing at the moment, rushed up, crying: "Don Jose! Don Jose!" this being the Premier's baptismal name.

The wounded man scarcely had strength to murmur: "The scoundrel has killed me." He then expired.

In the meantime his assailant turned the muzzle of the revolver on his own breast and fired again. A crowd quickly gathered, while the assassin was half-dragged to the police station.

The Premier was carried to a pharmacy, and then to the Ministry of the Interior, where he was placed on a large marble table in the main salon. The blood flowing from a wound behind the right ear soon formed a pool on the floor.

Jose Canalejas, who belonged to a wealthy and prominent Spanish family, came to the front in political life in Spain early in 1900, when he took a leading part in the campaign against clericalism. He had, however, taken great interest in politics as a student and public speaker for many years before that. At the age of 25 he became a member of the Spanish Parliament, attaching himself to the advanced Liberal section.

He became a member of Premier Sagasta's Cabinet in 1902, when he accepted the portfolio of agriculture. He introduced many reforms, especially in regard to the working classes, and eventually created a department of labor.

When he was asked in February, 1910, by King Alfonso, to form a Ministry, the request caused a great sensation, as it was the first time in the history of Spain that an advanced Radical had been placed at the head of the Ministry. His Cabinet has since undergone many changes, but he has always retained the leading place.

The project introduced by Senor Canalejas for the separation of church and state in Spain caused a rupture of relations between the country and the Vatican. These have since been resumed and the question of separation is being discussed with a view to a friendly settlement. The Spanish Government, however, insists on the supremacy of the civil power.

Pope Is Shocked.

Rome, Nov. 13.—The assassination of Premier Canalejas of Spain produced the deepest impression here, especially at the Vatican, where the remembrance is still vivid of his energetic struggle against the religious orders.

Cardinal Merry del Val, papal secretary of state, received news of the crime early in the afternoon in a cipher telegram from Madrid. He went immediately to the Pope and communicated the news to him, using great precaution not to shock him. The Pope was deeply affected and expressed his horror at the crime, exclaiming: "This comes from stamping out religion in the most Catholic country."

His holiness then knelt and remained absorbed in prayer for the safety of Spain.

The impression produced on Cardinal Merry del Val was very profound, as he himself is a Spaniard, and together with Cardinal Vives y Tuto, possesses the most powerful influence with the Pope, and gives the present pontificate somewhat of a Spanish atmosphere.

In the city of Rome the crime is generally regarded as one of vengeance for the execution of Prof. Francisco Ferrer, for conspiring against the Government at Barcelona.

The Osservatore Romano, the Vatican organ, expresses horror and utters a protest of indignation against the author of the assassination.

Sorrow In France.

Paris, Nov. 13.—France was greatly shocked by the news of the assassination of Premier Canalejas, who was greatly admired here as a statesman and a political leader.

During the difficult Franco-Spanish negotiations concerning Morocco, which resulted in a practical agreement, Premier Canalejas, by his great tact, kept the discussions in such a groove that the friendly relations of the two countries were not impaired in any way.

Premier Poincare immediately after receiving news of the crime, called at the Spanish embassy to express his grief.

President Fallieres sent a member of his military household to the Spanish embassy to say on his behalf that he was unable to understand the crime, as the late Premier was a man of distinctly liberal tendencies. There was, therefore, no logic in making him a victim of an anarchist outrage.

MUST BURY WIRES.

Hydro-Eleceric Commission Issues an Important Order.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—At a meeting of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission yesterday afternoon the commission determined that an order should be issued directing the city of Hamilton and the Cataract Power Co. to construct a joint underground electric conduit system for the downtown part of the city. This order is practically the first that has been made under the Hydro-Electric Act which was passed by the Ontario Legislature at its last session, and it shows that from now on the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. er will mean as much to the electric industry as the Dominion Railway Board does to the railway industry.

To Hamilton the board's order means much. The order states explicity that the city and the Cataract Power Co. will have to get together immediately for the settlement of the wire question. This means that there will be no more time wasted in the courts and that the downtown part of the city will soon be free from the post pest. The order states that the work in connection with the construction of the system shall be done by the city and it shall begin immediately. All parties using the system will share in the cost, but the apportionments have not yet been considered.

A special feature of the new system will be the provision made for telephone and telegraph wires. The order provides service for the Bell Telephone Co., the Great Northwestern Telegraph Co. by ordering that spare ducts and special manholes shall be installed in the new system. This means that the telephone and telegraph poles will have to come down. The Dominion Railway Board has jurisdiction over telephone and telegraph companies, but it is understood that as the result of the recent joint meeting of the Railway Board and the commission there is a mutual understanding between them that they will co-operate in the work of getting rid of overhead wires. The commission's order states that if either of the companies wants the underground service the overhead wires will have to be taken down.

EDUCATIONIST PASSES

Prof. Clark of Trinity College Is Dead Aged 83.

One of Canada's Most Brilliant Scholars Dies at His Home In Toronto After an Illness Extending Over the Past Two Years—Was Born In Scotland and Held Degrees In Many Notable Seats of Learning.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—Canada lost one of her most brilliant scholars and educators in the death yesterday afternoon of Rev. Prof. William Clark, D.D., D.C.L., of Trinity College. Death occurred at his late residence, 53 Beveley street. Prof. Clark had been in failing health for the past two years. He became quite weak about two weeks ago and never rallied. He was in his eighty-fourth year.

Prof. Clark was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, in 1829, and was a son of the late Rev. James Clark. He received his early education and first degree at Aberdeen, Scotland, afterwards receiving a degree at Oxford, and later from Canadian and United States universities. He was an honorary D.C.L. of Trinity College, Toronto; D.D. of Queen's University, Kingston, and LL.D. of Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y.

After his ordination by the Bishop of Worcester he in 1857 held the curacy in St. Metthia's Church, Birmingham, and in 1859 became vicar of St. Mary's Magdalene Church, Taunton, Eng., holding that post until 1880. During that period he was also an honorary member of the staff of Wells Cathedral, Eng. After two years spent in literary work he came to Canada in 1882, and became rector at St. George's Church, Toronto.

In 1883 he became a professor at Trinity College, Toronto, taking the chair of mental and moral philosophy, and afterwards becoming professor of English literature. He held the post of professor at Trinity College for twenty-five years, retiring in 1908 as Professor Emeritus. Since 1907 he has been honorary canon of St. Albans' Cathedral, Toronto.

He was also a member of the Royal Society of Canada, at one time being president of that body.

A number of literary and theological works have been written by Prof. Clark, and also the translation of several important theological works from the German.

Borden Roasts Ottawa.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—The civic deputation from Ottawa and Hull, which waited upon the Prime Minister at noon yesterday, respecting the creation of a federal district, met with some plain talk, according to gossip current on the street last night.

Mr. Borden asked the press representatives to withdraw, and then told the civic deputation that he had a serious matter to bring to their attention. The Government, he is reported as saying, was in receipt of representations from nearly every part of Canada, respecting the various epidemics which have raged here during the past five or six years.

The fact that some 400 claims for damages had been filed against the city on account of typhoid, brought on by the negligence of the city in taking sewage into the intake, was dwelt upon by a number of people, including members of Parliament, who have addressed the Prime Minister.

Mr. Borden, it is said, warned the deputation that the City of Ottawa must set its house in order or the agitation for a new capital of Canada might become insistent.

Fenian Raid Veterans Dead.

Cornwall, Nov. 13.—Cornwall lost two of her old residents, in the deaths of William Gallinger, aged 65 years and three months, and James Denney, aged 60 years, the latter having been at Ottawa, where he has resided for a few years. Both were veterans of the fenian raid of 1866 and 70.

Mr. Denney was one of those who organized the first lacrosse club in Cornwall. For a great many years located as tender of the bridge, which crosses the canal at this point.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—British consols and French rentes today reassured wheat traders who for a while thought that a price advance at Budapest might mean the approach of hostilities between Servia and Austria. In consequence, the market closed steady at a net decline of 1-4c to 3-8c. Corn finished 1-4c to 3-8c down, and oats off 1-8c to 1-2c. In provisions the outcome varied from unchanged figures to 12 1-2c advance.

The Liverpool market closed ⅛d to ½d lower on wheat, and ¼d to ⅜d lower on corn. Berlin wheat closed ⅞c lower, Paris ⅝c to 1⅝c lower.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.—The foreign demand for wheat today was quieter and as cables were weak at a further decline of 4½d to 6d, no business was done. A weak feeling prevails in the local market for oats, and prices scored another decline of 1c, but at this reduction the demand was good, and in addition to the sales on spot 130,000 bushels were sold for future shipment from Fort William. A good business is doing in flour for local account, but bids from foreign buyers were 6d to 9d out of line. Millfeed is active and steady. Demand for butter is good, but cheese is quiet.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 242 cars, comprising 4824 cattle, 106 9hogs, 2201 sheep and 275 calves.

Butchers

The best prices paid for butchers' cattle were $6 to $6.10; good, $5.65 to $5.90; medium, $5.50 to $5.75; common, $4.50 to $4.75; inferior, $3.75 to $4.25; cows, $3 to $5.25; bulls, $3 to $4.75; canners, $2 to $2.50.

Stockers and Feeders

Prices for stockers declined from 10c to 15c since last Friday. Good steers, 950 to 1050 lbs., sold at $5 to $5.25; steers, 800 to 900 lbs., sold at $4.60 to $4.90; stockers sold all the way from $3 to $4.50, the bulk selling anywhere from $3.25 to $3.60.

Milkers and Springers

Trade in milkers and springers was again good, with a scarcity of the choice kinds, and sales higher than $75 were rare. A few very high-class cows of Holstein or Shorthorn blood, and extra good size, sell up to $90; rarely one passes the $100 mark; most of the good sell at from $60 to $75. Prices today ranged at from $40 to $85, and one sold by Dunn & Levack was at $100.

Veal Calves.

Rough eastern grass calves sold at from $3 to $4.25; good to choice veal calves sold at $7.50 to $9, and two or three of choice quality brought $9 to $9.25 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were liberal. Prices remained steady. Sheep, ewes, sold at $4 to $4.25 for light, and $3 to $3.50 for heavy ewes and rams. Lambs sold at from $6 to $6.25, the bulk going at from $6.10 to $6.20.

Hogs.

Selects, fed and watered, sold at $8, and $7.60 to $7.65 f.o.b. cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Nov. 12.—Cattle—Receipts 700; active and steady.

Hogs—Receipts, 23,000; market strong; light, $7.15 to $7.80; mixed, $7.20 to $7.95; heavy, $7.20 to $7.95; rough, $7.20 to $7.40; pigs, $4.75 to $6.75; bulk of sales, $7.50 to $7.80.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 40,000; market steady; native, $3.25 to $4.50; western, $3.50 to $4.40; yearlings, $4.60 to $5.90. Lambs, native, $5.85 to $7.25; western, $5.60 to $7.25.

A Rude Lad.

As the Duke of Connaught was taking a stroll after breakfast recently at Victoria, B.C., he passed a school where boys were going in for their morning lessons.

According to his custom of chatting pleasantly with people whom he meets the duke spoke to a small boy and asked his age and other questions, to which the lad gave discourteous replies. Then the duke said: "Are you a Boy Scout?" As Chief Scout in Canada he is greatly interested in the movement. The little fellow answered impatiently, "No, you bet I'm not."

The duke, somewhat surprised, said that many boys found the movement interesting and useful; this was proved by the fact that the scouts in the Dominion numbered 30,000. It was now the turn of the boy to be surprised. "Say," he murmured, "is that so?" "Yes," replied the duke, as he moved on, "that is the number; so I daresay they do not miss you."

September Labor Record.

The Dominion Department of Labor records only 21 disputes in existence during September, a decrease of 21 as compared with the previous month, though more than in September, 1911. The most important disputes are those of the 3,000 coal miners on Vancouver Island, and the 450 carpenters at Moosejaw, the latter not of long duration. About 5,000 employes were thrown out of work by the September disputes.

In September 89 workmen were killed and 419 injured, as follows: Railway service, 28 fatal and 123 non-fatal accidents; metal trades, 3 killed, 72 injured; mining, 10 killed, 42 injured; building trades, 10 killed, 33 injured.

Calumet.

"Calumet," supposed to be an Indian word meaning "pipe of peace," was wholly unknown among the savages, and was probably introduced by the French explorers of Canada. It is Norman and signifies in general a pipe. The pipe of peace was a "ganowdaoe," among the Iroquois and a "poagun" among some other tribes. The Algonquins called it "poagan," the Winnebagoes "tahnechoo."

Can't Advertise In Dry Belt.

Galt, Nov. 13.—An important decision affecting "the trade" in local option counties was rendered by Judge Read. Police Magistrate Blake recently convicted the Lion Brewery Co., Berlin, of contravention of the act in advertising in the Galt papers, soliciting orders for beer.

Magistrate Blake ruled advertising equivalent to personal solicitation and imposed a heavy fine. An appeal against the conviction was disallowed by the county judge with costs against the defendants.

He was working on his new house when the scaffolding gave way, burying him beneath the debris. His injuries consist of a broken leg, broken shoulder, and one of his arms was severely crushed. The doctor has doubts as to his recovery.

DISTRIBUTION OF SEED GRAIN AND POTATOES

From The Dominion Experimental Farms. 1912-1913.

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agricultural a distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The sample for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (5 lbs.), white oats (4 lbs.), barley (5 lbs.). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb. sample) will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free, by mail.

Applicants must give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms, and some account of their experience with such kinds of grain (or potatoes) as they have grown so that a promising sort of their conditions may be selected.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. Applications of any kind of printed form cannot be accepted. If two or more samples are asked for in the same letter only one will be sent.

As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early; but the aplications will not necessarily be filled in the exact order in which they are received. Preference will always be given to the most thoughtful and explicit requests. Applications received after the end of January will probably be too late.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. If otherwise addressed delay and disappointment may occur.

Applications, for potatoes, from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest Branch Experimental Farm in that province.

J. H. GRISDALE,
Director, Dominion Experimental Farms.

A Plea For The Children's Aid Society

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir: It is sincerely hoped that the attendance of the good people of Beautiful Belleville, at the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society in the City Hall tomorrow evening, will be both representative and general.

Reports of a very large amount of work, and of much good done during the year, will be presented.

Every one interested should hear those reports, and pass upon them. But, more than this—W. L. Scott, one of the leading barristers of Ottawa, has favored the executive by accepting an invitation to be present and address the gathering upon the very important matter of child rescue from criminal influences.

Mr. Scott is President of the Children's Aid Society of Ottawa, and a son of Senator Sir Richard Scott, who was for many years Secretary of State, and whose name is immortalized, especially in the Maritime Provinces, where the "Scott Act," of which he is the author, has been such a blessing.

We bespeak a large attendance at the meeting, knowing that Mr. Scott's address will be both enjoyable and profitable.

A. M. HUBLY.

Scientific Lighting Explained by Expert

Before a limited audience Mr. C. A. Howe, of Toronto last evening gave an address in the city hall, the subject of which was "Scientific Lighting." Mr. J. E. Elliott, President of the Board of Trade, occupied the chair and in a brief but appropriate manner introduced the speaker.

In his opening remarks Mr. Howe stated that light was now measured by illuminating engineers as accuracely as heat is measured with a thermometer, and forthwith he proved to his audience the truth of his statement. The rules for estimating how to get the best value from all sizes of lights have been set up after a great deal of study and experiment. He said that fully two-thirds of the systems of lighting now used could be made more effective without any extra cost at all if care was exercised in getting the distance of placing the light and procuring proper reflectors. The ideal lighting, the speaker said, was about 85 per cent., and the balance, 15 per cent., indirect. Mr. Howe then by the aid of the very latest reflectors, globes, etc., demonstrated how a universal and beautiful light could be secured from the electric bulb. He also demonstrated the use of large reflectors in shops and factories and even for signs. The address throughout was a demonstration of lighting from a scientific standpoint. Street lighting was referred to and the kind of lamps which in his opinion were necessary for certain streets under certain conditions. He advocates the placing of colored lights at the intersection of streets. Mr. Howe is certainly well versed in the lighting proposition from the standpoint of lighting by electricity.

Awakening The Church Sleeper

One John Rudge is on record as having bequeathed to the parish of Trysull, in Shropshire, England, 20 shillings a year to be paid to "a poor man" employed to go about the church in summer to keep people awake.

At another English church, that of Acton, in Cheshire, it was the practise during the middle of the last century for one of the church wardens to proceed through the church during service with a huge wand in his hand, wherewith, if any one of the congregation was observed to be asleep he was instantly awakened by a tap on the head.

In Warwickshire a similar custom prevailed. A worden bearing a stout wand shaped like a hay fork at the end stepped stealthily up and down the aisles, and whenever he saw an individual asleep he touched him so effectively that the nap was broken, this being sometimes accomplished by the application of the fork to the nape of the neck.

A more playful method obtained in another church. The beadle went about during service carrying a long staff, to one end of which was attached a fox's brush and to the other a knob. With the former he gently tickled the faces of the women sleepers, while with the knob he bestowed a sharp rap on the heads of male offenders.—Harper's Weekly.

Roosevelt Editor to Quit

MEMPHIS, Tenn. Nov. 11.—Following his statement to friends that the "greatest calamity of the age happened when the American people failed to elect Theodore Roosevelt President of the United States", Gilbert D. Raine, editor, publisher, and practically sole owner of The Memphis News-Scimitar, announces that the paper will be sold "within two months at public auction."

Mr. Raine says the entire holdings of The News-Scimitar, including an Associated Press franchise, will go to the highest bidder.

The News-Scimitar has always supported the Democratic Party until the recent campaign, when it made a strong fight for the Bull Moose faction.

The report has already reached here that William Randolph Hearst will bid for the purchase of the paper.

NERVOUSNESS
RESPONSIBLE FOR MANY TROUBLES.
Do you suffer from palpitation of the heart, headache, cold hands or feet, creepy sensations, indigestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, hysteria? These symptoms show a condition of EXHAUSTED OR DEBILITATED NERVE FORCE.
The natural function of every organ is absolutely under control of the nerve centres, and thus nervousness may bring on DIABETES, KIDNEY DISEASE, INWARD DISEASES, and other troubles so often seen in run-down, nervous girls and women, simply because the organs have not a healthy nervous system to control them.
Every girl and woman should keep her NERVOUS SYSTEM STRONG AND WELL BALANCED. RESTORATONE TABLETS will do this. They purify the blood and restore the nervous system to its normal healthy standard and put the power of resistance in the tissues. They are a composition of great value as a food for the nerves, a tonic to all organs and a regulator of diseased conditions peculiar to girls and women. The profitable experience of others should be sufficient reason why you should give them a trial. One box will convince you of their merits. Read the rules for health on circular accompanying each box.

Curious Night Wells.

A curious form of water hole is found in the desert of Western Australia, dry by day, but yielding an abundant supply of water by night. The flow of water is preceded by hissings and sounds of rushing air. The phenomenon is discussed by Dr. Malcolm Maclaren, who has located and examined one of these wells. He found that the water supply occurred in a long, narrow trench, at the bottom of which was a thin plate of gneiss, separated by a cavity from the main rock mass beneath. Apparently the heat of the day causes this plate to expand in the form of a depression, into which the water retreats. When it cools and contracts at night it forces first air and then water back into the trench.—Scientific American.

Her Fighting Clothes.

A certain matron alludes to a certain gown of hers as her "quarrel dress."

"I always wear it," she explains, "when I have had a quarrel with my husband."

"But why do you call it a quarrel dress?"

"Because it is the only gown I have that doesn't button in the back. Consequently I don't have to call on the old grouch to help me."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

He Was Enlightened.

We don't approve of the impertinence, but perhaps in the following case the grouchy street car passenger got no more than he deserved. He had asked a conductor if he knew when a certain train left the North station, and on being answered in the negative he exclaimed offensively, "Why is it that this road employs so many farmers?" "Just to look after the cattle that travel on the cars," was the conductor's quick retort.—Boston Transcript.

A Bit Annoying.

Are you fain to learn the limit of vexation?
Do you pant to find the maximum of woe?
Would you care to know the greatest aggravation
That it's possible for man to undergo?

Then go walking on a street that's very muddy
In a suit that's newly pressed and polished shoes
And while buried in a deep maduro study
Let a passing wagon splatter you with ooze.

—New York Mail.

"KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER"

By C. J. Cutcliffe Hyne

". . . . —It would be ridiculous," the girl was murmuring, "merely to say 'thank you' for what you did, Mr Carter. You see I know your name. News about newcomers soon spreads amongst the other factories on the Coast here. If you only knew how I dread that fearful King, you would understand my gratitude. You see this isn't the first time he's tried to carry me off.'

"I wish you had mentioned it earlier," Carter blurted out, "and I would have split his dirty skull trade or no trade."

She shook her head. "No, that wouldn't have done. There's the law to be thought of even here. Besides he's a King, and could let loose they say, twenty thousand fighting men against Coast factories, and wipe them out. If only I could get away to some place he couldn't reach!" She shivered. "If I stay on here at my father's factory, I'm bound to be caught and taken to Okky City."

Carter's brown eyes opened in sheer surprise. "You speak of our father's factory. Do you mean to say that you live here on the Coast?"

"At the Smooth River factory."

"What, Slade's place?"

"Yes, Im Laura Slade. Couldn't you guess?"

"How could I?" Carter blurted out. "Mr. Smith told me that Slade's girl—" And there he stopped and could have bitten off his tongue for having said so much.

She finished his sentence quiety, and, as it appeared, without resentment. "Mr. Smith, I suppose, described me as a nigger."

Carter made no repy. His brown eyes hung upon her pretty face intently.

"Mr. Smith of course, knew my father, and mother, too for that matter, before I was born. My mother was a quadroon, and that makes me you see, one-eight African."

"You did not arrange your pedigree any more than I did mine. If you hadn't told me, I should never have guessed you weren't a full-blooded European. And after all, what does it matter?"

'There speaks the man who has only been on the Coast six months."

"Six month or six years," said Carter stoutly, "makes no difference so far as I am concerned. We're neighbors, it appears, and I hope you will let me be one of your friends. Miss Slade, will you take compassion on a very lonely man and let him come to see you? I can not tell you how ghastly the loneliness has been with only the Kroo-boys and Mr—er—Swizzle-Stick Smith to talk to though perhaps you can guess at it by the way I've let my outward man run to seed."

She gave him her slim brown hand. "I take frankly what you offer," she said. "If you let me become your friend, I shall count myself fortunate; you see, after what you have done for me to-day we can hardly start from ordinary basis."

From that onward their talk flowed easily. She had come over on a business errand for her father, and Carter settled that quickly and promptly. She went presently into the factory to rest after her long hammock ride, and Carter seized upon the chance to dive into his own room. Therefrom he emerged an hour later with a chin half-raw from recent shaving with a rusty razor, and wearing creased white drill cothes and a linen collar that sawed his neck abominably.

"I've arranged," he said, when he next saw her, "that you and I dine tete-a-tete, if you don't mind, down under those palm trees yonder. The mosquitos don't trouble down there just at sunset, and my boy, White-Man's-Trouble, only tastes things when they're going back to the cook house. It's a mere prejudice to say he's had his filthy paw in every dish before it comes to me. Oh, by the way, Mr. Smith and his Majesty of Okky ask you to excuse them, as they have still more business to discuss before they break up their meeting."

She laughed and understood him to a nicety. They slipped off into light easy talk as though they had known one another all their lives, and there was neither that narrow escape from tragedy behind them, nor Africa and possible tragedy ahead. The girl was a good comrade. The man was hardly that. He too frankly devoured her with his eyes. And certainly, in her cool, frilled muslin dress, and her big green sun hat she was pretty enough to paint. Her hair was black assuredly, but her pale olive face was moulded in curves of the most delicious. In England, and as an Englishwoman, she would have been dark perhaps, though not noticeably so. Nine hundred and ninety-nine English people out of a thousand would have commented on her beauty only. In America, she would at once have been placed in that class apart.

But Carter, the recently imported Englishman, saw nothing save only her beauty and her charm, and he behaved towards her as the English gentleman behaves towards his equal. A man who had been longer in Africa would have had the wisdom of one who had lived in the Southern States, and have picked out the African blood at a glance, and, as is the way of wisdom, would have ordered his civilities accordingly.

CHAPTER III
The King Who Stopped The Roads

Mr. Smith was unstead neither of speech nor foot, but an expert could have diagnosed that he had been dining. The expert, however, unless he had acquired his expertness near Malla-Nulla factory, would hardly have guessed that Mr. Smith was the better (or worse) for at least half a case of German champagne, generously laced with Angostura bitters.

He limped into Carter's bedroom, put his lamp down on the table, sat on the chair beside the mosquito bar, and very carefully eased up the knees of his shrunk pyjamas.

'I say, Mr. Assistant, wake up."

Carter woke, and blinked at the glare of Mr. Smith's eyeglass.

"Don't get up, please. I apologize for waking you, my dear fellow, but since you turned in, you've been made a pawn in the great game of diplomacy. The fate of empires trembles on your nod."

Carter roused up onto his elbow. "Don't you think the empires would tremble no more if we left them over till to-morrow morning?"

'It would be most undiplomatic to leave them trembling too long. I can tell you I have had a devilish hard time of it putting his Majesty to sleep. He can carry his liquor like a man, and he'd a most royal way of seeing I drank level with him. But he may wake up any minute. Put not your trust in the sleep of kings, Mr. Carter."

"All right, sir. I'll make a note of that. I'll brew the gasolene, and when the King wakes I'll stand by with soda-water and fusel oil, which I should think will heal the breach between us."

"Don't you believe it for one instant. The King of Okky's a seasoned vessel with copper tummy, and you could no more thaw the wickedness out of him with soda-water than you could bring the devil to a reformed temperature in an ice machine. You must recognize, Mr. Carter, that both the King of Okky and the devil have their little ways and its above your art to change either of them very much. Question is how much allegiance do you think you owe to O'Neill and Craven?"

This was a change of front with a vengenace. But Carter took it coolly enough. "That's an interesting point, sir. I hadn't reckoned it up before. But I shouldn't like to give my answer to so important a question about the firm on the spur of the moment. So by your leave, I'll sleep over it, and tell you in the morning."

"Sorry, but can't allow you the time and as you don't seem to grasp the fact, I must point out that the fate of this factory of O'Neill and Craven's at Malla-Nulla depends on august will of the King of Okky. His Portliness also threatens to stop the roads which feed our other factories at Monktown and Smooth River, though I don't think when it comes to the point he'll do that. However, Burgoyne and Slade must see to those themselves. After the way this new K. O'Neill's been treating me on paper, I'm going to concern myself with the general welfare of all the firm's factories on this coast. But I am in charge of Malla-Nulla, and I'm going to preserve the trade here from extinction if it can be managed."

Carter lifted the mosquito bar and got out of bed. "I'm afraid, sir, I must ask you to come down to my level, and speak more plainly."

Swizzle-Stick Smith sat back resignedly in his chair, and dropped his eyeglass to the end if its black watered silk ribbon. "Dulce et decorum est pro factoria mori, though I don't suppose it will come to dying if you play your cards right." Mr. Smith closed his eyes and evidently imagined that he was uttering his next thought silenly. "Keep the young beggar out of the way of way of Slade's girl, too. By Gad, I had no idea Laura would grow up such a pretty child. If he had been an ordinary clerk I wouldn't have minded, but the lad's a gentleman by birth, and now he's done the galaint rescue business as a start he's just the sort of quixotic young ass to think he ought to go and marry the girl as a proper capping for the romance. And that of course would be the end of him socially."

"I say," Carter called out loudly, "Mr. Smith, do you know it's four o'clock in the morning, and there are some dangerous chills about just now? Don't you think you had better have a cigarette paper full of quinine by way of a night cap, and then go to bed? It will be turning-out time in another hour or so."

"Matches, please. My pipe's out. Ah, thank you, Mr. Carter. Well, as I was saying, the King's awfully taken with that punkah you rigged for the mess-room, and the water wheel you set up in the river to run it, and when I showed him the native arrowheads, and the spears and the execution axes you'd made to sell to the curiosity shops at home, he began to change his tune. By the time we'd got to the fifth bottle he'd given up asking for your head in a calabash to take home with him and before we'd finished the case he'd offered you the post of Chief Commissioner of Works in Okky City, with a salary in produce and quills of gold that'll work out to £1,000 a year.'

"That's very flattering."

Queer Laws Survive

The pillory was regarded as a curious relic of the barbaric past by those who visited "Shakespeare's England" recently at Earl's Court, but the Britons who smiled at it might have been reminded that although the stocks, like the pillory and the ducking stool, long have been done away with, a lot of punishments survive in England and are meted out right along which are every bit as medieval.

The most ludicrous of these exist in the two services—the army and navy—which were renowned in the past for the cruelties practised in them in the name of justice. "Keel-hauling," as carried out in the navy used, of course, to amount to execution by drowning, while in the army, "running the gauntlet" was a popular way of punishing troublesome soldiers.

Here is another queer punishment which never has been removed from the statute book. If you are motoring or driving in England, beware lest you run over anybody, for if you do so, and cause their death, your motor car or carriage can be confiscated. Even a falling tree that caused the death of a human being in this country can be taken from its owner. This law is known as deodand.

The strangest punishment which still survives under modern law in England is that of "outlawry." Only a few years ago—in 1906, to be exact—a lawyer charged with forging a cheque was "outlawed" in the Glasgow High Court. By this sentence the person of the accused is declared forfeit. He cannot bear testimony in a court nor sue, nor defend an action. He cannot act on a jury nor vote at an election, nor act as tutor or guardian to another person. If any one robs him he has no redress. If any one killed him, it seems rather doubtful if that person could be hanged.

ALFONSO OF SPAIN WARNED OF THREAT

MADRID, Nov. 13.—An investigation of the assassination of Premeier Canalejas has revealed that King Alfonso and Gen. Weyler, Captain-Gen. of Catalonia, have both been marked for death by Anarchists.

The King has been warned to take the strictest precautions not to appear in public unless accompanied by a bodyguard, which will insure absolute safety.

When King Alfonso received this warning, he exclaimed:

"My first duty is to my country and my own protection is of less importance."

Expressions of grave concern are heard on every hand because of the announced intention of the King to appoint General Weyler as Premier.

Shapiro Witness Against Gunmen

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—William Shapiro, co-defendant of the four gun men indicted as the actual slayers of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, yesterday turned State's evidence.

Testifying at the gunmen's trial for murder, Shapiro identified the quartette—"Lefty Louie," "Gyp the Blood," "Whitey Louis," and "Dago Frank"—as his passengers in the "murder car," which he drove to the Hotel Metropole, where Rosenthal met his fate. He saw them get out of the machine, he swore, heard the shots fired, and declared that when they came back to the machine they had revolvers in their hands.

"Gyp the Blood," Shapiro said, had placed a revolver to his head and ordered him to "hurry up and drive away." He heard "Dago Frank" say, he testified, that Police Lieutenant Becker, since convicted of instigating the murder, had "fixed the cops."

Shapiro's appearance as a State witness was one of the results, according to District Attorney Whitman, of the death of "Big Jack" Zelig, leader of the gang of East Side Thugs to which the four gunmen belonged. Shapiro testified on the stand today that he had heretofore refused to identify the gunmen because of fear of being killed.

All the four but "Dago Frank" were identified earlier in the day by Louis Krause, a waiter, as men whom he had seen fire at Rosenthal, and "Dago Frank" was thus identified by Morris Luban, another eye witness.

Boer War Veteran Accidentally Killed

BARRIE, Nov. 13.—The accidental discharge of his gun caused the death of Alfred Garner here yesterday afternoon. Today the body was found on the bay shore at the landing place opposite the summer residence of Archdeacon Cody. It is thought he was seated on a knoll at this point, and pulling his hammerless gun towards him caused it to go off, discharging the contents at close range into his face. Half the head was shot away, the brains being scattered in all directions. Deceased was about forty-five years of age, and was employed by D. T. Rees. He served in the British army in India, was all through the Boer war, and has been a non-commissioned officer in the 35th Regiment for several years. He leave a wife and four small children.

Ex-Premier Refuses Canelejas's Post

MADRID, Nov. 13.—Ex-premier Moret, a prominent Liberal, to-day declined reappointment as successor to Senor Canalejas.

It is stated that the Marquis Priety would continue temporarily in office, but the general impression is that General Weyler would soon take his place.

Contrary to custom, King Alfonso will attend Senor Canalejas' funeral as a special mark of honor.

Germany Acting As Peacemaker

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Germany is doing its utmost today to dissuade Austria from precipitate action in the Balkans, it is stated here on high diplomatic authority.

Kaiser Wilhelm, it is said, is representing to the Austrian Court that he has an excellent right to ask for consideration, inasmuch as he will be drawn into the conflict in the event of an outbreak of hostilities.

The Fatherland has no disposition to prevent Austria from protecting its interests, the German ruler is understood to have explained, but he has expressed the opinion that these interests can be safeguarded diplomatically, if the Austrians are not too hasty, according to information received here.

If it is true, as reported, that the Servian troops have occupied Durazzo on the Adriatic, it is considered that it will speedily be shown whether Austria is disposed to heed these counsels.

Dead Unburied at Gates of Capital

CONSTANZA, Nov. 13.—The dead are lying unburied in the very outskirts of Constantinople, according to a message received from there to day. Starvation and disease seem rivals, it is stated, for the longest roll of death. "Thousands" was the closest estimate given of the number who have already succumbed.

Though the mortality in the beleaguered city is said to be enormous, it is understood that it is greatest in the concentration camp of the refugees from the North, between Constantinople and the Tchataldja line of forts.

Lady Evelyn Grey To Be Married

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Lady Evelyn Alice Grey, the youngest surviving daughter of Earl Grey, will be married at St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, on Saturday, the 23rd inst., to Laurence, eldest son of Sir L. Jones.

The American Ambassador, Mr. Whitelaw Reid, will lend Dorchester House for the reception.

Mollie and Elizabeth Grey, Lady Howick's little daughters, Pamela Dawnay, and Mary Grenfell, will be the bridesmaids.

Archdeacon Wilberforce will officiate at the wedding.

Bulgars Would Not Enter Constantinople

VIENNA, Nov. 13.—From Sofia, Minister Natodovic has informed the "Free Press" by special despatch that the Bulgarian Government cannot approve of the plan that the Bulgarian army shall enter Constantinople.

It is possible that some fanatic might fire on some of the officers leading their troops, whose passions, roused by many cruelties committed by the Turks, might retaliate and dreadful consequences follow.

Therefore the King, who began the war in the name of humanity will stop at the gates of Constantinople and leave the decision of the city's fate to Europe.

Turkey Has Made Appeal to Bulgaria

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 13.—The Porte has applied direct to Bulgaria, seeking to arrange an armistice, according to the reports current in the capital.

The Turkish Government has been informed that the European Powers have instructed their representatives in the Balkan States to communicate Turkey's application for mediation to the Allies, with a view of arranging an armistice preparatory to the conclusion of peace.

Shot Her Mother For a Robber

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13.—Mrs. Elizabeth Myers of New York was shot and killed by her daughter on a Pennsylvania Railroad train near here today. The girl shot her mother in mistake for a robber, she says.

They were on their way from Salem, Va., to New York. The girl Gladys and a passenger, W. H. Cuthbert, of Lynchburg, Va., being detained.

Cuthbert says he did not know the women, and only volunteered his services to them after the shooting. Miss Myers is said to have told the Trenton police that Cuthbert was a traveling companion. Her mother was returning from the women's retiring room to her berth when shot.

"Bobs" Proud to Lose His Pension

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Speaking last night, Earl Selborne said some Radicals talked about stopping Lord Roberts' pension because of his warnings to the country to be prepared.

When the great soldier heard of such intention, added Earl Selborne, he merely replied:

"I am proud to have won the pension in the service of my country. I shall be proud to lose it in her service."

FIFTEEN PERSONS KILLED IN A HEAD-ON WRECK

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 13.—Special—Fifteen persons were killed and a score injured at 3 o'clock this morning when the Cincinnati and Chicago train on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad collided head-on with a freight train standing on a switch four miles from this city. The train was overdue, and was running at 45 miles an hour. The cause of the wreck was an open switch, and the fault is laid at the door of Carl Grose, head brakeman of the freight train, who admits that he did not close the switch. He says he was recalled to the engine by the whistle, and supposed that someone else had performed that duty.

REFUSAL OF BAIL TO PUGILIST JACK JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 13.—No reason exists, according to a brief filed today on behalf of the Government by Solicitor-General Bullitt, why Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, confined in jail at Chicago on a charge of violating the White Slave Act, should not be admitted to bail by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Solicitor-General pointed out that while violations of the White Slave Act, are punishable by five years' imprisonment, or a $5,000 fine, or both, they are not extraditable.

"The administration of the criminal law will be brought into disrepute if one committing such an infamous crime as that for which Johnson has been indicted could, by forfeiting even a considerable sum of money, escape to a place where he would be free from further prosecution," he said.

A telegram from United States Attorney Wilkerson to the Department of Justice is included in the brief, as disclosing facts which fully justified the action of the United States Court in determining the conditions under which it would admit Johnson to bail. Mr. Wilkerson states that "parties representing the defendant attempted to obtain his release upon absolutely worthless bail."

HEAVY FALL OF SNOW AT MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—Winter started in real earnest here to day, snow falling heavily from 11 a.m. for several hours.

Reports of heavy snow storms from all parts of the province have also been received, sleighing being possible in northern Quebec and the lower St. Lawrence districts.

Four Men Missing After a Collision

HALIFAX, Nov. 13.—Special—The Dominion Coal Company's tug Douglas H. Thomas was run down by the City of Sydney as the two were steaming down the harbor tonight. The City of Sydney in some unexplained manner caught the Thomas amidships. She keeled over and began to fill. The captain sent her full speed astern to prevent her sinking.

Four of the Douglas H. Thomas' men are missing, and it is feared they fell overboard and were drowned.

The Thomas, though full of water, seems to be little damaged, and the other steamer is not damaged at all.

Will Open Dock Named After Him

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—Special—The Duke of Connaught will formally open the floating ship-dock, which has been named in his honor, on Monday next.

Commissioner Ballantyne stated tonight that a special train is to be run from Ottawa in the morning, to which the Duke's private car will be attached. With his Royal Highness in the car will be the members of his staff and such of the Ministers as may will be present, including Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries. At Maisonneuve the Duke will be received by the commissioners and presented with a short address by the chairman. The Duke will then reply to the address, and formally declare the dock open and ready for use.

NINE PERSONS DROWN

Steamer Mayflower Sinks in the River Near Ottawa.

Twelve Are Thrown Into the Madawaska River, When Old Wheel Steamer Capsizes and Goes Down and Three Are Rescued—Bodies of Captain Partchier and Patrick O'Brien Are Recovered.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—Nine lives are believed to have been lost in the Madawaska river Tuesday night soon after seven o'clock, when the old wheel steamer Mayflower, a small 50-foot boat, capsized and sank three miles out of Barry's Bay, after springing a leak.

Known Dead.

Captain Erin Partchier, Combermere, married, body floated ashore.

Patrick O'Brien, Combermere, passenger, proprietor of the O'Brien House, Combermere, married, leaves widow and grown-up family; body found on island by search party.

Missing (Probably Drowned.)

G. P. Bothwell, 103 Nepean street, Ottawa, traveler for F. J. Castle Co., aged 27 years.

J. C. Hudson, Combremere, owner of the boat, married.

Wm. Boehm, Combermere, tailor, leaves widow and family.

Mrs. McWhirter, Fort Stewart, near Combermere, aged 80.

Wm. M. Murphy, Rockingham, Renfrew County.

L. Delaney, Barry's Bay.

Robert Pachal, Yorkton, Sask.

Rescued.

M. J. Harper, Alden Apartment, Ottawa, traveler for Canadian Consolidated Rubber Co.

Gordon S. Peuerley, 56 Second avenue, Ottawa, traveler for Corticelli Silk Co.

J. S. Imlash, 29 1-2 Thornton street, Ottawa, traveler for General Supply Company.

Of the twelve people aboard, ten of whom were passengers and two members of the crew, three passengers, namely, Gordon Peverley, J. S. Imlach and J. M. Harper, all of Ottawa, and commercial travelers, are alive to tell the story of the terrible disaster. They were found late last night by a search party who rowed out from Barry's Bay on an island about three miles down the river, in a very exhausted condition.

They were immediately taken to a near-by farm house, and there they are receiving every possible care and attention.

The dead body of Captain E. Partchier of Combermere, skipper of the ill-fated boat, was picked up by the search party near the shore, where the steamer is supposed to have sunk. His body had a life-preserver on.

The body of Patrick O'Brien of Combermere, a passenger, was also found on the island, where he died of exhaustion and exposure to the cold, after being thrown ashore by the surging waters with little life left in his body.

From the brief story that could be obtained at midnight from the three survivors, they say that the Mayflower sprang a leak soon after she left Barry's Bay. Her hold rapidly filled with water, and those on board quickly realized that death was imminent. There was hardly a moment to decide on how their lives could be saved.

A howling wind was sweeping down over the river, which is nearly a mile wide at the point where the boat sprang a leak, and the water was lashing the sides of the ill-fated boat with a vengeance. All around was black. Not a light could be seen anywhere. The boat began to lurch a little, a little more, and then terribly; then the old coal oil lamps went out by being crashed to the floor, and in a few minutes, when all was in darkness, the boat keeled over broadside and sank suddenly, throwing passengers, crew, freight and all, of which there was a good deal aboard, and machinery into the icy water.

The three survivors were able to discern some spars of timber floating near to where they had been hurled into the water. Each tried to cheer the other with words of encouragement, and half-perished in water that was clogged with ice, and almost number to the point of unconsciousness, they drifted ashore, but more dead than alive.

Words, they says, could not describe those hours of suffering on the island up to the time they were found. They were too exhausted to walk, or even to get to their feet. Throughout the long cold night and terrible, even colder day, in a blinding snowstorm, they waited and prayed that help would come to them. Death seemed inevitable until at last when hope seemed practically gone they heard the swish of oars and the sound of human voices, and they remembered little more until they awoke in a house, with kind hands to attend to their wants.

They are not yet beyond the danger point. There is a possibility of serious consequences after such an experience in the water and on the island.

More bodies are expected to be recovered.

Every conceivable source of information was tapped last night. Telephones and telegraph wires were kept humming. At Renfrew, Pembroke, Eganville and other places in the district only the most meagre details of the disaster were known.

At Barry's Bay and Combermere, the mere fact of the disaster, with names of those who were board when leaving Barry's Bay, were obtainable. A search party had set out from Combermere and at midnight had not been heard from.

Quebec Needs More Judges.

Quebec, Nov. 14.—At the opening of the court of appeals yesterday, Chief Justice Archambault, discussing the lack of judges in this province said that if the Government did not see to the appointment of more judges the lawyers might expect to have to wait still longer for the judgments.

Truth is stranger than fiction and equally dangerous.

Elevator Boy Makes Progress

The first day he is occupied mainly in learning how to run his elevator.

The second day he is so delighted with his position that he makes every effort to give all the information asked of him.

The third day he gets his uniform and begins accustoming himself to tell the passengers to step lively.

The fourth day he learns how to advise anxious inquirers to look at the bulletin board or ask the starter.

The fifth day he is so thoroughly versed in the duties of his position that he can run the car past people who are yelling "Down" or "Up"! and three floors away from them wave back the gentle admonition to punch the button. Also, he is now able to carry the nervous passengers two floors too far and then refuse to go back.

The sixth day he is an adept and demonstrates it by sliding the door quickly in the face of the man who is a second late, also by stopping the car and dropping a couple of floors to take on the stenographer with huge blond rats, who haughtily omits pressing the button.

He is now a real elevator boy and wonders what right the public thinks it has anyway.—Chicago Post.

Bandits Pillaging Zagora Country

ATHENS, Nov. 13.—Special—Telegrams received here today from Arta, on the Albanian frontier, report that the Zagora country, in the north-west of Greece, has been raided by a band of 100 Turks and Albanians, who spread terror before them. The women and children of the district fled to the mountains for safety, but these being covered with snow, the fugitives are now dying of hunger and cold.

The Zagora district is deprived of its male inhabitants because of the fact that they are accustomed to emigrate and to engage in trading pursuits in all parts of the world, leaving their families at home. The district, therefore, lies at the mercy of the raiders.

New Composition Meat

PARIS, Nov. 13.—A Belgian scientist named Effront is reported to have discovered a means of manufacturing artificial meat. The ingredients are said to be the residue of various substances of little value, such as malt waste from the brewery, from which is obtained the necessary albuminoids; sulphuric acid and chalk are added, and after various operations of filtration and evaporation by the vacuum process a paste is produced with a very pronounced taste of meat, and three times as nourishing. The new food, it is stated to have been tested at Brussels, with conclusive results.

By Aeroplane

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 13.—Special—Mail between Port Huron, Mich., and Sarnia will in the near future be transported by aeroplane, according to the latest reports received here. A school of aviation, backed by several well-known capitalists, will be established at Port Huron next month, and Lieut. Ruel, an experienced airman, will act as instructor. The flights will be made on the St. Clair river and Lake Huron, the machines being equipped as hydroplanes. The new school expects to procure the contract for carrying the mail, and the citizens of both towns can now expect letters via the very latest twentieth century improvement, the air line. The proposition will be a paying one in the winter, when the river is blocked and it is impossible for ferry boats to cross.

Ettor Tells Strike Story

SALEM, Mass., Nov. 13.—Defending himself against a charge that he was an accessory before the fact to the killing of Anna Lopizzo last winter, Joseph J. Ettor yesterday faced the jury and in his testimony charged the employers with placing the dynamite in Lawrence.

Ettor insisted that from the beginning of the strike he counseled against violence, urging upon the people that violence was their worst enemy in the struggle, and that the way for them to win was to keep away from the mills, and to "do nothing." He admitted that on the first day he advised the strikers to go to the mills and urge all who remained at work to cease, so that every mill would have to shut down.

"I told the strikers after the struggle had been on for some weeks, and conferences with the employers had begun," said Ettor, "that they had demonstrated their power; that in solidarity of purpose and action they had one source of strength that was far greater than all the agencies of defence and offence of the capitalists. Capital, I told them, had property to sustain it; that it had the police, the army, the laws, the Constitution to aid in its defence; that capital had everything, money and agents to plant dynamite, to provoke the enemy, meaning the workers. But the workers, I told them, had more power than all that, more than guns and gallows—the power of solidarity of purpose and action, which was greater than bomb.

"Workers," I said to them, "you need not fight the same way that capital opposes you. When workers of the world want to win, the thing for them to do is to do nothing. Fold your arms and the work of the world will stop. Put your hands in your pockets and the capitalists cannot put their hands in theirs. Lie absolutely silent and you are more powerful than all the weapons of the other side for offence and defence."

Operating Record

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Special—A new operating record, as far as available data goes, was set yesterday in connection with the third annual clinical congress of surgeons of North America, in session here. In 187 institutions in the city, no less than 100 clinics were held, with more than 800 operations and demonstrations for the benefit of upwards of 2,200 delegates who are attending the congress. As their guests have come eminent surgeons from abroad. It was officially stated that the congress now constituted the largest number of surgeons that had ever met in the history of the world.

People are always doing things they would condemn in others.

Non-Jury Sitting

The attention of the non jury sittings of the High Court was yesterday occupied in hearing the case of Miles v. G. T. R. Company. The plaintiff claims damages from the railway on account of his land being flooded at times by water which it is alleged was backed up by the construction of a bank by the company. The case was concluded and judgment reserved. Porter & Carnew for plaintiff; W. E. Foster for defendants.

Smith v. Binor—A case from Campbellford was being tried today. This was in reference to the conveyance of certain property. Porter & Carnew for plaintiff; Smoke, Chisholm & Smith for the defendant.

Riot At a Factory

WATERTOWN, Mass., Nov. 13—Special—Two women and one man were seriously injured during the riot outside the Hood Rubber company's plant this morning. When strikers tried to prevent "strike-breakers" from taking their places, three riot calls were sent in, and a pitched battle between the police, armed with night sticks, and 800 strikers, armed with bricks and stones, ensued. One of the injured women was knocked down and trampled by the crowd. Finally the mob was dispersed when the fire hose was turned on it.

MADOC

MADOC, Nov. 13.—The Cheese Board met today for the last time this season. Four hundred and forty-eight boxes were offered, part of which sold at 12 1/8 and part at 12 1-16 cents. Mr. Lowry was present and made a short address on the improvement of the cow. He recommended keeping cows separate and weighing their milk three times a month, in order to find out which are the best. He thought if the cow was properly handled, the output for the season from one animal should be 5000 lbs. instead of 3000, as at present.

A LIVELY RUNAWAY

A lively runaway occurred in West Belleville yesterday afternoon but fortunately no person was injured and no particular damage was done. The animal belonged to Mr. H. Hampton of this city and was attached to a livery waggon. The horse become frightened when in the vicinity of Holloway Street Church and ran to Mr. Hampton's place of business where it was stopped. Slight damage was done to the vehicle.

A SPACIOUS BUILDING

Peck and Wills' new factory in process of erection on the site of the building burned last summer, is now enclosed, the walls of solid cement and substantial roof indicating a solid structure. In dimensions it is 96x84, and wil be fitted out with modern conveniences for manufacturing everything in the firm's line. Mr. Peck informs us that he hopes to have the plant in operation during the early winter. Here is to success in their new quarters.

WAGE CASES

Before Magistrate Masson this morning and afternoon a wage case was being tried. The plaintiffs are 20 foreigners who allege that they were employed by a construction company to work and when paid off were not paid what they claim was due to them. The case was somewhat tedious owing to the fact that the men could not speak English and all questions and answers had to be interpreted. Mr. Carnew for the complainants and Mr. O'Flynn for the defendants.

NEW PARISH HALL

The new stone building to be known as St. Thomas' Parish Hall, now in course of erection near the rectory, is being pushed forward, and according to information gathered from contractor William Alford, will be ready for occupancy in the early winter. It will be a very tidy structure in appearance, with a small spire, roomy within, and a great improvement over the brick building in Church street, recently sold to the city for school purposes. When completed it will be used by the Parish Sunday School.

DEATH ROLL.

HARVEY J. STRATTON

Mr. Harvey J. Stratton, who resided on Yeomans Street in this city, died last night after having been a sufferer for some time. A CRUEL LODGER

Flesh Burnt off Woman's Arms Because Dinner was Not Ready

A revolting story of the revenge of a hungry lodger was told at the London police court when Lewis Chapman, of Willesden, was charged with assaulting Mrs. Field, a woman with whom he lodged, by burning her with a red-hot poker.

Mrs. Field said that her lodger came home in a bad temper, and because his dinner was not ready he locked her in a room, made the poker red-hot, and burnt the flesh off both her arms. Ever since she had been in intense agony.

The lodger, who stated that he only "acted in self-defence," was sentenced to six months' hard labor without the option of a fine.

Chicken for Dinner

When selecting poultry see that the feet are soft and moist, the eyes clean and the flesh plump.

When dressing poultry do not waste the feet. Place them in boiling water for a few minutes, and the skin and nails will come off easily. They make a delicious bit of soup or jelly.

Chickens or other fowls are rendered white and clean by the following method. After the feathers are all removed take about two cups of hot water, add a level teaspoonful of baking soda and with a small clean cloth scrub the fowl well. This removes the outer thin skin or cuticle. Then rinse in large pan of clear water

HANGMAN'S TRADE AS A FINE ART

Gruesome Lecture on Old and New Methods of Putting Criminals to Death

Many strange subjects on the outskirts of science were discussed by the British Association at Dundee, but it was left for Dr. F. Wood-Jones of Epsom, to reach the limit of the gruesome. Before the anthropologists he explained what Professor Elliot Smith, called "Hanging as a Fine Art."

The matter arose as an issue of the question: "How did certain ancient inhabitants of Nubia, whose skeletons were unearthed in an old Roman frontier fort, come by their death?" Practically all of the hundred or more skulls were noticed by Dr. Wood-Jones to have been wrenched in a peculiar manner. Moreover, a stout hangman's rope was found round one neck.

The obvious conclusion was that the men were hung, but when the skulls were submitted to museum authorities in England they declared that none of the skulls in their possession of men known to have suffered the extreme penalty of the law exhibited similar lesions. Thus Dr. Wood-Jones was induced to embark upon an investigation of what he admitted to be "not a very nice subject." But it is, nevertheless, a subject of importance, because "if you are going to hang a man at all you might just as well hang him in the best way."

Waterproof Victims

A study of the evolution of hanging, the doctor explained, at once divides the subject into three sections, viz.: Hanging as a warning to other offenders; hanging as an anæsthetic; and hanging as a method of execution.

Under the first head comes the old English custom of hanging in chains, the last instance of which occurred as lately as 1834, the victim's widow dying only a few years ago. In order that the body might be exposed for as long a period as possible it was enclosed in a sort of iron cage, having previously been soaked in pitch so as to render it waterproof.

"Once the hanging of Thames pirates was one of the sights of London," remarked Dr. Wood-Jones, "and there was tremendous disappointment among inn-keepers and other purveyors of public amusement when they were no longer allowed."

"Hanging as an anæsthetic," was resorted to in order that the sentence of drawing and quartering might be carried out. "Drawing and quartering," observed the lecturer, "was, of course a beastly process, but it was made nicer for the man by hanging him first thus rendering him semi unconscious."

Lastly came hanging in order to kill which fell under two heads—pure suspension by the neck and "the drop." "To be hung by the neck until you are dead" is still the formula of English law, and it was the method of execution till the year 1818, when an invention called the 'New Drop,' which could comfortably accommodate twelve persons at a time, was set up at Northampton Gaol, and hailed with acclamation. Before this date it was considered an act of charity on the part of a man's relatives to shorten his death struggle by hanging on to the wretched victim's legs.

The "New Drop," which is practically the method of to-day, aimed at inflicting instantaneous death by breaking the neck, but it was some time before any attempt was made to discover the right length of the drop, and even now each executioner uses his own discretion in the matter.

Fixing the Rope

The problem of how best to adjust the rope led Dr. Wood-Jones back to the Nubian remains in the old Roman frontier fort. An examination of the skull of a man hung by the Scottish executioner, Calcraft, in 1866, revealed lesions similar to those in the skulls of the Nubians. Now, it is known that Calcraft always placed the knot of the rope under the jaw on the right-hand side. Therefore it would seem that this was the method employed by the Romans.

Dr. Wood-Jones considers, however, that Calcraft's method, which inflicts an injury almost precisely on the lines of a boxer's knock-out blow, is wrong, though almost universally adopted at modern English executions. The knot, he holds, should be immediately under the chin, in order to cause a clean fracture of the neck.

WOMEN IN FACTORIES

How Their Employment in Lancashire Affects the Birth Rate

Dr. Hugh R. Jones, an eminent English physician who investigated in the factory districts of Lancashire the influence that the industrial employment of married women has upon the birth rate and the sex ratio at birth. Some elaborate tables of statistics which on analyzing he sums up as follows:

1. That the employment of married women in industrial occupations tends to diminish the birth rate.
2. That such employment tends to the birth of a large proportion of girl infants.
3. That low birth rates tend to the birth of a larger proportion of girl infants.
4. That the rate of infantile mortality is higher as the proportion of employed married women rises.

New Bust of King Edward

A Middlesex committee commissioned Mr. P. Bryant Baker, of Chelsea, to make the marble bust of his late Majesty, which is to be placed in the Middlesex County Hall at Westminster. A bust of King Edward, by Mr. Baker, is now in the drawing-room of Marlborough House.

WILL INSIST ON SQUARE DEAL

Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, has been taking a deep interest since his appointment in the question of the conditions under which laborers work in railway construction camps in Canada, and has already done much to improve conditions and has bigger plans on foot for next year.

The Minister found that there were frequent complaints from labor organizations and consuls and vice-consuls of those countries from which come immigrants who have been chiefly employed in this work.

It has been explained that it is frequently impossible to procure accurate information, if any information at all, concerning men who are believed to have been employed in certain construction camps and who have fallen ill, or have in some cases become deceased. It has been stated that the possessions of a person deceased have not infrequently been frittered away in ineffective efforts looking to identification of the owner, or have disappeared otherwise.

The difficulty proved on inquiry by the department to be very real, and one with which, it seemed to the Minister, a practical effort should be made to deal. After a discussion of the matter with the chairman of the Transcontinental Railway Commission it was arranged that the Department of Labor should frame special regulations for the protection of workmen employed on railroad construction, copies of which were to be supplied to contractors or sub-contractors controlling any section of work of any railway constructed by the Dominion Government.

The regulations provide that the employer shall have the form filled out in the case of every employee, with all the information thought necessary for the purpose of identification, with names and addresses of relations or friends, and in the event of the person concerned falling seriously ill or dying, the form relating to him is to be immediately forwarded to the Department of Labor.

These forms have been, on application, distributed in large number to the contractors and sub-contractors along the construction camps of the Transcontinental railroad, the Department of Labor having received the largest measure of assistance from the Transcontinental Railway Commission. At present the regulations, etc., apply only to railway construction work performed for the Government of Canada, but it is thought the advantage to both contractors and workmen will be such that it may become possible later to extend the system to other construction work.

Many complaints have been received as to conditions along the Grand Trunk Pacific construction work in British Columbia. Mr. Crothers sent out over the line one of the officers, J. D. McNiven. He went over the line east from Vancouver, and is at present working west from Edmonton. He found conditions far from satisfactory, and as a result of his report there have already been many improvements.

Next year Mr. Crothers is planning to have officials on his staff live right with the men in construction camps, and to see, to use his own words, that "the men get a square deal."

WHY THE WASTE?

Mr. J. K. Cranston of Toronto has been drawing attention through the papers, to the great waste of apples and other fruits that is permitted in Ontario every year, notwithstanding the persistent complaints about the high cost of living. There is no doubt as to the waste. One does not require to go far into the country to find orchards with the ground almost literally covered with apples, which are allowed to rot because there is nobody to gather them. And the waste is not confined to apples. A Toronto paper mentions that when plums were selling in that city at eighty cents a basket, people a hundred miles away were offering their plums for nothing to those who would take the trouble to pick them. The same is true of peaches.

Mr. Cranston suggests that school children be allowed a few days holidays during the fruit harvest, and that they help the farmers to pick the crop. For pay they might receive transportation, a small remuneration and a portion of the fruit so saved. It does seem not merely a pity but a shame that there should be such a waste of food, especially at a time when everybody is crying out against the high cost of living, and if Mr. Cranston can devise any scheme for preventing so much loss he will be entitled to rank as a public benefactor.

TUBERCULOSIS SUNDAY

A movement fraught with tremendous possibilities for good has been launched in the form of a request that the churches of Ontario should set aside each year a Sabbath to be observed as "Tuberculosis Sunday." The Interdenominational Association of Toronto gave a ready assent when the proposal was laid before them, and have fixed upon Sunday, December 1st, as the day upon which they will seek to awake the interest and sympathy of their congregations in the noble work being done to succor needy consumptives, stay the ravages of the disease, educate the public in preventive measures, and finally stamp out the scourge of tuberculosis. A general appeal issued to the clergy of all denominations in Ontario is meeting with a cordial response and in hundreds of pulpits the sermons on Dec. 1st will be devoted to this vitally important subject. The active co-operation of the churches of the province should result in a mighty impetus being given to the war upon tuberculosis in Ontario.

THE ASSASSINATION OF PREMIER CANALEJAS

The assassination of Jose Canalejas, the Premier of Spain, recently, is for many reasons to be regretted. Apart from the evil of all such acts of violence, this act is particularly unfortunate because of the character and work of the victim. Not only has he been prominent in Spanish affairs, but he has exerted large influence for good during the last few years. As an advanced radical, he had achieved much for certain classes whose interests had never been greatly considered in Spain, and had done much to change the whole trend of Spanish political life. His action in standing boldy for the separation of church and state showed both his liberality and his courage. He may well be considered one of the foremost men of a Spain that has slowly been emerging from the conservatism of thought and action. Hence his death is a loss to both his country and to the world.—Ottawa Citizen.

THE HOCHELAGA ELECTION

Mr. Leopold Doyon has been selected to oppose Hon. Mr. Coderre, who is seeking re-election to Parliament in Hochelaga, after having accepted office as Secretary of State. The nomination was formally made yesterday. The polling will take place on Tuesday next. There should not be any doubt as to the result. Mr. Coderre showed himself to be a strong candidate when he ran as an oppositionist last year. He will be stronger running as a Minister this year. The Government's policy and record are to be passed upon by the voters. Mr. Coderre in accepting a portfolio accepted responsibility for both. The public understands the situation. The Government embodies the opposition shown last year by the majority of the Canadian people towards the Taft-Fielding reciprocity agreement which the Laurier Government endorsed. It stands for the fiscal independence of Canada now and in the future. It will not do anything to permit the Government at Washington to exercise any pressure on those who shape or administer Canada's fiscal laws. In regard to naval defence, it is pledged to do and to ask Parliament to do whatever a study of the situation as explained by the King's advisers in Great Britain shows to be well and wise. As for its general administration, the facts are known, and upon them, as upon its policy, it can invite without fear the judgment of a constituency which, as much as any in Canada, is concerned in seeing the country progress nationally and industrially.—Montreal Gazette.

The Brantford Courier this week takes considerable space to correcting the Expositor's Scriptural quotations. Evidently what they both don't know about the Bible would make a large book.

Enquiry has been made with regard to Lord Roberts' half-pay allowance of $10,000 a year. It can, under special circumstances, be suspended or withdrawn. Is this an attempt, a very clumsy one, to bulldoze and silance my lord? Is a pensioner deprived of his freedom of speech?

The resignation of the Rt. Hon. James Bryce as British ambassador to the United States and the appointment of Sir Cecil Spring-Rice as his successor were officially announced in London yesterday. One of the results of the war of the five nations now going on is that the toymakers of Germany are being inundated with orders from all over the world for tin and wooden soldiers. The fashions change in playthings as in everything else. The Teddy Bear of last year is routed by the hardy tin soldier of today. And this year Teddy was routed by a Democrat. Where will he pop up next?

Such tactics as were used in defeating the Asquith Cabinet, by hiding sixty Unionist members in a club near by and rushing them in to vote, is picayune politics. All it can possibly do is to delay matters, without having any permanent gain for the party perpetrating the trick. Such tactics are unworthy the British Government which, above all things, believes in fair play.

Six Man Hockey Causes Friction

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—As a result of the decision of the National Hockey Association to stick to six-men hockey, the Ottawa club has intimated it will break away from the league next year, and form a new organization. Apparently the club has no other alternative but to tide over the approaching season, and go along as best they can. Had the Ottawas put up a more formidable fight for the seven-man game, the league would have readily caved in. What stands against the Ottawa club, however, is the fact that last year when the question arose, Ottawa voted in favor of the abbreviated game.

There is no town in the universe whose citizens follow any game as the people of Ottawa pursue hockey. They are practically all thorough students of the game, brought up to seven men comprising a team, and can see no reason why mongrel hockey should be foisted on them by other men in the league. The decision of the National Hockey Association in Montreal on Saturday has created a bitter feeling among local hockey fans, not at the Ottawa Club, who appear to have had their hands tied in the matter, but at the Montreal end of the league.

The outcome means the reorganization of a strong amateur league to play seven-man hockey. Already Stewartons, New Edinburgh, Nationals and Renfrew are in line and it is stated many of the star players of the Inter-provincial last year who were intending to [illegible] this season will remain amateur, and figure in seven-man hockey again.

The National Hockey Association will have its difficulties trying to buck the Ontario Hockey Association game in Toronto with six-men hockey. They treaded on dangerous preserves when they invaded the Queen City, but could have made a big hit had they given them seven-men games. It's dollars to cents the anti-professional folks up west will direct their fire at the curtailed game.

The fact that the league will not revert to the old game this season is to be regretted as Ottawa has a likely-looking aggregation to place on the ice, and could have just about landed premier honors. The six-man game makes any old team look good, provide Quebec with the Marks-Hall-Prodgers combination, some of whom were supposed to have seen their best days eight years ago.

Women's Hair Made Glorions

PARISIAN SAGE STOPS FALLING HAIR AND DANDRUFF.

Nothing so detracts from the attractiveness of woman as dull, faded, lusterless hair.

There is no excuse for this condition nowadays, because notice is hereby given to the readers of The Intelligencer that Parisian Sage, the quick acting hair restorer, is sold with a money back guarantee at 50 cents a large bottle.

Since its introduction into Canada Parisian Sage has had an immense sale, and here are the reasons:

It is safe and harmless. Contains no dye or poisonous lead.

It cures dandruff in two weeks by killing the dandruff germ.

It stops falling hair.

It promptly stops itching of the scalp.

It makes the hair soft and luxuriant.

It gives life and beauty to the hair.

It is not sticky or greasy.

It is the daintiest perfumed hair tonic.

It is the best, the most pleasant and invigorating hair dressing made.

Fight shy of the druggist who offers you a substitute, he is unworthy of your confidence.

Made only in Canada by the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package.

All reliable druggists, department stores and toilet goods counters have Parisian Sage Hair Tonic. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. J. V. Doyle guarantees it.

BUSY MEN AID GREAT WORK.

Influential Deputation Urge Large Grant Towards Tuberculosis Fund.

No more influential assemblage of business men has ever been seen at Toronto city hall than the deputation which recently waited upon the Board of Control, to ask that the ratepayers be allowed to vote upon a bylaw granting $200,000 as Toronto's contribution to the million-dollar King Edward Memorial Fund for Consumptives. The chief spokesman, Sir John Gibson, Lieutenant Governor, presented a petition signed by himself, Sir Edmund Walker, Sir Edmund Osler, Z. A. Lash, Duncan Coulson, D. R. Wilkie, W. G. Gooderham, C. D. Massey, A. E. Ames, S. J. Moore, W. K. McNaught, John Northway, Dr. Robert Falconer, and James Kerr Osborne. These leaders of affairs in the Queen City, supported by fifty others of equal prominence, endorsed the proposed grant unreservedly, on the ground that Toronto shared with the rest of the province in the incalculable benefits resulting from the magnificent work carried on by the National Sanitarium Association. Mayor Hocken and the Board of Control gave the deputation a most gratifying reception, and promised that the bylaw asked for would be favorably recommended to the city council. This promise the Board has fulfilled. The standing of the men who so enthusiastically endorsed the grant leaves little doubt as to the verdict of the citizens at large when the bylaw is submitted.

TORTOISE SHELL

It is Very popular for Hair Ornaments And the Boudoir

Even the popular ivory has been thrust into the background through the newly-achieved vogue of tortoise shell. Many sets for the dressing-table are absolutely plain, their value depending on the clearness and quality of the shell, but some are inlaid with silver or gold. A plain set with a raised monogram of the shell is very attractive.

For the hair the combs of our grandmothers are being revived and a bandeau of tortoise-shell inlaid with silver is quite popular. Hairpins and barrettes are studded with jet for the daytime and with brilliants for evening wear, while delicate etching and heavy carving are both in order.

For opera glasses, tortoise shell replaces mother-of-pearl and aluminum, and is very popular for lorgnettes. Trinket boxes of all sorts are found in shell, and hatpins—some of them inlaid with delicate patterns in gold dots—waist buttons and cufflinks are made of the same material. A tortoise shell handle and tips for parasol or umbrellas is another novelty.

But nowhere does tortoise shell prove more of a boon than in the realm of little gifts for men. A pair of military brushes, a clothes brush or a cigarette case should delight any father, brother or fiance, while in smaller articles there are many useful desk accessories ranging from penholders to stamp boxes.

THE WELL BRED WOMAN

Consideration For the Rights of Others Her First Thought

There are many ways of distinguishing the well bred woman or girl, whether walking, shopping, driving, entertaining or alighting from carriage or cab. One of the first of these tests is a look and air of quiet self-possession, with a tinge at least of self-reliance. And though, perhaps, at the moment the fashionable manner inclines to a rather marked decisiveness, to loudness of voice and laugh, yet good breeding pronounces against these.

An unfailing test of the well bred woman is shown in a sense of self-respect which keeps her from personal contact with other individuals. She will never be found pushing her way through a crowd by intruding on the personal rights of others. The great secret of good manners is consideration for others, and this may be shown in a very great variety of ways.

For the Prospective Bride

Don't expect to have a "good, easy time."

Don't think that a cook and a nurse can keep house.

Don't feel that you would rather be dead than have to wear last year's hat.

Don't marry just to have somebody to pay your bills.

Don't think you can get $500 worth of style out of a fifteen hundred dollar income.

Don't boast that you never hemmed a pocket handkerchief in your life, and that you are sure you never could cook a steak.

Don't want a new hat every time the fashions change.

Don't be afraid to count the pennies and nickels and dimes in a dollar.

And above all—

DON'T expect your husband to tell you how desperately he loves you three times a day.

The waist line inclines to the normal rather than to any exaggerated short waisted effects.

WORTH REMEMBERING

To cultivate laughter. A good laugh is better than medicine, as a rule. To always keep your troubles to yourself. Most people are too busy to be bothered with or interested in your sorrows.

If possible, to learn to tell a good story and in this way amuse and entertain others.

To always try to look on the bright side of life. See the good in people and things and overlook the bad. We can always find something that is good, even if at first everything seems utterly bad.

If you are suffering, to try and hide your aches and pains under a bright and cheerful countenance, and, if possible, a sunny smile and a hearty laugh. It will help you as much as those around you.

That a good humored man or woman is always welcome, but a doleful one is never wanted.

A dainty waist for house wear in any light colored goods with bands of black taffeta on the sleeves.

A simple but very pretty hanging basket of greenery can be made from the top of a carrot, which will go on growing if kept moist. OMO does three things well.

OMO cleanses white clothes perfectly—
OMO bleaches white clothes without the aid of the sun and makes them spotlessly white—
OMO purifies white clothes and makes a wholly sanitary wash.

OMO does all this in one operation without rubbing or hard work. It will not harm the finest fabrics and will save much time and much labor. Doesn't hurt the hands either. OMO removes tea, coffee, cocoa, fruit stains, etc., like magic.

Simply add a tablespoonful of OMO to a gallon of water, thoroughly dissolve, cover articles completely with this water, boil for half-an-hour to an hour. Let the clothes soak for an hour longer and hang out to dry. Get OMO at your grocer's.

Making ONE Dollar Do the Work of Two

YOUR DOLLARS vary in value according as they vary in purchasing power.

THE MAN or woman who studies advertising is able, frequently, to make one dollar do the usual work of two.

THE EXPERIENCED reader of advertisements will always make a dollar command a premium, that is, make it buy more than the dollar of a non-reader of advertisements.

HOW MUCH "above par" are the dollars in your packet?

IT WILL depend on how closely you study the buying opportunities outlined in the store advertisements.

London hawkers are now wearing on the left arm a metal oval-shaped badge and a number issued by the Commissioner of Police. Street vendors have increased so greatly in number of late in the most frequented thoroughfares in the City that it has become a serious problem of traffic.

Altogether, about 3,000 men and women sent in their names to be registered, but a very large number of the applicants did not succeed in making good their claims as they have to show a plausible title to three years' street trading before being allowed to do business at their favorite haunt—Ludgate Hill—the year round.

Most of the licensed hawkers are old people—with the exception of the flower women. The men seem to regard the badge as a cherished distinction, and, whether they wear it on the right arm or the left, make it sufficiently conspicuous. One of them tersely remarked: "Fewer of us and more trade. We feel like a bit of the Corporation now."

All Immune.

The busy housewife, who believes that plenty of hard work never hurts anybody, was laid up with a bad cold when her maid left. So she asked her husband to go down to the registry office about another.

He started at 10 o'clock in the morning and returned at 3, worn and tired.

"What's the matter, my love?" asked the wife solicitously as he sank into a chair beside her bed. "Were there no servants at the office?"

"Yes, heaps of 'em," replied he, with a groan, "but unfortunately they'd all worked for us before."—Answers.

Tranquil Joys.

Let others take those eastern trips
Or have a fling in gay New York.
By shores of bloom the river slips.
'Tis fun to watch a bobbing cork.

And all the vales are sweet with songs.

HOCKEY

CALGARY, Nov. 13.—Inquiries are now being made in the east concerning the present status and past records of the hockey players from that part of the country who are gathered here to play for what professes to be an amateur team. The migration of three Ottawa or New Edinburgh, men is one of the suspicious features.

Only one, W. S. Redmond, comes from the territory of the Ontario Hockey Association, and he is said to be a Victoria Harbor man.

The following are the men who are signed at the present time, and although there may be one or two additions before the season opens, to date the list is a complete one:—J. Pritchard, forward, last year with Calgary A. C.; E. Sexsmith, forward, last year with Didsbury; H. Stewart, goal, last year with Winnipeg Monarchs; Hart, defence, last year with Didsbury; E. McCarthy, forward, last year with New Edinboro'; G. McGovern, forward, last year with New Edinboro'; D. Manners, forward, last year with New Edinboro'; W. S. Redmond, defence, last year with Victoria Harbor; George Allan, forward, last year with Winnipeg; C. McCarthy, goal, last year with Bassano; Art. Kelland, defense, last year with St. Mary's; Ernie Malnish, defence, last year with St. Mary's.

The new team is got together for the purpose of playing for the Allan Cup now held by Winnipeg Victorias.

THORNBURY, Nov. 13.—At a very enthusiastic and representative meeting held in the Revere House, the Thornbury Beavers elected the following officers for the season of 1912-13:—

Patrons—C. W. Hartman, Dr. Fent, T. H. Dyre and Dr. Moore.
Hon. President—Hy. Pedwell.
President—M. Snetsinger.
First Vice-Pres.—L. F. Boyd.
Second Vice-Pres.—C. J. Loughced.
Secretary—W. R. Fawcett.
Treasurer—T. R. W. Black.
Management Committee—T. E. Connors, George Woods and Richard Lowe
Captain—P. A. Sparling
Trainer—George Weeks.

It was decided to enter a team in the Junior O. H. A., and with some twenty eligible players training will begin at once. The meeting was the most representative held in Thornbury in years. With one of the best rinks in the O. H. A., the revival of hockey in the northern town is hailed with delight.

THE RING.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 13.—Carl Morris, the Sepulpa, Okla., heavyweight pugilist, who was for a time the leading "white hope," knocked out Jack Keating, the Canadian heavyweight champion, in the second round of a scheduled ten-round bout here last night.

Three right uppercuts to the chin put Keating down for a count of nine, and Morris put him out a few seconds later with a left-handed blow to the body. Keating was carried from the ring and did not revive until after he reached his dressing room.

Otto Floto, the well-known Denver sport writer, has some good words for Calgary boxing in a recent article from his pen. He says:

"'Tommy' Burns is conducting a club in Calgary, and with the usual Burns' success. Tommy, who is away above the average fighter in grey matter, steps into the ring before every contest, and warns his spectators as follows:—

"'Gentlemen, loud and boisterous conduct will be the signal for ejectment from this arena; coaching from the bleachers is tabooed, and any man caught laying a wager on the result of the battle will forfeit his right to witness the battle.'

"I want to say right now that the Burns club will be a success because he has built the proper foundation to make it such. Burns, with his world-wide experience, has profited by what he saw and heard, and is shrewd and clever enough to make the best use of his learning. Tommy Burns was a great success as a fighter; he is equally as great a success as a merchant in Calgary, and now he bids fair to keep up his splendid record in conducting a boxing club."

GENERAL SPORTS.

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—Eddie Durnan, the Toronto sculler defeated on the Thames last month by the Englishman Barry, has challenged Barry to find a partner for a three-mile race for the double scull championship.

Durnan will take Greer of Boston as partner. He wants the race to take place on Toronto Bay next June or July. He is also trying to get on a race with Jim Wray of Boston here next summer.

GENEVA, N. Y., Nov. 13.—At a long and stormy meeting of the undergraduates of Hobart College, held last night to take action on a decision of the Athletic Council to abolish baseball or lacrosse as a spring sport, it was unanimously decided to retain both, if possible. Should finances not permit, however, it was decided to abolish lacrosse and retain the national game.

For several years the Hobart College lacrosse team has played University of Toronto here. The Canadian game has won hosts of friends and nothing but financial difficulties will bring about its abolition.

A MESSAGE TO GIRLS

The Women's Imperial Health Association of Great Britain has, among other good things, issued a leaflet called "Message to the Girls of Great Britain." These can well be thought over and dwelt upon by girls in this part of the Empire. They are as follows:

1. The future of our country is in your hands.
2. Look your best by all means, but be your best also; the first attracts to begin with, but the second produces the more lasting results.
3. You must obey the laws of hygiene, respecting fresh air, exercise, good food, cleanliness, and suitable clothing. A healthy girlhood is the best foundation for a happy life.
4. You must know about cooking, and domestic economy.
5. You must learn the feeding and caring for children; this knowledge does not come by instinct as many suppose.
6. Remember that home-making is the most dignified and important profession in the world.
7. Attend if you can "continuation classes" in personal and domestic hygiene, including a knowledge of the fundamental facts of life. You can be innocent without being ignorant.
8. Practice housekeeping and domestic hygiene in your own home, remember that a good daughter makes the best wife
9. Choose the best companions and read the best book you can find.
10. Accept only best men as your husbands, paying as much attention to their character as to their personal appearance.

FOR BABY'S CARRIAGE

Dainty Robe Which Can be Fashioned by Any Mother

A baby's carriage-robe is made from a yard square of double-faced white elderdown. At one end the elderdown is cut eighteen inches from the bottom and ten inches in from the two sides. The flaps thus made are fastened together in the centre to form a bag for the child's feet. Exactly in the centre of the square from right to left and sixteen inches from the top an opening for the head is cut in the shape of a half-moon. It is six inches on the straight edge. This flap is turned down as a sort of bib and is bound with two-inch satin ribbon feather-stitched in place. Ribbons at both sides tie it closely about the baby's neck. The sides and bottom are finished in the same way and a large bow of the ribbon is placed on the front.

This makes a very attractive carriage-robe with the special advantages of fitting closely around the neck and protecting the back as well as the front of the child. If a heavier robe is desired, a double square of single-faced elderdown or other material with an interlining may be used.

You Mustn't Ask to Vote

You must bear and rear our children,
You may guide their early years,
You may sit up nights and nurse them,
You may calm their childish fears;
You may teach, amuse and spank them,
To their good your life devote,
But remember you're a woman,
So you mustn't ask to vote.

You may be our close companion,
Share our trobules, ease our pain;
You may bear the servant burden
(But without the servant's gain);
You may scrub and cook and iron,
Sew the buttons on our coat,
But as men we must protect you—
You are far too frail to vote.

You may toil behind our counters,
In our factories you may slave;
You are welcome in the sweatshop
From the cradle to the grave;
If you err, altho' a woman,
You may dangle by the throat,
But our chivalry is outraged
If you soil your hands to vote.

Why not try to be contented
When no hardships we forbid?
Realize your limitation—
At the best you're but a rib.
Tho' the constitution class you
In with fools and rogues of note,
From the pedestal we give you
Pray do not step down to vote.

CHARACTER IN EYEBROWS

Red Ones Denote Energy, Drooping Ones Show Inquisitiveness

The latest advice for young men about to fall in love (they never take advice, still it doesn't matter) is: Examine your prospective sweetheart's eyebrows. By this means you will be able to tell whether or not she is all that you would desire her to be.

It is quite possible to tell a girl's character by her eyebrows. Sensitive, languid girls, who possess very little energy, generally have very fair eyebrows of a higher shade than their hair.

The vivacious, energetic women, on the other hand, are those possessed of fiery-red eyebrows. These also show enthusiasm and great ambition, but are not always hasty-tempered, as is generally supposed. Girls with very dark eyebrows have usually a passionate nature and are capable of loving or hating with equal fervor.

Very drooping eyebrows are bad in a girl, as they show that their owner is of an extremely inquisitive nature. She is generally shallow-minded and insincere also. The girl who is romantic and yet who has plenty of common sense and a strong character has perfectly arched eyebrows. Very thick, dark eyebrows in a girl indicate that she is strong and muscular and that she has a robust constitution.

An indolent, lazy girl who always seems to lack energy generally has very scanty eyebrows that are hardly discernible. The jolly girl, possessed of a keen sense of humor, usually has eyebrows that are arched near the nose. Perfectly straight and finely-pencilled eyebrows generally denote that their owner is not very intelligent or ambitious.

KUBELIK TOOK NEW NAME

Had to Claim Hungarian Citizenship in Order to Marry

The widely published report that the violinist Kubelik had become a Hungarian and had taken the name of Polgar moved his wife to write that the story "caused considerable feeling in Bohemia."

"The Pesti Hirlap," she says, "which printed the report is waging a relentless campaign against us. My husband and myelf are too proud of the name of Kubelik to wish to change it.

"The mistake was due to the fact that the Austrian law compelled my husband to claim Hungarian citizenship in order to obtain permission to marry me, hence the name Polgar, which signifies citizen in the Magyar language, was assigned to him."

NOISE AND NERVES

Our forbears knew nothing of the "nerves" so many suffer from to-day, a disease for which modern conditions of life are largely responsible. The increase of noise out of doors is part cause of the trouble but the increase of noise indoors could well be avoided. It is not the housewife who makes the most clatter who gets through her day's work the most thoroughly. But that the tendency is to make more noise over everything is an indisputable fact. Children are not trained to do things quietly, as of yore. But the shattered nerves which so many suffer from to-day are responsible for much of that increase of lunacy we so much deplore, and if we cannot prevent the noises out of doors, which make life so hideous now-a-days, we can at least try and avoid unnecessary noise indoors. Some children, for instance, are allowed to make unrestrained noise in a house, under the idea that "It is good for their lungs." So it may be to a certain extent, but the discipline, the thought of others which is learned by restraint, are also valuable factors in the training of their character, and will stand them in good stead in after years, but is distinctly soothing for "mother" at the moment. Then, too, grown ups are much to blame, as they rarely close doors without banging them, and in many other ways unnecessarily add to the present day burden of noise.

THE COST OF BEAUTY

Over Ten Thousand Dollars a Year Expended by One Prominent Actress

Kitty Gordon, the talented actress, who in private life is the wife of Captain, the Hon. Henry Beresford, brother of Lord Decies, says that it costs her $210 a week to keep beautiful.

Kitty spends a great deal of time daily looking after her teeth, caring for her hair, and in various kinds of light exercise. She eats grapes at all seasons of the year. They are, she declares, "simply wonderful for the complexion." "But there is no greater beautifier," she added, "than a short afternoon nap." As for alcoholic drinks she declares them injurious and unnecessary.

Here is a list of her expenditures for maintaining her place as the most beautiful woman on the stage, as compiled by herself.

Two personal maids	$30.00
Daily manicure	7.00
Daily hair dressing	4.00
Daily massage	14.00
Dentist (weekly average)	5.00
One hour's beauty drive (daily)	48.00
Health doctor (once a week)	20.00
Tooth brushes (new one daily)	3.50
Electrical Massage (twice)	10.00
Chiropodist (once a week)	5.00
Perfumes, soaps, and sundries	12.00
Special food and fruits	35.00
Total one week	$210.00

A Vicious Fire-arm

A recent capture by the police of New York City unearthed a new weapon for the destruction of human life, one that can be carried by a burglar and no one be the wizer unless he have occassion to use it. The weapon is a single little steel gun barrel that can be concealed in the hand. At its base is a hard rubber cap that fits snugly into the palm; the first and middle fingers encircle the barrel over a steel ring, and a pull downward on a spring discharges a 32-calibre centre-fire cartridge. The weapon can be carried in a waist coat pocket like a fountain pen.

Electric sleep, which may be turned on and off at will, is the alluring prospect offered to people suffering from insomnia, by a German physician who asserts that he has devised a new form of electric current which when applied to the base of the brain will produce a narcotic effect, able to be maintained [illegible]

ODD INVENTIONS AT PATENT OFFICE

About Ten Thousand New and Useful Ideas Protected Each Year in Canada

When the Canadian patent office was established in 1874 it was a rather small affair, and at first the annual registrations were few in number. But it has grown till now there are registered about 10,000 new patents a year.

By the terms of the Canadian patent law such inventions as are "new and useful" only can be patented.

Not long ago an Italian inventor took out a patent for transmitting pictures by telegraph. From the original picture a photograph is taken, using a lens of high magnifying power and passing the reflected rays through a square aperture and through a netting. The magnification is such that the black dots on the original picture are so enlarged as to be individually examined and the shape determined with the naked eye. The dots are then translated in order into a code previously agreed upon, and telegraphed to the receiving station. There they are retranslated into dots and positions. By photographing with a condensing lens of suitable size the original picture is almost exactly reproduced.

An eggshell remover, some day, might be a handy feature of the breakfast table. A bolder grips tightly one end of the egg, a perforation in the egg is made, and by forcing in air the contents are ejected.

Lots of Variety

Twenty years ago an arm rest for typists was patented, but it does not seem to have received the respect which was its due. A frame has suspended from it two bands of elastic material terminating in loops. The arms are passed through the loops and are supported by them, and in this way do not tire.

A "new and improved" billiard table offers opportunities of comparison to the expert. It has an octagonal surface, instead of the rectangular one in use since the game began.

A unique instrument is the "automatic violin," a patent for which was taken out. It is complicated, but the designs shows great ingenuity. Essentially it consists of a glass disk revolving at a regulated speed mechanically brought in contact with the different strings of the instrument. The tone may be varied at will by altering the speed of the revolving disk or by changing the lengths of the strings.

A fowl cacher is another invention. It consists simply of a pair of jaws at the end of a long handle. By a lever controlled by the hand the jaws can be quickly and tightly closed, securing the feathers of the unsuspecting bird; its capture then is easy.

A "rocking chair fan" is another invention which should be a means of comfort in the hot season.

And there are other curious inventions, among them a card shuffling device, also one for dealing cards; a bow facing oar, an instrument for indicating grades, which is very simple and quite practical; a paper-hanging machine, a nose protector for winter wear, and coin counting and milking machines without number.

Among the patents for chemical processes there is one for working up waste cheese curds into a marketable product. The curds are first heated, then thoroughly mixed with water until a thick gruel is formed. By pressing in a mould the water and enclosed air are expelled and the residue becomes solidified. It is then dried at a low temperature and treated with formaldehyde in order to kill the ferments present, such as the lactic acid ferment. After this it may be pressed or moulded into any required form and used for backing brushes, insulating electric wires or other such purposes.

Patent Office Rules

The full fee for an 18-year patent is $60, but an inventor can secure one for twelve or even six years by paying a pro rata rate.

Applications for patents are refused if the article has been in use or on sale for more than a year previous to the application at the Patent Office; or if a patent for it has existed in a foreign country for more than a year; or if it had been previously known to, or made by, any person other than the alleged inventor.

Patents for medical compounds are, as a rule, refused. The preparation of such compounds does not involve invention. It merely involves the mixing of ingredients.

Sometimes a person working on an invention fears that somebody may despoil him of his idea before it is perfected. In that case he may file a caveat at the Patent Office, which protects him till the invention is ready to be patented. Patents are open to public inspection, but "caveats" are kept dark secrets.

By the terms of the patent law, an article patented must be put on the market within two years or the patent rights will be forfeited.

Canada no Infant

Scientists estimate the age of the earth variously from 20,000,000 years to 800,000,000 years. The Hon. Mr. Strutt, an eminent geologist, has assigned a minimum age of 711,000,000 years for some Archaean rocks from Canada he has examined.

Night Court Proposed

It was proposed to establish a night court in Montreal so that prisoners could at once be taken before the court and have their cases disposed of. In cases where they would be acquitted, they would avoid spending a night in the cells.

NURSERY HINTS

It is a grave error to suppose that a child can be hardened by exposing it to the elements without it being suitably clad and well nourished. Instead of trying to "harden" a child endeavor to toughen its constitution and even this must be done with care and discretion.

Some people allow their children to go direct from a warm room out into the rain or cold wind, without taking the precautions of putting on some wrap. If spoken to on the subject the usual reply is that the child must not be coddled.

But there is a medium course to pursue, and exposure to any sudden change of temperature must be injurious unless the child is well protected. Damp should be avoided as far as possible, and unless the atmosphere is dry, open the windows at the top only.

Let the babies be out whenever possible during the day, except in bitterly cold weather, or when it is wet. Do not overload the little frame with clothing, but see that the garments it wears are warm and light.

The double rimmed feeding plates for children arriving at the dignity of using fork and spoon, are quite as necessary as are short-handled spoons. Meat and potato are much more easily eaten from a dish of this sort than from the ordinary plate. The designs of this porcelain are really fascinating to the tots and always are suggestive of a story.

A good thing to do for a sick child is to cut paper dolls and arrange with all costumes, in one envelope; or to cut up some one-cent sheets of soldiers, etc., and put each lot in an envelope. Tied up with ribbons, even such cheap gifts look pretty.

FOR FANCY-WORKERS

Good Results Obtainable If You Are Expert With a Needle

The newest idea for fancy work is that of uniting braiding with fancy stitchery. The two combined can be worked up very effectively, and give scope to a wide variety of designs and uses. For instance a braided initial or motif outlined with French knots or sandstitch, which consists merely of a backstitch worked twice in the same place, producing a raised spot stitch, is really extremely effective. If the design be filled in with feather stitching, or Bulgarian stitch, it is most ornamental and looks as though a great deal of time had been spent on it. The braid used is the narrow flat cotton braid used for white work, though Soutache and rat-tailing can be used if something more decorative is desired.

Frills and Fancies

A touch of cerise appears on many of the blouses of white crepe de chine.

Corduroy coats of a washable quality, with caps or hats to match, are shown for tiny children.

A FIENDISH GOVERNOR

Terrible Tortures Ascribed to Ruler of Persian Province

Dreadful tales of fiendish cruelty are told of the Governor of Tabriz by Edward Granville Brown, professor of Arabic, Cambridge university who desires the British government to interfere with a man whose sole delight is to torture and kill those of his subjects who profess an opposite political opinion to his own.

Shugand Dewla, governor of Tabriz, writes the professor, is a monster rather than a human being, taking a cold-blooded delight in hanging, stabbing and even cutting men in two like sheep, if he believes them to be unsatisfied with his rule. It is a common occurrence, continues Professor Brown, to see men lying in a dying condition in the streets of Tabriz with tongues cut out, eyes gouged from their sockets, and horse shoes nailed to their bare feet. Deaths through the plentiful application of the whip are common, and the professor asserts that the governor has been known to have the mouths of those he suspected of liberal principles, sewn up.

Old Oxford Tradition

A striking innovation marked the admission of Dr. Heberden as Vice-Chancellor of Oxford University, for he departed from the tradition of many centuries by reading his address in English instead of in Latin.

He also announced that a letter had been received from the Board of Agriculture stating that the Treasury would be prepared to authorise an annual grant not exceeding $1,250 in aid of the instruction of forestry in the University.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

ARMISTICE ARRANGED

Hostilities Will Cease at Once, Say Turkish Officials.

Correspondent of London News Is Advised That Terms of Peace Between Turkey and the Balkan Confederacy Will Be Discussed at Once—Famine Stares Eastern Turkey In the Face—Outlook More Hopeful.

London, Nov. 14.—A Constantinople despatch to The Daily News says: At four o'clock yesterday afternoon the director of transportation informed those making inquiries at the War Office that the cessation of hostilties had already been arranged. Simultaneously, another official summoned the chief contractors for military supplies and informed them that hostilties would cease this evening, and supply contracts would be canceled and no further military supplies would be sent to the front.

Armenian papers say that M. Popoff, the Bulgarian dragoman, has been given the mission to discuss the terms of peace.

At the Russian Embassy yesterday it was stated that the only remaining difficulty was the insistance on the part of Bulgaria on the formal entry of her troops into Constantinople. The Porte declares that this is impossible to grant, even if the Bulgarians leave the capital immediately, while the Sultan is in residence.

It is also stated that the Greeks claims are excessive.

A cholera camp was opened at Tuzla yesterday, twenty new cases being sent there.

The war correspondent of The Express, writing from Hademeui, near Constantinople, says that Europe is going to see a nation in the grip of death by starvation this winter. A famine on a scale rarely seen even in India and China has claimed the population of all Eastern Turkey in Europe.

Outlook More Hopeful.

Paris, Nov. 14.—Premier Poincare, speaking at the banquet of the Republican, industrial and commercial committees last night, referred to the more hopeful tone of the European situation. Negotiations between the powers, he said, were going on with as much mutual confidence as ever, and he had a right to say with greater precision.

Bulgarians Going by Hundreds.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—In one week 2,590 Bulgarians have passed through Montreal on their way to fight for their native land. They came from all parts of Canada.

Already the large corporations in and around Montreal say that the labor shortage question is becoming positively alarming.

Pay For Ship If Possible.

London, Nov. 14.—Colonial Secretary Harcourt has accepted "with deep gratitude, on behalf of the United Kingdom," the generous offer of a first-class armored ship by the Federated Malay States, which have offered to make the payment (some $12,000,000) within five years, "if possible."

The only criticism, outside of hearty appreciation, consists of expressions of regret that the small dependencies should feel themselves drawn into maintaining the burden of armament, especially as the "if possible" clause inserted by the Malay States shows that there may be difficulty in raising the cash.

The Malay States are not even crown colonies, but four native states under British protection, the present constitution dating from 1874.

Split Over Divorce Report.

New York, Nov. 14.—A cable to The Herald from London says: England is dividing into two bitterly hostile camps over the report of the Royal Divorce Commission. The supporters of the minority report hold that the easier and cheaper divorce recommended by the majority will have a demoralizing effect upon the home and the moral life of the country.

There is unanimous endorsement of the provisions that the two sexes shall be on equal footing as regards divorce, but the supporters of the minority insist that otherwise the grounds for divorce be not extended, and they object to the recommendation that cases be heard in camera and the details not published until the trials are ended.

Farmers Must Co-operate.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—The striking feature of the joint meeting in Convocation Hall last night of the delegates to the various agricultural conventions being held in Toronto, was the five-minute address of Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, in which he made a plea for farmers to organize for co-operative selling, and in this way take from professional middlemen the increased price to which they as producers, are entitled. Owing to the laterness of the hour, Mr. Hanna gave only a very short portion of his address.

Colcock Has Resigned.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—N. B. Colcock, who has been in charge of the provincial immigration office in London, Eng., has tendered his resignation to the Government. Mr. Colcock has been in ill-health for about a year, and on this account has been forced to take a rest. Sir James Whitney announced yesterday that the Government expected to fill the vacancy shortly.

Heavy Snow In France.

Epinal, France, Nov. 14.—An extraordinary snow fall lasting two days has covered the whole of the region of the Vesges to a depth varying from eight to sixteen inches. Such weather is practically unknown at this season of the year.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Wheat today made the lowest close of the season. Denials that Argentine crop conditions had become less promising turned the market heavy. Final prices were at a halt, but 1-2c to 5-8c under last night. Latest trading left corn 1-4c to 3-8c down, oats off 1-4c to 1-2c and provisions at an advance of 10c to 20c.

The Liverpool market closed ¼d to ⅜d lower on wheat, and ⅜d to ½d lower on corn. Berlin wheat closed ⅝c lower. Antwerp unchanged. Budapest 2⅝c lower, and Paris unchanged to 1¼c lower.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—There was an increased demand from foreign buyers for wheat and especially so from the continent, which resulted in sales of 200,000 bushels, and in addition to this some business was worked in barley and flax seed. The local market for oats was about steady with a fair amount of business passing, including a sale of 10,000 bushels No. 2 Canadian western to an Ontario miller at 41c c.i.f. the bay. The demand for American corn was fair and sales of 50,000 bushels of old No. 2 mixed were made at 58c f.o.b. Chicago. A lot of 5000 bushels of Ontario malting barley was placed at 80c. The flour market is fairly active and steady, and a good trade is passing in millfeed. Butter is in good demand, but cheese is quiet. Eggs active.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts for the week ended Nov. 9 were 2900 cattle, 4700 sheep and lambs, 2100 hogs and 900 calves. The offerings on the market this morning amounted to 1300 cattle, 2100 sheep and lambs, 1300 hogs and 400 calves.

There was no actual change in the condition of the market for cattle as compared with Monday. A few loads of really choice steers were offered, but butchers or packers did not seem to want them at the prices asked, and they were held over while the demand for the lower degrees was better. The top price paid for steers was $6, and sales were made from that down to $3.75 per 100 pounds. Some choice cows brought $4.50, and the common sold at $3 to $4, while the bulls, which were principally canners stock, sold at from $2 to $3.25 per 100 pounds.

There was an active trade in small meats, the demand being good for all lines, and prices ruled steady. Lambs sold at $6 to $6.25 and sheep at $4 per 100 pounds, while calves brought from $3 to $12 each, as to size and quality.

Prices for hogs were unchanged from Monday, but the tone of the market was easier in sympathy with the decline in Toronto yesterday. Demand was fairly good, and sales of selected lots were made at $8.50 to $8.65 per 100 pounds weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Nov. 13.—Cattle—Receipts 350 head; active and steady.

Veals—Receipts 50 head; active and steady at $4 to $10.50.

Hogs—Receipts 1600 head; active and 15c to 20c higher; heavy, $8.20 to $8.25; mixed, $8.10 to $8.20; yorkers, $7.60 to $8.10; pigs, $7.40 to $7.50; roughs, $7.10 to $7.25; stags, $5 to $6.50; dairies, $7.75 to $8.10.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts 3000 head; active; sheep steady; lambs, 10c higher; lambs, $4.50 to $7.25; yearlings, $5 to $5.50; wethers, $4.50 to $4.75; ewes, $2 to $4; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.25.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Cattle—Receipts, 20,000; market for choice 10c higher, others steady. Beeves, $5.25 to $10.85; Texas steers, $4.30 to $5.90; western steers, $5.50 to $9; stockers and feeders, $4.10 to $7.10; cows and heifers, $2.75 to $7.40; calves, $6.50 to $10.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 25,000; market active; mostly 10c higher. Light, $7.30 to $8; mixed, $7.45 to $8.10; heavy, $7.35 to $8.10; rough, $7.35 to $7.55; pigs, $5 to $6.85; bulk of sales, $7.65 to $8.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 42,000; market steady to a shade up. Native, $3.25 to $4.90; western, $3.50 to $4.50; yearlings, $4.60 to $5.90. Lambs, native, $5.35 to $7.35; western, $5.00 to $7.25.

Glasgow Cattle Market.

GLASGOW, Nov. 13.—Watson cables on account of congestion at Merklands, smaller supplies of Irish cattle are coming forward. Trade better, good cattle scarce, best steers 13½c to 14c; seconds, 12½c to 13c.

TAFT ANNOUNCES TOLLS.

President Gives Out Panama Canal Rate Schedule.

Washington, Nov. 14.—President Taft last night issued a proclamation fixing the rates that the foreign shipping of the world shall pay for passage through the Panama Canal. The proclamation, made under authority of the Canal Act, passed by Congress in August, establishes a merchant vessel rate of $1.20 per net ton of actual carrying capacity, with a reduction of forty per cent. on ships in ballast.

The provisions of the proclamtion are as follows:

1. On merchant vessels carrying passengers or cargo $1.20 per net vessel ton—each 100 cubic feet of actual earning capacity.

2. On vessels in ballast without passengers or cargo 40 per cent. less than the rate of tolls for vessels with passengers or cargo.

3. Upon naval vessels, other than transports, colliers, hospital ships and supply ships, fifty cents per displacement ton.

4. Upon army and navy transports, colliers, hospital ships and supply ships, $1.20 per ton, the vessels to be measured by the same rules as are employed in determining the net tonnage of merchant ships.

The Secretary of War will prepare and prescribe such rules for the measurement of vessels and such regulations as may be necessary and proper to carry this proclamation into full force and effect.

American coastwise shipping was exempted from toll payment by Congress. It was to this provision of the act that Great Britain diplomatically protested, but no reference to the incident was made in the President's proclamation. American naval vessels are exempted without specific mention either in the act of Congress or the proclamation, because the authorities believed it unnecessary to explain the uselessness of payment from its navy department pocket to the one belonging to the treasury department. The rates named in the proclamation are practically the same as those which will be in force at the Suez Canal next year.

Equal to the Occasion.

"Didn't I see you holding my daughter's hand in the parlor last night?" exclaimed the irate father.

"Y-y-yes, sir," stammered the youth. "I read in the paper the other day that the wrist contains eight bones, the palm five and the fingers fourteen, and I was only trying to confirm the statement, sir."—Yonkers Statesman.

TUMULT IN COMMONS

British Speaker Forced to Adjourn the Sitting.

House Is Packed on Occasion of Premier Asquith's Resolution to Rescind the Snap Vote of Monday and Liberals Defeat Motion to Adjourn—Unionists Throw Paper and Books at Cabinet.

Lodon, Nov. 14.—The House of Commons, the popular House of the "Mother of Parliaments," was the scene last night of a riot over Premier Asquith's proposal to rescind the action of Monday, when the Unionists carried by a majority of 22 Sir Frederick Banbury's amendment, defeating the most important financial feature of the home rule bill.

The Unionists refused to permit the debate, and the Speaker was forced to adjourn the session on account of the disorder. This is an extremely rare necessity, and the situation is considered a critical one.

The Unionists almost unanimously threaten that they will continue to make business in the House impossible unless the Prime Minister accept the amendment or drops the home rule bill. They declare that his action is unprecedented and will be obstructed by unprecedented measures. Their object is to force the Government to resign.

When the session began, there were packed benches. The Premier's followers gave him a great cheer on his entrance and demonstrated that they were present in force by defeating a motion to adjourn early in the proceedings by a vote of 327 to 218.

He then moved the adjournment, which was defeated by 327 to 218.

Then the storm broke. Sir Frederick Banbury moved that a decision reached could not be reversed at the same session. "The only honorable alternatives before the Government," he said, "are resignation or dissolution. All the respect with which the members of the minority are treated is to have the members of the Cabinet sitting opposite them grinning like apes. The Government is only a circus led by rebels. The best thing the Ulster members can do is to go home and make propositions to resist home rule."

Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies, attempted to speak. He was on his feet for several minutes. Every sentence was drowned by Unionists shouts and derisive cries for Lloyd-George. He finally took his seat. The Attorney-General, Sir Rufus Isaacs, had the same experience.

Henry Page Croft, Unionist for Christchurch, shouted "The name of this Government stinks in the City of London," referring to various alleged candidates. The speaker finally adjourned the House for an hour.

Immediately it convened, Sir Rufus Isaacs was on his feet amid shouts of "Adjourn." The voice of Sir Edward Carson, who led the anti-home rulers in Ulster, arose above the din. "There will be no more business ever in this House," he said.

The speaker repeatedly appealed for order, and at length declared, "I rule that a scene of grave disorder has arisen and I adjourn the House until to-morrow."

A yell of victory burst from the Unionists. The members of the Cabinet clustered on their side of the clerk's table. No one moved to leave the House. On the Unionist side was a seething mob. An arm was raised and a document flew across the floor. It struck the Prime Minister on the shoulder. A shower or order papers fell among the group of Ministers. Mr. Asquith was white and indignantly faced the attack.

Suddenly the Unionist member, Ronald McNeill, rushed to the clerk's table and seized a heavy volume. He hurled it at the First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr. Churchill, whom is struck full on the chest. There was an ugly rush from the Liberal benches, but the cooler members held back their colleagues.

For a moment a battle of fists seemed imminent. Then the peace-making voice of Will Crooks was raised in song. "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot." Others took up the refrain and gradually flowed into the lobby.

At a Cabinet meeting held later it was determined to adhere to the program.

Sues "Rube" For $25,000.

New York, Nov. 14.—Suit for $25,000 damages was filed yesterday against "Rube" Marquard, star pitcher of the New York Giants, by Joseph Kane, husband of Blossom Seely, an actress, alleging that Marquard alienated her affections.

The irate husband recently traced the pair to an Atlantic City hotel, where he caused a scene by breaking into their room. They eluded him and escaped.

The summons on Marquard was served in a New York restaurant on Tuesday night when he was in the company of Miss Seely. For some time they have been appearing in a vaudeville sketch together.

Rose Stuck to Story.

New York, Nov. 14.—The imperturbable "Jack" Rose, the bald-headed gambler, whose testimony was mainly responsible for the conviction of Charles Becker, took the witness stand yesterday as the state's chief witness against the four gunmen, charged with slaying Herman Rosenthal at Becker's bidding.

Generally speaking, his testimony was a repetition of his remarkable narrative at the Becker trial. Under Becker's orders he swore, he threatened the gunmen with a "frame-up" and importuned them to take the "squealing" gambler's life. Cross-examination failed to shake his story.

Counsel for the defence, reading from Rose's testimony at the Becker trial, attempted to trip him up. But on all essential points Rose stuck closely to his previous testimony.

Jury Awarded Girl $1,000.

Pembroke, Nov. 14.—Miss Hattie Ross of Cobden was awarded $1,000 by jury at Pembroke against John Nicol, a Smith's Falls moulder, for breach of promise. Nicol, she said, had just made excuse that he would have to keep his parents after the Laurier Government was defeated, because his father would lose his job as canal lockmaster. Later he returned to a former love. Chancellor Boyd, in characterizing the case as one of broken contract, said:

"The plaintiff claims she spent considerable money on fancy work; and you know, gentlemen, the time and trouble women put in on fancy work and the high prices they get for it at bazars, and if you are in a generous frame of mind you may smart for it if you buy some of such fancy work. Miss Ross claims she is out of pocket by the breach of promise. That is taking the hard, commercial view of the case.

"Many judges and legislators deprecate these actions, but in some cases young men do trifle with the affections of young women just for pleasure.

Peter Collins Acquitted.

Pembroke, Ont., Nov. 14.—After one hour's deliberation the high court jury here returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of Peter Collins, the young Cobden farmer, accused of stabbing Grant Appleby to death in Rose Township on Aug. 30. Chancellor Boyd declared that he was not surprised at the verdict, and warned Collins to avoid evil company in future. The affair, he said, would cast a cloud on his whole life.

In charging the jury after the evidence, the judge said that they had only to consider the evidence of the accused, who declared he had stabbed the young Toronto Veterinary College student by accident when the latter attacked him near the Appleby home. As to the pretty Toronto girl, Lillian Gow, who lived at 209 1-2 Sherbourne street up to the time she came to Cobden on April 29 last, he said there was no doubt she was the cause of the trouble between the young men.

"Since the first woman in the Garden of Eden got the man into trouble men have quarrelled over woman, and I suppose will continue to do so," he said.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Edward Henderson, born in Lindsay, Ont., 62 years ago, and formerly rather prominent in Toronto, died in a hospital in Niagara Falls yesterday.

The report that Prince Arthur of Connaught will become Viceroy of India and that he is to be married shortly is declared in London to be mere "twaddle."

Samuel Price, who for some time has been mining commissioner for the Ontario Government, has resigned. He will be succeeded by T. E. Godson, K.C., of Bracebridge.

Sir James Whitney, accompanied by Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, left Toronto yesterday afternoon for New York, to sail by the Cunard steamer on Saturday for England.

The resignation of D. M. McIntyre, K.C., as city solicitor of Kingston, was made yesterday. He will enter upon the duties of chairman of the Ontario Railway Board on the first of December.

After five hours deliberation an assize court in Toronto yesterday found Ovide Latremouille, ex-policeman, guilty of robbing Edward Field, while armed with a revolver. Sentence was deferred.

Premier Borden, it is definitely understood, will make his announcement of the naval plans immediately following the conclusion of the debate on the address from the throne when the House meets.

TAKE NOTICE THAT

1.—The Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intends to construct as a Local Improvement a concrete curbing (including gutter) and a Pavement consisting of a Base of five inches of concrete, one inch of binder and two inches of sheet asphalt, on Front Street in the City of Belleville between Dundas Street and the Upper Bridge, and intends to specially assess the whole cost thereof upon the lands abutting directly upon the Pavement, except the cost of Culverts and of works provided and required for surface drainage, and the pavement at street intersections.

2.—The estimated cost of the work is $45,000, of which $5,000 is to be paid by the Corporation. The estimated special rate per foot frontage is fifty cents per annum. The special assessment is to be paid in twenty annual instalments.

3.—A petition against the work will not avail to prevent its construction.

King's New Farm

For the sum of $60,000 King George purchased Shernborne Hall Farm, lying to the north of Sandringham, which is now practically ringed round by the King's property. The hall farm is occupied by Mr. C. R. Bullard, and it consists of some 700 acres, and a castellated house, surrounded by a moat.

Many years ago the farm was bequeathed to Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and an interesting clause in the agreement between the college and the tenant, which has existed for a long period, is that the tenant should supply six fat turkeys yearly to the college.

Sends Thanks For Hospitality

The following, received by Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., speaks for itself:—

Ontario Department of Education,
Toronto, Nov. 12, 1912.

My Dear Mr. Johnson:

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your very kind letter of the 9th inst. I am more than delighted to think that I have been of assistance to the people of Belleville in their efforts to better educational conditions. Mr. James and myself both enjoyed ourselves very much and appreciated your kindness as well as the kindness of all the citizens of Belleville with whom we came in contact.

Thanking you again for the trouble you have taken, and with best wishes, believe me,

Faithfully yours,
(Signed) R. A. PYNE,
Minister of Education.

Butterfly Worth $5,000

From London comes word that a jet-black butterfly, valued at $5,000 as big as a robin, with wings measuring eleven and a half inches from tip to tip, has been conveyed to London from New Guinea by A. L. Mock, an explorer in the service of Hon. Walter Rothschild, millionaire owner of the famous private museum in Tring Park, says the Newark News.

Several new varities of butterflies by far the largest in the world, were discovered in New Guinea by Mr. Mock. "I had to take up from the coast," he is reported as saying, "cases of pearl shell, tomahawks and beads of various kinds before I could get the assistance of the natives in capturing the butterflies. The natives shoot them with four-pronged arrows which they use for killing birds.

"The femals giant butterflies are black or brown or white, but the males are splendidly marked in green or gold. I brought also with me a butterfly which has a hairy body on account of the intense coldness of the Snow Mountains. A couple of my native boy hunters were killed and eaten by New Guinea cannibals, who kindly sent me back the bones."

Invites The Public

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Maud Malone, the militant suffragette who interrupted Governor Wilson's speech in Brooklyn on the night of October 19th to ask him questions about woman sufrage, to-day issued formal invitations to her trial in special sessions court tomorrow.

"The public are invited to attend the trial," reads the invitation. "Men have always questioned candidates as political meetings—why not women? Come over Tuesday and see."

Miss Malone is charged with wilful disturbance of a public meeting.

Orozco Arrested

EL PASCO, Tex. Nov. 13.—Colonel Pascual Orozco, Sr., father of the leader of the Mexican revolution in the north, was arrested here Monday by military authorities and detained in the guard-house at Fort Bliss. Army officers refuse to give the charge on which he is held. Orozco recently was freed from local courts after 40 days' detention without trial on an extradition charge.

The arrest is the first application of the recent decision at Washington to permit the military to exercise martial law in prevention of violations of the neutrality laws.

Bulgarians Have Captured Rodosto

SOFIA, Nov. 13.—The Bulgarian troops reached the Tchataldja lines on Sunday without encountering resistance, according to a late official despatch.

The Bulgarians, it is also officially announced, have occupied the towns of Rodosto, Eregli, Silviri and Midia.

The second Bulgarian army is drawing closer and closer its circle of investment at Adrainople. There is no truth in the reports that the Bulgarians sustained severe losses in the capture of Kartaltepe and Papaztepe.

The Bulgarian army operating in Macedonia has occupied Strumitze and Demirhissar.

Most Perfect Girl

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 13.—Miriam Hubbard, daughter of Fra Elbertus Hubbard, is the most perfect girl physically ever to enter the University of Michigan. The physical director of the girls' gymnasium has made the announcement. The description is as follows:

Tall and slender, with very great curves; weight 131.5; height 66.7 inches; lung capacity 218; strength test 1,819 pounds; lungs and heart in perfect condition.

The director adds that as she is young, the next few years will undoubtedly give her a physical beauty equal to her present bodily perfection.

She is modest and gracious, with a low sweet voice and wavy hair. She seemed surprised to learn the distinction the physical director gave her.

"Long ago I learned that one cannot keep well unless one works in the field and gains health from the sunshine," she said. In her father's school she did exactly the work the boys did. "I always have taken all the exercise consistent with my years and my strength."

Monkey Talk Dictionary

PARIS, Nov. 13.—A new revised dictionary of monkey language has just been issued through the French Academy of Sciences by Yves de Lago long a laborious student of ape jabberings.

The dictionary even contains grammatical notes for advanced readers and an appendix giving, in proper notation, favorite songs among monkeys which they always sing in the same rythmn when feeling particularly well.

The monkey tongue has the advantage in that it comes unlearned to young monkeys, which is proved, says De Lage, by a baby monkey taken away and isolated seven years, which, when brought back to its companions, made itself understood perfectly.

COST OF LIVING.

Toronto Investigators Discover Why They Suffer.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—Many radical and necessary reforms were advocated by the Board of Trade's "high cost of living" report, which was read by Prof. M. A. Mackenzie at the luncheon at the St. Charles yesterday.

They declare that the cost of living in Canada has increased by a greater ratio than in the British Isles; also that it entails a greater expenditure to reside in Toronto than to live in the provincial cities and towns.

The reasons for such rises in the cost of living are given in the report. The committee state that the increased production of gold during the past twenty years has exceeded the increased production of commodities. This is magnified by economy in the use of gold by financiers and the subsequent increase of credit money. In other words, the shortage of food supply and the excess of money has decreased the latter's purchasing power, thus the price of commodities has risen.

Lack of competition is given as another reason. The report states that Toronto commission merchants engaged in the fruit and vegetable trade have secured a monopoly of this trade on account of the insufficient facilities for the transfer and sale of such perishable goods.

Lack of proper radial facilities are roundly scored, and some members state that a reduction of the cost of living will never be brought about until this question is settled.

The discrimination against improvements is yet another case for the cause of investigation. It is pointed out that so long as a man is allowed to hold land until it increases in value, without a cent of cost in the shape of taxes being levied, so long will certain property holders be able to hold up the rents. One solution offered is that the city should go ahead and annex all the outlying lands possible and assess it as improved city lands. This will soon solve the housing question

Two Deaths From Smallpox Cases

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—A meeting of protest against the methods of the Provincial Health Authorities in dealing with the present smallpox outbreak, and of the press in giving "undue" publicity to it, was held in the village of St. Laurent.

Yesterday there were two deaths, one at St. Laurent and one at Beauharnois, where the cause of death was undoubtedly smallpox.

There is no great change in the situation. The Provincial Health authorities are helping the local councils organize a campaign to stamp out the disease.

William Ogilvie is Dead

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 13.—William Ogilvie of Ottawa, former Commissioner in the Yukon, died at the Winnipeg General Hospital early this morning. He was brought here a week ago from Point Du Bois, suffering from septic poisoning.

His wife, who had been summoned from the east, was with him at the end.

Besides his widow, Mr. Ogilvie leaves two sons: Morley of Ottawa, and Paul of Vancouver. The latter arrived Sunday and will remain to make arrangements for the funeral. No details have yet been settled, but it is probable the body will be taken East for interment at Ottawa. The Masonic Order will assist.

$60,000 Jewel Robbery

PARIS, Nov. 13.—A robbery of jewelry worth $60,000 from a shop on the Place De L'Opera in the centre of Paris in broad daylight today has caused a sensation.

The thief crept through a temporary partition connecting the shop with an adjoining building in process of reconstruction and made off with the jewels without being noticed, although several salesmen were on duty at the time behind the counters.

The Laugh Transferred

Mr. John Raphael, the brilliant Paris correspondent to a number of our English newspapers, tells a story of a honeymoon couple.

They had spent part of their holiday in Brussels, and as lace is so much cheaper there than in France, the bride wanted to buy some to take home with her. But the husband said "No." By the time they paid the duty for importing it into France, he pointed out they might just as well buy it in Paris.

"But I could easily get it through the customs," the bride declared.

But the husband said "No"! again. He was not going to get into trouble for smuggling on his honeymoon.

Between Brussels and the frontier the bride, apparently brooding over the lace, explained exactly how she would have gone about the business, "I could have hidden any amount of lace under my dress," she said.

The husband had a bright idea. He would show his wife that his words of wisdom were not to be despised. So when they arrived at the frontied station, and the customs officers were searching the luggage of the passengers, he stepped out of the train and aproached one of the officers. Pointing to his wife, who happened to be looking the other way, he said: "I think that lady has some lace about her!"

The officer thanked him and made a sign to one of his subordinates. A minute later madame, protesting angrily, was taken off to be searched, while monsieur smoked a cigarette and chuckled at the thought that the search (although of course, he knew that she had no lace) would cure her of the wish to smuggle in future.

He ceased chuckling, however, when the customs officer came up to him and said: "We are very much obliged to you. The lady had forty pounds' worth of lace wrapped round her waist. But she says you will pay the duty and the fine!"

Then the customs people chuckled!

"A Awful Good Dog."

Ben Strickland, assistant clerk to the Indiana state bureau of printing and binding, said when he lived in Greenfield there lived there also a family composed of a man and his wife and a dog that was claimed by both of them. The family was nomadic, wandering about the country with a decrepit horse in the summer time, and the dog was their constant companion. Finally the dog lived its allotted days and was buried with as much pomp as the man and his wife could command. Next day Strickland saw the woman, and she was bewailing the loss of the dog. As a crumb of comfort Strickland offered:

"Now, Aunt Martha, you shouldn't feel so bad about that dog. What if it had been Uncle Billy (the husband) instead?"

"That might 'a' been purty bad," responded Aunt Martha, "but, Ben, I tell you that was a awful good dog."—Indianapolis News.

An Indiscriminate Charmer.

Possessed of every charm and grace,
And as each morn I pass her place
She smiles at me
Bewitchingly!

And, oh, the stunning clothes she wears!
Each week she in new garb appears,
It seems that no expense she spares
To please my eye
As I pass by.

Alas, she does not keep her smiles
For me alone! Her witching wiles
Are for the giddy throng that flies
Along the way
From day to day.

Yet, after all, 'tis naught to me
That she expends so lavishly
Her smiles on all, because, you see,
She's in a big shop front displayed—
Of wax she's made!

—Judge.

A Good Definition.

"Gent" is an abbreviation which has never been accepted by polite society, as a witness appearing before Justice Wightman once found to his cost.

He was testifying to the excellent character of the defendant and among points in his favor remarked that he was "an independent gent."

"An independent what?" interrupted Judge Wightman.

"A gent, my lord," repeated the witness.

"Oh, I understand," replied the judge. "That's something short of a gentleman, isn't it?"—London Chronicle.

"KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER"

By C. J. Cutcliffe Hyne

"Yes, isn't it, when you remember how he started. The only question is, will he keep his royal word when he is sober?"

"It's a nice point. Among other things I believe they are cannibals up in Okky City."

"Oh, come now Mr. Assistant, you mustn't malign my friend the King, too much. You need have no fears on that score. The Okky men have never been known to eat anybody with a red head. The only thing you'd have to funk would be sacrifice—with, of course, a most full and impressive ceremony. So I think you'll go, eh? All for the sake of K. O'Neill, whom you admire so much? And then the King won't stop the roads."

"No," said Carter shortly. "I have no intention of committing suicide at present. But if I'm an embarrassment at Malla-Nulla, you may fire me, or I'll resign if you wish it."

Swizzle-Stick Smith screwed his eye glass into place and examined his assistant with thoughtful care. "Shouldn't dream of letting you go, my dear fellow. Always make a point of sticking by my officers. Just thought I'd let you know of the King's offer in case his Majesty refers to it to-morrow. There, now, go to bed again, and don't dream the fighting's begun. You'll see plenty of service over this affair without dreaming over it ahead."

When Carter set out for the West Coast of Africa from the Upper Wharfedale Vicarage, the one article in his kit which he thought suitable for the Coast was a small-bore nickle-plated revolver, which he had picked up second hand in Skipton for ten and six. It had been smuggled in without his mother's knowledge, as there was no reason to add to her already great anxiety. His father had provided half a sovereign towards the cost, had advised him not to use the wretched thing except in case of necessity, but if need arose to take heed that he held it straight.

Of course on arrival he found firstly, that the weapon was too small for effective use; secondly, that he could not hit a mark six feet square at more than a twelve-yard rise; and, thirdly, that revolvers are not really articles of fashionable wear for clerks in West Coast factories, whatever they may be in story-books. So the weapon lay in his mouldy portmanteau, and the moist Coast climate changed its nickel dress for a good coat of bright red rust.

But the morning after the King of Okky's arrival, while that bulky potentate was still asleep in the factory, Carter went in, cleaned the revolver as well as he could, and jammed cartridges into its reluctant chambers. He carried it pirate-fashion for the remainder of that day inside the band of his trousers, to his great personal discomfort, and to the vast enjoyment of Mr. Smith. However, the truculent Okky soldiers who had deliberately shaken weapons at him in the morning were reduced by the sight of it to a certain surly civility, and work in the feteesh went on without any open rupture.

Mr. Smith was distinctly irritable when dawn came in with the morning tea, but presently, when the swizzle-stick began its merry swishing in the cocktail pitcher he thawed into pleasing geniality, which, by frequent application of the same remedy, endured throughout the day. Laura Slade had returned in her hammock by the beach road in the cool of the night before and Carter's thoughts followed her to Smooth River facory, to the detriment of his work down in the feteesh. He gave no mental attention whatever to the King of Okky who sat cross-legged in a long chair in the factory verandah above him, but that bulky potentate kept returning with a dogged persistency to the subject of George Carter.

"Oh, Smith," he kept on saying, "I savvy champagne palaver, n' I savvy cocktail palaver, n' I fit for chop when chop-time lib. But I ask you for tell me, one-time, if you fit for dash me dem Red-head that savvies machine-palaver. If you no fit.

To which Mr. Smith, who knew his West Africa from a twenty-five years' study of its men and customs would reply with an unruffled geniality that he was sure the King was far too good a heathen to try any such dirty game as putting ju-ju on the factory of an old friend. You are pulling my leg, old Cockiwax," Mr. Smith would say. "I pray you cease, and you shall have the best cocktail this pagan Coast has seen or sniffed.'

"Oh, Mr. Smith," the King would say, "I fit," and thereafter there would be no truce till the houseboy brought the ingredients and Mr. Smith with his far-famed skill compounded them, and the pink cocktails went their appointed journey to perform their accustomed work. After which the African would once more repeat his unwearied demand.

From the rising of the King from his mat, to the hour of the midday meal, this demand and reply went on, and Swizzle-Stick Smith parried it with unruffled serenity. But an open rupture very nearly came at the meal time. As a king, the visitor was invited to sit at meat with the white men in their mess-room. He said litte during the meal, but he appraised Carter's head so persistently with his eyes that that irritated young man, with the pride of race bubbling within him, would have openly resented the performance if he had not given a promise to Mr. Smith on this very point only a short half-hour before.

Such a state of things could not last long without bringing about an open breach, and Swizzle-Stick Smith, with his vast experience, saw this earlier than anybody, and made his arrangements accordingly.

He tried hard to write a letter, but his pen was not in the mood for intelligent calligraphy. So he had to fall back on verbal instructions and a verbal message.

"Mr. Assistant," he said, when at last he put down his knife and fork and the houseboy handed him his pipe and a match. "Mr. Assitant, I intended to make you a bearer of dispatches, but the gout's got into my confounded fingers this morning, and I doubt if even Slade could read my writing. So we'll just have to do the thing informally. We must have some more of that spot-white-on-blue cloth, and you must post off to the Smooth River factory and bring it back with you. It seems to be in heavy demand just now, though why, I can't imagine. I've been on the Coast twenty-five years now, and I can no more foretell the run of native fashions than I could the day I landed. But there it is, and though I'm sure Slade won't want to part, you must just make him. Say we'll pay him back in salt. I never yet knew Slade to indent for half as many bags of salt as his trade required. You needn't hurry. If you're back here in three days' time that will be quite soon enough. You can take a hammock of course."

'Thanks, very much, but I'd rather walk."

"Well, just as you please. You must commandeer what carriers you want from Slade.'

So it came to pass that when the sun had dropped to a point whence it could throw a decent shadow, and the sea breeze mingled a bracing chill even into a temperature of eighty, Carter set off along the beach with White-Man's-Trouble balancing a mildew-mottled Gladstone bag on his smartly-shaved cranium, in attendance. On one side of him Africa was fenced off by a wall of impenetrable greenery; on the other the Atlantic bumped and roared and creamed along the glaring sand. On the horrizon the smoke of a Liverpool palm oil tank called from him the usual Coaster's sigh.

"Oh, Carter," said his valet when they had left the factory buildings well out of earshot, "you plenty-much fine, and you ni lib for steamah."

"It was about time I tidied up. When we get back to the factory I will teach you how to pipe-clay shoes."

The Krooboy thought over this proposition for some minutes. Then said he: "I fit for tell you, Carter, dem last white man I pipe-clay shoes for, he lib for cemetery in two week. Savvy, Carter? Two week."

"All right, don't get so emphatic. I wasn't doubting you. But I am going to risk the cemetery all the same. You may start providing me with one pair of clean shoes a day, and when I get the taste of cleanliness again, maybe I'll run to two. Savvy?"

'Savvy plenty," grumbled White-Man's-Trouble, and then presently. "You no fit for steamah palaver? You no lib for home?"

"No, I'm not going home yet awhile."

"But you plenty-much fine."

"Yes," admitted Carter, "I caught sight of myself in mildewed pyjamas and a fortnight's beard, and was struck with the general filthiness of my personal appearance. Savvy?"

"Savvy plenty. Oh, Carter, you lib for wife-palaver? Dem plenty-much fine clothes always one of the customs before wife-palaver."

The Krooboy pondered over this discovery during the next two miles of the march, and then said he, 'Oh, Carter?'

"Well"

"Dem Slade. You savvy seegar?"

"I suppose so. Why?"

"I see Smith dash dem Slade one box seegar and he got what Slade said 'no fit' for before. Oh, Carter, you dash dem Slade one box seegar,' said White-Man's-Trouble, and he treated his employer to a knowing wink.

"Whatever for?"

"Because then, after he got dem seegar, he sell you Laura for half dem price he ask before."

"You're an impertinent savage," said Carter half tickled, half annoyed.

WOMEN OUTLIVE MEN

At Least This Appears to be the Case in France

The statistics of French insurance companies prove beyond question that women live longer than men, nor is the feminine advantage in longevity a matter of a few months, or even years. The difference is one of almost a third. Thus, the average age of death for women annuitants on the books of one company is 70, and for men a bare 50. Another company has several centenarians, all women, on its books. These fortunate persons have already received their capital back five or six times over. This company is now thinking of revising its tariff and making "one law for the man and another for the women."

Asked to assign reasons for the greater longevity of women, a distinguished doctor attributed the fact to the difference in the lives led by the two sexes. "Men live much harder," he said; "they smoke too much; they drink too much; they even though rarely, work too much. Women are much wiser. They think of the future. They rarely smoke; they drink ten times less; their preoccupations and their morals and sufferings are much less intense. Thus, at 40 a woman is in the plentitude of her physical powers, while a man at the same age has probably contracted organic weaknesses which menace his life."

A PRINCESS WAITRESS

Member of Noble Russian Family Voluntarily Seeks Hard Work

It has remained for Princess Maria Alexandrovna Garatzina, whose family is included among the largest landowners in Russia, to put Tolstoi's teaching to the practical test by giving up her wealth and earning her living by her own hands. The princess who is twenty-three years of age, left her parents' house and became a servant.

Her first "place" was that of kitchenmaid in an hotel. She had to rise at four o'clock in the morning and clean a hundred pairs of boots daily. She next became waitress, but the life was too strenuous for her, and she fell ill. On recovering she became a saleswoman in a large shop. The experience she passed through at this calling, however, did not please her, and she found another situation as waitress.

The princess is quite content with her lot. She declares that she is happier than when she lived in the family palace doing nothing. She intends to earn her own living during her lifetime, and hopes to die a working woman.

Where Work is Plentiful

In a statement issued by the Greenock Council it was said that work in the town has been so plentiful during the past year or so that every man, had he wished it, could have had two jobs. There is, it was said, more electricity sold in Greenock per head of the population than in any other town in the kingdom.

NOW GROWING SILK

How China is Overcoming the Loss of Her Opium Trade

In their attempts, says a Consular report from Canton, China, to find substitute industries to replace the abandoned culture of the poppy, once the principal industry of the province, the Yunnanese are giving primary attention to the development and improvement of sericulture. A school of agriculture has been started which is apparently doing excellent work in educating the farmers about Mengtz in the habits and needs of silkworms, sericulture in general, and the preparation of the cocoon product for the market. It is also importing with success seed from Shoching and Hangchow, in Chekiang, which produce firstclass white cocoons yielding a grade of raw silk, which it is claimed, compares well with with the best found on the Shanghai market. The silk industry in Yunnan is still in the initial stage, but the province should produce upwards of half a million pounds of first quality silk a year.

104 Killed In Canada in Month Of October

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—According to the record of industrial accidents maintained by the Department of Labor, there were 104 workmen killed and 324 injured during the month of October. Compared with the record for September, thi is an increase of 15 in the number killed and a decrease of 95 in the number injured. The greatest number, this is an increase of 15 in the railway service, there being 28 employes killed. The building trades came next with 18 fatalities.

Lyall, Contractor, Dead in Montreal

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—Peter Lyall, the head o the great construction company of Peter Lyall and Sons, is dead here after a long illness.

Mr. Lyall was born in Caithnesshire, Scotland, in 1841, and came out to Montreal in 1870. He was for two years president of the Montreal Caledonian Society, and had given large sums to charity.

His firm has handled large building contracts in all parts of Canada.

Johnson Aide Gets One Year

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Albert C. Jones, a real estate dealer, who signed $30,000 bonds for Jack Johnson in an attempt to obtain the negro pugilist's release from jail, was today sentenced to one year in jail for contempt of court by Federal Judge Landis.

Jones, it was charged, scheduled property which he had deeded to his wife. Judge Landis declared Jones had "wilfully and maliciously lied under oath in court in relation to his ownership of the property."

Jones announced he would appeal from the sentence.

Newspaper Plant Gutted by Fire

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Nov. 14.—Fire in the office of the Daily News yesterday afternoon caused damage of over $15,000. All the stock was destroyed, the interior of the mechanical department was gutted and considerable damage done to linotypes and other machinery by flames and water. The fire started from the furnace room where the janitor was engaged in burning papers. He had left the room for a few minutes, allowing the fire to trail to the bottom of the waste paper chute, up which the flames went with the ferocity of an explosion.

Once Rich, Now Dying Penniless

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Walter F. Frazier, once a wealthy inventor and Board of Trade operator, and scion of an old New England family, was found at the point of death in the hayloft of a South Side livery stable last night. He was penniless and was removed to a hospital.

On the Board of Trade he was known as "Old Frazier," and lost in speculation a fortune made from a machine he invented for making hooks and eyes for button shoes. In this work he was associated with former United States Senator Morgan J. Bulkeley of Connecticut. Of recent years Frazier had worked as a cab driver.

Body of Red Man Found in Erie Canal

UTICA, Nov. 14.—The body of Alexander Charles, a full-blooded Oneida Indian and a Carlisle graduate, whose home is in McKeever, in the Adirondacks, was found in the Erie Canal just east of Utica yesterday afternoon.

Interest centers in the death of Charles because he had not been seen since leaving his home three weeks ago, when he went to Port Leyden to witness the exhumation of the body of a relative, Joseph Wheelock, another Carlisle Indian, whose death was the source of conflicting stories.

The inquest over the remains of Wheelock resulted in a decision of death due to natural causes. Moreover the district attorney's office has been notified of yesterday's incident and an investigation will go forward.

Champion "Flea City"

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—F. J. Davis, flea hunter in chief for the famous menagerie with which Hon. Charles Rothschild amuses himself at his home in Herefordshire, Eng., is in Canada to make some additions to his collection. He is organizing a posse to scour the far north, including the northern Hudson Bay country, for the purpose of capturing some Esquimaux fleas, concerning which only last month Captain Scott told Mr. Rothschild that they were unique.

So far he has found Toronto the champion flea city.

"I found a prodigious number of fleas in Toronto, where I was able to add no fewer than seventy-three distinct types to my Canadian collection," said Mr. Davis.

"GYP THE BLOOD" SAYS INFORMERS FIRED SHOTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Harry Horowitz, otherwise "Gyp the Blood," the dandy of the four gunmen on trial charged with murdering Herman Rosenthal at Charles Becker's bidding, took the witness stand today and swore that the shots in front of the Hotel Metropole were fired by Harry Vallon, Bridgie" Webber, informers for the State, and a third man, mysteriously unnamed.

Witness denied every incriminating statement made by "Bald Jack" Rose, and said that he and his companions did not even hear of the murder until seven hours after it occurred. They were within a stone's throw of the scene whither they had gone, at the stranger's invitation, he said and fled when they heard the shots.

"Gyp" told his story in the rich, slangy vernacular of the east side. Occasionally he would stop and roll his big black eyes upward, as if in deep thought. He denied at any time getting into William Shapiro's gray automobile, the so-called murder car, or of seeing the machine in front of the Hotel Metropole. His direct examination lasted about an hour, when he was turned over to the State for cross-examination.

Brother's Horror at Assassin's Crime

PARIS Nov. 14.—The Paris police yesterday searched the Anarchists' quarters and detained a number suspected of possible connections with Manuel Pardinas, the assassin of the Spanish Premier.

Augustin Pardinas, brother of the assassin, lives in Paris, and is a cabinet maker. He expressed great horror at the crime, and said:

'Manuel must have acted in a moment of madness. He was a very quiet boy. I never knew that he was in Anarchist. He left me on November 6, saying that he was going to Bordeaux to embark for America, where he intended to set up in the painter's business, as he saw no opening in Paris.'

Aeroplanes Guided Artillery in War

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The great value of aeroplanes in war has been proved by the Bulgarian army, not only in reconnaisance work, but for fire control.

That the murderous accuracy of the Bulgarian artillery was due in a measure to the activity of the airmen is now demonstrated in letters received from the front.

Any attempt by war correspondents to telegraph news of the employment of flying machines by the Bulgarians during the operations has met with severe censorship, but stories are beginning to filter through, showing that remarkably effective work has been done by the arm which passed through its baptism of fire in Tripoli.

Police Said To Be Implicated

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Two New York policemen plotted a campaign of robbery, and carried it out so cleverly that instead of being suspected, they were promoted to first grade detectives for their supposedly good work in connection with the crimes, according to "Sing Sing evidence" read into the police investigation records. The testimony startled the members of the aldermanic commission, notwithstanding that the series of allegations were from two men convicted of the robberies in question, who are now serving terms in prison.

Emory R. Buckner, counsel for the commission, read the affidavit of Frank Paresi, who declared that two policemen known to him as "Al" and "Leo," conspired with him for the robbery of a house in Sixth avenue, and of a woman patron of a bank. Mr. Buckner pointed out that neither of the two policemen concerned in the alleged robbery plot, whose names he gave as Laherto Lambrella and Angelo Cava, appeared at the trial of either Paresi or his comrades.

Mr. Buckner declared that he would state later the circumstances under which the two officers were promoted to first grade detectives for their work in capturing Paresi.

Albanians Declare Their Independence

VIENNA, Nov. 14.—Albanian chiefs have met at Valons and proclaimed the independence of their country, according to dispatches received here.

Ismail Kegal, the Albanian leader recently has been in Vienna in connection with this meeting of chiefs, the object of which is to elect a committee to conduct Albanian affairs, pending recognition by the Powers of the country's independence.

Deputations of leading Albanian Catholics have been having confidences with the Austrian Government officials.

Alleged Bulgarians Guilty of Atrocities

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—Insinuations that the Bulgarians have been guilty of atrocities against the Turks and that the present war is more a butcher than orderly warfare, are made by the ward correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung.

Telegraphing from Semlin, Hungary, on the opposite side of the river frim Belgrade, he declares he has been reliably informed that the Bulgarian troops mutiliated the bodies of the Turkish soldiers after the battle of Kirk-Killisseh, and carried the Turks' head about on the points of their bayonets.

He continues:—

"Barbarism is fighting barbarism and century-old hate is fighting century-old oppression."

Triple Tragedy

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 14.—Because his request for money was refused, the police charge, Pasquale Ballatti, 28, a freight handler, struck down his wife, Rosa; his mother-in-law, Mrs. Alice Marrotto, aged 70, and a cousin, Teresa Tallarico, at their home, 453 Seneca street, to-day. The assailant used a five-pound cooper's hammer, fracturing the skull of all three women.

Leaving them unconscious, Ballatti disappeared and has not been captured. The elder woman is dying, but physicians at the Emergency hospital, where all were taken, believe the other two may recover.

It was a sordid tragedy of the tenements, prompted chiefly, the police say, by drink. Big-eyed children, sleepy men and half-dressed women, brought from their apartments by the cries of Ballatti's victims, stood aside and saw the freight handler speed to freedom through the dimly lighted halls. There was blood on his hands and clothes, and a crimson smear on his forehead indicated the mark of a hand that had been thrown out to ward off a blow.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the local Children's Aid Society was held in the City Hall last evening, at which a good number of our interested citizens were present. The programme arranged for the evening was one of interest, and all present were well pleased by the reports read and the general work accomplished during the year.

Upon the platform were: W. L. Scott, President of the Children's Aid Society of Ottawa; W. H. Wrightmyer, agent of the Belleville and Hastings C.A.S.; Thos. Ritchie, Hon. President; Dr. J. J. Farley, President; Rev. Mr. Hubly, Vice-President; H. F. Ketcheson, Treasurer; C. B. Scantlebury, Secretary; Rev. A. S. Kerr, Rev. Robt. Wallace, J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., and Mr. C. M. Reid.

The Quinte Male Quartette rendered several pleasing numbers during the evening.

Following prayer by Rev. Mr. Kerr, Dr. J. J. Farley, the President, spoke briefly on the aims of the Society, and the good work it is doing in Belleville and throughout the country, asking assistance and sympathy in the work, and explaining how the citizens can assist, either in the way of donations or by adoption of the children.

Mr. Wrightmyer, the agent, submitted his report for the year ending October 31st, 1912, showing the number of children looked after by the Society during the year, and the way in which they were disposed of (see Mr. Wrightmyer's report), and giving details of other work in connection with the Society.

AGENT'S REPORT.

As we have each month given detailed accounts, so far as possible, of the work dealt with, it will be unnecessary to take up the present time with a repetition of these details. The objects and accomplishments of the Children's Aid Societies can be but feebly expressed in figures, yet in order to be brief the agent has thus condensed his report and the following statement gathered from the monthly reports must represent the work of the past year:

Number of children in the Shelter at the close of last year	21
Number of children committed to the Society during the year...	56
Number of children committed to Industrial Schools	5
Number of children returned from foster homes	43
Total	128

These children have been disposed of as follows:—

Placed in foster homes	79
Sent to Industrial Schools	10
To "The Haven," Toronto	1

RISES UNTIL MONDAY

Speaker Advises an Adjournment of British House.

King George Is Thought To Be Responsible For the Peaceful Turn Taken by Events Connected With Snap Defeat of the Asquith Government — Unionist Apologizes to Churchill For Attack.

London, Nov. 15.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The House of Commons yesterday afternoon adjourned till Monday, acting on a suggestion which is believed to have emanated from King George himself.

The proposal was made by the Speaker, who intimated that it would be advisable "for the House to take further time to consider the points at issue" between the two factions in regard to the home rule measure.

Premier Asquith immediately agreed, and moved the adjournment of the House.

No one in London doubts the King was responsible for advising this turn of affairs. While the Cabinet was in session after the turbulent outbreak of Wednesday, Lord Knollys, the King's private secretary, arrived direct from Buckingham Palace and held a conference with the Premier in the Speakers' residence, and it is considered obvious that yesterday's procedure was then decided on as the best means of warding off, and perhaps entirely preventing, a renewal of the riotous obstruction to which many of the Unionists have pledged themselves.

A graceful apology from Ronald McNeill, the Unionist member who hurled the book at Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, during the disturbance, helped to cool the atmosphere yeterday. Mr. McNeill acknowledged that act was "entirely reprehensible," and he, extremely regretted his loss of temper. Winston Churchill accepted the olive branch with equal heartiness.

The Speaker of the House of Commons, in his remarks suggesting that the members take a period for reflection, emphasized the undesirability of Parliament departing from its established precedents. He said he could not help thinking that some solution of the difficulty might be found which would be acceptable to all parties and would be more in accordance with precedents that had governed the House, and would not set up a new precedent.

Premier Asquith and Andrew Bonar Law, the leader of the Unionists, both welcomed the Speaker's interposition, which the Unionists' claim is a victory for their contention.

Justifies Uproar.

London, Nov. 15.—Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, speaking at a Unionist demonstration in Albert Hall, said that he did not regret Wednesday's disturbance in the House, and did not try to stop it.

The Unionist demonstration was an old fixture, but was utilized as an opportunitiy to express confidence in the tactics of the leaders, Earl Lansdowne of the Opposition in the House of Lords, and Bonar Law were the principal speakers. Lord Lansdowne, however, said little about Wednesday' scene in the House of Commons and gave no hint as to the future policy.

Dealing with the home rule question, he said he believed that the reason support was accorded home rule in the country was that the people were feeling intense weariness over the Irish question. That, he declared, was a feeling of cowardice, which was unpatriotic and unstatesmanlike.

Experts View Steamer.

Quebec, Nov. 15.—There are now two wrecking experts on board the C.N.R. steamer Royal George, stranded one mile east of Point St. Lawrence. They are Capt. Saunders of New York, who arrived in Quebec from Newfoundland, on Tuesday last, and Capt. Parry-Jones, from Cleveland, Ohio, who arrived yesterday, and immediately proceeded to the steamer. Capt. Parry-Jones is one of the most experienced wrecking experts, whose duty confines him to the lake shipping, and is reputed to be the most capable man in Lloyds' employ.

Both these men went on board the steamer to superintend the necessary preparations prior to attempting to float the vessel, which they look forward to with confidence.

Best Packed Apples.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—So keen was the competition that it took the judges at the Ontario Horticultural Exhibition nearly four hours last night to decide who was the winner of the $200 prize for the best half carload of box-packed apples. The result was announctd shortly after 11 o'clock as follows: First prize, $200, Northumberland and Durham Apple Growers' Association; second prize, $150, Northumberland and Durham Co-operative Fruit Growers' Association; Norfolk Fruit Growers' Association, baldwins, 91 3-4 points.

Struck at Level Crossing.

Chatham, Nov. 15.—Matthew Tomlinson, a dairyman, was struck on a level C.P.R. crossing on LaCroix street by the 10.50 a.m. express from Windsor. The rig was smashed and the horse was dragged some distance, but little hurt. Mr. Tomlinson was thrown to the ground and received severe cuts and bruises on his face and body.

The train stopped and carried Mr. Tomlinson to the C.P.R. depot and he was afterwards removed to his home.

Scramble For Solicitorship.

Kingston, Nov. 15.—J. B. Walkem, K.C., William Mundell, T. J. Rigney and D. A. Givens are mentioned for the position of city solicitor, made vacant by the appointment of D. M. McIntyre to the position of chairman of the Ontario Railway Board.

Tea Cocoa Coffee

"What shall I drink?"

Have you ever asked yourself?

It's almost as important to you as "What shall I eat?"

If you will look up the subject, you will find that physicians attribute a great many ailments to tea or coffee.

They attribute none to cocoa.

On the contrary, you will notice they say that cocoa is a nutritious and beneficial beverage.

One cup of Lowney's Cocoa contains more nourishment than 24 cups of the best tea ever brewed and more than 22 cups of the best coffee.

And Lowney's has the true cocoa flavor—rich, delicious, appetizing. There is no finer cocoa-making equipment in the world than you will find at our Montreal factory.

Try Lowney's Cocoa once and see if you don't want it daily.

TAFT WANTS TO JOIN HANDS WITH BULL MOOSES

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—President Taft discusses the present situation in the Republican party at length in a statement published by the World today, expressing the hope that the Progressives and regulars will be able to join in a single united party for effective action at the next general elections.

"The sheet anchor of popular government is in the division of the people into two great parties and no more," he declares.

Mr. Taft deals with the Bull Moose movement in considerable detail. "I was surprised at Mr. Roosevelt's strength in the election," he says, and adds, commenting on the Progressive platform:

"The difficulty I find with the present Progressive program is that it contemplates the impossible. The country cannot afford to turn itself over to a class of men who do not deserve to figure in any more honorable light than quacks do in the practise of medicine. It would be too great danger to the body politic.

"When a party, like the Bull Moose party comes forward and proposes to tear down all the checks and balances of a well adjusted, democratic, constitutional, Republican government, then the issue affects the permanence and continuance of our government.

"The danger is from a party whose tendency is thus necessarily destructive of what has been laboriously established for the good and happiness of mankind by the struggles of centuries and which is headed as clearly for Socialism as the Socialist party itself.

"It behooves us, therefore, as Republicans, to look forward to the time when, in the natural course of events, the Democrats shall have disappointed the public, to be ready to prevent that disappointment from being used by the Bull Moose and Socialist combination to get into power."

Turkish Warships Shell Bulgarians

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 14.—The Turkish naval gunners are doing great execution among the Bulgarian troops attacking the Tchatalda fortifications, according to a report from the commander of the Turkish cruiser Hamidieh.

The squadron, lying off Bogados, on the coast of the Sea of Marmora, he says, found the range at from 8,000 to 8,500 yards, and poured such a withering hail of shot into the Bulgarian ranks, that the besiegers were forced to retire from their position at Deirmontepe, Tchiftikdedre, and Dragonkeui, to the northward from Bogados, and withdrew behind the heights. They suffered heavy losses.

Ammunition Boxes Were Full of Soap

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—The reasons for the breakdown of the Turkish army before the invaders are brought to light in a letter from Captain Persius, the war correspondent of the Tageblatt. Writing from Uskub after visiting the battlefield of Kumanova, he says he found on the persons of the fallen Turkish infantrymen numbers of blank cartridges and also cartridges of the old German rifles used in 1871. He also drew the swords of some of the fallen Ottoman cavalrymen and found them unsharpened and blunt, and it was the same with the bayonets of the infantrymen.

He saw a battery of field guns which had been captured by the Servians. The sights were fixed at 2,500 yards, but the barrels were only slightly discolored by powder. He was told that when the Turkish gunners opened their reserve ammunition boxes they found them filled with soap.

The correspondent adds that the hunger was one of the main causes of the Turkish defeats. The commissariat absolutely lacked organization. Hundreds of the Turks threw away their rifles and surrendered only in order to get a piece of bread.

HEALTHY WOMEN SCARCE

Is The Verdict of Scientific Investigation.

How many women do you know who are perfectly well, strong and healthy as a woman should be? They may not be sick enough to lie in bed, but they are rundown, thin, nervous, tired and devitalized.

Women are so active nowadays, and so much is expected of them, that they constantly overdue and suffer from headache, backache, nervousness and kindred ills.

Such women need Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, which will create an appetite, tone up the digestive organs, make pure blood and create strength.

Mrs. W. G. Ritchie, Patchogue, N.Y., says: "Vinol is certainly the best tonic I have ever taken. I was run down and tired all the time, but, thanks to Vinol, I am feeling all right again."

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. Red Cross Drug Store, J. S. McKeown, Belleville, Ont.

HAPPY THOUGHT

How You Can Roast Well and Save Fuel

A range may be a good baker, and still not be a good roaster.

Roasting is one of the most expensive processes of cooking—more fuel is used in proportion to the result than in almost any other cooking operation. So fuel economy is worth careful watching.

"Happy Thought" Ranges are constructed to give concentrated heat efficiency in the oven.

You know how necessary this is to proper roasting.

But the "Happy Thought" has this further advantage—oven heat is controlled entirely by the size and strength of your fire. So that a small, lazy fire gives a slow cooking heat, and a hot blazing fire gives a quick intense heat.

The sane firebox construction of the "Happy Thought" enables you to perfectly control your fire and, therefore, your oven heat.

The point is, you get a direct value in oven heat from every ounce of fuel.

Over a Quarter Million Canadian women, who know this from experience, use the "Happy Thought" every day

Storm Ravages On Lake Huron

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 14.—One of the worst storms in years raged on Lake Huron yesterday. Reports from the vicinity of Alpena and Thunder Bay stated that a wind storm, accompanied by rain and snow, reached a velocity of fifty miles an hour in that district and kept many boats in the harbors. Life saving stations along the shore were kept on the alert, but no wrecks have been reported.

The storm practically inundated the northern end of Thunder Bay Island, tearing up 500 feet of sidewalk leading from the life saving station to the watch tower. The remains of the schooner 'Julia Larson,' which was wrecked last summer, were washed up on Sugar Island.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. Nov. 14.—During a forty-mile gale accompanied by binding snow, the steamer 'J. L. Weeks,' of the Gilchrist Transportation Company, ran aground on Rock Shoal, between Point Iroquois and Groscap Buoy, Whitefish Bay, this afternoon.

News of the accident was brought here by the steamer 'John J. Barnum,' and tugs were despatched to the relief of the stranded vessel.

New Baptist Bible For The Baptists

PHILADELPHIA., Nov. 14.—What is regarded as a most radical version of the Holy Bible was placed on sale here yesterday at the American Baptist Publication Society room. It is a Baptist Bible for Baptists only, and much of the old text has been entirely changed.

In that portion of the New Testament where the conversion of the Saviour is described, in place of using the Greek "baptise" the literal translation, "immerse," is used, so as to conform with Baptist teachings that Christ went down into the water for the baptism.

All the archaic forms of the King James and Revised Versions have been completely eliminated. The new Bible is called the "Improved Version," and is distinctly different from the old Scriptures. Practically no other church but the Baptist will be able to use it, because it interprets the Scriptures to mean solely what the Baptist church teaches.

Valuable Cat is Killed by Turtle

PITTSBURG, Nov. 14—William Chivington, formerly of New York, now with the H. C. Frick Coke Company, told how he lost a $500 Angora cat.

One of the attractions of Mr. Chivington's new home is an aquarium. Around the tank is an additional canal, in which are kept several turtles, including a big snapper. Yesterday the Angora cat got in the aquarium and was playfully dipping in the water at the fish with its paw when suddenly the snapper grabbed the cat by the throat.

Leaping backward to the floor, the cat pulled the snapper out with him, but the turtle never relinquished its hold. The noise brought several members of the household, only to find the Angora expiring, with the turtle's jaws locked through the jugular vein.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

LIQUOR CASES

The cases of R. R. Palmer and John McDonald, both of Thurlow, who are accused of selling liquor without a license were this morning by Magistrate Masson enlarged for a week.

HIS ADDRESS CHANGED

Thomas Jones, a drunk pleaded guilty to the offence before Magistrate Masson this morning claiming it was his first offence. He was however visited with the usual fine of $5 or 15 days in jail. Not having the change Jones went up.

AN EXPENSIVE RIDE

A prominent citizen was this morning summoned to appear before the Magistrate charged with violating a city bylaw by riding his bicycle on the sidewalk on Front Street. The accused admitted the offence and a fine of $5 was imposed. He paid.

ILLEGAL FISHING

At the town of Deseronto yeterday Capt. A. Hunter of this city, game and fish overseer, had three parties before him charged with using a net of a smaller mesh than is allowed by the law. The accused were George Ruttan, Barney Burns and a Mr. Airhart. All were convicted and were fined $50 each. The nets used by them had previously been seized.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

A. Findlander named Karl Lingvist, was yesterday committed to the county jail on a serious charged namely with indecently assaulting a woman. The accused was committed by two J. P.'s of Marmora, where it is alleged the offence was committed. Lingvist will probably elect to be tried by a jury at the county sessions to be held next month.

FOREIGNER TO RECEIVE LASH

Anders Madsen the Dane was yesterday on trial before Judge Deroche charged with indecently assaulting a little girl in Hungerford Township. This morning judgment in the case was rendered by His Honor who Madsen guilty of the charge. A sentence of two years less one day in the Central Prison and 20 lashes was imposed. The culprit is to receive 10 lashes after serving one month and to receive 10 more before the expiration of the sentence.

PROHIBITED PERSON FINED

A week ago John Hutchison, sen., appeared before the Magistrate charged with being intoxicated and also being a person upon the prohibited list. He admitted the offence alleging he procured the liquor from a hotel in the city. The case was enlarged until this morning but Hutchison failed to appear. The Magistrate fined him $15 or in default 30 days in jail, and the case against the hotel man, where Hutchison claims he procured the liquor was enlarged for a week.

REMEMBERED BY STUDENTS

Two pleasing events have taken place at Albert College within the past few days. Rev. Dr. Dyer, Principal, was presented with a handsome gold headed cane and Miss Gardiner, Receptress, with a silk umbrella. These articles were suitably inscribed and were the gifts of the students to commemorate the birthdays of the Principal and Receptress. The presentations took place in the dining hall where all the students assembled. The students were most cordially thanked by the recipients.

LOCAL MEN VISIT MADOC

The Madoc Review chronicles the visit, this week of a company of local auto. tourists, consisting of Messrs. Fred Quick, of Quick & Robertson; John S. McKeown, druggist; B. Jenkins, Hotel Quinte and genial Jas. Roots, commercial traveller from Montreal. They visited many places of interest such as the talc mine and mill and the substation and were well pleased with their time spent here.

CONSIGNED TO THE TOMB

Despite the inclement weather yesterday there were a large number present at the obsequies of the late Mrs. Wm. Allison of Tyendinaga Township. At St. Andrews Church a service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Kemp and the sacred edifice was filled with relatives and friends. The remains were then conveyed to Victoria cemetery and placed in a vault. That the deceased had many friends was evidenced by the many beautiful floral designs which were placed upon the casket. The bearers were Messrs. W. G. Huffman, W. J. Embury, F. York, T. W. Balcanquel, W. Clare and W. Snider.

The basket ball season was opened last night at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium with a victory for O.B.C. The teams were evenly matched and put up a good game. At the end of the first half the score was 5 all. In the second half the O.B.C. team seemed to loosen up a little and if it hadn't been for fouls they would have had a larger lead. They have a good combination that gets good results.

The line up—

O. B. C.—Major, back; Walsh, back; Bryant, centre; Camirand, forward; Doigle, forward.

34th—Hamilton, forward; Lees, forward; Cooper, centre; Callahan, back; Barrett, back.

Score—Bryant, baskets 3, fouls 3; Major, baskets 2, fouls 4; Doigle, baskets 2.

Barrett, baskets, 1, fouls 3; Lees, baskets 1; Hamilton, baskets 2, fouls 8.

THE NEW MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS

The re-organization of the Cabinet made necessary by the resignation of Hon. F. D. Monk, saw the promotion of Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of the Interior, to the Department of Public Works. If there is any one portfolio where Mr. Rogers should be at home it is in Public Works, as for over ten years he was Minister of Public Works in the Roblin Administration in Manitoba. Mr. Rogers is an indefatigable worker, and has splendid administrative ability, so that he is recognized as peculiarly fitted for the position. Public Works is a portfolio which demands of all things a business man—it is a business department. Mr. Rogers is essentially a business man who will adopt business methods in the administration of this important portfolio.

Not many people know that Mr. Rogers is a Quebec man by birth. Despite his white locks he is one of the young men of the Cabinet, being only 48. He was born March 2nd, 1864, at Lakefield, Quebec, the son of Lieut.-Col. George Rogers. Early in life he went west where he engaged in business in Southern Manitoba. He is one of the pioneers of the Province. He first ran as a candidate in 1896, when after a spectacular campaign he was beaten in Lisgar constituency by R. L. Richardson, recently Liberal candidate in Macdonald. The next election he ran for the local House, and when Premier Roblin formed his Cabinet in 1900, Mr. Rogers was made Minister of Public Works, a position which he held until he resigned a year ago to become Minister of Interior under Mr. Borden.

Mr. Rogers, although he does not pretend to be an orator, is a first class debater and an astute and able parliamentarian. His work last session marked him as one of the strong men of the Government. He has been an unqualified success as Minister of Interior, and in the Department of Public Works it is felt he will place it on a sound basis.

THE ANGLICANS AND CHURCH UNION

A new movement of considerable significance from the union standpoint has been started in the Anglican church in Canada. Thirty prominent members of that communion have attached their signatures to "an appeal for Christian unity" and have sent it to every Anglican clergyman in Canada with the request that if he favors the proposals set forth he attach his signature and return the document to Rev. A. P. Shatford, of Montreal. The "appeal" proposes that the ministers of other churches be admitted, under certain restructions, to Anglican pulpits, and that members of other communions be allowed to commune in the Anglican churches. The object of the appeal is to find out what body of opinion there is in the Anglican church in favor of the proposed changes, and the intention is to consolidate this feeling in favor of closer union with other churches into some definite action. There seems to be no good reason why the Anglican church should not fraternize to a much greater extent than it has hitherto done with the other churches, and it is certain that most of the other churches are quite prepared to welcome such a movement whenever it may come. There has been a feeling in the Anglican church that the very constitution of that church forbade the full fraternal recognition of other churches, but there seems to be no adequate foundation for such belief, and it is unquestionable that there is a growing impatience in the Anglican church at the policy of ecclesiastical isolation which has so far prevailed.—Christian Guardian.

THE COAL SHORTAGE

In certain sections of Canada there is a very definite shortage of coal, but at present it is not supposed to be serious. In the United States, however, the shortage has become so serious as to attract the attention of the Interstate Commerce Commission. One member of the Commission, Franklin L. Lane, declares that the condition is really acute. He says:—"Great institutions of the country—the University of Michigan at Ann Harbor for instance—are practically out of fuel and cannot get it because there are no cars for its transportation. If an immediate remedy is not found people in parts of this country will be freezing to death because of their inability to get coal." The trouble lies, as stated, in shortage of cars. No doubt the movement of the western grain crop accounts partly for the shortage; but the Commission blames the railways for a great deal of the trouble. There seems to be a great delay in unloading cars, and freights move altogether too slowly. The Commission found upon investigation that a freight car averaged just about twenty miles a day, and while one was moving thirteen were standing still. It declares emphatically that if the railways do not provide a prompt remedy the Commission itself will find one. And yet railways are supposed to be run in a most business-like way, and the interference of a Commission does violence to all our old traditions. But it cannot be denied that to the public it appears as though the railways too often lose sight of the fact that they exist primarily to benefit the public, and not for the benefit of a few shareholders. More and more it is being recognized that the public weal is the supreme law.

Respectfully submitted,
W. H. WRIGHTMYER.

Mr. Thomas Ritchie, Honorary President, in his remarks referred to the speaker of the evening, Mr. Scott, of Ottawa, as being the author of the Dominion Act passed in 1908, respecting delinquent children. This Act is called the Delinquent Juveniles Act, and is very important. He congratulated the local C.A.S. on the good work which had been accomplished in the last three or four years, and went on to outline the number of children that had been rescued from evil surroundings, where they would eventually have become criminals. This has been largely due to having a Shelter provided for the Society. Before that they worked for many years with very little progress. The Shelter is not quite satisfactory, but it has accomplished something and they hope to have a better one. He spoke in very glowing terms of the Agent, Mr. Wrightmyer, as being a most efficient and competent agent, who is enthusiastic in his work, and the work that has been accomplished has resulted largely from his efforts. He urged upon the Legislature to make the amendments which had been suggested to the Act respecting dependent and neglected children, which would make it much more effective.

Rev. Robt. Wallace, in the course of his remarks, said that, to say nothing of the large number of children who had been rescued during the year, if only one child had been saved from circumstances of misery and unhappiness and wretchedness, having no chance in this life, and no hope of the life beyond, and placed in a kindly Christian home such as these children are placed in, it would have been well worth all the efforts that have been spent in the work. He stated that he has been connected with similar work for over thirty years. In that time some seven or eight thousand children have passed through the Marchmont Home. This work in Belleville is not only to help the children of today, but also the children of tomorrow. It is the children's children and the generations yet unborn of these children that are being saved. Many of them would become criminals—a charge on the city and country, and their descendants would go on and become an increase charge. He spoke in the highest terms of Mr. Wrightmyer, the indefatigable agent of the Society, saying he was sure he was the right man in the right place, as his heart was in the work.

Following this address came the report of Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, the Treasurer, showing the receipts and expenditures for the year, as follows:

TREASURER'S REPORT.

To the Officers and Members of the Children's Aid Society of Belleville:—

As I have presented to the Society at each of their meetings a detailed statement of receipts and expenditures each month, I have not thought it necessary to repeat the same in this report, but am only giving a summary.

Receipts—
Balance, Oct. 31st, 1911		$ 160 02
Donations and memberships		919 70
Maintenance		2044 35
		$3124 07
Expenditures—
Maintenance of Shelter	$1936 90
Salaries and help	1042 00
		2978 90
Balance on hand Oct. 31st, 1911		145 17
		$3124 07

A number of very liberal donations have been made to the Society during the past year, a few of which deserve special mention in this report:—

Thomas Ritchie	$100 00
Henry Corby	100 00
Dr. Farley	25 00
Moira Lodge A. F. & A. M.	30 00
Belleville Lodge "	10 00
Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers	5 00
John Street Presbyterian S.S.	9 16
Bridge St. Methodist S.S.	27 00
F. S. Anderson Co.	10 00
J. Hudgins' S.S. Class, Holloway Street	4 35
Misses Hatt	10 00
C. B. Scantlebury	15 00
Mrs. R. Matheson	10 00

You will notice that the amount expended for maintenance has increased by over $400. This increase is almost entirely due to repairs which were necessary at the Shelter. This emphasizes the need of a new Shelter Building. The one we are now occupying is not suited to the work and will of necessity cost a large sum each year for repairs. It is time that steps were taken towards the securing of a site and the building of a new shelter.

The membership during the past year has increased by over 100. We now have about 200 members; we should have 1,000.

I also desire to express my appreciation of the good work done by our Agent, Mr. W. H. Wrightmyer, whom I have found to be very faithful and untiring in his efforts to promote the work of saving and caring for the children.

H. F. KETCHESON,
Treasurer.

Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., spoke along the lines of the good work of the Society. He thought this work was entirely in line with what this country is doing generally for thousands who are in distress or misfortune, that we should aid the children, who have probably a greater claim upon us than the adults have. "We have three millions and a half of square miles of land in this Dominion of Canada, and we can well afford to invite well disposed people of the world to come here. But I think our duty is first to our own, and if we have afforded shelter in the past to at least 25,000 waifs and strays from England through the Barnardo Home, of which we read in the Toronto papers lately, we certainly would only be doing our duty if we would rescue those, who not from any fault of their own, but from their environment, from circumstances over which they have no control. It is our duty to aid them to the best citizenship this country can afford." The Prime Minister of Ontario, Sir James Whitney, is entirely in sympathy with all movements of this kind. You will notice that he presided at a meeting held in Toronto a few evening ago, when an address was given by a representative of the Barnardo Home, and that he expressed his pleasure at being there, and promised his aid in every way to the children of the Empire.

He went on to outline the way prisoners are being dealt with today in contrast to what they were years ago, and explained the Prison Farm at Guelph, to which men are now sent instead of to a prison cell, which gives them an opportunity of lifting themselves up and repenting of what they have done.

The address of Mr. Scott, an extremely interesting one, along the lines of dealing with children, the influence of environment upon their lives and what kindness would do for them. His discourse, which was quite lengthy, will appear in a later issue of The Intelligencer.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson then addressed the audience in the way of an appeal for increased membership of the Society. The membership at present is 200. As the membership fee is only $1.00 a year, he thought they ought to have a membership of 1,000.

Rev. Mr. Hubly moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Scott, the speaker of the evening, for his coming to Belleville and delivering such an excellent address; to the Belleville Male Quartette, who had added to the pleasure of the evening, to the ladies who had worked so faithfully in the interests of the Society, to Mr. Givens, for furnishing plants to decorate the platform for the evening, to the Press, and to Miss M. Kendrick, stenographer of the evening.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem and benediction by Rev. A. M. Hubly.

The less a man understands what he's voting for the more excited he gets over an election.

HOCKEY

The Saskatchewan Association will play under O. H. A. rules this winter.

Bowmanville, Beaverton, Bradford and Burk's Falls will have new rinks this winter.

The Alberta Hockey Association will hold its annual meeting this week. The outlaw organization, which refused last season to accept a residence rule that would bar its imported crooks, is dead.

A letter was received this week by the Toronto Hockey Club from Ottawa College, stating that the collegians are arranging for an extended tour through the States via Toronto, and would like to arrange a game or games in Toronto on December 21, 23 or 24.

Toronto will have three pro. hockey games there Christmas week. In addition to Wanderers of Montreal on December 23, the new schedule has been changed so that Toronto and Canadiens meet here on Christmas night, while Wanderers and Tecumsehs play on December 28.

The Detroit management sent a representative to Woodstock to get Bryson, Sandercock and others of last year's juniors, but met with failure. The Industrial City will have one team, a junior septette, in the O. H. A. this season. It is said that Gillies, with Detroit last season, will be with London intermediates.

Victoria Colonist—The Patricks will make no further effort to bring Harry Hyland or Ernie Johnson to the coast. If these players decide to stand by their original contracts and play for Westminster again all will be right, but in case they conclude to remain in the east they will never get another chance to play on the coast.

Just to show that they do not want to do business with faith-breakers, Frank Patrick has wired to Archie McLean, better known to coast fans as "Sue" McLean, cancelling his agreement with the Pacific Coast League and releasing him from all obligations to the west.

McLean came to terms with Lester Patrick when the latter passed through Winnipeg recently, and though no contract was signed, it was arranged that McLean should be back with the Westminster club at point. Since then McLean has been stricken with the get-rich-quick bug and he had been negotiating with various eastern clubs with the idea of boosting his monthly stipend Frank Patrick came to hear of it and he decided to make an example of McLean, so he let him out. In addition Patrick wired the various eastern clubs that McLean was a free agent, just for fear they might be bidding against each other for the services of the point player of last season's coast champions.

Lester Patrick says that there is nothing in the report that Sibby Nichols is going to Toronto, as Nichols is booked for another season on the coast.

Peterboro, Nov. 14.—The annual meeting of the Peterboro Hockey Club was held last night, with some 35 enthusiasts in attendance. It was decided to enter teams in the junior and intermediate series of the O. H. A. The following officers were elected:

Patrons and Patronesses—Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mrs. Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hooper, Mr. and Mrs. R. Denne, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Elliott, Mayor and Mrs. Bradburn, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P.; Hon. President, Dr. Wightman; President, Sam Ray; Vice-Presidents, James Fobin and Jos. Picard; Secretary-Treasurer, R. M. Glover; Executive Committee, Fred Whatley, J. Percy Bond, C. J. Curtis and F. D. Craig.

There is an abundance of material for both junior and intermediate teams and a good season is expected.

THE RING.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—His jaw broken in a vigorous onslaught in the third round, Tommy Hudson, the bantamweight from Windsor, Ont., was unable to come out of his corner for the fourth session in his bout with Frankie Burns of Jersey City, at Brown's gymnasium.

Burns cut loose with right and left jolts to the head in the third, forcing Hudson to hold tight. Just before the bell ended the round Burns landed a long left swing flush on his opponent's jaw, and it was immediately apparent that the Canadian had been badly hurt, but he stayed out the round. Hudson asserted that Burns' head and not his punches, produced the fracture.

Hudson, short and stocky, and appearing heavier than the officially announced weight 118 pounds, had never before boxed in this vicinity. He was willing enough, but he was no match for the clever Burns. Frankie outclassed Hudson at long range and the Canadian tried to keep close, but at that style also he was outfought. Burns jabbed his left and jolted his right, cutting Hudson's left eye.

RUGBY

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Western University will play Assumption College here Saturday afternoon, one half of the game to be under Canadian rules and the other half under American rules.

The Collegiate Institute championship of western Ontario will also be decided between Sarnia and London.

HAMILTON, Nov. 14.—The Alert Rugby Club has made application for membership in the O. H. A. It is the intention of the club to have one of the strongest teams in the proposed intermediate Hockey League, and there is plenty of good material in the city to form the nucleus of a strong team. The intention also is to have a couple of city league teams, and there is expected to be big doings in hockey circles in this city during the coming season. Work on the immense ice plant is about complete, and things will be stirring about December 15th. There is talk of the Tiger club having a team in the senior league, but nothing has yet been done.

Hamilton Herald—It is the general opinion that if Alerts lost to Toronto on Saturday that the game between Alerts and Tigers will be called off, out, as the Toronto team would still have to trim Parkdale the following Saturday before they tied the Alerts in the race for the O.R.F.U. honors, the Alerts would have an off-day on Nov. 23. There is a possibility of Parkdale defaulting to Torontos if the Queen City boys manage to pull out a win over the Alerts, but, even then, the O.R.F.U. Executive could not order Alerts and Torontos to meet on the date on which Parkdale should meet the Torontos. The situation has thrown quite a scare into the camps of both Alerts and Tigers, but nothing short of a very unexpected move on the part of the men behind the Ontario Union could result in the game being cancelled at this late date.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 14.—Woodstock College defeated Hamilton Collegiate by the score of 25 to 6 in a Rugby game here Wednesday. The visitors were outclassed by their O.R.F.U. opponents in scrimmage and tackling, and were unable to hold their ground. The winners scored four touchdowns and showed good team work. Hamilton made strenuous protest against alleged interference employed by Woodstock and left the field at one time, but returned to finish the game. The lineup:

Woodstock—Halves, Price, Sutherland Hill; flying wing, Bowron; quarterback, Firstbrook; scrimmage, Smith, Bain and Moore; wings, Breckenbridge, Parsons, Wilson, James, Harris and Matheson.

Hamilton—Halves, Daisley, Webber and Bowlby; flying wing, Hill; quarterback, Philpott; scrimmage, Ainsley, Ballantyne, Wright; wings, McLeod, Tufford, McKay, Livingstone, Barclay and Thomson.

GENERAL SPORTS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Although Joe Wood, the hero of the world's series, tops the list of pitchers in the 1912 American League averages, issued yesterday, Walter Johnson of the Washington Club, probably is the leading pitcher of the season.

In games won and lost Wood excels Johnson, but the Washington pitcher worked in seven more games than did Wood. Johnson struck out 303 men in 368 innings—the season's record—and held 1,312 opposing batsmen to 89 runs. Wood pitched 344 innings in 43 games, during which 104 runs were scored off him. He struck out 258 batters. The Boston pitcher won 34 out of 39 games, while Johnson won 32 out of 41, besides playing two ties.

Edward Walsh of the Chicago club, was the workhorse of the season. He pitched in 62 games, twelve more than any pitcher in the league.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Ora Morningstar of Pittsburg defeated George F. Slossen of New York, 500 to 474, in the second contest Monday night of the tournament for the world's professional championship 18.2 balk line billiard title. Slossen made the high run of the tournament thus far, clicking 140 in his thirteenth inning.

Morningstar's average was 14 24-34, and Slossen's average 13 22-34. Last nights contests were between Calvin Demarest of Chicago, and Kedji Yamada of Japan, and George Sutton of Chicago and Al Tayler of Milwaukee.

Corpse Holds Up Horse

SULLIVAN, Wis., Nov. 14.—Brought to life by a runaway after two days' residence in a coffin was the unexpected result of Mike Scofield's trip in a hearse yesterday.

"Dead," the verdict of Coroner Hix's hastily assembled jury, was in accordance with the facts, the opinion of the residents who had thronged in front of the undertaking establishment when Mike Scofield, laborer, had fallen lifeless to the pavement.

The body was placed in the customary pine box in a hearse for transportation to Potter's field. The roar and rumble of a train as it rushed past the hearse frightened the horses and they ran away. Scofield, aroused from an extended period of suspended animation, caught the horses, patched up the driver's wounds, and assisted him back to this village.

Independents Renew War on the Bell Telephone Co.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—The Canadian Independent Telephone Association, in seventh annual convention at the City Hall yesterday, devoted several hours to discussing the terms of a proposed standard form of agreement for an interchange of service with the Bell Telephone Co. This agreement was before the Dominion Railway Board when the late Judge Mabee was chairman, and, with the exception of two clauses, the Independent and Bell Companies have agreed upon its terms. These clauses were suggested by Judge Mabee, and the Independent Association considered that the matter was practically settled, but General Manager Sise of the Bell Corporation, in a recent communication to the Independent Association, declined to agree to these clauses as they now stand, and is said to have held out the threat that if the matter is taken to the Railway Board again his company would refuse to accept the other clauses which are said to have already been agreed upon between counsel of both parties. The convention decided to instruct its counsel, Mr. H. D. Gamble, K.C., to resubmit the whole matter to the Dominion Railway Board.

It was maintained in the convention that the disposition of Independents in the matter had been to secure an agreement which would be absolutely fair to both parties, and that every effort had been made to conciliate rather than antagonize the Bell Company.

Lacked Sufficient Boats.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—The lesson of the Titanic has not been lost upon the Canadian Government. This is illustrated by an order issued by the Department of Marine and Fisheries this week. It came to the notice of the Department that the steamer A. W. Perry, which sails between Yarmouth, N.S., and Boston, was not complying with the marine regulations, in the matter of not carrying the necessary number of lifeboats.

An order was immediately telegraphed to the proper authorities at Yarmouth to have the steamer held in port until additional boats were provided. This required the cancelling of a scheduled trip, but not until the law was complied with was the captain allowed to sail. The Government is determined to enforce the marine regulations, and safeguard public life and property.

Municipalities Strong for Scheme Served by Hydro.

At Meeting In Toronto Representatives of Civic Bodies All Over the Province Put Themselves on Record In Favor of Municipal Systems All Over the Province and Ask Commission For Report.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—Men of all shades of political opinion have voiced themselves in support of this new project, which when consummated will be the means of making the Ontario fruit and market garden industries rank foremost on the American continent.

The scheme outlined, though in an embryo state, will connect Kingston with Owen Sound and Toronto with Midland. All that will be required will be to purchase the land covered by Hydro poles and wires, thus eliminating future easement expenditures. The power is already there, the tracks need to be laid and cars purchased. This also will enable the commission to supply small quantities of power to small towns and villages.

The following resolution was passed: "Resolved: That in the opinion of this meeting, representing municipalities, it is desirable that a system of electric railways, including street railways, be owned by the municipalities, be established and built, and further, that the Hydro-Electric Power Commission be requested to look into the advisability and practicability of building such a system and to furnish a report thereon to this association.

"In order that the request to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission be made definite, it is further suggested that the initial report should refer only to road following the Hydro transmission lines of the commission at present existing and contemplated in the Niagara power zone, extending throughout Western Ontario and the Midland district. It is desired that the report shall cover cost of construction, cost of operation and probable revenue in each case."

The above resoluton, passed by the Ontario Electrical Associaion, which held a meeting for this purpose at the city hall yesterday, when representatives from 30 municipalities were present, was carried unanimously.

Although the essential feature of the conference was the discussion on the feasibility of laying down radial railways, more particularly along the routes taken by the commission's high tension wires, the president, ex-Mayor Geary, in his opening remarks dwelt upon the many benefits derived from the adoption and use of the Hydro power.

"We have every reason to be thankful that the Hydro-Electric Commission has proved such a splendid success," he declared, "especially knowing, as we do, that it has been the means of relieving the municipalities of Ontario of the intolerable burden of the control of public utilities by private companies, and we have great reason to be proud of the fact that the Government was bold enough to regulate the electric supply, which is proving to be such a boon to the people. The early success of the commission in regard to the supply of power and light now places us in a position to see no reason why the commissioners should not relieve us of another burden, namely, transportation. We are now at the mercy of these companies who display a monopolistic attitude and give no ear to our requests for better service."

Many well-known electrical experts from all over the province were in attendance. They came more to receive suggestions than to offer them. Many objections were presented and Hon. Adam Beck answered as many as he could with the information at his disposal.

Mayor Price of St. Thomas wanted the lines constructed by the municipal authorities jointly, and the use of Hydro power adopted, but he wanted the railway run by private companies on lease.

The conference was tendered a banquet at McConkey's by the city, at which Mayor Hocken presided.

Against Contract System.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 15.—The contract system of prison labor was condemned in the report of the committee on prison labor presented yesterday at the Congress of the American Prison Association in annual session here.

The committee, however, recommended the system when no other means of employment could be provided, believing it preferable to idleness. The employment of prisoners, the report maintained, should be directed entirely by the state and the products of this labor should be disposed of by the state.

James H. Leonard, superintendent of the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield, was elected president.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Wheat prices broke today under the seasonal low record established 24 hours before. Hope of speedy peace in Europe was chiefly responsible. At the end of the session a feeling of steadiness prevailed, but the market showed a net decline of 3-4c to 7-8c and 1c.

The Liverpool market closed ⅜d to 1d lower on wheat, and ⅜d to ½d lower on corn. Antwerp wheat closed ⅜c lower.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 46 cars, comprising 423 cattle, 952 hogs, 621 sheep and 51 calves.

Butchers.

There were few cattle that reached $6 on the market today. Good butchers sold from $5.50 to $5.90; medium, $5.25 to $5.50; common, $4.25 to $4.50; inferior, $3.50 to $4; fat cows, $4.50 to $5.25; medium to good cows, $4 to $4.50; common cows, $3 to $3.50; canners, $2 to $2.75; bulls, $4 to $4.75; common bulls, $2.75 to $3.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Prices were lower for stockers and feeders. Best feeders, $4.75 to $5.15; good stockers, $4.25 to $4.50; common stockers, $3.25 to $4.

Milkers and Springers.

Dealers in milkers and springers are finding just fair demand from the outside, but the supplies of strictly good to choice cows are so small that competition is pretty keen for such at the strong prices lately noted. Some well-bred Shorthorn and Holstein cows of high-class are eligible to $90 or better for an extra big cow of high qualifications as a milker, but the volume of business at $75 or better is very meagre, most of the choice down to pretty good cows selling at $75 down to $60; a fair class of cows down around $55, and the very ordinary down to inferior cows only around $40.

Veal Calves.

The eastern rough grass calves sold from $2.85 to $3.25; good veal calves sold from $7.50 to $8.50; choice veal calves sold from $9 to $9.25.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were moderate. Sheep, light ewes, sold at $4 to $4.25; heavy ewes and rams, at $3 to $3.50. Lambs were about 10c per cwt. higher, selling at $6 to $6.40, the bulk going at $6.25 to $6.35.

Hogs.

The market for hogs was firm at $8 to $8.10, fed and watered, and $7.65, f.o.b., cars, at country points.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Nov. 14.—Cattle—Receipts, 150 head; active and steady.

Veals—Receipts, 100 head; active and 50c higher, $4 to $11.

Hogs—Receipts, 4800 head; active and 5c to 10c higher; heavy, $8.25 to $8.35; mixed, $8.10 to $8.30; yorkers, $7.60 to $8.15; pigs, $7.40 to $7.50; roughs, $7.10 to $7.25; stags, $5 to $6.50; dairies, $7.75 to $8.15.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 7000 head; sheep, active and steady; lambs, slow and 10c lower; lambs, $4.50 to $7.25.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Cattle—Receipts 6500. Market steady to 10c higher. Beeves, $5.35 to $11; Texas steers, $4.30 to $5.60; western steers, $5.50 to $9; stockers and feeders, $4.10 to $7.15; cows and heifers, $2.75 to $7.40; calves, $6.50 to $10.60.

Hogs—Receipts 22,000. Market mostly 5c higher, but closed weak. Light, $7.55 to $8; mixed, $7.50 to $8.12½; heavy, $7.40 to $8.10; rough, $7.40 to $7.60; pigs, $5 to $7; bulk of sales, $7.75 to $8.

Sheep—Receipts 22,000. Market strong, mostly 10c higher. Native, $3.35 to $4.65; western, $3.65 to $4.60; yearlings, $4.80 to $6; lambs, native, $5.50 to $7.50; western, $5.75 to $7.40.

Cheese Markets.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 14.—At today's cheese board, 1336 colored and 155 white were boarded at 11⅝c, 150 colored sold, balance refused.

Galt Wants Underground Wiring.

Galt, Nov. 15.—Ald Dakin, chairman of the local Hydro-Electric Commission will apply for power to inaugurate underground wiring, thus compelling the Bell Telephone Co. and C.P.R. and G.N.W. Telegraph companies to transfer transmission lines to conduits. The policy to be followed is that conduits shall all be laid by the corporation, primarily for Hydro-electric wires, but the extra cost to accommodate the lines of private companies shall be paid by them, according to the space used. This places the construction of the conduits entirely in the hands of the municipality.

Tried to Bribe Officials.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 15.—A jury in the Supreme Court, American side, last night, brought in a verdict of guilty against Clifford R. Bowman, Niagara County, supervisor from the ninth ward of Niagara Falls, charged with attempted bribery. It was charged that Bowman obtained a promise from an architect to pay $1,500 to be selected to prepare plans for an alms house, and that Bowman offered part of this money to several other supervisors. He will be sentenced Monday.

Bowman is a papermaker, and was employed by a Canadian paper mill several years ago.

D. O. E. Rooms In Galt.

Galt, Nov. 15.—The Daughters of Empire have established and equipped a suite of rest rooms in Carnegie Library for the accommodation of young women of Galt. The institution was formally opened under the name of the Alexandra Club and will prove of decided advantage to the class interested.

MAY ALTER THE LAW

Premier Borden Intimates a Far-Reaching Reform.

In Dealing With an Appeal From the Decision of the Dominion Railway Board He Says the Privy Council Is Incapable of Dealing Adequately With Such Cases and Legal Practice Will Have To Be Changed.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—An intimation which may be of far-reaching importance, fell from the lips of the Prime Minister yesterday afternoon, while presiding over the Privy Council, at the hearing of the appeal of the C.P.R. respecting its route between Weston and Lambton. The Dominion Railway Commission last spring refused to approve the route selected by the railway company on objections filed by property owners in the Humber Valley. They, at the time, suggested an alternative route, but this was not adopted by the Railway Commission, which contented itself with refusing approval of the route proposed by the C.P.R. The hearing yesterday was for the purpose of reversing the Railway Commission's order.

Appeals from the Railway Commission to the Privy Council are becoming quite common, and Mr. Borden remarked yesterday that he could hardly conceive a body less capable than the Privy Council to deal with disputel questions of fact and complicated problems in engineering.

W. E. Raney, K.C., who appeared for himself and other property owners, suggested that the statute did not authorize an appeal like the one in this case, but Mr. Borden did not agree with him.

He said, however, "I think some change will become necessary in the law if appeals upon questions of fact continue to come before us. The Railway Commission conducts many hearings quite informally and decides many questions of fact in a somewhat summary manner and quite properly, too, because it is desirable that the commission should proceed expeditiously and with as little formality as possible. The result is, however, that when an appeal is taken to the Privy Council, the record of testimony taken before the commission is sometimes informal, and, perahps, not as complete as might be desired.

"Then again, very often we are called upon to pass upon questions of detail, which we are hardly qualified to deal with. For example, we are asked to make orders regarding gradients at highway crossings and the like. I think that either some other method of appeal will have to be found, or appeals to us must be limited to those cases which are certified by the Railway Commission."

Social Justice Demanded.

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 15.—At the close of a day of addresses by fraternal delegates from Great Britain and Canada, the reports of religious and philanthropic associations organized in the interests of labor, President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, defended the non-political policy of the federation and declared that the only thing that will end the struggle between capital and labor is recognition of the right of the toilers to the best that is produced.

"I may call attention to the fact that while we do not pin our faith to the pledges made by any political party, the American methods of our organized labor movement have accomplished results," said Mr. Gompers. "Never were there so many people who voted for propositions, declarations, demands and promises for social justice as the 14,000,000 people who voted in this country two weeks ago."

Workman Is Burned.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—Henry Watson, aged 26, 27 Gordon street, was badly burned with molden lead at Prince Arthur and Bedford road yesterday afternoon. Watson was employed by the city waterworks department and was putting in a main. The metal was being heated in the regular pot, when it was accidentally upset.

Watson was down in the ditch and the molten lead poured on him and his head and left shoulder were burned. He was taken in the ambulance to the Western Hospital and has a fair chance of recovering.

Mrs. Nordheimer Dead.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—Death came with comparative suddenness yesterday evening to Mrs. Samuel Norhheimer at her home, "Glen Edythe," on Poplar Plains road. While attending her son Roy's marriage at Holy Trinity Church a week ago Wednesday, Mrs. Nordheimer, who was in her 65th year, contracted a cold which developed into angina pectoris.

Bought Bankrupt Trolley Line.

New York, Nov. 15.—A trolley line was sold at auction from here yesterday afternoon. The line was the bankrupt 59th Street Crosstown Railway, which has been unable for several years to pay interest on its bonds. It was purchased for $1,673,000 by Edward Cornell, a lawyer. He declined to say for whom he acted.

Farmer's Heavy Loss.

Brockville, Nov. 15.—The barns and stables of Charles N. Murray, on the town line between August and Elizabethtown, containing the season's crop, were destroyed by fire, supposed to have started from spontaneous combustion. The damage is estimated at $3,000, against which there is only $900 insurance.

Sessional Indemnity Taxable.

St. Catharines, Nov. 15.—E. A. Lancaster, M.P., has appealed to the St. Catharines Court of Revision against an income assessment of $2,000 on his sessional indemnity and says he will appeal higher if it is confirmed. The decision has been deferred. An assessment of $1,000 on the allowance of Dr. Jessop, M.P.P., was not appealed against.

Power Contract Signed.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—The Hydro-electric will soon girdle all Ontario. Yesterday Hon. Adam Beck signed contracts with five municipalities for the supply of the "people's power." The new towns that will be illuminated by the Government's power system are Brantford, Paris, Port Dalhousie, Brockville and Prescott. The signed contracts were returned to the mayors of these places last night.

It will be a very simple matter to supply Brantford, Paris and Port Dalhousie, as at the present time transmission lines are strung through that section of western Ontario. It will, however, be some time before Brockville will get its power. The transmission line has been erected from Morrisburg to Prescott, which is about 20 miles from Brockville. A large gang of men began work at Prescott a few days ago to complete the construction of the line to Brockville.

First Fight at Prison Farm.

Guelph, Nov. 15.—One of the prisoners out at the prison farm was brought into the county jail yesterday for engaging in a fight with other prisoners at the farm, in which he got his nose badly smashed. He is thought to be mentally defective and will be sent to Toronto.

Galt Fears Floods.

Galt, Nov. 15.—Heavy rain again caused the Grand to rise almost to the flood level below the town; farm lands were flooded. Residents say they never saw swamp and hollows filled with water as they are this fall. This is an indication of a bad spring flood.

Inspecting Good Roads.

Brockville, Nov. 15.—A. W. Gray, assistant provincial highways engineer, is making an official inspection of the new roads that have been completed in these counties, under the good roads system.

How to Boil Water.

To boil water would seem to be a very simple thing, and yet the late Charles Delmonico used to say that very few people knew how to do it. "The secret is," he said, "in putting good fresh water into a clean kettle already quite warm and setting the water to boiling quickly and then taking it right off for use in tea, coffee or other drinks before it is spoiled. To let it steam and simmer and evaporate until the good water is in the atmosphere and the lime and iron and dregs only left in the kettle is what makes a great many people sick, and it is worse than no water at all." For water boiled like this and flavored with a few drops of lemon juice Mr. Delmonico use to charge as much as for his best liquors, and he often recommended it to his customers and friends who complained of loss of appetite.

A Bold but Unprofitable Retort.

"I passed that woman in the second floor apartment downtown this afternoon with a wonderful new French hat on, and she had her chin up so high in the air she couldn't see any one she knew," said Mrs. Knox, with a tinge of resentment in her voice, as she began to pave the way to inform her husband that her own old awning was looking disgracefully shabby and ready for the church rummage sale.

"That's nothing," retorted Mr. Knox boldly. "When a woman gets a new Paris hat it generally goes to her head."

Then he suddenly remembered that he had an engagement and decided this was as good a time as any to keep it.—Kansas City Star.

Four Forts Outside Adrianople Taken

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 14.—Although no official news has been received, reports from reliable sources indicate that fighting continues both at Adrianople and Tchataldja.

In the past few days the Bulgarians have captured four important forts outside Adrianople, the last one after a particularly desperate resistance. The Turks made repeated attempts to regain possession of this fort, but without avail.

St. Luke's Church, Kingston

A meeting of St. Luke's Branch of the Laymen's Missionary Movement was held in St. Luke's Hall on Wednesday night. The inclement state of the weather kept many away. Rev. J. W. Forster spoke of the movement as a great power for good in the world today. It brought together men of various creeds to work for Christ. You do not hear men now justify division as they formerly did, advancing the foolish argument, that the more Christians were divided the more work would be done for Christ. Men now begin to realize the beauty and power of Christ's prayer for unity amongst His followers. The divisions amongst Christians are a sad blot on the Christian world. Take small place with three or four poorly paid preachers administering to small congregations. In some cases one church would hold all the people and two good men could do the Christian work. The other ministers could be sent where people are lacking Christian privileges. It is a sad thing for people to grow up in a place where the children are not baptized and where the Holy Communion is not administered, and where there is no one to look after the sick and the dying. There is a dearth of candidates for the sacred ministry amongst the various religious bodies.

The Laymen's Missionary movement can deal with this question and with God's help try and remedy the existing situation. Parents should dedicate their children like Samuel of old was dedicated to the service of the Lord. The laity should see that the clergy should receive a proper stipend. Young men could spend several years in preparation for the ministry and then receive on an average about $700 a year. A great many congregations liked zeal in the pulpit—a man who could preach flowery nothings was preferred to a man with experience because he happened to be about 60 years of age. If the laity gave, as many of the clergy do, according to the Bible rule of giving, there would be no scarcity of candidates. The Laymen's Missionary Movement should work with all the different forces that are now waging war on the White Slave Traffic for the purpose of stamping out this great evil. Young men should be trained up to be as pure as their sisters, and to treat other girls as they wished to see their sisters treated. No punishment can be too severe for those who are caught in this shameful business of selling women for the soul and body.

It being the annual meeting for the election of officers, nominations were made and the following appointed:

Hon. Presidents—Rev. R. S. Forneri, Rector and Rev. J. W. Forster.

President—W. Carroll.

Hon. Vice-Pres.—Mr. Schofield.

Vice-Pres.—W. J. Saunders.

Sec. Treas.—Mr. Jennings.

Eentertainment Committee—James Saunders, Mr. Pardoe.

Refreshment Committee—A. J. Murray, A. J. Shannon and George Compton.

Refreshments were served and Mr. Pardoe and Mr. James Saunders sang two songs.

The Rector closed the meeting with the benediction.

Mr. P. Burgess of Trenton is taking possession of our store here.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Reid of Harold visited their daughter, Mrs. L. R. Green on Sunday.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tucker, who was seriously burned last week, is still very low. Slight hopes are entertained for her recovery.

A number of our young people spent an enjoyable evening at the home of Louis R. Green on Wednesday last.

WEDDING BELLS.

FOX—MORDEN.

A very pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Morden, Brighton, Ontario, last Wednesday, when their eldest daughter, Mabel Viola, was united in marriage to Mr. Sidney H. Fox, of Big Island, Prince Edward County, by the Rev. L. Phelps, pastor, Brighton.

The marriage was celebrated in the parlor of the home beneath a beautiful floral arch. At three o'clock, to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Miss Carrie Stoneberg of Brighton, the bridal party entered the parlor. The bride was given away by her father, and looked very charming in a dress of white lace over pale blue satin, with the customary veil, and carrying a bouquet of white carnations. Mrs. G. B. Rowe of Trenton, aunt of the bride, acted as matron of honor and wore an old rose silk dress with real lace trimming and gold sequin bertha, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Little Thelma Rowe and Marjory Huff made two dainty little flower girls.

After congratulations were tendered the bride and groom the guests, numbering about fifty, were invited to the dining room, where an excellent supper was served; viands of every kind and of the finest quality were in abundance.

The presents were numerous and costly. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome pearl set necklace.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox left on the eight o'clock train for Montreal and other eastern points. The bride's travelling suit was navy blue serge with hat to match.

On their return they will take up their residence at Big Island, Prince Edward Co.

Bulgarians Now Against Armistice

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The Daily Mail's Constantinople correspondent says that there are good grounds for stating that the Bulgarians disapprove the idea of an armistice, which they regard as an excuse for delay. It is also doubted whether the Bulgarians will enter Constantinople, if peace can be arranged without it.

The Daily Mail's Vienna correspondent says that there is the best reason to believe that the proclamation of the independence of Albania is imminent.

The question of giving Salonika to Servia, adds the correspondent, was discussed at Budapest and it is understood that Austria would object to this solution although there was an understanding between the Balkan Allies that Greece should have Salonika.

A despatch from Salonika to the Post, describing the enthusiastic demonstrations by the Greek population after the occupation of the city, says the Greek troops made the most favorable impression on foreign observers.

Three Years For Stealing From Car

George F. Campbell, alias Arthur F. Spencer, who a week ago pleaded guilty to a charge of malicious damage to a railway car and stealing brass from it, was this morning brought up before Magistrate Masson for sentence. Campbell, with a young companian named Wm. Pakalla, stole a large quantity of brass from a passenger car used by the Kilties Band in their recent tour of the States. The car was brought to this city and placed at the extreme end of the Grand Junction Railway dock. The accused took off over 200 pounds of brass and sold it. Campbell was sentenced to three years in the Kingston penitentiary on both charges, the sentences to run concurrently.

In the case of Pakkalla, who is but 18 years of age, sentence was deferred until the 28th inst. in order that the accused might communicate with his parents. Mr. Anderson, County Attorney, spoke on behalf of the young man being leniently dealt with, as he had no doubt been led into the affair by Campbell, who is of more mature years.

MOLES and WARTS

Removed with MOLESOFF, without pain or danger, no matter how large or how far raised above the surface of the skin. And they will never return and no trace or scar will be left. MOLESOFF is applied directly to the MOLE OR WART, which entirely disappears in about six days, killing the germ and leaving the skin smooth and natural.

MOLESOFF is put up only in One Dollar bottles.

Each bottle is forwarded postpaid on receipt of price, is neatly packed in a plain case, accompanied by full directions, and contains enough remedy to remove eight or ten ordinary MOLES or WARTS. We sell MOLESOFF under a positive GUARANTEE if it fails to remove your MOLE or WART, we will promptly refund the dollar. Letters from personages we all know, together with much valuable information, will be mailed free upon request.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Land Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within 9 miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him, by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

MARRIAGES.

DILLNUTT—PHILLIPS — On Thursday, Nov. 7th, 1912, by the Rev. R. C. Blagrave, B.D., at Christ Church; Emily Augusta Phillips, daughter of George Calcutt of Belleville, to Henry Wm. Dullnutt, of London, England.

"KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER"

By C. J. Cutcliffe Hyne

But White-Man's-Trouble stopped, put down the yellow Gladstone bag on the baking sand, and pointed to the blue parallel tribal tattoo marks between his brows. "I Krooboy, sar,! I lib for educate as deckboy an' stan'-by-at-crane boy on steamah, sar. I no fit for stay with you, sar, if you call me impertinent savage."

Carter stared. "Good heavens, man! I didn't intend to hurt your feelings."

White-Man's-Trouble waved the bleached inside of his paw towards his master. "Oh, Carter, you apologize. Palaver set." He bowed a head which was quaintly shaved into garden patches, replaced the Gladstone bag on its central bed of wool, and once more strode cheerfully ahead.

Carter followed moodily. How had they all guessed at his admiration for Laura? He had thought it the most intimate of secrets, a delicate confidence that he had no more than dared to breathe even to his own inner consciousness. But first old Smith had blurted it out and now even his servant talked about it openly. He had no doubt whatever that the whole thing had been fully discussed over the cooking fires of the native compound at Malla-Nulla the night before.

Then somehow his eyes swung round to the dancing horizon, and the Liverpool steamer's smoke, boring up towards the North, easily ferried his thoughts across the gap which lay between that baking African beach and the cool village tucked snugly in beneath the Upper Wharfedale moors. He tried to concentrate his mind on the roses in the vicarge garden. His mother liked abundance of blooms, and cared little about the size. The Vicar admired big blooms and snipped off superfluous buds when his wife was out of the way, and during summer a gentle wrangle over the roses was quite one of the features of their quiet life.

But the roses refused to stay in the centre of the picture. Laura insisted on taking their place. Suppose he took Laura back to Wharfedale—as Mrs. George Carter. His mother, blessed woman, might be sorry, but she would accept her. He was sure of that. But his father? Almost the last piece of advice the vicar had given on parting was:

"Now, lad, remember always you are a white man, and don't get mixed up with any woman who owns a single drop of blood darker than your own. If you do, you can never come back here, and you will hate yourself all the rest of your life. Remember I held an Indian chaplaincy before I got this living, and I know what I am talkng about."

Carter shook a sudden fist at the steamer's smoke for supplying him with such a distasteful train of thought, and turned for light conversation with 'White-Man's-Trouble.' That garrulous person was quite ready to humor him in the matter.

The sea breeze died away a little after six, and they marched in breathless heat till the cool land breeze took its place, and brought them spicy odors of the inland tree. And always on one side of them the surf roared, and crashed, and creamed along the beaches.

The sun dropped to the horrizon and buried beneath it in visible inches of fall. Daylight went out. The colors were blotted from the sky, and the stars lit up, one racing another to be first. The noises from the forest changed in correspondence. From close at hand a leopard roared a greeting to the darkness.

Night was fully dressed ten minutes after the sun had vanished. It was after nine o'clock, and in the chill wet gray mist, that they reached O'Neil and Craven's factory on the banks of Smooth River.

Now nine o'clock in that lonely factories of the Coast is usually bed time, and Carter was a good deal surprised to hear the hum of a great activity pulsing out into the night: and presently, when they came within eye-range, to see the buildings aglow with lights. But there was a further surprise packed and ready for him. As they came close, a black man leaned over the end of an upraised wall of palm oil puncheons, and deliberately pointed a gun at Carter's chest.

A good deal of discussion took place afterward as to what would have been the proper procedure under the circumstances but that may conveniently be omitted from this record, which deals only with immediate history and the fact is that Carter rushed the sentry, clipped him under the ear, skinned his own knuckles, and captured the gun. White-Man's-Trouble is the meantime had with much presence of mind thrown himself on his face to avoid and discharge of pot-leg from the concealed marksmen, and was bawling lustily for 'Slade, oh Slade' to 'Stop dem dam gun-palaver.' Which noisy request presently had it wish for result.

Slade himself came out to meet them and even then his reception was sufficiently startling. "Good God!" he rapped out, "then you have escaped, too, Carter, as well as the Krooboy. What liars these niggers are! I imagined that your—that parts of you were up at Okky City by now.

I suppose they have scuppered poor old Swizzle-Stick Smith all right, though? Did he have a bad time of it? Why? he said as he came nearer, and saw his caller's spruce get up, 'you don't look as if you had been scrapping much. Or bolting very hard, either," he added as an afterthought.

"Unless," said Carter, "you are referring to an invasion by the Turks, or the French, or the Men in the Moon, I have not a notion what you are talking about."

"Haven't you come from Malla-Nulla?"

'Left there about a quarter to four.'

"And hasn't it been sacked?"

"It was sitting down by the beach looking just as white hot as usual, and no more, when I left."

"What about the King of Okky, then?"

"He was there at Malla-Nulla, filling a very big chair on the verandah."

"And there has been no raid? I dont undrestand."

'The King of Okky," said Carter patiently, "has raided our factory to the extent of one case of fizz, of which Mr. Smith says he drank half but barring that, and about six gallons of other mixed drinks, I didn't see him get much out of us. He certainly was threatening to stop the roads when I left, but I think that was all gas. He only wanted to stick Mr. Smith for more drinks."

"He's stopped the roads right enough.'

"Not he," said Carter cheerfully.

The old man thought a minute and then, "Come along with me," he said. "I guess ocular demonstration is about the only thing that will convince you that there is mischief in the air, and that that crafty old devil of a king is at the bottom of it." He led to a factory outbuilding, threw open a door, and scraped a match. "Look in there."

Carter did so, and promptly felt sick, and came out. But he got another light and returned resolutely to the inspection. "Two, four, seven. And all killed the same way. I say that's pretty ghastly."

"Isn't it? They were all fine healthy Krooboys when they marched out of here this morning, carrying up some salt bags to our subfactory on the Okky road. There were some bits of feathers and a rag or two strung up alongside the path and they didn't notice them, or did not tumble to it that they were juju. Consequently they are now what you see. This is the King of Okky's way of hinting that the road is stopped. That pot-legged must have been fired at note more than a two-yard range. Some of the poor devils are regularly blown inside out. Here, come into the open again."

'Thanks, you neednt give me the details over again. I saw all that for myself."

'That infernal King must have sent of his messengers the very moment after you had that turn-up with him about Laura—which, by the way, a thing that I personally shall never forget, so you can draw on me over that down to the last breeches button. You see Okky City is closer in at the back here, but its quite five hours' march further from Malla-Nulla. So the treacherous old brute stayed where he was, tippling with Smith, in the pious hope of keeping you all quiet till his men could come down and blot you all out. How you got through is a marvel to me. They must have reckoned on getting you as you walked here along the beach or they'd never have let you slip away. You and your boy have certainly escaped by the skin of your teetht. It's a moral certainty that they've got old Smith."

"I don't think so. But I shall go back and see.'

"Rubbish! We may be able to hold out here, and perhaps will not be attacked at all when they find out we're ready for them. But it's perfectly impossible for you to get back along the beach to Malla-Nulla. Come up into the house and we will find you a bite of something to eat and Laura shall mix you a whiskey and soda. We've a bit of the last steamer's ice still left, and you shall have it."

"Thanks. I'll come up and see Miss Slade, but I shall start back for Malla-Nulla in half an hour from now. And if, as you prophesy, I don't land, well, at any rate, I shall have done my best to get there."

"It is very nice of you, and all that, but do you think old Smith 's worth it?"

'Carter laughed. "Mr. Smith is a rough handful but he is a good sort and I like him. Besides he happens to be a gentleman."

"Or was one once. A lot of us on the Coast were gentlemen originally. I come of good people myself, and was at Eaton and Jesus, although I don't suppose you'h have guessed it if I had not told you. But you see Nature built me a cutaway chin and I couldn't hold down a job at home. However, come in, and we will scratch you up some chop. Here Laura, I've brought you a caller."

HOW BLOOD IS MADE.

The liquids and the digested foods in the alimentary canal pass through the wall of the canal into the blood. This process is called absorption and takes place chiefly from the small intestine. After absorption the blood carries the food through the body, and each cell takes from the blood the food it needs. A pure glyceric extract made from bloodroot, mandrake, stone, queen's root and golden seal and sold by druggists for the past forty years under the name of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, gives uniformly excellent results as a tonic to help in the assimilation of the food and in the absorption by the blood of the food it requires. Eradicate the poisons from the blood with this alterative extract which does not shrink the white blood corpuscles, because containing no alcohol or other injurious ingredients. Thus the body can be built up—strong to resist disease. This is a tonic taken from Nature's garden that builds up those weakened by disease.

Dr. Pierce, founder of the Invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, N.Y., has received many letters similar to the following:

F. R. MUNRO, Esq.

MR. FRED R. MUNRO, of Paradise, N. S., writes: "I take great pleasure in writing you as regards my case and its cure. In September I was taken with Typhoid Fever, which put me in a dreadful condition. I was weak, run down, nervous and was reduced to a mere skeleton. I had tried most everything I could get but nothing did me any good until, at last, I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and 'Pleasant Pellets,' which I did. Before I had used one bottle I saw a great improvement and when I had used this treatment two months, using only a few vials of 'Pleasant Pellets,' I returned to perfect health. I cannot find words to express my thankfulness for this wonderful medicine. I advise all sufferers to write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, as he cures when others fail."

Who's that knocking at the kitchen door ?

Why, it's Mrs. Edwards round again—she's always ready to lend a hand with the cooking. That nourishing home-made Irish soup of hers is a real dish-of-all-work—useful in a hundred ways.

It's fine and tasty by itself. It's the secret of a savoury sauce. It's the making of a made dish. And, to bring out the goodness of your own soup and gravies and hashes and meat puddings there's nothing like adding

EDWARDS' DESICCATED SOUPS

Prime beef and the finest of Irish vegetables—that's what Mrs. Edwards puts in it; nothing but what's pure and delicious. As there is no strong added flavouring, it will blend perfectly with any other soup. Remember to boil it for half an hour.

5c. per packet.

Edwards' Desiccated Soups are made in three varieties—Brown, Tomato, White. The Brown variety is a thick, nourishing soup prepared from beef and fresh vegetables. The other two are purely vegetable soups.

J. F. Wills Is a Candidate For Mayor of City

Previous to the adjournment of the Board of Education last evening, Mr. J. F. Wills, K. C., requested that the members attend the next meeting of the Board as it was an important matter to him. At the solicitation of many friends he had consented to be a candidate for the Mayoralty next year. It felt that it would be rather hard for him to tear himself away from the Board with which he had been identified for a number of years, but it was his intention to do so. The reason he desired the members at the next meeting was in order that his resignation might be accepted.

Trenton to Have New Opera House

Mr. Robert Weller, of Toronto, formerly of Trenton, commenced the erection of an opera house on Monday last. He has purchased the S. B. McClung property which is centrally located fronting on Ridgway street, opposite Dr. Crowe's office.

Trentonians are delighted. Mr. Weller had almost made up his mind to build an opera house in Oshawa, but after carefully looking into the possibilities of the two towns, he decided on Trenton.

Bloomfield Man Injured in Runaway

Mr. James Swetman of Bloomfield, while returning home from Picton this week, was the victim of a very painful accident. In passing Mr. L. Jackson, the two vehicles collided. Mr. Swetman's horse sprang to a runaway pace, throwing Mr. Swetmon out and breaking three of his ribs, the horse finishing by breaking its own leg.—Picton Gazette.

Madoc Young Man Breaks His Arm

On Saturday evening Earl Tumelty suffered the misfortune of having his arm broken in two places, above and below the elbow, and the elbow put out of joint. With another lad, he was wrestling in the band stand on St. Lawrence Street and caught his foot in a hole in the flooring just as the two fell. The weight of both fell on Earl's arm, causing the above-mentioned painful accident.

Wolves Killing Sheep

Word from Marmora says: Farmers in Stanhope township report the loss of sheep by wolves. It is contended also that the Government should raise the bounty for killing wolves, the reasons being given that whereas some years ago the Government bounty on a wolfskin was $15, the person who killed the wolf being allowed to keep the hide, which is worth about $5, the trappper now gets only $15 bounty and has to pay fifty cents cost of making an affidavit. The Government requires that the hide be sent to Toronto, and trappers claim that it is often lost in transit and they get nothing for it.

British Steamer Has Been Seized

LONDON, Nov. 15.—A. Lloyd's despatch from Athens says that the British steamer Annetta, from Philadelphia, October 22, and New York October 35, has been captured. The steamer is said to have a cargo of war stores for Albania.

A New York despatch says:—

The steamer Annetta which is reported in a message from Athens to have been seized for carrying contraband cargo, is the property of the Donald Steamship Company. John A. Donald, of that company, said last night that the Annetta carried a cargo of coal consigned to the Green Government when she left here and was scheduled to return with a cargo of currants for the Thanksgiving trade. Mr. Donald received a telegram from Captain Durie reporting the steamer's arrival at Piraeus, the port of Athens, in which it was stated that the cargo of coal had been discharged. Mr. Donald could not understand how or why the vessell had been seized.

BOARD OF EDUCATION IN REGULAR SESSION LAST NIGHT

At a regular meeting of the Board of Education, held last evening, considerable business was transacted.

The members present were: Messrs. C. M. Reid, chairman; F. C. Sharpe, W. C. Reid, F. E. O'Flynn, J. F. Wills, S. S. Moore, F. S. Deacon, Col. Ponton, B. Mallory, E. T. Ketcheson.

Mr. R. McCormick, representing the Atlas School Supply Company, exhibited a number of improved maps, and explained them. He endeavored to impress upon the Board the necessity of procuring a set.

The matter of purchasing was left in abeyance for the time being.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Principal Wilkin of Queen Victoria School, asked permission to form a cadet corps in that school.

From Principal McLauarin of the High School, in reference to certain text books being used.

From Principal Mott of Queen Alexandra School, asking permission to to hang in the school, pictures of Hon. Dr. Pyne, the members of the Board for 1912, the chairman of the Board and Mr. O'Flynn, chairman of the school.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson wrote in reference to insurance upon the boilers in the new schools.

REPORTS.

The Printing and Supplies Committee recommended the procuring of certain necessary supplies for the High School.

Inspector H. J. Clarke presented his monthly report, which showed that the registration and daily average for the past month was as follows:

	Number Registered	Daily Attendance
Victoria	452	395
Alexandra . . .	337	293
Octavia St. . . .	314	286
Grier St. . . .	170	152
Total	1273	1126

During the month 65 scholars were admitted for the first time.

Mr. B. Mallory reported verbally in reference to having a place provided for the storing of arms and accoutrements for the High School cadets. Some cupboards are needed to be constructed.—Referred to the Board.

Mr. McLachlan addressed the Board in reference to a detachment of Boy Scouts being organized in this city. It was intended to have a meeting in the city on the 25th inst. at which the movement would be fully explained by a competent person. He (the speaker) desired to have the co-operation of the Board in this matter.

On motion the Board went into Committee of the Whole on reports, Mr. Wills in the chair.

CADET CORPS.

The communication of Mr. Wilkin was considered.

Col. Ponton moved, seconded by Mr. O'Flynn, that the Board concur in the request of Mr. Wilkin, Principal of Queen Victoria School for the formation of a cadet corps, also that a penny savings bank be established in the school.—Carried.

INSURANCE.

A communication from Mr. H. F. Ketcheson re insurance on the steam boilers in the new schools was referred to the chairmen of the Finance and the Sites, Buildings and Repairs Committees to report upon.

The communication of Principal Mott of Queen Alexandra School re pictures for that school was referred to the Printing and Supplies Committee.

The Finance Committee recommended the payment of the following accounts:—

THOUSAND MEN ON STRIKE IN MINES AT PORCUPINE

PORCUPINE, Nov. 15.—Porcupine miners, by their vote of yesterday, decided for a general strike throughout the camp, and walked out this morning. The trouble arose over the wages paid the men, and before Monday it is likely that the strike will reach every mine in the camp.

The origin of the strike dates back several weeks when the Pearl Lake mines including the McEnany, McIntyre, Pearl Lake, Jupiter, Plenaurum, and Vipond, gave notice that a general cut would be made in all wages, of twenty-five cents a day. This went to a conciliation board, but the board could not agree and the vote was the result.

The strike will effect over a thousand men. The last strike of importance in the district was in Cobalt in July, 1907.

Montenegrins Again Assaulting Scutari

RIEKA, Montenegro, Nov. 15.—The Montenegrin forces have renewed their attack on the Turkish positions around Scutari, which was suspended a few days ago because of the terrible weather. Heavy guns have arrived and the bombardment began early this morning.

The fire was concentrated on the Turkish batteries and did great damage. A few projectiles passed over the town, throwing the inhabitants into a panic.

The Montenegrin commander-in-chief ordered the infantry to advance in the afternoon against the Turkish fortifications on the Heights of Bardanjolt. In spite of a hail of Turkish shells the Montentgrins advanced across the Kiri river and before evening drove the Turks from the trenches and forced them to retire on the town.

Tragedy Follows Unique Row in Sign Language

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 15.—After an argument in the sign language, Martin Garvick, a deaf mute, shot and fatally wounded his wife, also deaf, and then shot and probably mortally wounded himself last evening at the home of Mrs. E. J. Hartfell, a sister of Mrs. Garvick, who was a witness to the tragedy.

The Garvicks had been married eght years, but recently had been living apart.

Shannonville Man Buys Fine Horse

The horse market is still dull, demand being very slight except for city horses. S. Brown's shipment of registerd Clydesdale colts and fillies, which are an exceptionally well-bred lot, will be sold on Tuesday next at the regular sale. This shipment of Clydesdales should prove a credit to the fortunate purchasers and do much to improve the breed in the districts into which they go. Among this consignment was the grandly bred stallion Yorick by Ryecroft and grandson of the world's champion, Everlasting. He was sold to John J. Fitzgerald of Shannonville, Ont., for $1,500 and ought to give a great impetus to Clydesdale breeding in Hastings county. Mr. Brown also has for sale the imported Hackney stallion, De Wilton, a chestnut six-year-old, by Drumlanraig. At all future auctions Messrs. Burns & Sheppard have announced that all city horses will be sold first.—Toronto World, Nov. 9.

War Practically Ended

Intelligencer Special.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 16.—The general opinion here is that the war is practically ended. An armstice will probably be arranged with the Bulgarians with the next few days, and negotiations for peace will follow.

Champion Jack Johnson Bailed

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—After a week's sojourn behind the bars, Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion, was released from the Cook county jail to-day.

When Federal Judge Carpenter convened court, Attorney W. G. Anderson, for the negro, presented the names of Mathew S. Baldwin, a Chicago real estate man, and Mrs. Tiny Johnson, the prisoner's mother, as surety for the $30,000 bail demanded by Judge Landis. Assistant United States District Attorney Parkin declared the new bond to be satisfactory, and Judge Carpenter immediately ordered Johnson's release.

Parkin declared he would ask no further bond from the negro on the later indictments returned, charging violation of the Mann White Slave act.

Life Crushed Out

NIAGARA FALLS, Nov. 15—Orrin Morris, 31 years of age, a brakeman employed by the Erie Railroad company, met a terrible death in the local yards of the company early this morning. He was jolted from a car and caught between the bumpers, and dragged along for a considerable distance before his life was crushed out. His body was frightfully mangled. Morris recently gave up a lucrative position in Buffalo to please his wife, who wanted to leave Niagara Falls. They had been married less than two years, and an infant child survives.

Murder and Suicide In The Street

ST. JEAN, Man., Nov. 15.—On Thursday this town was the scene of a murder and suicide, following the arrest and conviction for indecent offences of Adrian Richard, aged 16. M. D Moller, a Dane, met the lad on the street and fired two bullets into him, killing him instantly. He then placed the revolver to his own head, death resulting in a few minutes.

THREE BOYS ARRESTED

Toronto Youths Charged With Shooting Macedonian.

Solution of Murderous Attack on Taley Bosheff Last Monday Comes In Confession of Benjamin Gilbert, W. Cook and Lyman Atwell That Inspired by Dime Novels They Started Out on a Jesse James Career.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—The arrest yesterday of three boys—Benjamin Gilbert, 10 Trefan street, 15 years of age; Willie Cook, 130 Berkeley street, 12 years of age, and Lyman Atwell, 4 Ashby place, 13 years of age—by Detectives Mulholland, Levitt and Elliott, throws light on one of the most daring holdups ever perpetrated in Toronto, namely, the shooting, with intent to kill, of Taley Bosheff, the Macedonian, on Nov. 11 in broad daylight.

In this case the police department had very little to work upon, and the arrests made yesterday therefore came as a surprise. Cook, the youngest boy, was arrested in the east end yesterday morning by three detectives, but Gilbert was not brought in until nine o'clock last night, the arrest having been made at his home. At 10.30 Detective Levitt brought in the third boy, Atwell.

Last night the first two lads to be arrested were brought down to the detective office and submitted to an examination by Inspector Kennedy. After going over the story of the shooting, the boys told of where the revolver was hidden, and at the end of the examination they directed the detectives in the search for the firearm, which the boys say they found at the rear of a house in Amelia street. The boys walked out of the detective office with tears in their eyes.

The boys give dime novels as the cause of their downfall. Gilbert, it is said, saturated himself with this kind of literature, and having the imagination of a poet, he conceived the idea of working wonders in Jesse James style. He has confessed to the shooting, while the other two are held as accomplices.

On Nov. 11, it is alleged that the boys entered a cottage at 11 Erin street, where they stole four razors and two watches. So far the sun seemed to shine upon them and they were pleased with their luck. From 11 Erin street, they went up to No. 25, went in by a side door and saw Bosheff sitting in a chair in the kitchen. Gilbert's hand slipped to his pocket, and in another instant a bullet had entered Bosheff' body just above the heart. The boys then slipped out by the side door, and Mrs. Annie Cook, 58 Oak street, was the only one to see their escape.

One redeeming feature of the holdup is the fact that the bullet has not caused death. Bosheff is still in St. Michael's Hospital, but his recovery is certain. It is said that a number of Macedonians were living with Bosheff, and it is alleged that the shot was fired with the intention of robbing the man after he had fallen. As it was, the man had very little money when found.

It is also alleged that not long ago boys broke into three houses of business, one in East Queen street, another in Frances street, and the third near the corner of Bay and Front streets. The three boys were taken down to the shelter about midnight last night, and spent the night there. To-day they come up for trial.

Saskatchewan Legislation.

Regina, Sask., Nov. 16.—J. A. Sheppard, M.P.P., of Moose Jaw county, was yesterday chosen Speaker of the Legislature.

The speech from the throne foreshadowed bills making provision for direct legislation, consolidated schools, the abolition of local improvement districts, for the regulation and control of loan companies, for adopting a better system of municipal assessment, and to place the rural telephone companies on a sounder financial basis.

Action will also be taken relative to the inability to secure a conference with the Federal Government toward a transfer of land and natural resources to the province.

Storm Ties Up River Traffic.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—The storm which has raged throughout Quebec province for the past 24 hours has effectually tied up navigation on the St. Lawrence. The Allan Line Pretorian, which was due here Wednesday, has not arirved, being compelled to anchor near Three Rivers. It was decided not to start the Allan liner Tunisian yesterday morning, owing to the storm.

The suspension of work in the harbor comes at a bad time, as the lake steamers are pouring in huge cargoes of grain, which, if not quickly exported will cause a big congestion.

Liberal Supports Coderre.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—Mayor Rutherford, of Westmount, who had been talked of as the Liberal candidate to oppose Hon. Louis Coderre in Hochelaga county, has come forward publicly in support of Mr. Coderre and the Government's naval policy.

"I am a Liberal," he said, "but I am a Britisher, and I believe that all true British Canadians should stand together in favor of a reasonable naval policy."

Companies Case To Go Over.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—When the companies case comes before the Supreme Court on the 26th inst. a formal motion will be made on behalf of the provinces to postpone the hearing with the view of reconstructing the questions submitted in the reference. It is understood that the Government will not object, and, consequently the case will likely go over.

Christmas Giving Causes Trouble

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Mrs. August Belmont, Miss Anne Morgan and other prominent New York women, are among the founders of a new organization, "The Society for the Prevention of Useless Giving."

The society will do its utmost to abolish the "exchange" system of Christmas giving among those who can ill afford it.

"Instead of being a season of true and simple pleasure-seeking," said Mrs. Belmont, "Christmas has come to be a serious burden to thousands of working girls. The Christmas giving custom may have originated in the mind of some kind person, but it results in trouble and hurt feelings."

THE TIME TO SAVE YOUR HAIR IS NOW

Newbro's Herpicide is the one remedy on your druggist's shelves which may always be depended upon.

Instead of complaining to your friends and mourning over yous loss of hair, call upon your local druggist and purchase a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide.

It is the first and original remedy, guaranteed to kill dandruff, stop itching and check falling hair.

You can save the hair you have much easier than you can grow new. The time to save your hair is now. The remedy for doing it is Newbro's Herpicide.

The same opportunity never comes but once.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications may be obtained at good barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

Send 10c. in postage for sample and book on "The Care of the Hair," to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

Sergeant-Major Gets Commission

KINGSTON, Nov. 15.—Sergt-Major W. H. Gimblett, W. O., regimental sergeant-major of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery Brigade, has received official word from Ottawa of his appointment as a commissioned officer in the Royal Canadian Artillery. He has been granted the rank of lieutenant and appointed district officer, to complete establishment. This position was formerly held by the late Lieut. J. O'Grady.

Lieut. Gimblett's appointment comes partially as a reward after nearly 25 years' continuous service in the artillery, in which he has shown marked ability.

General Escaped Turks' Clutches

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 15.—Special—An official statement issued this evening on the basis of a telegram received from the Turkish commander at Scutari reports a defeat of the Montenegrin troops in the vicinity of Scutari. The commandant's telegram says:—

"We have beaten seven battalions of Montegrins who were advancing on the heights of Karkarik. The enemy fled beyond the Boyana River, abandoning 100 of their dead, many rifles and a quantity of ammuniton. We captured quantity of baggage belonging to General Tchorevitch and his tent sword and uniform."

Denies Massacres

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 15.—Special—An official statement issued to-night denounces as infamous the charge that the Ottoman troops have been guilty of massacres, pillage and other excesses. The denial is supported by statements of seven foreign war correspondents, who say they saw nothing of this character, but on the contrary, that everywhere the Turkish troops displayed extreme moderation in their dealings with Christian non-combatants.

North Atlantic Treaty Complete

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Secretary of State Knox and Ambassador Bryce today exchanged ratifications of the treaty signed July 7 last, providing for an adjustment between Great Britain and United States of the North Atlantic Fisheries controversy. The convention already has been approved by the senate. In substance it prescribes the boundary waters, and provides a commission to pass upon the reasonableness of local Canadian and Newfoundland fisheries regulations.

MESSAGE IN LATCHKEY

Boy Scout Walks 630 Miles to Carry Message for Lord Mayor

A Boy Scout named Robert Harrison, a member of the 4th Poplar Baden-Powell Troop, was presented to the Lord Mayor of London at the Mansion House in recognition of his courage and endurance in walking from London to Inverness, 630 miles, in thirty-nine days.

Harrison delivered to the Lord Lieutenant of Inverness, a message of greeting from the Lord Mayor. Harrison set out with only a day's food and no money, and worked for his board and lodging day by day until he got to his destination. His kit weighed 39 lbs. He was delayed nine days owing to the heavy rains. On the other days, all of which were wet, he walked about twenty-one miles a day.

The Lord Mayor's message was hidden in the barrel of a lacthkey, the head of which unscrewed. One night, when he slept in a barn, rats ran over him and gnawed away the strap of his camera. On another occasion he walked fourteen miles through a Scotch forest without meeting a human being and lost his way.

HAIR HEALTH

If You Have Scalp or Hair Trouble Take Advantage of This Offer.

We could not afford to so strongly endorse Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and continue to sell it as we do, if it did not do all we claim it will. Should our enthusiasm carry us away, and Rexall "93" Hair Tonic not give entire satisfaction to the users, they would lose faith in us and our statements, and in consequence our business prestige would suffer.

We assure you if your hair is beginning to unnaturally fall out or if you have any scalp trouble, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is without question the best remedy we know of to eradicate dandruff, stimulate hair growth and prevent premature baldness.

Our faith in Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is so strong that we ask you to try it on our positive guarantee that your money will be cheerfully refunded if it does not do as we claim. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. J. S. McKeown.

SOLICITING ALMS

Daniel Collins, an Irishman was arrested last night on a charge of vagrancy. Before the Magistrate this morning Collins admitted he was a little full, and might have solicited alms. He was remanded to jail until Friday next.

ACCUSED OF THEFT

Thomas Sheridan, alias Robert Blair a middle aged man this morning appeared before Magistrate Masson to answer to two charges, namely drunkenness and the theft of an overcoat. To the former charge he pleaded guilty and was fined $3 but denied the theft of the coat. It is alleged that the accused yesterday afternoon took an overcoat from in front of David Dimes second hand store on Front Street. As the Crown was not perpared to proceed with this charge the case was enlarged until Friday next. In the meantime Sheridan will remain in jail.

PASTOR'S THIRD CALL

At the Official Board Meeting of the Holloway St. Church last night, Rev. A. R. Sanderson, the pastor, received an unanimous invitation to return for the third year, which he accepted in the same kindly way in which it was given. Mr. A. E. Bailey was not overlooked as Mr. B. Quincey moved a resolution expressing the appreciation of the Board, and the church, of the splendid culmination of the re-building, which Mr. Bailey had so wisely and energetically superintended. It was seconded by Mr. T. Blanchard and carried by a standing vote. Mr. Bailey made a suitable reply.

STOLE FROM BOARDERS

On Thursday morning at an early hour a young man named Harry Whittier left the city presumably for Uncle Sam's Domains. Some time after he left, Ernest Belanger and Delbert Shook who boarded at the same place as Whittier missed some articles and it was surmised that Whittier had taken them. Belanger missed a lady's gold watch, $3 in money and some articles of clothing. Shook was minus a fancy vest. The police were notified of the affair and by using the telegraph service were able to have Whittier apprehended at Windsor as he was about to cross over the line. Sergt. Naphin left last evening to bring Whittier back to the city to answer the charge of theft.

ENTERTAINED FRIENDS

Mrs. H. H. Deyman, entertained a few friends at a social gathering at her home on Moira Street, last evening, proving herself a most charming hostess. A unique programme had been arranged, and all present entered into the spirit of the evening, resulting in a most enjoyable time. At a seasonable hour a light repast was served, after which various games were placed in progress to enliven the evening's entertainment. Those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Deyman, Mrs. McCurdy, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. R. McCurdy, Mr. and Mrs. S. McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Timmerman, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Walmsley, Miss Cook, Miss Moore, Miss Sills, Miss Waterbury, Miss Forester; Messrs. Peake, Mastin, Andrews, Daniels and Macfarlane.

Surgeons Cut Out Fat and Nail on Bones

Delegates to the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America, in session at the Waldorf Astoria, witnessed some remarkable exhibitions of surgical skill yesterday. At the Woman's Hospital, Dr. Le Roy Brount and Dr. R. M. Rawle demonstrated a cure for obesity by cutting out the adipose tissues. Through an eliptical incision a wedge-shaped piece of the tissue was removed and the incision sewed up. The result was an appreciable reduction in the patient's waist measurement.

Over in the Kings County Hospital Dr. A. T. Bristow nailed together a man's hip bone. A long wire nail, sterilized, of course, was used.—N.Y. American, Nov. 13.

Dr. W. J. Gibson, of this city is in attendance at the above Congress.

Fighting Begins Around Monastir

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Fighting has commenced at Monistar, according to an Uskup despatch to the Daily Mail. The Servian forces marching through Albania to the Adriatic are meeting with little opposition, many places being occupied without firing a shot.

A Belgrade despatch states that another Turkish force hoisted the white flag and surrendered to the Servian cavalry near Monastir yesterday.

The Servians attacked the Ottoman troops at Dobromira about five miles to the northeast of Monastir, and in spite of a galling fire, succeeded in dislodging the Turkish advance posts from their strongly entrenched positions.

The Turks retreated and were pursued as far as the village of Morabi, close to Monastir, by the Servians who surrounded them there and poured in such a heavy fire that the Turkish officers in command decided that it was useless to continue fighting, and ordered his men to throw down their arms.

The advance of the Servian army has been temporarily stopped by dense fogs.

China May Fight Czar

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—A special despatch to the Chicago Daily News from Canton, China, says: "Canton has an army ready to be of service if called to arms against the Russians in Mongolia. The political parties here have united in calling a mass meeting for November 17th to arouse enthusiasm and prepare for a life and death struggle with Russia, in order to retain Mongolia in the Republic."

Unknown Visitors Buried in Old Mine

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 15.—Unknown persons, four of them, visitors including two young women, are buried in the vast workings of the Old Horn silver mine at Frisco, Beaver county, Utah. The visitors are uninjured on the 300-foot level. The fate of eight miners in the lower levels is uncertain.

BALLROOM AT BALMORAL.

Has Lost the "Horrible Tartan of Victorian Times."

The ballroom at Balmoral, where the usual tenants' dance took place recently, is a very different place from what it was in the reign of the late Queen Victoria, when, not to put too fine a point on it, it presented a most dingy appearance.

The walls in those days were hung with what The Gentlewoman calls "a horrible tartan" designed by the late Prince Consort. Queen Victoria would never allow it to be removed, though often urged to do so by the late King Edward. So soon as the late King came to the throne he had the whole of these hangings removed and the place thoroughly redecorated.

It was his desire to give an annual ball here to the dwellers in the surrounding residences, but, for one reason or another, this was never carried into effect, and the tenants' ball is the only one that now takes place when the court is in residence at Balmoral, though those living at the house are allowed to have a dance here either at Christmas or the New Year.

The Prince of Wales, Prince Albert and Princess Mary are each skilled at dancing either reel or strathspey, and were delighted to have an opportunity of showing their prowess in this direction to the King and Queen the other day.

The hall and the smoking room at Balmoral are deeply interesting, if only for the number of heads of stags that adorn the walls, each shot by a distinguished sportsman. There are to be seen here, for example, a fine "Royal" brought down by the late Czar of Russia, and another by the present Czar, while two or three heads are here that fell before the rifle of the Kaiser.

The head of the first stag shot by the present King is in close proximity to that shot by the late Duke of Clarence and Avondale. Those at the castle are now looking forward to a very interesting addition to these trophies in the shape of the first stag shot by Prince Henry, the third son of their Majesties. This will in due course be placed alongside those which represent the maiden efforts of the Prince of Wales and Prince Albert.

Curiously enough in the whole of his collection, which extends to some hundreds of heads, there is not one that has fallen before the gun of a lady shot. Indeed Queen Victoria had very strong views about ladies figuring in the shooting field, and these are maintained by the present Queen.

SHEEP INDUSTRY HAS RENEWED INTEREST

Results are already being shown, following the vigorous campaign prosecuted by Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, during the past summer, in the interests of the sheep industry. Mr. Burrell found when he took office that this industry which had been steadily declining in Canada, had been largely neglected by the department. Little effort had been made to improve conditions or stir up interest. So rapidly has the industry been declining that there are actually less sheep in Canada to-day than twenty years ago, and this despite the fact that agriculture generally has made enormous strides. In 1881 the total sheep population of Canada was given as 3,048,678, in 1901 2,510,239, and 1911 it had furthered declined nearly another half million to 2,106,000. Many reasons are assigned for this falling off, but at the bottom of them all is the fact that the industry was not given the encouragement it should have and no effort was ever made to improve marketing conditions.

The first thing Mr. Burrell did was to secure the co-operation of the Dominion Sheep Breeders' Association, and with their assistance a careful survey of the possibilities of sheep-raising has been made in the provinces of British Columbia, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. It was found that in the Maritime provinces where the soil and climate are particularly adapted to the growing of sheep, there was a general and admitted need of new blood to rejuvenate the stock. The farm flocks had, as it were, "run to seed"; and in recognition of the demand it was decided that the introduction of high class breeding rams, together with a limited number of grade ewes, would meet the most urgent requirements of that part of the Dominion.

In British Columbia there appeared a definite lack of flock material, the ewe stock of the province not having increased in proportion to the demand for home-grown mutton and lamb. The markets of Victoria and Vancouver have developed in the farmers a faith in sheep raising, and their desire to increase and improve their flocks became at once evident to those in charge of the work.

In order to meet the demand, both east and west, a large number of carefully selected grade ewes and pure bred rams were purchased in Ontario and shipped to the four provinces during the month of September. A few Cheviot rams were purchased in the United States to meet the special requirements of the hill country in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

These sheep, amounting practically to eighteen hundred head, including both rams and ewes, were sold during the current month by public auction at the following points:—British Columbia: Victoria, New Westminster and Vernon; Nova Scotia: Yarmouth, Bridgewater, Inverness, North Sydney and Truro; New Brunswick: Moncton, Sussex, St. Stephen, Fredericton and Bathurst; Prince Edward Island: Summerside, Hunter River, Mt. Stewart and Melville. The sales were well attended and proved very satisfactory.

In order to make the sales more effective, Mr. Burrell is arranging to carry on an educational campaign in the districts where the sheep have been sold and in other localities where the people manifest any definite interest in the industry. Arrangements have already been made for this work through Dr. S. F. Tolmie, representative of the live stock branch in British Columbia, and through the appointment of James A. Telfer to act as an instructor in sheep breeding and management in the Maritime Provinces.

DOYON SCORED BY A LIBERAL PAPER

The Montreal Daily Herald (Lib.) puts the ban upon the candidacy of Leopold Doyon in the riding of Hochelaga after the following manner, which is most timely and deserving. The Herald says:

Mr. Leopold Doyon, candidate in Hochelaga against Hon. Louis Coderre, in his published programme, and in his speeches, does not advance any reasons which would justify his election at this juncture. While not conceding that he is a Nationalist, he is credited by most of the newspapers with being one, and the support given him by Le Devoir, together with his attitude on the naval question, would indicate a very close alliance between him and that somewhat nebulous organization. However that may be, he is so outspokenly opposed to any participation by Canada in the naval defence of the Dominion and of the Empire, that he cannot expect to receive support from any citizens who believe that we have a duty to perform in this respect. If he is correctly reported he proclaims his belief that Canada's obligations extend only to the military defence of her territory, forgetting that adequate defence implies naval defence, against any form of which he appears to be violently opposed.

In another of his platform announcements Mr. Doyon puts himself on record as favoring a policy that is not only impracticable, but is so opposed to common sense as to provoke the ridicule of the very wage earners for whom it is obviously intended as a bait. This proposition is that legislation be passed forcing railway and other corporations to promote their own employees to higher positions, as these become vacant, instead of bringing in men from outside. Mr. Doyon, in making this proposal, shows a surprising lack of knowledge of the business principles which govern large industrial concerns. The one object of the managers of these enterprises is to secure efficiency, and they are ever on the lookout to find, in the ranks of their own employees, or elsewhere, men who give promise of becoming capable executive officers. Mr. Doyon seems to think that the managers ignore their own good men, and go afield for others less competent. Even if this were true, it is not a matter in which the Government can interfere, but it is not true, and its acceptance by Mr. Doyon supplies in itself sufficient proof that that gentleman is not entitled to the suffrage of the intelligent electors of Hochelaga.

The Liberals of the riding, acting on the advice of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, have refrained from putting a candidate in the field. Mr. Doyon's candidature, if not actually farcial and factious, cannot commend itself to the Liberals. Yet it is the duty of every voter to vote, because there must be a choice between the two men, or between their platforms. Under the circumstances it would appear to be the duty of the Liberals in Hochelaga to support Mr. Coderre as the candidate best qualified to represent the division.

AN UNNECESSARY EVIL

At Pembroke, Thursday, Chancellor Sir John Boyd discharged Peter Collins, accused of manslaughter. The case resulted from the death, following a street fight at Cobden, of Grant Appleby.

A review of the evidence taken in this case, shows that the real cause of the quarrel between the young men was the use of bad language by one in speaking of a young lady who was a mutual friend. Offended at the girl, one man insulted her in the hearing of the other. The remark was promptly resented, and out of the heat of a wordy quarrel arose the blows of the fatal fight.

There is a lesson to be learned from the death of Grant Appleby, resulting as it did from a breaking out of feelings fanned into flame by the use of bad language. Sir John Boyd, in addressing the jury, remarked upon expressions such as had been heard in the evidence. These were useless burdens on our conversation, he said, and their use therefore, was a piece of inxplicable foolishness.

The habit of swearing appears to be growing. The remarks of young men and older men on the street are often offensive. Yet it is such cases as that just ended at Pembroke with the acquittal of Peter Collins that show an apparently harmless and only disgusting habit, as both disgusting and dangerous.

JAPAN A LEADER

Another new thing has come out of Japan. Those who picture that country as self centered and lost in heathenism are not well informed. A movement has been started in Tokio which may have an influence extending far beyond the boundaries of Japan. It is called the Concordia movement, and is designed to draw the peoples of the world into closer sympathy. Let us describe it as it is described by Mr. Jinzo Naruse, president of the Women's University, Tokio, who is now in the United States to arouse the interest of Americans in the movement. He says:

"The Concordia movement is founded upon the belief, first, that different religions, different creeds and different ethical teachings, though conflicting in minor points are similar to one another in essential points, such as seeking after truth and higher spiritual life; secondly, that, though mankind is divided into different races, still there is a common ground upon which each race can understand and sympathize with the characteristics of others; thirdly, though the nations of the world today seem to have conflicting interests on various problems they can find, if they try thoroughly to understand one another, the way by which each nation might promote its welfare and prosperity without coming to actual clash with others. The movement is an attempt to discover and promote the point of concord between different religions, different races and different nations."

Mr. Naruse observes that people quarrel on matters of small importance and forget greater common interests. He would have them stop these useless conflicts and urge mankind on the common road of enlightenment and prosperity. The Association Concordia has been organized in Japan, and since Mr. Naruse came to the United States he has enlisted the sympathy of the leading university presidents and many other prominent scholars and thinkers. The association will publish its own organ for studies and investigations, and enter the field of publication and lecturing to promote the cause for which it has been organized.

Stenographer's Body Was Found In Bath Tub

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—The result of the autopsy on the body of Miss Marjorie G. Powers, the 26-year-old stenographer who was found dead in a bathtub in a west end hotel yesterday, was waited on with interest by police officals to-day. Medical Examiner McGrath said that until an autospy had been performed, it could not be determined whether death was due to drowning. No poison or drugs were discovered in the room occupied by the young woman. Arthur T. Cummings, head of a large produce firm in this city, who was registered at this hotel spent the night in a police station. He appeared confident of being released after Dr. Magrath had made his report and declared he was absolutely innocent of any connection with the death of Miss Powers.

Ice is Bearer of Typhoid Germs

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 15.—Mrs. Richard Phillips, wife of a prominent Hartford broker, died at the home of relatives in Naugatuck from typhoid fever after a week's illness. Mrs. Phillips and her two daughters, Emma, aged 11, and Gertrude, aged 19, were stricken with typhoid fever, as were 15 other guests at a wedding recently held in this city on Oct. 8.

Dr. C. P. Botsford, superintendent of the board of health, today announced that as a result of his investigations he was certain that the guests contracted the disease from drinking punch which contained contaminated ice. All the 18 guests are seriously ill.

Mr. Phillips was in London on a business trip when his family was taken sick. He is now on his way across the ocean and knows nothing of his wife's death or daughters' illness.

Wilson is Likely To Change Views

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Folks in Washington smiled when they read that Governor Wilson intends to keep open house for visitors after March 4. Many Democrats even shook their heads and said they feared such statements would rise up to plague the New Jersey governor after he arrives at the White House.

"Why," said one Democrat, "I can see in my mind's eye a line of Democratic office seekers extending from the White House for a block or two down Pennsylvania avenue, each armed with a clipping, telling him how Mr. Wilson had said he was going to keep open house.

"Oh, no, Governor Wilson's intention may be in that direction now, but you'll see a change of mind before he has been in Washington long."

LABOR DISPUTES.

The reliminary estimate of the number of labor disputes in October, issued by the Department of Labor, shows that the number of strikes was about twice as great as that recorded during the same month of last year, although there was no material change from conditions during the previous month of the present year. The dispute of coal miners on Vancouver Island continued throughout October, this being the only dispute in which a great number of men were involved. About twenty-one disputes were in existence, ten of which commenced during the month. Upwards of 4,300 employes were involved in these disputes which caused a loss of about 98,000 working days.

When any one says to a wise man, "Isn't that the best way?" he always says "Yes."

It is folly to offer a wise man a penny for his thoughts.

ROXBOROUGH PLACE, CALGARY

It gives the writer a real journalistic thrill of satisfaction to be in a position to say a word or two about the property being offered by F. C. Lowes & Company, of Calgary, known as Roxborough Place. The fact that "Freddy" Lowes is using the columns of SATURDAY NIGHT as an advertising medium at the present time, to bring this property before the attention of readers, is perhaps the only reason I know of why this little appreciation should possibly not be written. However, this journal is compelled so often to speak disrespectfully, not to say slightingly, of many advertised western and eastern real estate propositions, that the opportunity to say something pleasant about a property which needs no recommendation to those who have seen it, is welcomed. Roxborough Place is the title, and it is a name that means something, whereas seven out of ten (possibly eight out of ten) of the slippery subdivisions are parading under titles which have no relation in meaning to the real character of the stuff exploited. What F. C. Lowes did was to select a large tract which seemed somehow to have been overlooked by the other developers, and convert it through the expenditure of a great deal of money, into a residential area just across the river from Calgary itself. There is a bridge over the river, and Roxborough Place is easy of access. Before long, street cars will run right past the property. The tract was graded, concrete walks were laid, shade trees were planted, water and sewers have been put in I imagine; natural difficulties in the way of two hills on two sides of the property were simply hydraulicked out of their forbiddingness, and are now terraced into added beauties of the district. The situation of this subdivision—to call it such—is admirable, and I imagine it will sell like hot cakes. It ought to, for in the writer's somewhat extended tour through the west, no more legitimate bit of real estate engineering was encountered. This may sound like so much paid-for advertising, but it is nothing of the sort. For the past three months a large halftone showing the original tract, the drawing of how Roxborough Place would look after "treatment" and including a photograph of Mr. Lowes has been held in these offices merely awaiting an opportunity to be inserted into the news pages. Said cut was so large, however, that it has so far been impossible to use it. I don't know what prices will be asked for this beautiful bit of Calgary, but if they run it as I think they will, I would call this choice buying—about as good as the best.

NOTE--The above article was written by Mr. Norman Harris, Financial Editor of Toronto Saturday Night, and it appeared in the Nov. 2nd issue of that publication. The article is of exceptional importance, as Mr. Harris has been particularly active in criticising Western investments, and is the terror of all sub-dividers.

F. C. Lowes & Co., owners of Roxborough Place, are also owners of the choicest subdivisions in Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge, and will be pleased to submit full particulars to anyone interested in making an investment in High Class Western Real Estate.

FORMER PENNANT RACES

The International or Eastern League pennant has now been captured four times by the Torontos, first in 1887, again in 1902, five years later in 1907, and once more, after a lapse of another five years, in 1912. Below is given the standing of the various clubs composing the circuit at the wind-up of the three previous seasons in which Toronto topped the list:—

International League, 1887, Cushman, manager.

Toronto	.648	Jersey City	.494
Buffalo	.611	Rochester	.485
Syracuse	.604	Wilkes-Barre	.257
Newark	.592	Scranton	.260
Hamilton	.589	Binghampton	.204

Eastern League, 1902, Ed. Barrow, manager.

Toronto	.669	Providence	.507
Buffalo	.654	Montreal	.426
Jersey City	.525	Rochester	.424
Worcester	.548	Newark	.282

Eastern League, 1907, Kelley, manager.

Toronto	.619	Jersey City	.504
Buffalo	.554	Baltimore	.496
Providence	.534	Rochester	.436
Newark	.504	Montreal	.349

HOCKEY

OTTAWA, Nov. 15.—While the Toronto Hockey Club declare that they are not likely to pay $500 for Ridpath, and also state that they don't have to, because "Riddy" is to be bench manager only and will not play, the Ottawas are out after the money.

One of the Ottawa executive denied that the local club had turned over Ridpath to the Torontos either by verbal agreement or any other way, and declared that the former Ottawa star would never play with Percy Quinn's club until the money was paid over.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—There is a possibility that "Newsy" Lalonde will not be found playing hockey this winter, according to reports from Cornwall. One of his close friends there is authority for the statement that if Lalonde does not arrive at a satisfactory arrangement with Kennedy of the Canadiens, with whom he has been dickering, that he will not play at all this season, but remain at his home in Cornwall. It is expected that Lalonde will go to Montreal tomorrow to see Mr. Kennedy, when an arrangement may be concluded.

GALT, Nov. 15.—A company has been formed in Preston for the purpose of erecting a new hockey and skating rink in that town, and the citizens are enthusiastic over the prospects of good sport during the coming winter. The new rink, which is to be erected on Lowther street, near the centre of the town, is to be 200 feet long and 100 feet wide, with an ice surface of 81 feet by 185 feet. The building is to be constructed of cement and metal, and will accommodate 5,000 people, with a seating capacity for half that number. The roof will be supported on arches, and there will be no posts to interfere with the open space of the interior. Over a hundred 100-candle-power lights will be installed for lighting purposes. The cost will be about $10,000, and work will be commenced immediately, as it is to be completed by December 20th.

Preston has long been famed as a hockey town, and an effort will be made to land the senior O. H. A. championship with a fast team to mark the erection of the new rink.

"Corky" Fowler, the clever point player of the Winnipeg Victoria team, Allan Cup holders, will probably be the only absentee from the champions.

The Vancouver Hockey League will consist of only three clubs — Rowing Club, Columbias and Bankers. The Vancouver A. C. will not have a team this winter. The games are played on Frank Patrick's artificial ice rink, and he has promised the league that if the clubs show sufficient class he will advance $500 towards the expenses of the winning team to Winnipeg, on a jaunt after the Allan Cup, representing the championship of Canada.

OTTAWA, Nov. 15.—Amateur hockey will again cut a wide swath in Ottawa during the coming season. Last year the games in the Ottawa section of the Interprovincial Union attracted sometimes larger crowds than those in the professional circuit.

Few of the amateur stars of the capital have decided to turn professional, and it is almost certain now that Eddie Gerard, the crack centre half of the Ottawa Football club, will remain an amateur. Dufour, Broadbent, Fournier and other local amateurs were claimed this week by Bruce Ridpath of the Torontos, but they declined to sign contracts. The footballers are working with might and main to keep Gerard for next year's Rugby team.

The decision of the National Hockey Association to retain the six-man game has hit the professional club a hard blow locally. The general trend of opinion is that the N. H. A. is being run by the Montreal and Quebec clubs, and the Ottawas, and that the Torontos joined the combine by voting with them to retain the six-man game, which almost killed professional hockey in these parts last winter.

The Ottawas will not try to keep Bruce Ridpath out of the game, though they claim a moral hold on him. They realize that they would have no chance of carrying their cause in the committee room.

GENERAL SPORTS.

OTTAWA, Nov. 15.—Dr. Eugene Galvin is back in town, not as coach of the football club, but as promoter of a new artificial ice arena to be erected in Buffalo, N. Y., next summer. Practically all the capital has been subscribed by Buffalo and Toronto people, and it is stated that Charlie Richardson, the well-known Cobalt mining man, has a big interest in it.

Buffalo like Syracuse and other northern American cities, has the hokey bug, and Dr. Galvin thinks the project will be a great success.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—It transpired at the annual meeting of the National Amateur Athletic Association, held Thursday night, that the National Lacrosse Club, who finished second in the Dominion Lacrosse Union this year, made nearly $1,900 on the season.

Both the secretary and treasurer's reports were adopted unanimously, the latter showing the club to have a balance of over $3,000. The election of officers resulted as follows:

Honorary President—G. A. Lecours.
President—A. L. Caron.
Vice-President—W. Labrecque.
Hon. Secretary—R. Dumouchel.
Hon. Treasurer—G. N. O. Ledoux.
Directors—P. Brouillette, J. Cardinal, T. Girard, N. Duquette and L. Provost.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 15.—T. D. Sullivan's Caugh Hill captured the all-aged champion yesterday from a field of high-class sprinters. The favorite, Grover Hughes, carrying top weight, was never dangerous. He broke slowly and could not improve his position. The good three-year-old Acton set a fast pace to the last sixteenth, where the winner caught him.

The hurdle race on the grass was a series of accidents. Five of the eight starters fell. The favorite, Jesuit, was in front all the way, and won, pulled up by an eighth of a mile. Dr. Heard finished third, but ran out of the course. Jockeys J. Lynch and W. Allen were shaken up.

In the Atlantic Hotel Purse Amalfi beat Joe Diebold in a driving finish. The latter set a fast pace, but tired in the closing strides.

Jockey Joe Byrne, who was injured at Baltimore, arrived yesterday. The boy's head is still bandaged, and he will not be in the saddle for some time. McTaggart has gone to New York to interview August Belmont. It is said the boy will again ride for him if he gets reinstated.

The heavy rain packed the track down and made it faster than Wednesday. Sixteen layers were on. Tarts and Jesuit were the only winning choices. Jockey J. Loftus is due here tomorrow.

While being exercised after the races Wednesday evening, Tweedeedle stumbled, and, unseating his rider, fell and broke one of his legs. Triton, which was working behind him, stumbled over the prostrate rider and horse and was led off the track in a lame condition. Neither of the boys were hurt, but Tweedeedle was destroyed.

A man can have short legs and still carry his head high.

Probably there is method in a lazy man's madness. He may not care to take chances of injuring his health by working between meals.

Woman Dies: Men Flee

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—An automobile containing four men and a woman, tumbled backwards over a 150-foot precipice at the edge of the Highland Boulevard in Brooklyn just before midnight last night, killing the woman, Mrs. Andrew Reid, and seriously injuring two of the men.

The men, who declined to give their names, explained that the chauffeur had lost control of his car while attempting to turn it around on a narrow roadway.

Mrs. Reid was the wife of a Brooklyn manufacturer. Her husband found her body lying in a suburban police station shortly after midnight. He declared that he knew nothing about the ride and was unacquainted with the two injured men who are held on a charge of homicide. After making this statement to the police, Reid collapsed.

The two uninjured male passengers in the wrecked machine took to their heels after the accident and escaped. Mrs. Reid's jewelry, valued at $6,000, was found in the pockets of the injured men.

Preacher is Held For Wife's Death

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 11.—W. L. Beers, a preacher, of Wakarusa, near here, is under arrest pending investigation of the death of his wife. It is charged that in a quarrel with her at a hotel here last night he choked her to death by pushing her false teeth down her throat.

Beers and his wife separated a month ago after a quarrel, in which the three children figured. The minister came here to attempt a reconciliation with his wife, who had come here to live. The quarrel was renewed and the tragedy resulted.

C.N.R. Lays Plans For an Outlet on the Atlantic.

Mackenzie and Mann Road Will Ask For Permission to Extend Their Line Through Quebec to the Border in Such a Way as to Get Running Rights Over the Boston & Maine to the Seaboard.

Montreal, Nov. 16—While the Grand Trunk has abruptly suspended building operations on its proposed line through New England to Boston, the Canadian Northern Railway is to apply to Parliament this session for permission to extend its line through the Province of Quebec in such a way as to give them a connection that will permit of running rights over the Boston & Maine to Boston, and thus an Atlantic outlet.

Although it was believed that the C.N.R. would apply at this session for running rights over the Intercolonial they have apparently decided that the New England route will suit their purpose.

The facilities enabling the C.N.R. to connect with the port of Boston are to be brought about in the following way: The C.N.R. to apply for permission to construct lines of railway: (1) From a point in Montreal, crossing the St. Lawrence River opposite the city, and from thence to Levis (opposite Quebec). (2) "From a point on the last mentioned line east of the St. Lawrence River to a point at or near St. Rosalie Junction, thence to Sherbrooke or Lennoxville."

This means that the C.N.R. will construct from Montreal to Levis, with a branch running down from St. Hyacinthe to Sherbrooke. It is at Sherbrooke that the connection with Boston would be made over the Boston & Maine to the Atlantic.

Should the C.N.R. desire a Canadian outlet on the Atlantic it will be in a position to connect with St. John, N.B., by making an arrangement for running rights over the C.P.R. from Sherbrooke to that port.

An official of the Canadian Northern said that this does not mean that the C.N.R. may not eventually secure rights over the Government road.

Unfair Capture.

New York, Nov. 16.—President E. J. Chamberlin of the Grand Trunk issued a statement last night in which he characterizes as "harsh and unfair" the statement issued by Herbert A. Rice and William C. Bliss, after a conference between him and these Rhode Island officials yesterday over the Southern New England railroad situation.

He denies that he is "disgusted" with New England. He said in alluding to their attitude over the suspension of work on the road's projected extensions in New England, that he had used the word "disappointed."

"I know the people of New England too well and admire them too well to express disgust. I said that I was disappointed with the people of Rhode Island for the action they had taken in connection with the Southern New England matter," he said. "In answer to an urgent request that I state definitely when work would be resumed I replied to them that it depended on weather conditions and our board of directors."

Hunting Dog Wears Spectacles.

Lead Hill, Ark., Nov. 16.—Minnesota Fanny, a thoroughbred English setter, a granddaughter of the famous Joe Cummins, wears spectacles. She is owned by Troy Cantrell, of this city, and was fitted out this week with "specs" by an oculist, who found that she was suffering from astigmatism. She is the best hunting dog in Northwest Arkansas.

The dog's "specs" are held in place by straps and appear much like goggles. The lenses are protected by protruding rims of metal. The dog hunts like an old-timer with them on.

Controllers Favor Grant.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—The Board of Control yesterday favorably reported to the Council the submission of a bylaw to the ratepayers authorizing a civic grant of $200,000 toward the million-dollar King Edward Memorial fund for consumptives which is being raised by the National Sanitarium Association.

Presented Engraving of Chieftain.

Guelph, Nov. 16.—A very fine steel engraving of the late Sir John A. Macdonald now adorns the wall of the Borden Club. It is the gift of Mrs. William Bell of this city. The presentation was made on behalf of Mrs. Bell by Mr. H. J. B. Leadley at the executive committee meeting held last night.

Major Hall at Guelph.

Guelph, Nov. 16.—Major Gordon Hall, an English military officer, at present on the staff at Wolseley Barracks, London, Ont., arrived in the city Thursday evening, and for the next few days will devote his time to instructing the officers of the 30th Regiment.

Should Destroy Diseased Trees.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—The Ontario Fruit Growers' Association held their concluding meeting at Victoria Hall yesterday morning. The following statistical report regarding the peach situation was presented by W. E. Biggar of Winona.

"I have figures from seven townships and there are 15,200 diseased trees reported. When all the reports are in there will be about 25,000 trees on the list. This will be about half of last year's number. I cannot urge too strongly the destruction of all diseased trees."

He advocated the appointment of inspectors by the department. "Under the present system," he said, "one man received only 25 cents a day for his work."

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Higher, Chicago Lower—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Wheat today for the third day in succession broke the low price record of the season. The fine outlook for the winter crop was the last straw on holders. Weakness ruled at the close, with the market 3-4c to 1c under last night. Corn showed a net less of 5-8c to 1 1-8c. Oats finished unchanged to 1-4c to 3-8c off, and provisions varying from 10 1-2c decline to same as 24 hours before.

The Liverpool market closed today ⅛d to ½d higher on wheat, and ¼d higher on corn. Berlin wheat closed ½c higher; Buda Pest, ⅜c lower.

HARD TERMS IMPOSED

Bulgaria Tells Basis on Which She Will Give Peace.

Turkish Army at Tchatalja Must Surrender and Withdraw, Territory Must Be Given Up and War Indemnity Must Be Paid, Declares Victorious State—Cholera's Ravages May Hasten End of War.

London, Nov. 61.—Bulgaria's terms of peace to Turkey as reported at Vienna and sent from that city by the correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, consist of seven stipulations. Included in the first stipulation is the surrender of the Tchatalja army and its withdrawal, guarded by Bulgarians.

The second provides for the evacuation by the Turks of Adrianople, Scutari, Monastir, and Janina.

The third calls for payment of a war indemnity.

The fourth demands the surrender of conquered territory.

The fifth calls for internationalization of Constantinople.

The sixth provides for the opening of the Dardanelles and the manning of Salonika, a free port.

Since Bulgaria already has expressed a willingness to leave the status of the Dardanelles and Constantinople to the powers, says the correspondent, the fifth and sixth clauses of the terms as reported here are improbable.

The rigidity of the censorship permitting no news to come from the front, the scene of the fighting in the Balkans is more perplexing than ever to-day.

Various reports have drifted in, however, among them that Adrianople had fallen, that the Bulgarians had captured Hademkeui, the headquarters of the Turkish commander-in-chief, that Nazim Pasha, the Turkish generalissimo, had capitulated, and that the Bulgarians, either by sea or land, had reached the vicinity of Kilios, on the Black Sea coast, a short distance from Constantinople. These reports are still without confirmation.

A vague despatch is published at Sofia stating that six forts along the Tchatalja line, have been captured after heavy sacrifices on the part of the Bulgarians.

The Vienna Richsport reports go to show that the Bulgarians are having no easy task. Nothing is known as to whether or not the battle continues. The British Government has received no news from the seat of war for some days.

What perhaps is of graver import than the progress of hostilities in southeastern Europe, however, is the revelation of the tremendous ravages cholera is making, not only among the destitute refugees, who daily are arriving in thousands at Constantinople, but among the Turkish troops at Tchatalja. It is supposed that this danger well might suffice to give the Bulgarian commanders a pause and induce the Bulgarian Government to arrange an armistice and negotiate peace, since all the practical objects for which the war was undertaken already have been secured, and therefore it is useless to run the risk of an epidemic of cholera in the Bulgarian army for the sake of a formal entry into Constantinople, to avoid which it is believed Turkey is ready to agree to almost any terms.

A significant article appears in the Bulgarian Government organ Miru. It declares that peace is imminent and holds out the olive branch to Turkey to enter into a good understanding with the Balkan league.

A Constantinople despatch to The Cologne Gazette, declares that Bulgaria has abandoned her intention to enter Constantinople, being thus advised by Russia and Great Britain. Altogether, although the report that an armistice already has been arranged, has not been confirmed, all indications point in that direction, and it may be supposed that the terrible conditions of famine and destitution prevailing among the refugees in the neighborhood of Constantinople, which are calculated to provide a hotbed for the spread of cholera, may have had something to do with Bulgaria's decision.

Fund For War Sufferers.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—George Farmer, a single man, about 35 years of age, who resides at 257 Macdonnel avenue, Parkdale, and works at the Cowan Chocolate Works, fell from the ground floor to the cellar in his home last night about 12 o'clock and fractured his skull. He may recover.

TWO HUGE DAMS.

Capitalists Have Scheme To Develop Power on St. Lawrence.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—The damming of the St. Lawrence at two points between Montreal and Prescott is proposed in two gigantic power schemes, now before the Borden Government for consideration.

The Long Sault Development Co., the Aluminum Co. of America, the Eastern Canada Power Co., Sir Max Aitken and D. Lorne McGibbon, and other eminent Montreal, English and United States capitalists, are laying plans for the damming of the St. Lawrence above the Long Sault Rapids from the American to the Canadian side, and of developing 800,000 electrical horsepower. The second scheme involves the bringing of the level of the St. Lawrence in the vicinity of Coteau, Cedar, Split Rock and Cascade Rapids to the level of the water in Lake St. Francis, which would provide a head of 85 feet and dam the water Cascade Point to the Cornwall Canal.

The different islands down the river, for a distance of over fifteen miles, would be connected with its retaining dams. The whole of the rapids division would be eliminated and part of the Soulanges Canal would be flooded. The electrical energy to be generated is estimated at one million horsepower. This latter scheme is even more gigantic in magnitude than the first.

Two years ago the scheme of the Long Sault Development Co. was rejected by the late Government because of opposition of the Conservation Commission of Canada and big Montreal shipping interests. It also met with strong opposition in the United States, and the scheme is now pending before Congress.

The latter and greater proposition has never been considered by the present Government, but a charter was granted to D. Lorne McGibbon by Hon. F. D. Monk early last winter. Just what attitude the Government will take on the matter it is impossible to say.

Mr. Borden, while leader of the Opposition, strongly opposed the Long Sault Development project, taking the ground that no such huge power monopolies should be permitted, and that the development of Canada's water power should be undertaken for the benefit of the people, and not for private interests.

Officers Elected.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—The annual election of officers of the Ontario Horticultural Association was the important feature of the closing session of the convention in Foresters Hall yesterday. Rev. A. H. Scott of Perth was re-elected president by acclamation.

The following other officers were chosen for the coming year: Vice-president, J. P. Jaffray, Galt; treasurer, H. B. Cowan, Peterboro; secretary and editor, G. Lockie Wilson, Toronto; directors, F. B. Bowden, Vankleek Hill; J. H. Moorecraft, Bowmanville; G. H. Doherty, Toronto; G. H. Bennett, Barrie; J. O. McCullough, Hamilton; Thomas Cotille, Clinton; R. W. Brooks, Brantford; Dr. Bennett, St. Thomas, W. W. Gammage, London, and H. Mackay, Windsor.

TORONTO'S NEW HARBOR.

Big Nineteen Million Dollar Scheme Is Announced.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—By the expenditure of more than $19,000,000 the Toronto harbor commissioners propose to turn the wide expanse of water fronting on Toronto, which at present is useless for shipping, into one of the finest harbors on the American continent.

Out of all this will spring a veritable garden of Eden, because a great deal of attention has been devoted to the aesthetic side. Beautiful driveways and bridges will be built, extending from the easterly limits of the city to the Humber Bay, right along the water's edge, except where in the case of necessity it has been found advisable to divert the boulevard to the centre it has been found advisable to divert the boulevard to the island for bridge purposes across the western gap.

In addition to the driveway will be the magnificent park system, extending the whole of the aforementioned distance; a protected waterway, with an average width of 600 feet between the shore and the structure will extend the whole distance.

The commercial side of the new harbor scheme has been considered the most important, and the city will ultimately possess a modern harbor, with a uniform depth which will accommodate vessels with a draught of 24 feet; permanent docks, equipped with up-to-date freight sheds, warehouses and appliances; an industrial area containing 644 area of available land in Ashbridge's Bay district, capable of accommodating factory buildings, with a value of $30,000,000, which will produce a ground rent of half a million dollars a year; a ship canal 6,800 feet long, 400 feet wide and 24 feet deep, with a turning basin 1,000 feet square, and six miles of quays.

The necessary finances for this stupendous scheme have already been provided, so that the work will not be hampered on this account. The Government has given $6,123,284.66. The rest will be made up by the commission from its assets.

GETS ALBERT MEDAL.

Lord Strathcona's Services Recognized In London.

London, Nov. 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At the Royal Society of Arts last evening Lord Sanderson, on behalf of the Duke of Connaught, who is president of the society, presented Lord Strathcona with the society's Albert medal for services in improving railway communication and developing the resources and commerce of Canada and for services to the Empire in general.

In making the presentation, Lord Sanderson read a message from the Duke of Connaught expressing the great satisfaction it afforded his highness in having been able to select him for the distinguished honor. During his term of office he had had special opportunities of realizing the great services the high commissioner has rendered in the industrial and commercial progress of the Empire. His highness rejoiced to add yet another mark of appreciation of his long, valuable career of usefulness.

Lord Strathcona, in the course of a brief acknowledgment, said he deeply appreciated the gracious message his royal highness had sent and that he regarded it as a signal honor to be numbered among the distinguished men upon whom the medal had been conferred, recalling that the first recipient was Rowland Hill.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

The Nobel prize for literature was awarded yesterday to Gerhart Hauptmann, the German author and dramatist. He lives in Berlin.

Almost instant death overtook Thomas Zink and James Smith at the blast furnaces of the Lake Superior Corporation at the Soo yesterday.

After an argument in the sign language, Martin Garvick, a deaf mute, of Minneapolis, shot and fatally wounded his wife, also deaf, and then shot himself.

The C.P.R. and its freight handlers in the steamship warehouses at St. John, N.B., have come to a wage agreement at 25 cents an hour. Formerly they received 17 cents.

The Canadian Porcelain Co., a concern capitalized at $3,000,000, has purchased a 20-acre site in West Hamilton. A $600,000 plant will be erected and five hundred men employed.

Japs Get Naval Base.

New York, Nov. 16.—A despatch to The American from Mexico City says: Foiled in its first attempt to procure a base for naval operations on the eastern shore of the Pacific Ocean by the purchase of land for a coaling station on Magdalena Bay, Lower California, the Japanese Government has been, for more than two months, busy with secret negotiations looking to the purchase of 500 acres of land on the shores of Manzanillo Harbor, the most important port of Mexico's Pacific mainland coast.

By providing great sums for development, the Japanese Government has obtained from President Madero the valuable grant desired.

Presbyterian Synod Protests.

Brandon, Man., Nov. 16.—The Presbyterian synod meeting adopted a resolution calling for the dominance of the English language in all public schools of the province, compulsory education, and Governmental inspection of private institutions.

After a discussion of the recent bye-election in Macdonald, the synod adopted, unanimously, a resolution moved by Rev. M. C. Rumball, of Morden, and Rev. C. W. Gordon, Winnipeg, deploring the "recent evidence of deliberate prostitution of justice to personal or party ends and the trampling under foot sacred rights of citizens to individual liberty and fair trial."

Agujardi's Voice.

The record soprano voice was Lucrezia Agujardi's. This lady, who died in 1783, could easily strike C in altissimo.

Chinese Pirates.

As long ago as the thirteenth century the island of Hongkong was a piratical stronghold, and for centuries the Chinese government was unable to drive the sea robbers out. All craft passing what is now Hongkong harbor were compelled to pay tribute. The higher elevations of the island served as lookout stations, and no boat that approached was permitted to leave until it had paid toll.

Prince Edward Man Has Large Yield of Wheat

(Swift-Current Sun)

Messrs. Dunn and Bell, of Waldrick, Sask., reports having threshed for Sherman Scott of Waldrick, Sask., the best crop in twenty-seven seasons threshings in North Dakota, Minnesota, and in the Northwest, having threshed 4,300 bushels of wheat from 85 acres, making a yield of 50 1-2 bushels to the acre. The wheat is "Marquis" and good sample No. 1. Sherman Scott is a son of Henry G. Scott of Bernie, Man., and a former Prince Edward boy.

HAVE YOU MADE YOUR WILL?
IF NOT, YOUR FAMILY IS UNPROTECTED.
No Lawyer Is Necessary.

For thirty-five cents you can make your will and be absolutely assured that it is perfectly legal in every respect, and that it cannot be broken by anyone, no matter how he may try.

Delay in making your will is an injustice to those whom you wish to be taken care of. The courts are full of will cases whereby legal technicality or the absence of a will the people who inherit property are almost the last ones that the deceased would want to share in it.

Life is Very Uncertain.

So if you wish to assure those who are nearest and dearest to you of receiving all that you wish them to have, instead of paying $5 to $10 to a lawyer, send 35 cents for a Bax Legal Will Form, which also includes a specimen will for your guidance. Fill it out according to simple instructions and you may be perfectly sure that it will stand any legal test and cannot be broken under any circumstances.

Why not send today, now, while it is on your mind, to the Bax Will Form Co., Room 214, 280 College street, Toronto.

Sold by all druggists and stationers, and may also be obtained from Mr. C. B. Scantlebury and Mr. G. L. Sills, Belleville.

Deseronto News Items

(From the Post)

Wedding bells are soon to ring again in town.—Post.

Evidently Deseronto does not enjoy the experience of wedding bells ringing very often.

Mrs. Louis Roy and family have gone to Prince Rupert to join Mr. Roy, who has located there.

Mr. Aldrich, of Hamilton, who was connected with the local branch of the Bank of Montreal for several years, was renewing old acquaintances in town this week.

The Picot Club, of which Miss Laura Moore is a member gave her a kitchen shower one evening last week, in view of her approaching marriage.

Mr. Robert Galt, of Michael's Bay, Manitoulin Bay, has been in Deseronto visiting his relatives. It is twenty-six years since Mr. Gault has resided here, but he still has a very kindly feeling in his heart for the old town.

On Saturday farmers on the market were asking—and were getting it too—$1 per bushel for potatoes, while potatoes could be secured at the stores for 80c per bushel. According to the Toronto 'World' potatoes sold on Friday on the St. Lawrence market in Toronto, at 50c and 60c per bushel. In view of the latter two facts it is difficult to see where our market people find justification in demanding a figure far in advance of what potatoes can be secured in Toronto.

From the Belleville "Intelligencer," Truly, there are more people in this litle city who think they can sing and can't than any town in the province. It is very evident the good editor of the "Intelligencer" is not the leader of a church choir else he would not have dared to speak as quoted above. Editor 'Post'.

The members of the Editor's church choir are among those to whom reference was made as creditable performers.

An Interesting City Legal Case

Soule v. Belleville.—This was an issue referred to His Honor Judge Deroche by Lewis Soule and the City of Belleville by consent and was tried yesterday. It arose out of a determination of the City Council to open Lingham street in response to a petition of a number of citizens, owing to the rapid building up of that part of the city. It was contended on behalf of Lewis Soule that he and his predecessors in title had been in possession of a parcel of land shown on the city maps as Lingham street, running south from Pine street for over 46 years, and therefore was entitled to that land by possession, and this was supported by a number of witnesses. It was contended on behalf of the city that this land had become a highway by dedication; also under the Survey's Act; that the Statute of Limitations did not apply to highways and in any event the evidence of possession was not sufficient. After hearing evidence and argument, His Honor reserved judgment. J. F. Wills, K.C., for Lewis Soule; W. C. Mikel for the city.

Board of Education In Session Last Night

The recommendation of the School Inspector in reference to procuring more seats was referred to the Printing and Supplies Committee.

The Inspector recommended for the approval of the Board the procuring of certain raised maps, which he had examined and found most suitable. On motion the matter was referred to the Printing and Supplies Committee.

Mr. Mallory moved, seconded by Mr. Moore, that the bell purchased in connection with St. Thomas' Hall from St. Thomas' Church, be donated to the church.—Carried.

Mr. O'Flynn moved, seconded by Mr. Mallory, that cabinets for storing the arms for the High School cadets be made and that permission be given for the cadets to drill either in the brick or stone buildings.—Carried.

The Committee rose and reported. The report was received and adopted.

MOTIONS.

Mr. O'Flynn moved, seconded by Mr. Wills, that the Finance Committee present at the next meeting of the Board a financial statement showing receipts and expenditures, also the appropriations to the various committes and what said committees have expended.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Deacon, seconded by Col. Ponton, that, whereas G. S. Tickell & Sons have kindly presented the Board of Education with several pictures for our High and Public Schools that this Board appreciates the generous spirit displayed and tenders the donors many thanks, and that a copy of this resolution be sent by the Secretary to the donors.

Mr. Wills stated that the pictures presented by Tickell & Sons were fine pictures, and are much appreciated.

The motion prevailed.

Board adjourned.

Home Cure For Eczema

Eczema sufferers who have never tried the oil of wintergreen compound (known as D. D. D. Prescription), are now enabled to get a trial bottle of this recognized remedy at only 25 cents. This is a special offer, this compound having sold for years in $1.00 bottles only.

The oil of wintergreen as compounded with thymol and other healing ingredients in D.D.D. Prescription is now recognized by scientists in both America and Europe. It takes away the itch the very moment it is washed into the skin and the cures all seem to be permanent. At any rate we ASSURE you that the itch is allayed INSTANTLY; we know this and VOUCH for it. Hence, we specially urge a trial—now—while the patient can get a bottle at only 25 cents. Be sure to ask for the oil as properly compounded under the name of D.D.D. Prescription. J. S. McKeown, Druggist.

Mohammedans Have Revolted

PEKIN, China, Nov. 15—The Governor of Sinkiang province telegraphs to the authorities here that 5,000 Mohammedans at Urumchi have revolted. He demands immediate reinforcements as this movement is feared to be part of a general uprising.

Reports from other Mohammedan centres show signs of unrest and it is thought that there will be a serious revolt unless the Government takes strong action. If the Mohammedans are successful in their first outbreak the revolution may spread as it did in the Mohammedan rebellion of 1861, which lasted seventeen years and cost 5,000.000 lives.

THE HIGH COURT

Bell v. McMillan—This was an interesting case in which Perry A. Bell sued an Ottawa jeweler for injuries sustained through his falling from a ladder which he was using when repairing and oiling machinery in the Ottawa establishment. Plaintiff claimed that the ladder was old and defective. Defendant's evidence showed that the plaintiff had been warned not to use the ladder, and that there was another good one available. Plaintiff had two operations in the hospital from injuries sustained by the fall. Judgment reserved. E. Guss Porter, K.C., for plaintiff; W. B. Northrup, K.C. for defendant.

McDonald, Thrasher Co. v. Losie & Williams—In this action the plaintiffs moved for judgment against two of the defendants who did not appear, and for transfer of action from Belleville to Toronto for trial as against Defendant Losie. W. N. Ponton, K.C., for plaintiff; McDonald, Tilley & Co., for defendant.

INDIAN JURISDICTION.

At Deseronto before Police Magistrate Bedford a case involving some nice points of law was tried on Wednesday. The Indian Agent, Stanton, on behalf of the Department laid an information against Chief David Joe Brant for disturbing the proceedings at a meeting of the Council of Chiefs and refusing to recognize the validity of his alleged dismissal. The defendant's counsel, W. N. Ponton, K.C., raised the point that his Honor Judge Deroche had held that the Indian Reserve being set apart and being exempt from taxation, road work, etc., was not technically within the judicial limits of Tyendinaga, and also that the Indians, being wards of the Government were not subject to the bylaws of the Township of Tyendinaga, and that procedure was provided by the Indian Act itself, which had not been followed. The Police Magistrate dismissed the summons and discharged the defendant.

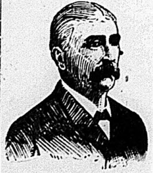
WILLIAMS IS RETIRING

SIR RALPH WILL SPEND REMAINING YEARS IN LEISURE.

Widely Known Proconsul of Empire Who Has Just Resigned the Governorship of Newfoundland, Has Held Many Exciting Posts Since He Left College—Has Lived Mostly In Various Parts of Africa.

Sir Ralph Williams, who has resigned as governor of Newfoundland, is a colonial administrator of rather wide experience. During his diplomatic career he has held down some exciting jobs. He has been Treasurer of Gibraltar, sitting on the gate to the East; he has been Secretary at Barbados, and seen a quarter of the population swept off the earth by a hurricane; he has ruled Boers and blacks in Africa. It was in Africa that he learned his profession; Africa, which gave lessons to men like Cromer, Milner and the late Cecil Rhodes. His notions of the colonies as a young chap he got through extensive travel than from monocled opinions in the Oxford Union.



SIR RALPH WILLIAMS.

Sir Ralph first saw the dark continent in 1882, while lion-hunting with his wife, the first white woman to view Victoria Falls. About this time the British Government called him in to advise Sir Charles Warren in a territorial dispute in a district called Bechuanaland. So satisfactory was his counsel that he was made Resident Agent in the South African Republic. With the exception of brief residences at near points, Sir Ralph has lived in Africa. In 1901 he was made Governor of Bechuanaland, with C.M.C. as a decoration of merit. He assisted in throwing oil on the water in South Africa after the war.

In 1909, Sir Ralph was appointed Governor of Newfoundland. He is 64 years of age and is retiring from the public service that he may spend in leisure the years that yet remain of a strenuous career.

Cyprus Is British.

Cyprus, which wishes to unite with Greece, is only nominally Turkish, for, since 1878, the whole of the administrative power has been wielded by Great Britain. The island was captured by the Turks in 1670, when Selim II., with an army of 60,000 conquered it.

"KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER"

By C. J. Cutcliffe Hyne

'I feel this dreadful trouble is all my fault," said the girl as they came in the lamplit room. "If you had been killed Mr. Carter, I should have looked upon myself as a murderess."

"My dear Miss Slade, you really must not worry about a matter you have no concern in whatever. The whole thing is a 'regrettable incident'—I believe that is the proper term—that Mr. Smith has told me has been brewing for years. It is all due to the drop in the price of palm oil on the Liverpool market, which means that we white traders pay less for it on the Coast here and so there's less for the King of Okky to squeeze out of them as they march through his territory from the hinterland. That is what's put his back up. The only great mistake that's been made is that I didn't spilt the old brute's iniquitous skull when I had the chance. I say, do you mind my commenting on those flowers you've got on the table? I have not seen a cut flower since I left England."

He turned to his host. "You do the thing rather palatially here, Mr. Slade. Board walls and real glass in the windows! We've bamboo walls at Malla-Nulla that let in the dust and the mosquitoes and the Krooboys' stares just as they occur. It felt rather like living in a bird-cage till one got used to it."

"The walls are Laura's doing. You know she was at school in a convent in Las Palmas, and came home with all sorts of extravagant notions. Why, she actually insisted on a table cloth for meals, and napkins. I'll trouble you, napkins! And yet they still call us palm oil ruffians in Liverpool, and firmly believe that we live on orange-colored palm oil chop, which we pick out of calabashes with our fingers. I sent K. O'Neill a photograph of this room by last mail, with the table laid for chop, and flowers as you see in a china bowl, in the hope that he'd be impressed by it, and raise my screw."

"He's quite likely to do it, too," said Carter. "If I understand Mr. K. right. He's always insisting in his letters to Malla-Nulla that if we make ourselves comfortable, and adapt ourselves to the climate, we shall be able to do more and better work. By the way, do you know Mr K. O'Neill at all? At Malla-Nulla we only know him on paper."

'I'm in the same box,' Slade confessed. "Godfrey, his predecessor, of course I knew well enough. But this new chap I only know from his letters, and they are a deal too rousing for my easy-going tastes. Ah here is the boy with a tray of chop for you. Observe the parsley; that is Laura's latest triumph in Coast gardening. Boy, Mr. Carter will sleep in the spare bed in my room. See that there are no live things inside the mosquito bar."

"I thank you," said Carter firmly, "but I am going to do as I said.'

"He wants to go back to Malla-Nulla," Slade explained to his daughter, "and I tell him it is suicide to think of such a thing. Here you have a go at him, Laura." Slade always put off onto someone else anything which he found hard to do himself.

But Laura Slade read a certain doggedness in Carter's face that told her what to say. She did not join in imploring him to stay at Smooth River when he had so obviously determined to go. But instead her mind flew to some scheme that might make his passage less desperately risky. 'I am sure father could spare you some men. With an escort you might get through. I wish you were not so plucky."

Carter laughed. "Oh, I am frightened hard enough but I should be still more frightened at what I should think of myself if anything happened to Mr. Smith which I could have prevented if I'd been there. It's very kind of you to offer an escort, and I'd thought of that before; but I'm sure I shall be able to move quicker and more quietly without one. But if Mr. Slade could lend me a gun, I'd feel a lot more comfortable with that."

"Certainly, my boy, certainly. You shall have my Winchester, and I believe I can scare up a revolver somewhere."

"You are very good. I have a revolver already, but it's only useful to me as a sort of knuckleduster. I couldn't hit a haystack with it ten yards off. Same with rifle; I've never used one. But where I was brought up in Wharfedale, you see, the Governor had some glebe, and his income was small. We mostly lived on rabbits and a few grouse in the season, and so you see I learned to be pretty useful with a shot gun.'

Slade handed a weapon: "There you are. That's a double 12 bore hammer gun, and both barrels are cylinders. It's an early Holland and was a swell tol in its day which was some time ago."

"Thank you very much. I hope I shan't have to use it, but it'll feel comfortable under my arm. When you've lived most of your life in the country, you miss going out with a gun. Well now, I'll soy boodby."

'Wait a minute till we've called up your boy. I'll shout from the veranda."

"Don't please," said Carter, remembering that on all previous occasions when trouble foreboded White-Man's-Trouble disappeared. He did not wish to call Laura's attention more than necesary to the risks of the journey. "I'd far rather go alone."

They looked out through the lit doorway and saw the yellows of White-Man's-Trouble's eyes, and the glance of his teeth, which latter were eclipsed when he finished his speech, leaving the eyes alone to tell of his whereabouts.

"Now that's a real stout boy of yours, Carter," the trader said. "Hi you, come in. You fit for a peg?"

"I fit for a bottle," said White-Man's-Troule, who looked nipped and gray when he stood up in the lamplight. Poor fellow, he thought he was going to certain death with perhaps torture as an addition, but when it came to a pinch, and the white man led, he screwed up his pluck to follow.

So at last the pair of them set off quietly into the shadows. Two handshakes were all the farewell, but there was a soft something in Laura's eyes that sent queer thrills down George Carter's spine. Slade himself saw them through the outer line of the sentries, and warned those enthusiasts not to fire on them should they presently return; and a dozen yards away from the sentries they melted into the warm blackness of the African night.

Up on the veranda of the factory Laura Slade leaned over the rail and listened to the beating of her own heart. She strained her eyes and she strained her ears along the line of mysterious phosphorescence which marked the beach, but no trace or hint did she get of how it fared with the man she loved. Once during that watch did she hear a sound which she took to be a distant gunshot, and then din, din, as though two other shots followed it. Then the roar of the surf and the night noises of Africa closed in again and for safety or hurt Carter had passed beyond her reach.

'Kate will like that man,' she said to herself, and then she shivered a little. "I wonder if Kate will take him away from me?"

CHAPTER IV

The Beach By Moonlight

White-Man's-Trouble was abominably frightened during that march along the beach to Malla-Nulla, and did not mind showing it. Indeed, the fact that he screwed up his determination sufficiently to make the trip at all, says a great deal for his admiration for Carter.

Carter, on the other hand, though he was fully livea to the desperate risks that lay ahead, felt himself to be the white man in command, and adjusted his demeanor accordingly. To look at him one might have thought that he was merely taking exercise and the evening air for the general good of his health.

Had there been cover he would have taken it, but there was none. The beach was the only path; the bush which walled it on one side was impassable, and though the sea might have been considered an alternative route, they had only cotton-wood dug-outs at the Smooth River factory, and it would have taken at least a surf-boat to get out over the Smooth River bar, to say nothing of landing, when the time came, through the rollers which crashed always on Malla-Nulla beach. So he marched along where the sand was wet and hard, just above the cream of surf, and he carried the twelve-bore, hammers downwards, over his shoulder, with his forefinger on the trigger guard above. He was grateful for those past days of rabbit shooting in Upper Wharfedale which had taught him to be so quick and deadly on a sudden mark.

The surf on one side, and the night noises of Africa on the other, roared in their ears as they marched and every now and again they came into a cloud of fireflies, which switched their tiny lamps in and out with inconceivable rapidity and left them quite blinded during the intervals of darkness.

So that on the whole, as Carter realized very fully, if the King of Okky had set men to waylay them, these could scarcely be incompetent enough to miss their mark. But he did not admit this knowledge to White-Man's-Trouble. When that Krooboy stated things exactly as they were, Carter pooh-poohed his deduction lightly enough, and stormed at the man because he was ignorant of the most aproved method of pipe-claying shoes.

WHY SHOULD NOT OLD PEOPLE RETAIN THEIR YOUTHFUL VIGOR

No Reason Why Men And Women Of Sixty, Seventy And Eighty Should Not Be Well—The Secret Of Happy Old Age

"Fruit-a-tives", The Famous Medicine Made Of Fresh Fruit Juices, Again Proves Its Great Value In Curing Kidney Trouble.

Old age pays the cost of living. Few men and women of fifty, sixty and seventy are free of Kidney Trouble. Hard work, mental strain and general debility, tell in the long run. And many men and women show they have Kidney Trouble by suffering with pain in the back, headaches, rheumatism, sciatica, bladder disease.

To such people "Fruit-a-tives" has proved one of the wonders of the age—and the most remarkable discovery of the century in modern medical science. This fruit medicine has performed hundreds of cures where the sufferer had been told that the case was incurable.

Take, for instance, Mr. Geo. W. Barkley, a prosperous farmer and one of the leading citizens of Dundas County, Ontario.

At seventy-six, he is the picture of health—with the vigorous actions and the sprightly step of a man of fifty.

Yet for twenty years, he suffered with Kidney Trouble. He took "Fruit-a-tives" and it cured him.

CHESTERVILLE, ONT., JAN. 25th, 1911

"For over twenty years I have been troubled with Kidney Disease, and the doctors told me they could do me no good, and said I would be a sufferer all the rest of my life. Nearly a year ago, I tried "Fruit-a-tives". I have been using them all the time since and am glad to say that I am cured. I give "Fruit-a-tives" the credit of doing what the doctors said was impossible."

GEO. W. BARKLEY.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit, and is the only one that acts directly on the kidneys. It cures. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Man Hurled to Death

CORNWALL, Nov. 15.—Oliver Poirier aged about sixty-two, met a horrible death in the basement of the weave shed of the Canada Mill here yesterday afternoon, when he was in the act of oiling the shafting, and before the speed was cut off he was dead. Both arms, both legs, his neck, and every rib were broken, while his body was a mass of bruises. The coroner, Dr. Hamilton, was notified, but decided that it was not necessary to hold an inquest. Poirier was born near Coteau, Que., and is survived by his mother, his wife, two sisters and two brothers.

A man who is always complimenting a woman is an awful liar, and she knows it. Still she believes him.

CAPTURING A CURATE

By William Wade

"You haven't seen him yet? Well, that's a pity. He's quite a catch, I'm told. Young, handsome and single. Why don't you set your cap for him, Mattie? You've got as good a chance as the rest of them, and twenty-six is not old by any means."

She leaned over the garden gate as she spoke, this veritable village gossip. I can see her now, with little close-fitting bonnet, from beneath which the clustering gray hair peeped; the keen blue eyes, that seemed to read your very thoughts; the trim little figure, clad always in ample skirts of quaker grey or sombre brown.

Never was there a wedding, funeral or christening in the village without this estimable lady's presence. What a harmless little body she appeared, and how incapable of carrying about that wonderful budget of information! How nicely she imparted her knowledge to her listeners, beginning with, "Well, I don't mind telling you," or "They do say, but, of course, you can't believe everything," and ending with, "That's between you and me, it will go no farther."

I was in the garden that morning, training some early June roses; my thoughts were not the brightest, scarcely in harmony with nature, that was decked in one of her brightest mantles. It was quite unnecessary for Mrs. Briggs to remind me of my age; I was thinking seriously of it. Twenty-six! not very old to be sure, and yet not very young to be an unmarried woman. I must be content with fewer laurels, less conquests. I must step out of the field, as it were, and leave the romance and the day-dreams to younger and fairer girls.

It mattered little to me whether the new curate were young or unmarried, or a portly old fellow with a wife and grown-up daughters. At heart I disliked this interfering old woman who had broken in on my reverie.

I thanked her kindly for her advice, telling her that at present I had no intention of setting my cap at any one, not even the new curate; so saying I went back to my work and the roses.

"There, Mattie, don't be absurd. Of course it's nobody's business if you're going to leave yourself an old maid, but take my advice and don't spend your time fretting and worrying over Bob Preston, for he isn't worth it."

She shook her head wisely and was off before I had time to recover from the cruel thrust that had opened the old wound—Robert Preston and the past.

I tried to guard my heart, to trample under foot the old love. I could have laughed at my girlish folly, as it were a dream, until a thoughtless word had brought back the past, like the dead risen to life again, or a smouldering fire that needed but a gentle breeze to make it into a burning flame. One by one the blinding tears fell. I was only a weak woman after all, as, covering my face with my hands, I sobbed:

"Robert, O Robert! Why were you false?"

It all came back to me, that visit to Aunt Martha where I first met Robert Preston, a young student just returned from Oxford. I cannot tell you all those bright, happy day-dreams; how I loved him and waited for the happy days when he would ask me for that love. He read his answer in my telltale face before my lips uttered it.

So, engrossed with Robert's society, I took little heed of other matters, scarcely giving a thought to the fact that a young lady, the daughter of a deceased friend of my aunt's, was going to make her home with us. She came. From the moment I looked upon her lovely face my happiness was gone. I was a pretty girl, fair and fragile, yet one might as well compare a simple little daisy to a full-blown poppy or a rich red rose, as my frail beauty to this girl's exquisite loveliness.

For a time his love was unchanged. I laughed in my foolish heart at my doubts and fears. At times I would find his serious eyes wandering from me and resting admiringly on the beautiful face of Kathleen Lee. No man could resist that wondrous fascinating face. She never encouraged him, but the drooping lids, the faint flush, the trembling of the little hands, all told plainly that she, too, loved him.

How I suffered! In my mad jealousy I grew almost to hate the child. He loved me before she came with her beautiful flower-like face to rob me of that love. Was she blind that she did not see we were betrothed? I prayed that she might go away and leave us to ourselves once more, and Robert would go back to his old fond ways. His caresses were growing colder, his kisses lighter. I spoke of his seeming neglect. He answered lightly, taking both my hands in his and looking fondly at me.

"Nonsense, Mattie! Do you know, my little girl, that you are growing dearer and dearer to me every day?"

For a time I was satisfied, trying to be content with but a share of his love.

We were seated in the garden, one afternoon in the early autumn, Robert, Kathleen and I. She was looking unusually handsome in a dress of soft muslin. My lover had just paid her a well-merited compliment, for which she was about to make a gracious reply when Aunt Martha came to us.

"Robert," she said, placing her hand fondly on his shoulder as she spoke, "will you gather some cherries for me? The girls will go with you and hold the basket."

He arose to reply to her request. Kathleen was at his side in a moment, while I refused to join them, feigning a severe headache.

"They do not want me," I reasoned within myself.

I watched them as they walked away together, he carrying the little basket, and she with that coquettish air that came so natural to her.

I cannot tell you what tempted me to follow them; it must have been some evil genius. Slowly I followed down the pathway, taking every precaution, however, not to be observed.

Seated upon a little rustic bench, I could see every movement of my lover and Kathleen.

How lovely she looked standing in the orchard, the sunlight falling athwart the lovely upturned face, on which a smile rested! Never was seen a fairer vision. Her sleeve of soft texture falling back showed the shapely, outstretched arm.

Sometimes a peal of merry laughter would fall upon my ear. They did not miss me—not even Robert; he was content with Kathleen.

The basket was full, and still they lingered. The last handful of cherries was in Robert's hand. He stooped to place it in with the others, when their eyes met, their hands touched. Was I dreaming? Alas, no! I saw him stoop and kiss her fondly.

I waited no longer. With a cry of pain I turned and fled to the seclusion of my own room, where I sobbed out the trouble of my young heart, with only God to hear me.

* * * * * * *

After dinner that evening I tried to escape from both of them. Kathleen seemed scarcely herself, and pleading a headache, soon retired. When opportunity served, Robert came over to me and said he had something to explain. I replied that I didn't want any explanation of what I had seen.

"But if you only knew—" he protested.

I again told him an explanation was quite unnecessary—that I was unaware I had been seen by them.

"But we saw you had followed us, and on the spur of the moment it seemed such a splendid chance to excite your jealousy—"

"Jealousy!" I almost screamed.

"And Kathleen agreed to my little trick—"

"Trick!" and this time I really did scream. He tried still further to protest. I would hear nothing and absolutely flounced out of the room.

* * * * * * *

I went away quite unexpectedly. I was homesick, I told Aunt Martha. I left a letter for Robert simply telling him it was better we should part.

I remember taking the ring he had given me from my hand and what a struggle it cost me to place it in that letter—the last I should ever write to Robert.

I came home to my mother, who was quite an invalid and needed all my care. I never heard from Robert save once, through Aunt Martha, who wrote:

"Of course, Mattie, you've not forgotten Robert, whom, to speak candidly, you treated rather unkindly. He has gone to London to practise medicine. He is doing well."

An old newspaper had fallen into my hands where an account was given of a brilliant reception. Among the guests were the names of Dr. Robert Preston and wife. I knew it was Robert and Kathleen. I made no inquiries, and receiving no further information took it for granted that Aunt Martha's kindness of heart prevented her from again referring to the past. I closed my heart for ever. The world will never know of me as a disappointed woman, I thought, flattering myself that I had quite succeeded in deceiving humanity in general, until the gossip had come upon me with her idle words, bringing to life the bitter past that I thought I had buried years ago.

* * * * * * *

"Going to service, Miss Kenwood?"

It was my neighbor who asked the question, Marcia Hall, a dear little girl with the utmost faith in mankind in general. I smiled faintly as I caught sight of the new hat with its dainty ribbons; evidently put on for the new curate.

"Young and foolish," thought I. "Wait until she's six-and-twenty, and I'l wager she will not buy a new hat for all the new curates in existence."

Slowly we marched to church on that bright Sunday morning, Marcia chatting gaily, and I, dressed in the plainest of dresses, walked silently beside her.

I had not fully recovered from Mrs. Briggs' unkind remarks, and was determined to show her my disinclination "to set my cap," as she termed it, by appearing in an exceedingly unbecoming gown. I was really disappointed, on catching a last glimpse in the mirror, to find that notwithstanding my plain toilet and my six-and-twenty years, I was still a pretty woman, and to hear my mother say as I stooped to kiss her, "How well you're looking, Mattie!"

How crowded the little village church was—filled to overflowing. Everyone was there, even that hateful Mrs. Briggs.

Service had already commenced when we entered, yet I scarcely heard it, feeling rather embarrassed at coming late to be gazed at by the entire congregation.

Now a hush, a slight flutter among the congregation, a rustle of garments, with now and then a subdued whisper as the new curate came forward.

"He's just lovely!" whispered Marcia, pulling softly at my sleeve. "Do look at him, Miss Kenwood."

I kept my eyes downcast. If every woman in the congregation cast glances of admiration, I was determined to do otherwise.

"Am I my brother's keeper?" was the text of the sermon.

Clear and distinct came the words of the speaker. The first words had caused my heart to beat wildly. How like that voice of long ago, that rich, soft voice that had pleaded for my love! I listened like one in a dream, until I raised my eyes to see before me—Robert Preston.

Yes, Robert Preston. Changed, to be sure—not the bright, boyish face of long ago. There were lines of care and suffering on it now, while the dark hair was streaked with silver.

Was Kathleen dead? I wondered. Had he given up his practice? Was he happy? Fifty different queries crowded upon my memory. Why had fate thrown us once more together after my bitter struggle to forget? One thing I was determined upon; I must leave the village. I dared not trust myself. Reason as I would, my heart told me that I loved him still.

It was all over! I could hear the whispered comments of the worshippers on the eloquence of the new curate.

"Are you coming?" asked my companion; then, as I arose mechanically to obey, "Don't you like him, Miss Kenwood? Do tell me! You listened attentively, and once, as I looked at you, I thought you were going to faint away, you looked so pale. Are you ill?"

"Yes, I like him," I added aloud, while my heart whispered, "God pity me, I love him!"

We were once more in the bright sunshine, coming quite unexpectedly upon a little group, composed of the wealthier members of the congregation gathered around the new curate. They had learned he was a man of wealth and standing choosing his calling simply as a matter of taste. Someone—I think it was the vicar's wife—presented me to him. Our eyes met; our hands touched—as resting those serious eyes upon me he said:

"I have had the pleasure of meeting Miss Kenwood before."

I cannot tell you how it happened the churchyard towards the highway, and I found myself alone with Robert. I was the first to break the silence. It pained me to think it was a commonplace remark.

"How is Kathleen?" I asked, endeavoring to show him how little I cared for the past, and how, without betraying the slightest emotion, I could inquire after his wife's health.

"Kathleen?" he looked rather dazed at the question. "I believe she is well, but not happy, poor girl."

He believed she was well. How strange! Had he grown weary of her as of me? Was he utterly devoid of honor?

"Not happy?" I said, as I toyed nervously with the roses in my bodice. "She should be very happy as—as—your wife," I faltered.

"As my wife!" he said, gazing in blank amazement. "Did you—oh, Mattie, you have judged me wrongly. I never married Kathleen."

He looked like a man upon whom a sudden truth had dawned, or one accused of a great wrong who could prove his innocence.

It was in the twilight before service that he told me all. The notice concerning Robert Preston and his wife referred to his cousin. He had entered the ministry from choice, as he had come into a large fortune through the death of an uncle. True, he had admired Kathleen as a man would admire a beautiful woman, but he never entertained the slightest feeling of love for her.

The scene in the orchard was but a simple ruse designed by Robert and Kathleen to excite my jealousy, little dreaming of the serious results.

Kathleen made a most unfortunate match, like most beautiful women, making a poor selection from her many suitors. Poor girl, what a dear kind letter she sent us, telling how happy she was to hear we were reunited!

HOW FIRES START

Carelessness Responsible for the Greater Number of Factory Fires

Preventable fires in factories start from a lack of cleanliness, oily rags hidden behind steam pipes; from smoking, lighted cigars tossed in the corner of a varnish room; matches, dropped carelessly where they will be ignited accidentally.

Lighting equipment, such as paper shades on electric lights; inflammable material, fired by overheated pipes, chimneys and electric wires; and explosives, similar to gasoline and used near a flame: these form another group of typical ways in which fires are started.

Many other fires are caused by gases, due to leaks and improper piping; by oils, dripping from leaky bearings in material of inflammable character; holiday causes, due to the lack of cleanliness and inspection at such periods of idleness; and by carelessness, and the utter disregard of fire rules and regulations.

Waste in Pencil Stubs

That more than thirteen million feet of lumber is thrown into wastepaper baskets every year is the statement made by a New York statistician with a head for figures. This enormous waste results, he said, from discarding partly used lead pencils.

"Seventy-three million feet of lumber is used in the manufacture of pencils every year in the United States," he declared. "At least half of each pencil is thrown away because it has poor lead or is too short. Think how the conservation of our forests would be promoted if every person would be more careful in the use of pencils."

Canadian Whalers

The Canadian Whaling Company, organized in Montreal about two years ago, and operating in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, is reported to be prosperous. The company has two steam whaling boats in commission and over 70 whales were captured in one season. Most of the capital was subscribed in Norway, and many of those engaged in the enterprise are Norwegians.

Canadians Wealthiest

The 1,114,898 aliens arriving in the United States during a recent period of 14 months brought $46,712,697. The immigrants from Canada carried the greater amount per capita, and those crossing the Mexican border had least money.

A SCOTTISH ROMANCE

The air was keen with frost; on the worn rim of the granite drinking trough the sparkles glistened like encrusted gems; a thin layer of clear ice covered the stream which had trickled from the old pump. But the two who stood beneath the thatch saw none of these things; the world had ceased to exist for them. They were alone together in the wonder of Love's Garden.

With throbbing pulses John Anderson looked into the sweet face at his shoulder.

"Janie," he cried, "I am loving you with every bit o' me! I am little o' it, I ken that fine, but I am taking the turn, lassie. I am away to Edinburgh the morn to earn a steady wage, and before the year comes again to Hallowe'en, I'll be wedding you, gin you'll have me. Gie me one wee word, lassie!"

For a moment the girl stood silent; then, turning, she looked him in the eyes.

"It's just love, John," she whispered. "That's the one wee word."

"Lassie—lassie mine!"

The passionate words brought the splendid color to her cheeks, and, with a low, tremulous laugh, she freed herself from his embrace.

"They'll be seeking us," she said. "We maun away back for the burnin' o' the nuts."

Midnight was striking when the merry company at last dispersed, and, lingering a moment, John Anderson took the wee twist of newspaper which Janie Morton slipped into his hand.

"It's the ashes o' our nuts," she whispered. "Put them below your pillow, dearie; we maun be courtin' the same dream."

Entering the farm on the Saturday night following the festival of Hallowe'en, Janie Morton was arrested by the sound of her uncle's voice, followed by that of the postman.

"I'm no' surprised; they Andersons have aye been a thankless lot. I aye said the lad would come to no good. It's a peety it is that."

"What is a pity? What is wrong with John Anderson?"

At the sudden interruption, the two men turned, eyeing the girl as she stood by the table.

"He's got himsel' in jail," growled the farmer. "It's a' in the paper there."

Taking the news sheet in her trembling hands, Janie read the account of the street brawl in which her lover had distinguished himself by knocking down and injuring a constable, receiving, as a reward, one month's imprisonment.

"It's a sair peety. It'll just stick to him a' his days, like a smudge o' tar; it—"

Dropping the paper, the girl fled from the room, up the steep stairs to the quietude of her own bed-room.

Her heart cried out to him across the silence; other means of communicating with him she had none, for in Edinburgh there are many jails, and she knew not in which to find him.

* * * * * * *

Ten long years had winged their flight, and once again the hand of Time pointed to the festival of Hallowe'en.

From behind a gay array of apples Grannie Kirsty gazed through the doorway of the little grocery store wherein she had reigned for close on half a century. Trade was brisk, and her old eyes twinkled as she watched her slim-waisted, deft-handed grandchild dispensing pounds of nuts and apples to the eager customers who stormed the counter.

Truly, ten years had seen the changing of the old order. Old faces had vanished; lads and lassies had left their youth behind them, the bairns their toys. Of those who had filled the farm kitchen with merriment, Janie Morton alone remained, living in an unaccountable solitude at the farm bequeathed her by her uncle. Only Grannie Kirsty knew the secret lying in the depths of her loyal heart.

With absent eyes, the old woman stared at the big, bronzed man who entered the shop on the heels of a kilted laddie of seven.

"Can you tell me who is at Morton's farm now?" he asked, speaking with the accent of a Colonial.

"Ay," she answered slowly, peering at him through her glasses. "There's just Miss Janie there. She has had it this long while."

"She is unmarried, then?"

Involuntarily the question seemed to escape the man's lips, and Grannie Kirsty looked intently at him.

"She's by her lone," she said. "There's many wanted her, but she wudna have them. She's been by her lone these ten years long. Would you be wishing to visit her, anyway?" she asked musingly. "If so be as ye should be going to the farm, I'd take it kindly, of you if you would just be taking this wee bag down for me. She'll ken fine what it is if ye say it comes frae Grannie Kirsty."

"I'll do that for you," he said, and thrusting the bag into his coat-pocket he hurried from the shop.

Alone in the glowing kitchen which ten years ago had echoed with many a peal of laughter, Janie Morton sat before the fire, showing red between the polished bars of the stove, her hands clasped together in her lap, and within them a twist of newspaper.

Never a Hallowe'en had come round that she had not burnt the nuts in her own name and that of the man she loved, but to-night, for the first time, her heart had failed her for very aching, and she had omitted to call for them at Grannie Kirsty's store. Through all the years she had waited and hoped, faithful to the core; but "hope deferred maketh the heart sick," and one by one the tears welled up, brimming over, falling in a bitter rain upon the packet of ashes that had been the mute companion of her loneliness.

"John, dearie, I'm loving you yet!"

Broken with sobs, the words fell upon the silence, as the bearer of Grannie Kirsty's "wee bag" lifted the latch.

* * * * * * *

Starting to her feet, she faced him, the color rushing to her cheeks, only to ebb away.

"Janie, my wee lassie—Janie!"

The cry rang out through the quiet round about them, and John Anderson slipped his strong right arm about his love, even as he had done ten Hallowe'ens ago.

"I was ashamed to write ye," he said hoarsely. "I loved ye that well, Janie. When I was free again, I just went right away. I thought it was best for ye. I have been out West, lassie. I have been working for you a' the time, whiles I tried to say that it wasn't you I had in my mind; but it was. There's a farm waiting for ye across the sea. It was that I came to tell ye. Gie me a word, Janie."

Slipping her hands into his, she looked him in the eyes.

"Love, John," she whispered—"just that."

"I was to give you this from Grannie Kirsty," he said presently, pulling the wee bag from his pocket.

Taking it from him, she slipped the string; then, with the roses blooming afresh in her cheeks, she looked up at him.

"It's some nuts, John," she said, between laughter and tears. "I have aye had them from her at Hallowe'en. She would be thinking I might be wanting them. Maybe we might be burning two?"

"Maybe," said John Anderson, softly.

* * * * * * *

"What way did ye send me the nuts by him, Grannie?"

With her hand in her husband's, Janie Anderson looked at the old woman who had stood her friend through the desolate years of waiting, and Grannie Kirsty looked back at her.

"A' my days, dearie,— she said simply—"a' my days I have had a wonderful memory for faces."

SNEEZING SUPERSTITIONS

The Ancients Had Some Queer Notions About the Practice

Many superstitions have gathered around the practice of sneezing.

The Jewish Rabbis say that in the first ages of the world sneezing was considered a thing of evil omen, and even a presage of death, and that this terrible state of things lasted until the coming of Jacob, when that astute patriarch, anxious lest he should himself perish from such an insignificant cause, besought the Almighty to endow sneezing in future with more beneficent attributes!

Among the ancients sneezing was considered lucky or unlucky according to the circumstances of time and place.

For instance, it was considered lucky to sneeze between noon and midnight; also when the moon was in the signs of Taurus, Leo, Libra, Capricorn, and Pisces.

But if, on the other hand, you sneezed during any of the hours between midnight and the following noon, or while the moon happened to be in the signs of Virgo, Aquarius, Cancer, or Scorpio—above all, if, unhappily, you were just getting out of bed or rising from the table—then you were to consider yourself in a parlous state indeed.

The Greeks and Romans entertained the superstition that to hear anyone on their right hand sneeze was of good presage to all concerned, and the Greeks used to say of a beautiful woman that Cupid and his Loves had sneezed at her birth.

POPULAR PHRASES

How Some of Them Originated—Common Expressions

Who first gave utterance to some of the popular phrases of to-day it is practically impossible to say, but it is not so difficult to trace the origin of the sayings. Cheshire cats, for instance, are no different from those of other counties, but because Cheshire cheeses used to be made in the shape of cats with fixed, broad grins, the phrase "Grinning like a Cheshire cat eating cheese," arose.

The phrase, "He's a brick," originated from an Eastern ruler, who, while visiting a neighboring principality, asked his host to show him the fortifications. Waving his hands towards his troops, which were drawn up in soldierly array, the Prince said to his guest: "These are my fortifications; every man is a brick."

The phrase, "Mad as a hatter," really means as venomous as a viper. "Mad as a hatter" is simply a corruption of an ancient form, "Mad as an atter, or adder." Mad in this case is generally synonymous with poisonous.

The clause "It suits to a T," meaning it fits exactly, is as old as the familiar instrument, the T-square, or T-rule (so called from its resemblance to the letter T), used by mechanics and draughtsmen for making angles true and for obtaining perpendiculars. The expression was in common use in the time of Dr. Johnson, who is quoted by Boswell as saying of Warburton, "You see they have fitted him to a T."

CREDIT ALLOWED

A distinguished Irish lawyer, always in impoverished circumstances, once took a legal friend to see his magnificently-furnished new home in Dublin.

"Don't you think," he said, with a complacent look about, "that I deserve great credit for this?"

"Yes," his friend answered, drily; "and you appear to have got it."

DEAD AND DIDN'T KNOW IT

Enemy (at the manoeuvres):—"You are my prisoner."

Sergeant Binks:—"Nonsense! How did you get here?"

Enemy:—"Over the bridge."

Sergeant Binks:—"Then, my dear fellow, you are drowned. We blew up that bridge yesterday!"

MY WIFE'S FUR CLOAK

"Are you all done? Fifteen shillings is all I'm offered for a beautiful lady's gold watch. It's simply throwing the goods away."

The above sentences uttered in a stentorian voice issued from a shop door. In the window a large poster announced that a sale of unredeemed pledges was being held.

"Oh, it's an auction sale," exclaimed my wife. She urged me to come in, and reluctantly I entered the saleroom with her.

The knight of the hammer was trying to put off some watches. There did not appear to be much demand for them and he turned to the shelf at his back and brought forth a neat brown paper parcel.

"Now you have been trying my temper, and I am going to try your purses. I have an article here that will tempt some of you ladies to buy."

So saying, he cut the string and unfolded the paper wrapper, and produced a lady's jacket.

"Look here now; there's a beauty. Why if I were a married man I'd buy it myself and take it home as a present to my wife."

He held out the garment, and exhibited it outside and inside.

"If ever I offered a bargain this is one. It's a real, genuine, first-class garment, made in the latest style. Hand it round the company, and let everyone examine it to satisfy themselves."

He addressed himself to one of the assistants, who, in obedience, took the jacket in his hand and moved in amongst the crowd, but only a few bestowed a cursory glance on the beautiful garment.

"Look at it, my lady," he said, addressing my wife.

My wife took the article and examined it carefully. I saw that she turned pale, and appeared to be agitated.

"Are you ill?" I whispered. "Let us go out to the fresh air."

She took my arm, and we emerged into the street.

"A faintness came over you?" I inquired.

"No," she replied in an almost inaudible voice. "I want that jacket," and she added something which only my ear could catch.

"Let's go back then," I said.

By the time we returned to the shop the auctioneer was volubly expatiating on the quality of the jacket, and reducing the upset price. No response seemed to come from the audience, and I waited expectantly till he came down to twenty shillings.

Now was my time. "Twenty shillings for the jacket," I said in a clear, firm voice.

"Twenty shillings I'm bid by this gentleman here," chimed in the auctioneer, brightening up. "Any advance on twenty shillings?"

"Twenty-five," came in a squeaky voice.

"Now we're doing well," cried the auctioneer. "Any advance on twenty-five shillings?"

"Thirty shillings," I put in promptly.

"Thirty-five," came from my squeaky-voiced rival.

The excitement among the audience was at its height when, as the hammer was about to fall, I called out loudly "Forty shillings."

No more bids were offered, and the jacket fell to me for two pounds.

"Is this jacket mine for two pounds and all it contains?" I said to the salesman.

"Certainly, when you pay the money," he answered.

With my pen knife, which I had in readiness, I ripped the stitches of the lining close to the neck. Then I inserted my two forefingers into the opening, and extracted a folded paper from the lining and the fur body.

"See here," I said, unfolding the paper. "That's a five-pound Bank of England note. Give me three pounds in change, and we are quits."

The auctioneer was dumfounded. Then recovering himself, he demanded angrily—

"Do you mean to tell me that that note was inside the lining of that—"

"I am not trying to deceive you. The people standing around saw me find the note."

"How, then, did you know that there was a five-pound note there? It does not belong to you. It's the property of the firm I represent."

"You want to know how I knew the note was within the lining of the jacket. That is easily answered. I placed it there. The jacket belonged to my wife. It was stolen from our house eighteen months ago."

"That story won't wash."

"If you will have patience I will tell the story briefly, and these people can hear it and judge for themselves."

"Well, fire away," he exclaimed gruffly.

"There is my card. I live in Edinburgh. We are at present on holiday, and motored from Aberdeen to-day. In the spring of last year we arranged to take a trip on the Continent. The night before we were to start I got my wife to rip up the lining of her jacket, and in the opening I inserted the note, which was to be a reserve fund in case we should get stranded or lose each other.

"That night a fire broke out in the tenement in which we lived. Great was the alarm and excitement that prevailed in the district. Should the fire break through the floor above our house was doomed. My wife frantically urged on me to have our furniture removed.

"'Yes, that's what I will see to, but clear everything out of the bedroom first. Empty the wardrobe. Get some of those women to help you, and carry the contents to our friend's house on the other side of the street.'

"The volunteers went to work with a will and carried the clothes to my friend's house.

"All the damage we suffered was by water. Next day when we collected our property every article was restored with the exception of my wife's fur cloak. The case was put into the hands of the police. Every pawnbroker and broker's shop in Edinburgh was searched in vain. How could it be found when the thief pledged it in a Glasgow loan office?"

When I finished there was a murmer of applause in the room. When it subsided the auctioneer spoke in a subdued tone.

"Yours is a very plausible story, and I am not prepared to question its veracity. Do you intend to claim the article to be restored as stolen property?"

"I might exercise my privilege in that direction," I replied. "But I know that under certain circumstances pawnbroke can claim compensation. I believe your firm acted in good faith. As I bought it from you in open sale for two pounds, I here and now tender you that sum, and if that does not cover their loss I will make up the balance."

So saying I handed two one-pound notes to the auctioneer. He handed me the receipt. We shook hands, and my wife and I left the room with our treasure happily restored.

ONLY A CURL

The Governor of Dartwell Prison was passing out of the gate when he noticed a poor little girl of about twelve years standing in the street and gazing earnestly at the great black walls surrounding the prison.

"Oh, please, sir," she said, "may I go inside and see my father? He's in there, and I've brought something for him."

The Governor, who was a kind-hearted man, took the little girl to his office, and sent for the convict—a notoriously bad man—to be brought thither.

When he came he bore a sullen, angry expression. There was no word of welcome for his child.

"Oh, father!" she cried, bursting into tears, "Aren't you glad to see me?"

The man's head dropped, and his eyes were moistening. The little girl went on—

"And father, I've brought you something. It was all I could think of, and all I could get. I live in the Workhouse now."

Her trembling fingers began unwrapping a bit of thin paper, and revealed a soft shining curl of golden hair.

"I wouldn't give this to anyone on earth but you, father. You used to love little Johnny."

The man fell on his knees with both hands clasped over his face.

"I did love him!" he said hoarsely, "and I love him still!"

"I knew you did," said his daughter, going up close to him, "and I thought you would like this, now that Johnny's dead."

"Dead!" shrieked the man. "My little boy dead!"

"Yes," said his daughter; "Johnny died in the workhouse, and there's none left but me, but I'm not going to forget you, father."

Then the rough man put his arms round the child's neck and kissed her again and again.

After that he was never the same man. He turned from being one of the worst men in the prison to be one of the best, and the warders never had any more trouble with him at all; and when he went out of jail it was to lead an honest life for the sake of his loyal little girl.

KISSED THE JUDGE

Little Girl Expressed Appreciation in a London Court

A little London, Eng., girl of eight years, ragged but chubby, appeared at Old Street Children's Court in the care of a matron, having been found wandering and begging. Standing at tea-shop doors, enticed by the bright light and the passing in and out of strangers, many of whom thoughtlessly drop a coin into the outstretched hands of the little beggars in waiting, the little girl was only one of many who beg, or often are sent to beg, in that way.

Her father came into court and said he did not know she did it.

The Magistrate (Mr. Dickinson) turned a half-laughing, have-severe countenance on the child and said: "See how naughty you can be without your father knowing it. Are you not very naughty?"

The Child: "No-o."

The Magistrate: "Oh, but you are, and if you are not good you will be sent away from your father."

The Child: "I want to go with daddy now."

The Magistrate: "But will you be good?"

The Child: "Yes. Please may I go with daddy?"

The Magistrate: "Well, yes, this time I think you may."

The Child (who had been standing close to the magisterial chair): "Oh, you are good now,; I should like to kiss you."

The magistrate turned upon the child a face which blushed a rosy red, and, bending sideways to her, said: "Would you? Well, you may, because you are going to be a good girl." The little child, in no way perturbed, prettily kissed the cheek of the magistrate and then, walking down to her father, took his hand, and left the court, saying, "Good-bye, sir; good-bye."

A THOUGHTFUL CHILD

"Was that policeman ever a little baby, mother?" asked a little girl.

"Why, yes, dear."

"I don't believe I've ever seen a baby policeman," said the child, thoughtfully.

TOO LATE

"Hands up!" exclaimed the Western train robber. "Gimme your money."

"Too late," replied the tourist. "I get off at the next station, and I've already tipped the porter."

A STRANGE PEOPLE ARE THE SERVIANS

When a Servian widow wants a new husband she hangs a doll in her window. The doll gives fair warning to any bachelor who may chance to pass by.

If a widow or a maiden is very anxious to marry, she also hangs a wreath of corn up on the outside of the house. If the wreath is stolen she will be married soon. If she is very, very anxious to wed she hangs the wreath down quite low so it can be more easily reached.

Servia is the one country where parents are not anxious to marry off their daughters, and want their sons to mate early. The reason is, all the women work in the fields along with the men. When a son marries he brings another helper home; if the daughter marries she goes to her father-in-law's fields to work.

Women in Servia work long and hard. The men regard them as inferior beings and treat them so. At the table women are served last, after the men have all the food they wish.

There are no rich folks in Servia, and outside the king's family, no titles. Domestic servants are unknown except in hotels, where Germans are employed, for the Serb regards it beneath him or her to be an "employe." That's why most of them farm, or raise pigs, which is the chief source of the small fortunes some of them have. The Serb is not very religious, and many go to church only when a festival is held.

Every grown man has the use of five acres of land, which cannot be taken from him. He may buy other land, but those five acres are "loaned" to him by the government for life, and the products of those acres cannot be taken for debt.

Belgrade, the capital, is the only city; and it is becoming western in style, while the citizens are slowly moving toward European customs.

The men wear loose trousers or knickerbrockers of white frieze, and cardigan waistcoats with sleeves lavishly embroidered. Women wear zouave jackets with loose sleeves, linen skirts, and two highly colored aprons, one in front and the other behind. The aprons look something like small rugs.

The peasant married women dress their hair so it projects in two great ram's horns over their foreheads. The unmarried girl wears a colored handkerchief over her head. The more "fashionable" women wear little red fezzes.

Where the Bulgars are sullen and quiet, the Montenegrins quarrelsome and noisy, the Serbs are merry, light-hearted, contented with very little, and always wear smiles.

WOMAN'S SIX HUSBANDS

Mother and Stepmother of Forty-nine Children, Grandmother of 270

There is a Boer widow residing at Pretoria whose matrimonial record will want a deal of beating. She is Mrs. Thelia M. de Beer, and is now seventy-eight.

At the age of eighteen she married Petrus Jacobus Lubbe, who died, leaving her with one child.

Ten months later she took another husband, a widower with three children. A year and five months afterwards he also died, leaving her with four children.

Within five months she married for the third time, another widower, this time with seven children. With him she lived for eleven years, and had seven children, when he also died.

After five years' widowhood she married for the fourth time, on this occasion a widower with eight children. With him she had four children, and after eleven years he, too, died.

Five years later she married a man named Hendrik Klopper. Another eleven years elapsed, and then her fifth husband died, leaving her with ten children.

In two years' time she contracted another marriage with a widower, who brought five children to swell the family. Another eleven years passed, and he, too, went the way of his five predecessors, his death occuring only recently.

Mrs. de Beer is now the mother and stepmother of forty-nine children and the grandmother of 270.

Paintings by Cave Dwellers

A remarkable archæological discovery was made at Bacon Hole, a few miles west of the Mumbles, Wales, by two distinguished French professors, Messrs. Breuil and Sallas. It consists of paintings which are definitely known to belong to the Aurignacian period—the oldest period of cave dwelling. At the level of the eyes may be seen ten horizontal bands, vivid red, arranged in a vertical series of about one yard in height.

Starved on $40 a Week

Discovered in a semi-conscious state at the House in Kildare Gardens, Bayswater, where she lived alone, Miss Florence Emma Roth, aged sixty, whose solicitor gave evidence that she had been in regular receipt of between $2,000 and $2,500 a year, was found at the inquest to have died of chronic bronchitis, accelerated by self-neglect and want of food.

MOTHERS! DO YOU KNOW—

That when you put a salve onto your child's skin, it passes through the pores and enters the blood, just as surely as if you put it into the child's stomach?

You would not put a coarse mass of animal fat, colored by various mineral poisons (such as many crude salves are) into your child's blood by way of the stomach? Then why do so by way of the pores?

Take no risk. Use always the pure herbal essences provided in Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk contains no trace of any animal oil or fat, and no poisonous mineral coloring matter. From start to finish it is purely herbal.

It will heal sores, ulcers, abscesses, eruptions, varicose ulcers, cuts, burns and bruises more quickly than any other known preparation. It is antiseptic, quickly stops the smarting of a sore or cut, cures piles, inflamed sores and blood-poisoning. It is a combination of healing power and scientific purity. Skeleton of a Viking

What is considered to the skeleton of a Viking was discovered at Reay, on the north coast of the county of Caithness, Scotland. In close proximity was found the buckle of the bridle of a horse. The skeleton was first observed by James Forbes, a potman, while on his rounds. On seeing a human skull protruding from a large sandbank, he acquainted the district inspector of poor, and together they cleared away the sand. The bones were collected and buried in Reay Cemetery.

Taught Mr. Lloyd George to Speak

By the death of Mr. Robert Roberts (Llew Glas), at Abereistedd, Criccieth, Welsh Congregationalism and temperance lost a most active and strenuous supporter. He was seventy-five years of age. He was an apt and fluent public speaker. When the Criccieth Debating Society was started nearly thirty years ago, "Llew Glas" was one of its first members. The membership also included Mr. Lloyd-George, who in a recent speech referred to "Llew" as the man who taught him the art of public speaking.

Decline of Salmon Fisheries

The report of the Departmental Committee on Irish Inland Fisheries emphasizes the importance of salmon fisheries, and states that the changes in the tenure of land have introduced new conditions which bear no promise of improvement or advantage to fisheries. Netting is carried on to an excessive degree, and poaching is widely prevalent. These causes have combined to reduce the stock of fish in the rivers.

Famous Old Church

The fame of Old Greyfriars Church, Edinburgh—within whose walls, on the last day of February, 1638, was signed the epoch-making document, the National Covenant, and in whose pulpit have ministered some very notable men—has prompted the congregation to erect within the church a memorial commemorative of the 300th anniversary of the church's foundation on its present site.

Teeth for Scholars

On its being stated at Cambuslang, Scotland, School Board that $500 had been granted for the medical treatment of poor children, the Rev. SCHOOLBOY KNOWLEDGE

Even after ten years of Canadian publicity in Great Britain it is surprising just how little the British public know of the true conditions of life in Canada. This being the case, it comes less of a shock to read the questions and answers that were asked a seventh standard boy at Norwich, Norfolk, England. They are as follows:

"You have learned a good deal of geography?"—"Yes, sir."

"What do you know about India?"—"It's a very hot country, sir."

"And the Ganges?"—"A big river, sir."

"Anything about it?"—"It has many mouths, called a delta."

"Have you ever heard of the Saskatchewan?"—"A little, sir."

"Where is it?"—"In India, sir."

"Do you know the difference between British Columbia and New Brunswick?"—"Yes, sir."

"What is it?"—"British Columbia is a very large place with a few houses in it, sir. New Brunswick is a place with a lot of houses."

"And where is New Brunswick?"—"Close to London, sir."

TO PROTECT SHEEP

Lantern and Gun Keep Wild Animals at a Distance

A device to protect sheep from the inroads of wolves, coyotes, and other animals is the invention of a Westerner. The machine consists of an automatic gun which shoots a blank carridge every thirty, forty, or sixty minutes, as arranged, while a bull's-eye lantern is so adjusted as to revolve and flash its light in every direction. It makes more than one revolution a minute, operating by means of a coiled spring and cog wheels, a sort of clockwork, in fact. The mechanism is inclosed in a storm and dust proof metal case and mounted on four adjustable legs. It has a weight of 25 pounds, so that it can be carried with the sheepman's outfit with no difficulty.

LOTS OF MOOSE

The Fraser Valley Has an Abundance of Big Game

Mr. John Egger, a well known trapper and homsteader, who made the journey from Tate Cache to Fort George in a dug out, reports that there are 25 moose to the square mile throughout the entire Fraser River Valley. Along the river the banks show innumerable runways which the deer use to get to water. Fort George, Mr. Egger states, is a rapidly growing town with every prospect of becoming the centre of its district. There is a population of 500 or 600 people there at the present time and more are coming in rapidly.

The Dog in Politics

An Italian paper has been collecting instances where dogs were used to influence politics or express the political feelings of their owners. We are told that in 1894, when bilingual teaching was imposed on Istria, dogs were painted black in sign of mourning; in 1897 a candidate for the town councillorship of Milan decorated his Newfoundland with a scroll inscribed: "Vote for the Socialist." The following year this was "imitated" in London, where numbers of dogs wore mantles on which were written "Vote for Chamberlain."

New Idea For Street Cars

Several Canadians were passengers on the first train in the world to be operated by electricity generated by a portable storage battery. The trial took place at New York, and Thomas A. Edison, the "wizard of electricity" who was also present, prophesied that the new system would revolutionize the operation of railroad trains and street cars.

RULED BY KINDNESS

Bostock the Animal Trainer Allowed no Cruelty to Animals

Mr. Frank Bostock, the well-known menagerie proprietor and lion-tamer, who died at Kensington, England, came of a family of showmen, but it was originally intended that he should take holy orders.

He might have done so but for finding during a school vacation that his father's lion-tamer was cruel. One night, as a result of his cruelty, the tamer almost lost his life. The boy asked permission to take the man's place, but the father peremptorily refused. But next day the father found Frank (he was only fifteen) in the lions' cage. He threatened him with a thrashing if he got out of the cage alive. But instead of the thrashing young Bostock was congratulated on his success and was promoted to the trainer's place. Thereafter he was closely identified with the fortunes of the "jungle" which first bore his father's name and afterwards his own.

Of the many desperate adventures with the wild beasts he sought to tame or train the one that came the nearest to costing him his life was in 1905, at a charity performance at the Paris Hippodrome. He attempted the subjugation of Wallace, a lion which had resisted every effort to tame it, and which during its lifetime killed and injured several people.

Immediately Mr. Bostock entered the cage Wallace pinned him against the bars, bit him severely through the left hand and shoulder, and lashed him with his claws. Wallace also bit him in the back, actually grazing his spinal column with his teeth. Mr. Bostock eventually drove the beast into the arena. Then he was taken to hospital, where he remained for many weeks.

On another occasion a lion, after gripping him through the thigh, picked him up in his mouth and carried him to the lady trainer who also was in the cage, then dropped him and walked away.

The late Mr. Bostock always held that kindness was the best policy in training wild animals, and claimed that no cruelty entered into his methods. Discussing his unruly pupils, he once said:—

"In the case of an attack the fire hose is a good expedient for quelling an infuriated animal. Blank cartridges, too, are very effective. I do not allow red hot irons, as I consider they are cruel and often ineffectual.

"A man who contemplates being a trainer must primarily be a lover of animals, he must possess the patience of Job, and the Alpha and Omega of his whole creed must be kindness."

GOLD NUGGETS STOLEN

They Belonged to the Canadian Government's London Office

A daring robbery was committed at the Canadian Government Emigration Offices in Whitehall, near Trafalgar Square, London. In the early morning a policeman patrolling the thoroughfare noticed that the large plate-glass window had been smashed, and investigation showed that a showcase containing ten gold nuggets in the rough, which was displayed in the window, had also been smashed and nine of the nuggets abstracted. The plate-glass had been first smeared with some sticky substance, and a hole made just sufficiently large to allow of the insertion of an arm.

The nuggets were very good specimens in the rough state that the Yukon goldfields produce, but they were small and thin, and their total value was not much more than $50. An official at the office stated that the thief would hardly be able to dispose of the nuggets, except at a trifling figure.

ABOUT THE POTATO

The Irish potato is not Irish at all in its origin. As a matter of fact it was not known in Europe until after Clumbus had discovered America. It is also native to South America and grows wild both in Chile and Buenos Ayres.

It was first shipped to Spain from the neighborhood of Quito in the early part of the sixteenth century; first to England from Virginia in 1586. Sir Walter Raleigh first planted it in Ireland on his estate of Youghal, near the City of Cork. In 1587 it was first planted in Lancashire, England, from Sir Walter Raleigh's gardens.

Sir Walter Raleigh's experience was that he considered, with other people, that the potato was a fruit (pomme de terre) "apple of the earth," and when the plant grew and the seed stock shot forth he perceived the seed balls upon them and concluded that they were the delicious fruit, and upon boiling them found they were not like what he had had, and only discovered his mistake when digging up the ground for other purposes.

Sir Walter upon experimenting found that treble the quantity of potatoes could be raised from the same parcel of ground as of any other vegetable, and immediately the potato became the principal food of the Irish peasantry.

Parmentiere, the great Frenchman, introduced the potato into France under great difficulties. He wanted the French people to adopt the potato as food, but they would not even taste it until conniving with the authorities he succeeded in fooling them into using the potato.

He planted a garden in potatoes and made a big "to do" about them until they were ripe. He then was allowed a detachment of soldiers to guard them. The common people got interested and stole the potatoes from the garden and France became a potato eating country.

DEPENDENT ON CANADA

Without Our Nickel the Big Navies of Europe Could Not Exist

"It has been discovered that Canada possesses the key to the European naval problem," according to an article in Conservation, the bulletin of the Dominion Government. "When Schneider, in 1889, introduced the use of nickel into the manufacture of steel armor plate he little realised that he was placing in Canada's hands a great means for maintaining the peace of the world.

"Battleships without nickel steel armor would be uterly helpless before modern guns. If nickel were no longer obtainable, armor construction would go back a quarter of a century.

"Canada to-day produces about ninety per cent. of the world's supply of nickel. Practically all of the remainder comes from New Caledonia, an island in the southwestern Pacific controlled by France.

"Consequently, if Canada were to prohibit the export of nickel, the nickel steel industry of Europe would fall into decay, and high-grade armor plate for battleships would be an impossibility."

NO NEED FOR SLUMS

Western Cities Given Good Advice by Eminent Nurse

As young as the prairie cities are, some of them have slums already, and others show signs of soon having them. This was the declaration at Edmonton, of Miss Mary Ard MacKenzie, superintendent of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

In this respect, said Miss MacKenzie, Winnipeg was almost notorious, and Yorkton, Saskatchewan, had pronounced symptoms.

Miss Mackenzie advised the cities of the west to start right in their city building. She hates slums with all the vehemence of the woman who knows how disease is bred of pestilence and advocated a law providing that no more than a certain number should be allowed to sleep in and breathe the atmosphere of houses of defined cubic space.

BRITAIN LEADS IN NAVAL POWER

Line-up of the Six Great European Powers Shows Her Apparently Safe Position

There is much food for reflection and many interesting comparisons to be drawn from figures contained in a return issued by the British Admiralty regarding the naval resources of the six leading European Powers. In carefully prepared tables is set down the exact effective sea fighting strength of Great Britain, Germany, France, Italy, Russia, and Austro-Hungary.

Exclusive of dreadnoughts, battle cruisers, armored, protected, or unprotected cruisers on the stocks, and without including 39 torpedo boat destroyers and four torpedo vessels in the yards of the builders, England's mighty fleets, according to the report totalled 557 ships of all classes, every one of which was ready for sea at once or at least within a few hours' notice.

There were 55 battleships and four battle cruisers of the Indomitable class, "mystery ships," as they are termed, 34 comparatively fast armored cruisers, 18 protected cruisers of the first class, 38 protected cruisers of the second class, 16 protected cruisers of the third class, five unprotected cruisers, eight scout vessels, 26 torpedo vessels including special vessels such as depot ships, 179 torpedo boat destroyers, 109 torpedo boats and 65 submarines.

Ranged up alongside the British figures in the report were those of Germany which was shown to have 33 completed battleships, 2 battle cruisers, 9 armored cruisers, 26 second class cruisers, 11 of the third class, 6 unprotected cruisers, 109 torpedo boat destroyers, 80 torpedo boats and 13 submarines; the entire fleet of the Fatherland aggregating 259 vessels not including 59 building to the 75 vessels in the hands of British shipbuilders.

France's Big Navy

It will perhaps come as a surprise to the majority of people to learn that the war fleet of France is just over 50 per cent. better than that of Germany, the Republic being credited with 21 battleships, 21 armored cruisers, 5 protected cruisers, 4 second class armored cruisers, 6 third class cruisers, 2 torpedo vessels, 68 torpedo boat destroyers, 161 torpedo boats, nearly as many as Great Britain's and Germany's combined, and 58 submarines.

Comparing the fighting ships of Russia, Austria-Hungary and Italy, the Admiralty showed that of these three Powers, Italy's fleet was second only to that of Russia, which country despite the few years which have elapsed since the Russo-Japanese War, possesses a fleet which totals 181 commissioned vessels compriing 9 battleships, 6 armored cruisers, 7 first class protected cruisers, 1 second class protected cruiser, 3 torpedo vessels, 95 torpedo boat destroyers, 29 torpedo boats and 29 submarines.

The Italian fleet was composed of 8 battleships, 10 armored cruisers, 2 protected cruisers of the second class, 11 third class cruisers, 3 scouts, 5 torpedo vessels, 22 torpedo boat destroyers, 84 torpedo boats, and 107 submarines, a total of 152 vessels.

Smallest of the Six

The fleet of Austria-Hungary the smallest of the six powers though comprising over 100 vessels was made up of 12 battleships, 3 armored cruisers, 3 second class cruisers, 3 third class cruisers, 11 torpedo vessels, 12 torpedo boat destroyers, 60 torpedo boats and 6 submarines, the whole totalling 113 vessels.

According to a statement of Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, Great Britain experiences little difficulty in finding crews to man her floating fortresses, the Navy offering practically life-long employment with splendid chances of promotion. In each of the last two fiscal years nearly thirteen thousand men and boys were recruited for the service, the figures being almost identical for the two periods.

WHITES AND BLACKS

General Hertzog Suggests Separation in South Africa

Addressing his constituents at Smithfield, in the Orange River Colony, as Minister for Native Affairs, and not as a representative of the Union Ministry as a whole, General Hertzog pronounced himself strongly in favor of the separation of whites and natives.

Europeans would be forbidden to hold land in native territories, and the only whites allowed there would be those who were required by the natives themselves. Natives, however, would not be excluded from fields of labor.

The Minister promised to place a completed scheme before Parliament.

And a tricky man, like a worn-out deck of cards, is hard to deal with.

HAD RHEUMATISM IN ALL MY BONES

"Sometimes I Could Hardly Walk!"
2 Boxes of Gin Pills Cured Me

I SUFFERED from Kidney Trouble for five long years. I also had Rheumatism in all my bones and muscles—could not sleep at night—and sometimes could hardly walk. I was treated by some of our best physicians but without relief. I lost over fifteen pounds, was very weak, and friends, who had not seen me for some time, were astonished. One day, I met one of our leading hotel keepers, who had been cured by Gin Pills, and he advised me to try them, so I bought two boxes at my druggist's.

Before I had used one box, I felt a big change for the better, and before the second box was gone, I was completely cured.

I assure you I can hardly believe it for if I had known what I know now about Gin Pills, I would not have spent over one hundred dollars for nothing, when two boxes of Gin Pills cured me.

A Sturdy Centenarian

"It's a grand thing to be alive and have good health," is the philosophy of Mr. William Brown, of Mottingham Farm, near Eltham, England, who maintains towards life an outlook of invincible optimism, and who is now over 102 years old.

"I eat well and sleep well," he confessed, "and can smoke my cigar and take my glass of grog with any man. I'm getting a trifle more dull in my ears, but it comforts me to know I never turned a deaf ear to any who were in want. I am glad to think there are some to-day who are better off because I gave them a helping hand."

Mr. Brown, when he grows reminiscent, has memories worth the telling. Among his early acquaintances was George Stephenson, the great engineer—"the best of all the Georges," he calls him. "I had many a talk with him, and helped him to make the railway from Liverpool to Chester, and I helped him to unload the first engine that ran on the Great Western to Maidenhead."

Mr. Brown's memory is as sound as his health. He recalls that he earned his first money when, at the age of eleven years, he worked on the construction of the first railway from Chester to Liverpool. He was a keen and industrious worker, and later, as a contractor, he laid a line of railway from Erith to Woolwich.

Mr. Brown is very proud of the fact that he rose entirely without influence, by his own unaided efforts. He took Mottingham Farm in 1832. Thirty years ago he started a "Beggars' Rest," where he gave a night's lodging to destitute wayfarers.

The old gentleman is farming 105 acres of land rented from the Crown, and in addition to this at one time he worked a farm of 400 acres, and never kept an account or put a figure on paper. Yet he knew his expenditure and income to a penny. "You can," he said, "if you keep things in your own hands and be master in your own house." Mr. Brown was born in Buckinghamshire.

RECALLS ORTH MYSTERY

Servant of Long Missing Archduke Dies of Broken Heart

The death from a broken heart is reported of the major domo of "Johann Orth," the Austrian Archduke Johann Salvator, who quitted titles, possessions, and honors twenty-two years ago and disappeared after sailing for South America with an operatic singer whom he had married.

Herr Franz Mayerhofer was left in charge of the estates of the archduke when he abandoned his royal rank in 1890. Among the castles possessed by the archduke was one standing on an island of the lake of Gmunden, in Upper Austria. Here valuable art treasures were stored.

The castles and the treasures in them are now to be sold, and the major domo, who cared for every single possession of the archduke with reverent care for so many years, pined away and died on hearing that the treasures were to be scattered.

THE SUPERIOR TURK

Marshal von der Goltz, who was responsible for the reorganization of the Turkish army under Abdul Hamid gives this reason for its high fighting quality—that every Turk feels himself to be a member of a ruling race, immeasurably superior to the Christian nationalities about him. This feeling of intense pride sustains him in battle. He comes of a hardy peasant stock inured to privation and open-air life. He is usually familiar with the use of arms from childhood. All that he needs to assimilate when he joins the ranks is the more mechanical part of discipline.

THE KING'S GUNNER

Old Soldier who Has Hoisted Windsor Castle Flag for 53 Years

Gunner Samuel Parsons, aged eighty-eight, recently celebrated the fifty-third anniversary of his appointment as the King's Gunner at Windsor Castle. He lives in the Round Tower, his chief duty being to hoist the flag over the castle.

He is still on the active list of the Army, and is probably the oldest soldier in England. He joined the Royal Regiment of Artillery in 1825, and went through the Crimean war. He remembers going over the battlefield after the charge of Balaclava.

After returning from the war he went to Windsor Castle as Royal Gunner.

Treasurer Unable to Read

George Smith, general secretary of the Datallers and Surfacemen's Union, was at Leigh, Lancashire, fined $10 and costs for withholding $7.50 of the society's money. He received money from various local secretaries, spent some on drink, and fled to Northumberland.

It was stated that Smith "could not read or write well," and the treasurer could not read.

Like Ontario's System

Two State Commissions, from California and Maryland respectively looked into Ontario's system of handling prison reform methods as exemplified by the prison farm in Guelph and their verdict was:

"Ontario has spoken the last word in prison reformatory methods, at least so far as we have yet met, and we have been on the work for some time. The working of the institution and the results attained are a revelation." Both the above named states contemplate the reorganization of prison methods along the lines of Ontario's system.

Mr. A. J. Forgue, Labelle Street, Montreal, writes, under date 13 Oct: "My little daughter, born Aug. 15th., likes Neaves Food very much. She is a bunch of fat."

Mrs. J. Fallon of Whitby, Ont., says "Neave's Food is the only food that has agreed with our little boy. He is brighter, and his flesh is firmer, since taking it."

Neave's Food has been the standard Infant's Food in Great Britain for more than 85 years.

LOOK TO CANADA FOR A NEW START

How the London Emigration Officials Sift the Fit From the Unfit Would-be Canadians

A visit to the various Canadian emigration offices in London brings one into contact with the many types of Britons who are contemplating settlement in the Dominion and affords an interesting insight into the methods of selection adopted by the officials.

What kind of men and women are these candidates for a new life in a new country? The best and perhaps the worst types. It is the business of the emigration officials to see that only the best go. Here is a prematurely old man, he says he is 40; his face speaks of the privations and troubles of three score years. With earnestness that is pathetic, he pleads that he is able and willing to take up the arduous work of a Canadian farm. Indeed it is his only escape from starvation, for he cannot obtain work in the old land. This "case" can be decided instantly. To the discerning official his undeveloped physique and enfeebled frame render him unfit for Canadian farming.

The next is of the right type. A country lad, 16 years old; a six footer with the thews and muscles of one who has guided the plough from early boyhood. He is from Somersetshire where he earned $3 a week and kept himself and he is after $30 a month and board in Canada. This man is secured right away.

The "Knowall"

Along comes a type which is not liked very much in Canada, at least until he has learned not to emphasize his opinions. With all the assertiveness of the Londoner he, even at this stage, tells the man he has come to for information what he knows about Canada. In a mental vision one can see him telling the Canadian farmer "the best way to do it." The official loses no time in assuring him that his best interests will be served if he is prepared to do things in the way Canadians want them done. "Excellent material," says the official, "he will be all right after a few months in the Dominion."

Then, there is the country gentleman with property who is disposing of his estate which has been in the family for centuries. Here is an old colonel, sunburnt from a score of years in India. He wants his son to go to Canada. "I don't want him pampered, sir, but if he gets in with the right people he will succeed," says the old soldier.

The Case of the Women

A deeper note is struck with the women. Here is one from London's fashionable quarter. Cultured and with the poise of a woman of breeding she is concerned about her son and wants him to go to Canada for his own good. A mother's tragedy is here. If he can get away from his "set" he will be all right. And so the prairies offer the solution, and the mother's pain of parting from her boy is lost in the feeling that if he remains the future will hold a greater grief.

Then we see a woman with a family of no less than eight children. The official's eyes glisten when he hears this. They are country born; robust and healthy. One sturdy youngster of 16 has the sinews of a man, and he is prepared to take the place as breadwinner of the father, who is dead. They are all right and Canada will welcome them. A brave wife whose husband has lost heart in the unsuccessful struggle for a living is the next candidate. She is prepared to mend the family fortunes by taking a place as a domestic servant in Canada.

And so on in an endless procession. One is welcomed; another is warned not to go to Canada. In this way the officials prevent many undesirables from reaching the Dominion. It is the most interesting and perhaps the most valuable Canadian work done in Great Britain.

War and Perfume Prices

It is feared that perfumes may prove more costly because of the Balkan war, inasmuch as Bulgaria is practically the sole source of the supply of attar of roses.

The demand for attar of roses is very great, for it is used in making many kinds of perfumes, favored by society women. It is stated that 150 pounds of rose leaves are required to give one ounce of the precious attar. The principal stills are at Kazanlik, in eastern Roumelia, which, at the time of the battle of Plevna, belonged to Italy.

Lady Shot in Motor Bus

At Ruthin, Wales, Wilfrid Hall, a fifteen-year-old boy was summoned for using an airgun without a licence. A pellet from the gun struck a Miss Felix, who at the time was a passenger on a motor bus. Miss Felix had to undergo an operation to extract the pellet. The Bench fined the boy $1.25, and emphasised the fact that a licence was required for an airgun.

If a man and woman are one it is because they are tied for first place.

It may be all right for a woman to have a past, if it will only stay past.

LIVED A CENTURY IN WONDERFUL AGE

Marvellous Progress of Canada and Whole World in One Long Life-time

A wonderful span of life was that of John Pipher, of Toronto, who died at the ripe old age of 103. During his life-time Canada grew from a series of little-valued colonies to a united nation. Many of the greatest inventions were achieved. A few events might be recalled to illustrate the happenings of this one life-time.

Although further importation of slaves into Upper Canada had been forbidden in 1793, slavery still existed in York (Toronto) until two years after John Pipher was born.

He was three years old when the war of 1812 took place; twenty-eight when the insurrection of 1837 took place. He remembered it well.

He was thirty-two when responsible government was achieved, with the union of Upper and Lower Canada.

He was far past the ordinary "prime of life"—a man of 58—at Confederation.

He had lived under George III., the Regency, George IV., Victoria, Edward VII., George V.

There were 25 Governors of Canada and Governors-General of the Dominion during his lifetime.

The Accommodation, the first steamer to navigate the St. Lawrence, made the journey from Montreal to Quebec, three days being consumed in making the down-trip of 180 miles.

At that time the only canals in Canada were the Coteau du Lac, Cascades, and Sault Ste. Marie.

John Pipher was a lad of sixteen when George Stephenson completed the first railway in England. He was twenty-seven when the first railway was opened in Canada, namely, the Champlain and St. Lawrence.

A Canadian-built vessel, the Royal William, had the distinction of being the first in the world to cross the Atlantic by steam power alone. But Pipher was a man of twenty-four when that occurred.

Up to the date of his birth, there had been only fifteen newspapers established in Canada.

St. John, N.B., was the only incorporated city.

There were probably six hundred souls in York (Toronto), and 80,000 white in Upper Canada.

The first Canadian bank note was not issued until Pipher was eight years old.

He was thirty-eight when the first telegraph wires were strung in Canada; sixty-eight—almost at the allotted plan—when Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone.

DOOR 300 YEARS OLD

Unique Relic of French Regime in an Ancient Montreal Mansion

In the process of rebuilding Montreal, many of the memorials which have come down from the early French regime have disappeared; but in odd nooks and corners one may still encounter a bit of the antique, looking out of the mediæval centuries.

The old Lacroix building on St. Jean Baptiste street is an instance of remarkable preservation.

The old place, with the sloping roofs, dormer windows, walls four feet thick and quaint old-world air, is intact.

It was originally both residence and warehouse. Mr. Lacroix was a fur trader, and south of the private residence is the old warehouse in which the furs where stored. The dwelling is of the old colonial style. The light comes in through the diamond panes, the roof slopes over the pavement. The cellar is almost fathomless. Cellars were built in those days not merely for storage, but protection. The civilization of the colony was young. There was constant fighting with the Indians. Uprisings were to be apprehended.

But the Gallic buoyancy could not be wholly suppressed, even amid danger; and the ball room of the Lacroix building is pointed to as an evidence of gay social life conducted with all the more zest in that it was liable to be interrupted at any moment.

The doorway of the Lacroix house possesses an antiquarian interest. It is carved by hand, and has been in its present place unimpaired nearly three centuries. Glass has been put into the panels of the door for utilitarian purposes, but otherwise the door and lintels remain intact.

It is proposed to remove the woodwork of the old door to the Chateau de Ramezay, and this will probably be done when the ancient building is demolished to make room for a more modern structure.

Lifting Pig Iron With Magnet

It is quite a common practice to use lifting magnets for handling furnace pig iron. Usually the pigs are stacked horizontally and not many of them can be lifted at a time because a relatively small number can be brought into contact with the magnet. Someone recently hit upon the idea of stacking the pigs vertically, so that the face of the magnet will touch a greater number of pigs. It was found that by this method, the lifting capacity of a magnet which heretofore was able to raise only 1,000 pounds of pig iron was increased to 2,000 pounds.

Electric Hats Now

A late invention, used abroad, is a scheme for keeping cool in hot weather. A fan is attached to a small storage battery, which is fastened in the crown of top hats, the fan working just above the head. The motor is started by touching a switch in the rim.

A girl of ten hates to be kissed almost as much as a girl of twenty doesn't.

Funeral of The Spanish Premier

MADRID, Nov. 14.—The body of the Spanish premier, Jose Canalejas, was entombed in the Spanish Pantheon yesterday afternoon with the highest national honors. The entire nation is in mourning and all civil life and business was suspended in Madrid until after the ceremony.

King Alfonso, accompanied by Prince Charles of Bourbon-Siciles, and Prince Ferdinand of Bavaria, Infants of Spain, walked behind the hearse from the Chamber of Deputies, to the Pantheon, while 250,000 persons stood with uncovered heads in tribute to the dead Premier. The members of the diplomatic corps and an official from every department of the government attended the funeral.

The press, of all shades of opinion, condemns the assassination and lauds Senor Canalejas as the finest type of Spaniard, who, in addition to being a great statesman, had devoted himself to the amelioration of the condition of the poor. The Republican press protests against the assertion that the assassination represented an attempt to avenge the execution of Ferrer.

Manuel Pardinas, the assassin, died, according to the police, without making any statement. The exact motives for the deed, therefore, remains a mystery.

Rubber Atrocities Are Disclosed

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Further disclosures as to the Putumayo rubber field atrocities were made by Sir Roger Casement, the British Consul-General at Rio de Janiero, who was sent by the British government to the Amazon district of South America to investigate the stories of outrages.

Sir Roger was called to give testimony before the select committee of the British parliament appointed to investigate the matter. He testified with frankness that the $23,000 appearing on the books of the Peruvian-Amazon Company as owing to the company by the Peruvian Consul-General was a bribe.

He repeated the evidence contained in his report as to the terrible treatment of the natives, for which he said the Arana brothers were responsible. The system of punishment meted out to the natives, he declared, was deliberately designed, and did not grow up by chance by error, or by ignorance. The Peruvian, but not the British, directors of the company, he asserted, were aware of the conditions.

And even the little Malay States have offered the price of a Dreadnought to Imperial naval defence, without any "autonomy" string attached thereto. It is up to Canada to make a contribution worthy of its name.

Halifax Dockyard Saw Some Stirring Scenes During its Early Days

From its very beginning, Halifax, Nova Scotia, was destined to be a Naval station for British ships, its natural advantages claiming every right to that honor, and by way of recognition of this suitability there was established, in 1758, the beginnings of the dockyard.

In 1758-9 Halifax was the rendezvous for an army and navy meant to attack the positions of the French in Canada and the Dockyard, then furnished with a careening wharf and mast house, played a part by no means unimportant in the fitting out of the vessels destined to win for the British Empire the whole of Canada. Up to the close of the war in 1763, Halifax was the rendezvous of many transports and ships of the line who kept the Dockyard busy supplying and repairing them.

In 1765 a lot of land adjoining the north end of the naval yard was granted by Montague Wilmot, captain-general and Governor of Nova Scotia, to the Right Hon. Alex. Covill, rear-admiral and commander-in-chief and his heirs and successors in the command for extension of the naval yard.

In 1783 John Pan, captain-general and governor-in-chief of Nova Scotia, granted a lot of about 20 acres to George Thomas, naval storekeeper, and to John Haliburton, surgeon, and agent for hurt and sick seamen of H.M. Royal Navy. In 1770 the excavation earth from the citadel was used to fill up the southern end of the yard. In 1790 five and one half acres adjoining the yard were deeded over to the naval authorities by the executors of Joshua Mager. In 1784 a new naval hospital was erected.

The difference between France and England during the Napoleonic Wars led to no small number of marine engagements between the rival nations and their allies in American waters, and the Dockyard lived in stirring times. Shattered ships of war were repaired and re-fitted, and foreign prizes made into British ships of the line. Prison hulks were anchored off the busy wharves and French and Spanish prisoners kept on board.

The most noticeable feature of that period was the arrival in port in the year 1813 of the British ship-of-war the Shannon, accompanied by her prize, the Chesapeake, which she worsted in the battle of the 1st of June, 1813. The two ships anchored off the Dockyard, and the wounded men were taken ashore and cared for.

On New Year's Day, 1907, the H.M. Dockyard passed into the possession and control of the Dominion government, and the keys were handed over by the Imperial officer in charge to the representatives of the Canadian government.

PRESS GANG DAYS

Manning the Navy Was Different in Nelson's Time From To-day

One of the complaints that are heard as to the British navy to-day is that it is undermanned because it is underpaid. In the days of Nelson the pay was a matter that received little consideration.

The news of a shortage of men in the Navy and the hint of action by the Admiralty would put the merchantman on guard. Towards the end of the eighteenth century, for instance, there was a call for sailors for the Navy, and "persuasion" was the rule. "The press in the Thames for the last three days has been very severe. Five or six hundred seamen have been laid hold of." Thus runs one of many entries in the papers of the period. It was not always peaceful "pressing" as this item in the "Times" of 1795 will prove. "There was a very hot press on the river on Friday night last, when several hundred able seamen were procured. One of the gangs, in boarding a Liverpool trader, were resisted by the crew, when a desperate affray took place, in which many of the former were thrown overboard, and the lieutenant who boarded them killed by a shot from the vessel."

Bought Canadian Land

One of the largest individual land deals ever effected in England was completed when Lord Joicey, an owner of extensive collieries in the Newcastle district, and one of the wealthiest Liberal peers bought nearly 24,000 acres of mixed farming and dairy farming land in the vicinity of Fort George, B.C., for which he paid $450,000.

MILLIONS OF BOOKS

Dr. Fortescue, Keeper of Them Retiring From British Museum

Dr. G. K. Fortescue, the Keeper of Printed Books at the British museum, whose retirement is announced after forty-two years' service, related some of his impressions of nearly half a century's experience in one of the most famous institutions in the world.

"I came here in June, 1870," he said. "It was just four years after the retirement of Sir Antony Panizzi, who was really the founder of the library in the condition in which we have it now. When he entered upon the office of Keeper of Printed Books in 1837, he found about 250,000 books in the library.

"During my time I have seen an increase to the library of 2,000,000 books. When I came it had only one rival, the Bibliotheque Nationale of Paris, but now we have between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 books, while they have 3,500,000. The Royal library at St. Petersburg has 1,900,000; Berlin, 1,400,000; Munich, 1,100,000; and Vienna, 1,000,000. The library of Congress at Washington has 1,700,000. These are the largest libraries in the world, so that although we are the youngest of the great libraries of Europe, we are also the largest."

A BALACLAVA STORY

Another of the rapidly-diminishing band of survivors of the Light Brigade charge at Balaclava passed away at Thornton Heath in the person of Henry Herbert, who, a few months ago, although he was seventy-eight, began to write an account of his adventures, which, however, he was unable to finish.

At the battle of Balaclava Herbert saw Captain Nolan gallop up to Lord Lucan, after which horses were mounted. According to Herbert's account, Lord Lucan came in front of the Light Brigade and said, "Keep your horses well in hand, men, and when you get amongst them skiver them well."

On the question whether the "Charge!" was sounded or not, Herbert's account was that the first order was "Walk," followed by "Trot." So galling became the fire that the brigade spontaneously broke into a gallop, and then into the "Charge," without it having been sounded by the trumpets. Other survivors, he claimed, bore him out in that particular. He came out of the fray unscathed. Another man who got back safely was flogged with the "cat" for leaving his post in camp without leave to join in the charge.

For ten years Herbert was chairman of the Balaclava Committee. He was three times married, and had twenty-four children.

BETSY'S FIRST PLACE

By Owen Lott

The Moffatts, who lived three doors away, had just become the proud owners of a motor-car, and little Mrs. Pendleton's soul was wrung with envy. Mr. Pendleton endeavored to console her by pointing out that she was now indisputably the best-dressed woman in the street; Mrs. Moffatt, till then her greatest rival, having taken to wearing a cap like a German bandsman's, a voluminous dust-coat, and a veil like a perforated blanket.

Mrs. Pendleton refused to be comforted, however; indeed, she was slightly hurt at the nature of the consolation.

"I always did dress better than she!" she declared. "Look at the hats she used to wear! Besides if Mr. Moffatt can afford a motor, I don't see why we can't!"

Mr. Pendleton gruffly pointed out that Moffatt earned twice his income, and, furthermore, had no family. He offered to drop into Long Acre and see if he could manage to change the twins for a second-hand car.

Mrs. Pendleton hysterically said it was inhuman of him to suggest such a thing even in fun; if it were meant in fun, she added, darkly suspicious.

Mr. Pendleton, omitting his farewell kiss for the first time since their marriage, stalked out of the room and slammed the door in a manner which hinted that he had gone forever.

As he passed the Moffatt's house he was waylaid by Mr. Moffatt—in pre-motor days the best-dressed man in the city—clad in a blue dungaree overall suit, his face and hands like an impressionist picture in oil.

"Haven't such a thing as a spanner about you?" said Mr. Moffatt.

Mr. Pendleton, with biting sarcasm, regretted that he had forgotten to bring one with him that morning.

"Taking a day off?" he asked, recoiling from Mr. Moffatt's proffered hand.

"Can't find time for the city nowadays," explained Mr. Moffatt. "Chap I bought the car from said a child could look after it. Suppose I'm too old for it, or something. Quite sure you haven't a spanner?"

Mr. Pendleton assured him that the nearest approach he had to anything of that sort was a pair of nell-clippers, and, again avoiding the friendly but greasy hand, continued his journey, leaving Mr. Moffatt gloomily wondering why everybody shunned him nowadays.

Shortly after Mr. Pendleton's departure, Betsy entered the breakfast-room, and found her mistress tearfully sympathizing with the twins because they could not go for nice rides in "honk-honks" like other people.

"They'd rather have their pram, mum," said Betsy.

"Prams have to be pushed," said Mrs. Pendleton pessimistically.

"So have motor-cars," returned Betsy; "and they're a deal heavier."

"Good cars," said her mistress, with as much assurance as an automobile advertisement, "practically never break down."

Betsy shook her head sceptically.

Owing to Mrs. Pendleton suffering from an acute attack of motoritis—a malady which keeps the sufferer awake all night, and also the patient's husband—Mr. Pendleton rose the next morning with his mind made up.

"We can't possibly afford to keep a car," he announced at the breakfast-table, "but I'll hire one this afternoon and take you out for a spin."

"Run into a brick wall with it," said Betsy, sotto voce, "and then you'll have to keep it."

"So you and the twins be ready about two o'clock. Mind you're punctual, because I shall hire it by the hour."

Betsy, passing behind her master with a dish of kidneys, nearly upset them down his back in her anxiety to catch her mistress's eye.

Mr. Pendleton, as the dish caught him a crack on the head, turned and eyed her.

"Oh, yes," he said, rubbing his head, "you're to come, too, to look after the twins!"

Betsy smiled her gratification, and it was only with an effort that she restrained herself from giving his head a soothing pat.

Promptly at two o'clock, Betsy, so disguised with an enormous pair of goggles that, to use her own words, "you wouldn't tell her from a real lady," seated herself with the twins in the rear seat.

Mr. Moffatt, as they drove past, hailed them cheerfully.

"Thinking of going in for one?" he asked, with a wave of his hand.

"Yes," said little Mrs. Pendleton, with a bright smile. "Well, we are thinking about it, Ted," she defended herself, as her husband eyed her rebukingly. "When they make you a partner we'll get one."

For several hours they careered along, to Mrs. Pendleton's huge delight, until Mr. Pendleton drew up at a small village to lay in a supply of petrol for the return journey.

While he went into a motor shop, Mrs. Pendleton alighted, and at her suggestion the twins were placed in the front seat to see if they displayed an aptitude for motoring.

Presently Mrs. Pendleton went into the shop to see what was detaining her husband, while Betsy continued the lesson.

"That's the wheel you steer with," she explained, bending over the back of the seat. "I don't know what all these silly handles and things are for. Yes, that's a pretty brass handle, duckie; but don't touch it."

Leaning forward to check the baby's hand, she nearly lost her balance, and, in recovering it, clutched at the starting lever.

Quite unexpectedly the car started, and, with a loud scream, Betsy clambered over and hurriedly seized the steering-wheel.

With a loud cry of "Ted!" Mrs. Pendleton set off in frantic pursuit as the car shot down the road. Mr. Pendleton, seeing what had happened, darted out of the shop, still clinging to a can of petrol, and wildly joined in the chase. The shopkeeper and two assistants, as they saw their petrol disappearing, followed with lusty yells.

Betsy, holding the twins in with her knee and one hand, did some miraculous feats of steering with the other, and, with a frenzied cry for somebody to stop her, disappeared round the corner.

A young lady who was seated farther up the road in a car, waiting patiently for her fiance to reappear with a stock of petrol, gave a shriek of dismay as she saw Betsy zig-zag past. But, loud as that shriek was, it was nothing to the one she gave when Mrs. Pendleton, white-faced and with blazing eyes, dashed up and sprang into the car.

"My children!" she gasped, ignoring the amazed occupant. Fumbling wildly amongst the levers, she had just started the car on what would have been a career of destruction, when Mr. Pendleton clambered in and took charge of the wheel. Wasting no time in explanations, he set off in hot pursuit.

A pale, languid young man, strolling leisurely out of a shop near by, bearing a can of petrol, was just in time to see both his car and his fiance suddenly disappear.

The mildest man would be annoyed at having his motor stolen but when his future wife happens to be in the car, annoyance becomes positive anger.

"There's a bloke gone off with my petrol!" panted the shopkeeper, hurrying on the scene.

"Petrol!" cried the young man wildly. "He's got my car and my girl!"

Hurriedly re-entering the shop, he made frenzied bids for the fastest car they had. Three minutes later, a blood-thirsty avenger, he set out in pursuit.

Betsy, all unconscious of the rapidly lengthening tail which was wagging after her, was devoting all her mind to keeping her car with the precious twins in the middle of the road.

Country drivers are notoriously and mulishly obstinate as to their rights on the King's highway, but when they heard Betsy's furious "Honk-honk!" and caught sight of her bearing down upon them, they didn't stop to argue as to who was on the right side of the road. They just pulled into the hedge as quickly as possible, and breathed prayers of thanksgiving when they found themselves safely there.

A young policeman, with a keen desire for the safety of the public, endeavored to bar Betsy's wild flight by standing in the middle of the road with his arms outstretched. For one moment he stood there, as cold and as stern as Fate, and then, his nerves failing, he gave a yell of alarm and dived for the nearest ditch. By the time he had recovered himself the tail of Betsy's comet had passed, and it was with a trembling hand that he jotted down the number of the pale, languid young man by mistake.

Ten miles farther on the petrol of Betsy's car became exhausted and, nearly fainting, she clambered thankfully to the ground. Picking up the twins, she tottered to the nearest cottage.

A few minutes later Mr. and Mrs. Pendleton and the young lady dashed upon the scene. Another minute and the languid young man also alighted.

"My babies!" shrieked Mrs. Pendleton, gazing wildly around for the remnants.

The young man, too furious for speech, could only clutch his fiance in a vice-like grip and shake his fist threateningly at Mr. Pendleton.

Mrs. Pendleton was on the verge of fainting, when Betsy stepped calmly out from a cottage door.

"They've just had some milk," she said softly, "and now they've dropped into a nice sound sleep. They're tired, poor little mites! And I'm sure," she added frankly, "I don't wonder at it."

After apologizing to the young man, Mr. Pendleton asked his wife if she were ready to return.

"Yes," said Mrs. Pendleton decisively; "but Betsy, the babies, and I are going by train. I never want to see another motor as long as I live. And don't you dare," she added, with true feminine disregard for facts, "ever to suggest buying one again!"

And there are people who make a specialty of telling the truth only when they think it will be equivalent to a sting.

SOME SMOKE

Mistress (to maid):—"I understand that you had company yesterday afternoon, Mary. Who was it?"

Mary:—"Only my Aunt Nelly, mum."

Mistress:—"Well, when you see her again, Mary, kindly tell her that she left her tobacco-pouch and matches on the piano."

VERY GOOD REASON

Two young men were lunching together when one of them mentioned a mutual acquaintance.

"Brown is a good fellow, no doubt," said the other a little stiffly, "but somehow or other he never appealed to me."

"I suppose he knew it wouldn't be any use," murmured the first speaker. "You are usually broke!"

ALL THE DIFFERENCE

"The only thing I find against you is that your washing bill is far too extravagant. Last week you had six blouses in the wash. Why, Jane, my own daughter never sends more than two."

"Ah, that may be, mum," replied Jane, "but I 'ave to! Your daughter's sweetheart is a bank clerk, while my young man is a chimbly-sweep. It makes a difference, mum."

THE DIFFERENCE

A certain truant officer recently made a call at the home of a pupil whose absence had extended over a week and inquired of the lad's mother, a genial-looking Irishwoman, the cause.

"Why," she said, 'he's now past his thirteenth year, an' me an' 'is father-r think he's afther-r having schooling enough, sor."

"Schooling enough?' repeated the officer. "Why, I did not finish my education until I was twenty-three."

"Be that so?" asked the mother, in amazement. Then, reassuringly, after a moment's thoughtful pause: "Well, sor, yez see, that boy of ours has b-brains."

SILK HATS IN CHINA

Republican Congress Decided Question of Dress and Salutation

Ten sessions of the Republican Congress in Pekin were devoted to the question of dress. One whole day was given over to the trying on of hats, and all possible and impossible fashions of men's and women's clothing were displayed and examined. The results of this painstaking investigation may be gathered from the following resume of the laws passed:—

1. All Chinese officials, without any distinction of rank, shall wear European clothing. This shall consist of black walking coat, top hat of Chinese silk, and patent leather shoes. No mention is made of trousers. On ordinary occasions a derby hat may be worn.

2. Non-office-holding persons shall also dress as above on festivals.

3. Those belonging to the military, police and to the judicial and student bodies shall wear the prescribed uniforms.

4. Women shall use European hats, but otherwise retain their customary dress with certain modifications.

The etiquette of greetings was defined as follows:—Ordinary greeting, hat off, bow once; official greeting, hat off, bow three times. Women keep their hats on.

FOUND HUMAN BONES

Tragedy of Half a Century Ago Revealed Near Kingston

A sensation was furnished at Stones Corners, about twenty miles from Kingston, Ont., when workmen found human bones secreted in a cave through which they were making a cut.

Dr. Stewart of that place believed the bones to be those of a girl of about fifteen years of age. Beside the body eight buckles such as a girl would use were found. One of the old residents of the neighborhood called to mind that a young girl was reported missing about forty-five years ago, but could not recall her name. At the time the girl disappeared it was believed she had lost her way in the woods or had been devoured by wolves. The buckles found were of old fashioned style. Dr. Stewart gave it as his opinion that the bones had been in the cave for forty or fifty years.

A Cornwall Mystery

While overseeing the digging up of a street in Cornwall, Ont., to permit of the extension of the wajer works system, the superintendent, Mr. Charles Lount, left two great iron crowbars standing against the side of the excavation. He crossed the street to look after another section of the work, and when he reurned a few minutes later one of the bars had sunk completely out of sight and the other one was only a few inches above the surface.

One of the bars was recovered, but although a depth of four feet was sounded the other could not be found, having gone beyond reach.

Substitute for Bridges

Owing to the great width of the North and South Saskatchewan Rivers, the cost of bridging them is very high, and in order to provide the settlers with access to their markets the Government maintains an ever increasing number of ferries across these streams. There are upwards of forty of these ferries under operation.

Guide to Motorists

The directors of the Ontario Motor League sent to their sign committee a proposal to put a band of paint on posts to designate the various roads. The scheme is to use paint instead of sign boards, which are often knocked down and otherwise destroyed so tha the tourists lose their way. The League will put a band of paint on poles and fences along the route.

Impatience is the father of inefficiency.

Truth is stranger than fiction and equally dangerous.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIO SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOV. 17, 1912.

The Great Question. Mark viii:27—ix:1.

Golden Text—Thou art Christ, the Son of the Living God. Matt. xvi:16.

(1) Verse 27—Where was Caetarea Phillipi situated, and what class of people were its inhabitants?

(2) Why did Jesus want to know who the people said he was?

(3) Is it right or wrong, and why, for us to be anxious about what the people say of us?

(4) Verse 28—Why did the people think Jesus was either John, Elijah or one of the prophets? (See Matt. xiv:2.)

(5) In view of the fact that prior to this they had been saying he was the Christ, why were they not now saying so? (See John i:41; iv:42; Mark iii:11-12; v:7.)

(6) Why did not Jesus publicly declare himself as the Christ and why did he refuse to let them make him king? (See John vi:15.)

(7) If Jesus at this time was not fulfilling the national expectations of the people concerning the Messiah what effect would that have upon the opinions the people had of him?

(8) Verse 29.—What evidence have we today that Jesus is the Christ of God? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(9) How did Peter know that Jesus was Christ? (See Matt. xvi:15-17)

(10) Peter and the other apostles had known before that Jesus was Christ, but how does his declaration here differ from his former belief? (See Matt. xiv:33; ix:27; xii:23.)

(11) There is belief and belief, but what is the only way to reach the supreme conviction that Jesus is the Christ? (See I. Cor. xii:3.)

(12) Verse 30—Why, seeing Jesus came to the earth as the Christ, did he forbid them to make that fact known?

(13) Verse 31—When we are thwarted in doing our work in the best way, the way in which we had planned, what should we then do, and why?

(14) Would Christ have preferred that they had accepted him as their Saviour rather than rejecting him? Why?

(15) Was it God's original purpose or not, and why, that the Jews should reject and crucify Jesus?

(17) Verses 32-33—Wherein consisted Peter's folly in differing with Jesus?

(17 If Jesus at this time had adopted Peter's view what would that have led him to?

(18) Verses 34-35—Why is it that no man can be a follower of Jesus without self-denial and suffering?

(19) What is the nature of the self denial and the suffering which all true Christians must endure?

(20) Verses 36-37—What is the most priceless possession a man has?

(21) To what extent of loss should a man go if essential to the salvation of his soul?

(22) If a millionaire dies without salvation and a poor man dies trusting Christ, what will be the difference in their wealth in eternity?

(23) Verse 38—What is it to be ashamed of Christ, and what will it be to be rejected by him?

(24) ix:1—How did some of those that stood there witness "the kingdom of God come with power?"

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

Vol. 46 BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1912. No. 168

Students Act Like Hooligans

TORONTO, Nov. 16.—About 250 students, meds, dentists, and school, all freshmen, went on a rampage last evening, in lieu of a trip to Ottawa.

They assembled in the 'Varsity grounds, whence they proceeded to the Gayety Theatre, where they filled the gods. They then showed what students could do in the way of disturbance. When the people in the lower part of the house objected the students pelted them with various small articles, until the manager requested them to desist.

They students subsequently broke up a dance at the Harbord Collegiate. Their courage failed on the appearance of the police and they went home.

Never Speak As They Pass By

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.—Wm. Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, and Champ Clark, of Missouri, no longer speak as they pass by.

Men close to Speaker Clark declare that he holds the Nebraskan responsible for his defeat at Baltimore, and that he will have nothing to do with Byran personally or politically in the future.

Friends of the Speaker are inclined to be resentful over a statement made a day or so ago by Bryan that Mr. Clark should be re-elected presiding officer of the House. They say that Mr. Clark was assured of another term before Mr. Bryan had anything to say to the public.

Just how President Wilson will be able to steer clear of the controversy that is certain to be waged between Bryan and the House leader is a matter of lively concern among the Democrats.

Declare 80,000 Killed and Wounded

LONDON, Nov. 16.—A report through Bucharest places the Bulgarian losses in the war at a far greater figure than has yet been estimated. According to this report the killed and wounded between 60,000 and 80,000 out of a total of 320,000 men, and it is pointed out, after allowance is made for holding the line of communication open, only 160,000 effective fighting men are left for fighting

One reason which is considered likely to induce Bulgaria to consent to an armistice and to a peace settlement is fear of cholera. Official reports issued at Constantinople represent that comparatively few cases are occurring daily, but other reports say that the epidemic is serious, with a high mortality.

Cold-Blooded Villainy

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 16.—For the first time since the twenty-one persons were killed in the blowing up of the Los Angeles Times building on October 1, 1910, James B. McNamara's detailed confession to Ortie McManigal of how he caused the explosion, with his motives for doing it, and his comments on the fact that so many people were killed, was related on the witness stand in the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday.

Ortie E. McManigal testified the confession was given to him while he was hiding with McNamara in the woods five miles from Conover, Wis., both of them having gone to the Wisconsin woods on the pretext of hunting.

Olaf A. Tveitmoe and Eugene L. Clancy, San Francisco labor leaders, McManigal testified, were named by McNamara as having made arrangements for the Los Angeles explosion and as having furnished the two men—F. A. Schmitt and David Caplin—to assist in buying the high-power nitro-glycerine, because Schmitt and Caplin had been regularly employed on the coast by the Building Trades Council of California. Tveitmoe and Clancy are among the forty-five defendants now on trial.

When he asked McNamara why he twisted off a gas jet in the basement of the Times building before the explosion, McManigal testified that this conversation ensued:

McMantgai—Why did you break off the gas jet?

McNamara—Because when the explosion occurred. I wanted the whole building to go to ——.

McManigal—And you knew there were many people in there, too?

McNamara—What's the difference? I was to make a good cleaning out and I did it. But I am so sorry so many were killed. I hoped to get General Otis.

Blind Banker Took $2,000,000

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Augustin Max, known throughout France as the 'blind banker of Paris,' has created a mild sensation in financial circles here by surrendering himself to the police and confessing that he has misappropriated $2,000,000 of his clients' money.

Found Needle Left In Surgeon's Wound

SHERBROOKE, Que., Nov. 16.—Miss Lillian Sheridan lies at the point of death here as the result of an operation. It seems that the young lady underwent an operattion in the States but did not recover very rapidly. She returned to her home, when another operation was performed, when the doctors found the needle and stitches used in the first operation had not been removed.

New Cure For Appendicitis

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Cure of appendicitis soon will be commonly effected without an operation, according to Dr. Albert Abrams of San Francisco, who addressed a medical convention here. Dr. Abrams said the discovery was made by pressing on a certain vertebrae, which had the effect of straightening the sigmoid flexure, a loop in the large intestine.

Tarred Girl and Is Found Guilty

NORFOLK, Ohio, Nov. 16.—Ernest Welch, of West Clarkesfield, was found guilty last night of assault and battery in connection with the tarring Miss Minnie Lavalley in the village last August.

Miss Lavalley, nineteen years of age, following threats of violence if she and her family did not leave the village, was attacked by a gang of men in the village on the night of August 3

Verdict of Murder

GUELPH, Nov. 16.—"That Michael Fazzara came to his death from a bullet fired from a revolver in the hands of Guiseppe Potalli on the night of October 26th; that the said Guiseppe Potalli did feloniously, wilfully and of malice aforethought kill and murder the said Michael Fazzara; and further, that Joseph Veroni is an accessory to the crime. The jury recommended that the sale of firearms be further restricted, so that parties having such weapons for sale shall be prohibited from selling same without a permit from the proper authorities, and further, that St. Patrick's Ward be given better police protection."

The above was the verdict of the jury at the resumed coroner's inquest to-night into the death of Michael Fazzara, the Italian who was shot to death on October 26th, for which crime Guiseppe Potalli is now in the county jail.

Gas Kills Two Furnace Toilers

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Nov. 16.—Almost instantaneous death overcome Thomas Zink and James Smith at the blast furnaces of the Lake Superior Corporation yesterday afternoon.

The men were engaged in making repairs to the gas mains when the gas overcome them.

Medical aid was at once summoned but death had been almost immediate. The corpses were blackened and almost unrecognizable. Both were married men. Coroner McCuag will open an inquest to-night.

Will Call Special Session of Congress

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—President-elect Woodrow Wilson announced last night that he will call Congress together in extraordinary session not later than April 15 of next year, to revise the tariff.

Mr. Wilson, in his statements, says he has determined upon this course not only because he was elected on a platform which declared for an immediate downward revision of the tariff schedules, but also because he feels it it due to the business interests of the country that they should be relieved of all uncertainty as to the general purpose of the incoming administration at Washington.

Mr. Wilson has been urged to this course since his election by the leaders of his party, by Senators and Representatives in Congress, and by the business men of the country.

Alleged Misuse Of The Mails

Intelligencer Special.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The Federal Government's action against Julian Hawthorne, son of the novelist, Nathaniel Hawthorne; Josiah Quincy, former Mayor of Boston, and three other prominent men concerned in the so-called Hawthorne group of Cobalt mining stocks for alleged misuse of the mails, was called for trial in the U. S. district court here today. The Government claims that at least $3,000,000 was raised through misrepresentation.

Fighting Still Continues

Intelligencer Special.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18.—The battle at Tchatalda continues, and seems to be in favor of the Turks in the Deroks district, where many prisoners and a number of heavy guns have been taken. A strong force of Bulgarians attempted to creep into a valley separating them from the Turks, but were discovered and retired.

Fire in Toronto

Intelligencer Special.

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—Harold A. Wilson's sporting goods establishment 297-299 Yonge Street, was badly damaged by fire this morning, the loss being estimated between fifty and sixty thousand dollars. The building and stock was insured. This fire is the fourth in the firm's history.

RESIDENT OF CANIFTON MEETS TERRIBLE DEATH

Frank Phillips, aged about 45 years was instantly killed on Saturday near Bancroft, as a result of being struck by a train on the line of the Central Ontario Railway. The particulars of the unfortunate affair are meagre, but it is reported that he attempted to walk across the track just as the train was upon him.

The victim was a resident of Canifton and was well and favorably known in this city and vicinity. We are informed that an inquest will be held. A daughter, aged 15 years, survives. The remains will arrive in the city this evening, and will then be transferred to Canifton.

New Born Infant At Smallpox Hospital

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—A woman who was just about to become a mother was taken to the Isolation Hospital yesterday suffering from smallpox. The civic health authorities are in a quandary. Of course the baby had to go with her, and it is too young to vaccinate. They wonder if it will be possible to prevent it from getting the disease.

There are now only twenty-five cases of smallpox in the hospital, four having gone out yesterday. Dr. Louis Laberge has stated that manufacturers are being asked to enforce the vaccination law rigidly in their factories, in order that the city may the more successfully cope with the present situation.

Became Owner of $67,000,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Yesterday was Vincent Astor's twenty-first birthday, and he took legal and official title this morning to the fortune left by his father, Col. John Jacob Astor, who was lost on the Titanic. The total amount of the estate is estimated at $80,000,000, of which Vincent Astor receives approximately $67,000,000.

HOG CHOLERA SPREADS

Miners Flocking To Cripple Creek

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Nov. 16.—Owners and laymen of Cripple Creek in the vicinity of three below discovery, where the strike was made a few weeks ago, are making every preparation for a busy winter, being now engaged in sinking working shafts, erecting cabins and moving supplies and boilers to the ground.

The find of pay on Cripple Creek is a bona fide one, having been demonstrated by drill and shaft and already the gold has been traced on to three claims.

This pay is the first that the Cripple Creek valley has ever shown, although it has been prospected for years.

Chimpanzee's Owner Sues For $200,000

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 16.—Trial of a damage suit wherein $200,000 is asked of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company for the death of an educated chimpanzee has begun here in the United States District Court.

The chimpanzee, which was described in the complaint as being able to dress and undress, possessing perfect table manners including the smoking of after-dinner cigarettes was dead when the box in which it was shopped arived here from Seattle Wash.

The owner, Charles Judge, alleged the animal was choked to death by steam escaping from a pipe in the baggage car of the train. The railroad company says the animal was dead when shipped.

General Suicides In King's Presence

VIENNA, Nov. 16.—Die Zeit today, publishes a remarkable story of the suicide of a Bulgarjan General in the presence of King Ferdinand, after he had been rebuked by the King. The General had been considered responsible for the decimation of the First and Sixth Infantry regiments, which were moved down because the General either forgot to cover the charge with artillery, or gave the wrong directions for the advance.

The General, after the charge, addressed the remnant of his men, praising their heroism. King Ferdinand stood by, nodding his approval. When the General had finished, the King said:

"General a word with you."

Then walking up to the General, and before the whole army, the King stripped the epaulettes from the officer's uniform. The General remained at attention for a moment, then saluting the King he took a few paces to the rear and shot himself."

The First Regiment is composed of the elite o Sofia, being composed of artists, lawyers, actors and business men. The loss of life in its ranks evoked the bitterest comments.

Servia Now Lays Claim to Avlona

LONDON, Nov. 16.—A despatch to the Daily News from Vienna says Servia, instead of abating in her demands, now claims Alvona on the Gulf of Avolna, in the Adriatic Sea, 33 miles south west of Berat.

The correspondent adds that Servia's answer to the Austrian representation is still not known, but that it is reported that Servian troops have reached the Albanian coast of the Adriatic.

It is reported also, says the correspondent, that three large ships under command of naval officers have left for the south under sealed orders. It is uncertain whether they are transporting recruits to Bosnia and Dalamatia or are on a mission connected with the Servian occupation of the Albian coast.

Burn Red Flag And Sing Nat. Anthem

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 16.—A new situation has arisen in the Waihi strike. The arbitrationists who endured abuse for weeks, have taken compete command of the situation. They seized the strikers' headquarters, burned their red flag, and sang the National Anthem. The stubborn strikers were ordered to leave Waihi within forty-eight hours.

Most old bachelors are misunderstood by women, for which they should be thankful.

ADMITS SLAYING BOYS

Maniac Sends Postcards to the Buffalo Police.

Strange Jekyll and Hyde Case Is Revealed When Cards Result In Discovery of Body of a Boy Named Josephs—Writer of Epistles Says He Has Already Murdered Three Boys and Tried to Kill Others.

Buffalo, Nov. 18.—Confession of at least three murders and admission that there are still more, is the startling disclosure contained in postal cards from a modern "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," in the person of the murderer of six-year-old Joseph Josephs, received by the police and made public here last night. The murder of the Josephs boy, whose entire body in decomposed fragments was found on Saturday in a cesspool near his home in Lackawanna, after a search of over a year, is believed by the police to be but one of a long series of similar crimes committed throughout the country by the man who, according to his own confessions, has an irresistible mania for killing boys. Saturday's gruesome discovery was made by following the minute instructions contained in the postcards which Supt. Regan of the Buffalo police has been receiving from time to time.

Young Josephs disappeared about 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Oct. 12, 1911. His father, George Josephs, a prominent merchant of Lackawanna, insisted from the start that the boy had been kidnapped and a country-wide search was instituted. The case at the time attracted widespread attention, as the father from time to time received anonymous letters warning him to discontinue the search on pain of having his son murdered. Saturday's developments indicate that the murderer took this means of creating the belief that the boy was still alive.

In one postal card mailed from Boston, the unknown writer speaks of murdering a boy in Central Park, New York City. It reads:

"Wednesday night, Dec. 10, 1902, I enticed Michael Ricca Crusk, a newsboy at 86th street and Central Park West, New York City, into the park opposite the entrance to the arsenal police station. I strangled him and just escaped the officer who found him as I came back (few words here illegible). Three times have I taken life, 12 times have tried, and cannot help it."

Another card, dated Boston, Mass., Nov. 9, 1912, and written apparently by the same person, and also unsigned, states that the writer "unfortunately had too much money," that he was a prominent fraternity man of a high degree, "honored and respected." "My son," it continues, "is married and happy. Can I, under the circumstances, give myself up? I can, of course, but there are still more murders I have not told you. Shall I come?"

The first postcard received was postmarked Boston, Sept. 11, 1912, and was addressed to Supt. Michael Regan of the Buffalo police department. It read: "I am sick of trying to fool myself. I am a homicidal maniac. I killed Joseph Josephs of Lackawanna, N.Y. I strangled him as I did others. Please advertise the fact. Post it or write for information. Come to (ink smudges make the balance of the card indecipherable.)

The second postcard was addressed to Chief Roy Gilsen of the Lackawanna police force, as follows:

"Boston, Mass., Sept. 17, 1912.—If you only knew the remorse in my heart on account of the murders I have committed as the result of my homicidal mania, even you and George Josephs would pity me. I am writing this just getting over another drunk to try to forget the ones I killed, but, like Banquo's ghost, it will not down. I am fast going to pieces mentally and spiritually."

The last postal card was dated New York, Nov. 12, 1912, and stated that the writer expected to be in Buffalo Wednesday, the 13th, and that he would call at the police station at 11 a.m., "so shall expect you to be in your office." It was signed "R. Dennisson," and was the only card of the series to bear a signature. The writer did not keep the appointment.

The police and federal authorities in Boston and New York have been asked to assist the local officials in the attempt to locate the murderer.

Newsboy's Murder Confirmed.

New York, Nov. 18.—Records in the coroner's office in this city bear out the text of the postal card written to the Buffalo police, giving information on the strangling of Michael Kruck, a newsboy, in Central Park.

Kruck's body was found on Dec. 10, 1902, the date mentioned on the card, in an excavation at the point where West 76th street terminates at Central Park. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of death "from asphyxiation, by strangling, inflicted by some person or persons unknown."

To Probe Disaster.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, has ordered a searching investigation into the cause of the loss of the steamer Mayflower, which sank near Barry's Bay Tuesday last, when nine persons were drowned. It is understood that the steamer had no lifeboats and only one or two lifebelts when she left on the trip. She was inspected by an official of the Marine Department on May 28 last, and granted a certificate.

Two divers from the Department of Railways and Canals are now searching for missing bodies.

Child Struck by Iron.

Toronto, Nov. 18.—Blasting operations on defective castings were being carried on at the Canada Foundry when a chunk of iron weighing about eight pound wa thrown over 700 yards distant, through a window and struck little nine-year-old Nellie Hubbard, 134 Cooper street, Saturday afternoon. The blow knocked out two teeth.

A critic by any other name would be a knocker just the same.

The woman who uses an old stocking for a rat in doing up her hair is one kind of a nature faker.

J. B. CARLISLE IS DEAD

Former Insurance Magnate Expires in Toronto.

Financial Man Who Was Once Worth Half a Million and Who Founded Manufacturers and North American Life Insurance Companies, Drops Dead In Doctor's Office—Was Widely Known In Canada.

Toronto, Nov. 18.—J. B. Carlisle, formerly one of the best known men in Canada, died in a doctor's chair while waiting for attention Saturday. The body was removed from the office, that of Dr. Hutchinson, 317 Sherbourne street, to the morgue.

He had dropped into the doctor's office at 1.30 p.m. Saturday. The doctor was absent, and the maid left him seated in a chair. When the physician came in ten minutes later he found a lifeless body. Heart failure was the cause of death.

J. B. Carlisle founded the Manufacturers' Life Assurance Co., helped to start the North American Life Insurance Co., and in many other ways was connected with the insurance business from its earliest days in Canada. He was intimate with all the big men in the business and political life of the country three decades ago. In fact few of the younger men who have become prominent in Toronto's activities but knew him.

At one time he drew almost the largest salary in the country and made a very big fortune as fortunes were counted in the days of thirty or forty years ago.

Practically all the insurance acts of the various provinces are based on his recommendations and expert opinion. He was counted the most expert actuary of his time. He took some part in political life, and one notable instance remembered by many was his trip to Ottawa with a satchel containing $80,000 cash, which he gave as a campaign contribution to his friend, the late Sir John A. Macdonald. The noted leader was the first president of the Manufacturers Life, which Mr. Carlisle founded. His ability as a business man, besides personal attributes, made him countless acquaintances, including practically all the present day big business men of the city.

He was 79 years of age. Sixty-one years ago he came to Toronto from Yorkshire, where he had been an auctioneer. He joined the Confederation Life Insurance Co. and quickly was a big man in the insurance field, which was naturally rather restricted at that time. He soon started in to found new companies and made himself half a million dollars in a very little time.

He formerly owned one of the best kennels of dogs in the country and a string of racehorses, together with valuable collections of pictures and bric-a-brac. He was of Romany descent, and before leaving England followed the calling of an auctioneer, selling works of art and bric-a-brac.

Eager To Hear Naval Plans.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—There was no Cabinet session on Saturday. The entire Cabinet took a day off and Premier Borden, Hon. W. T. White, Hon. J. W. Crothers, and Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes went out to Lansdowne Park and watched old McGill defeat Varsity for intercollegiate honors.

Practically everything is in readiness for the opening on Thursday.

"The cards are stacked for what I believe will be a great session," was the way one of the Ministers summed up the situation Saturday. Not very often in the past has such interest been awakened on Parliament Hill in an approaching session. "Standing room only" signs are hung around the corridors of the House of Commons, every available gallery seat being taken for the opening day.

Enquiries as to the probable date of Premier Borden's announcement of his naval proposal are pouring in from all parts of the country, and it is being predicted that when the Prime Minister rises to make his much anticipated naval speech he will have the biggest and most representative audience that has ever greeted any speaker in a Canadian Parliament.

For Bald Heads.

Customer—I wish I had as good a head of hair as you have. Watchmaker—Have you ever tried rubbing your head with steel? Customer—Certainly not! That's ridiculous! Watchmaker—Why ridiculous? Isn't it a fact that steel makes the hair spring?

Be Agreeable.

To be good and disagreeable is high treason against the royalty of virtue. —Moore.

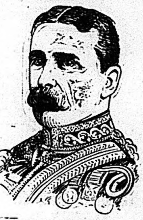
GEN. FRENCH A VISITOR

FAMOUS BRITISH SOLDIER HAS COME TO SEE CANADA.

The Premier Member of the Imperial Army Council Is a Leading Figure In Military Affairs and Has Had a Remarkable Career—Entered Navy and Served Four Years Before Joining Army.

England's greatest war hero, next to Lord Kitchener, is visiting Canada. He is Gen. Sir John Denton Pinkstone French, the daring cavalry leader during the Boer war. Inspector-general of the British forces since 1907, general officer commanding in chief of the first class and lieutenant-colonel of the Nineteenth Hussars since 1902, he is a leading figure in British army affairs. He was born in Kent, England, in 1852, and after serving four years as a naval cadet and midshipman in the royal navy he entered the British army in 1874. Since then his record has been full of brave deeds and high honors. He was Leutenant-general commanding the cavalry division in South Africa, 1900-1902. He figured in the relief of Kimberley, and under Lord Robetrs was instrumental in the capture of Bloemfontein and Pretoria. He was made a general in 1907.



GEN. SIR JOHN FRENCH.

Gen. French holds a unique position in England. He is the premier military member of the British army council, absolutely independent of governmental mutations and solidly entrenched as a successful soldier in the minds of his countrymen. His appearance is the antithesis of all that is usually associated with the idea of a dashing cavalry leader. There is nothing reminiscent of Skobeloff or of Ney about him. The short squat figure, extremely awkward on horseback, has no suggestion about it of the daring raider that paralyzed the Boer communications in South Africa and went far to help Lord Roberts in turning prospective failure into ultimate victory.

Throughout their history the British people have preserved the admirable habit of adequately rewarding their successful generals. Sir John French is the natural descendant in the military hierarchy of Roberts and Kitchener. Roberts is old, Kitchener is too dangerous a man to let loose in a free country and consequently his later activities have been confined to much useful work in India and Egypt. French is therefore chief of the imperial general staff with a salary of $20,000 a year and very generous allowances. Although of Irish descent, he is extremely popular with the landed gentry of England.

A Naval Treasure.

Great satisfaction has been expressed throughout the country on account of the purchase of the logbook of Nelson's ship, Victory, by the well-known art collector, Mr. Thomas J. Barratt. The logbook contains a vivid account of the Battle of Trafalgar, written on the day after the action. Private collectors were particularly anxious to secure the log, and one of them even made an offer for the two leaves recording the events of October 21, 1805. Mr. Barratt, however, promptly paid several thousand pounds for the book, and thus secured for the nation one of the most precious relics of Nelson.

The logbook is unique because it was actually written by Nelson's sailing master, a man named Atkinson. It is not, of course, the official logbook, which is the property of the Admiralty, and which is kept at the Public Record Office, together with all other navy logbooks. Atkinson, however, apparently kept a rough logbook of his own, with the aid of which he prepared the official logbook which he had to send to the Admiralty in order to comply with the rule. "No log; no pay."

A New Method of Nature Study.

A novel method of studying the colored patterns of nature is suggested by Dr. Hall-Edwards, an English experimenter.

He takes dyes of various colors, and drops them in regular order and definite amount on absorbent paper, the result being diffusion figures of regular geometrical shapes and great beauty.

The investigation may not only throw light on nature's methods, but may give new hints to designers and decorators.

F. M. VAN BLARICOM

On Sunday afternoon, Mr. F. M. Van Blaricom, a well-known and much respected citizen passed away. For the past two years the deceased had been afflicted with dropsy which caused his demise. At Demorestville, Prince Edward County, on November 1st 1847, Mr. Van Blaricom was born, being a son of the late Mr. David Van Blaricom, a U. E. Loyalist. In early life the deceased removed to Sidney Township where she resided until 1885, when he came to this city where he has since lived. He was a life long member of the Methodist church, and in politics was a Liberal. Mr. Van Blaricom was a gentleman who had many friends and was esteemed by all who knew him. Surviving is a widow, one son George B. of Toronto editor of the Shoe and Leather Journal, and one daughter Miss Stella at home. Mrs. Van Blaricom is a daughter of the late Mr. Isaac Brock of Sidney. To the bereaved ones will be extended the sympathy of all friends.

MABEL MACOUN

Miss Mabel Macoun, of this city, who was deservedly a popular young lady, died yesterday at the Cobourg hospital from some internal trouble. Deceased was the youngest daughter of the late Mr. James Macoun and was born in this city where she resided all her life. Recently the deceased went to Cobourg to take a course in the hospital for a trained nudse. Her untimely death is sincerely regretted by a host of friends. Miss Macoun was a member of the John Street Presbyterian Church, and always took an interest in church and Sunday school work. A mother, two brothers and four sisters survive. The brothers are John and Fred and the sisters are Mrs. M. Vanderwaters, Mrs. D. Houston, Mrs. Bishop and Mrs. E. Cooley.

W. C. HAYES

At an early hour this morning Mr. W. Charles Hayes died at the family residence Front Street, form an attack of pneumonia. Deceased who was 65 years of age was born at Consecon, Prince Edward County, but had spent a large portion of his life in this city. For upwards of 30 years he conducted a second hand business and of late years was engaged in the grocery business. Mr. Hayes was a man well and favorably known in the city and vicinity. He was upright in his dealing and possessed a genial disposition. Deceased was a member of the Methodist church and in politics was a staunch Conservative. A widow, three sons and one daughter survives. The sons are Wiliam, Ernest and Claude of this city and the daughter Mrs. George Ireland resides at Berwyn, Ill.

Gunmen on Trial

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—"Dago Frank" Cirofic, the fourth of the gunmen on trial for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, took the stand yesterday morning in an attempt to corroborate his pals, "Lefty Louie," "Gyp the Blood," and "Whitey Lewis," who testified yesterday that the shots which killed the gambler had not been fired by them, but by Vallon and Webber, informers for the State, and by a man as yet unidentified.

He repeated the story told by his three fellow-gun men yesterday, up to the point where the witness said he left "Whitey," "Gyp," and "Lefty" at "Bridgie" Webber's place on the night of the murder. He testified as to the visit of Jack Rose to his apartment to see "Whitey" and "Lefty" and himself.

"Was anything said by Rose or anybody that night about the croaking, killing or removing of Herman Rosenthal?" asked the gun men's attorney.

"There was not," declared Frank, shaking his head vigorously. He said the only thing Rose discussed was the "framing up" of Jack Zelig, the gang leader, and the shooting of "Lefty Louie" in Chinatown. Rose wanted to explain his innocence in both affairs, said Frank.

Aside from "Dago Frank" it is understood that the defence has fifteen other witnesses to call, and it is not probable that the case will be concluded this week.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Sergt. Naphin arrived in the city on Saturday night from Niagara Falls, having in charge Harry Whittaker who was arrested at the Falls on a charge of theft. The accused is charged with having stolen a ladie's gold watch the property of Ernest Belanger and a vest belonging to Delbert Shook. Whittaker boarded at the same place and on Friday morning last left for the west. After he was gone the articles mentioned above were missed. When arrested the time piece was found on the accused and the vest is said to be in his valise. This morning Whittaker appeared before the Magistrate, but through his counsel, Mr. Carnew, made no election as to his trial. After some evidence had been submitted the accused was committed to trial at a higher court.

The new arrivals—Eavans House and Barnes House, at London Junction, and Honister's Hotel at Ealing—are slated to go.

JOAQUIN MILLER PROGRESSNG

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—Special—Joaquin Miller, the Poet of the Sierras, who has been supposed for several months to be near death, following a paralytic stroke, is now walking about again, and regaining his old-time vigor. He ascribes his recovery largely to a diet of honeyed hominy prepared daily by his daughter. He eats hominy with honey three times a day.

NEW FIRE ALARM

Young Canadian Adopts Scientific Principle In His Invention

The latest discovery in the world of science is an instrument that will be of priceless value as a means of detecting fire in a building before the blaze becomes serious. The credit of this invention belongs to William Musgrave, a young Toronto electrician whose device was satisfactorily tested by one of the largest institutions in Canada.

The chief features of this automatic fire alarm are strength and simplicity of construction, and inconspicuousness. It is so small that its presence in a room would hardly be readily detected by the eye. The device is shaped like a crown, four inches in diameter by an inch and one-half in depth. Inside the outer shield of nickeled steel is a delicate disc of super-sensitive metal. This thin disc acts as the transmitter of a heat phone. It can be set so accurately as to register an increase in heat from the lightness of a breath to the intense heat of a kiln. As the disc expands under the influence of a flame it completes a circuit of two concealed wires, which lead to and set in motion a set of gongs in a central portion of the building. The tongue of flame tells its story to the house-owner through the thermometer. By this means of prompt warning the flame is detected soon enough to be dashed out with a pail of water.

The new device will be of great value in homes, hospitals, schools, asylums, stores, factories, theatres, and all public buildings. For industrial commercial, and public buildings a warning is sent to a central office, from which a call is sent to the Fire Department.

Blueing Steel

A fine and fairly permanent blue is obtained on polished steel goods by immersing in fused black oxide of manganese one part, nitre nine parts. When sufficiently blued, they are partially cooled in water, then entirely in linseed oil.

Removing Rust From Iron

Rust on iron or steel goods may be easily removed if the goods are first soaked in a hot caustic soda or hot caustic potash solution. This softens the rust so that it is much more rapidly and effectually removed than by the acid pickle. The method, although old, is generally satisfactory.

THE FIGHT IN HOCHELAGA

The announcement that at the last moment on nomination day a candidate had offered himself to oppose the Hon. Louis Coderre, the newly appointed Secretary of State, in his constituency of Hochelaga, came as a surprise to both political parties. The candidate was launched at the last moment without the official endorsement of either Liberal or Nationalist. Mr. Doyon's friends maintain that he is running as an independent labour candidate, having been a Grand Trunk conductor for years and still belonging to the employees' organization. Though no naval policy has been enunciated by Premier Borden, yet it is stated that Mr. Doyon will oppose the Hon. Mr. Coderre on the emergency contribution issue, and also because he believes Quebec lost an important portfolio in Mr. Monk's resignation and Mr. Coderre's acceptance of the portfolio of Secretary of State.

One of the chief supporters of Mr. Doyon, Dr. Lalonde, is credited with this statement as to the attitude of Hochelaga Liberals in the election: "We expect to work with the Liberals in this campaign. Over half of the deputation which asked Mr. Doyon to run was Liberal, and we have received a telegram from Mr. Severin Letourneau, Liberal organizer for Montreal district, saying that he is much interested in this contest. We have consulted with many of the chief Liberals in the party, and from what they have said, we expect to work together. We do not know what Mr. Letourneau proposes to do."

GREAT BRITAIN TAKES OUR PEACHES

One more illustration of the great and increasing value of the British market to Canada is given in peach export figures for the past season. The practicability of shipping Canadian peaches to England was first tested by the Department of Trade and Commerce in 1910. The experiment proved successful and succeeding shipments have found a ready market. This year the weather conditions were regarded as unfavorable and peach exporters were in some doubt as to the likelihood of the Canadian peaches reaching the British market in good condition. The results have, however, been good for a very large trade with Great Britain in Canadian peaches in the future.

The peach shipments for the past three seasons were as follows, showing a notable increase for the present year.

1910—3,743 single layer cases.
1911—3,934 single layer cases.
1912—8,443 single layer cases.

THE HOCHELAGA ISSUE

Mr. Doyon, the opposition candidate in Hochelaga, and his friends are making their opposition to the appropriation of Canadian money for naval defence the main subject of their appeals for support by the voters. They are, in one way at least, somewhat late in the day. Two years ago Parliament appropriated money for naval defence, and the result is seen to-day in what are called His Majesty's Canadian ships Niobe and Rainbow. They are part of the defensive forces of the Empire, not a formidable part, is is true, but in their way a part, just as is the latest super-dreadnought to go into commission. As Sir Wilfrid Laurier said when he announced his Government's action in the matter, when Great Britain is at war, Canada is at war. The criticism most heard in connection with the purchase and maintenance of the ships named was that not enough had been done. Sometimes it came from those who thought the country could run in the naval race before it had taught itself to walk; sometimes it was heard from those who were not just sure what it was they had in their minds. To the mass of the people the action taken was regarded as a step in the discharge of a natural and national duty, the taking up of a burden which the country was well able to bear, and the bearing upon it under any status it might assume, save that which it presently occupies as a colony of Great Britain. There can, therefore, be no new precedent involved in the Government's propositions, to be made known when Parliament meets. The country can look upon them when they are submitted from a purely business standpoint, measuring them with the declared needs of the situation and judging of them by their fullness and the responsibilities they will create. Mr. Doyon's election, if it were possible, could not make any difference in the duty of the Government in the connection and should not influence the action of Parliament. It might make it seem that Montreal was out of touch with the rest of the country, and inclined to put what is in truth a minor issue into the place of those of real importance, those which affect the industrial progress of Canada, and of this part of it especially. It is not believed there is ground for thinking Mr. Doyon can be elected on Tuesday.—Montreal Gazette.

Even a self-made man may have to depend upon his wife to make him happy.

STRIKE RECORD DURING OCT.

According to the statistical record maintained from month to month by the Department of Labour, and published in The Labour Gazette, the number of disputes in existence throughout Canada during the month of October was twenty-one. This compares with ten disputes during October, 1911, and twenty-one during the month of September. From the standpoint of the number of working days lost, October of the present year shows a great improvement over the corresponding period of 1911. This year the loss in working days was about 98,000 whereas a year ago it was 191,200. The great majority of the disputes of the past month involved only comparatively small bodies of workmen at scattered points. The number of disputes coming within the scope of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act was two, affecting 3,390 employees, as compared with three disputes affecting 7,500 employees in October, 1911. The most serious dispute was that involving coal miners on Vancouver Island, which began in September. On the whole, in view of the industrial activity which characterized the past summer, October may be regarded as closing under exceptionally favourable conditions as regards labour disputes.

THE IRISH BILL PROBLEM

Despatches from across the water go to show that a somewhat serious crisis has grown out of the defeat of the Asquith Government in the House of Commons on the financial provisions of the Government of Ireland Bill. The vote which brought about the present situation, if it was a surprise, should not have been. It is suggested that dislike of some of the propositions, and particularly of that permitting the Irish Legislature to impose customs duties on British goods, quite as much as indifference to party duty, kept Government supporters away from the division and precipitated the crisis, with its extraordinary sequel. There has been a vigorous propaganda of Unionist views carried on by means of pamphlets and other literature since the Irish measure was introduced, and the way in which bye elections have been going suggests that it has been effective. The plan for pushing the great bill has been dislocated and the new year will be opened before the measure is ready to send to the House of Lords. Before the new year is old the members of Parliament may be sent to the country.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

PASTOR RUSSELL IS CHALLENGED

Complete Answer to the Query, "Who Ordained Him?"

Albany, N.Y., Nov. 17.—As always, Pastor Russell got the crowds to-day. We report his discourse on ministerial ordination and titles. Very evidently it was a reply to an attack recently made upon him by a Mr. W. T. Ellis, field editor of The Continent, and alias the "Religious Rambler." Ellis charged Pastor Russell with being unordained and claimed that his ordination as pastor is fraudulent. The address showed that Pastor Russell fully understands the situation. He fully justified his position before his vast audience and showed up the "rambler" editor in the unenviable light either of being ignorant of the subjects discussed or of attempting to deceive the public. His text was, "Not of men, neither by man, but by Jesus Christ, and God the Father, who raised Him from the dead." (Galatians i, 1.) He said:

Evidently the time has come for telling the common people what the Bible teaches respecting clergy and laity, titles of ministers, and ordination to teach and preach. We have previously pointed out that the doctrine of Apostolic Succession started in the second century, A. D. The bishops claimed that they had the same authority that Jesus had originally given exclusively to the Twelve Apostles. On the strength of this claim they appointed and ordained the inferior clergy.

This custom still prevails in what are known as Catholic Churches—Roman, Anglican and Greek. The principle is wholly wrong, unscriptural. According to the Bible, the Church of Christ is not composed of two parts, clergy and laity. Jesus declared, "One is your Master, Christ; and all ye are brethren." Therefore, "Call no man (Master or) Father." St. Paul's writings clearly show that in the early Church the ministers were the servants of the Flock, and not of a different, lordly caste. They were of the people; and when chosen by the Ecclesia by the stretching forth of the hand (Greek, cheirotoneo), they were recognized as of Divine appointment to the ministry—through the Church.

The customs of centuries were so difficult to throw off that many of the reformers coveted the titles accorded the Catholic clergy. Nor did [illegible] care to tell the congregation [illegible] word was supreme in the matter and that its ministers were merely by the grace of God its servants. Others of the reformers, realizing that Jesus and His disciples were not styled Reverend, Doctor, etc., declined to use these titles, preferring to be called pastors. This custom still prevails very generally in Protestant Germany and Scandinavia. My Christian friends and Bible Student associates well know my objection to the title "Reverend," and hence address me as "Pastor"—shepherd. Furthermore, I am the elected pastor of the Brooklyn Tabernacle congregation, and [illegible] of the London Tabernacle [illegible]. I fail to see any ground for criticism of my course in this respect; nor do I make any attack upon Christian brethren who accept other and unscriptural titles.

There is no question that ordination is necessary to the proper holding of the office of pastor. The whole question is: What constitutes an ordination to preach, teach and be a pastor amongst the people of God?

This question has received a wide variety of answers. The Roman, Anglican and Greek Churches, claiming Apostolic Succession, declare that the authorization to preach must come through their apostle-bishops. For this reason Protestant ministers have not been allowed to enter the pulpits of these denominations—until the Episcopalians a year ago granted this concession. Their charge has been that Protestant ministers are unordained. Of course, if their proposition be correct, I am just as much unordained as all other Protestant ministers—and no more so.

Only since the organization of the Evangelical Alliance (1846) have the different sects of Christendom acknowledged each other and each other's ordinations. Some of them recognize the word ordination in its true light, as meaning simply authorization; and others of less spiritual discernment see merely an outward ceremony. Each denomination does its own ordaining, and makes such ceremonies as it deems proper. If, therefore, the congregation of Christian believers in Brooklyn and the other congregation in London choose to ordain or appoint me their Pastor, it is wholly a matter of their own what ceremonies, if any, shall accompany that ordination or appointment. Who can dispute this. No Protestant denomination, surely; for their own ordination are on this basis.

The entire subject of ordination of ministers of the Gospel seems to have fallen into confusion during the shufflings of the Dark Ages; and few seem to have gotten fully back to the Bible teachings on this subject as on other subjects. St. Paul is particular in emphasizing the fact that he did not receive his commission as preacher and Apostle of Christ from his brother Apostles. He distinctly declares himself an Apostle by Divine authorization. This is the general Scriptural principle underlying Divine Ordination to the ministry of Christ.

Before we proceed with an exposition of the Bible teaching on Divine Ordination, it will not be improper for us to note the practical operation of the different human organizations—of men and by men merely.

Have all bishops of the Catholic Church, the Anglican Church, and the Greek Church been models of propriety, patterns to the flock? Have all given evidence of Divine authorization to teach and to preach the True Gospel? Their staunchest votaries must admit that many of them have been unworthy; and that from these very ones have proceeded doctrines and practices contrary to the Word of God. Of what value, then, are their ordinations by men and of man? None whatever! On the contrary, the claim that they were Divinely authorized, and guided and inspired to be teachers of the Church, helped forward the errors which they promulgated. By reason of their claimed authority to teach, the people believed them too implicitly and did not sufficiently criticize their utterances and practices in the light of the Holy Scriptures.

How is it to-day in the various Protestant denominations of Christendom? Are all those who receive sectarian ordination, of men and by man, benefited thereby? Has such ordination kept them free from weaknesses of the flesh to which others were exposed? Has it not, on the other hand, exposed them to greater temptations, because they were pedestaled by the people and thereby injured with pride, haughtiness, etc.? Has such ordination preserved its ministers from doctrinal errors more than the people, who did not have a similar ordination of men and by man?

The answer is found in the numbers who have left various denominations and ordinations to go into other denominations and ordinations. It is answered also in the fact that to-day the great majority of ordained ministers in all denominations entirely repudiate the Bible as a Divine Revelation. Their ordination did not protect them from our modern infidelity, called Higher-Criticism. Under its influence they have ceased to be teachers of Bible Christianity, and have become merely essayists, leaders in political and social reform and in humanitarian work. Manifestly their ordination of men and by man did not hold them to the "faith once delivered to the saints." (Jude 3.) It did not assist them to appreciate the Bible as being sufficient that the man of God might be thoroughly furnished unto every good word and work.

Let us consider the matter again, from another standpoint. Did any of these human ordinations of men and by man impart the Holy Spirit or give a mental illumination by which any of these humanly ordained ministers were qualified for preaching and teaching the Lord's people? The answer is, No! As deep spirituality and as deep insight into the teachings of the Scriptures are to be found outside of the pulpit as inside. The ordination, evidently, brought no enlightenment, no gift of the Holy Spirit—the thing above all needed by those who would teach others and expound the Gospel.

The ordination of ministers, of men and by man, has been injurious in that it has perpetuated the misconception that the Church is divided into two classes—clergy and laity. The ordained have been injured by being puffed up to suppose themselves of a higher caste than their brethren. The unordained have been injured in that human ordination has helped to befog their minds in respect to the real ordination. Thus the "laity" have been hindered from entering upon the very service which God intended should be their chief aim and object. In the early Church, the Elders were considered merely elder brothers of the Church—not elders in years necessarily, but advanced ones in spiritual things, able to help the brethren properly to understand the Word of God and to attend to all the [illegible] and [illegible] the Gospel for their preparation for a share in Messiah's Kingdom. The ordination of reverend men to be rulers, and in some cases dictators of a Church, has taken away from the Elders the very services that the Apostle tells them were to be theirs. Instead, it appoints them the empty honor of passing the collection plate and the communion service. St. Paul, in his address to the Elders of the congregation at Ephesus, said, "Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the Flock, over which the Holy Spirit hath made you overseers (Greek, episkopos, literally, bishops), to feed the Church of God." (Acts xx, 28.) All of them had the commission to feed the Flock. All of them had opportunity for teaching, instructing the Church.

All will admit that if preachers are representatives of God, if they speak in His name, they must have some [illegible] from Him. Whoever has

NEW EXPERIMENT IN FOX BREEDING

Valuable Animals Captured in Far North and Taken Long Distance to Civilization

Returning from a stay of four months on Lake Athabarca, more than 1,100 miles northwest of Edmonton, where they made extentive scientific explorations, Alfred Hare of Tees, Alta., Professor Burwash of the University of Chicago, and A. W. Haigh, a local prospector, brought to Edmonton a pure black fox and a red fox marked with black. The two animals are valued at $1,000.

Mr. Hare paid $350 to Indians in the Fond du Lac and Great Bear Lake regions for the foxes, which he wanted for his farm at Tees for breeding purposes. The plain is to breed the black variety for their fur, which has a high commercial value throughout the world. Trappers say that interbreeding of the red and black foxes will gradually produce the pure black variety. The result of this experiment will be watched with interest because of its possibilities.

The two foxes had most unique experiences. They were transported from the far northern wilds to civilization by every mode of travel except aeroplaning. The black fox was carried 900 miles, while the other animal in its trip from Great Bear lake traveled fully 1,100 miles. The animals were transported in canoes and packed to Athbasca, 98 miles north of Edmonton, from that point were taken to Edmonton by rail.

Professor Burwash, who has made a long study of wild animal life, declared that while the experiment to be conducted by Mr. Hare was novel there was no reason why it should be otherwise than a success from the fact that interbreeding is recognized in other animals. The black fox is not a freak any more than is the red fox, he said, and if the animals are congenial, as they appear to be, they should reproduce their kind. It is probable that the pure black, being the stronger animal, will predominate by careful propagating.

RUGBY

OTTAWA, Nov. 16.—Old McGill vanquished Varsity at Lansdowne Park this afternoon by 11 to 3. The Red and White by a great kicking and bucking exhibition, outplayed Varsity at all stages. Varsity's renowned running, passing and trick plays were of no avail. Maynard and his comrades on the back division were marked men always. Goater kicked superb, though far outclassed by the great punting half-back, Billington. It was this "Billiken" who put the jinx on the Blue and White. Billington's great foot work brought about the downfall. But for his splendid performance it would not have been possible with a weaker line than McGill.

The McGill scrimmage showed itself to be invincible. This beefy, muscular, plunging squad simply held Varsity at all stages and was much heavier and huskier than the Toronto defense. McGill's victory was decisive, even the most rabid Varsity rooter is willing to admit. Varsity relied on speedy passing and a bunch of tricks. McGill placed the hopes on a bucking and kicking game and won out by this means.

As a result of annexing the intercollegiate championship McGill will meet the Argonauts in Montreal in the Canadian semi-finals. McGill puts up the same brand of football as Argonauts and the game is sure to be the two bucks and a kick variety.

Better condition told for McGill, which this year was a training table aggregation, stood the strain much better than Varsity. McGill was speedy to the last gong, while Varsity wearied in the last quarter and showed no comeback. Maynard and Campbell tried a few times unsuccessfully to work their running passing game, but the Varsity line did not afford them much protection, and they got away to no material gains. McGill played a more spectacular game throughout, and in the last half, especially Billington, Paisley and Laing, broke away for sensational runs.

MvGill scored their only touchdown in the first quarter by plunging through the Varsity line about ten yards out.

The scoring was by safety touches and rouges, entirely due to Billington's long punting. Billington is the real hero of the affray. The McGill rooters own Ottawa tonight, but in the words of Varsity, "Are we downhearted? Answer, No."

McGill gets the flag after three years, during which time Varsity were the holders. The final score was 11 to 3.

VARSITY STADIUM, Nov. 16.—Before a crowd of about 4,000 Alerts met Toronto on Saturday in a deciding game of the O.R.F.U. Both teams were considerably strengthened, especially Torontos, who have not succeeded in getting into condition before this season. The game was a crucial one, and on the outcome hung the championship. Both teams needed a win, Toronto having to win to stay in the running, while the Alerts needed a victory to secure the series.

"Bad Man Flannery" was back in the game, as was "Babe" Burkart, who received a smashed nose in Montreal last Saturday. From a physical point both teams were in great condition and prepared to battle for their lives. Ben Simpson was referee, and was a great asset in keeping the play clean. The field was pretty sticky around the south end and a slight wind was blowing up it.

The game resulted in a score of 9 to 7 in favor of the Alerts.

The lineup:

Alerts—Flying wing, Flannery; halves Carr, Leckie, Becker; quarter, Harper; wings, Smith, Clark, Grey, Ross, Craig, Gerrard and Dennison; scrimmage, Blakely, McCarthy, Pfeiffer.

Torontos—Flying wing, Egan; halves, Smith, H. DeGruchy, B. DeGruchy; quarter, Mills; wings, "Dode" Burkart, "Babe" Burkart, Morrison, Crawford, Foster, Moore; scrimmage, Brown, Hoare, Williams.

Referee—Ben Simpson; umpire, A. H. Eken.

UNIVERSITY FIELD, Princeton, Nov. 16.—Princeton and Yale played each other to a standstill in the annual football game on University Field this afternoon. The final score was: Yale 6, Princeton 6.

All the points were made on field goals or goals from placement. H. Baker was the hero for Princeton, making two beautiful goals from field. Flynn kicked a goal from placement for Yale, and Puppelly won undying fame by tying the score in the last minutes of play by a remarkable goal from field from the fifty-yard line. Neither team could do much against the line of the other, but what advantage there was appeared to be with Princeton. Repeatedly they broke through the powerful forwards for consistent gains, but were never able to keep up their good work against the heavy line.

In the second half Yale played a much better game than in the first half of the contest. In the two periods she was utterly unable to make any impression against the orange and black line and resorted to much kicking when the wind was in favor of the blue.

HOCKEY.

OTTAWA, Nov. 16.—That Mr. Lichtenhein of the Wanderers' Hockey club is behaving in any but a sensible manner in connection with the proposed hockey commission is the opinion of his fellow-magnate, Mr. George Kennedy.

"If Lichtenhein had kept quiet on this matter and refrained from grabbing Johnston and Gardiner, we would have had the commission at the present time," declared Kennedy. "The Patricks were quite willing for peace and the patching up of the quarrel between the east and west would have meant a great thing to the promoters. It would have meant that we would have been able to run hockey as they run professional baseball. Now everything is likely to end in a big hockey war, with the salaries tumbling in every direction, all because of that senseless scrap between the Wanderers president and the Patricks."

JEFF TESREAU
of the Giants, the former Leaf pitcher who did much to put his team into the premier position in the National League.

The Canadian magnate is all for peace. He wants to see the hockey commission go through and thinks that the league would sharply discipline any clubowner who got out of line.

That Bruce Ridpath is the property of the Toronto Hockey Club is the assertion of George Kennedy of the Canadiens. Kennedy met one of the Ottawa hockey executive last night here and in the course of conversation the Ridpath case came up. "I remember D'Arcy McGee telling an officer of the Torontos that Ridpath was their property, that the Ottawa club renounced all claim to him and that the Torontos could have him," declared the Canadian magnate. "Well, you won't see the Torontos get him unless they pay us $500," countered the Ottawa man.

"No matter what any of the Ottawa said, they didn't get anything in writing, and that is what counts. We want $500 or the Torontos will never use Ridpath." "They don't want to use him," said George, as he retreated to the train; "they only want him for a bench manager and they'll have him for that."

THE RING.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 16.—Frank Moran, the Pittsburg heavyweight, and a "white hope" possibility, fought Charlie Miller of San Francisco four round to a draw decision here last night. Sporting writers expressed the opinion that Moran should have had the decision.

For the first rounds Moran appeared puzzled by Miller's peculiar style, and did little except to avoid the latter's rushes. In the third and fourth round Moran landed a number of hard blows and for the most part was able to keep away from Miller.

GRAND TRUK SYSTEM SNEWS ITEM

The following appointments have been announced: Mr. E. Harwood, chief clerk to Mr. J. C. Crombie, master of transportation, has been transferred to the travelling car service department; being appointed agent of the western division with headquarters in Detroit. He will be succeeded by Mr. F. Deering. Mr. Deering's former position has been assigned to Mr. Vankuren of Stratford, who in turn gives place to Mr. W. Laing, night car distributor at London. Mr. Laing's former position will be filled by Mr. A. Welsh.

The Pacific Great Eastern Development Company, Ltd., has just been incorporated by letters patent issued by the provincial government of British Columbia. It is a subsidiary company of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway whose proposed line to connect with the Grand Trunk Pacific with Vancouver will, it is believed, lead to the creation of many important towns and villages through the interior of the province thus opened up. The powers conferred upon the company are very wide and include authority to operate hotels, electric railway lines, to develop water powers, and to conduct a general land and real estate business. In it will be vested Newport and other townsites that have been or may be acquired for other than railway purposes. The announced capital of $250,000 is merely nominal. The incorporators are Messrs. Timothy Foley, P. Welch, J. W. Stewart and D'Arcy Tate.

'Phone Rates Reduced.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—The Railway Commission has issued its judgment in the Montreal telephone case, and there are several points in it of interest to other Canadian cities.

The application was one on the part of the city for the reduction of rates to $30 and $50 for residences and business phones respectively, from $35 and $55; and the abolition of excess mileage charges and discrimination as between one district of the city and another.

The effect of the judgment as to rates is that the farthest extending flat rate, that to Montreal West shall be taken as a radius of a circle to be described with the main phone exchange as a centre. Within this circle the ordinary flat rate shall be given.

"The value of the service is a most important factor," says the judgment. "With every addition to the telephone network the range of facility is widened for one already using a telephone, and consequently he is constantly sharing in the progressive utilization of so-called idle plant."

Love is blind, especially if the woman in the case has more dollars than sense.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT

not Divine authority is usurping a holy office and placing himself in antagonism to God. As St. Paul suggests, "No man taketh this honor unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron." (Hebrews v, 4.) The Apostle's argument is that the Aaronic priesthood was typical of the higher Priesthood of Jesus—the Melchisedec Priesthood. Aaron and his sons belonged to the tribe specially called to the Divine service; and they were specially called out of that tribe to be the priests. The antitype is Jesus, the High Priest or Head Priest, over the under Priesthood—all the true members of the Church of Christ. This St. Peter shows saying, not to the clerics, but to all the Church, "Ye are a Royal Priesthood, a holy nation, a peculiar people, that ye should show forth the praises of Him who hath called you out of darkness into His marvelous light."—I. Peter ii, 9.

As Aaron received an anointing, qualifying him for the typical priesthood, so Jesus received an anointing of the Holy Spirit, qualifying Him to be the Head or Chief Priest over all the Church, the under-priesthood. The begetting of the Holy Spirit came upon Jesus at His baptism. That anointing gave Him authority to preach and teach in the Father's name. There His ministry began, as He tells us Himself in His sermon in the Nazareth synagogue, where He read the opening verses of Isaiah lxi, and declared that their fulfilment had been reached in His own person: "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon Me; because the Lord hath anointed Me to preach good tidings unto the meek."—Luke iv, 17-21.

While Jesus was with His disciples, He sent them forth to preach in His name, not in the Father's name; for the Father had not yet acknowledged them by giving them the anointing of the Holy Spirit, as we read: "The Holy Spirit was not yet given; because Jesus was not yet glorified." (John vii, 39.) But when Jesus, having finished His ministry and sacrifice, was leaving His disciples He directed them not to preach, but to tarry at Jerusalem "until ye be endured with power from on High."—Luke xxiv, 49.

The promised power from on High came at Pentecost. Immediately they began to preach and to teach; for they had received the Divine anointing, as Jesus had received it at the time of His baptism. This Divine anointing constituted their ordination, their authority from the Father as members of the Body of Christ, the Royal Priesthood, to be His mouthpieces. This Divine anointing came not merely upon the twelve Apostles; but it has all through this Gospel Age constituted the blessed recognition of the Father and of the Son to all who receive it. In the typical picture, Aaron had the holy anointing oil poured upon his head, and it ran down to the skirts of his garment. All the members of His Body thus came under the anointing. So Jesus, the Head of the Church, received the anointing at the beginning of His ministry; and from Him at Pentecost by the Divine appointment it has flowed down over all the members of His Church. Every one receiving the anointing of the Holy Spirit is a qualified ambassador of God to speak in His name. As St. Peter says, every such one is a Royal Priest. St. John refers to this same anointing, saying, "Ye have an unction (anointing) from the Holy One, and ye all know it."

From what we have said it must be clear that no one is entitled to speak for the Almighty unless he have this Divine Ordination of the Holy Spirit. Human titles and human ordinations are wholly inadequate to make a real preacher and teacher in the Church of Christ. But the Spirit-begotten are fully authorized to use their every opportunity under all circumstances and conditions. There is no division of these Spirit-begotten ones along the lines of clergy and laity. God never recognized such distinctions and divisions. His ambassadors bear the marks of identification that none others have. They have a knowledge of the real Gospel, and of the real character of God. They are guided by the Holy Spirit, step by step into the deep things of God.

We submit that if a knowledge of the Truth be an indication of an enlightening influence of the Holy Spirit, then not every preacher in the world gives evidence of a Divine Ordination to teach and to speak as a Divine Ambassador. We must put away the foolishness of the Dark Ages, and the misconception that a few mumbled phrases were ever the Divine method of inducting the Royal Priesthood into their service as ministers of the Truth.

Let us note the Gospel which Jesus was anointed to preach, and which we as His members are anointed to preach—"Fear not! behold we bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people." "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because He hath anointed me to preach good tidings to the meek."

Poor humanity is already under the Curse; and the Gospel Message is "good tidings," that God has provided a way by which we may as a race come out from under the Curse. The Curse is death; and all of our aches and pains and sorrows and tears are directly or indirectly associated with that Curse. The Message of Jesus is good tidings, comfort to all broken-hearted ones, saying, "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain"—there. Revelation xxi, 4.

The Cricket on the Hearth.

The cricket on the hearth is still a welcome guest in many English households, for the cricket is believed to bring good luck to a house, while his departure is a certain harbinger of evil tidings. It is unlucky to kill a cricket. A Lancashire correspondent of The London Notes and Queries records a local superstition "that crickets are lucky about a house and will do no harm to those who use them well, but that they eat holes in the worsted stockings of such members of the family as kill them." The writer adds that he was assured of this "on the experience of a respectable farmer's family."

Once a fisherman, not always a liar, the less popular he will be.

One sure way to lose your friends is to become a chronic kicker.

HOSTILITIES RESUMED

Efforts of Turks to Secure a Truce Prove Fruitless.

Bulgarians Renew Their Attack at Tchatalja and Artillery Continues Throughout the Day — Allies Are Forcing Turkey to Accept Their Peace Terms—Cholera Is Spreading Very Fast.

London, Nov. 18.—The negotiations for an armistice have failed, and the Bulgarians yesterday opened the attack against the Turks all along the Tchatalja lines. The heavy artillery duel continued throughout the day.

It appeared to be a Bulgarian preparation for an infantry attack. The Turkish fleet participated vigorously in the defence at the Marmora end lines, and presumably Turkish warships assisted at the Black Sea end also.

Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, in a despatch last evening, claims to have repulsed the Bulgarian attack and destroyed three Bulgarian batteries.

No news of the battle has been received as yet from Sofia, and no information as to the strength of the forces engaged on either side.

Nazim Pasha's headquarters are near the Hademkeui Railway station. According to the latest reports, the battle ceased with nightfall.

The resumption of hostilities is not regarded as indicating the collapse of the peace negotiations, but rather as a means to hasten Turkey's acceptance of the allies' terms, by proving her complete helplessness, or, as one correspondent phrased it, "to establish an accomplished fact before making further communications."

The Bulgarian Government organ, Mir, reverts to the subject of peace, and plainly intimates that the allies are prepared to consider the question of an alliance with Turkey, provided the latter promptly accepts their terms, which would give Turkey the opportunity of welding her territories into a modern state and making friends of her conquerors.

The Balkan states clearly have in mind the formation of such an alliance as would be able to defy European interference in the disposition of the spoils of war.

Every day brings fresh despatches recording the terrible spread of cholera. It is now stated that there are a thousand cases daily, with a mortality of 50 per cent., while the Turkish authorities are impotent to take any measures to prevent its further spread. This being the case, it is still doubted whether the Bulgarians will risk the danger of a march to Constantinople. It is, therefore, believed that hostilities have been resumed in order to hurry the Porte's acceptance of whatever terms the allies dictate.

The sanitary board at Constantinople has adopted a resolution expressing grave concern at the prospect of either the Turkish or the Bulgarian army coming into the capital. The ambassadors of the powers have taken prompt measures and will land detachments to-day from the foreign warships, for the protection of the foreign residents and property.

The war continues at other points. The Montenegrins have captured San Giovanni di Merua, and the battle for the possession of Monastir is now going on. All the approaches to that town are reported to be in Servian hands.

The political situation in Constantinople is serious. Arrests of Young Turks continue and there are still rumors of the possibility of the restoration of the ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid.

It is reported in the Italian papers that Austria has greatly modified her demands on Servia. Demonstrations of sympathy with the Balkan aspirations are causing trouble in the Bosnian diet, which has publicly protested against the Austrian Government's attitude in favoring the Albanians and opposing the Servians. The town councils of Spalato and Sebenico, in Dalmatia, have been dissolved by the Government on account of their pro-Servian sympathies.

The Daily Mail despatch from Constantinople, timed 9 p.m., says:

Unofficial reports say that the Turks have gained a great success. The battle opened at 8 o'clock in the morning. The Turks succeeded, after some hours of violent fighting, in defeating the right Bulgarian wing, and in repulsing the left wing. They captured 12 guns and 8,000 prisoners. The Turkish warships contributed largely to their success.

Montenegrins Defeated.

Constantinople, Nov. 18.—The Turkish commander at Scutari telegraphs under date of Nov. 15 that a battle occurred on the heights east of Muslemkeni. It lasted two days and terminated in the complete defeat of the Montenegrins, who lost 1,000 killed and many more wounded. The Turkish losses numbered 385 killed and wounded.

The commander of the western army, under date of Nov. 15, telegraphs that a decisive battle will begin to-day in the region of Monastir.

Hundreds of Turks Blown Up.

Athens, Nov. 18.—The explosion of a Turkish magazine at Saloniki several days ago did immense execution. The magazine was close to the cavalry barracks, where many Turkish prisoners were confined. Three hundred and twelve of the Turks were killed and 479 wounded.

G. A. Case Dead.

Toronto, Nov. 18.—Death came without a moment's warning to George Allen Case, a prominent Toronto real estate man, at his home, 613 Avenue road, yesterday morning.

Mr. Case was born at Essex, Ont., in 1858. He had lived in Toronto most of his life. For ten years he was prominent in the city as a real estate broker, and was during that period a member of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

ELECTION PROTESTED

Liberals Endeavor to Unseat New Member for Macdonald.

Winnipeg, Nov. 18.—A petition signed by John Ernest Woods of Somerset, a prominent farmer and a former Conservative, and by Dr. Andrew W. Mills of Treherne, dentist, against the return of Alexander Morrison for the constituency of Macdonald, was filed Saturday. The petition alleges amongst other things that the Respondent Morrison was by his agents and other persons on his behalf, during at and after the said election:

(1) Guilty of bribery and causing undue influence as defined by the Election Act.

(2) Giving, lending, agreeing to give and lend and offering and promising money and other valuable considerations and of promising to procure and to endeavor to procure money and other valuables, considerations to and for persons entitled to vote at the election in order to induce such voters to vote or to refrain from voting at the election.

(3) Promising to procure and to endeavor to procure office, place, and employment to induce voters to vote or refrain from voting at the election.

(4) Of making gifts, loans, offers, promises, procurements, and agreements for divers purposes for the purpose of procuring the return of said Morrison to serve in the House of Commons.

(5) Of advancing and paying and causing to pay advances, paid money to persons to be expended in bribery in said election and of repaying to persons monies expended by such persons in bribery in said election. FODDER CROP SMALL.

Decreases In Acreage and Yield Shown All Over Canada.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—A bulletin issued yesterday by the Census and Statistics Office contains estimates of the yield, quality and value of the root and fodder crops of Canada during the past season, based upon returns from agricultural correspondents at the end of October.

Upon total areas for potatoes, turnips, mangolds, etc., hay and clover, alfalfa, fodder corn and sugar beets, amounting to 7,732,000 acres, as compared with 9,160,000 acres last year. The total value of the products is $192,500,000, compared with $223,790,000, a decrease in value of $35,290,000.

This decrease is caused by the diminution both in area and yield of the hay and clover crop, which is less than last year in area by 126,000 acres, in yield by 2,000,000 tons and in value by $28,380,000.

All the other crops show increases, except alfalfa, the area of which in Canada is relatively small.

The area estimated to be sown to fall in five provinces of Canada this season aggregates 1,086,000 acres as compared with 1,156,900 acres, the area sown last year. This represents a net decrease of 70,100 acres, or six per cent.

The condition of this crop on Oct. 31 was 92.67 per cent. of the standard for the five provinces. It was above 90 in each province, except Manitoba, where the small area of about 4,003 acres had a per cent. condition of 88 1-2.

The percentage of fall plowing completed upon land intended for next year's crops ranges from 45 in Ontario to 77 in Prince Edward Island for the east and from 24 in Alberta to 38 in British Columbia for the west.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

The banana cultivation in Jamaica was considerably damaged during Saturday night by strong gales, accompanied by heavy rains.

The liner Mauretania collided with the landing stage and carried away considerable woodwork at Liverpool on Saturday. The ship, however, was not damaged.

James Wallace, for 79 years a resident of Toronto, passed away at 16 Greenwood avenue, after a short illness. Mr. Wallace was born in Perth, Ont., in 1832.

The number of labor disputes in existence throughout Canada during the month of October was twenty-one. This compares with ten disputes during October, 1911.

With gas pouring from a hole in the pipe just before it connected with the range Mrs. Rebecca Levi, aged 51, of 182 Palmerston avenue, Toronto, was found dead Saturday.

E. H. Fitzhugh has not resigned the presidency of the Central Vermont Railroad Co. despite the rumors to the contrary printed in the New York newspapers yesterday.

Two men were killed, two others are dying and a number of other persons were more or less severely injured Saturday night when two radial cars collided near Utica, N.Y.

It can be definitely stated that the Federal Government will, this session, reintroduce the bill granting a federal subsidy of $2,000,000 to the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway.

It is reported at Halifax that William Dennis of The Halifax Herald has been appointed Senator, also that Clarence Jameson, M.P. for Digby will be appointed to fill another vacancy.

The sudden death occurred at St. George, near Galt on Sunday, of Dr. Patton, a well-known medical man. The doctor had been out milking a cow when he dropped dead. Death was due to heart failure.

Mrs. M. Smarling, 12 Mutual street, Toronto, drank the greater portion of four ounces of carbolic acid about 1.30 Sunday morning. She was taken to St. Michael's Hospital in the police ambulance, but died later.

Germany Cuts Naval Expenses.

Berlin, Nov. 18.—Some of the leading items in the budget of the German empire for the coming year are given in The Boersen Courier Saturday, one of the leading financial dailies.

The total income and expenditure are balanced at approximately $762,000,000 each, an increase of about $74,000,000 over last year.

The estimate for the navy is given at $119,250,000, or an increase of $1,500,000. The ordinary naval expenditure increases by $4,000,000 and the non-recurring expenditure by $5,250,000, but the extraordinary expenditure on the navy is reduced by $7,750,000 owing to the approaching completion of the naval construction program.

Death of Hon. J. D. Rolland.

Montreal, Nov. 18.—The death took place suddenly Saturday from heart disease of Hon. J. D. Rolland, member of the Legislative Council of Quebec.

The deceased was one of the best-known merchants and bankers in Canada. He was president of the Bank of Hochelaga and J. D. Rolland Paper Co. and ex-president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. He was prominent in all temperance movements in Quebec and was a governor of Laval University. Hon. Mr. Rolland was born in Montreal in 1841.

Death Through Secret Past.

St. Jean, Man., Nov. 18.—The inquest on the body of Adrien Rickard, who was shot by his big Danish chum, Bob Moller, who afterwards committed suicide, was held Friday. The jury returned the following verdict:

"We have come to the conclusion that a secret existed between Moller and Rickard; that Moller came from Winnipeg with the intention of taking the boy back or killing him; that the boy refused to go and met death from a revolver in Moller's hand, and that Moller killed himself with his own revolver."

Galt to Seek Incorporation.

Galt, Nov. 18.—At noon Saturday the special assessment commissioner, J. M. Scully, handed out the assessment returns for 1913. Returns are exceptionally gratifying, showing an increase in population 11,126, and the total assessments $7,912,2?0, an increase over last year of $1,627,220.

It was through the work of commissioner Scully, at the instigation of the Town Council, that the assessment of the whole town was revised, and a big change in the figures made. It means that without doubt the tax rate will be lowered for 1913; also that city incorporation will be sought.

Alberta's $5,000,000 Loan.

London, Nov. 18.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Financial Times states the $5,000,000 Alberta ten-year 4 per cent. loan is being underwritten and will shortly be issued. The price is given as 97. The Standard describes the issue as the precursor of several important imperial loans, which will shortly be floated in London.

Three Names.

"All peace" is the meaning of the name Alfred, while Arthur means a strong man. Samuel means "heard by God."

"BETTER CLOTHES"

RE-OPENING OF THE HOLLOWAY ST. CHURCH

For some weeks past extensive alterations and improvements have been going on at Holloway street Methodist Church. The front portion of the exterior of the sacred edifice was remodelled, while the auditorium was completely changed, making it, as one of the speakers stated, virtually a new place of worship. The re-opening services were held yesterday, and both morning and evening large congregations were present, entering heartily into the services. In the morning the congregation of Bridge street Methodist Church visited the Holloway street church, their pastor, Rev. H. S. Osborne, assisting in the service. The preachers of the day were the Rev. Dr. Williamson of Niagara Falls and Rev. B. Greatrix of Oshawa, a former beloved pastor of the church. Both ministers preached able discourses, which were highly appreciated. In the morning Rev. Dr. Williamson occupied the pulpit, and after the usual devotional exercises announced his text, namely, Exodus xiv:14—"Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward."

Bowed down with sorrow and burdens of the life of bondage they had endured, the children of Israel had now arrived at an eventful period in their history. They had left the land of bondage and were joyous and hopeful. The sea of life before them appeared to be calm and serene. Halting as they did upon the borders of the Red Sea, the terrible news came to them that Pharoah and his army were pursuing them. On either side was no escape, and the Red Sea was before them. The Israelites at once murmured and found fault with Moses, stating that he had led them into the difficulty. Moses, realizing the situation, went to the Lord in prayer, and the words of the text was the answer he received. 'Go forward' is the command of a general to his army, and it is the command of God to the church today. God is saying to every regiment of His great army, Go forward to the victory that I shall give you in obedience to My commands. The Israelites went forward, and a way of escape from their enemies was opened up before them. In the face of difficulties go forward and the reward will be sure. To go contrary to the commands of God means bondage and death. Had the Israelites said We will retire and not go forward, they would surely have fallen into the hands of their enemies. To remain still when God says to go forward is ruinous. If the children of Israel had remained still, death would surely have overtaken them. As the Israelites were commanded to press forward, so God commands His church to go forward to conquest and victory for His cause. The needs and calls of God must be obeyed. To obey is always safe and profitable: in fact there is no other way of safety. To obey under all circumstances requires great faith, and unless we possess that faith we will fail in whatever we undertake to do. Infidelity and skepticism will say that it is a blind faith, but I call it explicit faith. Faith in God is the one thing that will bring victory to the man and the church. It does at times require great faith to do as we are commanded, but when puny mortals say the commands of God are unjust they do not realize what they are saying. The children of Israel, by obeying and having faith in their leader passed safely over the Red Sea, while their enemies were engulfed. What noble examples of faith we have. Abraham was commanded to offer his only son as a sacrifice upon the altar, and he prepared the altar and laid his son upon it. As he stretched forth his hand to slay his son, an angel of the Lord appeared and said, Lay not thy hand upon the lad, neither do thou anything unto him, for now I know that thou fearest God. He demonstrated that he was a man of mighty faith. Noah was commanded of God to build an ark, he did so, although ridiculed. It was implicit faith in God that Noah had, and his faith was honored by the Supreme Being. The rain descended and the flood came, as predicted, and all but those in the ark of safety were swept from off the face of the earth. Gideon's faith was tested and proved to be genuine. With a handful of men who had been proved, Gideon put to flight a mighty host. The three hundred under his command were anxious to get at the enemy and in the darkness of the night 300 lights gleamed forth, and from the sword of the Lord in Gideon's hand the enemy fled. This was not blind, but sublime faith. Whatever God promises He will fulfill. Have no doubt of the command He gives, as obedience leads to perfect victory. If we are but true to God He will do His part and be true to us. His cause will be glorious and triumphant. In concluding his able and practical discourse the divine enjoined upon all to go forth in the discharge of God's commands in a fearless and faithful manner. Through glory will be achieved, and by faith in God victory will be assured.

The music for the service was of a high order and appropriate to the occasion. Miss M. McCamus, organist, played the prelude, after which the doxology was sung, followed by the Lord's Prayer in concert. After the singing of hymn 676 Rev. H. S. Osborne led in prayer. The choir rendered in an acceptable manner an anthem entitled, "O Lord How Manifold Are Thy Works." Rev. Dr. Williamson read the scripture lesson, and Mrs. A. P. Allen sang in her usual pleasing manner, a solo entitled "Only a Beam of Sunshine."

Locomotive Blown To Many Bits

Two Hamilton men were badly injured, one of them probably fatally, Friday morning, when the boiler of the engine on Grand Trunk train No 11, an accommodation from Niagara Falls to Windsor, exploded at the Junction cut. That several were not killed is a mystery.

The injured men are: George E. Cook, engineer, Niagara Falls, 42 years old, badly scalded, lacerated and suffering from shock; Samuel Salt Niagara Falls, 38 years old, right leg blown off, skull fractured, terribly scalded.

The victims were rushed to the Hamilton hospital, where doctors said Salt could not possibly live.

The train left here on time at 8.15 and was just into the cut at the 'Y, when the boiler suddenly exploded This jammed the emergency brakes on at once, and the concussion as the boiler went up caused the train to rebound, throwing people out of their seats and tossing members of the train crew from one end of the coaches to the other.

Salt was hurled through the cabin window, over the back of the tender and was found by Conductor George Stoddard, of Windsor, hanging over the cross bar. Stoddard himself was pitched half a car length. J. Whittaker, brakeman, and M. E. Liddy express messenger, of Windsor, were both catapulted down the car aisle when the shock came. Several of the clerks in the mail car were also shaken up.

It is supposed that the water ran low in the boiler, and caused the explosion, although this will never be known as the engine was demolished.

One Killed, One Injured in Grain

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—Thomas Byrne was killed, and Robert Hamilton seriously injured, while at work trimming grain on the barge Ungave, of the Montreal Transportation Co., last night. The grain tumbled from the sides of the barge and buried Byrne.

On seeing his companion buried under the immense load of grain, Hamilton immediately tried to dig out his companion, but went too near the mouth of the pipe, with the result that it struck and tore his right leg so badly, that it will have to be amputated.

Hamilton was lifted out of the hold and a hurried call sent for the General Hospital ambulance, but by the time they succeeded in reaching Byrne, who was under tons of grain, life was extinct.

CHEERFUL NEWS

For Feeble Old People.

As one grows old the waste of the system becomes more rapid than repair, the organs act more slowly and less effectually than in youth, the circulation is poor, the blood thin and digestion weak.

Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil is the ideal strengthener and body-builder for old folks, for it contains the very elements needed to rebuild wasting tissues and replace weakness with strength. Vinol also fortifies the system against colds and thus prevents pneumonia.

A grand niece of Alexander Hamilton over eighty years of age once remarked: "Vinol is a god-send to old people. Thanks to Vinol I have a hearty appetite, sleep soundly, feel active and well. It is the finest tonic and strength creator I have ever used."

"If Vinol fails to build up the feeble, old people, and create strength we will return your money. Red Cross Drug Store. J. S. McKeown, Belleville, Ont.

A MODERN TOWN.

Boley, Ok., is said to be the largest modern town in the world inhabited exclusively by negroes. Boley has a population of about 5,000, and there is not a white man living or owning property within six miles of the town. It has 26 business houses, about sixty of which are of brick or stone. There is a $20,000 waterworks, two colleges, seven churches, three cotten gins, a telephone system and seven miles of paved sidewalks. The town boasts the highest-salaried negro post office in the world.

EDISON'S FIRST JOB.

Mr. Thomas A. Edison modestly claims that he owes much of his success to luck.

"One day," says Mr. Edison, "when tramping the streets of New York, without a cent in my pocket, I happened on a telegraph office, which had about five hundred subscribers. I was standing beside a telegraph apparatus, when it gave a terrific rip-roar and stopped. In a few moments hundreds of messenger boys were yelling for someone to fix the tickers.

"I stepped in, and moved a loose spring that had fallen between the wheels.

"Next day I was appointed to take charge of the service at three hundred dollars a month."

But this was due to something more than luck.

LITERARY NOTES.

The first meeting of the Junior Literary Society was held on Friday afternoon, Nov. 15th. A good program had been prepared by the executive for the meeting. The forms assembled in the Assembly Hall in excellent order. The meeting was opened by the reading of the minutes of the elective meeting when the society was first organized. Mr. McLaurin then spoke a few words in regard to the fees to be paid by the pupils for the purpose of paying for the piano. The President, Douglas Reid, gave a splendid address. The other numbers on the programme were very creditably given by the following Chorus Committee:

Solo—Sidney Newton.
Reading—Florence McCurdy.
Piano Solo—Kathleen Ashley.
Speech, on Toronto Exhibition—Russel Woodley.
Piano Duet—Mae Holland and Mary Yeomans.
Reading—George Gulliver.

The meeting was closed by singing "God Save the King."

IMPERIAL LIMITED NARROWLY ESCAPES BEING WRECKED

CALGARY, Nov. 16.—The Imperial Limited, at three o'colck on Thursday morning, on its way to Calgary from the east, was derailed at a point two miles east of Cluny.

The attempt to wreck the train was the work of some desperado or desperadoes.

Only the keen vision of Engineer Fitzgerald prevented an accident that would have been perhaps more disastrous than any that has occurred for a long time. He put on the brakes and got the train down to a low speed before the engine collided with the obstruction, with the result that the front truck only jumped the rails, and the train came to a stop with a sudden jerk.

The workmen soon had the track repaired and the engine truck back on the rails and the train arrived in Calgary three hours late.

North Bay Wants Hydro.

North Bay, Nov. 18.—Crowded meetings have been held every night last week at the Royal Theatre preparatory to the voting on the Hydro-Electric and Nipissing Power Co. franchise bylaws. Friday night the theatre was packed to the doors when Mayor Scott of Galt spoke at considerable length and enthusiastically of two years operation by the Hydro-Electric Commission in that town, where the service has been profitable from the start and this year is piling up a big surplus.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency on certain conditions, by father, mother son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within 9 miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him, by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

TO OUTWIT JEALOUS SPIRIT.

Malayans Speak "Make Believe" Language When Gathering Camphor.

Strangest of all strange tongues under the sun is the "camphor language" of Johore on the Malay peninsula, which has been studied and reported by an Englishman in the service of the British Government at Johore.

This language is used by the natives and others engaged in gathering the product of the Malayan camphor tree and is employed only at such times. It is the belief of the natives that if they used either of the languages of the region, the Malay or the aboriginal Jakun, no camphor would be obtained. A most curious reason underlies this belief. No amount of missionary work could uproot the firm conviction of the Malayans and other Johore natives that each species of tree has a spirit or divinity that presides over its affairs. The spirit of the camphor tree is known by the name of Bisan—literally "a woman," and is more in evidence than all of the other spirits put together. Her resting place is near the trees; and when at night a peculiar noise is heard in the woods the Bisan is believed to be singing and camphor will surely be found in the neighborhood.

But the spirit of the camphor trees seems to be jealous of the precious gum and must be propitiated, and if she knows that hunters are in quest of it she will endeavor to turn their steps aside. The natives think that she is acquainted with both the Malay and Jakun languages, and that if the camphor hunters spoke either of those she would know that they had come for camphor and would defeat their purpose. So it is necessary to speak in a tongue that she does not understand. For this purpose the "camphor language" has been invented. It consists of a mixture of Jakun and Malay words, but these are curiously altered or reversed; and the natives believe that the divinity of the camphor tree is completely confused when she hears this jargon.

The Jakuns who hunt the camphor are one of the wildest of peoples, but are inoffensive. They live together with monkeys, dogs, cats, innumerable fowls, and perhaps a tame hornbill in perfect harmony under movable leaf shelters built on poles in the woods.

A Look Ahead.

Hurrah! Hooray! O happy day!
There's good in everything.
When woman fair our rights shall share
In politics, by jing,
It's certain that the monster hat
Must do some vanishing!

"KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER"

By C. J. Cutcliffe Hyne

An African moon floated cleanly overhead, and great African stars punctured the purple roof of heaven and to Carter's chilled fancy he and the Krooboy were as conspicuous as two actors strutting under lime light. But there were two things he overlooked, and these I believe must have been the salvation of the pair of them. The thick night mists were steaming out of the forest, and from the surf the thick white sea smoke drove in on the land breeze to meet them. This translucent fog, though it might not be very apparent to the eyes of the walkers themselves, would be quite enough to screen them from the gaze of hostile pickets who, after the manner of Africans, were already half scared out of their dusky skins by the fear of ghosts.

They had made the journey out to Smooth River in five and a quarter hours; they completed the journey back to Malla-Nulla in four, which meant good travelling; and because a heavy march like this may not be undertaken without physical payment in the stewy climate of the Coast, Carter felt certain premonitory systems which told him that a good thumping dose of fever would be his when once he slackened his efforts and gave it a chance to take charge. But he was not much alarmed at the circumstance. As he told himself coolly enough, either by the time the fever came on he would have rejoined Mr. Smith at Malla-Nulla, who in that case was perfectly capable of looking after him, or he would have rejoined Mr. Smith in the Shades Beyond, and a fever owing to his body left behind on earth would not matter. As it happened neither of these alternatives had to be bargained with.

Malla-Nulla factory was eaves deep in white wet mist when they got to it, and found it earthy-smelling and empty. It was unmarked by fire, unsmirched by signs of battle, and, strangest of all, unlooted.

The pair of them charged up the veranda steps, Carter in the lead, with the twelve-bore held ready for an instant discharge. The Krooboy with matchet uplifted and teeth at the snarl looked the very picture of savage desperation and ferocity. They stepped into the empty mess-room and lit matches and a lamp. The land breeze sang through the bamboo walls, and Carter's home-made punkah swished overhead to the unseen impulse of the water wheel; but of quick human life there was not a trace.

He had fitted up bells about the place, or rather strings that actuated wooden clappers which could beat on wooden drums. He set these all a-clang and listened. The place reeked of its usual mildew, and the smell nauseated him. They had got rid of the mildew scent at the Smooth River factory. But there was not a murmur of reply to his clamor.

White-Man's-Trouble delivered himself of wisdom. "Oh, Carter, I think dem Smith, an' all dem boys at factory lib for die. Dis place lib for full of ghosts. I fit for ran back for Smooth River."

"Run away, then," said Carter, who was beginning to examine the mess-room systematically.

The Krooboy cowered in a chair and covered his eyes. "Oh, Carter, I no fit for march back alone. Dem ghosts plenty-too-much fond o' Krooboy chop. Oh, Carter, you no be dam fool an' stay here. You lib back for Smooth River al-same me."

"My pagan friend, don't get too calling me names. I shall break my familiar. The next time I hear you knuckles up against one of the places where the worsted's been shaved off your skull. Observe—said Carter, and poured some whiskey onto the table top and set light to it—"Observe those blue flames that crawl and nicker about, but do not burn the wood. In those the ghosts that have been threatening you are now being painfully consumed. Do you believe it?"

"I fit for see 'em die," said White-Man's-Trouble. "Oh, Carter, you plenty-much-fine witch doctor. I fit for pipe-clay dem shoes, three pair a day. Oh, Carter, if Okky men lib for come, you burn them, too?"

"Certainly," said Carter, "anything to sooth your nerves. Though, as a matter of fact, I should demonstrate to them with a shotgun not by burning methylated. Now, just nose around, boy, and help me to find out where Mr. Smith's evaporated to. They can't have eaten him, or some of them must have stayed behind to digest the meal; and they can't have kidnapped him, or he'd have broken up the happy home before he condescended to go, and as we see it now, it's no more squalid than usual. So now, Trouble, produce Mr. Smith."

"Smith? Oh, Carter, dem Smith lib for surf boat."

"How on earth do you know that?"

"Dem surf boat no lib for beach. Dem paddles no lib for verandah. Okky man no fit for boat boy. So Malla-Nulla Krooboy, dey boat for dem Smith in Malla-Nulla surf boat. Savvy?"

"I do clearly. But why the deuce didn't you tell me all this before?"

"Because," said the Krooboy simply, "I too plenty-much frightened o' dem ghosts before you burn 'em."

"I wonder," said Carter thoughtfully if I shall ever understand all the workings of the African mind." He went onto the veranda and peered out into the mists. A fleecy blanket covered the sea and blotted out the water, and all things of low elevation that floated thereon. In the distance, between him and the moon, the two black mastheads of an invisible steamer ploughed through the whiteness, but between him and it a whole fleet of canoes and surf boats might have been snugly tucked away from his sight.

Then a sudden pang of coldness came upon him, which made him button up his white drill coat, and step back into the mess-room and huddle into a chair.

"Fever lib," said White-Man's Trouble looking at him critically.

"I'm in for my usual two days' touch," said Carter, with the listlessness of the malaria already creeping over him.

"You fit for quinine-palaver?"

"I suppose so."

The Krooboy fetched the quinine bottle from Mr. Smith's well-filled medicine shelf.

"I'd some pills of my own somewhere."

"Steamah pills. Dem Cappy Image pills no dam good I eat dem box myself."

"You thieving scoundrel!"

"Oh, Carter, I tell you dem pills no good." He laid a hand on his midriff. "No fit for give you even small-small twist there. Oh, Carter, I save you lose your temper over dem pills when I eat 'em self."

"I wish they'd been calomel. You will get poisoned one of these days, Trouble, if you don't stop stealing. I've some corrosive sublimate tabloids for skin preserving stowed away somewhere, and if you bolt one of those, you lib for die one-time. Here, give me a dose of quinine."

The Krooboy found a cigarette paper, tapped it full of the feathery white powder and rolled it up. Carter put his tongue and swilled it down with whiskey and water. "Quick now, get me some blankets," he chattered. "I shall burst if I do not sweat directly."

But presently the wraps were flung aside, and Carter sat aching and burning in his clammy drill clothes, with his skin bone-dry, and a feel in his head as though it were moving in and out like a concertina.

"That last's the quinine," he told himself; and then, "I say, you had better think for your own neck now. I shall be otherwise occupied for the next thirty hours. You'll be well advised if you went away back to Smooth River. If the Okky men come here and knock me on the head, I really don't care. And if they'll chop my unwholesome carcass, and get indigestion from it afterwards, I feel I shall get a grim enjoyment from watching their writhings from my own comfortable (or maybe uncomfortable) seat on the Other Side."

"You lib for bad fever," said White-Man's-Trouble thoughtfully.

Carter clutched at the Krooboy's brawny hand and wrung it enthusiastically. "Hullo, Pater! Fancy seeing you out here in this filthy hole! Well, sir, it is real good of you to leave Wharfedale and come all this way to look me up. How's the Mater? All right, eh? And did she do you in the eye this year over the roses, or did you manage to snip off the buds ahead of her? You did not happen to bring any beer with you, did you, sir? Nice cool draught of Pateley ale, in your big silver tankard that you won for stewing Hindoo babies alive at the burning ghats? We've got muggers here, too ....Lord, what rot I'm talking, and you aren't the Pater at all, but only a dashed good sort of an ugly nigger with a blue frying pan tattooed across the bridge of your nose. White-Man's-Trouble, tell me solemnly and truly. Why do noses have bridges? Why, for instance, not ferries? Wake up, you image, and give me a civil answer.."

"You lib for dam bad feve," said White-Man's-Trouble still more thoughtly, "an' if you lib for die, Okky men catch me one-time. So I fit for make you wee one-time. Oh, Carter, you hear, I plenty-much fine doctor."

"You a doctor! With peacock's feathers growing out behind your ears instead of whiskers!"

WHY DON'T YOU TAKE BETTER CARE OF YOUR HAIR!

Don't let it turn grey. Don't let the Dandruff get a foothold and start the hair falling out.

It's not natural that young women should have thin grey hair that they cannot dress becomingly.

It should always be natural-colored—luxuriant—full of life and radiance—free from ugly grey hairs and annoying Dandruff.

Nature intended that a woman's hair should be one of her chief attractions.

Why not help her to keep it so?

Why Have "Nerves?"

This is the reason why women have "nerves." When thoughts begin to grow cloudy and uncertain, impulses lag and the warnings of pain and distress are sent like flying messages throughout limbs and frame, straightway, nine times in ten, a woman will lay the cause of the trouble to some defect at the point where she first felt it. Is it a headache, a backache, a sensation of irritability or twitching and uncontrollable nervousness, something must be wrong with the head or back, a woman naturally says, but all the time the real trouble very often centers in the womanly organs. In nine cases out of ten the seat of the difficulty is here, and a woman should take rational treatment for its cure. The local disorder and inflammation of the delicate special organs of the sex should be treated steadily and systematically.

Dr. Pierce, during a long period of practice, found that a prescription made from medicinal extracts of native roots, without the use of alcohol, relieved over 90 per cent. of such cases. After using this remedy for many years in his private practice he put it up in form of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that would make it easily procurable, and it can be had at any store where medicines are handled.

Mrs. Lila B. Hawkins, of Zeus, Va., writes: "I had been failing in health for two years—most of the time was not able to attend to my household duties. Female weakness was my trouble and I was getting very bad but, thanks to Doctor Pierce's medicines, I am well and strong again. I took only three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' and used the 'Lotion Tablets.' I have nothing but praise for Doctor Pierce's wonderful medicines."

USEFUL REMINDERS

Here Are Some Household Hints for Busy Women

Coffee Stains on Linen

Black coffee stains, if not removed before the linen is washed, generally become a permanency. Take about as much yolk of egg as you think will cover the mark; mix it with an equal quantity of glycerine, and leave to dry on. Wash off in the usual way.

Freckle Lotion

Strain the juice of two small lemons into a bottle; add two ounces of alcohol (purchased from a chemist) and one ounce of rose water. Shake well apply the mixture with a soft cloth, and, when it has dried into the skin smear with a little cold cream.

Re-stiffening Felt Hats

Limp felt hats can be renovated and made to do duty again by washing them in a glue bath. Take half a pound of the best glue; put it into a two-pound earthenware jam-pot half-filled up with cold water, and leave for eighteen hours. Melt the glue by standing the jar in a saucepan of hot water. Fill a bath that will take the hat nicely with boiling water; add the glue, mix well, and wash the hat thoroughly in the mixture. Shake vigorously; dry the hat in a warm room.

THE USES OF SALT

It Is One of the Best Friends of the Housewife

Salt is not only an invaluable substance for culinary purposes, there are many uses to which it can be put beyond that of merely seasoning food. The slimiest and most disagreeable of sponges will become soft and sweet if soaked in a strong hot solution of salt and water. Handkerchiefs should always be soaked for an hour or so in salted water before they are laundered, while prints and cottons printed in fugitive colors can have their pretty ones "set" firmly enough to stand a good washing by a previous soak in a salt mixture. For cleaning baths, dishes, wash-basins or lavatory decorated with those ugly grey marks left by curdled soap, salt has no equal. Enamelled or earthenware saucepans which have been marked with burnt bands can be freed from the obnoxious coating by rubbing with a flannel sprinkled with salt. Stained china is also quickly cleansed with the aid of salt.

Oil for Wheels

So that machine oil may be used to lubricate vehicle wheels instead of grease, a Western man has invented a hub in which a channel is packed with wool and with an opening to admit the point of an oil can.

Six Wheeled Autos

Increased carrying capacity, ability to turn in narrow streets and safety are claimed for new motor omnibuses in Paris which have six wheels, the centre pair being the drivers and the others being used in steering.

Cheque From Strathcona

Mayor Schmaltz of Berlin, Ont., received a cheque for $4,000 from Lord Strathcona, High Commissioner of Canada, subscribed toward the building fund of a new Y.M.C.A. building, providing the sum of $40,000 was raised.

Fell Down Stairs Dropped a Lamp Burned to Death

STRATFORD, Nov. 18.—Mrs. William Daly tripped while carrying a lighted lamp downstairs late Saturday in her house here, and fell to the bottom, where the lamp exploded, saturating Mrs. Daly's clothes with oil, which quickly broke into a mass of flames and burned her to death.

The woman was alone in the house at the time of the fatality, and when her husband returned from work a few minutes later he found the house in a blaze. With the help of a neighbor, who had already turned in the alarm, he tried to put out the fire, but was unable to do so until the brigade came to his assistance. The body of Mrs. Daly was found at the bottom of the stairs, one foot resting on the lower step, while the other was on the other side of the banister. Some relatives state that she may have fainted, as she was subject to dizziness. The body was taken to the undertaker's, where the coroner decided that no inquest was necessary.

Deceased leaves, besides her husband, three daughters and three sons, Mrs. Stewart, of Stratford; Mrs. Brown of Ottawa; Miss Florence, of Toronto; William, of Chicago; Stephen, of Ottawa and Thomas, in Mexico.

Killed by Express Train

PARRY SOUND, Nov. 18.—The Vancouver-Toronto express, first section, killed Finley H. Davis at Pickerel Station on the C. P. R. about sixty miles north of this place Saturday morning. Mr. Davis, who formerly resided at Parry Sound, had been farming for some years in McDougall Township, near Ambo Station, about nine miles north-west of the town, but latterly was in the employ of the C. P. R. as tank tender at Pickerel Station. Deceased was a cripple the result of his having his leg broken in three places some years ago.

He was at Pickerel Station when the express came along the main line towards the tank house. Evidently thinking he could reach the tank before the train overtook him, he started along the track. The train struck him in the back, throwing him with great violence. An inquest has been ordered by Coroner Dr. Limbert. Davis was 52 years of age, and leaves a large family.

Dog Meat Ten Cents a Pound

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—"The market has gone to the dogs" literally describes the latest attempt of Germany to relieve the meat famine. In this city dog thieves are very active in bagging game, and the butchers openly pay fair price for the captured dogs. Numerous youths have adopted dog-snatching as an easy means of making pocket money. Society women no longer go to the pound in search of their missing pets but they send round to the butcher shops in the hope that the missing canines are still alive. Dog meat sells at ten cents a pound.

Mines at Porcupine Resume Operation

SOUTH PORCUPINE, Nov. 18.—he Pearl Lake, Porcupine Lake, Schumacher and Three Nations Mines have acceded to the union wage scale and will start work. It is likely that all the other mines will fight it out, and the settling at the four above mines, while claimed by the union to be a fair indication of the ultimate result of the strike, is looked upon otherwise by the Mine Managers' association. The Dome and Hollinger still retain some men, and are endeavoring to keep their mills in operation. The police are putting a stop to all liquor selling in camp, and the fine has been raised to the limit, five hundred dollars for the first offense. So far no disturbances of any serious nature have occurred.

Young Turks Jailed

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18.—Several leading Young Turks were arrested in Constantinople yesterday including Sulleiman Naziff, ex-vali of Bagdad, and Muhi Eddin, editor of the newspaper Tanin, for complicity in an aleged plot to upset the Government. Other arrests are impending in connection with the propaganda to restore the ex-Sultan Abdul to the throne.

FRONT STREET TAXPAYERS WANT NOTHING BUT CONCRETE

For nearly four hours last night the matter of paving Front street was discussed by representative taxpayers and members of the City Council. The taxpayers who have to foot the bill seem almost unanimously in favor of a concrete pavement. A large number were present at the meeting, and remained until a vote was taken to defer the matter for two weeks more, before it is definitely decided what kind of a road shall be laid.

City Engineer Lindsay presented a brief report in reference to his visit, as one of the deputation to Detroit to inspect concrete pavements. The gist of the communication was to the effect that concrete would make a good pavement.

Mr. L. E. Allen, consulting engineer of the county, addressed the Council. He was one of the deputation which recently visited Detroit. Speaking of concrete pavements, Mr. Allen stated that in Ann Arbor, Mich., where he resided for four years, there were a number of streets paved with concrete. That concrete was durable there can be no doubt. Concrete has been used in various climates and under various conditions. Only in the last six years had concrete been used to any extent as a paving material. In his opinion there was no question as to the durability of concrete. As to the cost, there was no comparison with other permanent pavements. A solid concrete roadbed can, and has been laid from 95c. to $1.50 per square yard. In Peterborough this year about 1,000 feet of this material was laid on a permanent thoroughfare at a cost of 95c. per square yard. The engineer at Peterborough said that the pavement was satisfactory in every way. That city owned the gravel and charged for it at the rate of $1 per yard. The engineer at Peterborough said the noise was not much greater than an asphalt pavement, and the wear is uniform.

Ald. Panter—What is the machinery necessary to lay this pavement.

Mr. Allen—Simply a concrete mixer.

Ald. Alford—Have we the material here?

Mr. Allen—I have seen the gravel from Zwick's Island and it seems to be good material.

Col. Lazier—What is the cost of the upkeep of concrete pavement?

Mr. Allen—According to the report of the commissioners of Wayne County, Mich., the upkeep for about 10 miles was $200 per year.

Col. Laizer stated that as a property owner on Front street he was interested in the paving of that thoroughfare, as are all the owners. They thought, however, that they should not be compelled to pay the whole cost of the proposed pavement. They would, however, be willing to pay the whole cost if they were allowed the privilege of saying what kind of a pavement should be laid. There seems to be no doubt but that concrete is the proper kind of pavement to be laid down. It is durable and the upkeep is not so expensive as some other pavement.

Ald. Robinson—Have you considered vitrified brick as a pavement?

Col. Lazier—I understand it is a very noisy pavement.

Ald. Robinson—In St. Thomas this pavement is being put down and is proving satisfactory. It is said that the upkeep is trifling. It can be put down for $2 per square yard.

Mr. J. F. Wills, K.C., said he had not studied the matter of pavement thoroughly. The concrete pavement is the foundation for all permanent pavements. This cannot be gainsaid. Vitrified brick is a good pavement, but an expensive one. Asphalt is a good pavement, but if it is not kept clean it will deteriorate. If an asphalt pavement was constructed on Front street from Dundas street to the upper bridge, it would, in his opinion, require three men to keep it clean and this would mean a large expenditure annually. In order to put down an asphalt pavement, a six inch concrete base would have to be put down. If a concrete pavement was not found satisfactory, an asphalt surface could be put on. He was firmly convinced that concrete was the proper pavement. We have the material here, and the men to do the work. If a mistake is made the taxpayers on Front street will have to bear the expense.

Ald. Robinson—Vitrified brick pavements have been down in St. Thomas for 16 years and are giving satisfaction.

Mr. S. Burrows said he was surprised to hear that a vitrified brick pavement could be put down for $2.00 a square yard. He understood that it cost about twice that much. If concrete was good for the foundation of a pavement why should it not be good for the top? The taxpayers on Front street want a concrete pavement and as they are willing to pay every dollar of the cost, they should have a say in regard to the material to be used.

Ald. Panter—If a concrete pavement was put down on Front street and it proved unsatisfactory, and an asphalt surface had to be put down, would the taxpayers have to pay for this extra expense?

"Yes"—from several taxpayers in the audience.

Ald. Clarke moved that, in view of the expressions of the taxpayers on Front street that the by-law be amended and concrete be substituted for asphalt. The mover of the resolution stated that the sentiment of the the owners of property on Front street was in favor of a concrete pavement. We hace now obtained the opinion of the taxpayers and they say concrete instead of asphalt. They have also agreed to pay the expense of recovering the concrete pavement with asphalt if found necessary. Vitrified brick might on the surface be the most durable, but it was absurd to state that it would prove durable by being laid on gravel. If laid in cement it would possibly be the most lasting pavement that could be put down. We have had concrete crossings for years, and they do not show any wear. This was an evidence that a concrete pavement will wear well. It is not a slippery pavement, as it is finished with a rough surface.

Ald. Parks stated that he did not own property on Front street, but he valued the oath of office he had taken. It did not make any difference to him what kind of a pavement was laid down. In the city of Detroit concrete pavement cost more than was contemplated and the upkeep was less.

Ald. Woodley said he would favor the motion of Ald. Clarke. If the taxpayers desired concrete they should have it, but in a few years they would ask for an asphalt covering.

Ald. Wallace said he would like to know what proportion of the property on Front street was represented by the taxpayers who were present.

It was demonstrated that those present represented a considerable portion of Front street property.

Ald. Slater stated that he was in favor of a concrete pavement being laid.

Ald. Robinson said that as between sheet asphalt and concrete for a pavement he would prefer concrete, and would vote for it, seeing that vitrified brick could not be laid.

Ald. Bogle—As the Front street property owners desire concrete for a pavement he would support it.

Ald. Alford said that as a property owner on Front street he wanted to see the best pavement possible laid on that thoroughfare. He would rather have an asphalt pavement, but he would support the proposition to construct a concrete pavement.

Ald. White stated that when the question of pavement was first brought up, the matter of cost, etc., of pavements was considered. Asphalt pavement, the majority of the Council thought preferable, but as the ratepayers on Front street wanted concrete they should have it. In his opinion there would be more or less trouble with a cement pavement. In all cement work, when the upper hard surface becomes broken, the coarser bulk soon wears.

Ald. Panter was of the opinion that it was not policy to lay a concrete pavement, but if the taxpayers on Front street want concrete, let them have it. There was nothing more satisfactory than an asphalt pavement. He desired the taxpayers on Front street to look into this matter carefully before they finally decide what kind of a pavement is laid on Front street.

Mr. Smith said that in 1905 the first concrete pavement was laid in Worcester, Mass. A sheet asphalt pavement can be kept clean as easily concrete. Concrete is all right in buildings or bridges, but is not so serviceable for pavements as it needs constant repairs after a very few years.

Ald. Panter—We want the best pavement it is possible to get for Front street and he would ask the taxpayers between now and the next meeting of the Council to consider the matter well and study every point, and then decide what kind of a pavement is desired.

Ald. Alford moved in amendment that the matter be laid over for two weeks.

After some further discussion a vote was taken and the amendment of Ald. Alford prevailed, the Council proceeding to adjust itself to other city business.

To Avert Disputes

OTTAWA, Nov. 18.—Special—Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, is making arrangements to have five or six officials of the department in construction camps next year to see that the employees get a square deal from their employers. Officers will also be stationed in the mines of Nova Scotia and the Crow's Nest Pass. This is an advanced step, and it is expected that it will result in a better understanding all round. The officers, so far as possible, will act as mediators in any dispute.

A Democratic Monarch

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Special—A European monarch travelling in a third-class railway car was never heard of until the other day, when the democratic King Nicholas of Montenegro was on his way to Antivari. Hearing that two Montenegrins from America were passengers on the same train, but in a third-class coach, which on this line, from the viewpoint of cleanliness and comfort, is notoriously the worst in the Balkans. The King approached the Americans and carried on an animated conversation about that country for some time.

MONASTIR HAS FALLEN

Last Crushing Blow Is Administered to Turkey.

Fifty Thousand Ottoman Soldiers Fall Into the Hands of the Victorious Servians at the Close of the Most Signal Victory of the War—Sultan Has Made a Fresh Appeal to the Powers to Intervene.

London, Nov. 19.—Any idea that the Turkish Government may have had of benefiting by continued resistance must be shattered by yesterday's news of the fall of Monastir. In the capture of that important town the Servians took three pashas, including the commander-in-chief, Zekki Pasha, 50,000 men and 47 guns, thus achieving the greatest individual success of the war.

Monastir was the second city of importance in European Turkey. It was Turkey's stronghold in Macedonia, and by its downfall Macedonia passes completely out of Turkish hands.

What part the Greeks played in the capture has not yet been ascertained. It is known that the Greek army was marching to the assistance of the Servians, and it is supposed that the Greeks were able to cut off the Turkish retreat to the south.

The Servians naturally will be elated at this victory, which outshines the capture of Saloniki and must have a great moral effect on the future course of the war.

Another of the strange silences which have been characteristic of this war appears to have fallen over Constantinople, from which city only brief despatches have been received telling of the resumption of the Tchatalja battle, and that the Sultan has made a fresh personal appeal to the European sovereigns to intervene for the termination of the war. Quite as little may be expected to come of this appeal as of the previous attempt at mediation of the powers.

With the cholera and typhus ravaging her demoralized army and a powerful enemy hammering at the gates of the capital, Turkey must again appeal to the allies for terms. Undoubtedly the object of the commanders in ordering the attack on the Tchatalja lines was to compel this course. It seems incredible that Bulgaria for the mere glory of a triumphal entry into a city she does not desire possession of should wish to take her army into a disease infected zone.

The Turkish reports, even the officers' official despatches of the result of the operations, have been so unreliable throughout that little attention can be paid to the reports of the Tchatalja battle, issued at Constantinople on Sunday and Monday. The operation probably was little more than an artillery preparation which in all important battles lasts several days, for the purpose of drawing the enemy's fire and locating the enemy's [illegible]

As the effect of the victory at Monastir will be to stiffen the Servian Government in resistance of Austrian pretentions, the consular troubles at Prisrend and Mitrovitza are breeding a dangerous spirit of ill-feeling between Austria and Servia, which is litte calculated to favor diplomatic negotiations. The newspapers of both capitals reflect this feeling.

No news has yet reached Vienna at the Austrian consul Prechaska at Prisrend. The Servian Government has declined to comply with Austria's request to allow an Austrian representative to go to Pristend to make enquiries, and practically ignores Austria's protests on the subject. Except for an unconfirmed report of the fall of Scutari, no military news of importance has been received.

[illegible] that the cholera has attacked the Bulgarian army comes in a report that the noted German doctor, Roth, has been summoned to the Bulgarian headquarters to assist in stamping out the disease.

Belgrade, [illegible] 19.—The fighting which preceded the surrender of Monastir lasted two days. On Saturday a Servian division was ordered to storm a position west of the town held by 20,000 Turks with 17 guns.

According to unofficial accounts the Turks suffered the loss of 200 killed and wounded, including several superior officers.

In the meantime the Servan right wing swung around and seized the Dolintze-Giawar road, cutting into the Turkish line of communication. The Turks thus surrounded fought desperately, and it is supposed that the arrival of the Greek army from the south rendered surrender inevitable.

Police on Track of Suspect in Case Of Boy's Murder

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Police Chief Gilson, of Lackawanna, in his search for the murderer of Joseph Josephs, the little Syrian boy of that city, whose dismembered body was found in a sewer vault Saturday has narrowed his suspicions on one man, whose whereabouts are at present unknown.

The police in several cities have been instructed in detail how to search for the man, and his apprehension in a day or two is confidently expected.

The funeral of the Josephs boy was held this morning. Every school and business house in the city was closed between 9 and 10.30 o'clock while the funeral services were being held in St. Charles' Church on the Ridge road in Lackawanna.

Mrs. Josephs, mother of the slain boy, is lying in a critical condition, and physicians hold out little hope for her recovery.

Montenegrins Announce Capture Of a Seaport

CETTINJE, Nov. 18.—It was announced here last night that the Montenegrin troops have captured the town of San Giovanni De Medu in Albania.

The occupation and possible retention of this town by the Montenegrins have been one of the matters of dispute between Austria and the Balkan Allies.

King Nicholas, accompanied by his son-in-law, the Russian Grand Duke, Peter Mikloaievitch, embarked on Friday on a lake steamer, to view the operations in front of Scutari. The steamer immediately became a target for Turkish shells, which fell unpleasantly close to the boat.

His Majesty on the steamer followed the work of the Montenegro centre column on the plain before Scutari. At noon a heavy bombardment opened on all sides. Montenegrin shells several times struck the highest point of Mount Tarabosch, dense clouds of smoke arising.

At three o'clock in the afternoon a Turkish battery occupying an exceedingly strong position at Golez was silenced. The Turks evacuated the position amid the cheers of the Montenegrins. Subsequently shells struck a magazine in the town and flames were seen to shoot up.

RUGBY

HAMILTON, Nov. 18.—Rough Riders and Senior Tigers played an exhibition game at the H.A.A.A. grounds on Saturday, and the seniors were beaten 18 to 7. The seniors, however, were not at full strength, and did not extend themselves. Davey Tope, who has not played for three years, was on the field, and played at right half, and though he was out of practice, played a good game, and indicated that he might be well able to come back. Rough Riders had the better of the play nearly all through the game.

HAMILTON, Nov. 18.—Dr. Carr, president of the Alert Football Club, tonight, when asked for his opinion of the decision of Referee Ben Simpson regarding the try that the Torontos claim they should have been allowed, was that the ball was dead. "Referee Simpson has earned the reputation of being one of the most careful officials in Canada," said Dr. Carr. "He blew his whistle, and the ball was dead and was brought back. The best proof that the ball was dead was that the Alert men did not molest the Toronto player who carried the ball. We do not think there is any ground for the Torontos' claim."

HAMILTON, Nov. 18.—Parkdale and Hamilton met here on Saturday and the [illegible] lads got the decision in an exciting clash, 8 to [illegible]. In the first quarter Parkdale scored three. In the next Hamilton scored seven and seemed to have Parkdale going. However, in the second half Parkdale came back, and by adopting a kicking-and-bucking game were able to win. Paisley for Hamilton and Birdsall, Hughes and Smith for Parkdale, are all classy players. The game was clean and hard-fought. After the game the Hamilton boys entertained Parkdale at dinner. Dr. McGann made a good official. Mr. Reid acted as umpire.

HAMILTON, Nov. 18.—Alerts juniors on Saturday at Dundas scored a victory over Galt in a very rough game, and are now qualified to enter the junior O. R.F.U. finals. They won from Galt by a score of 26 to 3, and it was their game from the beginning.

During their season the juniors have scored 137 points against their opponents, and only seven points have been chalked up against them. The teams:

Galt—Mogg, Kress, Call and Gossage, backs; Quackenbush, quarter; McKenzie, Moore and Marshall, scrimmage; Fulford, Myles, Kilgour, McNaught, Elliott and Clark, wings.

Alerts—Finlayson, Clements, Reid and Laing, backs; Brydges, quarter; Osborne Fickley and Zimmerman, scrimmage; Tyce, Muirhead, Ireland, Snyder, Jones, Voelker and McKelvie, wings.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—It is not yet definitely settled whether McGill will go after the Dominion football title, but it would be no surprise to hear that the season, as far as the college players are concerned, is over. Not only do some members of the faculty object to a play-off, but a number of the students themselves are not anxious to continue playing football this season.

The men have been in constant training since the middle of September. There has been scarcely an afternoon without a two-hour workout. Some of the men have accumulated a good deal of studies to attend to. These views were expressed by some of the players after Saturday's game, and although the student body are anxious to see a game with Argos, and are confident that McGill can win, they also realize that the players have earned a rest. On the other hand, a number of the players are eager for a game. Captain Jimmy, for one, being ready. Coach Shaughnessy should like to see a playoff.

If it were possible to play Argos without playing Alerts a week later there might be more chance of a game between the Interprovincial and intercollegiate leaders. While some of the players would object to another week's training and a game with Argonauts here, a trip to Hamilton to play the leaders of the Ontario Union has few attractions.

HOCKEY.

GUELPH, Nov. 18.—After an absence of five or six years Guelph has again entered the O. H. A. At a well attended meeting of hockey supporters Friday night, the Victoria Hockey Club was organized for the coming season, with the following officers: Hon. President, Wm. Sunley; President, W. McDougall; First Vice President, E. Wycks; Second Vice-President, E. [illegible]errell; Secretary, William Harper; Treasurer, R. Roberts.

Managers of the two teams, senior and junior, will be appointed later.

Among the players who are ready and who should be able with good coaching to more than hold their own in the big league for O. H. A. honors are J. Lindsay, W. Cook, W. Drew, J. Hamilton, C. Wells, W. Craven, Ross, H. Brohman, R. Johnson, and several other good hockeyists who have come to Guelph during the past couple of years.

TORONTO, Nov. [illegible]—The Ontario Hockey Association held its annual meeting in the Temple Building. Over 20 delegates were present from different clubs of the city and from outside towns. Two amendments were made, one being that "No one shall be admitted or remain a member of the association which plays under the name of any commercial organization," and the other a change in the playing rules, which reads: "The players who face the puck must keep the blade of their sticks on the ice while the referee drops the puck." This amendment will to some extent obviate the delays which sometimes occur at centre ice.

The motion of Dr. W. G. Wood to debar from members any club playing under the name of a commercial organization was in regard to the Eaton A.A. A. Last year the executive of the O.H. A. refused to admit any club so named, and this year it was to be the purpose of those in charge to go even farther, and debar any such organization from remaining members. Secretary Smith of the Eatons said the E.A.A. A. would not play hockey in the O.H.A. under any but the accustomed name. They would drop out sooner than change. Louis Blake Duff, J. T. Sutherland, T. Harry Pace, R. M. Glover and Francis Nelson all favored the amendment. Eatons were wanted in the association, but to remain under their present name was contrary to the wish of the O. H. A.

The Eaton A.A. was vindicated in regard to certain rumors of a breach in the amateur rule. The Registration Committee had made a thorough search, had examined offers and others, and looked over papers and books, but found no irregularities whatever. Athletes employed by the T. Eaton Co., who were reputed to be receiving the salaries of bank presidents, were paid just what their services in the store were worth, but not one iota more. In fact, the investigation proved that current rumors were entirely false, and that no breach of amateur rules had been made.

The election of officers was a mere formality, all last season's men receiving re-election. Thus the officers of the O.H.A. this year are:

L. Blake Duff, past president; Chas. Farquharson, Stratford; Ken Castleman London; Jas. T. Sutherland, Kingston; L. E. Copeland, Midland; Francis Nelson, Toronto; D. L. Darroch, Collingwood, ex-president; R. M. Glover, Peterboro'; J. R. Beaton, Chatham; Sheriff J. T. Panton, Whitby, and Secretary W. A. Hewitt.

The following delegates were present at Saturday's meeting:

Bradford—O. G. Bernhardt.
Bowmanville—G. W. James.
Kingston—Jas. T. Sutherland.
London—W. R. Vining.
Midland—W. J. Duncan.
Newmarket—J. B. Cane.
Preston—I. A. Bernhardt.
Sarnia—Lyle La Sueur.
Orillia—J. E. Tudhope.
Whitby—J. T. Panton.
Welland—J. D. Payne.
Woodstock—R. Sanderock.
Eatons—W. J. Smith.
Toronto Canoe Club—R. J. Burns.
Simcoes, Toronto—Art Etwell.
St. Michael's College—E. E. Dunyan.
Lourdes, Toronto—T. H. Wase.
St. Paul's, Toronto—P. M. Kennedy.
Parkdale Club, Toronto—Frank R. Longstaff.
Paris—Chas. E. Walker.
Stratford—Dr. Edgett.

In view of the very satisfactory surplus at the association's credit, something may be done toward a reduction in the fees of admission.

THE TURF.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 18.—Saturday's racing at Jamestown was featured by the Fairfax Hotel Handicap for two-year-olds. John Whalen, who formerly trained for August Belmont, furnished the winner with his good colt Buskin. H. P. Whitney's Pankhurst, by Veter—Runaway Girl, was made favorite on account of a fast trial with Bashti. She went to the front at the break and ran prominent for half a mile. The winner took the lead, turning off the back stretch and won handily from Nash Cash. The latter ran a good race and was on the outside all the way.

H. G. Bedwell's Spohn beat a lot of good platers in the third event. The erratic Hilarious was made favorite. He broke flat-footed and would never extend himself. Amos Turney bid the winner up from $900 to $1,200, but Bedwell protected the horse. Several years ago at Woodbine Bedwell boosted Martin Doyle a couple of thousand when Harney's Breadwinner was in a selling stake. Today's boost was in remembrance of that event.

Donald McDonald was run up from $400 to $600. Ex-Jockey Jimmie Gormley was responsible for the boost.

Jockeys Teahan and Butwell each rode two winners. The number of books increased from 16 to 21.

The Beverwyck Stable has gone into winter quarters at the Bennings track. It is possible that a couple of the lot may be sent down to Charleston next January.

R. E. Watkins has disposed of Shelby to J. Howard Lewis. Shelby is destined for a steeplechaser and will be schooled at the Wsieper Farm in Pennsylvania during the winter months.

GENERAL SPORTS.

PARIS, France, Nov. 18.—France is about to behold its first baseball game. The French Baseball Union, as the result of the wave of interest in sports of all kinds now sweeping the country, has just been formed, with Frank Messerly, of 79 Rue Dunquerque, Paris, as president. The object of the union is to organize clubs and stimulate interest in American baseball. If the games are taken up with the zest lately accorded several English sports, America may soon be witnessing international baseball matches with France.

Arrived Too Late

SOFIA, Nov. 18.—Nearly one thousand Bulgarian reservists from the United States arrived here yesterday. Their enthusiasm was dampened by the announcement that they would very probably not be permitted to go to the front. Some of them have already started for their homes in the provinces.

Twelve hundred Turkish prisoners have been brought here.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Sudden strength developed in wheat today after the receipt of news that European troops had landed at Constantinople. There was a nervous close, ½c to 1¾c above Saturday night. Latest trading left corn a shade off to ⅛c to ¼c up, oats with a gain of ⅛c to ⅝c, and provisions varying from 5c lower to a rise of 2½c.

The Liverpool market closed ¾d to ⅞d higher on wheat, and ⅛d to ⅜d higher on corn. Paris wheat closed ⅜c to 1¼c higher, Antwerp ⅝c lower, Berlin ¼c higher, and Budapest 1⅛c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat was fair and late cables were firmer, at an advance of 1½d but the volume of business done was small. Cables on flaxseed were lower, but the bids for barley were steady. The local trade in oats was quiet. Spring wheat flour was steady at the recent decline, with a fair volume of business doing. Millfeed is fairly active. Demand for butter continues good, and the shipments west by the C.P.R. for the months of September and October were 73 cars. Cheese is very quiet. Exports for the week were 58,162, against 25,16[illegible] last year. Eggs firm. Dressed hogs 25c higher.

Corn—American, No. 2 yellow 65c to 69c.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 46½c to 47c; extra No. 1 feed, 46c to 46½c.

Barley—Manitoba feed, 61c to 62c; malting, 75c to 80c.

Buckwheat—No. 2, 56c to 57c.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.40; seconds, $4.90; strong bakers', $4.70; winter patents, choice, $5.25; straight rollers, $4.95 to $5; bags, $2.35 to $2.40.

Rolled oats—Barrels, $5.05; bags, 90 lbs., $2.40.

Millfeed—Bran, $22; shorts, $26 to $27; middlings, $28 to $30; moullie, $30 to $35.

Hay—No. 2, per ton, car lots, $13 to $13.50.

Cheese—Finest westerns, 12¾c to 13c; finest easterns, 12½c to 12¾c.

Butter—Choicest creamery, 30¼c to 30½c; seconds, [illegible].

Eggs—Selected, 30c to 31c; No. 2 stock, 21c to 22c.

Potatoes—Per bag, car lots, 80c to 85c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 16 were 2500 cattle, 2000 sheep and lambs, 2100 hogs and 850 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale consisted of 1650 cattle, 550 sheep and lambs, 900 hogs and 350 calves.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle today. The offerings were somewhat larger than expected, and in consequence buyers held off to some extent during the early part of the day, with the expectation of buying cheaper than a week ago; consequently trade was rather slow. Drovers and dealers were firm in their views, and held out, which resulted in bringing buyers up to the market, and a good demand, with fairly good trade, followed. Choice steers were in demand, at from $6.25 to $6.75 per 100 pounds. The demand for canning stock continues good, cows selling at $2 to $2.50, and bulls at $2.75 to $3.15 per 100 pounds.

Owing to smaller receipts of sheep and lambs, a stronger feeling prevailed in the market, and prices were 25c per 100 pounds higher than a week ago. Demand was good, and Ontario lambs sold [illegible], and Quebec at $6 to $6.25, while ewe sheep brought $4 to $4.25 per 100 pounds.

The trade in calves was fairly active, at 2½c to 3c for grass-fed stock, and at 5c to 7c per pound for milk-fed.

In spite of the recent weakness and the lower prices ruling in the Toronto market for hogs, a stronger feeling developed in the local market today, and prices advanced 25c to 40c per 100 pounds, as compared with last week. Selected lots sold at $8.75, and some lots coming from north of Toronto sold as high as $9 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $5.75 to $6.25; do., medium, $5.25 to $5.50; do., common, $3.50 to $4; canners, $2 to $3.15; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $4.75 to $5; do., medium, $4.25 to $4.50; do., bulls, $3.25 to $3.75; milkers, choice, each, $90 to $50; do., common and medium, each, $70 to $80; springers, $55 to $65.

Sheep, ewes, $4 to $4.25; bucks and culls, $3.50 to $3.75; lambs, $6 to $6.50.

Hogs, f.o.b., $8.75 to $9.

Calves, $3 to $12.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Nov. 18.—Cattle—Receipts, 8000 head; active and 5c to 15c higher; prime steers, $9 to $9.25; butchers, $6 to $8.65; bulls, $4.25 to $6.25; stock heifers, $4.25 to $4.65; shipping, $7.50 to $8.75; heifers, $4.75 to $7.50; cows, $3 to $6.65; stockers and feeders, $4.50 to $7; fresh cows and springers active and firm at $35 to $75.

Veals—Receipts, 1200 head; active and steady, at $4 to $11.

Hogs—Receipts, 24,000 head; active; high steady; others 15c to 25c lower; heavy, $7.90 to $8; mixed, $7.80 to $7.90; yorkers, $7.50 to $7.90; pigs, $7.40 to $7.50; roughs, $6.90 to $7.10; stags, $5 to $6.50; dairies, $7.50 to $7.90.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 27,000 head; active; sheep steady; lambs 20c lower; lambs, $4.60 to $7.40; yearlings, $5 to $5.50; wethers, $4.50 to $4.75; ewes, $2 to $4; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.25.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Cattle—Receipts, 27,000, market steady; beeves, $5.30 to $10.65; Texas steers, $4.30 to $5.60, western steers, $5.50 to $9; stockers and feeders, $4.10 to $7.10; cows and heifers, $2.40 to $5.60; calves, $6.50 to $10.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 39,000, market steady; light, $7.30 to $7.90; mixed, $7.35 to $7.90; heavy, $7.30 to $7.90, rough, $7.30 to $7.50; pigs, $4.75 to $7.25; bulk of sales, $7.60 to $7.85.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 48,000; market mostly 10c lower. Native, $3.50 to $4.60; western, $3.75 to $4.50; yearlings, $4.90 to $6. Lambs, native, $5.50 to $7.75; western, $5.75 to $7.50.

Liverpool Cattle Market.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 18.—John Rogers & Co. cable that there was a brisk trade at Birkenhead today, good cattle, especially, being in demand, and Saturday's prices were well maintained at 11½c to 12½c per pound for Irish steers.

Potato Embargo In New York.

Albany, N.Y., Nov. 19.—Fearing the introduction of the "potato wart disease" into this state, Commissioner Huson of the State Department of Agriculture announced yesterday he had issued an order prohibiting the importation of potatoes into this state for seeding purposes from Newfoundland, the Islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Germany and Austria-Hungary.

The disease, which is contagious, is variously known as "potato canker," "potato wart" and "black scab," the planting of potatoes from the countries mentioned, within the state, is also prohibited.

O. A. C. Judging Team Chosen.

Guelph, Nov. 19.—The team to represent the O. A. College in the judging competition at the Chicago International Stock Show, have been finally selected. Messrs. Harding, King, Nixon, Shafter and Tisdale have obtained the coveted honors. Prof. C. E. Day left Sunday night with the team for a short trip through New York State for final practice, particularly on some breeds of fat hogs, which are very little known this side of the line. They will return to Ontario and judge stock at various points before leaving for Chicago.

Niagara Publishers Organize.

St. Catharines, Nov. 19.—The Niagara District Printers' and Publishers' Association is the title of an organization formed here yesterday, one of the first moves of which will be to increase the price of all class of job printing. Secretary John Imrie of the Canadian Press Association addressed the association showing that considerable work is being done below cost.

The officers were elected as follows: President, W. J. Burgoyne, St. Catharines; vice-president, J. H. Thompson, Thorold; secretary, Louis Blake Duff, Welland.

Beaverton Also.

Beaverton, Ont., Nov. 19.—A bylaw was submitted yesterday on the question as to whether the ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, resulting in favor of the bylaw. Votes polled for Hydro-electric power, 154, against 3.

American Laborites May Adopt Industrial Unionism.

Resolution at Federation of Labor Congress Favors a Policy of Organization by Industries Instead of by Crafts In Order to Fight the Strong Body of Manufacturers In the United States.

Rochester, Nov. 19.—The question whether the American Federation of Labor is to adopt industrial unionism in place of its present policy of recognizing, except in certain instances, the autonomy of trade or craft organizations will be discussed to-day. Near the close of yesterday afternoon's meeting the committee on education reported on a resolution for the adoption of industrial unionism. A majority of the committee voted for its rejection and a minority report favored industrial unionism where practicable, and where not practicable a close federation of trade unions for unified action.

The resolution was introduced by John Mitchell, Duncan McDonald, John P. White, Frank J. Hayes, Wm. Green and J. H. Walker of the United Mine Workers of America, and is as follows:

"Whereas, the lines are being more closely drawn between capital and labor, and,

"Whereas, the capitalists of the country have organized the National Manufacturers' Association and other large employers' organizations, compact, cohesive bodies, having for their purpose the destruction of the trades' union movement, and realizing that in unity there is strength, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that in order to combat these compact and powerful organizations of employers of labor, this convention adopts and endorses the plan of organization by industries instead of by crafts, which often divides the forces of labor and that the officers of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to use every effort to bring this about and that they visit the different labor conventions and use their influence to mould sentiment along these lines."

The majority of the committee desired to substitute for the resolution the autonomy declaration of the Scranton convention in 1901, which favored the retention of the policy of recognizing and maintaining craft or trade autonomy insofar as it was compatible with modern organization of industry. By special order of the convention, discussion of the resolution was set for to-day, directly following the discussion of the influence of the Sherman anti-trust law on the labor movement.

Man and Wife Nearly Killed.

Woodstock, Nov. 19—H. G. Benfield, a prominent cattle dealer of Oxford County, and his wife, had a narrow escape from asphyxiation by gas early yesterday morning, and it required several hours for doctors to bring them around.

At an early hour Mr. Benfield awoke in a semi-conscious condition and discovered that the room was full of gas. He endeavored to rouse his wife, but she had lapsed into unconsciousness.

Mr. Benfield then attempted to get out of the room, but he fell to the floor, striking his head and inflicting a serious gash. He continued in his efforts to leave the room, but fell again in the hallway. The noise awakened other members of the household, who found Mr. Benfield lying prostrate in the hall and Mrs. Benfield unconscious on the bed.

Both were quite ill as a result of their experience.

Federal Square for Toronto.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—It is understood that the Federal Government will bring down estimates covering the cost of the proposed federal square, at the session which opens next week. The area lying between the City Hall and Osgoode Hall, and extending two blocks north, will be the site of the new Government buildings.

In the federal square will be located the buildings of the Department of Agriculture, Inland Revenue, Public Works, Immigration, the Receiver-General's office, and the new post office, weights and measures and other branches. There will also be a small park area, to provide a breathing place in that congested portion of the city.

Hon. Adam Beck Wins.

New York, Nov. 19.—The United States took highest honors in the first big international contest of this year's National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden yesterday. England won second prize, and the United States took third.

Hon. Adam Beck, acting for the London Hunt Club, carried off the cup presented by Richard M. Woods for three qualified hunters from one hunt, shown by the master, whips or members of the hunt in the hunt uniform.

In the class for heavyweight hunters, carrying up to 200 pounds, Major Joseph Kilgour of the Queen's Own Rifles, with Touraine, took second place.

Little Miss Mona Dunn, the Canadian girl, who sent her horses over from London, Eng., took second prize with Gray Mist in the class for saddle horses over 15 hands 2 inches, 4 years or over, and third in the class for saddle horses 14 hands 2 inches, with [illegible]

Schooner Founders, Crew Saved.

Rockland, Me., Nov. 19.—News of the probable loss of the British three masted schooner E. Merriam and the escape of her crew was received here yesterday. The Merriam struck on Green Island Seal Ledge, near Matinicus, twelve miles off the coast Sunday.

The schooner was bound from St. John, N.B., for New York with a cargo of 325,000 feet of lumber.

Trial Nears Its End.

New York, Nov. 19.—The fate of the four gunmen will be delivered into the hands of the jury, probably this afternoon.

WATCHING EXPERIMENT

Canada Has an Epe on U. S. Parcels Post Law.

The Operation of the New Bourne Law Across the Border Will Be Investigated by Postmater-General Pelletier, According to Interview and Canada May Take Steps to Extend the Scope of Present Act.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—That the Government will follow with keenest interest the operation of the new parcels' post law in the United States with a view to the prompt expansion and wide extension of the system in Canada was stated yesterday by Postmaster-General Pelletier.

The "Bourne bill," which passed the U. S. Congress at the last session, brings into effect on Jan. 1 a comprehensive parcels post system. The charges are regulated by distance, the country for this purpose being divided into eight zones or districts, the weight limit is increased from four pounds to 11 pounds, and special provisions are made for the transportation and insurance of live fowl, fresh eggs and other farm products.

The rates rise from 5 cents a pound with one cent for each additional pound in cities and suburbs to a maximum rate of 12 cents a pound for all distances exceeding 1,800 miles, including the Philippine Islands. The zones are so regulated as to make the carriage by post considerable cheaper than the rates now charged by the express companies and make possible direct shipment by farmers, dairymen, and market gardeners to their customers in nearby towns and cities.

Mr. Pelletier stated yesterday that the Department would follow with the closest attention the progress of this first great experiment by the United States with parcel post, as the conditions in the United States were more analogous to Canadian conditions than those which obtained in the Mother Country. The Bourne bill has been sharply criticized in the United States, and the Dominion Government is naturally anxious to observe its practical workings before framing the details of its own policy of parcel post extension.

In this connection it may be stated that the Department may detail an official to visit various points in the United States for the purpose of observing the administration of the new parcels post regulations after Jan. 1.

"That will be a matter for the deputy Postmaster-General," Mr. Pelletier observed. "We want to learn the facts thoroughly, and if sending officers to the United States for an inspection tour will aid us, that will certainly be done. If the new law proves to be a success in the United States, we will not be slow to profit by the example. At this very moment Dr. Coulter has under consideration the anomaly by which our domestic rates for parcel post are higher in Canada than are the rates for like service between Canada and the United Kingdom."

Dr. R. M. Coulter, deputy Postmaster-General, asked about the foregoing, agreed with the Postmaster-General that the conditions in the United States were to such an extent analogous with conditions in Canada, that the Department would be keenly interested in the working out of the new U. S. parcels post regulations. It might take some months, perhaps a year, to demonstrate whether or not the plant provided by the Bourne bill was a success.

Commerce Heads List.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—The gain of the Canadian Bank of Commerce over the Bank of Montreal shown in the bank statement last month has been, it is understood, not only maintained but actually increased, as will be shown by the statement to be issued by the Finance Department on Wednesday. The statement of the condition of Canadian banks on Oct. 31 will, it is authoritatively said, show that the Canadian Bank of Commerce leads the Bank of Montreal in assets by $5,000,000 and in liabilities, under the head of deposits, by $11,000,000.

Must Keep Off Ice Bridge.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 19.—When Niagara's next ice bridge forms it will be against the law to cross upon it, because of the ice bridge tragedy of last winter, when Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Stanton, Toronto, and Burrell Heycock, Cleveland, lost their lives, the commissioners of the state reservation, have made it a misdemeanor to enter upon an ice bridge on the American side, and the Queen Victoria Park commission will take similar action to prevent people from entering upon the bridge from the Canadian shore.

All-Empire Convention.

London, Nov. 19.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At a conference of the Labor party, which will be held in London in January, a proposal will be made that all labor parties of the British Empire shall hol da convention "to consider a labor policy of imperial affairs with a view to united action on questions affecting the constituent parts of the Empire to each other, to foreign countries and the labor socialist movement as a whole."

Oxford County's Clean Sheet.

Woodstock, Nov. 19.—Justice Sutherland yesterday opened the high court only to close it again immediately, as there was no case to come before him. W. T. McMullen, master of chancery, said that he believed this was the first time in twenty years that there was no business to be transacted at the high court non-jury sittings.

Chewed Dynamite Cap.

Fort William, Nov. 19.—Willie Noakes, aged ten years, son of William Noakes, a local painter, was instantly killed at Franklin School yesterday morning by the explosion of a dynamite cap which he had been chewing. The youngster's face was practically blown to pieces. The accident happened in the presence of a teacher and fifty pupils, who were just about to disperse for the noon [illegible]

PROVINCE TO HELP.

Ontario May Give $50,000 to Anti-Tuberculosis Movement.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—It was learned from authoritative circles yesterday that the Provincial Government might help the fight against consumption by making a grant of $50,000 to the National Sanitarium Association. This fund will not be placed at the disposal of the association to help swell its building and endowment funds, but to be devoted wholly to research work.

The fight being waged since 1896 has been towards effecting the cure of consumption rather than prevention of infection, and it has been definitely decided that this department should be developed.

It was decided at the recent convention of medical officers of health that the disease was being treated in such a manner as to not sufficiently prevent its spread, and that something should be done towards trying to effect some improvement in the matter of scientific research work.

Advocates of the granting of $250,000 by the city to the National Sanitarium Association turned up in force at the City Hall yesterday, headed by Lieutenant-Governor Sir John Gibson, W. J. Gage, A. P. Gourlay, Hugh Blain, W. K. McNaught, M.P.P., Ambrose Kent and Hon. W. A. Charlton, who appeared before the council at yesterday's meeting, to urge that body to submit the money bylaw covering the amount asked for, which the council subsequently did.

The speakers emphasied the fact that they wish the city to control the administration of the civic grant, even going so far as to advocate that they construct special quarters for Toronto patients, and the extra $409,000 to be collected to complete the King Edward Memorial Fund.

By a unanimous vote it was decided to submit the vote to the electorate on Jan. 1.

Clancy Fainted Away.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 19.—How Eugene A. Clancy, a labor union official of San Francisco, fainted and remained unconscious when after making admissions in the district attorney's office in Los Angeles, he looked through the crack of a door and saw standing in another room Ortie E. McManigal, the confessed dynamiter, was related at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday.

Oscar Lawler, special assistant to the attorney-general, and Arthur L. Veitch, who gathered evidence in the dynamiting cases in California, said Clancy collapsed in December, 1911, after admitting in their presence that he knew J. B. McNamara was on the coast to blow up non-union jobs.

Lawler and Veitch also named Olaf A. Tveitmoe and Anton Johannsen, San Francisco; W. H. Pohlman, Seattle, and J. E. Munsey, Salt Lake City, as being aware of McNamara's dynamiting mission. Pohlman and Johannsen are not among the 45 defendants here, but when the defence objected to quoting what Johannsen might have said, the court ruled the evidence was competent, "because it had been shown that Johannsen was a co-conspirator."

LAST NIGHT'S SESSION OF THE CITY COUNCIL

The City Council met in regular session last night and continued in session until two o'clock this morning. The greater portion of the sitting was taken up in discussing pavements for Front street, which is detailed elsewhere. The members present at the meeting were Mayor Vermilyea, Ald. Robinson, Bogle, Alford, McCurdy, Slater, White, Canning, Parks, Clarke, Woodley, Panter, Wallace, Anderson and Flagler.

After the reading of the minutes of last meeting and confirming of them, the Council went into Committee of the Whole on reports, communications, etc., Ald. Panter in the chair.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

Dr. Farley, President of the Children's Aid Society, addressed the Council in reference to the necessity of funds to conduct the shelter in this city. It costs about $3,000 a year to run the Society. Whilst children from outside municipalities were charged for at the rate of $2 a week, city children were not charged for. He desired that the Council give a grant of $400 instead of $200, as was passed by the Council.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, Treasurer of the Society, said the children's shelter was as essential to the city as the jail. All children from the city are committed to the shelter by the Police Magistrate. During the past year 20 children have been placed in the shelter from the city. Over $500 had expended upon these children. The Association desired an increased grant from the city, which was necessary for the maintenance of the shelter.

Mr. W. H. Wrightmyer stated that more money was necessary for the maintenance of the shelter. There are at present 6 or 8 children in the shelter who belong to the city.

Ald. Alford moved that the matter be referred to the Executive Committee.

Ald. Robinson moved in amendment [illegible] $400 be granted to the Society. He contended that the society was doing good work and that it was a worthy cause.

Ald. Panter said if the matter was referred to the Executive Committee, it would be well considered and the Council will deal as liberally as is possible.

Ald. Alford's motion prevailed.

Dr. Farley thanked the Council for their action in the matter.

The reports of the various committees were then taken up and the accounts passed; also the following recommendations:—

That the offer of Jack Roblin for an iron flag staff on the city hall at a cost of $50 be accepted.

That the application for a permanent auditor be advertised for at a salary of $5.00.

That an application be made to the Legislature for an Act authorizing the issue of debentures for the following amounts:

Overdraft in 1910	$8,550.00
Overdraft in 1911	2,100.00
County Bridge	1,500.00

The following accounts were passed:

T. Soule	$11 00
C. N. Sulman	37 25
Dr. Dolan	5 00
Dr. Tennent	5 00
Miss McRae	33 40

RESIGNATION OF COLLECTOR.

The following letter, which was read, explains itself:—

To the Mayor and Aldermen.

Gentlemen,—I hereby beg leave to tender my resignation as your tax collector, which I have held for 11 years. The reason for my doing this is because Mr. E. G. Porter K.C., M.P., has secured for me the appointment of District Inspector of Weights and Measures, which position was rendered vacant by the death of the late Wm. Johnson.

As the Government requires me to take over the office immediately, I would respectfully ask you to have an audit made of my books, and that I be relieved of duty as at early a date as possible.

Thanking you for past kindnesses and favors, believe me to be,

Yours sincerely,

F. DAVEY DIAMOND.

This matter was on motion referred to the Executive committee with power to act.

A communication was read from Messrs. Porter & Carnew, claiming damages on behalf of Mrs. George Taylor for injuries sustained by her by falling on an alleged defective sidewalk leading from McDonald to Bettes street.—Referred to Claims Committee.

Messrs. O'Flynn & Diamond wrote the Council on behalf of Mr. Jack Roblin in reference to alleged damage to his property by the C.N.O.R. track.—Referred to the C.N.O.R. Solicitor.

SEWAGE.

A communication was read from the department at Toronto in reference to the disposal of sewage in West Belleville by having it disposed of in some other manner other than going into the river.

Mr. Mikel said it was now up to the Council to adopt some system for the purification of the water, or a plant for the disposal of the sewage.

Ald. Clarke thought that the Council in the future would do away with the present pumping plant and procure water from a place north of the city, about 12 miles away. Three times the pressure we have now, and and abundance of spring water could be secured. It was a feasible plan and could be submitted to the Council for their consideration.

The committee rose and reported. The report was received and adopted.

MOTIONS.

Moved by Ald. Clarke, seconded by Ald. Woodley, that the City Engineer report at the next meeting of the Council where encroachments are made on any streets of the city by verandahs or otherwise, and also if the usual agreements have been signed in each case.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Parks, seconded by Ald. White, that a committee consisting of the chairmen of the Executive, Water, Public Works and Market and City Property Committees and Ald. Bogle be appointed to look into the matter of surveying and laying out the streets for mail delivery.—Carried.

Council adjourned.

High-Speed Eating and Wrong Food Lead to Indigestion

A little thought should convince anyone that right habits of eating are of first importance.

Five important points should guide the wise selection of food:

Must be nourishing,
Must be easily digested,
Must taste good
Must make work for the teeth,
Must be economical—

Grape-Nuts

meets every requirement.

After all the argument for and against any particular food, the question can best be solved for the individual, by personal test—then you'll know.

HAS A SAY.

The School Principal Talks About Food.

The principal of a High School in a flourishing western city says:

"For 23 years I worked in the school with only short summer vacations. I formed the habit of eating rapidly, masticated poorly, which, coupled with my sedentary work led to indigestion, liver trouble, lame back and rheumatism.

"For 12 years I struggled along with this handicap to my work, seldom laid up but often a burden to myself with lameness and rheumatic pains.

"Two years ago I met an old friend, a physician, who noticed at once my out-of-health condition and who prescribed for me an exclusive diet of Grape-Nuts, milk and fruit.

"I followed his instructions and in two months I felt like a new man with no more headaches, rheumatism or liver trouble and from that time to this Grape-Nuts has been my main food for morning and evening meals. I am stronger and healthier than I have been for years, without a trace of the old troubles.

"To all this remarkable change in health I am indebted to my wise friend and Grape-Nuts and I hope the Postum Co. will continue to manufacture this life and health giving food." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Gunmen Plan Banquet in Hope Of Getting Free

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The air of confidence shown by "Gyp the Blood," "Lefty" Loure, "Dago" Frank and "Whitey" Lewis since their arrest for the murder of Rosenthal, had not deserted them when they appeared in court today to hear their counsel, Mr. C. G. F. Wahle, make his plea for their lives.

The gunmen have arranged for a dinner to-morrow night in Lefty's flat to celebrate their freedom, they declare, and have invited a number of friends to be their guests.

Many of their cronies along Second Avenue, however, do not share this confidence. They have been laying small wagers since Saturday at 2 to 1 that all four will be convicted. There are some bets at 1 to 4 on acquittal.

The accuseds' lawyers expect acquittal, and say disagreement is the worst they can hope for.

Justice Golf had made known his intention of instructing the jury tomorrow, but it was said this morning that he might continue to-day's session, and deliver his charge after Mr. Moss has concluded. If the latter course is followed, the verdict might be expected to-night.

N. Y. Lawyer Takes His Trial On Murder Charge

GOSHEN, N. Y., Nov. 18.—One hundred and ninety talesmen, most of them farmers, crowded to-day for the trial of Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer.

Gibson is charged with murder in the first degree, in causing the death of his client, Mrs. Rosa Menschik (Countess) Szabo. The attorneys hoped to fill the jury box today, and the prosecution thought that it might be ready to rest its case by Thursday.

District Attorney Rogers will endeavor to prove that Mrs. Szabo's death, while boating with Gibson in Greenwood Lake, July 16 last, was due not to drowning but to strangulation, and that Gibson hurled her from the rowboat which they occupied, into the water, grappled with her and choked her to death.

To uphold his contention, Mr. Rogers expects to place forty odd witnesses on the stand, among them being Dr. Otto Schultze, of New York, the coroner's physician who performed the autopsy. Dr. Schultze testified at Gibson's examination that Mrs. Szabo died of strangulation by "compression from without."

The defence holds that Mrs. Szabo died of drowning and that her death was accidental. It will call ten or a dozen witnesses. Gibson had not decided this forenoon whether he would take the stand.

As a motive for the alleged murder the State will seek to prove that Gibson coveted his client's $10,000 estate, of which, under a will drawn by him for Mrs. Szabo, he was named as executor.

Paris Financier On Horrors of War

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Under the heading "What a Great European War Would Really Be", Edmond Thery, president of the Association of Economic and Financial Press, has just published an article which deals with the matter from the standpoint of its effect on the world's business.

"The war in Eastern Europe reproduces," he says, "on a very small scale the horrible spectacle that Europe would present if the great military nations came to a conflict. Instead of being fought between small standing armies, as formerly, such a war would engage real national armies, including the whole of the ablebodied citizens of the countries concerned. Such a conflict it is impossible to allow, since it would be a war of extermination in the most frightful sense of the word, one which would ruin all the nations of Europe without any distinction, and which would set back civilization for more than a century.

Ship Dock Opened By Gov.-General

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—The Duke of Connaught formally opened the floating dock, which bears his name and which is now in the basin prepared for it at Maissoneuve, at noon to-day. A special train with the duke's private car attached arrived at the dock this morning. There were on board the governor-general, the minister of marine and fisheries, Hon. J. D. Hazen, as well as other gal staff. The president of the harbor commission, Major G. W. Stephens, presented an adress to the duke on behalf of the board, and after the Duke of Connaught had replied, he declared the dock open and ready for use. The commissioners issued over one thousand invitations to leading citizens to be present at the ceremony.

Shot By His Spouse

CALGARY, Alta., Nov. 18.—A. Gardner was shot twice and severly wounded last night by his wife during a family quarrel. Gardner and his wife are at different hospitals, the latter suffering from shock, hysteria and bruises inflicted by her husband.

Gardner came home Saturday under the influence of liquor, and a fight followed. The furniture was broken and the woman badly bruised. Breaking away, Mrs. Gardner seized a 38 calliber revolver and fired three times, two of the bullets taking effect. One entered Gardner's left shoulder, another pierced his left forearm. KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER

By C. J. CUTCLIFFE HYNE

'I savvy nothing white-man's drug palaver. But I savvy plenty cure fever Krooboy fashion."

"Do you? Which of you? What rot I'm talking! But upon my Sam, the Pater's gone, and there are three distinct White-Man's-Troubles standing there all in a row. I'll just talk to the middle one, and you others shut up. Now then, sir you say you savvy Krooboy doctor-palaver?"

"Savvy plenty."

"Then doc. I offer myself as a patient. Never mind sending in to Grasington for your amputating tools. Remember you are a Dales doctor and as you've pointed out with offensive cheerfulness many times you saw me into this hot and wicked world and I know you jolly well hope to see me out. You catch the patient and we do the rest as the undertakers say when they send round their cards about top hats and gun cases. Special quotations for fever patients F. O. B., for then a couple of firebars out the engine room does the trick, and saves the cost of an elaborate coffin"

"Oh, Carter, listen to me."

"Well?"

"I lib for Krooboy quarters to fetch ju-ju. You sit here. No run away. Savvy?"

"Be long gone?"

"I come back one-time.'

"All right. Give my compliments to Miss Slade, and say we had a jolly walk in the moonlight and found everything all right when we got here, except that Mr. Swizzle-Stick—whose other name I forget—had eloped with the assistant typewriter. Say, it was rather a nuisance about the typewriter woman, because she was the one who made the jellies, jolly cool yellow jellies with just a drop of sherry in them that were perfectly ripping when you had been sick. My mother used to make jellies like that herself for us kids when we were sick—'

He was still rambling on when the Krooboy returned, and by that time the fever was burning dangerously high. It was not running its normal course. He had undergone abnormal exertion, and the resulting fever was correspondingly fierce.

White-Man's-Trouble came in out of the warm moist night outside with some liquid in a cracked teacup. The patient refused to know him, and so the Krooboy picked him up in his enormous arms and got the liquid down his throat by drenching him as a nurse might drench a fractious child.

Carter coughed and spat, but the dose was down, and in three minutes it had started to work. In five minutes it had laid him out, and then White-Man's-Trouble carried him into the next room and laid him on a bed. Then from a bag he produced materials and did with them what will not be set down here.. .. .. And after that he groped around inside the mosquito bar, killed what insects were lodged there, pulled down the netting, and tucked it accurately round the mattress.

Then he took up his hatchet again spat in his great right hand to get a good grip on the hilt, lay down on the mat before the door and went to sleep.

The room pinged with mosquitoes; a leopard roared persistently from the bush at the back of the factory, and a rat somewhere up in the rafters gnawed at a sounding piece of board with irritating persistence. Moreover, of course there was the probability of the Okky men coming to the factory at any moment for that much talked-of massacre. But none of these things disturbed White-Man's-Trouble. He suddenly wished for sleep, and therefore to sleep he promptly resigned himself. All thoughts of anything beyond immediate desire were blotted out from his simple brain. The patient might awake, and rave, or want assistance; but that did not matter. Nothing mattered beyond his wish ther and then for sleep.

The beautiful unreliability of his tribe was strongly present in White-Man's-Trouble.

CHAPTER V

Events At Malla-Nulla

Mr. Smith had been away from his creature comforts for a spell of tweny hours, and most of that time had been spent on the thwart of dancing surf boat in the embraces of a dank sea fog. He had been divorced from food, stimulant and tobacco smoke for all that time—the surf boat had been twice upset in getting off, and drowned all the matches—and as a consequence his temper was vile, and his language sulphurous. He was barely thankful when he came back to the beach again and found Malla-Nulla factory neither burned nor looted; he was openly ungrateful when he found that the last of his stock of limes had gone mouldy, and realized for the moment a Coast cocktail was beyond the limitations of art. As a consequence Mr. Smith romped up and down the untidy messroom in a state bordering on frenzy, and in his own special polyglot reviled the unknown K. O'Neill as the fons et origo mali.

In addition to the legitimate boat boys, the whole of the other factory boys had been crammed into the surf boat, and as a consequence they also were chilled, cramped and bad-tempered. His own body servant was openly insolent when commanded to produce dry tobacco and a pipe. And when on the top of all this Mr. Smith opened Carter's bedroom door, stumbled over the sleepy White-Man's-Trouble, and was promptly floored by that nervous savage and threatened with a well-filed matchet the remaining rags of his temper at last gave way. He sat on the floor a very unkempt figure, and for five minutes without stopping (or repeating himself) said exactly what he thought.

During four of these minutes his Assistant had been awake, and listening to him through the thin filter of the mosquito bar.

"Perhaps I should explain, sir" said Carter, stiffly, when the flow of words at last ended, "that I came back here because I thought you were in a hole and I might be of use. I have not been indulging in whiskey as you suggest, but I believe I have been through a stiffish bout of fever."

"Get up, man, and look at yourself in the glass."

Carter did that, inspected a moment, and then whistled. "Good Lord," he said "I don't wonder you think I had been on the razzle. What on earth's this white stuff painted round my eyesockets? I look like a clown in a curcus."

"Oh, Carter," said White-Man's-Trouble, "dem ju-ju. Last night you lib for fever plenty-to-much bad. I fit for cure you. Now you well. If you touch dem ju-ju, you lib for fever again one-time."

Carter's meddling hand dropped to his side as though the white stuff round his eye had stung him. He turned half-apologetically to Mr. Smith. "Do you think that's likely, sir? You know West African ways better than I do."

"Beyond me. But you can never tell, and there's always the probability of Africa springing something new upon me. If I were you I should let my personal appearance slide and risk wearing that decoration for the day, it your boy seys so. Ju-ju's a dangerous thing to meddle with, anyway, and he calls it that. Besides your fever's gone, you say?"

"Absolutely. And I don't feel a wreck."

"You are sure you were pretty bad last night?'

"I fancy I was close upon pegging out. I never had such a stiff bout before."

"Well, Mr. Carter," said the old man screwing in an eyeglass and staring at him, "if I were you I should dash Trouble five bob for saving you life, and follow out the the spot at all, and, mark you, you are getting that admission from the man who knows more about drugs suitable for Coast ailments than anybody in West Africa. The only trouble about putting this into general practice, is, where are you going to find th proper ju-ju to meet the case? But you seem to have got hold of the right boy for this sort of thing in Trouble. Turning to business for a moment, I hope you are satisfied with your exertions on behalf of Craven and O'Neill with his Majesty of Okky?"

"Well, I don't know what he's done yet, sir. Mr. Slade said he had wiped out Manna-Nulla factory and killed you and all the boys, but that seems, well, exaggerated."

"Slade always takes the gloomy view. The King talked; and I'll admit things looked ugly for a bit. You see you'd walked off with the Firm's artillery."

"Good heaven, do you mean that my tin-pot ten-and-sixpenny revolver was the only gun about the place?'

'Certainly I do. You see—er—Mr. Carter, one occasionally—er—dines rather heavily here, and once after dining to well I saw a man shoot another whose loss he regretted afterwards. So as I wished to spare myself those regrets, I saw to it that there was nothing more deadly about the place than trade guns and you wouldn't catch me loosing off one of those, however drunk I might be. I regret to say the King didn't continue to carry his liquor like a gentleman after you had left; he grew quarrelsome; and finally I had to pull him up with some sharpness.

Then came the ultimatum. He said I should find the roads stopped already—the old scoundrel had been playing me like a trout, it seems, till everything had been got ready, and he told me that as a fine for your lese-majeste he should help himself to the contents of the factory as they stood."

"But you headed him off there, sir, at any rate."

Swizzle-Stick Smith chuckled. "Well, I haven't been on this Coast for twenty-five years without knowing a thing or two. I told the King I was rather glad to hear him say that because it showed that a prophecy made a year ago was now going to be fulfilled. He asked what it was. I spouted to him

'Maecenas Atavis edite regibus
O et praesidium et dulce decus
meum,
Sunt, quos curriculo pulverem
Olympicum
Conlegisse juvat, ...'

as the first thing that came into my head, and fine pompous lines they are, as you'd remember if you had ever been to a public school, which you haven't."

THESE OLD PEOPLE OWE THEIR HEALTH

To The Wonderful Powers Of "Fruit-a-tives"

MR. N. JOUBERT OF GRANDE LIGNE, P.Q., says:

"For more than 10 years, I suffered with Constipation and Piles. I tried many remedies, but none did me good. After taking four boxes, of "Fruit-a-tives", I am well. I am now over 80 years of age".

MR. WM. PITT, general store-keeper at SHANLY, ONT., writes:—"I am 67 years of age and long suffered tortures from Headaches, due to Stomach Troubles. I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives". I did so and they completely cured me."

MR. WM. PARSONS OF OTTERVILLE, ONT., says:—"I am 79 years old and a great believer in "Fruit-a-tives".

Sharks Spoil Fishing.

The valuable pilchard fishery of the Cornish coast has been brought to a standstill by the unwelcome presence of a number of huge white sharks, and the officer representing the Cornish fisheries, and Commander Chambers, of the Coastguard Service, have arrived to assist in the work of wiping out these monsters. A fisherman gives a graphic account of an attempt to effect a capture. He says:

"When some twenty-two miles of the Wolf Lighthouse we managed to drive a harpoon into a shark, which at once made off at great speed. We let out our fifty fathoms of 2 1-2 inch manilla rope, and, hoping to hold the moster back, kept the engines going at full speed. Our plan was to drown the fish. But the plan was beyond our power to carry out. On and on went the shark, harpoon and gunshot wound notwithstanding, till at length the fish snapped the rope as if it were made of twine."

The Literary Obeisance.

In the past days of literary patronage, a preface reeking with humility was considered indispensable to all books. Then, the literary man was an outsider, and only in rare cases was he admitted into the society of the high-born on other terms than those of humble retainer. Hence, we read—strangely enough to our eyes—the most revered of writers making obeisance before all manner of forgotten nobleman—Bernard Liutot in T.P.'s Weekly.

HAPPY THOUGHT

Why Bread is Better Baked in Some Ranges Than in Others

It is all a matter of the way the heat gets into the oven.

Some stoves have ovens that heat easily and quickly and remain very hot.

Others have ovens that require a wasteful amount of fire in the fire-box before baking heat is reached.

These are the two extremes. For some things each type has advantages. But for all your requirements neither is really satisfactory.

"Happy Thought" Ranges give you the heat in the oven that exactly corresponds with the fire in the firebox.

So a little fire means a light heat and a big fire means a perfect hot-blast in the oven.

In baking bread, this feature enables you to secure the benefit of every ounce of heat—to make every lump of coal pay for itself—to continue the heat steadily for as long as you wish in order to have the bread baked uniformly all the way through.

More than a Quarter Million Canadian women use the "Happy Thought" every day.

MEN AND WOMEN CAN SAVE THEIR HAIR WITH HERPICIDE

No woman should have poor, thin, scraggy hair, and no man need become bald. Poor hair and final baldness are due to the dandruff germ.

Newbro's Herpicide will destroy this little germ and stop the hair from falling. Further evidence of this is found in a letter from Mrs. F. Neilsen, of Tomah, Wis. She says: "I fought the worst kind of dandruff for nine years. I have been using Herpicide now one week, and my scalp is healthy, the dandrug has gone and the itching has tsopped. It is the best remedy for scalp diseases I ever saw, and I have seen many."

thing claimed to be "just as good" as Newbro's Herpicide. These off brands may possibly be good, but why take chances? The genuine and original dandruff germ destroyer can always be obtained. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications may be obtained at good barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

Gibson Anxious For Jury to Visit Greenwood Lake

GOSHEN, N. Y., Nov. 19.—Introduction of evidence in the trial of Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer charged with the murder of Mrs. Rosa Henschik Szabo, his client, while boating on Greenwood Lake, July 16, began to-day.

District Attorney Rogers said that the State would attempt to unfold its case in chronological order. He planned to fix the scene of Mrs. Szabo's death in the minds of the jurors by placing six, perhaps more, witnesses, on the stand before proving the effect of her death.

Gibson is anxious for the jury to visit Greenwood Laké and see it for themselves.

Robert H. Elder, his lawyer, indicated that he might ask the Court to have the jury taken to the lake today.

Mr. Rogers said he would not oppose the emotion.

Gibson will not take the stand in his own behalf, unless he changes his mind. He said to-day that he thought there was no need for doing so.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Three hundred thousand dollars' worth of California fruit, 150 carloads in all, will be allowed to decay on the North River piers, where it was landed this week, and unless some settlement is reached shortly in a dispute between the New York Buyers' Association and the brokers representing the California shippers. The dispute is over a recent increase by the brokers in their cartage charges assessed against those who purchase the fruit at the pier. As soon as the increase was announced, the Buyers' Association declared that it would boycott all shipments until satisfactory adjustment was effected. A shortage of California fruit throughout the east will be the probable result.

The 150 carloads, mostly oranges, grapes, and pears, were to have been sold at auction yesterday. When the oranges were put on the block not an offer was received. The fruit was valued at about $4 a box. "Will anyone give me five cents a box for these oranges?" asked the auctioneer. Still the fruit went begging, and the sale was adjourned.

U. S. Police Arrest Suspected Chain of Stock Swindlers

CINCINNATI, Nov. 19.—With the arrests yesterday in six cities of men alleged by the Government to constitute a monumental get-rich-quick chain of swindlers, United States Secret Service men declare they have brought to the surface an organization that has mulcted small corporations, inventors and promoters of $1,500,000 in the last three years.

The arrests were made as the result of secret indictments returned here by the last United States grand jury. Those arrested were: F. D. Minyard, at Cleveland, Ohio; George S. Hannaford, Chicago; H. B. Warden, Rochester, N. Y.; Mason G. Worth, New York; Thomas Fishwick, Boston, and A. Bruce Crane, of Newark, N. J.

Indictments were returned here against five men who are alleged to have constituted one link of the chain. The five men are Minyard, Hannaford, Fishwick and J. R. Long and J. G. Malcolm, who are said to be in Canada. The other arrests were made on affidavits of Government officials. The three indicted in Cincinnati will be returned here for trial.

A Federal grand jury at Rochester is now said to be investigating breaches of the alleged swindle, while the grand jury at Buffalo, N. Y., will convene to take up the case.

The accused advertised their ability to sell stocks for promoters and inventors.

Cholera Victims To Be Cremated

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 19.—Following a consultation between the Sultan and the Sheik-Ul-Islam today, the latter sanctioned the burning of the cholera victims.

He acted in deference to the wishes of the army officers and medical men, though cremation is in violation of Mohammedan religious laws.

A NEW HOLLOWAY ST. METHODIST CHURCH

A few details regarding the alterations which have been under way at Holloway street church during the last few months, and which have been brought to such a favorable completion may be of interest to readers of The Intelligencer.

On approaching the building one notes that the old stairway leading to a single entrance has been replaced by a substantial and imposing front of brick and cut stone, which provides a side entrance at either angle of the building on Holloway street.

In the centre it has a large bay window, leading up to which from both entrances. The wall is surmounted by terraced coping with cement caps.

On entering you ascend steps of easy grade to a spacious vestibule and rest-room, finished to harmonize with the main auditorium. Once inside the latter a complete transformation greets the eye. Not only do you notice the new "dished" floor, reseated with oak pews of beautiful design, but you also see that the lines of the choir gallery and altar front have been remodelled to conform to those of the pews and gallery, giving a very harmonious effect.

At the rear of the auditorium a neat and commodious gallery of horseshoe design, has replaced the larger but less sightly one of bygone days.

The plans of the interior arrangement as well as of the new front are the work of Mr. G. M. Miller, architect, Toronto, and are deserving of especial comment.

We also learn that the work of Mr. Wm. Alford of this city, the genial contractor, who had charge of the alterations, has been most substantial and satisfactory throughout.

In the general decorating Mr. W. A. Cornelius of this city has shown marked taste, and has secured a harmony and blending of color effects that has been the subject of favorable comment on all sides. The ceiling is done in water color, a chaste white. At the bend of the arch, joining the main walls, a plaster paris moulding runs around the auditorium, and has been wiped out in old ivory, giving a blending of two colors. The main walls are painted a light biscuit shade, the windows being surrounded by a border of stencilling in olive, greens and yellows. The base of the wall up to the windows is burlapped in shade of light golden oak, with the baseboard grained in dark golden oak to match. The altar front, choir gallery and gallery front are likewise finished in golden oak.

The effect of the whole is charming and is materially increased by the light of day shining through the new leaded stained-glass windows, which have been installed throughout the building by the Toronto Plate Glass Co. Of these, the six large ones in front of the gallery are gifts to the church, four of them being memorial windows. One is a public testimonial from Mr. P. F. Canniff and family, now of Edmonton, Alta., but until recently recording steward and a trustee of years' standing in Holloway street church; while the other one has been installed as a tribute of respect to Rev. Alexander, Mrs. and Miss Ida Martin, by their friends in Holloway street congregation.

In the basement of the church some changes have ben effected as well. The Sunday school rooms have been redecorated, while the ladies have been provided with a new kitchen, completely equipped in every way.

The church has been relighted throughout with electricity, the fixtures, which are both modest and beautiful, having been installed by Mr. W. J. Carter of this city.

The efficiency of the church organ has been improved by the addition of an electric organ-blower, made by the Kinetic Engineering Co. of Philadelphia, and installed by their representative, Mr. Chas. Scarlett, also of this city.

The new pews were installed by the Valley City Co. of Dundas, Ont., and are of the most approved type. The back and seat are of selected ash with oak ends, while the double curve of the pew-back certainly gives one slight chance to complain of weariness.

Taking the improvements as a whole, they cannot help but add to the efficiency of the work carried on by the church, and are distinctly a credit to the taste and ambition of those directly engaged.

Plot To Kill Premier Hatched In Havana

MADRID, Nov. 19.—The police announce that their investigations show that the assassination of Premier Canalejas was the result of a plot arranged in Havana during the course of a recent meeting of international Anarchists. It was intended to throw a bomb at the ministerial bench during the sitting of the Cortes.

Manuel Pardinas drew the lot to execute the design, but apparently he was most unwilling and, knowing that he was watched by other Anarchists, he did his best to have himself arrested.

Finding that this was vain, the man decided to kill the Spanish premier, so as not to be killed by his comrades, and, failing to escape, he committed suicide.

No List of Dead Until War Ends

SOFIA, Nov. 19.—In response to pitiful appeals from the thousands of wives and mothers to relieve their mind-wrecking suspense by the publication of lists of casualties among the Bulgarian troops at the front, the government today announced that it is "regretfully compelled to adhere to its policy of publishing no lists of dead or wounded until after the war." The announcement begged the Bulgarian women to "Be strong for the sake of the Fatherland."

Gunmen Guilty In First Degree

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—"Gyp the Blood," "Lefty Louie," "Whitey" Lewis and "Dago Frank" Cirofico, the gunmen charged with the murder of Herman Rosenthal, were all found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury in the Supreme Court this faternoon. The jury deliberated only an hour and ten minutes.

Justice Goff remanded the prisoners until 10.30 a. m. to-morrow when he will fix the day for pronouncing sentence.

The entire proceedings in court after the jury came in occupied only seven minutes. The gunmen were brought in by four prison wardens and a uniformed policeman. They heard the verdict with faces unmoved, staring straight ahead.

On their way back to their cells the convicted men walked erect, all except "Whitey" Lewis, who went with bowed head. The crowd in the court rom received the verdict without demonstration, and the news caused no visible excitement when it reached the throng outside the building.

Arrest of Five Suspects; Bandits Held Up Flyer

OTTUMWA, Ia., Nov. 19.—The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Southwest Limited between Kansas City and Chicago, due here at 2.05 a. m., was held up at midnight by two bandits between Ottumwa and Mystic. The men boarded the train at Mystic, and after robbing the passengers they compelled them to hold up their hands until the train pulled into the Ottumwa station. The bandits escaped here. The police and a sheriff's posse have arrested five suspects.

A Quiet Surprise

Owing to Mr. Will Badgley's ill health, a very quiet surprise was tendered them on on Monday, Nov. 18th at their home in Melrose. In the presence of the family and a few others the following address and presentation was given by Mr. Clem. Haight and Mr. David Jeffery:

Mr. and Mrs. Will Badgley.

Dear Friends,—It is with extreme regret that we have learned of your intended removal from our midst. During the many years that you have been identified with our community you have ever sought its highest welfare, often at personal sacrifice of ease and comfort. It is difficult to frame in words our heartfelt appreciation of the Christian influence you have for so long a time exercised in our social life. But we would fain assure you that your abundant labors in our church, whether at the council board of our quarterly sessions or in the chair of our Ladies' Aid—labors always given so cheerfully—will not soon be forgotten by those you are leaving behind. At our official board we shall miss the kindly counsel of one who has so long and faithfully performed the arduous duties of a circuit steward, and whose reward can only be rightly adjudged by Him who shall one day say: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant," and there will be an empty chair in our choir that will long speak to us of one whose talents are consecrated to the service of the Master we are seeking to serve.

We hope and pray that the change will be found beneficial to Mr. Badgley's health. As a slight token of our sincere appreciation of your friendship we ask you to accept this purse.

May the Angel of the Divine Presence accompany you to your new home and vouchsafe to you all and every needful blessing.

Signed on behalf of the congregation,

CLEMENT HAIGHT,
DAVID JEFFERY.

Opiates Came From The Notre Dame Hospital

MONTREAL, Nov. 19.—It has been brought to the light that much of the cocaine and morphine that has been peddled around Chinatown and the "red light" district here has not been sold by local druggists on "fake" prescriptions, but came from the Notre Dame hospital.

Alexis Demueles, 28 years of age, employed as an orderly in the Notre Dame hospital, was taken into custody last night by Lieut. Savard. It is alleged that Demueles has been stealing the cocaine and morphine from the hospital. He assisted in the institution, where he could obtain cocaine and morphine. When he was arrested last night by Lieut. Savard, and taken to police headquarters, it was stated that seventy-five packages of cocaine and two bottles of morphine were found in his possession.

Wife Fails of Aid Sees Husband Die

MONTREAL, Nov. 19.—A Point Du Chene farmer, going to ask a neighbor named Raymond Lamarche to help him, found Lamarche's dead body in the woods today, with the widow lying beside it in a half-crazed condition, clasping a little child in her arms.

Lamarche was taken ill with pneumonia and, as his wife was unable, on account of the distance, to go by herself to the nearest village for a doctor, he tried to walk there with heraid.

Johnson Freed of Abduction Charge

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—A charge of abduction against Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, was dismissed before Municipal Judge Hopkins, because of the prosecution's inability to prove that Lucile Cameron, the white girl whose association with Johnson led to his arrest, had been abducted by him.

The girl and her mother, Mrs. Cameron-Falconnet, both of whom are witnesses against Johnson in the Federal action for alleged violation of the Mann White Slave Act, were not in court when the city case was dismissed.

Schrank Is Insane

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 19.—John Schrank is insane. The man who pleaded guilty to an attempt to slay Colonel Theodore Roosevelt here on the night of October 14 will be sent to an asylum for the criminally insane, where he will probably spend the remainder of his days.

The verdict in Schrank's case was unanimous on the part of the five alienists who have conducted an exhaustive examination of the prisoner. A stenographic report of the physicians will be returned to Judge August C. Backus, of the municipal court, to-morrow.

Schrank pleaded guilty before Judge Backus last week and the court appointed the commission of alienists on motion of District Attorney Zabel, who told the court that he believed the would-be slayer was mentally unbalanced.

That Schrank is afflicted with paranoia will be the substance of the expert's report, it became known today.

Bulgarian Artillery Works Havoc

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 19.—With the Turks apparently holding their own the third day's fighting in the final battle which will decide the fate of the Ottoman capital, was ushered in at dawn with a furious cannonade, which began in the centre and gradually spread over the entire Tchataldja line of defence.

News has been received that 50,000 soldiers of the Crown Prince Alexander's Servian army, which captured Monastir, will start for Constantinople immediately and join in the attack upon the Tchataldja lines.

That the Bulgarian batteries have done frightful havoc among the Turkish soldiers is shown by the constant stream of wounded carried into the city from the front. The majority of the Turks were fatally wounded, having been torn by shrapnel and bursting shells. Many of them died en route from the firing line, and were cast into burial trenches.

All residents of the city, including foreigners, refugees, and marines and blue-jackets from the foreign warships, are now exposed to cholera from the public water supply, which has become infected with cholera germs.

Lake Derkos, from which the city's drinking water supply is drawn, has become contaminated, and the International Health Board has forbidden its use.

Wounded soldiers returning from the front today gave a graphic account of the fighting on Sunday and Monday.

MANIAC WITH A BOMB

Los Angeles Police Station is Thrown Into a Panic.

Lunatic Named Albert Henry Davis With Infernal Machine on His Hand, Holds Detectives at Bay For an Hour Before Detective Fells Him With "Billy"—Bomb Sputters But Does Not Go Off.

Los Angeles, Nov. 20.—Armed with an infernal machine containing enough dynamite to destroy an entire city block, a bottle of nitro-glycerine and a 45-calibre revolver, a masked maniac took possession of the central police station yesterday and held it for more than an hour, while hundreds of occupants of the buildings and those for blocks around the place, in panic, sought safety in distance.

When Detective James Hosick knocked the man unconscious with a leather "billy," after slipping up behind him, the fuse of the internal machine was automatically ignited, but Detective S. L. Brown grabbed the box, with its fuse sharply spluttering, and hurled it into the street. Stocks of high power dynamite scattered over the pavement, while hundreds of spectators stood apparently paralyzed with fright. Through a freak of chance there was no explosion, and Brown continued kicking the sticks of dynamite, and jumping on the fuse until he had broken the connection and extinguished the fire.

The man, who gave his name as Albert Henry Davis, asked, on entering, that the highest official of the Southern Pacific Railway be sent for, so that he might blow him into eternity.

"This is no joke," said Davis, "and if you don't believe me, try to take this way from me. My hand is fastened in this box, and if I pull it out—bang—we all die."

A hole had been cut in the box and the occupants of the room saw for the first time that the man's hand was hidden in the box.

Realizing that the situation was serious, police officials pretended to call up the desired official by phone.

"In the meantime Chief Sebastian ordered the street roped off for a block either way, and steps to have the 100 prisoners in the city jail removed. Upstairs in the building two justice courts were in session, and both court rooms were crowded.

A detective passed the word to a bailiff in Judge Chambers' court, where a Japanese was having a preliminary examination on a murder charge before a crowd of his countrymen. The bailiff whispered to the judge.

"Court's adjourned until 2 p.m. Clear the court room," ordered the judge promptly, and there was a rush for the stairway. A similar scene was enacted in Justice Frederick's court.

There were not enough patrol wagons to remove the prisoners from the jail to the Doyle H[illegible]ts Prison, and two street cars were sent for.

At the receiving hospital Davis said last night he "guessed" the fuse was too long, which was the reason there was no explosion. He said he was born in Germany, was 34 years old and had lived in this country 15 years. He admitted that Davis was not his right name, and finally declined to talk about his past.

AGAINST SHERMAN LAW.

Federation of Labor Spends Day Discussing the Act.

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 20.—An all-day discussion of the Sherman anti-trust law, as interpreted in the Danbury Hatters' case yesterday, prevented consideration by the American Federation of Labor convention of the minority report by the committee on education, favoring the adoption of industrial unionism.

Discussion on the Sherman law was ended at five o'clock, and the question of taking steps to encourage its amendment was referred back to the committee on the president's report, which will make a recommendation later in the week. By a special order of business, discussion of industrial unionism was set to follow the Sherman law discussion and will be taken up to-day.

All day speakers arraigned the Sherman law as a menace to the right of workers to associate for purposes of common interest. On this point there was agreement, but a difference of opinion arose as to the best means to combat the law. Members of the radical wing of the convention argued that political action through a party organized in the workers' interests was the only means. President Gompers and other members of the conservative wing held that the remedy lay in the election of labor men of whatever political affiliation to Congress and agitation against the law by time-honored union methods. Whatever means is employed, it was the convention's sentiment that the law must, in the words of President Gompers, "be amended or ended."

Loves Wife Therefore Beats Her.

St. Catharines, Nov. 20.—"I did it because I love her," was the excuse given by Joseph Gillam to Magistrate Campbell in answer to an enquiry as to why he had beaten his wife yesterday morning until she fainted, requiring two hours to revive her. Gillam, who hails from London, Ont., has been married but three months.

He was given a 21-day term in jail, with the prospect of six months in the Central on his next appearance.

Smallpox Closes School.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—The Board of Health of the city has ordered the closing of a school maintained by a religious order at the corner of St. Lawrence and Laurier avenues, because two of its teachers refused to be vaccinated after a case of smallpox occurred among the pupils. One of the teachers is now sick, with probably smallpox.

VACANCIES FILLED.

Six New Senators Are Appointed In Nova Scotia.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—Six Nova Scotian Senators have been appointed by the Government to fill the vacancies in the province. The new members of the Upper Chamber are: Nathaniel Curry of Amherst; W. B. Ross, K.C., of Middleton; William Dennis, managing director of The Halifax Herald; E. J. Gerroir, M.P.P., Antigonish; Dr. Wm. MacKay, Reserve Mines, C.B., and Dr. P. C. Murphy of Tignish.

Nathaniel Curry is one of the leading financiers of Nova Scotia. Born in Kings County 61 years ago, he early interested himself in mining and railway ventures, and established his headquarters at Amherst, N.S. He is president or director in a score of companies, including the Rhodes Curry Co., Ltd., and the Canada Car Co.

W. B. Ross, K.C., of Middleton, N.S., is a well-known lawyer, who has long been interested in politics and has proven an effective campaign speaker on the Conservative side.

William Dennis, managing director of The Halifax Herald, was born in Cornwall, Eng., 56 years ago, coming to Canada at the age of 17, joining The Herald staff as a reporter two years later. He was engaged in newspaper work in Winnipeg for some years, returning to take charge of The Herald.

E. J. Girr [illegible], M.P.P., Antigonish, has been a member of the Nova Scotia Legislature for some years and has been active as a party campaigner, particularly in the campaign of last year.

Dr. William Manson MacKay, M.E., of the Reserve Mines, C.B., is 67 years of age, and has had a long and successful career as an engineering contractor. He has been a staunch supporter of the Conservative party. Montreal is his birthplace.

Dr. P. C. Murphy, medical practitioner of Tignish, has been one of the strongest party workers in his section of the province and unsuccessfully contested the Federal seat in 1908. He is recognized as a veteran campaigner.

Canada's Navy In Ill-Favor.

London, Nov. 20.—A Portsmouth correspondent says pensioners and fleet reserve men are fighting shy of offers to join the Canadian navy, and asserts that the real cause of the trouble is that Canada is trying to start a navy without proper preparations for the men's training and accommodation.

The Evening News yesterday gave these assertions considerable prominence. The correspondent says that men who went out in the Niobe and Rainbow were picked men, hoping to fill the position of instructors. They found nothing ready for them and the recruits who presented themselves in the belief that they would receive training on a man-of-war found themselves limited to an old fishing schooner.

The Canadian recruits' dissatisfaction has reached the ears of British sailors, who consequently regard the Canadian navy extremely suspiciously.

Galt's Fine Poultry Show.

Galt, Nov. 20.—As with the horse show, which ranks as a provincial event, so with Galt poultry show, the sixth annual holding of which began last night at the Market House. There are over one thousand entries, embracing most known varieties of fowl and representing breeders from Windsor to Ottawa.

The attendance last night crowded the market building. The show lasts three days.

An Arrest Made.

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 20.—Chief Regan yesterday received a telegram from Whiting, N.J., announcing the arrest there of J. Frank Hickey, wanted in connection with the death of the 17-year-old Lackawanna boy, whose dismembered body was found buried in a sewer vault Saturday.

AGAINST NE TEMERE.

Dr. Hincks Addresses Evangelical Alliance In London.

London, Nov. 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Great enthusiasm attended the opening meeting of the campaign of protest against the ne temere decree by the World's Evangelical Alliance last evening. The vast new central hall of Manchester was taxed to the utmost capacity. The chair was occupied by Rt. Hon. Lord Kinnaird, supported by Dr. Hincks, Toronto; Dr. Montgomery, Presbyterian moderator in Ireland; Rev. Chancellor O'Connor, Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin; Rev. Webb Pelee, Sir Robert Perks, Sir Robert Anderson, Rev. Fuller Couch and Rev. Mr. Hincks, whose address was awaited with especial interest, moved a resolution expressing the sympathy of the meeting with Protestants of the Dominion, in their determination to resist the papal decree and prevent its legal enforcement.

Dr. Hincks said that Canadian Protestants were absolutely unanimous against the decree.

No Government, he declared, could refuse a united request. No political party in Canada could survive six months which openly endorsed this infamous decree, yet to-day Romanism on the banks of the St. Lawrence was stronger than on the banks of the Tiber in Italy, he said.

Rev. Dr. Hincks afterwards showed that the main reason of the objection of the German Emperor to the papal decree was that he had the same problem for Germany which the Dominion had, namely, the unifying of differing sects and to a certain extent different races.

His appeal to the audience was received with the greatest enthusiasm, the resolution being carried unanimously.

Sir Robert Perks, who followed Dr. Hincks, proposed the following resolution, which was adopted:

"That as His Majesty's Government has taken no action to protect the civil and religious rights of His Majesty's subjects who contract legal marriages, the meeting calls upon the Imperial Parliament to take steps to give the necessary relief to those who, while lawfully married, are subjected to suffering in consequence of the terms of the decree ne temere."

H. E. FAIRFIELD

Are You Blue and Worried?

Nervous? Some of the time really ill? Catch cold easily and frequently suffer from biliousness or headache? The reason is that your system does not rid itself of the poisons in the blood; just as impossible as it is for the grate of a stove to rid itself of clinkers. The waste does to us exactly what the clinkers do to the stove; make the fires burn low until enough clinkers have accumulated and then prevent its burning at all. Your liver is sluggish—you are dull and heavy—sleep does not rest, nor is food appetizing. In this condition illness develops. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery eradicates the poisons from the body—a glyceric alterative extract made from bloodroot, golden seal and mandrake root, stone and queen's root, without the use of alcohol. No matter how strong the constitution the stomach is apt to be "out of kilter" at times; in consequence the blood is disordered, for the stomach is the laboratory for the constant manufacture of blood.

MRS. BLAKE.

MRS. BENJ. BLAKE, of Port Dover, Ont., Box 36, writes: "I have been a great sufferer for years from throat trouble, catarrh, indigestion, female troubles, bloating, constipation and nervousness—at times I would be in bed, then able to be up again. Was under many different doctors' care, and would get better for a little while, then I would go down with chronic inflammation all through me. For nineteen years I had this poison in my blood. After trying nearly everything I got worse. I read in The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. I have taken the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' and have used five bottles of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. I am now able to do my work and walk with pleasure. I feel like a new woman. I enjoy everything around me and thank God for letting me live long enough to find something that made me well again."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate liver and bowels.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

AN EXPENSIVE PRACTICE

Yesterday afternoon two young men were detected riding bicycles upon the sidewalk and in consequence of their action will have to answer to a summons to appear in police court.

CALL FOR THE POLICE

At about 10.30 last evening the police were called to a residence in West Belleville, it being reported that a strange man was about the premises. Although the police made a diligent search they were unable to find the trace of any person about the place.

CONDITION MUCH IMPROVED

Word hase been received that Mr. Henry Pringle, who has gone through a most serious illness, is rapidly improving. He is now visiting in New York and Jersey City, and is expected home in the course of two or three weeks. His many friends will be glad to learn of his recovery.

INDOOR BASEBALL

At the amouries last night an indoor baseball match was scheduled to take place between teams representing A. and B. Companies of the Fifteenth Regiment. A. Company claimed the game as their opponents were not present at the time scheduled. Subsequently a practice game between teams took place.

THE VICTIM BURIED

Yesterday afternoon the funeral of the late Mr. Frank Phillips, who on Saturday last met an untimely death on the line of the C. O. R. near Bancroft, took place at Canifton and was largely attended. Services at the residence of Mr. Timothy Farnham were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Kemp, who also officiated at the Canifton burying ground where interment took place. The bearers were Messrs. C. A. Callery, W. Frizzell, A. Kerr, J. Whitney, T. Rosevear and J. E. Shorey.

LAID AT REST

Many relatives and friends were yesterday afternoon in attendance at the obsequies of the late Mr. F. M. Van Blaricon. At the family residence on Moira Street service was held conducted by the Rev. H. S. Osborne, pastor of Bridge Street Church assisted by the Rev. A. R. Sanderson, pastor of Holloway Street church. Many beautiful floral tributes were placed upon the casket by friends. Interment took place at Whites cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. C. M. Farley, S. R. Farley, B. Quincey, W. Jones and J. Doolittle.

OFFICIAL MEETING

Right Wor. Bro. O. C. Watson of Campbellford, D. D. G. M. of Prince Edward District No. 13 A. F. & A. M. last night paid an official visit to Madoc Lodge, No. 48. A number of visiting brethren from Belleville, Trenton, Tweed and Stirling were in attendance. Bros. J. Newton and J. McIntosh of this city were present. After the business of the lodge had been completed the brethren repaired to Blues Hotel where a sumptuous repast was partaken of. During the evening addresses were given by the D. D. G. M. and other members of the craft. The affair was thoroughly enjoyable in all of its details.

A SUCCESSFUL CONCERT

A large number assembled in the Sunday School room of Bridge Street Church last evening and listened to a most enjoyable concert, the proceeds from which are to be used for the benefit of the church choir. A musical programme both vocal and instrumental, consisting of about twenty selections, was well rendered by the various participants. Mr F. E. O'Flynn was in charge for the evening, and under his direction the programme progressed smoothly. Much credit is due to Mr. Dan A. Cameron for his tireless and painstaking efforts to make last evening's musicale a success, and to this end a vote of thanks was extended Mr. Cameron, to which he replied very fittingly. All who attended the entertainment were well pleased in every regard. At the close of the programmien prayer was offered by Rev. H. S. Osborne, pastor of the church, afterwhich the singing of the National Anthem concluded the evening's entertainment.

DRUNK SENT TO JAIL

George Watson who claims to be a resident of Trenton was this morning before Magistrate Masson charged with drunkenness. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5 or in default 15 days in jail. Watson did not have the money to pay a fine so went to jail.

WEDDING AT ST MICHAEL'S

At 8 o'clock this morning a quiet wedding took place at St. Michael's Church at which Rev. Father Killeen officiated. The groom was Mr. Vergen Venge and the bride Miss Ethel Murray. The couple were attended by Mr. Dan Murray and Miss Jennie Davison.

SMOKER AT ARMOURIES

At the Armouries tonight by permission of Lieut.-Col. Marsh, Commanding Officer of the Fifteenth Regiment a smoker will be held and a fine programme has been prepared. It consists of boxing bouts, wrestling matches, tug of war and running races. The regimental band will furnish a selected programme of music. Refreshments will be served at the close of the programme.

A "FINE" PROPOSITION.

John A. McDonald, who conducts a temperance house in the village of Frankford where local option is in force was to-day summoned before Magistrate Masson. The charge preferred against McDonald was that he kept liquer for sale without having a license. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs. Mr. Andreson for prosecution and Mr. Carnew for the accused.

LIQUOR CASE DISMISED

Mr. R. R. Palmer of Corbyville was to-day before Magistrate Masson on a charge of having for sale liquor without having the necessary license. Mr. Palmer conducts a temperance house in Thurlow Township which is under local option. After some evidence had been taken the case was dismissed. Mr. Anderson for prosecution and Mr. Carnew for the accused.

Cheer up! You don't have to go around looking for temptations to yield to.

A GREAT SUPPER AND SPLENDID PROGRAM AT HOLLOWAY ST. CHURCH

Everybody who attended the splendid supper and concert held under the auspices of the Ladies of Holloway Street Methodist Church are sounding their praises. As we entered the spacious, beautifully lighted school room, a veritable sea of beauty greeted us. The eleven tables, each seating twenty people, were all uniformly set, and with their array of cut flowers, and all the ladies in charge dressed in white, it was a sight of surpassing loveliness. The supper was served with such system, two ladies having charge of each table, and they provided four assistants, young men and women. Three ladies, Mrs. W. H. Phillips, Miss Dulmage and Miss Ida Martin, who had full charge of the pantry, also had the oversight of the tables, which accounted for such uniformity. The supper consisted of chickens and ducks galore; chicken fried, chicken roasted, chicken jellied, and chicken dished up in every imaginable way of the cook's art. After sitting down and partaking of such a sumptuous repast, it is no wonder the people were loud in their eulogy of the ladies.

The programme given in the auditorium was one of the best we have listened to in a long time. The pastor, Rev. A. R. Sanderson, to whom much credit is due for taking up the rebuilding of the church and pushing it to its completion, backed, as he says, by one of the best committees a minister could have, in opening the programme called to the platform Mr. John Elliott of the Standard Bank, to be the chairman of the evening. Mr. Sanderson, then asked the Revs. H. S. Osborne, W. G. Clarke, B. Greatrix, C. G. Smith, and J. W. Johnson, M.P.P. to take seats on the platform. Mr. Elliott, in a few words, congratulated all concerned in the re-building of the beautiful edifice. He spoke of the optimism of its pastor and people, and the same spirit was today characteristic of Belleville. What we on the west side of the river want now is an up to date public school. The fact that a new home for Methodism was being erected in London, England, at a cost of a million pounds, within a stone's throw of Westminster Abbey, was evidence that Methodism was prospering in the old country as well as in the new.

"O Canada" was then sung by the large choir, and heartily applauded.

Rev. W. G. Clarke led in the Lord's prayer.

Rev. Dr. S. Williamson captivated his audience with his droll humor, and kept them in almost roars of laughter by his timely, pointed and well told stories.

He made a brief appeal to the people, telling them they had raised $5,500 on Sunday, but they still required more to pay interest and cover any subscription that might lapse through death or removal. Some $225 was secured.

Short, practical, well spiced fraternal greetings were given by those on the platform, interspersed with a duet by Dr. Duprau and Mr. T. Taylor; a reading by Miss J. E. Bonisteel, and a solo by Mrs. A. R. Sanderson, all of which were well received.

Mr. Sanderson thanked the people for their hearty response to the financial appeal, and knew they would rejoice with the Building Committee, the officials and congregation to learn that all the cost of re-building had been met, and several hundred dollars to the good. He then asked Mr. W. H. Phillips to come up and say a few words. Mr. Phillips spoke of the great struggle they had had, and the joy it gave them all to see its happy consummation. Mr. Chas. A. Ostrom was asked to come up and read an address to Mr. A. E. Bailey, expressing the appreciation of a few of his friends on the Board and Mr. G. W. Bates presented Mr. Bailey with a handsome club bag.

. ROCHE AND REFORMS

Dr. Roche, the new Minister of the Interior, has set about k in a vigorous and energetic manner which augurs well for his in this heavy department. He is taking a particularly keen in the question of immigration, and is carefully studying the connected with this work at first hand. Last week he made a City of Quebec and inspected the new immigration build- ich are being used in inspecting and welcoming newcomers. As a doctor who has always been interested in questions of public health he made a special investigation of the system of medical inspection.

As a result of his visit some reforms may be made. The doctor also believes that every effort should be made by the Government to give a hearty welcome to the shores of Canada to old world settlers, who have left friends and life-long associations to come to the Dominion, and would like to see them get as cheery a welcome as possible.

The Minister will later visit Halifax and St. John, and next summer will make a first-hand study of Western immigration conditions.

Dr. Roche also expects to visit the old country in connection with immigration work as soon as the session is over.

The department is devoting considerable attention to the question of immigration of women from Great Britain, and will likely establish a special branch to look after this work. Last winter a western woman was sent to the old country to lecture to women, with excellent results, and this week Mrs. H. Niblett of Winnipeg leaves for Great Britain on the same mission. Mrs. Niblett is one of the best known women journalists in the west, and is known from Winnipeg to the Yukon as Molly Glewn. She knows the west thoroughly and has roughed it on the prairies and in the far north. She went north with the famous Klondyke stampede, and was the first woman to go over in winter the terrible White Horse Pass and was also the first journalist in the Yukon.

The new branch will devote particular attention to bringing out domestic servants for which there is an unlimited demand in Canada. It is also felt that many good settlers would come to the Dominion if it were not for their wives who fear the supposed rigors of Canada's climate and the hardships they think they will have to face. It is felt if the women can be disabused of these ideas that the families would emigrate.

SEEKING CANADIAN BUSINESS

A special committee of the New York Produce Exchange is preparing rules for the listing of Canadian wheat quotations on that exchange. The scheme is to accept the grades at Winnipeg as the standard and to define the conditions under which contracts may be entered into and executed in handling such proportion of the wheat crop as may be exported through brokerage operations under the jurisdiction of the exchange. That, superficially, appears an unimportant innovation, but there appear to be in view far more serious aims. After this month, nearly all our grain will go to the seaboard by rail, and [illegible] Atlantic ports which are available to [illegible]gation throughout the year will have an advantage in that respect over Canadian ports.

In the opinion of Mr. A. Montgomery, one of the members of the New York Produce Exchange: "It is a question of providing the best facilities during the closed season, as to whether markets on this side of the line will get any considerable portion of the trade. The fundamental step is the quoting of Canadian wheat. With that will come the financing of exports by the New York and other seaboard banks. Inasmuch as the Erie Canal operates two weeks longer than Canadian waterways, the enlarged bargeway should find a profitable trade in Canadian wheat. This makes the question one of interest to the entire State as well as to the railroads and the financial institutions of New York city."

Here, then, is another argument for wasting no time and stinting no money for the development of Canadian ports. There are certain natural disadvantages with which the Dominion has to contend, but they have been largely overcome. The Dominion Government cannot afford to neglect the improvement of the ports of St. John, Halifax, Quebec and Montreal. Equally as important is the expenditure of money, energy and time upon the ports of our Pacific coast. The day is rapidly coming when, even with tly increased facilities, our At ports will be unable to handle ing like all the Western grain ents. In addition, therefore, Eastern movement, there must, paratively short time, be a con le grain movement to the Pa ast. whose ports are available vigation throughout the year, hose claims will be even strong ith the advent of the Panama anal. These ports are apparently cognized by the New York Produce change. Their innocent looking t for business for the port of New rk and other United States outlets, the provision for listing Canadian grain. It has been intimated that the scheme is merely one for gambling in wheat. It certainly has the appearance of a plan to juggle with Canadian business that should be kept for Canadian ports.

A proposition is at present before the Militia and Defence Department which is designed to add considerable numbers at little expense to the militia force of the country. It is planned to establish an actual reserve force in Canada by giving each regiment a second battalion, to be known as a reserve battalion. Regiments such as the Queen's Own Rifles, of Toronto, and the Fifth Royal Highlanders, of Montreal, will each have a third battalion.

Navigation on the Erie Canal came to a close last night. The report that its collector will present for the season is not a gratifying one—in fact, it is said to be the poorest in its history. It will prove depressing reading for our neighbors in New York State, and is regrettable. Prospering ourselves, our next thought should be for the welfare of others.—Hamilton Spectator.

The Spectator was always gifted with a sympathetic vein. Perhaps this is the reason it lacks funds to visit the opening of Parliament at its own expense. But we like the idea of remembering one's brother—if it is not too expensive.

The Federal Government has so far failed to appoint a time when the Saskatchewan Government can discuss the transfer to the province of its land and natural resources. Mr. Borden is punishing the Saskatchewan people for repudiating him and Hon. "Bob" Rogers.—Kingston Whig.

The time of the Federal Government has been so fully occupied straightening out the botched work of the late Liberal Government that new business has had to take its turn. The Saskatchewan district will be looked after in due time. This world was not made in a minute. It required a whole week to complete a substantial work.

Are Your Hands Chapped?

Zam-Buk Will cure Them.

The particular danger of chapped hands and cold cracks (apart altogether from the pain) is that the cold is likely to penetrate and set up inflammation, festering or blood-poison. Directly the skin is broken by a cut, graze or scratch, or chafed and cracked by the action of the cold winds and water, the one necessary precaution is to apply Zam-Buk freely.

The pure herbal juices from which Zam-Buk are prepared are so perfectly combined and refined that the immediate effect of these Zam-Buk dressings is soothing, antiseptic, and healing. Pain and inflammation are allayed, disease germs expelled from the wound or sore, and the latter is quickly healed.

Zam-Buk is not only a powerful healer and skin purifier; it is strongly antiseptic and germicidal, and so forms the ideal protection for the skin against disease germs.

It quickly heals cold cracks, chaps, chilblains, cold sores, etc.

Mrs. O. M. Phoen, Neuchatel, Alta., writes:—"I must tell you how pleased I am with Zam-Buk. My husband had an old frostbite on his foot for many years, and had tried almost every known remedy without any effect, but the first application of Zam-Buk seemed to help him so much that he persevered and the sore is now cured. We would not be without Zam-Buk in the house."

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for piles, eczema, ulcers, abscesses, scalp sores, blood-poison, bad leg, eruptions, etc. Its purely herbal composition makes it the ideal balm for babies and young children. All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk 50c. box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Try also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

Premier's Assassin Lived in Canada

HAMILTON, Nov. 19.—Levantee Corillias, 16 Harriet street, is the authority for the statement that Manuel Pardinas Serato, who shot down the Spanish premier, lived in Hamilton for 15 months.

Serato left here about three years ago to go to Cuba. While here he lived on Francis street, and was employed at the steel plant.

HOCKEY.

KINGSTON, Nov. 19.—Queen's University Hockey Club has accepted the invitation of the New York Athletic Club to play an exhibition game with Toronto University in New York shortly after Christmas.

The Intercollegiate hockey games in Toronto this season will be played at the Arena on Saturday afternoons.

With a fine surplus on hand, it has been suggested that the O.H.A. make a reduction in the fees paid by the clubs in membership.

Trenton is to have two teams this winter. These officers were elected at the annual meeting, held in the town hall: R. G. Weddell, president; J. D. Rowe, vice-president; R. L. Haines, 2nd vice-president; C. F. Reynolds, secretary-treasurer; James Cummings, manager; H. Armstrong, assistant manager; E. V. Illsey, G. E. Matthews, J. A. Pelkey, patrons.

RUGBY

Five of the champion McGill team learned their Rugby in Toronto. Quarterback McEvenue and Joe Timmins are former St. Michael students, Cruickshank is an ex-Varsity man, while Paisley and Montgomery learned their Rugby in Toronto. Montgomery was captain of St. Andrew's last season, and also played goal and captained St. Andrew's Junior O. H. A. team last winter.

Next season the champion McGill team will be riddled good and plenty, a seven of this year's team will have graduated, and as they comprise some of the best material, it will easily be seen that the Red and White will have a hard row to hoe to keep the honors. Those who graduate are Billington (on the back division a few games this year), Captain Jimmie Lee, Matheson, Timmins, Waterous, Laing and Lewis. Paisley will likely captain the team next season.

Varsity will not suffer like McGill, although they will lose Bell, Thompson, German, Clarke, Curtis, Phillips, Webster and Frith. Those who have one or more years to put in are: Schalm, Lorimer, Knox, Gardner, Taylor, Crawford, Muntz, Campbell, Cozner, Gonter, Maynard, Pierce, Knight, Taylor, Clarkson, Cory, Brown, Sinclair, Gage.

Down in Ottawa they are already figuring on a government job for Billington.

A representative of the C.R.U. executive went to Hamilton to measure the Alert grounds. If they are found O.K. the Argo game will be played there, but should they not come up to the standard the Tiger grounds will be secured. Alerts may have to play another game with Torontos before they can qualify to meet Argos.

The C.R.U. has ordered Ottawa II. to play Rough Riders of Hamilton in Hamilton this Saturday. Royal Military College will then meet the winners on the grounds of either Ottawa or Rough Riders.

Ottawa College, who won the Intercollegiate championship in 1907, refused to play off for the Canadian championship, and Montreal, winners of the Inter-provincial, then met Peterboro, winners of the O.R.F.U. The score was: Montreal 77, Peterboro 6.

A Montreal despatch says:—Montrealers have seen their last football game this season. The McGill players at a meeting held today decided not to enter into a play-off for Dominion honors. The decision was reached after several of the players had pointed out that two more weeks' football would cost them their year, for what with long practices every afternoon and several week-end trips for games the men are far behind in their work.

Following is the resolution adopted by the team:—

"To the faculty, governors, graduates, undergraduates and supporters of Old McGill:—

"In view of the fact that our examinations are fast approaching we do not deem it advisable to prolong further an already lengthened Rugby season, which has cost us considerable sacrifice in respect to our academic work.

"We trust that our position is appreciated by all."

The decision was announced at a mass meeting of students held in the evening to honor the new inter-collegiate champions, and the students were apparently quite satisfied with the determination on the part of their team to play no more this autumn.

The present Rugby season has been one of the most complicated years in the history of the game. Protests have been the hobby in all three senior organizations, with the O.R.F.U. getting the palm, and then as a grand climax the Canadian semi-finals become muddled owing to the Inter-collegiate champions refusing to play. It has sure been an unsatisfactory season so far as the sporting end of it is concerned, but, thank goodness, the get-away day is near at hand.

Argonauts Monday night decided that they would meet the winners of the O.R.F.U. and suggested to the C.R.U. that the game be ordered to be played this Saturday. Should Toronto win their protest the O.R.F.U. will not be able to return a winner until this Saturday. The Scullers state that they have remained in training for the Dominion championship games, but they do not want to retire without getting a crack at the Dominion honors, no matter how hollow they may be now with McGill refusing to play.

GENERAL SPORTS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—It was learned last night that Horace Fogel, president of the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club, has sent a letter to all of the club presidents in the league, requesting that his trial, set for November 26, on charges of conduct unbecoming a National League president, be put over to a later date. He said that he desired this postponement because he was negotiating for the sale of his club, and desired to conclude it before the case came up.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 19.—British Columbia amateur lacrosse officials will take the initiative in organizing a National Amateur Lacrosse Association to govern all Canadian leagues. Mr. Milton Oppenheimer, secretary of the British Columbia Amateur Union, who left on Sunday to attend the annual meeting of the A.A.U. of C. at Toronto on Saturday next, will request the governing board to appoint a committee to investigate all leagues and advertise to bring about the formation of an organization of amateurs. The A.A.U. of C. would, of course, continue to be recognized by the lacrosse officials representing the leagues all over the country.

"Yes, it is true that the British Columbia A.A.U. has empowered Mr. Oppenheimer to take up the question of a National Lacrosse Association at the annual meeting of the A.A.U. of C.," declared Dr. D. G. Davidson, president of the British Columbia A.A.U. today. "We are anxious to bring all leagues under one head and thus preclude the possibility of friction in future in connection with the Mann Cup matches."

Mr. Oppenheimer will place the matter before the Amateur Union, and will also ask that the boxing and track and field championships be awarded to British Columbia. Amateur sport is in a flourishing condition on the coast now, and all branches are going ahead.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Hoppe showed excellent form in defeating Sutton last night in the 18.2 balk line billiard championship tournament, making the high average thus far, 29 7-17. Sleeson outclassed Yamada, playing a consistent game.

Hoppe clicked off double figures in eight of his seventeen innings. His best effort was 101. Sutton was off form and suffered from nervousness.

Sleeson had the upper hand in his game after the twentieth inning, scoring 11 in four innings. His highest run was 79.

Morningstar defeated Taylor by a score of 500 to 310, and Cline beat Demarest 500 to 443 in the afternoon games.

Morningstar played a steady game, with high runs of 131 in the eleventh inning and 106 in the sixteenth. Cline took the lead early in his game with Demarest and held it to the end.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—An international federation of congress for the control of Olympic games is proposed in resolutions adopted at the 25th annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union here yesterday. It was voted to appoint a committee of five to meet in 1913 with representatives of foreign countries for the purpose of organizing such a federation if possible.

The trouble over the water polo championship at Pittsburg last March led to the adoption of a resolution declaring that the water polo championship for 1912 be cancelled, and recommending that the rules governing water polo be abolished, and those of the International Swimming Association be substituted.

The rules for A.A.U. boxing were revised, the most important change being the lengthening of the rounds to three minutes each. Three three-minute rounds will be allowed under the new rules, with an extra two-minute round if the referee so decides.

President Kirby, in his address at the meeting, regretted the widespread gossip of professional among amateur athletes. He said it was the duty of every honesty-loving person who knows of a violation of any rule of the A.A.U. to report to the officers so that they might have information instead of gossip to work on.

President Kirby declared that the United States was now the object lesson of the world for athletic supremacy, and he declared that the Olympic competitions were doing more to promote world peace than even the Hague conference.

The following officers were elected:—President, Gus. T. Kirby of New York; First Vice-President, A. J. Lill, jr., of Boston; Second Vice-President, G. F. Bawling of Philadelphia; Third Vice-President, Theo. R. Bland of St. Louis; Fourth Vice-President, H. W. Fitzpatrick of New Orleans; Secretary-Treasurer, James E. Sullivan of New York.

Poisoner May Escape

SEDALIA, Mo., Nov. 19.—Mrs. Pansy Ellen Lesh, who at Los Angeles on Nov. 2 confessed to murdering two women in Missouri, arrived here yesterday in custody of Sheriff N. T. Henderson. She is being held at the county jail, but is not locked in a cell, the sheriff believing such a precaution unnecessary. Sheriff Henderson scoffs at the idea that the woman is insane.

"We travelled together the last four days," said the officer last night, "and I would wager my last dollar that she is perfectly sane."

To newspaper men Mrs. Lesh talked freely today. She related the stories as told to the Los Angeles police of how she had administered poison to Mrs. E. H. Quaintance at Green Ridge, Mo., in 1904, and to Mrs. Eliza Coe at Sedalia in 1905. She repeated that her confession had been hastened by threats of her husband to tell the story of her crimes.

"I have never regretted my confession to the Los Angeles police, and I am prepared to take my punishment, whatever that may be," she said. "It almost broke my heart to leave my 2-year-old boy and my husband, but there was nothing else to do."

Sheriff Henderson, who has looked fairly into Mrs. Lesh's past life in California and other States, said that he would make a recommendation to the Circuit Court that the woman receive a sentence of five years' imprisonment and an immediate parole.

NERVOUS DEBILITY

OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT will cure you and make a man of you. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers heal up; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and mental systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. You feel yourself a man and know marriage cannot be a failure. Don't let quacks and fakirs rob you of your hard earned dollars.

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

CODERRE IS ELECTED

New Secretary of State Gets Overwhelming Majority.

Plurality For the Naval Policy In Hochelaga Is 2,206 and Doyon, the Nationalist Candidate, Loses His Deposit—Coderre Gets a Triumphal Reception From His Supporters—French Canada Vindicated.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—Hon. Louis Coderre, the recently-appointed Secretary of State of the Borden Government, was returned by his constituency yesterday with the decisive majority of 2,206 over his opponent, Louis Doyon, the choice of the Nationalist combine. In fact, so meagre was the support given to Doyon that his cash deposit was sacrificed, he having failed by ninety votes to poll the necessary minimum.

Of the total vote polled in the constituency of Hochelaga, Mr. Coderre received 4,222, while Doyon was let down with 2,016.

In every ward of the constituency Mr. Coderre received a comfortable majority, that in Westmount being little less than a positive landslide, Coderre getting 1,493 to Doyon's 55.

When last Mr. Coderre stood for election in Hochelaga he was opposed by L. A. Rivet, and at that time was returned with a majority of 1,362 over his Liberal opponent.

"The result shows beyond a doubt, that French-Canadians are ready to stand shoulder to shoulder with Canadians of other extraction in defence of the rights of Canada and the Empire. It shows that French-Canadians feel to the full that all their most cherished rights are wrapped up in the maintenance of the British Empire in its present condition; for the day that the British flag falls in battle will be the one on which the rights of Canadians—and French-Canadians will be most imperilled."

In these words did Hon. Louis Coderre express himself concerning the result of yesterday's polling. He addressed several gatherings early in the evening, when the extent of his victory was known, and his tour through the various portions of his riding was a triumphal march.

Canada Registers Protest.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 20—Through Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, the Canadian Government yesterday filed objections, before the International Joint Commission, to the proposed construction of an international dam at Kettle Falls, the outlet of Rainy Lake on the Minnesota-Manitoba boundary. The dam would affect the levels of the Lake of the Woods, which are now a matter of arbitration between the two Governments.

K.C. Handy With Hickory Stick.

Kingston, Nov. 20.—Robert Fulton, a young batteryman, was attacked by three ruffians late Monday night. When J. B. Walker, K.C., Local Master of Chancery, came along the men had Fulton on the ground. Mr. Walker used his hickory stick, and laid out two of the offenders.

Guelph's Soaring Ambition.

Guelph, Nov. 20.—Kelly Evans has returned from Ottawa, where he has been again presenting the claims of the Guelph branch to rank as a city postoffice. Nothing definite has yet been announced.

Earthquake In Mexico.

Mexico City, Nov. 20.—A severe earthquake occurred here at 7.15 yesterday morning. The movement was oscillatory and passed from north to south. It lasted more than three minutes.

Many brick walls and a few poorly constructed small houses were thrown down. The street pavements buckled and several watermains were broken.

According to the police reports the only casualty was that of a laborer, who, following the custom prevalent among the lower classes of dropping to their knees in prayer, knelt on the street car track in front of a moving suburban train and was ground to pieces.

Other reports indicate a death list of twelve or fifteen persons and these casualties are reported from widely scattered districts.

TRUCE STORY DENIED

Bulgarians and Turks Are Still Fighting Desperately.

Rumor That an Armistice Had Been Declared For the Purpose of Burying the Dead Is Without Foundation—Turkey May Accept Terms at Any Moment, But Troops Are Now Better Off.

London, Nov. 20.—The report that an armistice had been agreed to by the Bulgarians and Turks along the Tchatalja lines for the burial of the dead appears to have been unfounded. Despatches from Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, show that the artillery duel continued throughout the day.

The Turks claim successes against the Bulgarians, but there is nothing to indicate that the Bulgarians have yet made any serious attempt to penetrate the lines. The battle may be ended at any moment by Turkey accepting the allies' terms for an armistice, which are said to include the surrender of the Tchatalja lines, Adrianople, Durazzo and Scutari.

There is a possibility, however, that Turkey may decline to surrender Tchatalja. While her western army has been completely defeated, she still possesses, according to the correspondents at the front, a homogeneous army behind the Tchatalja fortifications, largely composed of some of her best fighting material from the Asiatic provinces, which has not yet been in action. Moreover, the demoralization and disorganization which followed the Kirk Kilisser and Luie Burgas retreats appear to have been remedied and the army is now well supplied with food and ammunition.

Under these circumstances the Porte may be induced to make a further stand in the hope of securing easier peace conditions. Evidently Bulgaria has brought up all her available forces to attack Tchatalja, including some of the Servian troops, but the task of crushing the Turkish defence may prove a difficult one. The prospect of European dissensions arising out of the settlement of the numerous territorial claims to be arranged after the war becomes daily more menacing. Austria has not presented an actual ultimatum to Servia setting a time limit for a reply to certain enquiries which she has formulated, but, short of that, the relations between the two countries are very strained, and Servia's evident intention to take Durazzo will be still another defiance of Austria.

Vice-Admiral Mone-Cuccoli, in the Austrian delegation yesterday, warned the members to be prepared for the rise of powerful Balkan navies in the Aegean Sea. This is one of the signs of the rearrangement of Southeastern Europe as a result of the war which is likely to keep the European chancellories in a state of tension for a long time to come. Both Austria and Russia are taking measures so that they will be prepared for any eventuality. It is reported from St. Petersburg that Russia is purchasing several hundred guns abroad.

According to a despatch from Belgrade the disposition of Monastir was not provided for by a prior agreement by the allies, and will likely cause trouble. The Servians wish to establish their claim and it is intended that the King of Servia shall make a triumphal entry into the city. On the other hand, the Bulgarians claim that Monastir is situated in a predominantly Bulgarian district; while the Greeks contend that the leading part of the population is of Greek nationality.

To Investigate Arrangement.

Washington, Nov. 20.—Vigorous investigation by the Federal Government of the reported traffic arrangement between the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, which New England state officials fear will destroy railway competition in that section, was promised yesterday by Attorney-General Wickersham to representatives of the governors of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Members of the Massachusetts Railroad Commission and the Rhode Island Utilities Commission, speaking for the governors of these states, appealed to President Taft yesterday for federal intervention under the Sherman anti-trust law to check the alleged deal and prevent any monopolization of the railroad facilities of New England. It was alleged that the Grand Trunk has abandoned its proposed extensions in southern New England in consideration of tracking privileges from the New Haven.

Great Shipping Combine.

New York, Nov. 20.—A special to The World from London says It is asserted with great circumstantiality in financial circles that preliminary negotiations have been completed to form the greatest shipping combine the world has ever seen, one which in point of tonnage, capitalization and resources, would dwarf J. Pierpont Morgan's International Mercantile Marine.

The companies pooling their interests are:

The Cunard, with a capital of $10,000,000 and thirty-one steamers.

The Peninsular & Oriental, capital $17,500,000, and sixty-four ships.

The British Indian Steam Navigation Co., capital $8,500,000, and 129 steamers.

The Royal Mail Steam Packet Co., capital $60,000,000, and 129 steamers.

Furness, Withy & Co., capital $17,500,000, and 63 steamers.

Sir Owen Phillips is carrying out the deal.

C.N.R. Line To Ottawa.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—Sir William Mackenzie, who is here on departmental business, announced yesterday that the Ottawa-Toronto line of the C.N.R. would not be in operation before next spring. Encountering of sink holes along the route and scarcity of labor were given as the reason.

Threatened Girl's Life.

Brockville, Nov. 20.—On a charge of threatening to shoot a girl in Smith's Falls, Thomas Durgan, aged 20, was placed under arrest here and handed over to the Smith's Falls authorities.

TAX COMMITTEE SITS.

Evidence Taken at Toronto Regarding Proposed Changes.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—The select committee composed of members of the Provincial Legislature met at the Parliament Buildings yesterday to take evidence from various authorities as to the advisability of revising the assessment act by accepting the amendment proposed by J. A. Ellis, M.P.P., of Ottawa, or that of N. W. Rowell, K.C., leader of the Liberal Opposition.

E. M. Trowern, secretary-treasurer of the Retail Merchants' Assoiation, advocated that the present business tax be reduced to 10 per cent. "It is absolutely essential in the interest of these men that you do this," he declared, "because the small retailers cannot stand against such taxation, and by making such a reform, you will be pleasing 95 per cent. of them and displeasing the other five per cent.

Chairman Hon. W. J. Hanna wanted to know what the effect on real estate values would be if the act were changed, and was informed that no change would be brought about through this medium.

The assessment commissioners of Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa and London were present and gave evidence to the effect that there was little objection in their cities to the business tax.

A. B. Farmer spoke of tax reform in Saskatchewan. He recited the act which at first obtained a revenue by ordering an acreage tax of 2 1-2 cents to 6 cents and said that so much dissatisfaction was incurred through this legislation that an amendment to the act was passed which provided that the land should be assessed at its actual cash value in the matter of rural townsites.

"Honest taxation" was the subject covered by W. A. Douglass, B. A. "By the taxation of improvements you encourage men to do their worst rather than the opposite.

G. B. Byron had an argument for local option taxation. He declared that the Legislature wasn't the proper forum for changing the act. "When it continues to deal with reforms which have caused grievances, a local governing body should have control."

Special Commissioner.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—The Minister of Marine has appointed R. A. Pringle, K.C., of Cornwall, special commissioner to fully investigate the sinking of the steamer Mayflower. It is understood the enquiry will start immediately.

THE BACHELORS' ASSEMBLY A BRILLIANT SUCCESS

An event which is ever eagerly and anxiously anticipated by many in the city and surrounding district, is the annual assembly given under the auspices of the bachelors of this city. This occurred in the Academy last night and it is no exaggeration to state that it surpassed every effort of the kind city attended, and many guests were yet held. Large numbers from the in evidence from Trenton, Picton, Stirling, Madoc, Napanee, Kingston, Foxboro and other places. It was in every respect a record affair, the brilliancy being enhanced by the gowns worn by the ladies, which were superb. The assembly was most appropriately decorated for the occasion and the programme of music furnished by the Sprague Orchestra was all that could be desired. Those who had charge of the pleasing function did all in their power for the comfort and pleasure of all who attended, and visitors were loud in praise of the attentions bestowed. Engineer Lindsay Reports on Paving

Following, is the report as presented to the City Council on Monday evening, by City Engineer Lindsay, setting forth his knowledge and views upon Front Street paving proposition. We give it verbatim:

Nov. 18th, 1912.

Mayor and Council
City of Belleville,

Gentlemen.—Regarding concrete pavements, I have to report as follows: I was one of the deputation which visited Detroit for above purposes and was shown certain pavements leading from Detroit through Wayne County which had been down from 1 to 2 years.

As the important and principal feature of any pavement must be its durability and as evidence f this feature was not available, I feel if I, as your Engineer, brought in a report entirely favorable to this or any other pavement which was only in an experimental stage, I would be lacking in a sense of responsibility, and the adoption of any such pavement on any such grounds must rest entirely on your Council and those directly interested. I am, gentlemen,

Your Obedient Servant
JAMES G. LINDSAY,
City Engineer.

LOCAL LEGAL

Vassaw vs. Comins.

Judgment was delivered in this action by His Honor Judge Deroche before whom the action was tried in the County Court on the 31st of October and judgment reserved.

The Plaintiff purchased and took an assignment of the interest of one of the legatees under the will of the late Miles Fhorey. The Defendant is a Judgment Creditor of the same legatee and claimed that the assignment to the Plaintiff was void as being a fraud upon creditors.

Judgment declaring the assignment good and valid, the Plaintiff having paid the cash for the same without notice of the insolvency of the legatee and directing the amount of the legacy to be paid to the Plaintiff and the Defendant to pay the Plaintiff's costs of action.

ANAEMIA IS FATAL IF NOT CHECKED

One of the most common troubles of girls and women—A THIN, WATERY CONDITION OF THE BLOOD.—This trouble (Anaemia) is seen almost every day. The appearance is striking—pale, sallow complexion, circles about the eyes, shortness of breath on slight exertion, and such a one suffers from palpitation of the heart, headache, indigestion, swelling of hands or feet, constipation, etc. All these symptoms may not be present in your case, depending on the duration and the stage of the disease.

If not remedied the blood becomes more thin and watery, subsequently causing swelling and dropsy—Do not allow this trouble to advance.—Check it now.—You can not only check it, but you can bring about a complete cure by using RESTORATONE TABLETS and following the mode of living described on the circular accompanying each box of Tablets. The advice is free and the Restoratone Tablets will create pure, healthy blood.

THE SECRET OF YOUR RECOVERY.

Restoratone Tablets are unexcelled as an efficient restorer of the blood and a tonic to the entire system—promoting the activity of special organs at fault. They are a reliable cure for anæmia, indigestion, nervousness, insomnia, palpitation of the heart, and pains and irregularities of girls and women. This has been proven by tests without number. Give them a trial. A worthless remedy is never substituted. See that you accept no substitute for Restoratone Tablets. For sale at your druggist's for 50 cents a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50, or cheerfully sent to you on receipt of price by addressing The Restoratone Co. Limited, Toronto, Canada.

KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER

By C. J. CUTCLIFFE HYNE

"I've writen out all Horace twenty times over in impositions and know the bulk by heart, but I can't say I ever got a taste for construing it."

"Well, we won't argue the value of a classical education just now. Anyway the King of Okky was impressed. Of course he twigged the stuff was not English, or Okky, or Kroo or Arabic or any of the tongues hereabout. He asked what it was. I said it was a priest's tongue. He asked what the words meant. I romanced then and told him they prophesied that the factory would be looted by a King who had made himself a King—the old scoundrel was born a slave, you'll remember, and made the throne vacant by killing his predecessor—and that two days afterwards a new and very curious sort of ju-ju would be put on that King, who would thereupon die a new and very painful sort of death."

"Ripping!" said Carter.

"The meeting broke up in confusion just then, because his soldiers down below began to run amuck among our boys, and the King heard the row and went for me. However I'd my big lead tobacco box handy, and I wiped him over the head with that, and as the boys below were frightened, and had got our surf boat ready for launching, I saw that they intended to quit, whatever I might say, and I didn't see the force of holding the fort here alone. So I went to sea with them, and spent the evening preaching them a long sermon on the vice of cowardice. I hadn't much faith that the King would be fool enough to swallow my prophecy, but as I say, you can never be sure which way the African brain will twist. And here you are is the factory untouched."

"When Mr. K. gets a report of this sir, I fancy you'll have a letter you will like."

"Maybe. But I shan't wear myself out expecting it. i Look here—" Mr. Smith produced a letter from the breast pocket of his stained pyjamis—"came in just after you'd left. Sent by canoe and special runner from our factory on the Monk River. Agent there says he wants to charge me seven pound ten for forwarding my mail. If that's K. O'Neill's idea of running a business economically, I wish he'd come out to the Coast here and find a way of making profits to correspond."

Carter had a shrewd suspicion that if Mr. K. had ordered an expenditure of seven pounds ten shilling sterling over the forwarding of a letter it contained an idea which that very astute business man was sure would produce at least seventy pounds in the near future. But he did not irritate his superior by mentioning this aloud. Instead he asked, "Any instructions for me, sir."

"Well, yes. First of all there is a direct one. K. says, 'As Mr. Carter seems a good hand at collecting native curios, I should be glad if he would get me some ivory war horns. I want a row of them on my drawing-room wall.' So young man, you had better get hold of some escrdelles and your carving tools and set to work."

"I don't propose," said Carter shortly, "to start faking curios for Mr. K. A man like that would spot them at once. But I'll send my model horn, and see to it he has some other good specimens of the real thing."

"As you like. Well, the letter goes on to advise us that the next thing America and France and Great Britain are going to gamble over is rubber. Not collected wild rubber, you understand, but rubber estates where the vines can be planted and cultivated. K.'s evidently going in for Company Promoting, and as a preliminary he instructs me to get options of suitable territory. He's got an idea that an uncleared estate on the Coast here, which could grow rubber if it had the chance, can be bought at the rate of a case of gin per thousand acres; and if you are a fancy for untouched bush, and a doubtful title, I daresay that is so."

'But one can get a clear title, I suppose, if one takes the trouble?"

Mr. Smith's pipe finally refused even to bubble so he started to clean out its more obvious horrors into Carter's wash basin. He went on between the throes of this nice operation—"Depends who you mean by 'one'. If you are hinting at yourself, I have no doubt you could manage it, because—you're a very painstaking young man, and I'm sure—you see yourself as a partner of K. O'Neill already. Isn't that so?

"That might do when I'm ready, sir." said Carter laughing, "unless I see something better in the meantime. But as a point of fact I wasn't setting myself as a man to se through the tangle of African land transfer."

"If you were referring to me I shouldn't recommend you to bet on the result unless the odds are big on your side. And mark you I've been dabling in West African real estate at intervals for five-and-twenty years—he pointed to the crown of his head—"that's what has worn my hair so thin in places. You get your eye on a piece of land here, you get all the local evidence you can rake up as to who is owner, and you pay that man and put up your buildings. It within the next six months more than three other owners don't turn up with absolutely flawless-looking titles, you'll be lucky. It's a case of pay each of them in turn, or clear out."

"But surely there's the alternative of doing neither?"

"Certainly if you can get the Government to back you up, and that's the rarest thing imaginable. You see any any land trouble of that kind, whatever the rights or wrongs of it may be, always means a war when the white man refuses either to pay or quit. The local Kings and ju-ju men always snap at the chance. Well, we needn't argue this out further. I know all the districts in at the back here where rubber can be grown, and I shall go off on a trip up country and see what I can do in the way of negotiations. I leave you in charge here at Malla-Nulla. Your particular object in life will have to be keeping down expenses."

"You think there will be no trade then?"

"Not now the King of Okky has closed the roads", said Smith decisively.

Now Swizzle-Stick-Smith had a long list of failings, but letting his assistants eat the bread of idleness was not among them. "Nothing like work—and a moderate amount of drugs—for keeping fever and mischief out of a man," was his motto, and he saw to it that Carter remained steadily on the run. But now the roads were stopped, and it was only the rare merchant who straggled in scared, and often wounded, from that mysterious Africa behind, George Carter discovered that life was a very different thing. Beforetime, he had found work in the feteesh, and round the factory generally, a trial to the flesh; but the idleness that took its place was infinitely more objectionable.

He employed the Kroboy staff in whitewashing, in building, in making a caricature of a garden; he made the native clerks polish up their books into a shape that would have satisfied even a Glasgow Chartered Accountant; and for himself he made Okky arrows, axes, spears, drums and warhorns, in such quantities that even the curiosity shops in Europe would have been glutted if they had all gone home.

In despair he even thawed to a certain intimacy with the Portuguese linguister, but presently cast him off in disgust, and realized why on the West Coast one divides up the population into white men, black men and Portuguese. Of course White-Man's-Trouble was always at his elbow, but he hardly fulfulled the requirements of a companion.

To be precise, after the roads were stopped, and Mr. Smith had departed elsewhere, the Trader-in-charge of Malla-Nulla factory discovered for himself what many millions of men have found out before, that it is not good for a man to live alone, and though he made many ingenious plans for remedying the evil, all of these, save one, invariably broke down on being tested. The one plan that was sound related to Laura Slade.

Every time that Laura's name inserted itself into the argument his mind would presently leap back to Upper Wharfedale and he would hear afresh that warning of his father's about taking a wife of one's own color. And his father he reminded himself had once held an Indian chaplaincy and knew what he was talking about.

But by degrees as this proposition was argued out again and again, and the loneliness of West Africa in general, at Malla-Nulla in particular bit deeper and deeper home, so did England and all that dwelt therein drift further and further away. He had found occasion the day after he had been left in sole charge of the factory to send a business note to Slade at Smooth River. In it he enclosed another to Laura, and to this latter he received a reply that he found charming. The affairs of the factories required many messages after that; and presently the pair of them did away with the cloak and pretence of commerce altogether and White-Man's-Trouble was kept trotting backwards and forwards across the glaring beaches, frankly as Cupid's messenger. Only once did Slade interfere, and that was when the Kroo boy, presuming on his peculiar position, stole from the Smooth River factory some article of more than customary value. Slade said nothing publicly, but took the law into his own hands, and after the custom of the Coast banged White-Man's-Trouble lustily with a section of a packing case; and even then Carter would have known nothing about the matter had not there been a nail in the weapon of offence, which left its marks, and about which he made inquiries.

Slade it seemed had also received from K. O'Neill similar instructions to those recorded above, on the matter of rubber estates, and with his usual indecision would determine one day to set off personally into the bush, and the next day to do the necessary bargaining by correspondence. Finaly he wrote to Carter a querulous letter saying that as he got no help from anybody in deciding on such an important subject, he was just going to stay on at Smooth River and twindle his thumbs and so Carter was not in the least surprised to hear from Laura within the next twenty hours that her father with hammock-train and escort had that day set off for a prolonged expedition into the bush.

RALEIGH, N. C. CHILD

Made Strong and Well by Vinol.

When we tell you that Vinol is the best remedy in our whole stock for making weak, puny, ailing children strong, robust and rosy we are only telling you what has been proved to hundreds of mothers.

Mrs. W. O. Strother, Raleigh, N. C., says: "My little girl, Hazel, has been taking Vinol to build her up after a severe spell of sickness. It has done so much good by restoring her appetite and building up her strength that I think Vinol is the finest tonic ever prepared and I am telling everyone about it."

What Vinol did for this little girl it will do for every weak and ailing child because sickly children need the strengthening cod liver elements and the tonic iron that Vinol contains—that is why Vinol builds them up quickly and gives them a fine healthy color. It is pleasant to take and we guarantee that the results will satisfy you—money back if they do not. Red Cross Drug Store. J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

Indian Witness Was Murdered

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 19.—That Albert O. Charles, the full-blooded Oneida Indian and Carlisle graduate and principal witness in the investigation of the mysterious death of a fellow-tribesman, was murdered is the construction placed upon the findings of Coroner Gettman of Herkimer County.

Charles, who left his home in McKeever to place in the hands of an attorney in this city, evidence he had gathered regarding the death of Joseph Wheelock, who was found outside a saloon in Otter Lake unconscious and died soon after, had not been seen for theree weeks. His body was found in the Erie Canal, just east of Utica, last Thursday. A strike among the physicians of Herkimer County, who objected to a cut in their fees made by the Herkimer Board of Supervisors, held up an autopsy ordered by the District Attorney. A physician was finally brought into the county, and as a result of the autospy, Coroner Gettman tonight made this statement.

"The autospy disclosed the fact that Charles had received a violent blow the head, which probably rendered him unconscious, and that in that condition he went into the canal either falling or being thrown."

The authorities of two counties, Oneida and Herkimer, are going forward with an investigation.

Many a man who tries to make his money go a long way never thinks of contributing to foreign missions.

Well-Known Thief Captured At London

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 20.—Special—A man who gives the name of Geo. Harris of Chicago was placed under arrest at the Grand Trunk depot by Detectives Nickle and Eggleton this afternoon, charged with having rifled the home of Mrs. Wm. Tierney, 135 Albert street, and with having stolen a gold watch from Miss Mollie Carty, one of the employees at the City Hotel, where he registered last night after coming into the city in the evening.

He had three other watches, a diamond ring and other jewellery in his possession. Half an hour after his arrest the occupants of Mrs. Tierney's boarding-house were relieved to find their valuables safely in the officers' hands. One of the watches belonged to Miss Maud Bradshaw, a boarder, and had been presented to her only last night by fellow-employees at the Wright Hat Company. The diamond ring was owned by Miss Keating a well-known local church organist. Harris will appear in police court tomorrow morning.

In the rim of his hat was found a slip of paper bearing addresses of houses in Strathroy and other western Ontario towns. The police declare that the prisoner is a sneak-thief well-known in many cities.

Knelt In Prayer Car Struck Him

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 20.—A severe earthquake occurred here at a quarter past seven this morning. The movement was oscillatory and passed from north to south. It lasted more than three minutes.

Many brick walls and a few poorly constructed small houses were thrown down. The street pavements buckled and several watermains were broken.

According to the police reports the only casualty was that of a laborer who, following the custom prevalent among the lower classes of dropping to their knees in prayer, knelt on the street car track in front of a surburban train and was ground to pieces.

Prisoners Slay Five in Mutiny

ROCHEFORT, France, Nov. 20.—There was a serious revolt and outbreak in the military prison here yesterday. Five warders were killed by the mutineers, and seven of the latter were also shot dead.

The mutiny was quelled only after the arrival of a detachment of marines with ball cartridges.

The revolt occurred at the supper hour, when several of the prisoners suddenly sprand upon the warden, and wrenching his revolver from him shot him through the head. The warden's wife was killed when she came to the aid of one of the guards.

Troops were hurriedly summoned and after surrounding thee building drove the mutinous prisoners to the top floor of the prison and killed one of them. The two ringleaders barricaded themselves in a cell, which they defended desperately with a hatchet. They finally committed suicide with the warden's revolver.

Several of the prisoners succeeded in making their escape during the affray.

Words From His Royal Highness, The Duke of Connaught, That Set The Wheels of Dominion Parliament in Motion.

(Intelligencer Special.)

OTTAWA, Nov. 21.—It is most gratifying to observe that the trade of the Dominion is increasing rapidly and steadily, the aggregate for the last fiscal year being the largest on record. The revenues of the Dominion continue to expand and in every branch of business and industry there is a remarkable activity. A copious and welcome stream of immigration has poured into our country during the past summer. The volume of immigration during the present year is greater than during any corresponding period in our history. During the past summer four members of my Government conferred in London with His Majesty's Government on the question of naval defence. Important discussions took place and conditions have been disclosed which in the opinion of my advisers render it imperative that the effective naval forces of the Empire should be strengthened without delay. My advisers are convicted that it is the duty of Canada at this juncture ta afford reasonable and necessary aid for that purpose. A bill will be introduced accordingly. It is abundantly evident that the highways of Canada constitute an important part of an efficient scheme of transportaton. The necessity for improving our existing facilities in this regard is manifest and a bill will be introduced for the purpose of enabling the Dominion to cooperate with the provinces in the accomplishment of this most desirable purpose. It is satisfactory to know that the proposal of my Government to co-operate with the movements of the various provinces in promoting the agricultural industry has met with hearty approval. After a careful study of the whole question my advisers are convicted that co-operation with the provinces on well defined terms and conditions will achieve the best results along the lines of agricultural instruction. My Government has succeeded in securing certain reductions in cable rates and will continue its efforts to obtain still further reductions.

Under existing legislation the charters of the banks will expire on the first day of July next. A bill revising and extending these charters will be submitted for your consideration and approval.

The Oldest Skeleton Known

The mummy known as Ra Nefer which is in the museum of the Royal college of surgeons, has been described as the oldest mummy known. The date assigned to it by Prof. Elliott Smith, was the age of Senefru, the beginning of Egypt's fourth dynasty, about 3,700 B.C.

Some human remains, however, have been discovered at Sakkara, about fifteen miles from Cairo, belonging to the period of the end of the second and the beginning of the third dynasties, about 4,000 years, B. C.

Among them is the skeleton of a woman about 35 years of age, which was found completely invested in a large series of bandages, and next to the body was a corroded woven cloth. The corrosion, says Prof. Smith, was presumptive evidence that some material, probably crude natron, was applied to the surface of the body with a view to its preservation, and he has thus been able to trace to a higher antiquity than had previously been done, the use of this method for preserving the bodies of the dead.

The New York Aquarium lately received in one lot from its collector at Gravesend Bay, sixteen orange filefishes, an unusually large number to be taken in a single day, while among them were some that were notable for their size and coloring. They included one big fish whose sides are marked from head to tail with evenly spaced brown and yellow spots, forming a pattern like a checker-board.

Yes, child, papa's gone to work and won't be back for a long time, thank goodness!

C. P. R. Freight Sheds at Prescott Destroyed by Fire

Intelligencer Special.

PRESCOTT, Ont., Nov. 21.—The Canadian Pacific freight sheds and freight offices here were destroyed by fire which broke out about 11 o'clock last night. Assisted by a strong south wind, the fire made such headway that it was seen within a few minutes there was no hope of subduing it, and the firemen ere forced to divert their attention to confining it to as small an area as possible. The sheds, which were situated on the St. Lawrence River front, were very extensive, being the largest west of Montreal, and contained a great quantity of freight, in addition to nine loaded cars. The freight and customs offices were attached, all of which were completely destroyed. There were about two hundred tons of coal in the building, which made a conflagration that illuminated the sky for miles around on either side of the river. The loss is estimated at two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. The origin of the fire is unknown.

British Steamer Is Quarantined

(Intelligencer Special.)

ODESSA, Nov. 21.—The British steamer Bosnian from Constantinople is quarantined here with two cases of cholera aboard.

Bad Fire at Sault

SAULT STE. MARIE, Nov. 20.—Special—The warehouse of the Superior Oil Company here was burned early today. The inflammable nature of the contents of the building caused the fire to last for many hours, as by the time the brigade reached the scene the fire had a good hold, and it continued to burn despite all their efforts.

About $800 worth of goods belonging to the Northern Building Material and Iron Company, stored in the place, was destroyed. The Superior Oil Company's stock on hand amounted to about $12,000, which is partially covered by insurance. Another serious loss was that of $10,000 worth of patterns belonging to the Algoma Iron Works, which were stored there. These are partially covered by insurance. The total loss is in the neighborhood of $23,000. How the fire started is not known.

Replaced Gold With Lead

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Special—Ten thousand sovereigns ($50,000) have been stolen from a consignment of 200,000 shipped to Alexandria, November 12th. When the boxes were opened on their arrival two were found to be filled with lead.

Revenged His Slain Dog

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 20.—Special—Because a large touring car ran over and crushed his dog this afternoon, Lloyd Pastorius fired both barrels of a double-barrelled shotgun point blank at the rear end of the automobile, it is alleged, and as a result three persons are in Hamlet hospital riddled with birdshot and Pasterius is a prisoner at police headquarters.

Boiler Exploiosn Kills 20 Seamen

TOKIO, Nov. 20.—Special—Twenty of the crew of the Japanese cruiser Nisshin were killed today by an explosion of one of her boilers. The explosion is said to have been caused by the grounding of the vessel at Shimoda. The bodies of the dead were landed at Yokosugh.

Windsor Boys Guilty of Chinese Smuggling

DETROIT. Nov. 20.—Special—Fines of one dollar each, not as punishment, but that the matter might be closed, were assessed by Judge Zessions in the United States District Court here this afternoon against Alva Latour and Fred O'Neil, two 18 year old Windsor boys, who pleaded guilty to charges of Chinese smuggling.

"Each of you having served approximately three months in jail is sufficient punishment," said Judge Zessions in passing sentence.

"I am certain that you have been used as tools of others who are more criminal than you, and who have been more unscrupulous. I think you have been led astray, and certainly ought not to suffer the penalty of the law."

Suffragettes Sent to Trial

LONDON Nov. 20.—Two suffragettes were sentenced to terms of imprisonment for window smashing by the judge of the London Court sessions today.

Isabella Irving was sent up for six months and Ethel Slade for four months, on the charge of damaging shop windows in Bond and Oxford streets, on November 6, when they participated in a raid with other women as a protest against the rejection by the House of Commons of an amendment, providing for woman suffrage, in the Home Rule Bill for Ireland.

Duchess Helps Prisoners' Wives

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The Duchess of Marlborough held a bazaar in the great ball room of Sutherland House yesterday, where six prisoners' wives helped as many society women to sell useful articles made by the inmates of the Duchess of Marlborough's homes for prisoners' wives and children.

Assisting the Duchess at the stalls were the Marchioness of Blandford, Viscountess Ridley, Viscountess Acheson, Lady Lillian Grenfell, Lady Alastair Innes Ker, the Hon. Mrs. Rupert Beckett, and Lady Evelyn Baring.

There was a large attendance and the sales were satisfactory. Mrs. Whitlaw Reid and Alfred De Rothschild sent orders.

Among the many persons present were the Duchess of Roxburghe, the Countess of Wemyss, the Countess Pappenheim, Lady Helen Vincent, the Dowager Countess of Cottenham, Lady Strathedon and Campbell, Frances Lady De Lisle and Dudley and Lady Cooper.

To be Sentenced To Death Penalty

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—District Attorney Whitman made the following statement after the first degree murder verdict was announced in the case of the four gunmen.

"I believe this marks the end of the rule of the gangsters and gunmen in certain portions of the city. The murder of Herman Rosenthal, in all its circumstances protected as it was by a man high in the police office of this city, was a direct challenge to law and order, and to every decent man in the city and the State.

"The support this office received in that crisis, and which we gratefully acknowledge, from the press and the public, demonstrates that the people of New York were ready to accept the challenge and to respond to the call to vindicate the law.

"Twenty-four-jurors have now passed upon the issues involved in this indictment, to say nothing of other twenty-three mem bers of the Grand Jury of this county, and I have yet to hear of a single dissenting voice as to the guilt of those responsible."

How great a blow to the gangsters the verdict is was made clear in a statement to Mr. Whitman the day before yesterday by Rose, Webber, Valion and Sharpiro, who said that never in the history of the East Side gangs, had one of their number been convicted of first degree murder. Some had "done time," but most of these had got off before their terms were up so that a feeling had sprung up that gangmen were immune from capital punishment no matter how many they murdered.

CROWN'S CASE CLOSED

Defence of Charles Gibson in Murder Case Is Opened.

Prosecution Refuses to Call Frank Smith, the Convict, Who Said He Heard Two Men Discussing the Murder — Eli Dunkelman Testifies After Protest From Gibson's Lawyer—Says Gibson Struck Him.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Many dramatic features were present in the closing hours of the crown's case against Charles Gibson, on trial before Sir William Mulock in the criminal assizes for the murder of Joseph Rosenthal on the night of Good Friday last. The crown closed its case just before adjournment yesterday afternoon and the defence evidence is now being heard.

When the crown's last witness had been called Aubrey A. Bond, counsel for the defence, arose to ask that one more be added to their number. He asked that the crown call Frank Smith, now serving five years in Kingston Penitentiary for housebreaking, who has made a strange and startling statement regarding the case. Crown Prosecutor Meredith refused to call the witness, and Sir William Mulock upheld him. Smith's statement made to the governor of Toronto jail some time ago was to the effect that he heard two men telling how they committed the murder.

When the crown again offered the testimony of Eli Dunkelman in the afternoon as to what had happened after Gibson left the Strachan avenue bridge with Rosenthal, Mr. Bond rose to object. He urged that the crown had set out a triple proposition—that he went to the yard where the body was found with Rosenthal; that human blood was found on Gibson's clothing, which he admitted, and explained by the fact that Gibson's brother had been hurt in a bicycle accident on the day of the accident, and had had three stitches put in his head at St. Michael's Hospital. The third point was that the rope around Rosenthal's neck was part of a clothes line from Gibson's home. He contended that they had not shown any evidence of any actual violence to Rosenthal by Gibson, and that until they did the evidence of any assault upon Dunkelman was inadmissable. During his remarks he declared that he would show by the evidence of a disinterested party that Dunkelman's evidence was perjured.

The judge remarked: "There are a number of circumstances shown which, if unexplained, would justify the jury in finding the prisoner guilty."

Dunkelman took the stand and repeated his evidence as given at the inquest, telling how Gibson had come back to the bridge for him and had taken him down to the yard, saying that Rosenthal was inside [illegible] Hydro building with the manager. He says that Gibson told him to look at the lightning, and that then he was struck down. He declared that he had not again seen Rosenthal, even when he recovered consciousness in the morning, and described his laborious trip across the city to his home, where he collapsed.

Dr. Alex. Davis told of Dunkelman's condition at the hospital. He declared that his memory was still hazy, but returning, and might be relied upon as to the main facts. It may take a year before it is completely recovered.

The defence opened with the evidence of two men who had met Dunkelman on his way home. They had asked him what was the matter with him, and what had happened. He had said to them: "Me fall; me fall." He seemed dazed. The case should be closed to-day.

Handsome Donation to Church.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Several wealthy Toronto Baptists who take a great interest in downtown evangelistic work have just made a handsome donation, running up to several thousand dollars, to the Baptist Memorial Church, Tecumseh street.

The work is also under the auspices of Walmer Road Baptist Church and is to be developed on an extensive scale. It is reported that the board have received substantial offers for present site to utilize it for factory purposes. In case the present site is disposed of an institutional memorial church on a comprehensive scale is talked of. Rev. A. L. Brown, pastor of the church, stated last night that the new plans were not ready for announcement.

No Sunday "Moveys" In Quebec.

Montreal, Nov. 21.—The Lord's Day Alliance of Montreal and the Province of Quebec, decided yesterday, that in view of the recent decision of the Supreme Court that the Quebec Lord's Day Act was ultra vires, they would proceed against the lawbreakers under the federal law, which is a much more restrictive measure. Those immediately concerned in this decision on the part of the guardians of Sabbath observance will be 49 moving-picture houses, which throw their doors open on the first day of the week as well as the other six.

At yesterday's meeting, which was the annual gathering for both bodies, the old slate of officers was returned without a change.

C.P.R. Extending Lines.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 21.—The new year will see a very decided increase in the mileage of the C.P.R. in the Maritime Provinces. On that date they will take over the management of the Central Railway from Norton to Minto, with its extension to Fredericton, and will thus have a line across the centre of the province, touching the coal fields of Queen's and Sunbury Counties.

On the same date they are expected to assume control of the Dominion Atlantic Railway in Nova Scotia, with its connecting steamship service on the Bay of Fundy between St. John and Digby.

Famous Athlete And Dead Shot

WINNIPEG, Nov. 20.—Word was received in this city to-day of the death at his home in North Vancouver, of John A. Forbes, formerly of Hamilton, who was one of Canada's famous trap shooters, and in the early nineties an all-round athlete. He was stricken with paralysis a short time ago, and never rallied. He represented the Remington Arms company in Vancouver.

Mr. Forbes first came into prominence in rifle shooting in 1884, when, as a member of the Hamilton Ontario Rifle Association, he competed at Bisley against teams from all nations. The following year he was awarded a medal emblematic of the championship while he was also presented with the governor-general's prize for rifle shooting. He did not confine himself entirely to rifle shooting, but took an active part in trap and field sports and rowing.

In 1889 he was a member of the crew which won the championship at the Northwestern Amateur Rowing association's regatta at Grand Rapids and was also a member of the crew which won the American championship in doubles. Record also shows that deceased stroked a four-oared crew about 1889 which defeated Jake Gaudaur's famous crew during their world's tour. In 1890 he won the A. A. U. all-round championship, representing the Detroit club on that occasion.

U. S. Rhodes Scholars

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—A severe criticism of the calibre of students sent to Oxford University under the Rhodes scholarship was delivered today by Dr. George R. Parkin of Oxford, executive secretary of the Rhodes scholarship trust, before the National Association of State Universities, which began its 17th annual session here today.

Dr. Parkin divided the students sent to Oxford from the United States into three classes. The first third, he said, were high grade students, the second third were fair, while the other third, "well, it is a mystery to the Oxford faculty how they ever got there." Dr. Parkin said that merit should be the determining factor in awarding the Rhodes scholarships. Well rounded students were desired, he declared, regardless of financial or social standing. He told the association that Oxford was the centre of the culture of the world, and that he could not understand the lack of interest by Americans in the opportunity opened up by the Rhodes scheme. He said Oxford ruled England, and that at least one-half of every Cabinet formed in the last one hundred years has been Oxford men.

Is a Divorced Woman a Widow?

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20.—Is a divorced woman a widow?

This was the puzzling problem which Judge Grimm in the Circuit Court yesterday admitted he could not solve offhand. He took the question under advisement. The point was raised by Henry A. Baker, attorney for Edwin Badaracco of Webster Groves.

Francois Gros left to his niece an estate valued at $30,000 to be held in trust for her children, with the proviso that if she became a widow the property was to become hers. She married Joseph Barrett. In 1908 she obtained a divorce and the restoration of her maiden name. Attorney Baker insisted that her divorce made her a widow and that the estate should be turned over to her.

Nazim Pasha Claims A Turkish Victory

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 20.—The position at the Tchataldja lines was described by Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander in chief, in a telegram to the Turkish War Office, timed 12.15 p.m. to-day, as follows:—"Reports received at this moment state that the enemy facing our left wing withdrew completely last night in the direction of the slopes of Pa-Paz Burgas. Our reconnoitering parties counted over 500 dead Bulgarians on the slopes in the environs of Tchataldja railroad station. From their epaulets it was established that the dead soldiers belonged to the First Infantry Regiment of Sofia. A number of rifles, caps and officers' swords were brought in by our troops.

"According to statements made by Bulgarian prisoners the enemy has been without food for three days and is retreating. The Bulgarians were unable to carry away all their wounded.

"The morale of our troops is very good."

A wireless despatch from the commander of the Turkish battleship Torgut Reis, timed 1.00 a.m., November 20, reports that a Turkish detachment operating from Derkos, aided by the fire of the ship's guns drove back the Bulgarians in the direction of Ormanli and Karaburun for a distance of ten miles.

Armistice Report Was Premature

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The report that an armistice hda been agreed to by the Bulgarians and Turks along the Tchataldja lines for the burial of the dead appears to have been unfounded.

Despatches from Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, show that the artillery duel continued through the day. The Turks claim successes against the Bulgarians but there is nothing to indicate that the Bulgarians have yet made and serious attempt to penetrate the lines. The battle may be ended at any moment by Turkey accepting the allies' terms for an armistice which are said to include the surrender of the Tchataldja lines, Adrianople, Durazzo and Scutari.

There is a possibility, however, that Turkey may decline to surrender Tchataldja. While her western army has been completely defeated, she still possesses, according to the correspondents at the front, a homogeneous army behind hte Tchataldja fortifications, largely composed of sons of her best fighting material from the Asiatic provinces, which has not yet been in action.

Moreover, the demoralization and disorganization which followed the Kirk-Kilisseh and Lule Burgas retreats appear to have been remedied and the army is now well supplied with food and ammunition.

The Doctors and Lloyd George

LONDON, Nov. 20.—At a representative meeting of the British Medical Association yesterday a resolution was adopted declaring that the latest proposals of Chancellor of the Exchequer, Lloyd George, in regard to the compensation of doctors under the Insurance Act were "unworkable and derogatory to the medical profession, and, consequently, the profession declines to undertake service under the Act and the regulations as at present instituted."

It was added, however, that the physicians were willing to confer with the Chancellor of the Exchequer with a view to settling the points in dispute.

H. E. FAIRFIELD

Sudden Death Of Well Known Local Resident

Some time between the hours of 6 and 7 o'clock last evening death came suddenly to Mr. James Stewart of this city. Deceased was employed about the Hastings House, and at a few minutes after 6 o'clock he went into the yard for the purpose of locking up the stable. This was the last seen of him alive. Shortly after, a party who had occasion to go into the yard, saw a man lying upon the ground near one of the outbuildings, and upon examination it was found to be Stewart. Further examination revealed the fact that he was dead. Heart disease was attributed as the cause of death. Deceased, who was 46 years of age, was born in this city, where he had resided all his life. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stewart, who died some years ago. "Jimmie," as he was familiarly called, was known to many about the city. He was of a jovial disposition and yesterday afternoon was in the best of spirits and made no complaint whatever of feeling unwell. Surviving is one brother, Andrew, of this city, and three sisters, Mrs. John Burke and Mrs. Geo. Elvins of this city, and Mrs. Jennie Conlin of Bellingham, Wash.

The Village Fair

The City Hall has been transformed into a vision of loveliness. You would not know it to be the same place. This is owing to the touch and presence of the ladies of St. Thomas' under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Quick "The Village Fair" is no misnomer. Directly you enter you pass into the village street with its picturesque hedgerows and village pump. Stretching on either hand are the various places of interest: "My Lady's Wardrobe", "The Inn," "My Workbox," "The Village Store," "Ye Golden Thimble," "Ye German Cafe," and "Kandie Kitchen." In the centre stands the "Village Greenhouse" stored with beautiful potted plants and cut flowers. At the end of the street, and facing it stands the "Village Playhouse," where a unique entertainment was presented last evening by a score or more of "Old Folks," in their quaint and picturesque costumes of the period they represent. "Grandmother Scuttle's Reception" was received with loud aclaims by the large audience which crowded the village street last evening. This afternoon and evening the "Village Fair" will be open to the public, and "Grandmother Scuttles" will receive again at 8.15 o'clock. The affair has thus far been a most brilliant success and reflects great credit on all the ladies of St. Thomas who have worked so unfatigably to make so pleas- and profitable.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

POLICEDOM QUIET

For the first time in some days the police cells were last night without an occupant, not even a vagrant being found.

UNINTENTIONALLY OMITTED

The names of Mr. and Mrs Herb Wilson were unintentionally omitted from among the invited guests at the Bachelors' Ball, of Tuesday evening.

MR. W. P. HUDSON DEAD

Mr. William P. Hudson, ex-M. P. P. for East Hastings, died in this city this afternoon. A biographical sketch of the deceased will appear to-morrow.

SUCCESSFUL OPERATION

Mrs. A. O. Snyder, Station Street, who underwent recently a very critical operation in Wellesley hospital, Toronto, is home again. The operation was successful and Mrs. Snyder is steadily regaining strength.

COLLIDED WITH CARS

Mr. John Curneyham of Toronto, a former Bellevillian was a few days ago in the Queen City the victim of a painful accident. Whilst riding a bicycle he came in collision with a street car and was thrown rather violently to the pavement. The result was he sustained a compound fracture to his right leg.

W. C. HAYES OBSEQUIES

Yesterday the remains of the late Mr. W. C. Hayes of this city were consigned to the tomb. At the family residence Front Street, Rev. H. S. Osborne, pastor of Bridge Street church, conducted the services. Interment took place at Belleville cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. D. E. Haight, W. Carter, S. Leavitt, J. Weese, W. Riggs and J. K. McCargar.

SYMPATHY EXTENDED

Mr. and Mrs. Gamble who have the store at the corner of Bleecker Ave. and Station Street have the sympathy of many friends in the sad news that has come to them from the West of th death of their son a young man of 22 years of age. He was in the employ of the C. P. R., running out of Lethbridge, Alta. The remains are now on the way home, accompanied by Mr. Nicholson, an uncle of the deceased. The particulars of his death have not been received.

INTERESTING LECTURE

The second of the series of lectures in the John Street Presbyterian Church was given last evening, by Prof. O. D. Skelton, of Queens College, whose subject was, "Can War be ended?" The subject was well handled, the speaker beginning with the warlike attitude of ancient days, and gradually moderating to the present age, when the commercial relations between the nations of the earth render contests n expensive matter in more ways than one. It was an exhaustive subject, packed with rich information, and well worth listening to. Mr. D. V. Sinclair acted as chairman of the occasion, speaking in hearty commendation of the subject and moreover in which it was handled. Mr. Thomas Ritchie in moving a vote of thanks to the speaker, spoke along the same line, Rev. Mr. Drumm seconding with like words. There were quite a number present all of whom enjoyed the lecture immensely.

SEIZURE OF LIQUOR

Yesterday afternoon Mr. D. Morrison of Toronto, who is Provincial Inspector under the liquor license department, in company with two assistants and License Inspector, Mr. R. Arnott of this city, visited Point Ann. As a result of the visit a large quantity of liquor was confiscated and brought to the city and three parties all of whom are foreigners, were charged with keeping liquor for barter or sale without having the necessary license. Point Ann is situated in the Township of Thurlow, which is under local option. This morning the three foreigners named Joseph Gage, Valasa Cirquanoque and Shandy Vasco were summoned up before Magistrate Masson charged with the offence of selling or bartering liquor without a license. As the case was not in a position to be gone on with, it was enlarged until Tuesday next 26th inst. Mr. Anderson represented the prosecution and Mr. Carnew for the accused.

Student Parades Barred

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—Special—Student demonstrations or processions are to be barred in Montreal, and political demonstrations more strictly regulated by the terms of a new civic bylaw, which is being prepared by Mr. Rene Bauset, Assistant City Clerk, at the instance of the Legislative Committee of the City Council. Religious and national bodies will alone be granted permission to parade through the streets, but even the permission of a kindly-disposed chief of police will not avail for the students who desire to celebrate anything from a theatre night parade to a football victory.

Bar Divorced Man From English Church

ALBANY, N.Y., Nov. 20.—Special—By resolution the Episcopal Diocese of Albany at today's session of the annual convention endorsed the action of the convention's standing committee in refusing to consent to the consecration of Rev. Dr. H. B. Silver of Topeka, Kans., the newly elected Bishop of Kansas, because he is a divorced man.

When a clergyman is elected to the Bishopric in the Episcopal Church his election has to be confirmed by the other dioceses of the country. The standing committee refused to consent to confirm Dr. Silver's election.

DON'T BE BALD

Nearly Anyone May Secure a Splendid Growth of Hair.

We have a remedy that has a record of retarding baldness and promoting hair growth in 93 out of every 100 cases where used according to directions for a reasonable length of time. That may seem like a strong statement. It is and we mean it to be, and no one should doubt it until they have put our claims to an actual test.

We are so certain Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will eradicate dandruff, act to prevent baldness, stimulate the scalp and hair roots, arrest premature loss of hair and promote hair growth, that we personally give our positive guarantee to refund every penny paid us for it in every instance where it does not give entire satisfaction to the user.

Rexall "93" Hair Tinic is as pleasant to use as clear spring water. It is delightfully perfumed, and does not grease or gum the hair. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. With our guarantee back of it, you certainly take no risk. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. J. S. McKeown.

Stole Irish Whiskey

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—Special—Charles Brady, fireman, broke into the wine cellar of the Mount Temple, of the Canadian Pacific Steamship line and stole several bottles of Irish whiskey. He was arrested today by special Detective Callow and brought before the magistrate, when he pleaded guilty to the theft, and was given the maximum penalty of 12 weeks in jail. The officials of the steamship company were authorized to deduct from his wages the price of the liquor.

Bryan To Be Secretary of State

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—William J. Bryan will be Secretary of State in the Cabinet of Woodrow Wilson, providing he accepts. It was learned last night, on authority that can hardly be questioned, that the premier post in the Wilson Administration has been offered to the Nebraskan and that he probably will accept. Furthermore, Mr. Byran apparently will be one of Mr. Wilson's chief advisers in selecting the new Cabinet.

The tender to Mr. Bryan of the portfolio of State is the Cabinet matter that has been formally settled up to this time.

Mr. Bryan's influence in the next Administration can no longer be minimized. Whether for weal or woe the President-elect has made acknowledgements to the leader of the so-called Progressive wing of the Democracy by inviting him to sit at his right at the council table and to advise with him in forming a Cabinet.

That is the significance that is now attached to Mr. Bryan's forthcoming visit to Bermuda where President-elect Wilson is now reposing. Mr. Bryan has been in Washington for more than a week. He has conferred with many of the party leaders, and to some of them has appeared in a concillatory attitude.

Russian Heir Is Again Ill

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The Berlin Surgeon, Professor Israels, has been summoned to Tzarskoe-Selo, where Dr. Federoff has been in attendance since the Russian Imperial family returned from Spala says a despatch to the Daily Mail from St. Petersburg.

The curcumstances point according to the correspondent to be continued gravity of the illness of the young Crown Prince.

The Court doctors admit that it is a serious surgical case.

Bulgarians Lose 50,000

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Reviewing the campaign, the Sofia correspondent of the Times estimates that 50,000 men have succumbed to wounds or disease, that is, about one in forty of the whole male population of Bulgaria.

Arrest 173 For Misuse of Mails

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Acting under direction of Postmaster General Hitchcock, post office inspectors and United States marshalls in 72 leading cities of the country began today practically simultaneous raids for the arrest of 173 persons charged with using the mails to promote criminal practices or the sale of drugs and instruments used for illegal purposes.

The arrests are made for misuse of the mails, each case being based on the use of the mails to solicit business or dispose of wares.

This concerted official action covered the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the lakes to the gulf. Many of the persons to be arrested are prominent, commercially and socially, in their communities

Some are leading physicians, others are rich and influential business men; yet others are men who live by their wits and are comparatively little known without their own small coterie of associates; and one is a Chinaman, who is alleged to have practiced his calling upon women of his own race and upon those of the lower strata of society.

Trunk Robbed While He Slept

HAMILTON, Nov. 20.—Amatio Storchoff, a foreigner residing at 212 Sherman avenue north, reported to the police this morning that $400 in bills had ben stolen from his trunk between the hours of 11 o'clock last night and 3 o'clock this morning. With tears streaming down his cheeks, Storchoff sobbed to the detectives that before he retired at 11 o'clock, he counted his money and placed it in his trunk. Shortly before midnight he was awakened by a noise in the room but he attributed it to rats and went to sleep gain. The noise kept prying on his mind, however, and at last at 3 o'clock in the morning he arose from his bed and switched on the light. The trunk which had ben locked was wide open and a number of pieces of wearing apparel, which had been in it, were scattered about the floor. It took but a moment for Storchoff to discover that his $400 was missing, and summoning the boarding house boss, he reported his loss. This morning to the detectives, the man stated that two foreigners, who were in the house, noticed him putting the money in the trunk. Sergeant Gibbs and Constable Brady were detailed to investigate, but the money was not found. The money was all in Canadian $10 bills, and the owner was planning to send it back to his mother in the Old Country on Thursday. The police are working on the case, but so far no arrests have been made.

Beef Carcass Fell Two Men Injured

BRAMPTON, Ont., Nov. 20.—While engaged in raising a beef with chain and windlass on their farm at Brittania, a few miles from Brampton, yesterday, Thellar Johnston and his son Charles met with an odd accident.

The chain attached to the carcass gave way and the beef fell on the two men, who were directly beneath it.

The elder man had his left hip fractured; the son several ribs broken, with serious internal injuries. He is still unconscious.

Dr. Brydon of Brampton was summoned, with Dr. Sutton of Cooksville, and everything possible was done for the injured men.

Killed By False Tooth

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 20.—Special—Prince Viasamsky, First Secretary of the Russian Embassy at London since last summer, died at a hospital here today as the result of swallowing the small gold plate of a false tooth. The plate cut the intestines severely, and a surgical operation which was performed, was unsuccessful.

Pipe Burned Whiskers

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y., Nov. 20.—Special—A spark from the pipe of John E. Gillen, a farmer, 80 years old, who was smoking today in the yard of his home at Greenville, near here, ignited his long whiskers. The flames spread to his clothing and he was burned to death.

Six Floors Collapsed

SASKATOON, Nov. 20.—Special—Four panels out of each of the six floors of the new Angus McMillan block on Third Avenue crashed to the basement this morning, carrying with them nearly 1,000 pounds of concrete, steel and iron. The accident took place at 6.50, just ten minutes before forty men would have been at work on the very four panels which came down.

It is supposed that some of the supports were burned away as the result of a contact with the salamanders which have been used for the past month to heat the building.

THE NEW FISH HATCHERIES

The Department of Marine and Fisheries is pushing vigorously its work of encouraging fish culture throughout the country. At the end of this year the Department will have completed seven additional hatcheries which will bring the total number in operation up to fifty-eight. There are in addition two ponds which might be ranked as hatcheries. One is a bass pond established near the Bay of Quinte. Bass cannot be hatched in the ordinary mechanical hatchery. They are nesting fishes and have to be retained in ponds, where they hatch out naturally. This fall 5,000 were distributed to the different waters. The other pond is one near St. John, N.B., for retaining parent salmon whose egges are sent to the different hatcheries in the Maritime Provinces for incubation.

As many hatcheries as needed are being built, care being taken to build them where they will yield the best results. Unless a sufficient quantity of eggs can be collected each season for the hatchery, its beneficial results are minimized.

Before providing the hatchery the Department must ascertain that it be able either in the waters in the vicinity of the hatchery or in more remote waters to find a supply of eggs to fill the hatchery and thus build up and develop the fisheries of that and contiguous localities.

The activities of the department are chiefly directed toward the increase of commercial fishes. The rearing of game fish, though important, is not receiving as much attention as it is felt that first consideration must be given to the fisheries in which men expect to make their livelihood and on which the general public rely more and more for food.

However the federal Department of Fisheries hopes that if no change takes place in jurisdiction that the different provinces will see fit to take up the hatching of game fish. It is felt that in Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia, as far as angling is concerned, conditions there for game fishing are unexcelled.

THE OPENING OF PARLIAMENT

With the speech from the throne the wheels of Parliamentary work at Ottawa are once more set in motion, and despite the attempts of Opposition journalism to belittle and misrepresent the efforts of our ministerial heads to frame, in private session, such measures as will be for the progress of our country, the confidence of the Dominion's population at large has been, while expectant, in no sense shaken by the broadcast references to a "tottering government." True to his convictions, Premier Borden has stood for harmony with the Mother Country, while measures of a more local nature have been gradually unfolding as the needs required, and, now that the hour for a face to face combat in the interest of justice and prosperity is at hand, our people may look for one of the most advanced and aggressive sessions the country has ever known. In the main our people have been patient; let them now follow closely the measure taken up, and as, one by one, the country's needs are met, it is to be hoped the right will prevail, and the interests of today the most prosperous nation upon God's footstool, including the Empire as a whole, will be maintained to the highest degree. And we have confidence that it will be thus.

THE HOCHELAGA ELECTION

The result of the Hochelaga election Tuesday proved conclusively that, like other sections of the country, the voters of that riding are not to be turned from their confidence in a bona fide effort on the part of the Borden Government to stand for progressive measures on the whole, and particularly a sound and appreciative policy toward the Mother Country upon the naval question. The returns of the election were not only a compliment to the popularity of Mr. Coderre, leading as he did his opponent by 2,200, a fraction over two to one. It is not to be wondered that the Liberal party, following a thorough canvass of the riding refrained from entering a man for the race, knowing the futility of the effort. The temerity of Mr. Doyon, in attempting to measure up to a man of Mr. Coderre's calibre, backed by an unblemished ministry, should prove a lesson for the future, not only personally, but to his following in general. While the results were a foregone conclusion, congratulations are, nevertheless, extended to the Hon. gentleman upon his magnificent victory, and to the Borden Government upon the maintenance of a policy that, as it will develop during the now opening session of Parliament, must prove of the greatest benefit to the greatest number—i.e., the country at large.

The Daughters of the Empire of Galt have suggested that the opening bars of the National Anthem be played at the beginning of public entertainments instead of at the conclusion, as at present, in order to avoid the unseemly scramble for the door which accompanies the strains of God Save the King. The harmony will doubtless be on the plane of a local male quartette that attempted at a concert this week to sing a selection suited only to a soloist. The Witness is not to be taken quite so literally as all this. There are some who think the Senate is all right. They are for the most part persons who belong to it or who aspire to belong.—Toronto Star.

Which of the above trio are the most anxious for a seat in the Canadian Senate. Speak right up!

Berlin Learns Austria-Servia Case Serious

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—The Austro-Servian situation took a still more alarming turn today as the result of the practical usurpation of governmental authority in Servia by army officers.

Even questions of foreign policy are being settled, it is stated in a special from Belgrade to the "Vossische Gazette," by an army officers' organization familiarly known as the "Black Hand."

This group is highly jingoistic in its attitude, it is said, and, believing themselves backed by Russia, its members would welcome a struggle with Austria.

As an illustration of the civil authorities' helplessness, the "Vossische Gazette's" correspondent asserts that the military commander at Presrend has deliberately disobeyed the order from Belgrade to release the Austrian consul, M. Prochaska, said to have been taken prisoner there, and even reported to have been wounded, when the town was captured by the Servians.

The Prochaska incident alone threatens serious trouble, not to speak of Austria's and Servia's clashing territorial ambitions, it is said in a despatch from Vienna today.

Italy For a Free Albania

ROME, Nov. 19.—Public opinion in Italy with regard to the Austro-Servian difficulty is about equally divided. There is a strong sentiment which favors the Balkan State, while there is also a noticeable leaning toward the defense of Albania against Servian aspirations.

Among Italians generally distrust is apparent regarding Austria's policy but the opinion in official circles is that it would be to Italy's interest if the slogan "Albania for the Albanians" should be put into effect, and that if the balance in the Adriatic is not to be disturbed Italy would do well to proceed in agreement with Austria. It is pointed out that Austria is not adventurously inclined, and will content herself with equitable solutions, acceptable to Servia, so far as a commercial outlet to the Ariatic is concerned.

Italy, however, has not engaged herself to uphold Austria's pretensions to economic privileges and will defend, if necessary, Servia's economic liberty.

As for Albania, Italy will see that that country is really independent and does not become a mere vassal of Austria.

45,000 Chinese Start

LONDON, Nov. 19.—A movement of Chinese troops towards Mongolia, which the Chinese accuse Russia of having tried to seize, was begun today. Forty-five thousand troops belonging to the northern army are under orders to proceed to the Mongolian frontier. Several battalions entrained today for Kalgan, half of which is Chinese, half Monogol.

The trouble that may result in serious complications between Russia and China started at Urga, in Mongolia, where a declaration of independence was made after the convention, signed by representatives of Russia and Mongolia.

A mass meeting of 110 Mongol princes was held in Pekin yesterday which repudiated the declaration and called upon President Yuan Shi Kai to afford military protection to those Mongolians willing to join the Chinese republic.

The newspapers are already making appeals for war contributions, the provisional assembly and the military council are backing up the president, and all China is astir with political and military activity.

Taking Liquor From Wet To Dry Town

LINDSAY, Nov. 19.—Two young men, carrying a valise loaded with ammunition for the thirsty ones in Haliburton, were held up by License Inspector Thornbury on Saturday afternoon while on their way up William street, to take the evening train for this local option county. This took place, about two o'clock p. m.

The inspector was taking a walk up Kent street when he noticed the travellers carrying a large valise by aid of a stick pushed through the handles. From the amount of exertion the men displayed, the protecter of the law considered there was more than wearing material therein. The men turned north on William street, and when nearing Glenleg street, Mr. Thornbury intercepted their progress, demanding a look into the telescope, which they granted. He found it filled with bottles of liquor and as one of the young men who purchased the goods was under age, and admitted paying for a portion of the contents, the inspector held the purchase in abeyance until he receives instructions from the Liquor License Department in Toronto how to act and the proper proceedings to take.

Five-Year-Old Hero

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—Five-year-old Fred Dolan carried a four-months old child down two flights of smoke filled and flame-lighted stairs to safety last night in a fire in a lodging house in the Charlestown district which cost one man his life and caused probably fatal injuries to two other persons. Half a dozen children were dropped out of the windows on the first and second floors to the arms of people below. None was injured. The dead man is Patrick Hawes, 45 years of age, of Halifax, N. S. Morris Powers, 18 years, son of the proprietor of the lodging house and Ellen Burg, aged 23, a lodger, were the seriously injured. Little hope for their recovery is held at the Relief hospital, where they were taken. The cause of the fire is unknown. The building was destroyed but with small monetary loss.

Telltale Overalls Had Human Blood

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—That the blood spots on the overalls alleged to have belonged to Charles Gibson, now on trial for the murder of Joseph Rosenthal, were spots of human blood, was the evidence given by Dr. Duncan Graham before Chief Justice Mulock yesterday afternoon. The statement caused a bit of sensation, as the result of the analysis of the stains was not disclosed at the inquest.

Dr. Graham stated that he had made tests of stains on the overalls and overcoat worn by the accused, and also of a stain on the handle of the hammer which has figured in the case and with which it is supposed that Rosenthal and Eli Dunkelman, who lay unconscious in the hospital for several days after the murder was discovered, were struck down.

Another flurry of excitement was caused when the name of Walter Duncan was called three times to enter the witness box, but with no response from the ex-inspector of detectives. He was wanted in connections with admissions alleged to have been made by the prisoner after his arrest.

Defense Counsel Mr. Aubrey Bond proferred the suggestion to his lordship that as Mr. Duncan had been subpoenaed by the defence, and had been told that he would not be required until Wednesday, he had concluded that it was not imperative that he should be present.

"That does not excuse him from obeying a summons," said his lordship, who forthwith issued a bench warrant.

The ex-inspector put in an appearance at 5.30, just as the court was rising. Assistant Crown Prosecutor Thurston said that Mr. Duncan was ready to go into the witness box.

"I can't help it now," declared the counsel. "He'll have to come again tomorrow."

All Ready For The Opening

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—At a meeting of the Cabinet this afternoon the final draft will be made of the speech from the throne, which will be read by His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught at the formal opening of Parliament tomorrow.

The speech will as usual refer to the continued prosperity, after which the most important matters in connection with which the government proposes to introduce legislation this session will be dealt with in the order of their importance.

First, of course, will be the Naval matter.

Reference will doubtless be made to the visit of Premier Borden and his colleagues to London to confer with the admiralty, and it will be intimated that acting on the strength of information received in London a preliminary step in the direction of giving necessary aid to the Motherland will be taken, the details to be announced by the Premier at a later date.

The speech will likewise contain the formal announcement of the government's intention to introduce bills to amend the Bank Act; to provide for the appointment of a permanent tariff commission; to provide federal assistance for highways; to amend the Railway Act; and to ratify the trade agreement between Canada and the West Indies arrived at last spring.

HIDDEN REPUBLIC AND ITS PEOPLE

Andora, a Self-Governing State Tucked Away in Obscure Valley

Hidden in a valley of the Pyrennes between France and Spain is the tiny Republic of Andora, concerning which Mr. Lewis G. O'Leary has written a book recording what he saw and found out in the course of a visit there. In size Andora is about one quarter that of Greater London—about 175 square miles to be exact—and here, for eleven centuries, a population of never over 6,000 hardy mountaineers have struggled to wrest a livelihood from the sterile soil, sheltered from the winter storms by the lofty Pyrennes, which rise so close above their valley, protected from outside interference by their very poverty, and every day thanking God that they were Andorrans and were free.

But, whence came the Andorrans?

Whence Came They?

When the Moors were extending their conquests into Europe a band of Catalonian peasants (Catalonia is a northern province of Spain), fled up the Segre River and followed its tributary, the Nalira, right into the heart of the mountains. Even there they were not safe from the Moslem invaders, and they appealed for help to Charlemagne. He drove the Moors away southward, but they soon returned. Charlemagne's son, whom the Andorrans honor as "Louis, the Pious," came to their assistance, forced the Moors to seek refuge among the mountains, and overwhelmingly defeated them right at the site of the tiny capital "Andorra of the Valley (la Vella)." Louis was the first ruler to recognize the valley settlement as a self-governing political unit and he fixed the natural barrier of gorge and mountain as boundaries which have remained so to this day. He settled some of his own soldiers there, made the inhabitants of the valley free of every tax or impost, and placed the little state under the protection of one of his knights whom he created Count of Urgel, the district from which the Andorrans had originally emigrated.

Joint Suzerainty

The history of Andorra for several centuries is wrapped up in a maze of mediaeval feudal intrigue in which church and state are at conflict. In 1278 an agreement was arrived at by all interested by which representatives of the Bishop of Urgel and the Count of Foix (his rival claimant) were to administer justice in the valley in alternate years. Through various changes in succession the claims of the Seigneury of Foix (a French province) became vested in the head of the French Government, so that the so-called "co-princes" of Andorra now are the president of the French Republic and the bishops of Urgel.

The term "republic" as applied to Andorra, can therefore, hardly be considered strictly correct. Mr. O'Leary defines it as "a lonely survival of mediaeval feudalism." It is a self-governing state, though not a sovereign state. France receives a biennial tribute of $394; the Bishop of Urgel, $180; in addition to this at Christmas time the bishop receives from each of the six parishes, two fine hams, two choice cheeses and two fat capons.

The direct influence of the joint protectorate is exercised through two deputies. The French deputy is appointed for life; the other is always a native Andorran and is named for a term of three years. Their duties deal with the administration of justice, chiefly civil cases, and the decisions in all cases must be in harmony with the customs and usages of the valley. Neither France nor Spain has ever attempted to make laws for Andorra.

The Andorrans are described as a silent people. In appearance they are swarthy, short of stature, having sloping shoulders and long muscular arms. They are hard and untiring workers, and although no one in the valley is very rich, there is no excessive poverty. Drunkenness and unchastity are said to be unknown vices among them. In religion they are all Roman Catholics.

OLD AGE A DISEASE!

Speculation on Preserving Body From Unfriendly Bacteria

Many conjectures have followed Metchnikoff's fantastic speculation that old age is merely a disease, due to the invasion of a bacillus, and that if this unfriendly microorganism could but be extirpated life might be prolonged, if not indefinitely, then at least considerably. Most physiologists reject any such idea, and believe that living cells, living tissues and living organs having done their work, having undergone, or having effected, a certain number of transformations, can do no more; and, in a word, that death is a function of life. Some have suggested, however, that if the body could be sterilized of its bacteria, as Cohendy, a French biologist, has sterilized chicks, and could be preserved from their advances, and if, furthermore, the processes of life could be slowed, then it might be possible to preserve an individual for some years in a state of suspended animation. The idea is, of course, as old as Indian legend, and depends for its practical realization on methods which we do not at present possess of sterilizing and preserving the body as well as of restoring its activities at will. Moreover, the prospect of being sterilized and sealed up in paraffin wax (for example) till year 3000 A.D., would not, except as a scientific experiment, appeal very strongly to those who have business interests or social interests in the year 1912 besides the risk.

But the possibility of making the experiment is recalled by some investigations mentioned in a lecture by Dr. Marie Phisalix to the Paris Museum of Natural History on the poisons of the toad. One of these poisons seems to be connected, according to Mme. Phisalix, with the power of abstaining from food for long periods of time, a power which is certainly possessed by the toad, and which is associated with legends of the discovery of toads inclosed in trees or even blocks of stones. Several other traditions concerning the toad were shown by the lecturer to have some foundation. For example, the "poison" in the skin glands of the toad is said to have the same effect as digitalis—that is to say, it is, in suitable doses, a heart tonic. The similar secretion in the salamander has an action like that of strychnine. In both these creatures there are two kinds of poisons—the poison of the mucous glands, which forms in some species of toads a drug more powerful to cause sneezing than any known, and that of the large glands of the back, or poison glands properly so-called. The "toad poison" from these, if administered to cats or dogs in sufficient quantity, ness. The salamander poison is more dangerous and produces convulsions and death. Mme. Phisalix says that the presence of these poisons in the animals secreting them confers immunity against snake bite.

GRAND TRUNK SYSTEM NEWS ITEMS

Mr. Collingwood Schreiber, government advisory engineer, accompanied by Mr. B. B. Kelliher, chief engineer of the Grand Trunk Pacific, is making a tour to the end of steel on the Grand Trunk Pacific from Edmonton. Mr. Schreiber expressed himself very strongly when interviewed with regard to the effect upon railroad construction of the I.W.W. agitators. "I think that the leaders of this organization," he declared, "should be excluded from the Dominion and legislation is required to keep them out. They are inflicting serious injury upon Canadian industrial conditions. A few years ago they compelled the British Columbia smelters to close down and the smelting industry was for the time being transferred to Spokane. Their activities tend to produce similar results today. The agitators don't work themselves. They are quite useless to the country. One of the most fluent speakers I met at the coast was a delicate-looking man with hands like a girl's. He was a good talker but it was plain that he was not a working man."

Broker Asks $153,000

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 20.—Special—Arising out of the recent sale of mines and timber limits at Revelstoke the Yale-Columbia Saw Mills there has opened one of the biggest claims for commission ever heard of in provincial courts. Edmond Picard, a Parisian broker, claims $153,000 commission on the sale, being at the rate of nine per cent., or an alternative of $1,105,000 being the amount of the sale price, less $585,000, the figure at which he held an option on the property immediately before its sale to the Dominion Saw Mills.

HOCKEY.

BRANTFORD, Nov. 20.—Brantford will be well represented in the O.H.A. this year with a strong junior and intermediate team. James Hanley will manage the juniors, and William Ness the intermediates. Brantford's new rink, with three floors of ice, will be completed early in December.

Ice is expected at the Toronto Arena by Saturday. The work of laying the pipes commenced on Friday, but progress was so slow that it was decided to work night and day until the twelve miles of piping is laid. There are 20 men on the job, and the superintendent says that the plant will be ready to freeze ice by Saturday.

New York Tribune—Hockey practice began at Columbia University yesterday when a squad of 35 candidates reported to Tom Howard, the old Yale coach, for the first workout of the season. The drill was held on the handball courts in the gymnasium and was confined almost entirely to shooting the puck across the cement floor.

KINGSTON, Nov. 20.—Queen's Intercollegiate hockey team will be coached this winter by Dr. J. J. Harty and George Richardson. A championship seven is promised by these two former Queen's stars.

The Frontenac hockey team, which came so near the senior O.H.A. championship last year, will have a strong lineup this season. It has lost "Bouncer" Brouse, its fast rover, but there's lots of new material. Leo Williams, who has returned from Toronto, will likely play goal. Hyland and Nicholson are on hand for the defence, while Millan, Hunt, Crawford, Reid, Smith (Orillia), and Doe (New Glasgow) are among the eligibles for the forward line.

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—At the weekly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Eaton A.A., the question of the new rules of the O.H.A. affecting their entry was mentioned by the secretary-treasurer, Mr. W. J. Smith. The board decided to withdraw their entry and give their support to the House League, which is composed of about 24 teams.

The president congratulated the secretary on the stand he had taken at the O.H.A. meeting, the point he had made re splitting up the association under different names being especially mentioned. The institution was instituted solely for the benefit and recreation of the employes, and the board felt that all their efforts should be directed more to the House League in future.

COBALT, Nov. 20.—The Cobalt District Amateur Hockey Association held its annual meeting recently. The retiring president, Mr. R. F. Kellock, in reviewing the past season, noted the fact that the association had carried out last season's schedule of twenty games without a postponement or a protest.

Only minor changes were made in the constitution and rules, which are practically those of the O.H.A.

The association is composed of clubs representing the mines of the district and therefore may be said to be representing commercial organizations, and these differ from the organizations against which this year's O.H.A. regulation is directed in that each mine represented is practically a community or town by itself with its own townsite, system of government, etc. With the association's strict residence rule and the absence of advertising value to the mine's product, the difference between these is more pronounced.

With a large covered rink in the town of Cobalt, where all the matches are played, and commodious, well-cushioned and electrically-lighted open-air rinks at each mine in the association, hockey in Cobalt serves its purpose as a healthful recreation for hundreds of mine employes, and as a clean, exciting spectacle and entertainment for the community.

The application of clubs representing the towns of New Liskeard and Haileybury to enter the league were referred to the executive committee for further consideration.

The officers for the association for the coming year are: Past president, Mr. R. F. Kellock; president, Mr. G. Lowe (McKinley-Darragh); vice-president, Mr. G. Field (Nipissing Mine); secretary, Mr. C. F. Evans (O'Brien Mine); treasurer, Mr. J. Anderson (Cobalt Lake Mines).

GENERAL SPORTS.

The stadium motordrome at Newark, where eight persons were killed and a number injured during a race meeting last summer, will be sold at a sheriff's sale next Monday to satisfy a claim of $10,696.20 held by the carpenters who built the stadium for the Eastern Motor Racing Association.

Owing to the accident, which put a stop to racing at the place, the plant has been a financial failure. In addition there are a number of civil suits pending against the association as a result of the accident. The stadium was built at a cost of about $30,000.

SASKATOON, Nov. 20.—The contracts have been let for the new rink of the Saskatoon Curling Club, which, taking into consideration the amount of ice upon which play can take place, is the largest rink in the world. No less than eleven sheets of ice will be provided for and the building will cover an area of 16,000 square feet. This provides even more ice than the new Granite Curling rink in Winnipeg, which is in process of construction at the present time, but which is only 150 feet wide. The biggest curling rink in Regina has only nine sheets of ice, the Moose Jaw rink ten, but Saskatoon's will eclipse them all with eleven sheets.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—At the head of the 1912 record-breakers is George Goulding the great walker of Toronto. He hung up twelve new world's marks in this country this year. Billy Kramer, the cross-country champion of Long Island Athletic Club, comes next with six new American figures to his credit.

But while Goulding and Kramer lead in the number of new marks, the feats accomplished by James Edward Meredith of Mercersburg Academy; George Horine of the University of California, and M. S. Wright of Dartmouth University stood out as the best. Meredith hung up a new world's mark for the classic half-mile event; Horine established new world's figures for the running high jump, and Wright made a new world's mark in the pole vault.

The athlete who made the most spectacular and phenomenal records was James Thorpe of Carlisle Indian school. He hung up new marks for the all-around championship of America and the Pentathlon and Decathlon, the two all-round contests of the Olympic games.

Water as Insanity Cure

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—The water cure, the most advanced method of treating mental ills, has been adopted in the insane hospitals of Massachusetts as a humane and scientific substitute for the old-time straightjackets, straps and similar means of restraint in the case of violent or, as the hospital phrase goes "highly disturbed," patients.

Dr. H. S. Frost, superintendent of the Boston Insane Hospital, said tonight:

"We find that there is no longer any need of physical restraint, even in the most violent cases, for the patient does not fear the treatment. On the contrary, he is glad to enter the bath, where he remain for hours under the soothing influence of the warm water in which he is submerged.

"Nurses are in constant attention to regulate the temperature of the water, to take the pulse and temperature of the sufferer, and to minster to his needs. Meals are served to the bathers. The long baths have no debilitating effect, for additional nourishment renders this impossible. Moreover, the relief of nerve depression, which the uniformly increased temperature of the water accomplishes, is of itself stimulating.

"We do not mean to say that all forms of insanity are curable by this means, but the general success has been so great that thousands of patients who were formerly tied hand and foot, are now able to do sufficient work to support themselves and to help in the support of others."

A Parlor Car General

PARIS, Nov. 19.—A picture of the state of disorganization in the Turkish army is drawn by the war correspondent of the Matin at Hademkeui, the Turkish headquarters of the lines of Tchataldja. He says:

"Col. Lehmann, a German officer who has just taken over command of the Turkish artillery, declares that he did not find a single gun in place. The Turks have plenty of guns and ammunition. They have German cannon and also the French cannon taken from the Servians before hostilities began. Three of the French guns were seen lying in the mud at the Hademkeui railroad depot. They were eaten up with rust, and consequently useless.

"The total of the Turkish forces is estimated at 150,000 men, but there is a complete lack of energy among the commanders, and organization of any sort is absent. The commander-in-chief does not leave his parlor car, where he will not receive anybody. The staff officers of the Turkish army themselves can see him only after 10 o'clock in the morning."

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—In sympathy with the weakness in the Winnipeg market yesterday, cables on Manitoba spring wheat came weak today at a decline of 6d to 7½d. The demand from foreign buyers was fair, but the volume of business done was much smaller. There was some enquiry for oats, but the prices bid were out of line. The local trade in coarse grains continues fair, and the tone of the market was about steady. Demand for flour and millfeed continues good. Butter is fairly active and firm. It is reported that sales of 10,000 packages of New Zealand butter have been made to local buyers for delivery in January at 30½c to 30¾c here. Cheese continues quiet and easy. Eggs firm. Provisions steady.

CATTLE MARKET.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market, the offerings this morning were 1300 cattle, 1700 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 400 calves. A weaker feeling prevailed in the market for cattle, and prices declined on account of the fact that the supply was far in excess of the requirements, and this, coupled with the warmer weather, tended to depress trade, as buyers generally were not disposed to take hold freely, even at the reduction; consequently trade thruout was slow, and quite a few were left over unsold. There were no really choice steers on the market, and the top price realized for the best grade was $5.50, while lower grades sold from that down to $2.50, and cows brought from $3 to $4.50, and bulls from $2.50 to $3.50 per 100 pounds.

A feature in the small meat trade was the stronger feeling in the market for sheep, and prices advanced 25c per 100 pounds under a good demand, and sales of ewes were made at $4.25 to $4.50 per 100 pounds.

Lambs were firm at the advance noted on Monday, and trading was active, at $6.20 to $6.50 per 100 pounds. Hogs were unchanged, prices being firm under a good demand and small supplies. Selected lots sold at from $8.75 to $9 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars. Calves were in good demand, at from $2 to $12 each, as to size and quality.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Nov. 20.—Cattle—Receipts, 250 head; fairly active and steady.

Veals—Receipts, 75 head; active and 25c higher, at $4 to $11.

Hogs—Receipts, 4000 head; active and steady to 10c higher; heavy and mixed, $8 to $8.10; yorkers, $7.90 to $8.10; pigs, $7.90 to $8; roughs, $7 to $7.25; stags, $6 to $6.75; dairies, $7.95 to $8.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 6000 head; sheep slow and steady; lambs active and 5c higher; lambs, $4.50 to $7.40; yearlings, $5 to $5.50; wethers, $4.50 to $4.75; ewes, $2 to $4; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.25.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Cattle—Receipts, 7,000; market steady. Beeves, $5.25 to $10.55; Texas steers, $4.30 to $5.60; western steers, $5.50 to $9; stockers and feeders, $4.15 to $7.25; cows and heifers, $2.75 to $7.40; calves, $6.50 to $9.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 36,000; market steady; light, $7.40 to $7.90; mixed, $7.45 to $7.95; heavy, $7.45 to $7.96; rough, $7.40 to $7.60; pigs, $5.25 to $7.40; bulk of sales, $7.70 to $7.90.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 45,000; market 10c lower; native, $3.50 to $4.50; western, $3.75 to $4.50; yearlings, $4.60 to $5.90; lambs, native, $5.50 to $7.50; western, $5.65 to $7.45.

County Pupils Barred.

Brantford, Nov. 21—Owing to failure in securing an adjustment of the claim of $6,000 against the county for the attendance of county pupils at the Collegiate Institute the trustees have decided that after January 1 no county pupils will be admitted at the institute. The decision is the result of a long-standing dispute between the city and county authorities.

SWEPT BY TIDAL WAVE

Jamaica Suffers From Terrible Flood and Hurricane.

Forty-Two Lives Are Reported Lost at Montego Bay and Communication With Kingston Is Cut Off,—Wind Blew at a Hundred Miles an Hour, Causing Great Property Damage—Soldiers Go to Relief.

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 21.—The western end of the Island of Jamaica has been devastated by a hurricane, lasting five days. A great tidal wave has swept over both the north and south coasts, practically wiping out the towns of Savanna la Mar and Lucea, both places of considerable importance.

Forty-two people were killed by the hurricane in Montego Bay, according to a report brought by a fruit vessel which arrived at Port Antonio early yesterday.

All the coast roads have been wrecked along the southwestern coast and much damage has been done. Communication between Kingston and the centre of destruction is not likely to be resumed for a week.

The latest reports indicate that the tidal wave swept over Savanna la Mar and adjacent villages for a quarter of a mile inland. The effects of the hurricane extended along the coast eastward to Black River, about twenty-five miles from Savanna la Mar, where the residential quarter was wrecked.

Floods which accompanied the storm caused immense damage, a hundred houses being blown down. Telegraphic communication is still suspended.

The governor of Jamaica has left on a special train, accompanied by a detachment of artillerymen, who have taken with them three hundred tents and foodstuffs, as in certain sections the people are homeless and destitute.

The gale began on Nov. 15 and continued in increasing fury for several days. Vessels arriving in port reported that the wind was blowing over one hundred miles an hour.

Lucea is a small town of two thousand inhabitants on an inlet on the northwest coast of Jamaica, while Savanna la Mar is a seaport with the same number of inhabitants on the southwest coast, almost directly opposite on the other side of the island.

Labor Radicals Defeated.

Rochester, Nov. 21.—After a debate that lasted all day, members of the radical wing of the American Federation of Labor were defeated by a vote of nearly two to one in their attempt to have the federation adopt the principle of industrial unionism in place of its policy of trade autonomy. Two hundred and forty-nine delegates voted against the minority report of the committee on education, which favored the principle of industrial unionism and 142 voted in its favor.

The voting strength of the convention, based on membership it represented, went 10,983 against the minority report and 5,929 for it.

After the minority report had been defeated the majority report in favor of continuance of trade autonomy was adopted by acclamation.

The debate preceding the vote is said by veteran labor men to have been one of the most spirited that ever took place in a federation convention.

Taken at His Word.

When Rossetti was a student of art he one day happened to go with some fellow students to the east end of London. There at a wharfside inn he saw an immense canvas on the barroom wall. After laughing at it for some time and thus provoking the innkeeper's wrath the following conversation took place:

"Where did you get that picture?"

"Oh, never mind, young man, where I got it!"

"What price do you set on it?"

"More than you can afford."

"Indeed!" said Rossetti. "Now, how much?"

"Three thousand pounds," replied the innkeeper.

At this there was a loud burst of laughter from the young artists.

"Do you know how much I would give you for your £3,000 picture?"

"How much?" asked the innkeeper.

"Three pounds," said Rossetti.

"Done," said the innkeeper promptly. And to his amazement and amusement Mr. Rossetti found himself the owner of the colossal daub.

Last Crows In London.

Besides the sparrows and the pigeons which inhabit the atmosphere of London, there is a great nest of crows in Gray's Inn, the last survivor of numerous rookeries which used to exist in the old buildings of the city.

Cheese More Popular.

Cheese is coming more and more in favor for lunches in England. In addition to the home made product there was consumed last year imported cheese that cost $34,746,000.

Meals at School.

The number of meals given to school children in England last year was 16,872,000. The cost was $750,000, of which only $6,500 was received from parents as voluntary contributions.

Wants To Come East.

Winnipeg, Nov. 21.—The resignation of R. A. Sara, business manager of the city power department, was received yesterday morning by the Board of Control. He will return to his home in Toronto to be identified with the Hydro-Electric Commission in that city.

An offer of the Board of Control to meet the salary offered by the eastern concern, he intimated, would not keep him in Winnipeg, his main object being to return to his home locality.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

SEEKING PEACE TERMS

Representatives of Belligerents Will Discuss Armistice.

A Conference Is To Be Held To-day and In the Meantime Generals on Both Sides Have Ceased Hostilities—Concessions to Turks Will Depend on Food Supplies and Extent of Cholera—Mosque a Pest House.

London, Nov. 21.—The war has shifted for a time from the field of arms to that of diplomacy. It may be that the war is near to an end. Plenipotentiaries for the belligerent powers will meet to-day at the Village of Hademgeui, a few miles outside the capital, for a preliminary discussion of the terms of an armistice.

In the meantime the Turkish, Bulgarian and Servian commanders have ordered a cessation of hostilities, although cannonading, which Nazim Pasha reports as unimportant, occurred yesterday morning. The sweeping terms which the allies were said to have demanded Tuesday for a basis for the armistice, appear not to have been advanced, but the plenipotentiaries may not know the level platform until they meet for the discussion, and it is almost certain that it will be on the basis of the Balkan states holding all the conquered country until a permanent treaty of peace is signed. How many concessions they are prepared to make to the Turks depends largely upon two factors—the strength and supplied of the allied army threatening the gates of Constantinople and the extent to which the cholera spectre has embarrassed their plans.

It is certain that great transport difficulties hamper the Bulgarian army on account of the distance from its base and the rough roads. The cholera is counted on by the Turks to weaken the Bulgarian ambition for a triumphal march into the capital, and the celebration of mass in St. Sophia. But to make assurance doubly sure the Turks resorted to the amazing plan of transforming the mosque into a pesthouse and has crowded 2,000 cholera stricken patients within its walls.

Turkey Checks Triumph.

Constantinople, Nov. 21.—Nazim Pasha, commander-in-chief of the Turkish army; Izzet Pasha, chief of general staff of the war office and late commander-in-chief in Yemen, and Chadan Bey, councillor of state, have been appointed the Ottoman plenipotentiaries for the negotiation of an armistice with the Bulgarian representatives.

The question of peace bulks large in the foreground. The fact that the official communications with regard to the Bulgarian reply, issued at both Constantinople and Sofia, make no mention of preliminary conditions, has given rise to comment, as it was generally expected that Bulgaria would insist upon fixing bases before consenting to enter upon negotiations. Indeed, the belief was very general that Bulgaria would demand the capitulation of Adrianople and other fortified places, and the Foreign Minister recently stated to the ambassadors that Turkey would refuse to entertain any such stipulation.

Apparently Bulgaria has found good reasons for refraining from such an attitude, especially as the entering upon pourparlers will not compel the suspension of hostilities until the armistice has been actually signed.

It is generally believed that the object of the authorities in quartering nearly 2,000 cholera patients in the Mosque at St. Sophia is to deter any enemies from setting foot within the building. The talk in the Sofia papers regarding the celebration of Te Deums in that historic pile undoubtedly produced an impression on the Turkish Government which resorted to this truly oriental expedient of thwarting such a design.

Niobe Ready For Sea.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—Whatever Premier Borden's naval announcement is going to be, it does not seem as if it is going to make much difference just yet in so far as the present naval organization is concerned.

It is understood that the Niobe, which has for the past six months been lying in dry dock at Halifax undergoing extensive repairs, is once more ready for sea and will leave in a week or two for England, where she will secure a partial new crew and also reinforcements for the Rainbow, which is in Pacific waters.

The term of service of a number of the marines and officers of both ships has expired, and many of them are not anxious to continue in the service. This necessitated the drafting of new sailors, and the matter was attended to by Deputy Minister of Naval Affairs Desbarats while in England last summer.

Will Amend Lemieux Act.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—It is understood that among the legislation to be introduced this session will be important amendments to the Lemieux Dispute Act. From time to time during the past year or so this act has been subjected to much criticism by labor organizations and others.

Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, has made during the past summer a pretty close study of these criticisms and also of labor legislation in other countries, with the result that he will seek to have the present act amended in an effort to further satisfy, as far as it is possible to do so, the demands of employers as well as of employes.

Annexation Dead, Says Graham.

Boston, Nov. 21.—"There is absolutely no sentiment on our side of the line favoring annexation," said Hon. George P. Graham, former Minister of Railways of the Dominion of Canada, to members of the Canadian Club of Boston at the club's dinner last night. Among other speakers were Capt. Cartwright, military aide to the Governor-General of Canada, and H. P. Bullock of St. John, N.B.

W. H. BEATTY DEAD.

Prominent Toronto Lawyer Dies at Age of Seventy-Seven.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Another of Toronto's most prominent and respected citizens passed away yesterday in the person of William H. Beatty at his residence, 6 Queen's Park. In law, commerce and public affairs he was for many years a leading spirit.

He was born in Toronto in 1835, five years after his father, James Beatty, merchant, settled here. He was educated at Upper Canada College and was admitted as an attorney in 1863. In April, 1865, he married Charlotte Louise, daughter of the late J. G. Worts, who survives him with four children, Henry W., Mrs. Wallace Nesbitt, Mrs. W. H. Cawthra, and C. W. Beatty.

In politics Mr. Beatty was a lifelong Conservative, and a personal friend of Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Chas. Tupper, and Hon. Mr. Chapleau. He always declined to take any public office.

In 1896 he was recommended for appointment as queen's counsel by the Tupper Government.

His life was a very active one. He was connected with many of the great financial institutions of the city. He began practicing law in 1865, and for many years his firm was Beatty and Chadwick.

For some time, on account of failing health, he has been confined to his house. Prior to his health failing, he was president of the Bank of Toronto, president of the Canadian Permanent Mortgage Corporation, president of the Confederation Life Association, vice-president of the Toronto General Trusts Corporation, and vice-president of Gooderham and Worts, Ltd.

He was an Anglican and a member of St. James Cathedral.

Captain St. George Lindsay, wreck commissioner, gave his decision yesterday in the investigation held into the grounding of the Bengore Head, near Quebec. Captain Hoy is suspended for three months, and the second officer for nine months.

Embargo on Flax Only.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—In view of the reports from Fort William and Winnipeg that the C.P.R. had placed an embargo on the loading of grain, the Board of Grain Commissioners of Canada, Dr. R. McGill and W. D. Staples, telegraphed yesterday to George Bury, superintendent of the C.P.R. at Winnipeg, asking for information.

Mr. Bury sent a reply to the commissioners, in part, as follows:

"In reply to your wire of the 20th I have to say that the C.P.R. has not placed any embargo on loading wheat, oats or barley, but agents have been advised not to load flax to Fort William until Nov. 25 because there are now more cars under load with flax than elevators at lake front can take care of. Our agents were advised that if any shippers wished to forward flax to Duluth foreign cars would be provided for that purpose. The amount of grain being loaded on our tracks now is one-third more daily than last year."

READY FOR SESSION.

Liberals Expected to Dodge the Naval Issue.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—A large number of members are already here for the session. The Liberal members called on Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday afternoon and congratulated him upon his 71st birthday.

The concensus of opinion among the Opposition members seemed to be that there will be no reference to the naval issue by the Liberals in the debate upon the address. Railway and fiscal question will be pressed to the front.

The speech from the throne to-day will announce that legislation will be introduced as a result of the recent conference of imperial naval defence between the British and Canadian Ministers, and will foreshadow bills for the promotion of agricultural education and the improvement of the highways.

The revision of the Bank Act will be promised and reference will be made to the right of the western provinces to increased representation in the Senate.

Naturally the speech will refer to the recent visit of His Royal Highness to the various provinces of Canada, and express appreciation of the country's prosperity and the continued increase of desirable immigration. The growing trade of the Dominion will be referred to and the recent reciprocity arrangement between Canada and the British West Indies commended. Reference may also be made to the recent cut in cable rates.

Sir Wilfrid Is 71.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday quietly celebrated his 71st birthday. Felicitations and congratulations were received from England, France, United States, and Canada. The "old-chief," as he is now almost universally called, did not permit the occasion to interfere with his work and was hard at work in his office the greater part of the day.

ANOTHER REMEDY.

American Proposes "Starve the Fly" as New War Cry.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 21.—In presenting the report of the fly fighting committee of the American Civic Association, Chairman Edward Hatch, jr., expressed the hope that there may be no more fly-killing contests.

This sentiment took the assembled fly-fighters by surprise, which was dissipated, however, when Mr. Hatch said:

"We cannot insist too much or too often upon cleanliness as the beginning, middle and end of the fly-fighting campaign. 'Swat the fly' as a slogan must give way to 'starve the fly.' The latter is more euphonious and infinitely more practical."

In its concluding phases the committee's report made a feature of the fact that in cities in which substantial cash prizes were awarded in no case did the number of flies killed in the whole of a campaign exceed the quantity which could easily have been reared from an average size piles of stable refuse in the course of a few weeks. While the educational value of such fly-killing campaigns cannot be over-estimated, the report said it would seem that greater results might be obtained by conducting campaigns against dirty stables and backyards, garbage heaps and dumps and all places that produce flies and supply them with infection.

Nova Scotian On Trial.

New York, Nov. 21.—A jury for the long-delayed trial of former City Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde, a native of Truro, N.S., on charges of bribery in connection with the Carnegie Trust Co. financial scandals nearly two years ago, was completed at the opening sessions of the trial yesterday.

Justice John W. Goff started the trial with all the despatch which characterized his conduct of the trials of former Police Lieut. Charles Becker and the four gunmen in the Rosenthal murder, just completed. The justice refused to entertain motions for further postponement of this long-standing case and ordered the immediate examination of the panel of 200 talesmen summoned for the trial.

The charge against Hyde is that while city chamberlain he forced a banker to lend $130,000 to the Carnegie Trust Co., which was then close to disaster. It is allaged that Hyde promised that if the loan were made he would make the city deposits with the bank.

Wearing Chains.

It is stated by a lady doctor that of the children in London whom she has attended 25 per cent. wear amulets or charms under their clothing.

Free Meals.

In England last year 16,872,000 free meals were given to needy school pupils.

PLEASANT SMOKER AT THE ARMOURIES

By permission of Lt. Col. Marsh, commanding officer of the Fifteenth Regiment, a smoker was held in the Armouries last evening, and it proved to be a most enjoyable affair. Those who desired to smoke were provided with the necessaries, namely, pipes and the weed. It was altogether an informal affair, the officers of the regiment vieing with the members in endeavoring to have a most pleasant time. The number in attendance was large and all thoroughly appreciated the programme provided, which consisted of a running race, tug of war, wrestling matches and boxing bouts. Such functions cannot but be beneficial to the regiment, bringing as it did the officers and men into closer relationship with each other. There was no hitch in the programme. Previous to the sports being commenced and at intervals during the evening, the Regimental Band, under the direction of Bandmaster Robinson, rendered a number of selections which all enjoyed. A cornet solo—"The Premier" concert polka, with triple tonguing, by Bandsman J. Lee, was well received.

HALF MILE RUN.

This was the first event on the programme, and it was well contested. Six members of the regiment were contestants, namely: W. Mills, H. Rogers, F. Maidens, W. Riggs, S. Newton and L. Ince. Maidens at the start took the lead and maintained it until the final lap, when Mills sprinted and passed over the line first, by a slight margin over Maidens. Rogers was third and the others finished in the order named.

WRESTLING MATCHES.

There were two wrestling matches and these events were interesting to the spectators. James Scott and Charles Kiser were the first two contestants. The latter, who was far heavier than his opponent, won three falls out of five.

Possibly the event of the evening was the wrestling match between A. Murray, a mute, and J. Boulanger. For several minutes both worked desperately for a fall, but were so evening matched that neither could gain an advantage. The final result of the contest was that Murray won the event. The decision seemed to give general satisfaction as Murray is a plucky lad and a general favorite.

BOXING BOUT.

A boxing bout was scheduled to take place between F. Morrison and C. Maddock of Toronto. The latter did not appear and William Ives of this city took his place. They boxed five 3-minute rounds, and gave a very good exhibition of the art.

The second contest, which was to have consisted of five rounds of two minutes each, was, owing to an unfortunate accident abruptly brought to a close. Joseph Goyer and James French were the contestants and had completed two rounds. Just after the third round had commenced, French hit Goyer on the forehead, and as he did so he quit, claiming he had hurt his thumb. When the glove was removed two physicians who were in the armouries made an examination and ascertained that the thumb was broken. The injured member was bound up, and it will be some days before "Jim" will be able to use it.

TUG OF WAR.

This was an event which had been eagerly looked forward to by members of the regiment. It was anticipated that a team would be entered from each company, but only four responded to the call. The teams consisted of eight men from each company, and a special platform had been provided for the occasion. A. and B. companies pulled first, and the result was that B. Company was virtually pulled off their feet. The line up was as follows:

A. Co.	B. Co.
Martin	Barrow
Aselstine	Renfrew
Brown	Brady
Freeman	Brasher
Emsley	Crump
Finkle	Shane
Andrews	Smallhorn
Parks	Huff

E. and D. Companies were the second competitors and the result was a win for the members of E. Company—although D. Company claimed they won the contest. The line was as follows:

E. Co.	D. Co.
Payne	McConnell
Dingman	Colden
Fenn	Pelkey
Kiser	Jack
Crawford	Hall
Merritt	Maidens
O'Brien	Logan
Adamson	Huff

This concluded the evening's program of sports and all present repaired to the lecture room where refreshments were partaken of.

Swears Gibson Killed Woman

GOSHEN, N.Y., Nov. 20.—"I saw Gibson seize Mrs. Szabo around the neck with his left arm; I saw his right hand thrust at her throat; when they both fell out of the boat."

John Minturn, eye-witness of the death of Mrs. Rosa Menschik Szamo, for whose death on Greenwood Lake, Surton W. Gibson, of New York, her lawyer, is charged with murder, so testified at Gibson's trial today.

Minturn rose from a sick bed to take the stand. His testimony was introduced to bear out the State's contention that Mr. Szabo was strangled by Gibson, and did not die of drowning.

"Gibson and his companions were standing back to back in the centre of the boat," Minturn said. "Gibson wheeled as they were passing and seized Mrs. Szabo. They struggled for a moment; the boat rocked; they fell out, the woman first, the man afterwards.

"When they were in the water, I saw Gibson place his right hand on his left shoulder and his left hand on his right shoulder; I thought he was trying to pull off his shirt; it looked that way to me.

"Presently the woman was lost to sight. The man then swam over to the boat, put his arm over it and turned it over. The boat remained right side up when they fell out, and remained in that position until Gibson tipped it over."

Minturn was standing at the water's edge, he said, when he saw the tragedy. The boat was about 700 yards away.(He was afraid he would forget, he added, so he went home and wrote down what he saw.

Drove Enemy From Stronghold

NEW YORK, November 20.—A spe- to the New York Herald from Uskub, dated November 19, says:—

The Servian armies completed their task brilliantly at Monastir, driving the enemy out of his last stronghold in Macedonia.

The Turkish army which defended Monastir was utterly routed and fled in two directions towards Neringa and towards Resna, both roads, however, being held by Servian cavalry, thus making escape impossible.

Already it is reported that a larger portion of the Turkish army has surrendered.

The battle of Monastir lasted three days. The Turkish army commanded by Cekki Pasha, held unusually strong positions, the left wing resting on Parister, one of the highest mountains of the Balkan peninsula, while the right wing extended to the Tcherna River, which inundated the whole plain occupied by the Servian troops.

Commanded by the Crown Prince, the Servians' task was difficult, operating as they were from flooded, marshy lowlands to drive the enemy from the height in face of hot artillery fire.

The Turks fought with a stubbornness of despair, knowing their retreat into Albania was cut off by the Morava division of reservists.

The Servian general, on the first two days, shelled the Turkish positions, concentrating every available gun on them, in the hope of smashing the enemy with artillery alone.

HE OWNED THE SIDEWALK

A lot of Ogdensburg people this week learned something about a skunk that they doubtless did not know before, and that is how to hold a live specimen of the species in the hands without disastrous results. The secret is: Grab him by the tail. It came about in this way. For the last two days there had been unmistakable evidence that a fur bearing quadruped of this type was roaming through the business section of Ford street. Yesterday noon the skunk was discovered in an areaway at the corner of Ford and State streets. The skunk expert was soon on the scene and he proceeded to catch the polecat with his bare hands, just like T. R.s friend, Jack Abernethy, might mountain lions.

Dangling the skunk by the tail, the man started off in the direction of a fur shop. People on his side of the street suddenly remembered having an errand to do on the other and beat it across. The man almost caused a riot when he stalked into Katzman's store in North Water Street and offered the skunk for sale. The proprietor and his clerks leaped on chairs and shrieked "Take him out." The skunk catcher then did a thing that imparted more knowledge about these pestiferous brutes. Taking a stick he dealt the skunk a tap on the back of the head and the animal stiffened out and died. Then he was welcome to the hide man.

Man [illegible] 308 Pounds

David Gibb, an iron turner of Belfast, who was found dead in bed, was stated by his wife at the inquest on his body to have weighed 308 pounds. Death was attributed to syncope, Dr. Ritchie mentioning that, probably after taking too much liquor, the heart had been overburdened, and had suddenly stopped.

A WINNING FIGHT

Telling of the progress made in combating the terrible 20th century plague—Consumption.

Notwithstanding the enormous increase in population in Canada in the past few years, it is more than gratifying to be able to record that the fight which the National Sanitarium Association are putting up against the "white plague"—consumption—is proving a winning one.

Prior to 1896 deaths from Consumption were on the increase every year. In 1910, despite the greater number of citizens, the figures in Ontario alone showed a decrease of 1118 over those of ten years ago. Isn't this splendid testimony to the noble work going on?

Maybe you haven't a father, mother, sister or dear friend of your own afflicted, but wouldn't it feel good to help some poor soul in the throes of the dread disease to get back into the wage-earning class—to return cured to wife and loved ones?

Our proud boast is that no needy Consumptive has ever been refused admittance to our Free Institutions at Weston and Muskoka because of poverty. But the good work cannot expand without your kindly sympathy and material help.

The need is urgent. If you are blessed with that greatest of all blessings, good health, think of your needy suffering brother and sister.

Send along your mite, however humble, to MR. W. J. GAGE, Chairman of the Executive Committee; or to MR. R. DUNBAR, Sec. Treas., 347 King West, Toronto.

Every penny you send goes to help.

Poachers' Tricks.

In these days of shooting estates in the north of England which are let for thousands of pounds to aristocratic sportsmen and sportswomen for the season, and which are carefully preserved from the depredations of poachers by vigilant gamekeepers, it might naturally be supposed that the question, "Is poaching profitable?" would be answered in the negative. According to the confessions of an experienced gamekeeper, however, the modern poacher is a very clever and up-to-date individual, and, in spite of all precautions, many of the grouse sent to London markets are caught by other means than those which the law allows.

Many poachers have been known to shoot grouse for a week before the moors are open by getting behind hills, so that the noise of their guns is lessened. Principally, however, they make their captures with dogs and snares. The dogs which accompany the poachers are specially trained and very sagacious. They stand motionless or move forward almost crawling, or lie down on the grass at the right word from their masters. To train these dogs to this pitch of perfection takes years of persevering work.

Limbless Legislator.

When a division is called in the British Parliament the members troop into either the aye lobby or the no lobby, pass the division clerks—who tick off on their obeisances to the tellers, whose duty it is to count the numbers. But it has occasionally happened that members have been allowed, owing to physical infirmity, to vote without leaving the bench on which they sit.

The most remarkable instance of the exercise of that privilege was provided in the case of McMurrough Kavanagh, an Irish Conservative home ruler, who was elected to Parliament in the '70's. He had neither arms nor legs and had to be carried in and out of the House, and it was arranged that in every division the tellers should approach him and ask in what lobby he wished to vote. Incidentally it should be said that he had trained himself to write by fixing the pen in his mouth, and that he was a ready and fluent speaker. His son, Walter Kavanagh, sat in the last Parliament as a supporter of Mr. Redmond and the Irish Nationalist

By C. J. CUTCLIFFE HYNE

"His last instructions," wrote Laura, "were that I was not to be in the least nervous; he was going to avoid the Okyk country; and anyway he was an old Coaster, and knew most thoroughly how to take care of himself. And so, nervous I refuse to feel. But oh! I am so lonely here with no one whiter than Mr. and Mrs. da Silva to talk to. I somehow quite share your dislike to West Coast Portuguese."

Within ten minutes after reading that letter, Carter was out under a brazen glare of heat, marching along the sand where it was wet and hard and nearing the straggle of palms which marked the banks of Smooth River, at the rate of four good miles to the hour. When a white man walks at that speed through West Africa mid-day heat, it is only because some question of life or death hangs upon the speed; though in this case Carter told himself that love was the same as life. He pinned his eyes on Smooth River palms which the refraction made to dance up and down most coquettishly and repeated this over and over again, because another voice within him persisted in sneering something about two very lonely people with nothing to do, who were not in love at all, but merely bored with idleness and their own society; and finally he got quite angry over the matter. He stuck out his great dogged chin, and presently cursed aloud. He shook his fist at the splendor of the tropical sun. "I do love the girl," he declared, "and I will marry her in spite of my father, and K., and everyone, if she will have me. Curse it! Why should I hesitate when I love her? This infernal climate is making me as slack and undecided as even poor old Slade."

So with the surf booming ceaselessly in his ears, and the sea-smoke driving over him and making his white drill collar damp and sticky, he marched resolutely on to meet Fate.

CHAPTER VI

The Coming of the Okky-Men

The attack on Smooth River factory did not take place without due warning. It seemed that a large caravan of native merchants from the hinterland had come through the Okky country with a fine cargo of produce since the King had stopped the roads. Whether they had cut new roads through the bush for themselves, or fought their way past the obstructing ju-ju, they did not explain; they arrived at the factory with kernels a few tusks of discolored ivory, a few quills of water-worn gold, and a fine parcel of high-grade rubber, which were duly valued; they took cloth, six flint-lock guns, a case or two of gin, and the balance in pink Kola-nuts by way of payment; and with these on the skulls of their carriers, they marched away along the Beach and out of this history.

Then presently there came down envoys from the King of Okky demanding with a fine inconsistency that O'Neill and Craven's factory should pay his Majesty the transit blackmail which he had been unable to collect himself. Carter was sent for, post-haste, from Malla-Nulla, and was at first minded to tell those envoys to go to a kingdom which repute says is even hotter than West Africa. But thoughts of Laura living there by herself, and a dread of the horrors of native war made him offer a compromise. "Open the roads," said he, "and we'll pay up these fellows' dues, though your King knows perfectly well he hasn't an atom of claim on this factory. It's the custom for traders to pay for going through a country if they can't avoid paying; they never pay once they are through; and never, never, never, throughout all the wicked history of Africa has there been a case of an English factory being fool enough to pay toll which its casual customers have slipped through without paying. But, as I say, I am ready to meet you in the matter. Open the roads and I will dash you this amount you ask for."

Kwaka, the head envoy, a big, fine bold-eyed Hausa, requested that the money might be handed them there and then.

"Not one sixpence," said Carter, "till the roads are opened."

The Hausa was a professional soldier, and here he could see was going to be a chance of working at his trade. He gleefully delivered the King of Okky's ultimatum. If the tribute was not paid, the King would withdraw his permission for O'Neill and Craven's factories to exist on the Coast.

"Tell your old King," said the Englishman contemptuously, "that he may have authority over his own filthy mud-villages inland, but his law does not carry along the Coast as he knows full well. The Coast is the white man's."

Things were going exactly as Kwaka could have wished. The man with the red head was warming up nicely. "If you fight when we come down to the factory," said Kwaka, "I will see to it that you are crucified separately. I should like to take the woman who lives here into my own harem, but the King has bespoken her already."

"You," said Carter savagely, "a Moslem, ought to know shame for living in the employs of pagan like Okky-men. If you come back here, my first shot shall be for you, and after you are dead I will have that done to your face with the white man's doctor's tols as shall forever spoil its beauty. So that when the Prophet takes you up into Paradise even the least of the houris will shrink from you and hide her eyes from all sight of you in the folds of her green robe. Just you stick that in your memory, Mr. Kwaka, and don't come boasting 'round here. Observe, I am a man of my hands: I can make white iron burn."

He pulled a length of magnesium wire from his pocket and lit it with a match. The big Hausa stared owlishly at the fierce white flame.

"That is the glare of Gehenna," said Carter, "into which if you come to Smooth River again you will presently descend, after being cast out from Paradise because of the reason I mentioned. You have now my permission to depart. And I wonder," he added to himself, "if my Mohammedan theology is fairly correct. Kwaka's swallowed it right enough, but if he hands it along to a mullah, he may find a flaw, and we shall have the whole brood of them down about our ears in half no-time."

However the portent was sufficiently startling for the moment. Kwaka argued that a man who could make iron burn could doubtless (as he claimed) spoil the good looks of a True Believer by some other of his infernal arts, and therefore was a person whom it would be healthy to let alone. So he and his escort took themselves off into the forest as unobtrusively as might be.

But with Laura Carter took another tone. "Look here, my dear," he said, "you simply must run across to the Canaries till things have simmered down again here. I don't want to alarm you, but it's quite on the cards that infernal old Mormon of a King may take it into his woolly head to be dangerous. You have had one taste of his quality already."

"Two," said the girl and shuddered, "and he's sent my father presents and messages since. But I can not go away from Smooth River, at any rate, till my father comes back. He left me in charge you see."

"Which I think very improper of him. I don't believe in girls being mixed up in business matters, at any rate in West Africa, and I am sure K. O'Neill would be frightfully down on it—what are you laughing at? Laura, tell me one-time what you are sniggering about in that ridiculous way. Oh, I see. You think I have never seen Mr. K. and am talking through my hat. Yell, my dear, if you had read fifty times over every letter that K. has written to Malla-Nulla factory during the last eighteen months, you would know that man and his likes and dislikes and his ambitions, and his cranks just about as accurately as I do. Anyway, I repeat, he'd hate to have you here in charge."

"Just remember that I don't agree with you one bit, Mr. Carter."

"Very well, Miss Slade, you can jolly well do the other thing. But take charge here I shall, and go to the Islands you must. There is a B. and A. boat due to call at Monk River the but one after to-morrow. I'll send for our surf boat, and we will take you there in style. Won't you have a ripping time of it at Las Palmas and up in the Monte. I wonder what the new hotel's like up there. And I say, Laura, go down Caldera, and I bet you a new hat it takes you half an hour longer than my record time to get up again as far as Atalaya—Hullo, what's the matter now?"

"You are making things rather hard for me. I'd go away from this hateful Coast if I could, but we simply can't afford it, and there you have the bare fact."

"But I thought——"

"Oh, yes, of course you did, that father was a sort of local millionaire. Well, he isn't. He did once have private means but that I think was before I was born, and only the reputation of them remains now. He's made big commissions on the factory's trading, I know, but he's invested it badly, and I think he's been robbed. Probably, too, I have been extravagant."

"Rubbish."

"Well, anyway, the money's gone, and the brutal truth is I haven't a sovereign in the world."

"Good Lord! You ought not to have been left her like that. It was beastly careless of Slade."

"He never thought of it. An if he had he couldn't have done anything. His equipment of course came from the factory but as regards money, he went away without a pound in his pocket. There aren't shops that one can spend money in to be found up in the bush."

DON'T BE AN OLD MAN HUSBAND BECAUSE OF GREY HAIR

Don't look sixty when your wife looks only twenty. Don't be the object of comment among your friends and neighbors. Don't be that grey-haired passé looking fellow who's too old looking for this and for that.

There's no excuse for it, duty to yourself and particularly your own desire to BE YOUNG look young, to do the active energetic things and keep up with the YOUNGER GENERATION should convince you that you ought to GET RID of those "GREY HAIRS"—ought to keep them out.

Nature never intended they should be in a young head. Help her along.—USE—

A STAMP MACHINE

Designed to do Away With the Licking of Postage Stamps

To eliminate the use of the unsanitary postage stamp is the object of an ingenious invention patented by a Montreal man, Mr. C. W. King.

Instead of selling postage stamps, Mr. King would have the Government sell a stamping machine. He invented one which, he claims, would answer the purpose. This machine can be set so that it will only stamp a certain number of letters, say five hundred, or a thousand, and when it has been used that number of times it locks automatically, and can only be set again by the post office officials.

The banker or merchant buys the machine, paying for it according to the number of impressions it is set for.

The die used would be unsaleable by vendors. Mr. King would guard against forgery by having each machine bear a special number on its stamp, so that every purchaser would have a number of his own, and thus if duplicates came in, he claims they could be traced.

CAUGHT REAL WILD MAN

Demented Creature Had Lived In a Cave for Ten Years

Half-naked, his head and face covered with hair, armed with a club and barking like a fox when approached, Arthur Britton, forty years old, who has been missing from his home for more than ten years, was found recently living in a cave in the Pawling Mountain near Poughkeepsie, N.Y. Britton, because of his wild life, has almost lost the art of speaking. His mind is shattered, but although he is thin he possesses the strength of a giant. Britton's mind became affected while serving in the Philippines during the Spanish-American War. When he returned to Pawling after the war he began to wander in the woods and camp out.

Ten years ago his family lost all trace of him and it was only recently that Britton's brother came to the conclusion that the wild man seen frequently in the neighborhood of Pawling Mountain might be his brother. He started an investigation and located the unfortunate man.

THE JOY OF GIVING

"'Tis more blessed to give than to receive," says the Good Book, and we are continually receiving letters that prove the truth of this maxim.

Here's an extract that tells how the good work we are doing in the fight against Consumption appeals to every section of the community.

A well-known citizen of Brantford writes: "On Christmas morning my boys gave me $2.50 to get some present for myself that I wanted. I think you can use it to good advantage in your noble work in the National Sanitarium Association, so am enclosing it for that purpose."

Doesn't it make you feel proud to know that there are Canadian fathers with the self-sacrificing instinct so strongly imbued in them?

Isn't it good to realize that the rising generation is getting such a splendid example shown them? Last year it cost over $82,000.00 to keep the Muskoka Free Hospital open. More money is urgently needed to provide for those seeking admission.

The needy Consumptive is right at your door. Won't you help him to help himself?

The smallest gift will be most acceptable. Just slip your contribution in an envelope to-day, while you think of it, addressed to MR. W. J. GAGE, Chairman of the Executive Committee, 84 Spadina Ave.; or MR. R. DUNBAR, Sec. Treas.,

GIBSON HOPES TO JUSTIFY LIE OVER DEATH OF COUNTESS

GOSHEN, N.Y., Nov. 21.—Burton W. Gibson issued a defiance to District Attorney Rogers when his trial for the murder of Countess Szabo, at Greenwood Lake on July 16 last, was resumed here today.

When Gibson entered the Court room he bore his head erect, swept his eyes over the spectators, and seemed to be totally unembarrassed by the many eyes that were fastened upon him. He walked calmly to his seat, and turned to the newspaper men.

"I can explain why I lied about the death of Mrs. Szabo," he said. "The District Attorney appears to believe he has struck a telling point in the fact that I did not tell the Franklin Savings Bank officials of the true cause of Mrs. Szabo's death. I said she had died of heart failure, and when my defence is put in it will be shown that my lie was justified."

Robert H. Elder, Gibson's chief counsel, had not indicated today what the defence would be, except that he would contend that Mrs. Szabo did not die of strangulation.

"We do not undertake to show what she died of," he said. "She might have died of any one of many causes."

750,000 Words in Trial Evidence

SALEM, Mass., Nov. 21.—Three-quarters of a million words constitute the record of testimony in the trial of Etor, Giovannitti and Caruso for the Lopizzo murder during the Lawrence textile strike last winter, which is nearing completion here.

The case, which has been on since September 30, goes to the jury tomorrow after District Attorney Attwell has closed for the Commonwealth, and Judge Quinn has delivered his charge to the jury.

Delay Granted in Johnson Trial

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Jack Johnson today received permission from United States District Judge Carpenter to file demurrers to the five charges of violating the Mann White Slave Act, pending against him. Three weeks were allowed in which to prepare the demurrers.

It has been expected that when arraigned the pugilist would plead to the several indictments which charge him with transporting Belle Schreiber, a white woman, across different state boundaries for immoral purposes.

Johnson was represented by four attorneys in another case in the Federal Court and entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of smuggling a diamond necklace on his return from Europe.

Women Who Don't Want The Ballot

HAMILTON, Nov. 21.—Hamilton women registered a heavy negative vote at a meeting of the National Council of Women at the Waldorf Hotel yesterday, when it was moved that a resolution be sent to the Dominion Government asking for the privileges of the franchise for women.

The resolution was carried, however, by visiting women by the small majority of eight votes. Mrs. Flora McDonald Denison, of Toronto, president of the women's suffrage movement of Canada, when interviewed regarding the matter said:—

"The women of Hamilton will soon wake up to the fact that their position in life is such that they should be given the full franchise."

Mrs. Denison stated that she had every confidence that the women of Canada would gain the franchise.

Because He Lives Sues His Doctor

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 21.—Because he did not die, Goldblatt, a jeweller, brought suit against his physician, Dr. G. H. Poher, for $15,000. Goldblatt alleged in his complaint that Dr. Poher told him he had cancer of the stomach.

Believing that recovery was impossible, and wishing to leave his property in cash, Goldblatt states that he sold his jewellery business, at a sacrifice, he estimated, at $15,000, and waited for death to claim him. Becoming impatient with his continued presence among the living he consulted other physicians, and was told that he was perfectly well.

WOMEN ARE JUST AS ABLE AND TRUSTWORTHY AS MEN

MONTREAL, Nov. 21.—Special—Montreal today had the honor of entertaining Miss Bessie Townsend, "the woman that runs Atlantic iCty," as she is styled in that progressive summer resort.

At home Miss Townsend is called the "only woman Comptroller in the world." She was appointed to succeed Comptroller David Barrett, who was said to have been dismissed for insubordination.

After three months of assiduous work, which has enabled her to effect far-reaching reforms, Miss Townsend is taking a fortnight's holiday at the special request of the Council which is more than astonished at her administrative talent.

"What I want to prove," said Miss Townsend today, "is that we women are just as able and trustworthy as any men in the world,"—and she is doing it.

$25,000 Pensions To Ex-Presidents

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Special—Future ex-Presidents of the United States are to be pensioned in the sum of $25,000 each annually, by action of the Carnegie Corporation of New York today. The grant is provided for with the idea of enabling former executives of the nation to devote their unique knowledge gained in public affairs to the public good, free from pecuniary care. A similar amount is to be paid widows of ex-Presidents so long as they remain unmarried.

The pensions are to be promptly offered to the ex-Presidents or their widows, so that no application will be required from them. Payment is to be continued so long as the recipients "remain unprovided for by the government."

The announcement followed the second annual meeting of the corporation held at the residence of Andrew Carnegie here and attended by the corporation's eight trustees.

A total of $125,000,000 in securities has thus far been transferred to the corporation, which will carry on the various works in which Mr. Carnegie has been engaged and such others as he may from time to time think it advisable to establish.

Fleets in Action

SOFIA, Nov. 21.—Special—The reported sinking of the Turkish cruiser Hamidieh by Bulgarian torpedo boats off the port of Varna, in the Black Sea, has not been confirmed. The cruiser was torpedoed 40 miles off shore and signalled to another torpedo boat for help. The latter fired on the Bulgarian cruiser, which was damaged about the funnels. Darkness prevented the Bulgarians from learning the fate of the Hamidieh.

Don't insult her intelligence. Even if she has to work for a living, a girl knows the difference between friendly interest and mere curiosity.

Earthquake Shock At Vancouver

Intelligencer Special.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 22.—A distinct earthquake shock was felt here last levening over a district of several miles. The shock was also felt in North Vancouver and in adjoining municipalities. Its duration was exactly six seconds and it appeared to be travelling north and south. No damage is reported, but two houses at Lynn Valley on the north shore of Burrard Inlet, almost collapsed, and a child was thrown out of chair.

Bulgarians May Modify Peace Terms

Approve Canada's Canal System

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 21.—The State Commission on barge canal operation, the members of which have returned from an inspection of a portion of the Canadian canal system, in a statement to-day say the Canadian methods "furnish a concrete example of what can be accomplished in the line of conservation.'

They point out that in connection with canalization the Dominion Government has disposed of hydraulic rights by lease, and concident with the canal construction there is going forward the creation of fore bays, the construction of power races and power houses for the ultization of many thousands of horsepower created. Private capital is doing all the development, outside of the canals, locks and dams, under lease for twenty-one years, with a renewable clause for an additional forty-two years.

FRENCH SOCIALIST PARTY WOULD STOP FOREIGN WAR

PARIS, Nov. 21.—Special—There never was a more opportune moment for the proletariat to strike against war, according to the decision of the French Socialist party, which met today to consider what attitude it should assume at the International Socialist Congress to be held at Basle, Switzerland, on Sunday, in opposition to war. Countries should not be permitted to be bound by secret treaties, and if, in spite of the efforts of the Socialists, a conflagration became imminent through the machinations of diplomats, "the people would be justified in having recourse to revolutionary methods, a general strike and insurrection to stop war, and tear from their places those responsible for it."

Kingston Co-Eds Plan Boycott For Cabmen

KINGSTON, Nov. 21.—Twelve young ladies of the Levana society of Queen's University have come to the rescue of young men who give them invitations to attend various faculty dances and functions at the university during the term.

The Levana Society learned that cabmen had increased their prices by 50 per cent. for going and returning from the university.

They charge now $3 where hitherto the charge was $2. The young ladies, by resolution, declared that hereafter cabs would not be used by them; that the walk was preferred.

They recognize the fact that it is costly for any young men to take a young lady to these events and while greatly appreciating the courtesy and generositly of gallant young men, they did not feel that it was incumbent upon them to add unnecessary expense and until the cabmen come down to the figure hitherto charged, the "We Walk" motto will be theirs.

As a matter of fact they think that the walk has a charm on a beautiful evening that driving lacks.

Allies' Terms to Turkish Government

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—A special cable from Constantinople, via Guirgeve, Roumania, says:

"The terms of peace offered to Turkey by the Balkans allies are: The cession of the whole of Turkey in Europe as far as and including the Tchataldja lines; the city of Constantinople to remain Turkish, but a friendly entry of a portion of the allied armies to occupy the city until a definite treaty has been arranged.

"It is stated that the Ottoman Cabinet favors the acceptance of all the conditions except the cession of the coast line of the Sea of Marmora and the Dardenelles and the entry of the allied forces into Constantinople. It asks guarantees regarding the future of Albania.

"By an indirect route a deputation of influential Albanians has arrived here to urge resistence to Servia's claims upon Albania, in which task the deputation is seeking Austrian support.

"Diplomatists here are unanimous in thinking the settlement of the future status of Albania is the most serious factor against European peace."

The Balkan allies have definitely abandoned the idea of the partition of Albanian, according to a Sofia despatch of the Daily Mail. They will consent to Albanian autonomy and an autonomous administration will be set by stages with the aid of the Balkan States.

Brakeman Run Over

CAYUGA, Nov. 21—Special—James P. Tracy, brakeman, was run over and probably fatally injured in the G.T.R. yards here at 8 o'clock tonight. He was detaching a locomotive, the train being still in motion, when he slipped and was run over. His left arm was crushed off near the shoulder, and his left leg taken off near the hip. Dr. Gourlay was called and rendered first aid. The injured man was taken to the St. Thomas hospital. Tracy is about twenty-five years of age, and belonged to a St. Thomas train crew. His widowed mother lives at Windsor, Ont.

Scene in Spanish House

MADRID, Nov. 21.—Special—The Cortes was the scene of a stormy debate today. Accusations were made by the Conservatives that the Republicans and Socialists by their propaganda instigated such crimes as the assassination of Canalejas.

This charge elicited indignant denials from Emiliano Iglesias and other Socialist leaders and expression of abhorrence at such acts.

SAW ANOTHER PERSON

Gibson Not With Dunkleman Say Three Soldiers.

Startling Evidence In Defence of Boy Charged With Slaying Rosenthal Is Given by Men From Stanley Barracks, Who Saw a Strange Man on Bridge With Jews on Both Nights of Which Dunkleman Tells.

Toronto, Nov. 22.—The evidence of three soldiers at yesterday's hearing of the trial of Charles Gibson, for the murder of Joseph Rosenthal, on the night of Good Friday last, was the most startling feature of the defence to date.

Each of these three men swore to having seen Dunkleman in company with others, of whom Gibson was not one, at the bridge near the Hydro-electric station, both on the night of the murder and the night previous, on both of which occasions Dunkleman says he was there. Corpl. Whittaker met three men upon the sidewalk beneath a light at the bridge. One of the three jolted the corporal into the road. He turned to remonstrate and at this point heard the middle man of the trio, whom he identified as Dunkleman, say to the man upon his left, "It is worth $49." Dunkleman spoke in broken English, and therefore, although he had faced about, the corporal, who dislikes any dealing with foreigners, went on, omitting his intended remonstrance. So hard was the knock that he got when jolted into the road, that he believed he had not been struck by the man's arm, but that the man had had some hard instrument concealed beneath his coat. Neither of the other two men was Gibson.

Sapper Cunningham, now at the Kingston Barracks, but at the time of the murder at Stanley Barracks, said that he had passed Dunkleman and four other men upon the bridge at about the time the three were seen there by Corpl. Whittaker. He recognized Dunkleman as one of them, but Gibson was not among them.

Corpl. Whittaker had seen the same three men upon the bridge on Thursday night, and Sapper Cunningham had also seen Dunkleman on the bridge on Thursday night, in conversation with others. On that occasion, as on the others, neither had recognized Gibson as among those present.

Gibson, in the morning, took the stand in his own defence, and declared Dunkleman lied when he said that he, Gibson, was the man who inflicted the injuries upon him. He accounted for the blood on his clothing as that of his young brother, who had met with an accident on the day of the tragedy. He declared that on the night of the murder he had gone to the yards with Rosenthal and two other men, but had left when they had told him he would not be needed. He went straight home from the scene, he declared.

To-day the evidence of Mr. and Mrs. Gibson, the mother and father of the accused lad, will be heard, and this will probably close the defence. The case will likely go to the jury by night, and should a decision be arrived at before final adjournment the jury will be liberated from custody, in which they have lived since Monday morning.

Genius and Insanity

KINGSTON, Nov. 21.—Dr. Daniel Phelan, surgeon of the penitentiary and who is regarded as an expert on mental diseases, has issued a 38-page treatise entitled "Genius and Insanity."

Some of his conclusions will be found startling to the lay reader, at least.

"One character of genius noted almost invariably, is a sudden drifting away from the ordinary paths followed by the majority of men," says Dr. Phelan.

"It is said that more people of great genius exhibit manifestations of insanity than do persons of ordinary mental faculties. This is due to the fact that genius is the expression of a highly sensitive nervous system, and is therefore more liable to diseased conditions of all kinds.

"No man directly inherits true genius any more than the divine gift of prophecy; on the other hand, talent may be marked in successive directions."

TERMS ARE TOO HARD

Turkey Refuses to Accept Conditions of Allies.

Nazim Pasha Orders Turkish Troops to Keep Up Hostilities and Reports to His Government That He Cannot Agree to Terms Offered—Has Power to Negotiate Again If the Occasion Arises.

Constantinople, Nov. 22.—The terms offered by the Balkan allies for the arrangement of an armistice are "unacceptable" to the Ottoman Government.

Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, has been instructed to continue military operations until more acceptable conditions are offered by the allies, but at the same time he is entrusted with the further negotiations.

The official announcement of the Porte's decision with regard to the armistice is as follows:

"The Bulgarian Premier has addressed to the Ottoman Government a document containing conditions for an armistice which were communicated yesterday to the Council of Ministers and were considered to be unacceptable.

"Consequently and likewise in view of the fact that the commander-in-chief has been entrusted in principle with the task of negotiating conditions with the plenipotentiaries of the belligerent states—if these plenipotentiaries are invested with the necessary powers—and has also been directed to communicate the result of such negotiations to us, the commander-in-chief has been instructed to continue military operations with the help of the Almighty, until reasonable and moderate conditions are proposed to us."

It is said that the Bulgarian conditions included a demand for the surrender of Adrianople and Scutari, the withdrawal of the Turkish fleet from the Black Sea and the cessation of the despatch of troops to Tchatalja and the building of fortifications.

Gen. Shukri Pasha, military commandant of Adrianople, has received the title of "Ghazi," which means "victorious recognition" of his splendid defence.

An official despatch from the captain of the cruiser Hamidieh, which was attacked by Bulgarian torpedo boats in the Black Sea yesterday morning, says that he sank two of them and damaged the third, which was able to draw away. The despatch adds:

"When at a distance of 2,000 yards the third torpedo boat discharged two torpedoes; inflicting slight damage on us. We eventually obliged her to withdraw out of range of our guns."

Failure Alarms Europe.

London, Nov. 22.—The formal suspension of the eastern war proved only for a day. Turkey rejected the Balkan terms for an armistice, apparently before the plenipotentiaries had time to come together at Hademkeui.

A Balkan diplomat in London pointed out last night that these terms were submitted merely as an answer to Turkey's pressing and repeated demands for an armistice, and said:

"It is practically certain that their rejection will result in a more active and determined resumption of hostilities. Probably the allied troops will now refuse to treat with Turkey until they are in a position to dictate perhaps sterner terms in the capital of the Sultan.

Even yet it would seem that the Turkish officials have not abandoned hope that the powers will come to their rescue and attempt to dictate a compromise, but Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, announced last night that the powers had not gone so far as to arrange a general conference after the conclusion of the war. Their only agreement as far as surface indications go, is to keep their hands off.

Yet the probability of the resumption of hostilities has started rumors afresh from Vienna of Austrian and Russian mobilizations on their borders, and a naval demonstration by the Triple Alliance on the Albanian coast, if Servia pushes her onward march to the coveted seaport.

Masses Urged to Strike.

Paris, Nov. 22.—There never was a more opportune moment for the proletariat to strike against war, according to the decision of the French Socialist party, which met yesterday to consider what attitude it should assume at the International Socialist Congress to be held at Basel, Switzerland, on Sunday in opposition to war.

Countries, it was asserted, should not be permitted to be bound by secret treaties, and if, in spite of the efforts of the Socialists, a conflagration became imminent through the machinations of diplomats, "the people would be justified in having recourse to revolutionary methods, a general strike and insurrection to stop war and tear from their places those responsible for it."

Better Terms or War, Says Veinna

PARIS, Nov. 21.—Unless the Balkan allies offer better terms to Turkey than they have yet suggested, the war will go on, Grand Vizier Kiamil Pasha was quoted in a despatch received from Constantinople to-day as haviing declared.

Kiamil asserted that the cholera epidemic was subsiding, it was added. Messages from foreigners in Constantinople did not bear this assertion out.

Bryan Not Invited

HAMILTON, Bermudah, Nov. 21—"All statements about selections for the cabinet may be disregarded until I make the announcement myself," declared President-elect Wilson to-night when he was told of the reports published in the United States.

Governor Wilson said he had not offered or intimated an offer of a position in his cabinet to anyone. It is learned that William J. Bryan has not been invited to Bermuda and it is said he is not expected here during Mr. Wilson's stay.

Just a Threat

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 21.—Strapped to a cot in the receiving hospital, Carl Warr, the German patternmaker who took possession of the central police station yesterday by threatening to destroy the building with an infernal machine unless Paul Shoup, Jr., of the Pacific Electric company was brought to him, said today:

"I did not want to hurt anyone about the police station. All I was after was the head of the Pacific Electric. I did not even want to hurt him. I was merely going to show him my machine and tell him I was going to blow him up unless he raised the wages of his workmen and otherwise improved their condition."

Warr ended his story by begging to be shot. He is believed to have received a fracture of the skull from the blows dealt him by Detective James Hesick.

Turkish Cruiser Sunk

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Special—The London Times' correspondent in Sofia telegraphs today: The first Bulgarian naval achievement was reported this morning before dawn. The Turkish protected cruiser Hamidieh was sighted in the open sea about ten miles from Varna. Four Bulgarian torpedo boa's immediately put out from the port and engaged the cruiser, which soon showed signals of distress and began to sink.

Observing rockets sent up by the Hamidieh, two Turkish corvettes and three torpedo boats hastened to her assistance and opened fire on the Bulgarian flotilla, which succeeded in returning to port without serious injury. One Bulgarian sailor was slightly wounded, and one torpedo boats received insignificant damage.

The Hamedieh was seen to founder before the Bulgarian torpedo boats w'thdrew.

The obliging man is popular, and he is also imposed upon.

MYER'S CREEK AT CANNIFTON

That the members of the Tabernacle Ladie's Aid have attained fame outside of their own city was demonstrated at Cannifton last evening, when the Methodist Church of that town was packed to its capacity to witness the unique entertainment entitled "Myer's Creek," which so pleased our citizens when presented at the home church last May, and repeated at the local Y. M. C. A. It possible the Canifton occasion was superior to that of previous presentations, in that the ladies had "settled down to their knitting" and were in prime form to take the natives by storm, which they certainly did. Crowded though the audience was into every nook of the church, even the window sills being brought into service, not a moment's enjoyment was lost from beginning to end of the interesting programme. While all the characters did justice to their parts, special mention might be made of the fine readings by Misses A. Greenleaf and Henrietta Fenn and the makeup of Ernest Ridley, who brought down the house in his presentation of a huge bouquet to the talented songstress, known at home as Mrs. J.O.R. McCurdy, but staged as "Madame Kane, the distinguished vocalist." It was all so enjoyable that it is doubtful if the village folk will weary of rehearsing it for weeks to come. The ladies were delighted with the reception given, a substantial repast being provided in the church vestry. We congratulate our Tabernacle ladies upon their successful venture abroad and shall expect to hear of other successes in the near future.

The characters were:—

Mrs. James McCurdy as Mme. Smith, a Woman of Authority.

Mrs. Sills as Mme. Green, an Accomplished Hostess.

Mrs. Vantassel as Mme. Kindly, "Gentle as a Summer Breeze."

Mrs. Haight, as Lady DeLoyd Fitz-Hammond, a Bostonian.

Eminent Architect Dead

WINDSOR, Nov. 21.—Special—In the death of John Clifford, at the age of sixty-nine, which occurred at the Hotel Dieu tonight, the city loses one of its most striking and original characters and professional men.

Of Irish birth, a graduate of Dublin University, Mr. Clifford came to this country when he was twenty-five years of age. He first settled in Halifax, but afterwards removed to Chicago, where he took up his profession as an architect. His work was so successful that he soon attained prominence and accumulated considerable wealth, all of which was lost at the time of the Chicago fire.

In addition to other public works, Mr. Clifford designed the plans for the present Chicago City Hall, the old City Hall in San Francisco, and also claimed to have drawn the plans for the residence of the President of Brazil and the castle of King Oscar of Sweden.

Mr. Clifford came to Windsor to reside several years ago. He was a bachelor.

Lots of people never cast their bread on the waters until it gets so stale that dogs won't eat it.

Electric Light for the Dining Room

The lighting of the dining room should be centralized over the table having the light thrown on the table and shaded from the eyes. This will give the light where it is needed and yet give eye comfort. It will also give a cosy appearance.

Do not forget to arrange for a drop for the toaster or coffee percolater. If you do not use one now, you will be converted soon.

MOVING WHEAT EASTWARD

Everything possible is being done by the Government to prevent a grain blockade this season, and the present outlook is that for the first time for years the wheat of the western farmers will be marketed without serious congestion. Navigation will be kept open until the latest possible period, and Hon. J. D. Hazen has given orders to the Marine and Fisheries Department to put its whole equipment at work in assisting shippers in transporting wheat from the head of the lakes eastward.

A conference was held recently with representatives of the shipping interests on the Great Lakes, and they showed a willingness to co-operate with the Government and the Minister in preparing to do everything possible to make navigation safe after the time when ordinary water transportation usually ceases.

Arrangements have already been made in regard to lights, buoys, etc. A contract has also been made with the Great Lakes Dredging Co. of Port Arthur to have ice-breakers keep the harbors open as long as possible. Negotiations are also proceeding between the government, shipping men and insurance men for favorable rates for the prolonged season of navigation.

WILL REINTRODUCE HIGHWAYS BILL

The announcement that the Government intends to reintroduce the Canada Highways Improvement Act which was killed by the Liberal majority in the Senate at the close of the last session, shows that the Borden Government does not intend to be prevented by one setback from carrying into effect its pre-election pledges. The policy of federal aid to highways was an important feature of the platform which the people of Canala approved at the last general election in placing the present ministry in power. The bill introduced by Hon. Frank Cochrane last session was intended to make good the promise made to the people. The Liberal party in Parliament, by means of the Liberal majority in the Senate, succeeded in the dying hours of the session in preventing the passage of the Cochrane bill and the expenditure of one million dollars under it.

The amounts provided in the estimates on a population basis and lost to the provinces through the action of the Liberal Opposition, were as follows:—

Alberta	$ 52,189 90
British Clumbia	54,669 52
Manitoba	68,460 10
New Brunswick	49,019 86
Nova Scotia	68,576 90
Ontario	351,466 64
Prince Edward Island	13,059 70
Quebec	278,964 80
Saskatchewan	68,592 58

NEW ZEALAND READY

A cable from London tells us that the new battleship "New Zealand" has just been commissioned. The commissioning was hurried, the cable says, "probably because in the present state of European politics, every new pennant hoisted means additional support to British diplomatic arguments."

This battle-cruiser was built by the New Zealand Government, and is—after it has shown the flag in New Zealand ports—to be stationed in the home waters under the direct command of the Admiralty. It is now, of course, in the Home waters, and is already sustaining the dignity and prestige of the British Government in the midst of one of the most perilous and important crisis which has ever confronted us as an Empire.

The consequence of this is that, at the present moment, when the two great European "camps" are grinding their swords in each other's hearing, and the issue of "peace or war" is swinging hourly in the balance, New Zealand casts a vote for peace—peace with honor—while Canada remains [illegible] [illegible]. The Governments of Berlin and Vienna care nothing for Canada today. We may be going to do great things two or three years hence; but we could not fire a shot in a world-shaking war at this moment. New Zealand, on the other hand—little and comparatively poor New Zealand—can fire many a broadside from her Dreadnought-cruiser.

At the present time—as our readers know—Britain has a number of battleships in the East. They have been summoned there by the Balkan crisis. The consequence was that Germany was able to put in the North Sea the other day—for practice manoeuvres, of course— a great battle-fleet which was only one battleship short of the fleet which Britain had in commission to confront it. Under such conditions the timely arrival of New Zealand's battle-cruiser would have an appreciable effect. New Zealand is thus able to materially assist in the defence of her own safety at a time when it might be in danger, did the clouds darken suddenly in the East. Canada's safety is quite as much in danger; but we can do absolutely nothing to protect ourselves. Our national existence might be lost in a naval battle in the North Sea; and we could not strike a blow in our own defence.—Montreal Star.

WHY NOT INVESTIGATE

Some of our Liberal contemporaries are prone to demand investigations upon the slightest provocation, but fail to take the initiative. Listen:

The charge that a boy was abused, after arrest, by the North Toronto police must be thoroughly investigated. If the charge is true such punishment should be inflicted as will avert the danger of a repetition of the offence.—Globe.

Ottawa cannot afford to lie under the imputation that its officials are corrupt. The charge or insinuation that one man bought his way into office must be cleared up.—Kingston Whig.

The Macdonald election case in Manitoba must be thoroughly investigated. Where Governments are restrained by no constitutional limitations Governmental outrages must be promptly checked and exposed.—Toronto Globe.

Better get busy and start up the investigations, as the word MUST in each instance infers urgency of action.

Listen to the scrappings of two Toronto journalistic kids: "The Telegram declares that it would rather The Star opposed than suported the cause of public ownership. The son of a Canadian, resident in New Jersey, who refused to swear allegiance to the American flag and was promptly expelled by the trustees of the school in which he was a pupil, has had his action upheld by the State Educational Commission. "The boy's citizenship," was the verdict, "must follow his parents' until he is of age to choose for himself." This was the only reasonable decision. No one has ever thought of forcing United citizens of the United States, resident in Canada, to swear allegiance to the British flag, before they are allowed to enjoy ordinary privileges.—Edmonton Journal.

A Wonderful Case

THREE MONTHS IN HOSPITAL AND CAME OUT UNCURED.

ZAM-BUK CURED HIM IN FEW WEEKS.

Mr. Fred Mason, the well-known upholsterer and mattress manufacturer of St. Andrews, N.B., says:—

"I had eczema on my knee, which caused me terrible pain and inconvenience. The sore parts would itch and burn and tingle, and then when rubbed or scratched, would become very painful. When the knee got warm, it burned worse, and the itching and burning and smarting were almost unbearable. I tried various remedies, but got no better, so I decided to go to Montreal and take special treatment. I received treatment at the Montreal General Hospital for thirteen weeks, but at the end of that time I was not cured, and almost gave in. A friend advised me to give Zam-Buk a trial.

"Almost as soon as applied Zam-Buk stopped the itching and the irritation. I persevered with the balm, and it was soon evident that it would do me good. Each day the pain was reduced, the sore spots began to heal and by the time I had used a few boxes of Zam-Buk I was quite cured.

"Since then Zam-Buk has cured blood-poison in my finger, and at a time when my finger was in such a terrible condition that I feared it would have to be amputated."

For eczema, blood-poisoning, piles, ulcers, sores, abscesses, varicose ulcers bad leg, cold sores, chapped hands, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin injuries and diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal.

Adam and Eve Are Omitted

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—First copies of the revised edition of the Bible published by the American Baptist Publication Society, have reached the society's headquarters at No. 23 East Twenty-sixth street. "The new edition is a radical departure in its construction from the language used in the King James version.

In the new Bible the names "Adam and Eve" do not appear. Their place is taken by the words "man" and "woman," which is a direct translation of the old Hebrew names. The word "hell" is eliminated, "underworld" being inserted in its place.

Other great changes are made. The story of Jonah and the whale is changed so that the words "great fish"—as being a nearer interpretation of the ancient Hebrew—take the place of "whale." "Jehovah thy God" takes the place of "Lord thy God." "Carved" replaces "graven" and the word "immersed" in parentheses follows the word baptize in every instance.

In the new edition the Lord's Prayer becomes:—

"Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. They kingdom come, Thy will be done, as in Heaven so on earth. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven our debtors. And bring us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one. Amen."

Owing to its recent arrival none of the Baptist ministers seen would commit themselves to an expression of opinion. One of them when asked whether he thought the charm of the old English phraseology would not be spoiled by the alterations, replied that the aim of the society had been to produce an absolutely correct Bible, irrespective of any charm of language.

Grahame White To Fly Atlantic

LONDON, Nov. 21.—At the close of a flight which Claude Grahame-White took Tuesday with Ottava Kahn as a passenger, the aviator gave out particulars as to his plan to fly across the Atlantic.

"It has been my pet scheme for a long time past," he said, "but now I have completed plans for the machine and have commenced to build. It will be of one thousand horse power with four engines and six propellers. Each engine will be of 250 horse power and they will be so arranged as to be independent of each other, that is to say, if two engines break down the other two will be quite sufficient to drive the machine. We expect to do the journey from land to land in something between twenty and thirty hours. The machine is being built so as to remain in the air thirty hours. All depends on the weather and the course we take. At present we are undecided whether to go by way of the Azores or across to Newfoundland, but I expect the latter route will be chosen. The trip is arranged to take place in the summer although it is just on the cards that we may not make it until the autumn. The weather then will probably be more favorable but whenever we start I am reasonably sure of success."

AFTER COUGHING MONTHS

Brooklyn, N. Y., Woman Found Relief in Vinol.

Did you ever cough for a week? Then just think how distressing it must be to have a cough hang on for three months.

Mrs. Maria Primrose of 67 Newell st., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I had a very heavy cold which settled into a chronic cough which kept me awake nights for fully three months, and felt tired all the time because my rest was broken. The effect of taking your cod liver and iron remedy Vinol is that my cough is gone. I can now get a good night's rest and I feel much stronger in every way."

It is the combined action of the medicinal elements cods' livers aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron which makes Vinol so efficient for chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis—at the same time building up the weakened, run-down system.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. Red Cross Drug Store, J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

New War Scare

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Cablegrams received from China by local Chinese announce that the republic is preparing to go to war with Russia for the possession of Mongolia. The big secret societies which fostered the revolution have been exchanging despatches with President Yuan Shi Kai.

The Young China Association has opened subscription lists and lecturers have spoken at every Chinatown corner explaining the encroachments of the Czar's troops in the ancient Chinese territory.

Dispatches have been received here by Yow Gock Har, secretary to Fung Chi You, secretary of state of Yuan Shi Kai's cabinet, to the effect that an army of 60,000 has been mobolized in Pekin and that General Wong Hing, hero of the revolution, has been appointed commander.

According to a report General Wong Hing already has ordered his army north to Mongolia with instructions to establish military rule and drive Russian soldiers out.

1913 To Be a Year of Blood

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—A Paris cable says: It was Mme. De Thebes who last November predicted war in the Balkans, an epidemic and other strange things. Many have come true. Mme. De Thebes, referring to 1912, called it a black year.

Now her visions help her to predict that 1913 will be what she terms an Aurora year, or a year which will be a prelude to noble awakenings, but a year also of grave peril, which only those of superhuman courage can pass through successfully, for 1913 will be a year of blood.

Madame sees a new king in Italy and a new pope. Germany will stake her all, and she fears war.

Two Aviator Deaths in France

RHEIMS, France, Nov. 21.—Special—Two aviators were killed today, one, Andre Frey, at Rheims, and the other, Sub-Lieutenant Laurent, at Etampes.

Frey was well known on both sides of the water; he finished third in the international aviation race at Chicago in September of this year. Today he was undergoing military training and had just finished a regular practice flight. He stopped his engine at a height of about 800 feet and planed down beautifully until within 150 feet of the ground. Then suddenly the right wing of the monoplane shot up and the machine dropped to the earth. Frey was badly crushed. The cause of the accident is a mystery, as the aeroplane had been thoroughly tested and was apparently in perfect condition.

Lieut. Laurent and Sapper Chenu were making a flight near Etampes at a speed of 60 miles an hour when a squall caught the aeroplane as the pilot attempted to make a sharp turn, and dashed it to the ground with terrific force. Laurent was killed, but Chenu escaped with slight injuries.

Grocer's Clerk Kills Wife, Then Baby and Himself

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 21.—John Wood, a grocer's clerk, killed his wife and four-month-old baby with chloroform during the night and then ended his life in the same manner.

A note found by a thirteen-year-old daughter, Gladys, when she awoke today told of the crime and led to the discovery of the bodies. Family troubles are thought to have led to the crime.

LOST IN LONDON

Little Chinese Girl Was a Stranger But Found Friends

A Chinese girl, aged about fifteen, wearing the national costume of blue overalls, black trousers, grey striped coat, and cloth-corded hat, was found wandering about in Kensington late at night, and was admitted to the workhouse.

She was only three feet six inches in height, and her feet were bandaged according to the Chinese custom. She could not speak English, and was unable to indicate where her home was.

The girl had with her a case containing knives with which she performed some juggling tricks to the delight of the children inmates of the institution.

The police made inquiries, and it was established that her name was Wang Wang Winang, and that she lived with her uncle, Ching Kluel, at Limehouse. She had been in England only about a month.

New African Coinage

The report of the Departmental Committee appointed to inquire into the currency of the British West African Colonies and Protectorates announced that the recommendations of the committee were accepted by the Government. These recommendations are for the establishment of the British special silver currency, common to the British West African Colonies and Protectorates, and of a note issue, except possibly for Gambia.

Celery and lettuce and other salad plants, eaten raw, must be washed with especial care. They should be searched with particular care, leaf by leaf, for insects, washed in several waters and then wiped dry with a clean cloth and put in a cold place to become crisp. Otherwise there vegetables are not worth eating.

The prophet who predicts trouble nearly always hits it.

From Death's Jaws

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 21.—Five days and nights without sleep three days without water to drink, wet to the skin during the whole of that period on a helpless, waterlogged, dismasted schooner, and then, when hope had been abandoned and the men were crowded into the only remaining small boat, with huge seas carying them onto the rugged shores of Vancouver island, the welcome smoke of the Canadian fisheries cutter, William Jolliffe, appeared and nine sailors were snatched from the jaws of death. This was the experience of the crew of the American schooner Ekwood, whose members arrived here this morning. The schooner lies an abandoned wreck on Vancouver island. She had a cargo of lumber out of Bellingham, Wash., bound for San Pedro, Cal., and sailed on November 9.

The Reliable Remedy for Childrens' Colds

You cannot be too careful what cough medicine you give the children, for some of the remedies offered are anything but reliable.

NA-DRU-CO
Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne

is reliable, for it contains absolutely nothing harmful to even the children.

But don't take our word for it—ask your druggist or physician. To these men, in whom you justly place implicit confidence, we will gladly send on request a complete list of the ingredients in this or any other Na-Dru-Co preparation.

Keep a 25c. or 50c. bottle of this reliable remedy always on hand, and it will nip in the bud all your trouble with coughs and colds.

HAPPY THOUGHT

There is One Most Important Thing About a Stove

And that is this,—What heat value will it develop from the fuel you put into it?

Mind you, heat in the firebox does not count for anything. The heat must be in the oven or at the holes—where you need it for cooking.

So, when we say that from every ounce of fuel you put into a HAPPY THOUGHT you get the full return in heat value, we mean that you get something more than you get from other stoves.

A small fire in a HAPPY THOUGHT is equivalent to a big fire in a less efficient stove. It does more work. It saves you the difference in fuel.

That is the kind of saving that it pays you to invest in. A good stove is not a cheap article. It should be carefully selected. It should be chosen chiefly on this one point of greatest importance.

That is why a Quarter Million Canadian women use the HAPPY THOUGHT every day.

THE OLD WAY

The picture to the left shows the old familiar way of house-cleaning—you know it. The whole house turned upside down—tiring scrubbing with soap and water—an ineffective effort to remove the smears and dullness from the piano and polished woodwork—and the women-folk wearing dust-caps because the dust they drive from one place settles so thickly again that it would quickly dirty their hair. Is this cleanliness?

HOCKEY.

A meeting of the National Hockey Association will be held at the King Edward Hotel Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, when the resolutions placed before the league at the last meeting in Montreal will be discussed and voted upon.

Believing that two wrongs do not make a right, and that contract-breakers are not the kind of men they want, the Patricks have decided not to try to get any men who have signed 1913 contracts with the National Hockey Association, says the Victoria Colonist.

Along come Torontos with a list of stars, and Parkdale claim to have something under their hats. Toronto Canoe Club had a nice little junior outfit last year, and will make a jump into the senior ranks this year. A couple of the older senior clubs claim to have some of the paddlers' stars, but watch T.C.C. when the season opens. It is a pretty good bet that they will have the same bunch lined up that landed the junior honors for the canoeists.

At the annual meeting of the Parkdale Canoe Club hockey team it was decided to enter teams in the senior and junior divisions of the O.H.A. Frank Longstaff and R. W. Parker will attend to the seniors, while A. Cromar and W. S. Galloway will look after the juniors. The senior club will be one of the strongest that have ever represented the west end club in the O.H.A., and a big try will be made to place a winning junior team on the ice.

Percy La Sueur, the Ottawa goaler, says the N.H.A. is making a mistake in not installing seven-men hockey this year, particularly on account of their invasion of Toronto. "One year of seven-men hockey would have satisfied all the Toronto people of the quality of the professional game, and, when once won over, the six-men game could have then been tried. To introduce the six-men game there now, when there is so much opposition to professional hockey, looks poor policy to me."

Close followers of hockey in Winnipeg are wondering what kind of amateur hockey Calgary expects to put up this winter in an effort to build up a team which will capture the Allan Cup. It looks as if at least one manager was endeavoring to get a winning team at any cost, according to the assertion of one of Winnipeg's star players, who claims that he was offered $50 a week to play amateur hockey in Calgary this winter. It has been reported that several Ottawa boys are going to play hockey at Calgary this winter, so that it may be possible that these boys, too, are leaving their home city for more than a glimpse at some of the cowboys in Alberta.—Winnipeg Free Press.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21.—Bruce Ridpath of the Torontos, after his futile efforts to prevent Fred Taylor from going to the Pacific coast, made offers to several local amateurs, and is confident that he will secure two or three. He is after Jack Fournier, Harry Broadbent, Billy Smith, Angus Duford and others. Tommie Westwick, a brother of the famous "Rat" Westwick, may go to Toronto, but Broadbent and Fournier will likely remain here. Ronan and Darragh have until tomorrow to accept the terms of the Patricks, who have offered them $2,200 each, but the chances are that they will carry out their contracts with the Ottawas.

There was a meeting of the local club tonight, at which the crisis was discussed. The Ottawas realize that they are up against it, and that they will have to hustle to place a winner on the ice.

L. N. Bate of the Ottawa Executive stated tonight that Eddie Gerard had finally decided to remain an amateur. Gerard intended to jump to the professional ranks, but the Ottawa Football Club butted into the affair and succeeded in holding him for next year's team. A government position is said to have been the bait.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21—Developments followed one another thick and fast in the East v. West hockey fight yesterday. Bruce Ridpath arrived from Toronto in the morning and made a bold play on behalf of the Torontos, when he tried to land Fred Taylor, the former Ottawa coverpoint, who had decided yesterday an offer of $2,200 from the Pacific coast. Ridpath made a big offer to the "cyclone," but Taylor refused it and announced that nothing could induce him at this stage to change his mind about going west.

Later in the day Taylor was summoned before the team committee of the Ottawa Hockey Club and asked to give an account of himself. He repeated that he was going west, and the Ottawas raised their offer to $1,500. Taylor refused it and forthwith proceeded to the C.P.R. office, where he, with Carrol Kendall, accepted his ticket for the coast and made arrangements to leave Saturday morning. He says he will not play in the N.H.A. again under any circumstances.

RUGBY

Frank Shaughnessy has been offered a contract to coach McGill again next season and will accept it.

Laing, McGill's great outside wing, will play Billington's position at centre half next season. He is said to be a great punter.

For the match between representative teams of Austria and Hungary, played at Budapest on a recent Sunday, thirty thousand spectators were in attendance.

The motion to throw out last Saturday's Alert-Toronto game and have it replayed here was not seconded by Father Carr of St. Michael's college as stated, but by Percy Scott of the Parkdale club.

It's a big job that the Central "Y" team is undertaking in its "sudden death" game with Petrolea in the latter town. A victory for the Oil Town boys, who are Canadian junior champions, will give them a great chance to retain the honors.

The Royal Military College team looks best of the intermediate outfits for the Canadian championship. Another game such as the soldiers played in Toronto against University of Toronto seniors will beat either Ottawa or Hamilton aspirants for the intermediate title.

Varsity have notified the Argonauts that they will not play an exhibition game Saturday. It is said that in the event of the Alerts losing on Saturday to Torontos they will play off the deciding game with the Toronto fourteen either Wednesday or Thursday of next week, the winners to meet Argonauts in the Dominion final on Saturday week.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The prospects of an international university athletic meeting in America during the coming summer have become brighter. The athletes of Oxford and Cambridge Universities are largely in favor of such a contest.

Nothing definite will be done in the matter until the proposal comes formally before the Cambridge University Athletic Club and the Oxford University Athletic Club. The keenness of the athletes at the English universities, however, is such that it is believed the authorities will bring the scheme of another contest with the athletes of Harvard and Yale to maturity.

In the event of Oxford declining to participate it is likely that Cambridge will send a team to oppose the winners of the Harvard and Yale competitions.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—A meeting of the Canadian Rugby Football Union was held yesterday, when it was decided to adhere to the former order, viz., that McGill having defaulted to Argonauts in the semi-final, the oarsmen must stand ready to play the final game on the grounds of the champion team of the O.R.F.U. on Saturday, Nov. 30.

The Argonaut players held a meeting at Rosedale last evening after practice and decided to place themselves in the hands of the Canadian Union. The Argos will, therefore, play on the grounds of the team that survives the Alert-Toronto embroglio a week from next Saturday.

Should Toronto beat Alerts next Saturday, the teams will be tied, necessitating a play-off some time during the week.

LET HIM RAVE.

Odd things happen in New York. The other night Joseph Tattenham, a writer of short stories, opened the hall door of his apartment on lower Sixth avenue. As he did so he heard a queer noise within. Mr. Tattenham paused for the New York flat robber is apt to be a highly temperamental person if interrupted at his work Then he saw a shadowy form flit down the corridor and leap through a window.

"So," said Mr. Tattenham, "I lighted the gas and looked about to see what was up."

On a chair by his bed he found all of his clothes in a neat pile. Under the bed was a tattered suit belonging to some person who distinctly does not travel in Mr. Tattenham's set. Nothing was missing from the flat. He sat him down to consider. There came a timid tap at the door.

"Well?" said Mr. Tattenham, opening it to a shivering person, who had obviously removed the ragged suit Mr. Tattenham had found under the bed and had not had time to get into any of Mr. Tattenham's clothes. "Well?"

"Please, sir," said the shivering man, very meekly indeed. "Please, sir, may I have my clothes?"

"Are those youh clothes?" asked Mr. Tattenham, indicating the discarded garments by a gesture.

"Yes, sir," said the willowy individual in the hall. "You see, sir, I'm a little insane at times. And I'm afraid I entered your flat and took off my clothes while I was raving."

"Well," said Mr. Tattenham, brutally, "rave on."

And he closed the door.

Poor Law Children For Canada.

London, Nov. 22.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Giving evidence before the Dominion Royal Commission, which concluded its sitting yesterday, Earl Grey urged that the poor law children of England should be sent to Canada or other dominions. Insofar as Canada is concerned, he was satisfied they would be well cared for, and well placed. He opposed the suggestion that the cost of emigration should be borne by the Imperial Government, and thought the Dominion Government would be making a wise investment itself.

Earl Grey also made a strong appeal for the establishment of a central market in London, at which the produce of overseas dominions could be displayed and sold. Apart from the fiscal question, there was no doubt the people of England would prefer to buy goods from overseas kinsmen.

Stormy Session of A. F. of L.

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 22.—Protracted and excited debate occurred at yesterday morning's session of the American Federation of Labor over a portion of the report of the committee on the president's report.

The direct point of argument was the attitude of President Gompers during the recent campaign, in which the committee concurred. The so-called conservative and radical wings of the federation represented by delegates took sides on the question.

Max S. Hayes particularly assailed the committee's report. He declared he would not stand by the report, which, he said, favored the Democratic party.

Typhoid Patient's Death.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 22.—Sydney Maning, a tinsmith who was to have sailed Nov. 25 for the old country to see his widowed mother, is dead at the general hospital, where he had been a typhoid patient. At midnight Wednesday he was missed from his bed and was found outside, having climbed down the verandah. He died soon after.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

PARLIAMENT CONVENES

The Duke of Connaught Opens Legislative Session.

Speech From the Throne Refers to Recent Tour of the Governor-General, Growth of Revenue, Increase In Immigration and Coming Naval Bill—To Assist Provinces In Agriculture—Senatorial Additions.

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—The langurous charm of an Indian summer afternoon graced the ceremonies on Parliament hill which attended the formal opening of the second session of the twelfth Parliament.

Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia drove in state from Rideau Hall, escorted by a detachment of the Governor-General's Foot-Guards. The royal party was heartily cheered along the line of march, and at the entrance to the Parliament buildings, where several thousand people had assembled.

The floor of the Senate was given up almost entirely to smartly-gowned ladies prominent in the social world of Canada, and the galleries presented an appearance scarcely less brilliant. His Royal Highness wore a uniform of a field marshal, and the Prime Minister, who stood near the throne, wore the Windsor uniform.

After hearing the Governor-General's speech, the Commons returned to their own chamber and five new members were presented and took their seats.

Loud and prolonged applause from the Government benches welcomed Alex. Morrison, the victor of Macdonald, who succeeds Mr. Staples, now on the Grain Commission. He was presented by Hon. Robert Rogers and Hon. Mr. Roche.

The Opposition members had a counter-demonstration when Pierre Cardin, the Liberal who succeeds himself in Richelieu, was presented by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The ex-Premier, it was observed, addressed the Speaker in French.

The House then adjourned until Monday afternoon, when the debate upon the address will begin.

The speech from the the throne delivered by the Duke of Connaught alluded to the naval bill as follows:

"During the past summer four members of my Government, conferred in London with His Majesty's Government on the question of naval defence. Important discussions took place, and conditions have been disclosed which, in the opinion of my advisers, render it imperative that the effective naval forces of the Empire should be strengthened without delay. My advisers are convinced that it is the duty of Canada at this juncture to afford reasonable and necessary aid for that purpose. A bill will be introduced accordingly."

Alluding to his western trip, the duke said:

"It has been a source of the deepest satisfaction to me to see the almost universal prosperity which reigns throughout the Dominion and to witness the energy and enterprise which are shown in developing the rich resources of the land.

"It is most gratifying to observe that the trade of the Dominion is increasing rapidly and steadily, the aggregate trade for the last fiscal year being the largest on record. During the present year the same steady increase has been noted, and it is anticipated that the total volume of our trade for the present fiscal year will greatly surpass that of any previous year in our history.

"The revenues of the Dominion continue to expand, and in every branch of business and industry there is a remarkable activity which gives assurance of continued progress and prosperity

"A copious and welcome stream of immigration has poured into our country during the past summer. The volume of immigration during the present year is greater than during any corresponding period of our history, and in larger measure than usual it has been drawn from the British Isles.

"The labors of the husbandman have been blessed with an ample return, and, although in some districts the weather has been unpropitious for the harvest, it is expected that the total value of our field crops will be greater than in any previous year.

"Papers will be laid before you which embody trade arrangements that have been consummated between the Dominion and certain of His Majesty's possessions in the West Indies. It is hoped that these arrangements will porve of great advantage not only to these possessions, but to Canada as well. A bill will be introduced for the purpose of carrying this agreement into effect."

After a reference to the coming naval bill, he continued:

"It is abundantly evident that the highways of Canada constitute an important part of an efficient scheme of transportation. The necessity for improving our existing facilities in this regard is manifest, and a bill will be introduced for the purpose of enabling the Dominion to co-operate with the provinces in the accomplishment of this most desirable purpose.

"It is satisfactory to know that the proposal of my Government to co-operate with the Governments of the various provinces in promoting the agricultural industry has met with hearty approval. The appropriations which were made last session in connection therewith have proved to be of marked benefit to the country.

"After a careful study of the whole question, my advisers are convinced that co-operation with the provinces on well-defined terms and conditions will achieve the best results along the lines of agricultural instruction. Any such policy, to be effective, must be continuous. Accordingly a bill will be introduced by which a substantial amount of money will be set apart from the consolidated revenue fund for the purpose of assisting the provinces for a term of years in this highly important national work.

"My Government has succeeded in securing certain reductions in cable rates, and will continue its efforts to obtain further reductions.

"Under existing legislation the charters of the banks will expire on the first day of July next. A bill revising and extending these charters will be submitted for your consideration and approval.

"Several other bills will be submitted, including measures providing for increased representation of the Provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba to the Senate.

"Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

"The accounts for the last fiscal year will be laid before you. It will be satisfactory to you to learn that the revenue has been ample to cover both ordinary and capital expenditure.

"The estimates for the next fiscal year will be submitted at an early date. They have been prepared with due regard on the one hand for economy, and on the other hand for the necessary development of the resources of the Dominion.

"Hon. Gentlemen of the Senate:

"Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

"I invite your earnest consideration of the subjects to which I have alluded, and I invoke the blessings of Divine Providence upon your deliberations."

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

A grant of $15,000 will be made by the city of Hamilton to the centennial celebration committee.

Sir Thomas Lipton's proposal for an international yacht race at San Francisco in 1915 was accepted yesterday.

It is suggested that the new Berlin city hall be placed midway between Berlin and Waterloo, so that municipal amalgamation would result.

Lying dead in a pasture field with her throat cut clear across, a young and valuable mare belonging to Mr. Cecil Kirk of Maplewood was found yesterday. The culprit is unknown.

C.P.R. Men Get Board.

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes have renewed their application to the Minister of Labor for a board of conciliation and investigation, but limited in its scope to enquire into certain differences existing for some time between them and the C.P.R. Co. and for such limited purpose a board has been established, and on the recommendation of the applicants the Minister has appointed J. A. McDonald of Halifax a member of the board.

The company will now be asked to recommend a member, and if it refuses or fails to do so, the Minister will appoint one on its behalf.

The investigation will forthwith proceed. There are grounds for hope that a fair and equitable conclusion may be reached by the board which will prove acceptable to both parties to the dispute.

AGAINST BUSINESS TAX.

Manufacturers Make an Attack on the Present System.

Toronto, Nov. 22.—It was the manufacturers' turn yesterday to take some business-like "cracks" at the present system of taxation in Ontario. A deputation from the Canadian Manufacturers' Association appeared before the special committee appointed to revise the Assessment Act, and gave their reasons for holding that the policy now in force in some cases was not adequate. Their principal objection was to the business tax, which they considered bore too heavily on the manufacturer. They also suggested a heavier tax on unimproved land as a remedy for the practice of holding such land for speculative purposes, while adjoining property was increasing its value. Besides the manufacturers, two American experts and a couple of single-taxers imparted information as to how to solve the intricate problem.

Hon. W. J. Hanna, chairman of the committee, at the conclusion of the session, adjourned until Dec. 19. Mr. Hanna commented that in his opinion the two important features of the Ellis-Rowell bills pointed at local option for municipalities. This was a matter of very much difference of opinion. He had grave doubts that the local option idea would work out satisfactorily. Mr. Ellis said that he introduced his bill merely from the educational standpoint—to get valuable information so as to correct the present state of affairs.

H. H. Stevens, M.P. for Vancouver, was asked to impart some information about the success of the single tax in the Terminal City. Mr. Stevens said that there had been great building activity as the result of exemption of improvements. The land was not assessed for more than 50 per cent. of its value. He considered that taxation was a matter that should be dealt with locally, as one system might suit one particular municipality and not another. "Despite the criticism of F. C. Wade, K.C., of Vancouver," he said, "the single tax system was working out satisfactorily."

CANADIANS WIN.

Hon. Adam Beck Carries Off Blue Robbons In New York.

New York, Nov. 22.—Canadians figured at the horse show yesterday when Hon. Adam Beck's two hunters, Sir Edward, ridden by Thomas Smith, and Sir Thomas, ridden by A. Clave, won the blue ribbon for the best performance of a pair of hunters ridden abreast over the jumps. Miss Dunn's Cousin Jack, ridden by W. Williams, and Comet, ridden by A. Naylor, came second, with the pair owned by Lieut. H. Mathon of the Royal Holland Dragoons, Powerful, ridden by Lieut. Mathon, and Held, ridden by Lieut. Figaliga, in third place. Captain Kilgour and Captain Rodden were among the other Canadians whose mounts figured in this event.

Hon. Adam Beck again figured when, riding Sir Edward, he took second place in the contest for qualified hunters ridden by amateurs. Major Kilgour of the Queen's Own Rifles on Jap, came a cropper over the head of his mount, and it took a score of grooms to catch the flying horse. Major Kilgour's Touraine, however, ridden by H. Blake, was placed third. Algoma, exhibited by the Blenheim Farm, and ridden by W. R. Abell, won the blue ribbon in this event.

May Remove Embargo.

London, Nov. 22.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—An influential deputation waited upon Premier Asquith in the Commons last evening on the question of the embargo on cattle at British ports. The Premier promised that in conjunction with the Presdent of the Board of Agriculture he would consider all points raised with a view to removal of restrictions at the earliest possible moment.

A member of the deputation informed the C.A.P. that they expect the embargo will be removed within the next month.

Brutal Murder.

Warsaw, N.Y., Nov. 22.—The body of Frank Bentley, who has been missing since Saturday, was found yesterday buried in a shallow grave in the woods near here. Both legs had been chopped off above the knees, the clothing burned off and the body was charred.

Death of William P. Hudson, Ex-M. P. P.

In the death of Mr. William P. Hudson, ex-M.P.P., which occurred yesterday afternoon, Belleville lost a much respected and estimable citizen. Some six years ago the deceased was the victim of a slight paralytic stroke and since that time he had been in failing health. His condition of late had been such that his demise was not unexpected.

Mr. Hudson was born in the township of Thurlow on the 13th of January, 1841, being a son of the late Mr. Charles Hudson, who was engaged in the carriage business at Roslin. Deceased succeeded his father in the business and carried it on successfully until 1885, when he retired from business and moved into the city where he has since resided, being engaged in the insurance business. For some years Mr. Hudson represented th township of Thurlow in the County Council as a Councillor and Deputy Reeve. In the year 1883 he successfully contested East Hastings for the Ontario Legislature and remained the member until 1894, when he retired from active political life. Deceased was for years Treasurer of the East Hastings Agricultural Socity and was for a long time President of the Conservative Association of that riding. For a number of years since coming to Belleville Mr. Hudson was a member of the Board of Education and last year filled the important position of Chairman with credit to himself and dignity to the Board. At the time of demise he was still a member of the Board.

Deceased was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, having been for years an Elder and Superintendent of the Sunday School. In fraternal societies he was a Mason and a member of the A.O.U.W. Two years ago, namely, in November, 1910, Mrs. Hudson passed away. Surviving is one son, William H. and two daughters, Misses Anie M. and Harriet A., all at home. One brother, Dr. Hudson of Roslin, and one sister, Mrs. Elias Ketcheson of Wallbridge, are still living. Mr. Hudson was a man, beloved by all who knew him, and his demise will be sincerely regretted by a host of friends. To those who are called upon to mourn the less of a beloved father will be extended the sincere sympathy of all citizens, and in this sympathy The Intelligencer unites.

Schepps is at Liberty

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Sam Schepps, one of the four informers whose testimony resulted in the conviction of Charles Becker and the four gunmen for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, was discharged from custody to-day. He had been held on a technical charge of vagrancy. Schepps refused to divulge his plan for the future. The time for the release of Webber, Vallon and Rose, the other informers, has not been made public by the district attorney's office.

ANNUAL BANQUET AT LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

The progressive spirits in the Senior Membership had the monopoly of the Banqueting Room in the Association Building last night. There is no question about it, but that the new building has a delightful provision for well handling these functions.

Between six and seven o'clock many young men gathered. At seven o'clock they sat down to a magnificent spread provided by the Ladies of the splendid Auxiliary. Mr. D. V. Sinclair acted as Toastmaster. At the head of the table with him sat Mr. J. W. Hopkins, the genial secretary of the Central Y.M.C.A, Yonge street, Toronto. Mr. Hopkins represents an Association with 6,000 members. Their new $350,000 building on College street will be ready for occupancy next season. At the table were also seated Rev. W. G. Clarke, Vice-President of the Ministerial Association, and Messrs. A. E. Bailey, M. H. Mowry, P. C. McLaurin, B. A., and Mr. Hess.

After ample justice had been done to the variety of good things, the toastmaster called upon Mr. Gilbert of Sherbrooke for an instrumental selection. In response Mr. Gilbert gave the "International Limited"—a selection of his own composition, which created an insistent demand for an encore.

Mr. Sinclair then introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Hopkins, who chose as his theme "The Association as a vital movement."

His address was replete with varied personal experiences, and full of inspiration. He considered it was a great joy to live in these days. The privilege of assisting budding manhood to greater achievements comes now many times every day. We cannot afford to miss the opportunities that are afforded in a institution of this kind.

This splendid building should be sought by crowds of young men. Mr. Hopkins congratulated Belleville on accomplishing what they sought for years. Now, the biggest thing is to use it to its full limit. Mr. Hopkins was followed by Rev. Mr. Clarke, Mr. Clapp, Mr. MacLaurin and Mr. M. H. Mowry, who formally set in motion an eight day membership hustle, for 100 new members. The following teams were then elected:

Jas. Alexander, Capt.—Mr. Boyle, Geo. Ketcheson, S. Joyce, E. Woodcock, Edgar Stapeley, J. G. Lindsay, Will Finkle, J. C. Moynes, P. Bell.

Mr. Wauchope, Capt.—Clifford Snell, Albert Wannacott, Brent Moore, Geo. Thompson, N. Thompson, R. White, C. McBride, H. Elvins, F. Mack, R. Rowland, Will Bone, C. White, Messrs. Montgomery, Breckenridge and McAllister.

Mr. Gilbert, Capt.—Bert McCoy, Mr. Harvey, Wm. Wannacott, Roy Moon, Mr. Marston, Arthur Bell, Mr. Fritz, Mr. Treverton.

ROYAL APPROVAL GIVEN TO MEMORIAL FUND.

King George and Queen Mother Alexandra have been graciously pleased to approve of the project to raise a fund of one million dollars, to be known as the King Edward Memorial Fund for Consumptives. The late King was deeply interested in the fight against tuberculosis, and the trustees of the National Sanitarium Association decided that it would be a fitting tribute to his memory to secure a sum of money which would ensure the work in Ontario being carried on more energetically and effectively. The first shots are now being fired in the campaign which is confidently expected to result in the whole fund being raised by the end of the present year, and strong committees have been formed to direct the movement. The lands, buildings and equipment already acquired by the Sanitarium Association are included in the fund at a valuation of $400,000, and as the city of Toronto is expected to give $200,000, this leaves $400,000 to be raised, by public subscription. The purposes to which the fund will be devoted include the payment of an accumulated debt, additional fire-proof buildings, Nurses' Home, improved water and sewerage system, etc. The balance will be invested as an endowment fund for maintenance.

Isn't it awful the way some people live? Six children, not the sign of an automobile, and grapefruit only when they have company!

Y. W. C. T. U. Notes

This winter the Y.W.C.T.U. will hold their evening meetings on the fourth Tuesday in the Baptist church S.S. room instead of in private homes as formerly; only press notices will be sent out. A collection will be taken to defray expenses of heating, lighting, etc. Watch for notices of meetings each month.

A good programme is planned for the winter. Next Tuesday evening a debate, "Banish the Bar vs. Local Option" will be given by Albert College and the High School under the direction of Mr. J. R. Staples, B.A., and Miss Emily Guest, M.A.. Music and reading all given by young men.

The January meeting will be by girls, and for girls and women only; an address on Hygiene and Heredity.

In February, Scientific Temperance will be presented. The date is not settled, but Mrs. Hyslop, "the lassie from the heather-land" is expected to give address on popular topics.

Flower Mission, Franchise, Anti-Narcotics, Systematic Giving and Lumber Camp Work will have a place on the later programes.

The new year will revive medal contests. A number will be held in the different churches. The public are cordially invited to all these entertainments and co-operation in our work would be appreciated by the 'Y.'

The following are the officers for the year:—

Hon. Pres.—Mrs. John Williams.

President—Mrs. Alex Ray.

1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. S. L. Campbell.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Fred Henry.

Rec. Sec.—Miss M. Reeves.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Land Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within 9 miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him, by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Who's that knocking at the kitchen door?

Why, it's Mrs. Edwards round again—she's always ready to lend a hand with the cooking. That nourishing home-made Irish soup of hers is a real dish-of-all-work—useful in a hundred ways.

It's fine and tasty by itself. It's the secret of a savoury sauce. It's the making of a made dish. And, to bring out the goodness of your own soup and gravies and hashes and meat puddings there's nothing like adding

EDWARDS' DESICCATED SOUPS

Prime beef and the finest of Irish vegetables—that's what Mrs. Edwards puts in it; nothing but what's pure and delicious. As there is no strong added flavouring, it will blend perfectly with any other soup. Remember to boil it for half an hour.

5c. per packet.

Edwards' Desiccated Soups are made in three varieties—Brown, Tomato, White. The Brown variety is a thick, nourishing soup prepared from beef and fresh vegetables. The other two are purely vegetable soups.

Lots of dainty new dishes in our new Cook Book. Write for a copy post free.

FOR WOMEN ONLY.

That is the nature of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—the one remedy for women which contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs. Made from native medicinal forest roots. Dr. Pierce tells its every ingredient on the bottle-wrapper. Prominent physicians and some of the best medical authorities endorse these ingredients as being the very best known remedies for ailments and weaknesses peculiar to women.

MRS. COFFEY.

This is what MRS. GENETTI E. COFFEY, of Longstreet, Ky., says: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you what your medicines have done for me. I was a great sufferer for six years from a trouble peculiar to women, but I am thankful to say, after taking four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I am not bothered with that dreadful disease any more. I feel like a new woman. When I first wrote you for advice I only weighed 115 pounds—now I weigh 135.

"I thank you very much for your kindness. You have been as a father to me in advising me what to do, so may God bless you in every effort you put forth for good.

"I hope this testimonial will be the means of some poor suffering woman seeking health."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition, answers hosts of delicate questions about which every women, single or married ought to know.

KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER

By C. J. CUTCLIFFE HYNE

"It's disgustingly awkward," said Carter frowning. "Of course every penny I have in the world would be as much yours as it ever had been mine, but the fact is, my dear, I've paid it all away as it came. You see in a way I was a sort of bad egg before I got a billet out here on the Coast, where, I suppose, if you come to look at it, here are small opportunities of roystering. Besides, with Mr. Smith always before one as an example of what not to be, it does not take very much resolution to keep straight. Anyway, in ancient days I ran up all the debts I could get tick for, and I landed in the poor old Pater for a lot more than a younger son's share. Well, what with selling curios through that old blackguard Balgarnie on the M'poso (who I know robs me of half the proceeds), and commission on our turnover at Malla-Nulla, which has increased a lot since I've been there (till of course this row cropped up), and my small bit of regular screw, although I've made a very decent income, and I've taken a bit of pride in paying off the old debts with ten per cent. of interest added. I knew that extra ten per cent. would tickle some of them frightfully. It was just that chunk of interest that cleaned me out down to the bone, and I chucked it in because Ithought one could not possibly want hard cash down here. What idiots men are to let themselves run short of money! However, I shall have another quarter's screw due in a couple of manths' time and in the meanwhile you must go to the Islands on tick."

"You're a dear good boy, but it can't be done. I shall stay on here and make the best of things."

"You will do nothing of the kind, young woman. You will travel on a Maderia chair in a palatial surf boat as far as Monk River as we just now arranged, and then I shall walk on board the B. and A. boat with you, and explain to the purser who you are, and everything will be as right as ninepence."

She looked at him with full eyes. 'You make things difficult for me.'

"Not a bit of it. I'm the man that is going to shoulder the difficulties."

"Oh, you didn't know it. But if you asked a favor for my father's daughter from the purser of the Secondee—she is the boat that is due—you would get an unkind answer. We're in debt all round, and I'm afraid he didn't behave very well to either the purser or the captain of the Secondee. Now, please do not press men any more. I stay here at Smooth River factory."

George Carter hit the table with his fist. "Then I stay, too. The da Silvas will put me up, and if they object, I'll turn them into the bush and live in their house alone. Malla-Nulla must look after itself."

"What will Mr. K. say to that?"

"He will aprove. K's a tough nut in business matters, but he's a man all through."

'Is he?' said the girl with a queer smile. "I dont agree with you."

"One may not at the moment like the way he hustles one along in his letters,' said Carter stoutly, 'but he is a man all through, and if he was to get to know how things are fixed here, and to hear I'd stuck to my own job at Malla-Nulla and left you in the lurch at Smooth River, he'd fire me on-time, even if he had to get a steamer specially stopped to land his mail. No, K. O'Neill would have no use for brutes of that description in his employ. Naw, if you wil be so very nice my dear, as to pick up that swizzle-stick and make me a good grippy cocktail, when I have had that I'll go out and do what I can to discourage the Okky men if they see fit to pay a call."

Now, his Majesty the King of Okky once boasted to a West African official that he could put 20,000 spearmen into the field, but there is no doubt that this was an over-estimate. Moreover many of the Okky troops carried flintlock guns and matchets in place of the spear, and others again were bowmen, and still others wielded the Dahomey axe. But his Majesty was a parvenu king who had fought his way to the throne, and he saw to it that there was no inefficiency in his War Office. He made the conditions of service sufficiently pleasant to tempt in the fighting Moslemin from the Hausa country, and these fine soldiers of fortune gave the needful stiffening to his own pagan levies.

Then, also, the King of Okky made full use of the great cult of ju-ju. The average West African king is completely under the thumb of the ju-ju men, and if he is not actually their nominee and puppet he knows that if he runs at all counter to their wishes and policy, he will die some frantic death devised by the cleverest poisoners on earth. But King Kallee the First was not only King of Okky but he was also Head Ju-ju man of that mysterious state, or as it is sometimes written, Head Witch-doctor. He could, when he chose, hale a subject from his dwelling and pin him to the Okky City crucifixion tree for no further reason than his kingly will. He could also cause a piece of fluttering rag, or a bunch of hen's feathers to be tied above a subject and all his house hold would not dare to pass the charm; nor would anyone else dare to have communion among whom they had lived; and no one thought of raising the breath of objection. The King had put ju-ju on one of his own subjects, and that was all.

Moreover the King having set eyes on Laura Slade, wished to instal her in a wing of the great mud palace of Okky as his wife. So far, throughout life, when he had created a wish fulfilment followed as a matter of course, be the means what they might. In his demands for Laura, Kallee was at times amazed at his own moderation. He had aproached Slade (who to him was the girl's proprietor) just as one native gentleman might approach another and inquired her price. Slade, who could not give a decisive answer even to such a preposterous matter as this, temporized after his usual custom. The King naturally saw in this a scheme to enhance the girl's price and displayed royal munificence. He would pay Slade a thousand puncheons of palm oil and a thousand bags of rubber, and two thousand bags of kernels; and when Slade waived this aside and spoke of his daughter's reluctance for matrimony Kalle spoke of the splendor in which his chief queen would live. Slaves in all abundance, cloth as fine as silk, ornaments of gold, and an American alarm clock should be hers; her food should be coos-cousii of the finest, her drink should be Heidsieck of a vintage year exclusively. All the affairs of State should be exhibited for her approval, and even his two brass cannon should be housed in her apartments. The King showed himself to be the royal lover in lavish perfection, and Slade could not bring himself to cut short the offer and tell him that the whole thing was impossible. He temporized and congratulated himself each time the matter came up on having got rid of the King without rupture of their friendly relations.

However, the royal patience, which had never been strung out to such a length before, reached its breaking strain that day at Malla-Nulla under circumstances already recorded, and what the King could not obtain by this new diplomacy he very naturally made up his mind to get hold of by methods which were more native to his experience.

Being moreover a strategist with a good deal of sound elementary skill, he did not give the enemy time to bring in reinforcements after the first news of danger. Kwaka's embassy was a reconnoitering expedition as much as anything, and the detail that the brazen Kwaka should be scared out of his seven senses by the man whose red head the King had already ordered for a palace ornament, was a small thing which stood beyond his calculation. A force of 500 picked men lay in bivouac a bare five miles inland from the factory; the ju-ju signs on the bush roads protected these from all espionage; and when night fell, a ju-ju man who was the King's special dispensation against those ghosts which all West African natives know haunt the darkness. So they advanced to the attack through the gloom of the steaming forest shades, those of them who were pagans with high spirit and fine hopes of loot, and those of them who were Moslemin filled with vague fear which they gleamed from Kwaka's hints.

Now Carter did not fall into the usual Englishman's trick of despising his enemy. Indeed he had that figure of 20,000 fighting men firmly lodged in his head, and short of the opportune arival of a British gunboat, expected soner or later a furious fight. But he reckoned that Kwaka would have to go back to Okky City with his report, and afterwards return from thence with an attacking force; and he counted also on the African's fear of ghosts, and looked with confidence to no disturbance during the hours of darkness.

So although he worked the sweating factory hands at high pressure in piling up puncheons and cases, and bales of cloth, and sacks of salt into a substantial breastwork, he went to bed himself that night and felt, as he tucked in the edge of the mosquito bar, that few white men on the Coast had ever earned better a spell of sleep.

It was 2 a. m. when the Okky yell and the crash of a volley of pot-leg woke him, and he leaped up and through the gauze in one jump. He ran out onto the verandah, and met there Laura Slade. She was dressed and had in her hand the cheap Skipton revolver which he had given her and towards the purchase of which his father had once contributed a hard-to-spare ten shillings out of the whole half guinea that it cost. Moonlight poured down upon them pure and silvery from a clear night overhead, but all the land below up to the level of the verandah was filled with a mist that was white and thick as cotton wool. In this fog invisible black men screamed and yelled and cursed, and occasionally there came to them the red glare, and the roar, and the raw black-powder-smoke smell of the flintlocks.

POULTRY RAISING AS A PROFITABLE INVESTMENT

At a regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Poultry Association held last evening in the police court room a large number of members were in attendance and the meeting was both interesting and profitable. Prof. Elford of Guelph, who is thoroughly versed in the raising and care of chicks, gave an address full of valuable information.

Previous to the talk some business was transacted. It was decided that the prize list for the poultry show to be held here during January would be published as soon as possible and the prizes are to be $1 for 1st; 50c. for 2nd, and 25c. for 3rd. A fee of 25c. will be charged for entrance. The prospects are that it will be a most successful exhibit. Already a goodly sum has been secured and some special prizes have been arranged for.

Mr. C. Wilmot, President of the Association, occupied the chair.

After the business had been completed Prof. Elford was called upon and was most cordially received. In his opening remarks he intimated that he desired all present to ask questions and his request was complied with. The Prof. gave a practical talk rather than a set address. He stated that it was a pleasure to address the members of the Association, and he had no doubt but that the proposed poultry show to be held here would be a decided success and it would also prove beneficial in many respects. The Prof. said that in the poultry business there was the fancier and the utility man, both of which were essential. There was no doubt that the bottom of the poultry business was the commercial end, and to obtain that end was the desire of all who were at all interested in the chicken business. Prices to-day were fancy for poultry. The speaker gave as an example the case of a chicken fancier not one hundred miles from Belleville who had refused $1000 for a cockerel. There was money in poultry if persons go at the business in the right way. Common sense and brains are demanded in the poultry business. The production of eggs comes first and is the basis of poultry keeping. How to get good eggs is an important matter. If we have the right kind of management we can get good poultry, and naturally, good eggs will be the result. We must have the inclination and some experience in the poultry business to make it a success. An important matter is the breed. The breed you may like the best is not always the most profitable. You must have a breed suited to the climate. It is a great mistake many people make in sending away one hundred and ever one thousand miles for a certain kind. Get from your neighbor fowls which are acclimated. While we must have the right breed, we must also have the proper strain. What is a strain? By breeding from fowls that are heavy layers the tendency is to get more eggs than breeding from fowls that are not heavy layers. We should have a system of feeding pullets to force them to lay. We do not expect to breed from them the first year. The time for hatching was referred to. The time we want to have egg-producing fowls is when eggs are dear. As a rule chicks should be hatched early. You cannot hatch chicks in June and expect them to lay in October. Hatch them early, and as the season progresses, force them on. He had Rocks and Wyandottes laying when four months and ten days old, but the eggs were small, and the eggs did not increase much in size. It was not a good plan to have them mature too early. The best producers of eggs are to be found in pullets which begin to lay when six months old. The speaker then described minutely how an egg is produced by a hen, the laying qualities of a hen, and how to house them. A glass front for a hen-house was in his opinion the best. The idea held by some that the warmer the house the better, was not correct. The cooler the house the better will be the results. He disapproved of the idea of having a ventilator at the top of the hen-house. The best ventilation is not through artificial ventilators, as they cause draughts which are injurious to fowls. He advocated hav- a burlap window that can be opened or closed at will. In referring to the feeding of laying hens the Prof. said that a laying hen could not be fed too much, but at the same time they should be fed judiciously and at stated times. Cooked food, he claimed, did not pay for the cooking. His feed would be one-third whole corn, one-third wheat and one-third barley, buckwheat or some other grain. He then spoke at some length on the shipment of one-day chicks, which was getting quite popular. He instanced a case of 100 one-day chicks being shipped from Stratford to Medicine Hat, and only one died. Of the remainder 96 reached maturity. Custom hatching was also referred to. This was not a new industry, as it was in vogue in Egypt long before the Saviour's time. Many poultry associations procure a large incubator and hatch chicks for their patrons. This might be a profitable investment for an association. In some places custom hatching was carried on for nine months out of the year.

A number of questions were asked, all of which were answered satisfactorily.

On motion of Mr. T. E. Ketcheson, seconded by Mr. W. J. Thompson, a vote of thanks was tendered to Prof. Elford for his address.

Austria is Still Preparing For War

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—The Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, was warmly greeted at the railroad station on his arrival here today, by the Kaiser, the Foreign Minister, Von Kinderlen-Waechter, and a brilliant staff. He came to discuss the Balkan situation.

Unconfirmed reports were current here that Austria is about to make a naval demonstration against Servia in Albanian waters.

Despite efforts at secrecy, Austrian troops are also known to be moving toward the Russian frontier, according to the "Tageblatt," evidently in readiness to invade the Czar's territory in the event Austria's resort to force against Servia and Russia's interference in the Servians' behalf.

Important bridges throughout Austria have been placed under military guard. The "Tagblatt" adds, and double sentries have been stationed on the Danube bridges at Vienna and Budapest as a precaution against attempts to blow them up.

Roumania Details What She Wants

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Roumania has communicated to the Austrian government the main outlines of her claims in the Balkan rearrangement. These, according to a Bucharest despatch to the Daily Telegraph, include the rectification of the Dobrudja frontier, comprising practically half of the Rustchak quadrilateral.

In the event of the formation of an Albanian state the whole region comprised between Monastir and Ochrida shall belong to Albania, as this district is populated by people of Roumanian origin, they to be assured liberty of religion and language.

Roumania further demands a concession for a railway between the Danube and the Adriatic Sea, offering to advance the money necessary for its construction and for carrying on the service.

Austro-Hungary Reserves Called Out

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The first classes of the reserves of six Austro-Hungarian army corps have been called to the colors, according to a news agency despatch from Vienna.

Three of these army corps are stationed in the north and three in the south-east of the Austro-Hungarian empire.

Over a Thousand Deaths Result of Mexican Disaster

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 22.—Late reports from the state of Mexico, received today, place the number of dead as the result of Tuesday's earthquake at more than 1,000. Every building in the city of Acambay was demolished.

More than one hundred persons were worshipping in the church when the structure crashed down on the congregation and all were buried in the wreckage. Half of the bodies have not yet been recovered.

Other towns in the northern part of the state are reported to have been destroyed and hundreds killed or injured.

A great hill in the centre of the stricken district has turned into a volcano, and today was smoking and throwing up great masses of rock, which is crashing into the village at the foot of the hill.

Scientists here today declared that the district is a new earthquake centre, which will constantly menace Mexico City, as it is less than fifty miles away.

Slight shocks have been felt at intervals since the big quake on Tuesday, and the district is being rapidly depopulated.

Deer Found In The Red Coat

While hunting, about the second week in November, Mr. Sanford Card came across a deer which had been shot and hung up in a tree by some nimrod. It was still in the "red coat," and as thin as a deer is usually found in June. Mr. Card has killed hundreds of deer but he says this is the first time he ever saw one in the "red coat" in November. The animal had evidently been injured early in the season, and was not in a healthy condition.—Bancroft times.

Reasons Why The Turks Stand Out

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Daily Telegraph explains that the Moslem law provides that no part of the Khalif's possessions shall be abandoned except in cases of irresistible compulsion. Hence the Council's rejection of the Bulgarian terms was based on this law and was suggested by the successful resistance the Turks have made at Tchataldja.

Another factor that influenced the decision was the report of the medical staff that the cases of cholera among the troops had diminished 40 per cent.

Diplomatic circles, says the correspondent, believe that the struggle will be prolonged unless the allies land troops in the Gulf of Saros, which is considered not improbable.

The Constantinople correspondent of the Daily Mail says that an attack from the rear on the Dardanelles forts, with the co-operation of the Greek fleet, trying to force the Straits, seems imminent.

Died of Injuries

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 22.—Three days ago J. J. Anderson, who resides on a farm at northern boundary of St. Catharines, while passing through his stable was struck by one of the horses, which dealt him a kick on the face, braking his jawbone, cutting his neck and tearing open the larynx. His condition gradually grew worse and he was removed to the hospital, where he died this morning.

Anderson, who lived at Huntsville for 35 years, came to St. Catharines five years ago. A widow and nine children survive.

INTERESTING TALK BY JAPANESE MISSIONARY

A very interesting talk on missionary work in Japan was given in Christ Church Parish Hall last evening, by Miss Bowman, a missionary in that country but at present in this country on a furlough. The speaker dwelt to some extent on the modes and customs of the Japanese, illustrating the same with many views which were thrown on the screen. She explained many interesting points pertaining to this work, as conducted by the Canadian Missionary Association under the auspices of the Church of England. The work is extensive, and Miss Bowman, in her convincing manner made all those present feel the importance of furthering the work by increasing the missionary corps in the field.

In the course of her remarks, she touched upon the method of training necessary to equip a candidate for this calling, covering a language course of from two to three years, and learning the customs of the people in general, before the missionary is fitted for active work.

Miss Bowman said that while the Japanese are strict adherents to the gods of Buddah and Shinto, great progress has been made in spreading the gospel of Christianity among the Japanese, especially among the children. Various grades of schools from the kindergarten up to and including the high school, have been established, and doing good work, and in this way, the missionaries are able, through the children to reach the parents. Many of the product of the schools have enrolled in the teaching corps, and have given valuable service to the missionaries in their Christian labors. At the close of the tal, Miss Bowman read a very interesting letter which she had received from one of her scholars in Japan, the same showing in a very pronounced way the sincerity in which the Japanese have embraced Christianity. The lecture in a general way was extremely interesting, and enjoyed by all present. After a silver collection had been taken for the benefit of the work, the evening's entertainment came to a close with singing "God Save the King", and the benediction by the Rector.

Asquith Says European Nations Are United For Peace.

British Premier and Nationalist Leader Appear on the Same Platform at Nottingham—In Expectation of a Suffragette Disturbance Extraordinary Precautions Are Taken—Diplomatic Situation Unchanged.

Nottingham, Eng., Nov. 23.—The unusual spectacle of Liberal and Nationalist leaders on the same platform at a political meeting was witnessed last night when Premier Asquith and John Redmond addressed a great audience here on home rule, and the Premier also dealt with the war in the Balkans and other subjects of interest.

Fears that there might be a suffragette outbreak during the meeting, resulted in the most complete preparations ever undertaken here to preserve the peace. Almost the entire police force was on duty in the hall and its neighborhood, and a large body of officers of the law was held in reserve in the basement of the building, where the meeting was held.

Mr. Asquith's reference to the war in Southeastern Europe was very diplomatic and threw no new light on the situation. Recalling his speech at the Guild Hall in London, Nov. 9, in which he made the statement that he believed it to be the unanimous opinion of Europe "that the victors should not be robbed of the fruits which cost them so dearly," Mr. Asquith said:

"I then endeavored to define in precise and clear terms the attitude of this country, and of the great powers with reference to the war which, unhappily, still is raging in Eastern Europe. That attitude, as I am aware, has not been changed or modified. We are anxious to stop further effusion of blood between the combatants, and even more anxious to limit or circumscribe the field of possible conflicts. The powers are working together to that end. We are satisfied that there is no deviation in wish or purpose in that co-operative policy of all the powers. There may be certain questions which in the best interest of peace and ultimate stability it may be possible to be reserved to deal with when the time comes for a general and definite settlement.

Pledging the Liberal party to continue its efforts for home rule, Mr. Asquith declared that he would not be discouraged by any passing incidents which would be forgotten to-morrow, but determined to proceed with the fight to the end.

John Redmond, in his address, said home rule was on the eve of final victory. He also declared that the Nationalists, in addition to the home rule measure, would support other features of the Liberal Government's program.

Albert College vs. O. B. College

A very interesting game of basketball was played in the gymnasium of Albert College, between Albert College and Ontario Business College. This was the second game played in "The Belleville Basketball League." Considering the score of Albert last night in which Heweson and Elgie did splendid shooting, we have splendid expectations for the teams in this coming season. The score was 40—16. Messrs. Scully and Alexander kept the game free from all roughness and objectionable plays.

Madoc Masons Banquet Brethren From Belleville

On Tuesday evening Madoc lodge, No. 48, A. F. & A. M., tendered a complimentary banquet to R. W. Bro. O. C. Watson Campbellford, District Deputy Grand Master of Prince Edward District, No. 13, and a number of visiting brethren from neighboring lodges.

Among those present from out of town were R. W. Bro. John Newton, W. Bro. J. MacIntosh, Belleville; W. Bros. D. H. Morrison and John Wood, and Bro. E. L. Weiss of Bancroft; Bro. W. B. Gunter, Coe Hill; Bros. Wm. and Robt. Shaw, H. Rollins, T. Solmes, R. Heath, of Stirling; Bro. S. West, Campbellford; Bro. L. R. Bartlett, London; Bros. E. Brown and H. Mouck, Tweed.

At the conclusion of the regular session in the lodge room, the brethren adjourned to Blue's hotel, where splendid tables had been spread. For some time those assembled were then engaged in animated conversation and partaking of the tempting viands placed before them.

After the wants of the inner man had been fully satisfied, W. Bro. Dr. G. F. Wright the master of the local lodge assumed the duties of toast-master, and with a few introductory remarks, proposed the toast to the King, which was heartily responded to by the company.

"The Land of Our Birth and Adoption," was ably proposed by W. Bro. D. E. Morrison, Bancroft, and Bro. T. E. Moffat made an interesting response.

W. Bro. C. J. Young, with appropriate references, proposed the toast, "The Officials We Cheerfully Obey," to which R. W. Bro. Dr. O. C. Watson responded in his very pleasing manner, referring to the various aims and interests of the craft.

"The Guests We Delight to Honor" was proposed, with well-chosen remarks by W. Bro. Dr. Eagleson, and the visitors who spoke in reply were R. W. Bro. J. Newton, W. Bro. John Wood, Bros. E. L. Weiss, S. West, W. and R. Shaw and R. L. Bartlett.

W. Bro. John McIntosh delighted his audience with a couple of well-rendered songs, prefaced with amusing anecdotes.

Messages of regret at being unable to be present were received from R. W. Bros. Col. Ponton, F. E. O'Flynn and F. D. Diamond.

A toast to Madoc lodge was proposed by R. W. Bro. O. C. Watson, D.D.G.M., to which W. Bro. G. F. Wright made a suitable reply on behalf of the lodge.

Several of the speakers referred to the excellence of the repast provided, and a toast to the host and hostess was proposed by W. Bro. A. MacGregor, and duly honored. The singing of Auld Lang Syne brought to a close one of the most enjoyable social gatherings in the history of the local craft.—Madoc Review.

The High School Literary Society

"Resolved, that at the present time the abolition of the bar is preferable to local option," was the subject of debate at the regular meeting of the High School Senior Literary Society held Friday afternoon. The efforts of the speakers proved that it was hard to choose between what were generally believed to be two good movements, and some good points were brought forward on both sides. The judges were also students of the school, V. Clarke, A. Greatrix and Miss A. Campbell. After due consideration the decision was announced to be in favor of the negative.

The program was as follows:

Vocal trio, G. Berkeley, H. Rogers and H. Rankin.
Debate, leader of the affirmative, G. Sinclair.
Vocal solo, Miss C. Cook.
Debate, leader of the negative, H. Ingram.
Piano duet, Misses G. Springer and R. Sinclair.
Debate, supporter of the affirmative, H. Reid.
Vocal solo, The Death of Nelson, G. Berkeley.
Debate, supporter of the negative, G. Howard.
Piano solo, H. Rogers.
Reply, leader of the affirmative, G. Sinclair.
Piano solo, "The Evening Star," Miss P. Bogart.
Decision of the judges announced.
God Save the King.

It may be interesting to the public to learn that the students of the school have already made a payment of $20 on the piano in use in the school. Outside contributions will be gratefully received.

THE BRITISH DIVORCE COMMISSION

In 1909 the British Government appointed a Royal Commission on Divorce to consider the whole matter and report, and last week the report of the Commission was made public. The majority report is signed by nine members of the Commission, including two women; but there is a minority report also, signed by the Archbishop of York, and two others. The majority report declares for the equality of the sexes. It says: "No satisfactory solution of the problem which is raised as to the personal relations of a husband and wife can be found except by placing them on an equal footing and declaring that, whatever grounds are permitted to a husband for obtaining a divorce from his wife, the same grounds should be available to the wife in a suit against her husband." With this position there will be, probably, general agreement. But the commissioners recommend that the grounds of divorces be extended to cover all the following cases:—"Adultery, wilful desertion for three years and upwards, cruelty, incurable insanity after five years' confinement, habitual drunkenness found incurable after three years, and imprisonment under a commuted death sentence." The minority report declares that the widening of the grounds for divorce would tend to the disintegration of family life, and it refers to America as one of the countries which, having relaxed the strictness of the marriage bond, is now appalled by the consequences, and is painfully struggling to return to a condition less destructive of family life. The majority, however, contend that some reform is absolutely necessary, particularly in relation to the poor, and it argues that the changes which it recommends would not be injurious, but rather beneficial to public morality. The subject will, no doubt, be dealt with by the British Parliament and will undoubtedly provoke keenest debate. There is a tendency in these days to the relaxing of the marriage bond, but there is a wide-spread fear that any undue relaxation would mean the introduction of still greater evils than now exist.

THE GOVERNMENT'S NAVAL POLICY

Beyond doubt the Government will almost at once announce the exact character of their present naval proposals, including the proposed emergency contributions in aid of the British naval situation. This revives the interest which all loyal Canadians must take in the naval question, including the discussion of the permanent naval policy of Canada.

The resolutions which have, from time to time been brought forward by the Conservative party in the House when coupled with the recent utterances of the members of the Government make it reasonably clear what form the programme about to be submitted is likely to assume. It is worth while at this time to recall the positions which have been so taken by Mr. Borden in discussing the naval question.

On February 3rd, 1910, when the Naval Service Act, introduced by the Laurier Government was under discussion, Mr. Borden moved the following resolution:—

"That the proposals of the Government do not follow the suggestions and recommendations of the admiralty and in so far as they empower the Government to withhold the naval forces of Canada from those of the Empire in time of war, are ill-advised and dangerous.

"That no such proposals can safely be accepted unless they thoroughly ensure unity of organization and of action without which there can be no effective co-operation in any common scheme of empire defence.

"That the said proposals, while necessitating heavy outlay for construction and maintenance, will give no immediate or effective aid to the empire and no adequate or satisfactory results to Canada.

"That no permanent policy should be entered upon, involving large future expenditures of this character, until it has been submitted to the people and has received their approval.

"That in the meantime the immediate duty of Canada and the impending necessities of the empire can best be discharged and met by placing without delay at the disposal of the Imperial authorities as a free and loyal contribution from the people of Canada, such amount as may be sufficient to purchase or construct two battleships or armoured cruisers of the latest Dreadnought type, giving to the Admiralty full discretion to expend the said sum at such time and for such purposes of naval defence as in their judgment may best serve to increase the united strength of the empire and thus assure its peace and security."

On November 24th, 1910, in addressing the House of Commons on Mr. Monk's amendment to the address (raising the naval question) Mr. Borden spoke as follows:—"Perhaps I

I respect the opinions of able and earnest men who disagree with me, I cannot see that it is impossible to maintain the naval supremacy of this empire by a series of disunited navies not under one control. We may be of different minds as to whether Canada should contribute to the defence of the empire outside of her own territory, but if we once make up our minds that Canada is to contribute then it seems to me absolutely sure, certain and beyond argument that the naval supremacy of the empire can only be upheld by one great naval force under one great central control. That is my conviction, that is one great reason why it seems to me that the naval proposals of the Government are useless and could not be carried out effectually."

"It may be fairly asked what we would do if we were in power today with regard to a great question of this kind. It seems to me that our plain course and duty would be this: The Government of this country are able to ascertain and to know if they take proper action for that purpose, whether the conditions which face the empire at this time in respect of naval defence are grave. If we were in power we would endeavor to find that out, to get a plain, unvarnished answer to that question and if the answer to that question based upon the assurance of the Government of the mother country and the report of the naval experts of the admiralty were such and I think it would be such as to demand instant and effective action by this country then I would appeal to Parliament for immediate and effective aid, and if Parliament did not give immediate and effective aid I would appeal from Parliament to the people of the country."

"Then, Sir, as to the permanent policy, I think the people have a right to be consulted. I do not know whether I have made my position clear, but I have done so according to my humble capacity. I think the question of Canada's co-operation upon a permanent basis in Imperial defence involves very large and wide considerations. If Canada and the other Dominions of the Empire are to take their part as nations of this empire in the defence of the empire as a whole, shall it be that we, contributing to that defence of the whole empire, shall have absolutely, as citizens of this country, no voice whatever in the councils of the empire. I do not think that such would be a tolerable condition. Shall members of this House, representative men, representing 221 constituencies of this country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, shall no one of them have the same voice with regard to those vast Imperial issues that the humblest taxpayer in the British Isles has at this moment? It does not seem to me that such a condition would make for the integrity of the empire, for the closer co-operation of the empire. Regard must be had to these far reaching consider-out and explained to the people of Canada, to every citizen in this country, then it would be the duty of any government to go to the people of Canada to receive their mandate and accept and act upon their approval or disapproval of that policy."

These quotations make very clear the position taken in 1910.

Since then events have marched and the situation has changed in more ways than one. It would not be strange if after the lapse of two years after consideration of all recent changes and developments and of the confidential information received last summer from the Imperial authorities some variations of the programme of 1910 should be proposed, but on the whole we may safely take it that the policy to be announced in 1912 will substantially agree with the platform laid down as above in 1910.

If the necessity for an emergency contribution was urgent in 1910 it is many fold as urgent now. Canadians everywhere will therefore await with confidence as they will with interest just what manner of immediate relief the Government will submit. This will serve to focus the attention of the electors upon the permanent policy which must be more gradually developed.

There was a great parade in New York the other night to celebrate the woman franchise victory in the recent polling, and among the banners carried was one with the motto: "catching up with China." Fredericton, N.B., is under the Scott Act, but last year the liquor men won at the municipal elections, and a council was chosen which, it was known, would not enforce the Act. The result has not been satisfactory, and drunkenness increased until finally the police force became infected, and the scandal became so grave that the council was compelled to discharge the chief and one of the policemen, and the axe may fall upon others. Evidently even a pro-liquor council cannot stand a whiskey-drinking police force.

Macgrath Announces Platform Planks

W. J. Magrath, formerly of Belleville, Ont., candidate for mayor, announces as the foundation of his platform in the coming election "Fair play and a square deal for everybody."

Mr. Magrath contends that as he has made a success of his own business he is qualified and competent to manage the affairs of the municipality, especially during the coming year, which students of conditions predict will be the most interesting from a viewpoint of development in the history of the city. He says he is in a position to give his entire time to the high office to which he aspires to serve the best interests of the people.

Mr. Magrath say: "Everything in connection with the city's administration should be done in the open. There can be no occasion for star chamber proceedings in the handling of the people's business or in the spending of the people's money. There will be no balancing of one problem against the other, nor lining up prejudice against duty.

Makes Pledges.

"I pledge myself to give the people an honest, economical and efficient businesslike administration, that is justified in the people's attitude in this respect.

"I further pledge myself to protect the interests of the people by giving them a hundred cents' worth of work for every dollar expended.

"I am heartily in favor of a systematic plan of civic improvements designed to meet the exigencies of this community for years to come.

"I think that a permanent and complete street railway plan should be skeleton or framework made by looping up the present lines and now adopted loops added as the population warrants. We extend our water, sewer and light lines upon a basis of population absolutely. I can see no reason why the city shold not adopt a policy applicable to the street railway.

"I believe in employing as heads of the various departments men of long experience and thorough training, and in bringing the scattered workers into touch with each other through frequent conferences.

"I am in favor of a fair wage clause which will work, and which will be binding upon every contractor who does work for the city and every department of the city's affairs. I am also in favor of the eight-hour day where the employees themselves have demonstrated their desire for it by demanding it from other employers than the city.

"I would eliminate prejudice and partisanship from the consideration of all public utility questions, and place all these services squarely upon their merits. I would have business-like dealings between the people and the public service departments.

Pubic Utilities.

"I believe that the city's prosperity growth and progress rest largely upon the success of its public utilities, and with that in view I am in favor of their improvement and betterment and extension to where they are required and where they will be needed to increase the permanent payroll of Edmonton.

"Our industrial needs should receive the fullest consideration. Edmonton has the basis elements for successful manufacturing enterprises, and a combination of facilities for maximum production and distribution at a minimum cost. Our natural resources are immense; Edmonton could be, and should be, made a converting as well as converging point.

"A great deal has been heard in previous elections about the gas business, but we are apparently no nearer a solution. The city, of course, cannot afford to even consider a franchise proposition, and I am of the opinion that it cannot afford to consider a proposition to buy gas at the city limits. Calgary has already discovered the unworkableness of any kind of deal with a private company. Nevertheless we must have gas, but I do not think the city would be justified in undertaking the risks of exploratory work. It seems to me that the rational solution would be for the city to offer a fixed amount, say $50,000, to any driller who discovers natural gas in sufficient quantities within a 50-mile radius, and who will give the city the benefit of his discovery.

The Man With Capital.

"I am a firm believer in giving encouragment to the outside dollar. If we are going to develop Edmonton and build up the vast tributary country, we must look to the man with capital. The development dollar is the biggest factor in the progress and prosperity of this or any other city.

"My plan is to do everything in the most dignified and business-like manner to bring our city and its advantages to the favorable attention of men who are seeking opportunities for legitimate investments, encouraging large and small manufacturers to convert the abundant raw materials into finished products thereby giving employment to labor at reasonable wages

As to Railroads

"I am not in the slightest way con-

in the city's interest to enforce the regulation of the railroads so that the service they render my be adequate and given at a reasonable cost, but I am unalterably opposed to inimical legislation. There is no intention to give the railroads more than their just dues. We cannot do without them, and they must prosper to give satisfactory service and to make improvements and extensions. Inadequate service is detrimental not only to the shipper, but also to the producer, which finally means the working man, whose labor must find a market.

"A thorough study of our civic needs has led to the conclusion that improvements and betterments and extensions are imperative, if Edmonton is to grow. I am in favor of the following improvements, to be made as rapidly as is consistent with first class work.

"Adequate street railway service to meet the requirements of the people in all parts of the city.

"Street paving, curbing and boulevarding.

"Improved telephone service to meet with our requirements.

"I am in favor of creating a housing facturing purposes.

"Sewerage system, extensions and improvements, to meet the requirements of our growing city.

The Water Supply

"Wholesome water supply, not for next year alone, but for years to come.

"Keeping on hand a reasonable supply of materials for civic improvements, so the work may continue without interruption during the building season.

"A better lighting system, not only in the business districts, but also throughout the city.

"I am also in favor of the establishment of a public auditorium, a public market on modern lines and the improvement and extension of our parks, playgrounds and parking system.

"I would strive to make the fire and police departments the best and most efficient in Canada.

"I am infavor of creating a housing and sanitation department and working out a plan by the department of health which will emphasize the prevention of disease by removing the causes.

"I am in favor of assisting the hospitals to the extent of increasing their efficiency.

Inspection Department

"I am in favor of a thoroughly organized inspection department, working without fear or favor in the enforcement of our laws.

"I am in favor of the enactment of new laws whenever it is found that the existing bylaws and regulations are inadequate or insufficient; but I believe in the strict enforcement of the laws.

"I am in favor of the 'city beautiful' idea, which means a clean, healty, wholesome city; a city that is worth while to the resident as well as to the visitor; a city of which the province of Alberta and the Dominion of Canada may be reasonably proud because of its enterprise and progress and its achievements.

"The civic affairs of Edmonton are big in their ramifications. The municipality as a whole may compared to a large business. Both require managers of keen business insight, training and experience, and competent department heads.

"The growth and prosperity of the city of Edmonton concerns the interest, the happiness and the welfare of every man, woman and child within its boundaries. In seeking the suffrage of the electors of Edmonton I ask their support for policies that mean good business and for safe and sane government."

HOCKEY.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 22.—K. Breder of Morrisburg, Ont., has signed as college hockey coach at Anover, Mass.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—The committee of the M.A.A.A. hockey team has been invited to play at Boston during the holidays. This will be accepted and matches will also be arranged at New York and Cleveland. The M.A.A.A. will be strengthened this season, and should give a good account of themselves in the Interprovincial League.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—The hockey situation, as far as Ottawa is concerned, is beginning to cool down. Bruce Ridpath, manager of the Torontos, left for the east yesterday without having secured any players. He made offers to a number of local amateurs, but they preferred to remain in Ottawa. Harry Broadbent, who was counted on by both the Torontos and Tecumsehs, signed this afternoon to play with Ottawa.

GALT, Nov. 22.—The local Collegiate Institute reorganized a hockey club for the season of 1912-13, electing the following officers: Hon. President, T. Carscadden, M.A.; President, C. S. Evans; Vice President, H. MacKendrick; Secretary-Treasurer, R. J. A. Fair; Manager, W. Wilkinson; Captain, F. Deans; Committee, F. Herman, R. Oliver, L. C. Johnson; Patrons, the G. C. I. school board and the local M.P.'s. A schedule for an intercollegiate league consisting of Berlin, Brantford, Guelph and Galt is being arranged for.

QUEBEC, Nov. 22.—There is trouble in the Quebec Hockey Club, and two of its most prominent members left here last night for the Pacific coast. The departing men are "Goldie" Prodgers and Eddie Oatman. Some days ago both of these players signed a contract with the Quebec Hockey Club to play for it during the coming season. Since then an agent for the British Columbia club came to Quebec and offered them a much higher salary than they were to receive here. The management of the Quebec body met this with an offer to increase the rate the men were hitherto receiving, and both Oatman and Prodgers accepted it and signed the contract with the Quebec club. Since then the British Columbia emissary increased his rate, and the men accepted it.

When it became known yesterday that Oatman and Prodgers were to leave for the west tonight, the manager of the Quebec club had a capias issued against the two men to have them arrested for money advanced, on the grounds that they were about to leave the province. The capias, however, was not put into execution, as both Oatman and Prodgers paid back the money the Quebec club had advanced them. Therefore, at 11.30 last night both men left by the Canadian Pacific train for the west.

It is said there are some doubts whether the contract Oatman and Prodgers signed with the Quebec club can be legally enforced. This is the position of affairs at present. In the meantime, the two players are speeding towards the setting sun, with visions of a big salary before their eyes.

Prodgers was formerly with the London O.H.A. intermediates, while Oatman was a member of the Simcoe team in the same series.

FOOTBALL

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—At last night's meeting of the Ottawa Football Club it was stated that the gross receipts on the season just closed would be in the vicinity of $5,200. The club will have a surplus of about $2,000. Several big accounts from last season had to be paid off and expenses this season were very heavy. It cost about $1,000 in travelling alone, while Dr. Galvin pulled down $500 as coach of the team. The seconds cost in the neighborhood of $500, inclusive of Saturday's trip to Hamilton, where they play the Rough Riders, and for equipment for the senior squad the bill was nearly $1,000. The Argonaut gate was about $1,800. It was stated that the club had first call on the services of Dr. Galvin for next season.

The following players will be taken to Hamilton for the match against the Rough Riders: Kennedy, full back; Johnson, Carruthers and Chartrand halves; Murphy, quarter; Walsh, Bauman and Gill, scrimmage; McCrimmon, Tubman, Disney, McElligott, McLean, Acheson, Devine, Fraser, Gillis, Anderson, Gaisford and Smith, wings.

The game will take place in the morning, owing to the Hamilton-Alert match in the afternoon. Jim McCuaig will go up in charge of the team.

GENERAL SPORTS.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 22.—While his wife was down town buying tickets to Oklahoma, where he was to go in search of health, James Fry, utility infielder of the Oakland baseball team of the Pacific Coast League, Wednesday night drank poison, causing his death.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Willie Hoppe retained the title as champion at 18.2 balk line billiards by defeating Ora Morningstar in the final game of the championship tournament here last night, by the score of 500 to 276. Neither man played up to expectations, although Hoppe at times gave an excellent exhibition of his ability, making runs of 76, 77 and 74. Morningstar was unable to keep the ivories under control.

Hoppe won six games in the tournament and lost but one, Yamada, the Japanese, being the only one to defeat him.

Old Mansions as Tenements

Old London mansions at Golders' Hill, Hampstead, and Clissold Park are to be turned into tenements by the London County Council for the use of park employes.

THE RING.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 22.—Jerry Dalton of Jeffersonville, Ind., was conceded a slight advantage over "Chick" Hayes of Indianapolis after eight rounds of boxing here Wednesday night. They met at 122 pounds.

In the semi-final Jimmy Brennan of Chicago knocked out Geo. Leatham of Nova Scotia in the fourth round.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Charles Ledoux, French bantamweight champion, outpointed Battling Reddy of Harlem all through their ten-round bout Wednesday night. The Frenchman carried on a wild rushing fight, swinging blindly with left and right, and Reddy spent most of his time covering or running away. The rounds were very much alike except for the tenth, when the visitor for a moment had Reddy slightly groggy, but Reddy recovered and finished strong.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Johnny Coulon, holder of the bantamweight title, and Charlie Goldman of New York, fought ten rounds to a draw in Brooklyn Wednesday night. The little champion was aggressive throughout, preferring to fight close and get in his short arm body blows. The local fighter boxed at long range, equalling the champion's efforts.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—Jack McCarron of Allentown, Pa., outfought Mike Gibbons of St. Paul in a six round bout Wednesday night at the National Athletic Club. Gibbons showed more science but appeared over cautious, while McCarron by forcing the fighting throughout the bout earned the decision. He missed many swings, but occasionally landed hard.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Charles Cutler, who claims the heavyweight wrestling championship of America, yesterday bested an aspirant for that honor. In a rough, gouging, pulling and tugging bout Cutler vanquished Bob Managoff of Asia Minor, putting the foreigner on his shoulders twice in succession. Henry Wirth, who claims to be the lightweight champion of America, defeated Nate Smith of Marshfield, Wis.

"Red" McCoy, a local physical culture instructor, and Billy Ackerman of Rochester, N. Y., pulled and mauled one another about the mat for a draw.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—A young amateur boxer fell dead in a ring here on Wednesday night before a blow had been struck. Frederick Merten, a clerk, 18 years old, had put on the gloves for an exhibition bout with Thomas Holmes, a driver, 19 years old, at the Century Club, which was recently organized on the upper west side. Merten was walking to the center of the ring to shake hands when he fell against Thomas. Thomas thought Merten was joking and shoved him aside. He fell to the floor, dead. A hospital physician declared that death was due to heart failure induced by excitement. The police attached no blame to Holmes, but held him on a technical charge of homicide to await action of the coroner.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Kingston has done $200,000 more building this year than last. The total value of buildings erected this year is $650,000.

E. A. Lancaster, M.P. for Lincoln, has been appointed chairman of the railway committee of the House of Commons, to succeed Haughton Lennox.

S. A. Truscott, Loughboro, has been appointed inspector of South Frontenac to succeed Dr. William Spankie. He is a graduate of Queen's University.

Fred Hagerty was acquitted before Judge Leask yesterday at North Bay on a charge of enticing a young girl away from her parental home for immoral purposes.

Three bylaws, the rubber factory, knitting factory, and a bylaw granting exemption on a flour mill for the next ten years, were all carried in Wiarton yesterday.

Normal conditions are being restored in the hurricane-swept districts of Jamaica. Railway communication has been restored, but the telegraph lines have not yet been repaired.

A mail bag, which has been missing from the postal department since Nov. 13, was found yesterday morning by detectives in a dump near Mill street, Montreal. The contents were rifled.

Lady Golf Champion Dead.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Mrs. Bernard C. Horne, known to golfing enthusiasts as Bessie Anthony, for years woman western golf champion, died early yesterday at her home near Keswick, Va. In many of her championship matches Bessie Anthony had "Chick" Evans for her caddy. Mrs. Horne was 32 years of age and is survived by three children.

County Constable's Mistake.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—"For driving car No. 1,390 at a speed greater than 20 miles per hour on Yonge street in the county of York on Sunday, Nov. 17," is the gist of a summons sent from Toronto yesterday, and served on C. W. Ross, a prominent real estate man of this city.

He is called to appear before Magistrate Clay at Toronto to-day. It develops, however, that the alleged speed law-breaker was never in or near Toronto in his life, and that on the date named his car was in an Ottawa shop for re-painting.

Cargo Broke Loose.

Montreal, Nov. 23.—That a cargo of heavy oil barrels, iron pipes and kegs of beer shifted and smashed through the ship's sides was the evidence given yesterday by Mate Lionel Leduc in the inquiry being held by Wreck Commissioner Lindsay into the foundering of the Cecilie L., the little Lake St. Louis steamer which went down

COMPROMISE IS LIKELY

Bulgars Send Envoys to Turkey on Peace Mission.

Hostilities Are Almost Suspended and the Report of a Turkish Victory Is Not Believed — Powers Are Using Every Means to Bring the Belligerent Nations Together—Albania Proclaims Independence To-day.

London, Nov. 23.—The efforts towards peace in the Balkans made no visible progress yesterday. Exchange of artillery fire and infantry reconnaisances proceeded along the Tchatalja lines and Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, in a despatch to Constantinople, claims that an infantry battle occurred in front of the centre of his position and that the Bulgarians left several thousand dead before the Turkish outer works. Not much credence is placed in this report, however.

Elsewhere in the war zone the military situation remains unchanged. The Servian forces advancing towards the Adriatic are meeting with hardships in the barren, mountainous country, which is buried deep in snow and the allies are still harassing what remains of the Turkish army that was driven from Monastir. The Bulgarians have occupied the important town of Dedeaghatch, the terminus of the Salonika railway on the Aegean Sea.

The Turkish cruiser Hamidied came into port at Constantinople yesterday, wounded from a Bulgarian torpedo. The Turks' claim that the ship sank two Bulgarian torpedo boats which she engaged, has not been confirmed.

Peace negotiations are believed by the diplomats to have been suspended only by reason of Turkey's refusal to accept the first offer of the allies, and to them Turkey's position appears to be one of waiting expectantly for another bid. The best opinion in London is that a compromise will be effected between the belligerents and that the powers are using their good offices behind the scenes with this end in view.

Reports from Sofija say that Turkey's rejection of the proffered terms for an armistice occasioned no surprise there. Three Bulgarians, representing the three northern kingdoms, have started for the front with the expectation of meeting the Turkish peace plenipotentiaries. The Greek military attache with the Bulgarian army will join the Bulgarian plenipotentiaries. A cessation of hostilities is not necessarily expected to follow the departure of the representatives of the allies on the mission of peace.

Whatever basis for an armistice may be reached it is believed that it will leave in abeyance for the negotiation of the peace treaty the amount of territory Turkey eventually will be permitted to retain. The compact, it is believed, will include Bulgaria's renunciation of her intention to enter Constantinople.

Reports emanating from Vienna announce that the Albanians will proclaim their independence to-day at Durazzo, from which place the Servians are yet five or six days' march, and that there will be a joint Austrian and Italian naval demonstration off that port.

The visit of the Austrian crown prince to Emperor William, which is officially stated to be for the purpose of keeping a long-standing shooting engagement, and a Berlin despatch stating that the Austrian Field Marshal Von Schemua, spent the day there in consultation with Gen. Count von Moltke, chief of staff of the German army, keeping alive speculation concerning the plans of the Triple Alliance.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Argentine and domestic conditions proved more influential than war news today in wheat. As a result, the market, altho steady at the close, finished ⅛c to ¼c off. The outcome in corn was the same as last night to ¼c down, and for oats unchanged to a shade advance. Provisions varied from the level of 24 hours before to 17½c to 20c decline.

The Liverpool market closed ¼d to ⅜d lower on wheat, and ½d to ⅜d lower on corn. Paris wheat closed 1⅛c lower to 1⅛c higher, Berlin ⅜c lower, Budapest and Antwerp unchanged.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat continues good, but at present prices bid exporters are not disposed to sell freely, and business is quiet. A fair trade is passing in coarse grains at steady prices. A good many enquiries were received from European sources for spring wheat flour, but the prices bid were out of line with millers' views. Demand for millfeed is good. A good trade is passing in butter, and the shipments west this week were large. Cheese is quiet and easy. Eggs active and firm.

IROQUOIS, Nov. 22.—At the meeting of Iroquois Cheese Board held here today 165 colored cheese were boarded. All sold at 11 1-8.

CORNWALL, Nov. 22.—The offerings on the Cornwall Cheese Board this afternoon, the last meeting of the season, were 1049 boxes of colored. There was some discussion regarding an allowance of one pound per box for shrinkage, the weather conditions not being favorable for curing, but as the sellers could not agree, it was decided to sell on the regular terms unless otherwise specified. The sales were made at 11 1-4 for regular weights and 11 3-8, with an allowance of one pound per box.

Guelph Railway Pays.

Guelph, Nov. 23.—The Guelph Junction Railway Board has handed over to the city this year $34,850 as a share of the earnings of the Guelph Junction Municipal Board of the C.P.R. This is a record amount.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

ROSS LEADS IN SENATE

Ex-Premier of Toronto Chosen by Liberal Members.

Strong Opponent of Reciprocity During Last Campaign Is Elected to the Surprise of Both Liberals and Conservatives — Several Others Were Mentioned To Succeed Sir Richard Cartwright.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—A curious move which has occasioned no end of comment and discussion was made on the Parliamentary checker-board yesterday afternoon when the Liberal Senators, after an hour's caucus, chose Hon. Geo. W. Ross, as leader of the opposition in the Dominion Senate.

Senator Raoul Dandurand was passed over upon the ground that it was not advisable to have the party leader in both houses a French-Canadian. Senator Kerr of Toronto and Senator Power of Halifax were understood to be prospective candidates, but it was generally understood up to noon that the new leader would be Hon. Hewitt Bostock of Kamloops, B.C. So far as can be learned the name of the ex-Premier of Ontario had not been mentioned and there was no little surprise when Senator Jaffray announced to the press that Senator Ross had been chosen as the leader of the majority in the Senate. Mr. Ross subsequently confirmed the announcement, but had nothing definite to give out respecting his policy for the session.

The fact that the Liberals still control the Upper Chamber and were able at the last session to reject Government measures passed by the House of Commons, lends some transient interest and perhaps importance to the leadership of the Opposition on the floor of the Senate.

A report was current yesterday that some Conservative members of Western Ontario feared the effect of a thirty-five million dollars' contribution upon their constituencies. But this was coupled with the assurance that these members would stand by the Government. There is in some quarters the feeling that the Government's program should be fully explained to the party caucus and should be approved by the members before it is presented to Parliament.

Others, however, contend that the Government should announce its policy at the earliest possible moment to Parliament.

FRENCH IN HIGH SCHOOLS?

Napoleon Champagne, M.P.P., Discusses the System.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—"I believe the Whitney Government intends to have the French language taught in most of our Ontario high schools, but I would like to see it taught on a much wider scale than contained in their present policy," says Ottawa's French-Canadian (Conservative) member of the Legislature — Napoleon Champagne.

"If," said Mr. Champagne, "Mr. Rowell will give French-Canadians better terms as regards bi-lingual schools, then I will vote for Mr. Rowell on that question, though on all others I will support my leader. I will support no Government which enacts tyrannous and unjust regulations. I understand, however, that regulation 17, to which objection is taken, is only an experiment for this year, and may be altered if not found successful."

Mr. Champagne contends there are not five per cent. of the French population of Ontario over 25 years of age who cannot talk English and says "We do not require the permission of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to speak the French in our homes. All I ask is that the French language be given fair play in Ontario, and when I think that the Whitney Government is prepared to do this, then I will approve of the policy."

Trustee Genest and others of the Separate School Board are arranging for a public meeting on Sunday.

Woodrow Gets Angry.

Hamilton, Bemuda, Nov. 23.—President-elect Woodrow Wilson had a lively dispute with an American photographer which almost led to the exchange of blows.

The photographer took a snapshot of Mr. Wilson in spite of his prohibition. Mr. Wilson thereupon angrily exclaimed:

"You are no gentleman. If you want a good thrashing keep that up. I can take care of myself in these things. I came here especially to avoid photographers."

Mr. Wilson passed the greater part of yesterday in making cycling excursions in the vicinity of his residence.

Gibson Case Closes.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—With the calling of Mrs. Julia Gibson, stepmother of Charles Gibson, who is facing a murder charge in the criminal assizes, and Gibson's little brother Willie, the defence closed its case yesterday. The remainder of the session was taken up with rebuttal evidence and the case will go to the jury to-day

Farmer's Heavy Loss.

Brockville, Nov. 23.—A costly fire took place yesterday at the farm of John Bourne, near Addison. Threshing operations were in progress at the time and a spark from the engine in use at the work is thought to have been the cause. The burned buildings were all large ones, and included a grain barn, a cow brye, and a hay barn. They were all destroyed with the season's crops. The loss will be upwards of $4,000.

Mistook Poison For Salt.

Montreal, Nov. 23.—Taking up what looked like salt and sprinkling it over the meat he was eating at supper while at work at the docks Thursday night, Harry Symonds was seized with pains in his stomach and died yesterday morning.

ARRESTED IN TIME.

McNamara and McManigal Planned to Kill Burns.

Indianapolis, Nov. 23.—Explosions on non-union ironworks in Milwaukee, Omaha, and Springfield, Mass., were explained by Ortie E. McManigal at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday as having been done by him shortly before he and Jas. B. McNamara, arriving in Detroit to "clean up" that city, were arrested with a suitcase filled with dynamite.

For weeks before his arrest, he testified, he had observed he was being followed, having seen strange heads dodging around the corners of elevator shafts in the ironworks headquarters in Indianapolis.

"I told James B. before we started for Detroit that Wm. J. Burns had detectives after us, that detectives were even coming up near the vault where we stored the dynamite and that one of them followed me on the street when I was going with a suitcase of dynamite to blow up the South Chicago shop," said McManigal. McNamara said if we saw any more of them we would go to Chicago and rent a room next to Burns' office, put an electric wire through the wall and arrange to set off from our room a bomb in Burns' room when he was sitting there. That would make an end to our troubles with him, he said. I told him I didn't think we would do anything of the kind or ever get near Burns."

That was about April 5, 1911, McManigal said. He and McNamara were arrested seven days later.

Can't Get Bail.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 23.—Edward Smythe and James E. Ray, ironworkers union officials at Peoria, Ill., who were arrested three days ago, after their bondsmen had surrendered them, had failed to secure new bonds of $5,000 each yesterday, and were confined in jail between sessions of court.

BOARDS OBJECT.

Eastern Merchants Oppose Increase In Cartage Rates.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—The Boards of Trade of the cities of eastern Canada have decided to take a strong stand against the attempt of the Canadian railways to raise carters' rates to shippers, beginning with the first of the year. This was definitely decided upon at a meeting held in the board room of the Toronto Board of Trade yesterday afternoon, at which John F. Ellis of the Toronto Board of Trade presided, and which was attended by representatives of the Boards of Trade of Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton, Brantford, London, Guelph, St. Catharines and a number of the other cities affected, including representatives from the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Starting with the beginning of the year the railways propose to raise the cartage rates as follows: In Toronto, Montreal and Hamilton—from two to three cents per hundred pounds and from fifteen to twenty cents for small parcels. In all other points from two to two and a half cents per hundred pounds, the charge on small parcels remaining unchanged at fifteen cents each. The reason given by the railways for this is because their new contract with the cartage companies, which start with the beginning of the year, will call for a higher rate, and to make up for this it will be necessary for them to raise the rates to the shipper. This is intended to take effect in all points east of Port Arthur.

After much discussion it was finally decided to hold a conference with the representatives of the railways sometime next week, the conference to take place either here or in Montreal or Ottawa.

ECHO OF BYE-ELECTION.

Macdonald Arrests Are Subject of Mass Meeting.

Winnipeg, Nov. 23.—A mass meeting to protest against the arrests and jailing of four men during the recent bye-election in Macdonald was held here last night.

The four young men arrested and held in jail, occupied seats on the platform. All four, Capt. W. B. Sifton, of Minitonas; D. H. Walkinshaw, of Winnipeg; J. J. Sullivan, of Melville and R. J. A. Prince, of St. Boniface, gave speeches, in the course of which they edified the big gathering with stirring and sometimes humorous recitals of their experiences in the different jails in which they were held. The following resolution was introduced by Thomas Johnson, M.P.P., West Winnipeg, and seconded by E. D. Martin:

"That the Canadian citizens here assembled regard with abhorrence and alarm the conduct of the Manitoba authorities charged with the administration of justice, in arresting, by executive order, British citizens, holding them in prison by refusal of bail, and finally abandoning the case without preferment of charges to which they might make answer according to the law.

"That this action, for which the Prime Minister and Government of this province are responsible, was subversive of freedom, was an exercise of absolutism repugnant to the letter and the spirit of British law, and constituted such an offence against the lawful rights of the individual as to impose upon the people as their first duty the obligation of vindicating the law and re-establishing in this province the liberty of the subject."

Burglars Using Explosives.

London, Ont., Nov. 23.—What is believed to be a band of American robbers is operating nightly in this part of Ontario. On Tuesday a Strathroy store was robbed of cash and on Wednesday night an attempt was made to blow open the door of Moreland's private banking office. The explosion was a terrific one, but the burglars made good their escape. Thursday night Mount Brydges was selected by the band for operations, several places being entered, but only a few coppers being secured.

May Lose Right Eye.

Galt, Nov. 23.—Eugene Crowe may lose the sight of one eye by the slipping of a pair of tongs at the Page-Hersey pipe mill, which went through the lid and cut his right eye open.

WHICH DIED FIRST?

Legal Tangle Arises Out of the McCaffrey Tragedy.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—Legal complications which will be most difficult to untangle have cropped up in connection with the estate of the late Wm. McCaffrey and his wife, who with their children and Mrs. McCaffrey's mother, were drowned while fishing from a canoe near Omemee on Sept. 28. The question which must be settled before anything can be done in the way of winding up the estate is whether Mr. or Mrs. McCaffrey died first. If Mr. McCaffrey died first, his estate, amounting in all to about $50,000, would go to his wife and her heirs, but if Mrs. McCaffrey died first, the heirs of Mr. McCaffrey will inherit the estate.

In order to settle the question, an action was launched at Osgoode Hall yesterday by the heirs of Mrs. McCaffrey, who issued a writ nisi, to prevent the winding up of the estate until the question of priority of death of the husband or wife is settled.

The heirs of Mr. McCaffrey base their claim to the estate upon an axiom of law made to cover cases where no evidence exists as to the predecease of either party, that "the stronger liveth the longer." Upon this they claim that Mrs. McCaffrey succumbed before her husband, and therefore that the husband's heirs must succeed.

On the other hand, the heirs of the wife base their claim to the inheritance upon the fact that when the body of Mr. McCaffrey was found, there was caught upon the hook of a trolling line, the other end of which was made fast to the wrist of the body was fifteen pound fish. From this they argue that Mr. McCaffrey was drawn overboard first, and as his body was entangled in the line, his chance for remaining upon the surface and thus avoiding suffocation was less than that of the wife, who might, though perhaps only momentarily, have delayed her own death by either clinging to the canoe or by her struggles in the water.

Over-insurance Causes Fires

Montreal, Nov. 23.—Chief Tremblay of the Montreal fire department, issued a report yesterday on the fire loss in Canada, as compared with the United States.

He blames speculation in insurance, leading to arson, as the chief cause for fire losses in Montreal and other Canadian cities. In Montreal, he says, in 60 per cent. of the fires there has been over-insurance; in 40 per cent. of the cases the fires are of suspicious origin.

He declares that carelessness in causing an outbreak of fire should be made a crime, according to the statutes of Canada.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Miss C. M. Knight Goes to Toronto

Miss C. M. Knight, M.A., for the past two years head of the Classics Department in Seaforth Collegiate Institute, has been engaged as teacher of Classics in Harbord Street Collegiate Institute, Toronto.

The following particulars of Miss Knight's uniques record as a student may be of interest:

At Matriculation, after a three years' High School course, Prince of Wales, 1st Edward Blake and Classics scholarships.

First year, Toronto University—1st place in Classics, 1st in English and History (both options); First Class Honors in Modern.

Second year—1st place in Classics, 1st in English and History (both options); prize in English.

Third year—2nd place in Clasics, 1st in English and History (both options).

Fourth year—1st place in Classics, (McCaul Gold Medal), 1st in English and History (Classic option); Governor General's gold medal for general proficiency.

The fact that Miss Knight, who is a niece of Mr. W. W. Knight of the High School staff, was an applicant for the position of Classical Master, rendered vacant by the resignation of Principal Colling, shows that Belleville High School is attracting teachers of exceptional ability and augurs well for the future of that institution.

HAVE YOU MADE YOUR WILL?

IF NOT, YOUR FAMILY IS UNPROTECTED.

No Lawyer Is Necessary.

For thirty-five cents you can make your will and be absolutely assured that it is perfectly legal in every respect, and that it cannot be broken by anyone no matter how he may try.

Delay in making your will is an injustice to those whom you wish to be taken care of. The courts are full of will cases where by legal technicality or the absence of a will the people who inherit property are almost the last ones that the deceased would want to share in it

Life is Very Uncertain.

So if you wish to assure those who are nearest and dearest to you of receiving all that you wish them to have, instead of paying $5 to $10 to a lawyer, send 35 also includes a specimen will for your guidance. Fill it out according to simple instructions and you may be perfectly sure that it will stand every legal test and cannot be broken under any circumstances.

Why not send today, while it is on your mind, to the Bax Will Form Co., Room 214, 280 College street, Toronto.

Sold by all druggists and stationers, and may also be obtained from Mr. C. B. Scantlebury and Mr. G. L. Sills, Belleville.

A Fast Sprinter

Mr. Wm. J. Johnston, of Stoco, a graduate of Madoc High School, has distinguished himself at the Inter-Collegiate Track Meets this fall. At Varsity and at the Royal Military College, Kingston, Mr. Johnston was the first Queen's man to finish. At the Y. M. C. A. Road Race held on Saturday Mr. Johnston took first place. His time for the five and a half miles was thirty-two minutes.

At Seattle, Wash., he played at the largest Presbyterian Church in the world with the sister organ of the Los Angeles instrument Brockville Presbyterian Church was crowded at his return visit to taat city this week so that a large audience is anticipated on Monday week.

Servians Bitter Against Austria

PARIS, Nov. 22.—The state of mind of the Servians is one of great disquiet, according to a Belgrade despatch to the Matin. They displayed profoundest indifference to the threats of Ausria. The popular feeling, says the correpondent, may be summed up in the words:

"We want ports on the Adriatic and will go to war with Austria, if necessary, to get them."

LIQUID CURES ECZEMA WHERE SALVES FAIL

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this.

Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous disease can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT.

A simple wash: A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D.D.D. Prescription. This penetrates to the disease germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

In addition to the regular dollar bottle, which has cured so many cases, we have arranged with the D.D.D. Laboratories for a special large trial bottle at 25c. on a special offer now.

This trial bottle will start the cure, and give you instant relief.

Deseronto News Items

(From the Post.)

After having their attention drawn to the state of the road between the Iron Works and the ferry, the Canadian Northern are now gravelling the road. It certainly was not done before it was needed, as the mud was almost as deep as on Front Street, Belleville.

While there is serious apprehension in other towns and cities regarding the supply of coal for the approaching winter, our people can now rest easily, as, with the arrival this week of another cargo in Deseronto consigned to the Rathbun Company, Mr. Rixen told the 'Post man that everything was lovely. While the price may be a little higher than last year; it cannot yet approach the price asked in many of the towns in our immediate neighborhood.

On Sunday morning last, the Rev. Mr. Dowling and the Rev. Mr. Burns exchanged pulpits. In a few felicitious remarks in the Methodist Church at the conclusion of the service, Mr. Dowling said he was very much pleased with the exchange and said he hoped it was just the beginning of many such friendly visits. In this way the clergyman and the people become better acquainted.

The friends and well-wishers of Mr. E. J. Edwards will join in congratulating him upon his recent promotion, he having been named assistant manager of the Standard Iron Co., in Deseronto. Mr. Watson, the manager, has moved to Toronto. The company are putting up extensive works at Parry Sound, of which Mr. Watson is also superintendent, hence Mr. Watson's removal to the Queen City, where he will be centrally located.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place on Monday at the home of the bride's father, Mr. W. S. Moore, when his daughter Laura Louise, was united in marriage to Mr Charles Blake, of Frotenac. The bride was married in her travelling suit of navy blue. Aside from the immediate relatives, the only other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace, of Kingston. After a honeymoon spent in Port Hope, Toronto and other places, Mr. and Mrs. Blake will return to Deseronto, where they will spend the winter. Mr. Blake is, we have been given to understand from independent sources, a very successful apiarist at his country home. The 'Post' joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Blake much happiness.

The bazaar, known as "The Wedding Anniversaries," under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Church of the Redeemer was held on Thursday of this week, afternoon and evening. The goods displayed on the tables represented the different anniversaries such as wood, tin, paper, china, crystal and linen. Then there was the table of home made cakes, pies, bread and buns, besides meats and other good things, also a table where the choicest of candies were sold, and the refreshment table where ice cream, tea and cake were served. There was also th wedding cake without which no "Wedding Anniversary" would be complete, and pieces were served with a cup of tea or ice cream, as desert. On the whole it was a very pleasant and financially profitable occasion.

For some weeks a friendly competition has been going on in the Epworth League of the Methodist Church with a view to increasing the membership. Two leaders were chosen, namely Miss Jennie Dryden, who was to captain the 'Reds,' and Miss Ruby Stainton, who was to captain the 'Blues.' At the expiration of a certain period of time the side who had succeeded in bringing in the most members was to be entertained by their opponents. The 'Reds' won, consequently the 'Blues' entertained the 'Reds' on Tuesday evening. Everybody present enjoyed themselves very much. The Rev. Mr. Burns is throwing himself energetically into the work of his young people.

The big mill closed down on Saturday. With so much to do about, it is likely all the mill hands will speedily be placed.

After an illness extending over a period of two years, Mrs. Leslie Davis, east Thomas Street, passed away on Monday evening.

WEDDING BELLS.

MCHARDY—KAITTING

A quiet wedding of local interest took place in Peterborough on Thursday November 21st, when Miss Jane Kathleen Kaitting became the bride of Mr. Edward McHardy, a popular employee of the Grand Trunk Railway. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert Pogue. The couple were unattended. Both Mr. and Mrs. McHardy are well known in the city and will take up their residence here.

LAMB—COLLINS

A quiet wedding, which is of interest to Bellvillians, took place in Toronto last Thursday evening, when Miss Bertha E. Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Collins, Front street, was married to Mr. W. Verne Lamb, formerly of Belleville, now of Toronto. The ceremony was performed at the Deaconess Home, by the Rev. Dr. Bishop, late pastor of Bridge street Methodist Church, Belleville. They arrived in the city yesterday for a brief stay, after which they will leave on motor trip through Ontario. They will be at home to their friends at 279 Grace street, Toronto, after December 1st. The bride is very popular among her many friends in Belleville, who unite in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Lamb a long and happy wedded life.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Land Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within 9 miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him, by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER

By C. J. CUTCLIFFE HYNE

"The beggars will rush those barricades," said Carter, "if I don't look out. You stay here Laura, and put that pistol down. It's a beastly dangerous toy."

"I may want it for myself."

"Don't be melodramatic. Now run into the mess-room, there's a good girl, and get two Winchesters and load up the magaznes. I'm going down to help the boys."

But even as he spoke there came a sudden hard puff of the land breeze that made the mist swirl and twist up into ghostly life, and left canals and pools of clearness. He darted inside snatched up one of the rifles and crammed it full of cartridges. "I wish I'd a scatter-gun," he said. 'I used to be a nailer at rabbits and the occasional grouse at home. However, it won't do to miss here, although the tool is new." He therw up the weapon to his shoulder, and shot as a game shot shoots, with head erect and both eyes staring wide at a leather charm-case on the broad black chest which he picked as his object. He did not know how to squint along the barrel. Then he pressed home the trigger and had the thrill of knowing that he had shot his first man.. .. ..He warmed to the work after that, and fired on and on with deadly speed and accuracy, till the heated barrels of the repeaters burned Laura Slade's hands as she charged the magazines beneath them. From somewhere in the lower part of the factory came White-Man's-Trouble, and when in answer to the fussillade, showers of pot-leg began to rustle over the veranda and scream through the roof, that valiant person presently dragged out bedding to form a breastwork But although Carter kicked him till his foot ached the Krooboy would not show his own head over it suificently to use a gun for the mutual defence. He stuck to it stolidly that he was "plenty-too-much bad shot," and Carter was too much occupied in keeping up his own fire to spare time for further coercion. But as he changed rifles with Laura, he said every poisonous thing to White-Man's-Trouble that his mind could invent, and that African listened, but made neither reply nor answer.

The fight was going badly against the factory force. The Okky men's original surprise had been very complete, and they had rushed the outer line of the defences all round. The inner line consisted merely of the buildings; and the factory boys had bolted for these, and had joined the multatto clerks and the Portuguese who were there already. The whole defence, of course, was badly managed; but then it must be remembered that it was devised by traders, not by soldiers. If it had not been for Carter's education on the moors and warrens of Upper Wharfdale, and his consequent deadliness with a rifle against rushes at close quarters, the factory would have been put to the storm within five minutes of the first attack.

Besides, with a few exceptions, the factory boys were Kroos; and these, though they are magnificent workers and about as amphibious as seals are emphatically not fighting men. They batted manfully enough after the shock of the first surprise and because no path of escape offered itself; and whilst there were trade guns to fire, the derived a fine encouragement from the noise of the black trade powder explosions, and the acrid smell of smoke. But few of them made any attempt to reload their flintlocks a second time, and for cold matchet work at close quarters they had little appetite. So by ones, and twos, and tens they began slipping off into the bush (to be hunted down piecemeal by the savage enemy later on) and soon only the clerks and the two fever-shaken Portuguese were left alive in the lower buildings.

It was at this point a new engine was added to the attack. Dawn had just leaped up yellow and sickly over the sea, when a crash rang out that jarred the air and every building about the place.

'Hear that?" croaked Carter. 'That is a cannon, and a brass one as you can tell by the ring. It's probably one of these old brass guns that the Portuguese used to cast for the natives two hundred years ago. One of my curiosity dealers promised me fifty golden sovereign for a genuine specimen. If I don't spot that gun and pick off the men who are serving it, they will jug us for a certainty. But they've got the blessed thing so jolly well hidden among the bush! Well, I'm going to ease up on my own shooting and watch for the next flash . Get me a drink you plucky darling, will you, or else my throat will crack in two. Bring a chattie of water; that's what I want. The heat of this night has been about the worst I have known on the Coast."

'It is too hot to last, said the girl, 'I'm afraid even the water in the chattie will be as warm as tea."

She went into the mess-room and presently came back on hands and knees to keep below the showers of pot-leg which were persistently whistling overhead, and gave him the wet porous bottle, and crouched beside him under the breastwork as he drank.

"Well, my sweetheart," said Carter, "if it isn't unlucky to drink one's best girl's health in water, here's your toast! You are the finest plucked lassie in all the wide and wondrous earth and now I come to think of it, I don't believe I ever proposed to you."

"No, you never did. I don't see why you should."

'Stick your head lower down. That thing that said 'whisp-whisp,' was a rifle-bullet. They've got a blooming marksman down there, and I can't have you picked off. And don' talk rubbish. You know you're going to marry me as soon as ever we can afford it, if ever we get out of this, which isn't likely." He clipped an arm snugly round her, as w-o-s-h came a load of pot-leg on the other side of the bedding which protected them. "Got any silly objections to make to that?"

"Have you thought over what it means, George? You know I'm not white."

"Bosh! Anyway you're white enough for me. Let go the chattie. And as I said before, Here's luck. Ugh! African river water, half mud half essence of nigger from higher up. Moreover, as you remarked, hot as tea. Bang! there goes that infernal cannon again, and we've been gossiping with you—prosing, I mean—and haven't seen the flash. Plunked a shot into one the palm oil puncheons in the store below, by the sound of it. Hullo here comes the wind. Now, somebody will have his hair combed."

As though the discharge of the ancient brass gun had been a signal, a tornado opened upon them without warning, and almost in its full strength in the first blast.

One minute there was a stagnant calm, with air so hot and stale that it hardly seemed to refresh one to breathe it. The next wind travelling often at a hundred miles an hour bellowed and roared at them in tearing spasms of fury. The factory building reeled and groaned at its impact. Sticks, boards corrugated roofing and empty barrels solved the problems of aerial flight. The close grown trees of the forest that hemmed the factory in on the landward side were flattend earthwards as though by the pressure of some unseen giant hand; yes, flattened down, and down, till one thought that any human beings that were beneath them must inevitably be crushed out of all living shape into the foul, soft swampy ground beneath. And in cold truth some of the Okky men who cowered there during the enforced lull of the attack did so die.

The firing had ceased automatically on both sides, and a bombardment of sticks, leaves, sand and stones pelted them all unmercifully. It was impossible to face the wind; indeed, so violent was the torrent of air, that the mere act of taking breath beame a matter of the nicest art.

The girl lay crouched under the huddle of bedding, buffetted into semi-unconsciousness, with Carter's arm holding her tight down to the floor bords of the veranda. He put his lips to her ear and bawled a message She shook her head. Through the insane yell of the wind she could not hear a word. He laughed and kissed her, and then, taking away his protecting arm, worked his perilous way like some clinging, creeping thing into the inside of the dwelling

Even this was filled with wind. A door, smashed from its hinges, clattered noisily about in one corner, as though it had been some uncouth mechanical top propelled by clumsy clockwork. Everything movable hopped on the floor, or danced from the walls. And of course to this disorder was added all the dishevelment which had been caused by the volleys of jagged flimsy walls by the Okky men's flintlocks. But Carter knew what he wanted, and sought for it with a single mind.

Presently from amongst the debris he emerged with a four-gallon drum; and then he worked his way to a cupboard where Slade kept his store of cigarettes. Luckily it was full. Slade had boarded a steamer lately where his credit in the forecastle shop was still untarnished, and his plausible tongue had procured him a whole two dozen case of half-hundred tins on some ingenious deferred-payment scheme of his own. There were twenty-two of the green tins left, and Carter got them all out, opened them, and recklessly emptied their contents onto the floor. With infinite pains and sheltering the liquid from the blast under his coat, he decanted the contents of the big drum into the tins till all were full. Then he re-lidded them, and jabbed a hole with his penknife in each lid.

No Peace For Discoverers.

It is remarkable how few of the discoverers and conquerors of the new world died in peace. Columbus died of a broken heart, Balboa was disgracefully beheaded, Cortes was dishonored, Sir Walter Raleigh was beheaded, Pizarro was murdered, Ojeda died in poverty, and Henry Hudson was left to the mercy of the Indians along the bay which he discovered.

"'Tis more blessed to give than to receive," says the Good Book, and we are continually receiving letters that prove the truth of this maxim.

Here's an extract that tells how the good work we are doing in the fight against Consumption appeals to every section of the community.

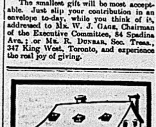
A well-known citizen of Brantford writes: "On Christmas morning my boys gave me $2.50 to get some present for myself that I wanted. I think you can use it to good advantage in your noble work in the National Sanitarium Association, so am enclosing it for that purpose."

Doesn't it make you feel proud to know that there are Canadian fathers with the self-sacrificing instinct so strongly imbued in them?

Isn't it good to realize that the rising generation is getting such a splendid example shown them? Last year it cost over $62,000.00 to keep the Muskoka Free Hospital open. More money is urgently needed to provide for those seeking admission.

The needy Consumptive is right at your door. Won't you help him to help himself?

The smallest gift will be most acceptable. Just slip your contribution in an envelope to-day, while you think of it, addressed to Mr. W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Executive Committee, 84 Spadina Ave.; or Mr. R. Dunbar, Sec. Treas., 347 King West, Toronto, and experience the real joy of giving.



A House on Your Hands

Did you ever figure out how small a percentage of our population pass your house where they could see a "To Let" sign, or how large a percentage read our paper? Good tenants are not the kind that have time to waste in going around looking for signs. They look in our Want Ads.

If you have a house on your hands, a "House to Let" ad. will bring them to you.

Give the baby a full dinner pail and room to kick and he will be happy.

THE TEST

It was with a light heart that young Bowlson bounded up the steps of the Peterby house. He was very much in love with Miss Mabel Peterby, and he had reasons—some of them quite substantial—to think that his adoration was returned.

He was ushered into the back parlor. In a moment he was poined by Miss Mabel.

"What is the answer, dear?" he whispered, scarcely waiting for her to sit down beside him on the sofa.

At this moment Mebel's father entered the room with a formidable pair of pincers.

"Excuse me, young people," he said politely, "but this jet needs a slight re-adjustment. I will be through in a moment."

He tinkered with the jet, screwing it and unscrewing it, peering into it and blowing through it. At last the job was done, and he departed. Bowlson, beside himself with impatience, turned once again, unheeding the sound of distant hammering.

"Say that it is all right," he whispered, "I must have you for my little wife."

In reply Mabel's face grew sober. the face.

"Now Jack," she said, 'we may as She turned and looked him fully in well understand each other. Of course I like you, but there are other things more important. We shall, I hope—that is, in case all is well—be married a long time."

"Forever!"

"And it is important that we get on well together—practically. There must be no friction. You see, I have received a modern education. I know already something about married life—cooking, sewing, hiring servants and nursing. Papa has insisted upon all that. He is very practical. It wouldn't do, therefore, to marry you unless we understand each other perfectly."

Bowlson shrank back mentally. A sense of his inadequacy almost unmanned him. He had frequently observed on his numerous visits to the Peterby house Mr. Peterby's knowledge of practical affairs. Indeed, the sound of hammering and sawing was quite usual. He began to hedge.

"Isn't a fine disposition worth something?" he asked.

"Yes, but it is only a part. You must be able to do things. Can you tinker?"

"Tinker?" repeated Bowlson. "Oh, yes! I suppose so. I once put on an automobile tire," he said brightly.

"Ah, but are you what is termed a handy man around a house?"

"I should be willing to try," said her lover timidly. "Mabel, I will do anything for you."

"That isn't the point. Of course you would. But you know a good-natured willingness, without the skill and experience would count for nothing. You must have a genius for it—you must just love it for its own sake. Hear papa now. That is the way he works. We scarcely ever have to call any one in from the outside. Can you do all that? Do you love it for its own sake?" she whispered.

"Yes, yes," hoarsely whispered Bowlson, desperate with love and anxiety. "I am sure I could. I know it," he went on. "Nothing I dote on more than going around with a set of tools. Plumbing! I can't wait for it to get out of order. Faucets are my specialty. I love to take up floors and put them down again. Picture hanging is a passion with me. Beating carpets—"

She held up a warning finger.

"Be careful," she said. "Don't, in your enthusiasm, exaggerate, dear, because you will have an apportunity to put your skill to the test. I wouldn't marry any man unless I had fully tried him out. Papa agrees with me in this.'

"What do you mean?" chattered Bowlson, turning pale.

"I mean this. Papa is going away on a trip to-morrow, fishing. At first we couldn't persuade him to go, because he feared that something might happen to the house. But I suddenly thought of a brilliant idea. I suggested to him that you come here and take charge of things. And that would give me a chance to see what you can do. You see, we begin house-cleaning to-morrow, and Papa says there is so much to be done. If he didn't like fishing so much and if he didn't care so much for me, nothing could persuade him to go at this important time. But it's all right. Everything has been arranged."

"You mean," said Bowlson, weakly, "that you want me to come and—"

"Yes, yes. You'll have to get leave of absence for a few days and help us out. You see, dear, it's a test. Of course," she added, "if you really love and want me you will come anyway, even if you don't like the work, but—"

She gazed at him with a sweet smile.

"Now that you tell me that you do like it, you will have a splendid time. You can take your luncheon with us. We won't have much, of course. We never do at these upset times. But never mind. You will come, will you not?"

Bowlson gathered himself together by a supreme effort. But he loved Mabel more than he said, and he was young and strong.

"Yes, darling,"—he ventured the "darling" for the first time—"I will come."

* * * * * *

It was four o'clock the next afternoon. Mabel, quietly reading a best-seller in a secluded part of the living room, suddenly raised her head. The methodical sound of a rug being beaten in the back yard had stopped. There was an ominous silence. The sound of feet dragging themselves through the house could be heard. Hastily throwing down the book and springing to a pair of half-hemmed curtains, Mabel waited.

A haggard form crossed the threshold. A voice freighted with care and desperation broke the stillness.

"Good-bye!"

It was the voice of Bowlson.

"What do you mean, dear? Surely—"

Mabel smiled up at him serenely.

"Why things are not half done," she said, "you don't mean to say that you are tired?"

"Tired! That's not the word for it. I am dead. And what is more, I have come to my senses. Mabel Peterby, I love you better than anything on earth. But never again for me! During the short space of seven hours I have ruined your gas and plumbing system, put four doors out of order and spoiled a kitchen range. I want to tell you that I know nothing of house affairs; neither do I intend to learn. If I couldn't make money enough to hire some one else to do manual labor for me I would go out and drown myself; but as for being a man of all work around any girl's house, not for me! Farewell!"

He staggered as sternly as he could up to where she stood.

"You can marry me as I am," he whispered, 'or not at all."

He started feebly for the door, but a pair of clinging arms wound around his neck.

"Jack, dear," said a soft voice, "don't you understand. Don't you see that you are just the kind of a man I need. I wanted to make sure of you, that is all. Papa has been the trial of my life for ever since I can remember—a perfect nuisance around the house, morning, noon and night—and I made up my mind that I wouldn't marry a man like him for all the money in the world."

He lay on the sofa and gazed up at her joyfully.

"If you mean that, dear," he said, 'send for a bottle of whiskey, have a square meal cooked and telephone for a minister."

KEEPS HIS VOW

Great Musician Who Plays Once a Year on the Street

A curious story is told by Mr. Auguste Van Biene, the famous actor-musician, whose comedy-drama, "The Broken Melody," has been played over 5,000 times. The title of "The Broken Melody" is derived from the beautiful refrain which Mr. Auguste Van Biene plays on the 'cello, and which is published in "The Strand Musical Portfolio." "That particular melody," he says, "was written expressly for the piece in rather peculiar circumstances. Two days before the first production, eighteen years ago, I was still without this most important item in the new work. I had written dozens of melodies, tried them, and torn them up; and I was beginning to despair of getting just what I wanted.

"Travelling from Brighton in a Pullman-car, I was having a game of cards with Mr. George Edwardes and other friends, and doing my best to forget all about 'The Broken Melody.' Right in the middle of the game an idea occurred to me. Getting a piece of paper I drew lines to represent a musical stave, and on this rough home-made MS. paper I jotted down the melody that has done so much to make the success of the piece, and also to ensure my own success, I am inclined to think."

By the way, on November 18th, every year for the last forty years, Mr. Auguste Van Bieme has played in the streets, in fulfilment of a vow made when he was rescued from the gutter by Sir Michael Costa. The money he thus earns goes to charity.

A VISIT TO THE FALLS OF NIAGARA

There was an old couple the other day who had been to Niagara Falls, and were waiting for a train to their home in the interior of the State.

They felt that they had accomplished a big thing, and were consequently quite elated.

They had scarcely taken seats in the waiting-room when the old man turned to a stranger and said:—

"We've just got back from Niagry Falls. Hain't nuthin' like them Falls in this whole country."

"Never heard of 'em," gruffly replied the stranger.

"You didn't! Lor' bless me, that's astonishing. Never heard of Niagry Falls?"

"No. What is it?" said the man.

"Why, it's the biggest lot of water falling over the awfullest precipice you ever heard of. Why, it makes folks shiver to look at it."

"Singular," said the man. "The papers ain't never mentioned it."

"They haven't! Why, them Falls 'as been there thousands of years."

"Now, don't you think it was a freshet or a dam broke loose?" queried the stranger.

"No, sir. That water keeps a-pourin' and hummin' and roarin' all the time."

"Must have been some trick about it," carelessly remarked the cynic. "If it was a real thing, there'd be some excitement about it. You don't drink?"

"Me drink! I've never drunk a drop in my life!"

"Well, it's too bad. Anyone who will swindle an old man like you deserves to be thrashed."

"Swindled! Do you pretend there ain't no Niagry Falls?"

"Never heard of them in my life," said the stranger, as he got up and walked away.

"Say, Hannah," replied the old man, turning to his wife, after a while, "did you hear that?"

"Every word."

"Say, when we git home we'll keep mum until I've seen Stebbins and know whether there is a Niagry Falls. If we've been fooled, we don't want to be larfed at; if it's all right, we kin do our blowin' when it's safe and will count. Don't say Goat Island or Horseshoe Falls to a livin' soul until we find out whether that ginger ale flew to our heads, or the show was all right and worth the money."

PERHAPS YOU'VE OBSERVED IT

"What's the good of having friends if you can't ask favors of them?"

"That's right. But I've noticed that the man who has the most friends is the one who asks the fewest favors."

THE CUP OF KINDNESS

Six pounds ten! The figures danced before Marion's eyes. She wanted six pounds ten to save Roland from going to prison. It was no use appealing to Amos; after what he had said last night, that was out of the question.

But how was she going to raise so much in so short a time? Six pounds ten! It seemed a small fortune—an impossibly large amount.

Somebody tapped her on the shoulder, and she turned and saw it was the usher of the police-court.

"Here," he said, holding out his hand. "The beak sent this. He's got a good heart, and he often does little things like this strictly on the q. t. Mind, now, not a word to a soul."

She glanced at the coin he had pressed into her hand. It was a sovereign—and the figures that danced before her eyes became five pounds ten instead of six!

"Thank the magistrate for me, please. Tell him I am more grateful than I can say—"

"He won't want no thanks," interrupted the usher. "Here, that's my little bit."

He forced half-a-crown into her hand and walked away.

She dropped a tear upon the coin.

"What a lot of kind-hearted people there are in the world!" she muttered "I really believe there are far more good people than bad in it!"

The policeman whose duty it was to keep that particular corridor clear, came up to her.

"We can't have you loitering here," he said. "Is a bob any use to you? Every little helps. Pass along, please!"

The tears began to course freely down her cheeks, and she stumbled away, half-blinded by them, too touched to speak.

Soon, however, she resolutely dried her eyes. Five pounds six and sixpence had still to be raised, and for her husband's sake she was determined to raise it. Home she went to Rosetree Villa, kissed her baby, and informed the nurse how the case had gone; and then proceeded to collect the few things which the Turtledoves Furnishing Company had been compelled to leave.

She smiled wistfully as she got them together. So few of their friends had been apprised of their marriage, that their "presents" were inconsiderable. To them she added every stitch of clothes she possessed in the world, with the exception of the things she had on, and one "change." Dissatisfied with the prospect of what they would fetch, she then made another bundle of her husband's garments.

Three journeys she made to the pawnbrokers, and the net result was that she was left with only twenty-five shillings more to raise. But those twenty-five shillings were the most formidable of all!

"Cheer up!" said the nurse, when Marion returned, dangling her baby before Marion's eyes. "It'll be all right, won't it, ducky? Mummy doesn't know everything, does she my precious? Something's going to happen—you mark my words."

Marion took the baby from her, and was just about to ask her what she meant, when baby smiled. It was the first time baby had really and truly smiled a big, unmistakable smile since he was born, and she was so occupied in trying to make him do it again, that before she asked her question the knocker sounded.

In came Mrs. Pope and another neighbor, Mrs. Brown. Mrs. Pope was very breathless, but she felt that the exigencies of the situation demanded some sort of a speech.

"A little bird told us what you was doing," she began, and then she was forced to pause for breath. Nurse—"the little bird"—who weighed fourteen stone at least, smiled self-consciously.

"So me and Mrs. Brown we got to work at once," Mrs. Pope panted on. "She took one side of the street, and I took the other, which we felt as your neighbors, my dear, would like to help, not being able to bear the thought of your 'usband going to prison, all on account of 'im taking your troubles so much to 'eart." Forced to conclude her sentence because she had forgotten where she began, she poured a heap of small silver into Marion's lap.

"I got eighteen shillings," she announced proudly, "and Mrs. Brown, she got seventeen."

"Here you are, my dear," said Mrs. Brown, handing over the money.

Marion looked from one to the other, dumbfounded, utterly overcome. She tried to speak, but could find no words to express her gratitude. Nurse, in the background, sniffed and cleared her throat with unnecessary vehemence, and furtively dabbed a handkerchief to her eyes.

For a long time, the young mother, still holding her baby, sat there, looking from one to the other of these three true friends in need.

"I—I can only say 'Thank you,'" she faltered at last. "To my dying day I shall remember you in my prayers."

Baby smiled again, and made a little gurgling noise

"There," said Marion, holding him up. "Baby is trying to thank you, too, but, like me, he can find no words!"

"The darling!" exclaimed all the women together; and baby smiled once more. He stretched out his helpless little fingers, and began to grope aimlessly among the silver in his mother's lap.

"There's ten shillings too much here," said Marion, more calmly. "May I—may I give it you back?"

"Certainly not!" said Mrs. Pope, sternly.

"You'll need all of it, my dear," said Mrs. Brown.

HIS PRECAUTION

"You are an optimist?"

"I am," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "I not only hope for the best, but I make practical arrangements to get it."

LOOKED FOR DIAMONDS

No Stones Found in James Bay Districts but the Gems May be There

Mr. W. A. Muir, a well-known prospector, told in Ottawa of an interesting trip he took to the east shore of James Bay in quest of diamonds.

Mr. Muir and his party had many exciting experiences. They paddled 180 miles down the Mattagami river into the Moose river and then down to Moose Factory where they re-victualed for the long trip around the southeast shore of the bay.

It was there that their new experiences began. The coast line is very shallow and consists of mud flats extending far out into the bay. Naturally, the canoemen did not care to go very far from shore on account of the great danger of storms. The consequence was that they found the tides a great difficulty. While paddling along on their journey the tide would go down and leave them stranded in the mud. Frequently they had to pack their goods over two miles to shore. On two other occasions while camped, as they thought, high and dry on shore, the tide and a favorable wind working together carried the waters into their camp and swamped them out at midnight.

Mr. Muir prospected along the shores of the East Main river and found large beds of blue clay which is known to the geologists as the diamond matrix. An eminent geologist upon examining the samples brought back and Mr. Muir's report of the country was very favorably impressed.

Regarding the country in the locality of Ungava in which he traveled, Mr. Muir said that it was a disappointment to him. It is not heavily timbered and seems to be almost desolate for he did not see a single sign of game. Mr. Muir saw no white men in the district.

BLACKSMITH'S RISE

From the Forge to High Position in Roman Catholic Church

Archbishop McNiel, of Toronto, rose to his high office from the humble stepping-stone of the blacksmith's forge.

He is descended from the McNeils of Barra, the Highland clan whose battle-cry was "Victory or death." The clan claims descent from Neil Og, who fought at Bannockburn, and was granted lands by Robert Bruce. The last McNeil of Barra, Major-General M'Neil, died in England in 1863.

The Archbishop, on his mother's side, is Irish. Her home was in County Kilkenny. In his youth Archbishop McNeil worked at his father's trade in his native town in Nova Scotia. He studied so diligently, however, that he was brought to the notice of the parish priest, who helped him to college, and thus to the priesthood.

He became in succession head of St. Francis College, Bishop of St. Gregory's, and Archbishop of Vancouver, while in Newfoundland he travelled hundreds of miles from mission to mission, on pack-horses and on foot, in all kinds of weather. He is an astronomer and a profound mathematician.

Backward Spain

As the result of an investigation ordered by King Alfonso, the Minister of the Interior reported that sixty per cent. of the land in Spain is uncultivated, and 38 per cent. is utterly without irrigation. The report showed that 4,500 villages are without roads or railroads, 30,000 towns and villages have no schools, and 12,000,000 of Spain's 17,000,000 inhabitants can neither read nor write.

Becoming Breakfast Cap

Breakfast caps are so becoming, so coquettish, that it is difficult to understand how one can resist the wearing of them. One has a turned back flap of hand embroidery on fine white batiste edged with a narrow Valenciennes lace edge under the small scallop, and the narrow ruffle at the back edged with the lace joined to the full crown. A chou of soft satin ribbon on either side, gave a stylish touch to this quaint little cap.

FISHING LAWS RESCINDED

Efforts to Secure Parent Fish Unsuccessful in Part of Georgian Bay

An order-in-Council was passed at Ottawa rescinding a regulation passed a couple of years ago setting apart the waters of Georgian Bay from Grondine Point to the mouth of the French River during October and November of each year for the purpose of securing fish eggs for hatcheries. The change was made because efforts to secure parent fish in the waters affected were unsuccessful, and because the regulation cut off one month from the open season covered by provincial fishing licenses.

FINE MILITARY POINT

"What are those men doing back there with their hats on?"

This question coming in Toronto Police Court from Chief Inspector Archibald, followed by the orders of two constables to remove their headgear, failed to have the desired result with a corporal and a private of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, who went to the court to get a deserter.

The soldiers shook their heads and remained with their hats on till one of the constables went over to them.

"We are a military escort," explained the corporal.

"That makes no difference. You've got to take off your hats."

"We'll go out," and the two marched out.

Whnn the case was called they went in again with their hats on, took away the deserter, and nothing was said.

Col. Grasett, Toronto's Chief Constable, was of the opinion that the soldiers should have removed their hats.

"The civil law over-rules the military law," was the Chief's explanation. "And even if the military law says a man should keep his hat on, while on duty, I don't think they should stand on a little piece of military etiquette like that."

On several occasions Col. Denison, the magistrate, has ordered escorts of the same kind to remove their hats, and they have done so.

"A soldier on duty is never supposed to remove his hat," said another military man whose opinion was asked.

USES APE'S STOMACH

Marvellous Operation Upon a Frenchman and Its Drastic Test

A man's stomach was removed by a French doctor and replaced with the stomach of an anthropoid ape, which of course, an ape very close to a man in the rising scale of development.

So joyous was the recipient of the new stomach that at the first opportunity he became intoxicated. Naturally the ape had never tasted liquor and the stomach he gave was so healthy that it did not suffer by being drenched in alcohol.

This remarkable operation and restoration of the part exorcised, the first of its kind, was performed by Dr. Roulles, a famous surgeon in the hospital at Agon, 73 miles southeast of Bordeaux. The patient was a farmer, 27 years of age, whose stomach was worn out and worthless. With the most delicate skill and the nicest knowledge of anatomy the surgeon opened the patient's abdomen and tying the great arteries as the operation proceeded, took out the useless stomach. After twenty-five days of treatment the cure was complete; the young farmer left the hospital, and as if to test his new stomach, went on a spree.

HEIR TO $15,000,000

A Huge Estate in the English Chancery Court

There is in the Chancery Court an estate which has now reached the figure of $15,000,000. It lies there, unclaimed, in the name of Walters, an Exeter family whose heir has been duly advertised for without avail.

It is now known, almost to a certainty, that this same heir has just died at Point Chevalier, Auckland, New Zealand, that he knew he was the heir, and that he refused to claim the money.

His death took place suddenly, and it was at the necessary inquest that the facts came to the knowledge of the public.

Richard Walters was an old-age pensioner, and was employed by a Mr. Mayson as gardener. He had shown his employer documents which, the latter considered, afforded quite conclusive proof that he was the heir to the family estate of Walters.

The reason he gave for refusing to take any steps to secure the millions was that it was too much trouble, as he was becoming an old man.

English Lawyer Saved From Death Was Not Forgetful

The fact is not generally known that Mr. Tobin, K.C., who worked so hard on behalf of Crippen, once had a marvellous escape from death. On January 3rd, 1893, he was at Hooton Railway Station, Cheshire, and started to cross the line for the down train without noticing the approach of the up train. A porter, George Greenhouse, saw the danger, and with remarkable quickness dragged Mr. Tobin into safety. The latter gave the porter $25, and on each anniversary of the day sends him a sum equal to 25c. per week. And as long as Greenhouse remained in the service of the company he was allowed an extra shilling a week. He is now driver of the post-office mail cart from Leominster to Weobley.

AWFUL DEATH TOLL OF SNAKES IN INDIA

According to a report published in Simla the number of wild animals destroyed in India last year was 25,840, as compared with 19,282 the year before. This total included 1,426 tigers, 5,352 leopards and 4,251 wolves. Nearly 172,000 snakes were destroyed, more than twice as many as in any previous year.

This increase is largely accounted for by the offering of rewards by the Burma Government. That this action was necessary is proved by the fact that in one area the paddy fields were so snake infested that their cultivation was impossible.

Altogether 1,947 persons were killed by wild animals and 24,264 by snakes. The number of cattle killed by wild animals was 91,709, and by snakes 10,533.

With regard to snake bite of human beings it is said that the use of Sir Lauder Brunton's ancets is reported in a nmber of cases to have to have Lauder Brunton's lancets is reported As in previous years, however, the statistics relative to the successful use of this instrument can only be accepted with reservations.

THE AIR CRAFT IN WAR

Changes That It Will Necessitate—Artillery Battles Between Aeroplanes

Colonel H. S. Massy, vice-chairman of the Aerial League of the British Empire, in an interview expressed the opinion that in warfare two kinds of aeroplanes would be used—the light machine for scouting, and a heavier one, carrying a quick-firing gun, to drive off the enemy's aircraft.

Colonel Massy did not agree that the aeroplanes had thrown warfare back 1,000 years, when fighting was practically hand-to-hand. He added: "Certainly not with regard to mounted and mobile troops of all kinds, which will, in future, have to use ordinary tactics, while, of course, considerably hastening their movements. It is possible that when these mounted troops have prepared the way for the infantry, which will make every effort to come up as quickly as possible behind them, the infantry on both sides will fight at much closer quarters than has hitherto been the case, especially as they will move chiefly by night for a fight early next morning. But I do not think that there is any more chance of hand-to-hand battles taking place in the future than obtains at present."

Asked if he thought aeroplanes would be used for actual warfare as well as scouting, Colonel Massy replied: "Undoubtedly, as far as combats between reconnoitring air craft are concerned, for it is evident that to obtain the necessary information one side must sweep the air clear of all opposing machines, or as many as possible of them."

"There will probably be," he said, "several kinds of military aeroplanes just as there are several kinds of naval craft, the light aeroplane for rapid scouting and a heavier machine for helping to clear the air when the ligher machines receive such opposition that they can proceed no further. The larger war planes might eventually carry a pilot and three fighting men. The smaller ones would consist only of a pilot and one observing officer."

Girl Babies the Stronger

The "weaker sex" is really the stronger sex, according to a communication made to the Academy of Sciences by Prof. Dantan, a French naturalist. He points out that the male is feebler than the female in infancy, and for this reason Nature has ordained that more males shall be born than females. But the proportion at birth dwindles. The female is stronger, and does not succumb as easily as the male. Director Carvalho, of the Polytechnic School, concurs in this theory. He says girl babies are stronger than boy babies.

To prepare for the shut-in season and to lay up health to weather, the best plan is to walk as much as possible these autumn days.

A French jeweller has invented a process by which jewelry can be perfumed with any scent without harming the valuables. The process consists in the use of an adhesive paste which is perfumed according to the wishes of the customer and the mixture is applied to the unseen part of a jewel, the odor lasting for several years until the paste has gradually worn off, when it can, of course, be renewed.

There is still a prominence given to Shetland veils for fall wear. These are shown in fancy effects, the scroll and floral design being emphasized.

Outlining in heavy silk is given to some of the expensive veilings.

Black and flesh colored Shetland veils will be the features, though the white is holding its own.

Dotted veilings in small clusters, just enough to accentuate the whiteness of the skin beneath, are to be used in Paris, as a departure from the shadow effects so long in vogue.

A pronounced Turkish influence is visible in the loose waists, straight lines, knee draped skirts tasseled trimmings, high, crushed girdles, flowing draperies, elongated waistlines, brilliant colorings and charming little jackets of white or colored satin which open over fulled vests and finish with short, rounded basques, belted in at the back with satin belts and gold buckles. An exquisite jacket of this description was of white satin embroidered down each side of the front with strass and steel beads. They ran into large motifs at the corners, and continued in a scroll pattern around the back. The entire jacket, basque and all, reached just to the waist-line.

HOUSEHOLD USES FOR OLD PAPERS

In a Hundred and One Ways They May be Used About Any Home

Paper is one of the most convenient and least expensive of the housewife's helpers.

Beginning with the cheapest of all and the most useful, newspapers dampened, torn into small pieces and scattered on the carpet, keep down the dust when you are sweeping.

When you work in the kitchen cover table and every space where you may put down a wet spoon or a dripping egg-beater with spreadout newspapers. These may afterwards be used for parcelling the scraps before you consign them to the garbage can.

If you have a range or stove which you are not using for a season, keep the top of it covered with fresh newspapers, and have others folded to fit the warming bracket and the stove pan.

A coat-hanger may be improvised from a newspaper in the following manner: Fold a newspaper through the centre and continue folding or rolling it until it is a compact piece about three inches wide. Bend it downward in the middle and tie with a cord, forming a loop. It will answer the same purpose as a hanger of wood or metal.

To keep flowers fresh, particularly violets, wrap them in a wet newspaper and then in a dry one.

If you are sufficiently economical to save half-sheets of notepaper you will find them useful, not only for shopping lists but also for forming a funnel which may be used in filling bottles with liquid or salt and pepper castors with salt and pepper. An impromptu drinking cup for use when travelling can be made by folding notepaper in a certain way.

The tissue paper with which so many things are packed nowadays is splendid for giving an unclouded polish to mirror or window glass. It is also good for filling out the sleeves and bodice of a dress when packing it.

Waxed paper is most useful in preparing a lunch. It will keep the air from the cakes and sandwiches, and prevent them from drying out. The danger of burning the bottom of a cake in the oven is obviated by lining the tin with waxed paper.

REMOVE WRINKLES FROM YOUR FACE

Some Hints to the Woman Who Likes Her Massage at Home—Do it Daily

Perhaps you are troubled with a dry, yellow and wrinkled skin? If so, here is the way to improve your facial skin. Relief will come when you learn to massage properly.

The first thing to remember is that massage will both reduce and create flesh. It all depends on how you massage. Strenuous rolling and pinching of the flesh between the fingers will slowly dissolve the fatty tissues while a delicate moothing of the flesh with the fingertips or palms will inevitably cause fat to form.

It is unwise to knead a refractory skin oftener than once every 24 hours, and then only for 15 minutes. Too much massage is as bad as too little.

Before attacking your wrinkles you should wash your face thoroughly in hot, soapy water, and then pat it dry with a ball of absorbent or old cotton. A cream jar containing a plentiful supply of good cream should be within easy reach.

After the cream has been spread thinly over the face and neck, start operations by attacking that unsightly wrinkle that runs horizontally across the head. Knead across this wrinkle with a light rotary movement of the finger-tips and finish by going from one end of the line to the other, pinching the flesh delicately.

Now attack the furrows between your brows. Rub back and forth across the lines until the [illegible]rows are blood red, then call a halt.

When ready to efface these crow's feet place the first finger above the eye at the nose and move it slightly outward half an inch beyond the corner of the eye, then in underneath the eye to the nose. As the skin surrounding the eye is extremely tender you must work carefully, else you will rub in more wrinkles than you will rub out.

Then knead your drooping cheeks into place with the palms of the hands. Place a hand on either side of the point of the chin and massage up and out beyond the outer eye corners. This movement will cause your face to fairly glow with vitality.

While massaging do not forget to treat the neck. It requires as much attention as the face. The best way of effacing the wrinkles that seek refuge below the chin is to place the palm of the right hand underneath the chin and move it toward the right ear. Then put the left hand underneath the chin and draw it toward the left ear. Continue in this manner for a moment, then place the palm of one hand at the base of the neck and move it firmly up until it reaches the point of the chin. Repeat several times.

When this remedial treatment is at an end, a cloth should be saturated with ice-cold water and laid over the face. After a moment this compress should be removed and the face dried and powdered.

WOMEN AND SECRETS

To quote an old saw, "When a man's married his troubles begin." Such a sweeping statement is, on the face of it, utterly ridiculous, for it is tantamount to saying that there is no such thing as happiness after marriage. Think of it! And then think of the couples you meet who are as happy in their married life as it is possible to be in this world. So happy are they that they would not exchange their happy home life for all the single-blessedness in the kingdom!

But when a business man marries he certainly has a nice little problem to face. Should he tell office secrets to his wife?

"Of course," some will say; "a woman can't keep a secret. It is absolutely impossible! She must talk, and if a secret is entrusted to her she is on tenterhooks until she is able to let someone else know it.

"You won't tell anyone," she says to her most intimate friend. "Promise me not to let a soul know it!" And then the secret is passed on, and is a secret no longer.

Are these people right or wrong? There are men who say that those who talk thus don't know what they are talking about. Those men are few! On the other hand, many men will come forward and say that the above statement is strictly true, and they will bring ample proof in support of it. These statements only increase the difficulty of arriving at a definite conclusion.

Can a woman keep a secret? Ages will come and go, and the same question will be asked, and answered in the same way: some will say "Yes," others "No." In the mind of the average man is entrenched the idea that it is dangerous to entrust a secret to a woman. The talkativeness of a woman and her determination to have the last word are traditional among men, and very few of the male sex will have the courage to declare that they have known women to keep secrets.

"Women will talk," they say. "You can't stop them. You might as well expect a river to flow uphill as expect a woman to keep a secret."

That is the reputation the women have got to live down. It is a reputation not utterly unfounded, for history itself gives us cases where women have disclosed mighty secrets that have wrecked empires.

But the statement that no women can keep a secret is absurd. If there are many women who cannot keep a secret, there are some who can and do. It is entirely safe to say that the average woman is no more apt to reveal an important secret than a man. The training of a business woman teaches her to keep quiet; if she is interested in her work she will not have much time for gossip, and she soon learns that it will be disastrous to herself as well as her firm if she discloses business secrets.

During the last few years men have learned to place great confidence in women. Times are changing. There are lady secretaries to-day who are in charge of all the private details of their offices, and who, if they spoke about the private information they possessed, could easily ruin their employers. Yet they keep as quiet as mice, and say no more than a man would say. They know that it doesn't pay to talk, and consequently they remain dumb.

Of course, if a man is entrusted with a business secret, and gives his word of honor not to reveal it to a soul, then he should keep his word. He is not even justified in telling his wife, despite the assertion that there should be no secrets between man and wife. Naturally, any wife would feel hurt to think that her husband kept anything from her, but office secrets are office secrets, and should be spoken of to no one. It is silly to get angry and say that it shows a lack of trust in his wife. Such is not even implied. But if men and women give their words to keep a secret they should keep the secret, and the only way to do this is not to mention the subject to a living soul.

Women CAN keep a secret.

In a general way it is not wise for husband and wife to keep secrets from each other. It generally leads to trouble if the secret leaks out.

"A still tongue makes a wise head," says the proverb.

But if silence were indeed golden, we should soon become millionaires.

A COFFIN, A TRUNK

Small Boy (to his mother): "Mrs. Smith is dead. Going to be buried tomorrow. Her trunk's just come."

WOMAN AS FARMER

Miss Hilman Manages a Big Farm in Saskatchewan

To jump from a life of care in Chicago society circles to take the full cares and responsibilities that go with the conducting of a 1,600 acre ranch in the Canadian northwest, have the handling of big quantities of wheat, over 100 horses and almost as many prize hogs, and to carry on the business of the farm until it is reckoned one of the most successful in its district is no small order for a man, but when the task is undertaken by a young lady, and successfully undertaken at that, it becomes even more wonderful.

Yet Miss Ruth M. Hilman, formerly of Chicago, where her father was a prominent railroader, and where the family was prominent in society circles, has accomplished the above. It is hard to imagine that she is the "boss" of 14 farmhands, and rules her ranch of 1,600 acres near Keeler, Saskatchewan, just as well as any practical farmer who has been brought up to the business. Sunburned a little, refined, and showing not the least embarrassment, Miss Hilman does not think she has done anything out of the way.

"There was no one else to do it," she says simply. "When my father died leaving my mother and myself and a young brother, I was the only one who could take charge. We either had to work the farm or sell it, and we decided to work it, and we have been successful. That's all."

And Miss Hilman likes farming. "It seemed to come natural," she said. "I was always interested in these things, and conducting the farm on a business basis I have found that it can be made to pay, and it is paying. In fact it paid from the start."

DISARMING THE GODS

How Chinese, Japanese and Hindoo Boys Prepare for School Life

Among the eastern nations the beginning of school life is a critical time for the child. The priest or astrologer must be consulted to choose a lucky day. Every precaution must be taken to avert the jealously of the gods, whose malice is especially directed against a fine boy.

The Chinese father, who adorse his son, will take the utmost pains to convince the powers of the air that the boy is of no account. The child may be given a despicable name, like flea or chutze, a pig; or, more insulting still, he may be given a girl's name. The boy may be started off to school wearing a girl's dress and one earring, and if the deception is complete this will be the most effectual of all, for even the gods do not care for girls in China.

The Japanese schoolboy wears hanging from his belt a litte red bag containing a brass tag with his name and his parents' name and address upon it. He must have his paper umbrella and his fan, and in a gray bag upon his arm is a jar of rice for his luncheon. This quaint little fellow has probably made his ocering at his own private shrine to Tenjinsen, the god of penmanship.

When the Hindoo boy has found an auspicious day to begin school he is taken to the god of learning, Sarasvati. Here the little supplicant presents his offerings of rice and betel nuts and repeats the letters of the alphabet after the priest. Thus he is entered into the ways of knowledge in the very presence of the god.—Ex.

IT RESTS WITH EVERY WOMAN TO BE ATTRACTIVE

No woman, perfect features or otherwise, can afford to have an anæmic or worn-out, tired appearance if she would wish to be thought of as either beautiful or attractive. Good features are to be prized, but many a woman possesses them who never impresses you with the fact. Why? Because she is pale, sickly and worn-looking.

Good features, however, are not the essential factors, for how often do you see homely people whose faces are attractive? The healthy complexion, the bright eye of health, the altogether fresh appearance make it so.

These Qualities Are Within the Reach of Every Girl and Woman

by using Restoratone Tablets. Prompt in action, they restore the natural freshness of youth. It is their capacity in this direction that makes Restoratone Tablets stand first. In short, they are attracting great attention. Their continuous effect is entirely beneficial, while their tonic properties raise the vitality and nutrition of the whole organism, thus restoring the blood to a healthy normal condition—the real secret of a good complexion. Restoratone Tablets have been tried and tested in hundreds of cases; all you need to do is to give them a trial to be convinced of their wonderful virtue. They are recognized as being the most natural and, therefore, the best treatment for all undermining or diseased conditions found in girls and women.

BRITISH CABINET AN INFORMAL BODY

The Ruling Body of England Has no Legal Standing—Absorbed Power Gradually

Sidney Low, the English writer, calls attention to the fact that the British Cabinet has really no standing in law, though it is actually the body which rules England. He makes several interesting statements in describing the situation.

The British Cabinet has long been one of the mysteries of that greater mystery, the British Constitution. To be quite exact, indeed, it is not correct to call it a part of the British Constitution, for strictly speaking it is unknown to the Constitution. The Cabinet to-day rules the country, but it has no legal status. It was not until some 10 or 12 years ago that the word "Cabinet" appeared on the notice paper or other official document.

A Cabinet Minister takes the same oath that every Privy Councilor takes, "to be a true and faithful servant unto the King's Majesty as one of his Majesty's Privy Council" and to "keep secret all matters committed and revealed unto you or that shall be treated secretly in Council." The entire body of the Privy Council is supposed to advise the Sovereign on affairs of State; but to be made a Privy Councilor to-day is practically an empty honor. It is regarded as a high compliment, but if a Privy Councilor is not a member of the Cabinet he performs no official functions.

All the executive and political functions of Privy Councilors have passed into the hands of those of them who form the Cabinet, which is really a secret committee of the King's servants who in practice collectively rule the country so long as they remain in office.

"But," as Sidney Low writes in an article in the London Daily Mail, "no act of Parliament ever gave them these powers, which could not be asserted or defended in any court of law. They are due to prescription, accident and custom.

"Technically the Cabinet as a Cabinet can do nothing. It cannot even write a letter or issue a signed order."

MADE A POOR START

Western Lady's Attempt to Promote Trade Relations With France

Though perfectly innocent of any intention of defraud, the wife of a prominent business man in Prince Albert, in her individual endeavor to promote trade relations between France and Canada set the police authorities busy in both countries. It happened in this way. An advertisement appeared in some of the French newspapers offering employment to those who would put up a deposit of $2,000 with the Globe Trotters' agency of Prince Albert. Shortly after its appearance the immigration department was besieged with inquiries and an investigation into the matter was immediately started on both sides of the water. On the face of it, the advertisement seemed to be a gigantic fraud, consequently the energies of the police on both sides of the Atlantic became very active. It was ultimately discovered that the advertisement had been inserted by the wife of a prominent Prince Albert business man.

The lady, quite innocently, had thought of this scheme as the best means to get in touch with some of the French commercial houses, with the idea of promoting French-Canadian trade. She did not want the two thousand dollars for her own purposes but merely wished it put up as a bond of good faith. After getting in touch with the firms her intention was to start the business and then get them to send over travellers to carry on the work when it would be worth their while.

That the name "Globe Trotters" was chosen was an accident. The lady, who is herself French, made an imperfect translation, and she failed to understand the meaning of the expression "globe trotter" as it applies in the English. Satisfied with the explanation the authorities dropped the matter.

PLEA OF HYPNOTISM

Grey-Headed Man Influenced Girl and Told Her to Steal Documents

Novel—at any rate, in England—was the defence of hynotic influence set up by Elsie McLaughlin, a typist, of Barrow-in-Furness, who was tried for housebreaking. The girl was found in the front bedroom of a neighbor's house while the occupants were at the theatre. By way of explanation she told a strange story of meeting an old, grey-haired man, "who," she said, "asked me if I was a friend of those people. I said I was. He gave me the key, and told me to go to their side door, open it, and go upstairs. 'In the front bedroom,' he proceeded, 'you will find a top long drawer in a chest of drawers. In the drawer there are some papers. Bring them to me.' I did as directed."

The girl told the court that she had been under the spell of hynotic influences since she was ten years old. She felt dizzy after the man spoke to her, and remembered nothing more until she was seized in the bedroom.

Nevertheless, she was found guilty. In binding her over as a first offender the magistrate said it would have been bad for the morals of England if such a peculiar explanation of crime had been accepted by the jury.

CITY CIRCULATION AGENT

Of Leading Montreal Daily Endorses GIN PILLS

FIVE long years of suffering from Kidney Trouble—two boxes of GIN PILLS—and it's all gone. That has been the experience of Mr. Eugene Quesnel, Chief City Circulation Agent of La Patrie, of Montreal. He describes it feelingly:

Montreal, May 3rd, 1912

"I have been suffering from Kidney Trouble for over five long years. I had also Rheumatism in all my bones and muscles, could not sleep nights and on some occasions could hardly walk. I had been treated by some of our best Physicians but without relief and I lost over fifteen pounds. One day I met one of our leading hotelkeepers, who had been cured by your famous GIN PILLS, and he advised me to try them. So I bought two boxes at my druggist's and before I had used one box I felt a big change. Before I finished the second one I was completely cured.

I can assure you I can hardly believe it for if I had only known what I know now I would not have spent over One Hundred Dollars for nothing when two boxes of GIN PILLS cured me."

SPRUCE IN THE LEAD

But Balsam Fir is Much Used for Pulp—Tremendous Waste

Spruce continues to hold its place as the most important of Canadian pulp woods. According to a bulletin of the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior, over four fifths of the wood consumed in the pulp industry is of this species. Balsam fir, hemlock and poplar, together, make up twenty per cent. of the total consumption. The Province of Quebec is at the head of the provinces in the pulp industry, consuming 58 per cent. of the total pulpwood cut. Ontario uses nearly one-third, and New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and British columbia together consume approximately one-fifteenth of the total.

Balsam fir is coming more generally into use as a pulpwood. It has been found that up to forty per cent. of this species can be used with spruce to produce good paper.

The mechanical process, from which the bulk of newspaper stock is made, continues to be the main source of pulp supply with 60.4 per cent. of the total Canadian product. The sulphite process consumed nearly one-third, and the remainder (nearly eight per cent.), was manufactured by the soda process. This last is the method by which kraft paper, now coming largely into use, is made.

It is estimated that if the material which goes to waste in the woods and mills of the Dominion were made into pulp the product would be greater in amount than at present made from the regular cut.

A TELEPATHIC CLOCK

Here is a strange yet absolutely true story, according to the Liverpool Post, in which a clock plays a mysterious part: It was a small timepiece which stood on a mantel-piece in a sitting room in a Liverpool builder's home. At 11.30 one morning the timepiece fell from the mantel-piece to the floor. When picked up it was found to be quite uninjured and still going, as if nothing unusual had happened. There seemed to be absolutely no reason why it should have fallen, but an hour later when the builder came home to his midday meal he remarked that at 11.30 he fell from the top of a building, but happily without sustaining any injury. His wife then described how the clock had fallen at the same time and the couple ponder in vain over the curious and utterly inexplicable coincidence.

DESPOT IN TROUBLE

Seigneur of Sark, Erratic and Tyrannical, Lands in Jail

Every traveler who has visited the Channel Islands will recall the picturesque island of Sark, famous for its magnificent cliff scenery and caves. It forms part of the bailiwick of the Island of Guernsey, but is owned by a man of the name of William Frederick Collings, who exercises manorial and feudal rights dating back many hundreds of years, as Seigneur of Sark. The arrest of Collings for shooting with intent to kill a former friend named Lovibond, occasioned little surprise, as Collings was long known to be a man of most eccentric habits.

The shooting occurred when Lovibond, who was visiting the Manor House of Sark, went to the assistance of Miss Collings, daughter of the Seigneur, when the latter attacked her most brutally, breaking her nose and her front teeth with his fists.

The consensus of opinion seems to be that Collings' reason is unbalanced and that he is only fit for a lunatic asylum. Indeed, the unfortunate inhabitants of Sark, some 800 in number, and every one of them his tenants, are convinced thereof, since his tyranny of late years has become absolutely intolerable. His feudal rights of seigneur prevent his tenants from selling the produce of their holdings without his consent, which has often been refused, and in other cases only granted on their surrender of a portion thereof to himself. The population of the island have a sort of legislature or manorial court, which sits twice a year. But as the Seigneur has a right to veto all its ordinances and decisions, it has become incapable of accomplishing anything. Of course, the Seigneur has magisterial powers and these he uses with the utmost despotism.

Ten or fifteen years ago Collings as Seigneur, entertained King Edward, Queen Alexandra, and other members of the Royal Family at Sark, but of late he was averse to visitors, and any stranger visiting the island on days of the week other than the ones appointed for the purpose was chased off by the Seigneur with shotguns and dogs.

QUAINT DUTCH CUSTOM

Started by Discovery of a Gunpowder Plot There 300 Years Ago by Boys

Of the many quaint and curious customs, traditions and privileges prevailing in Holland, none is more extraordinary than a certain privilege that has been enjoyed by the boys of Amsterdam for nearly 300 years.

At a fixed time each year these boys gather by the hundred in the great square called the Dam, situated in the centre of the city. Each boy has a drum slung over his shoulder.

Facing this square is the stock exchange, and on the occasion in question, just as soon as the day's business is over, as many of the boys as can crowd into the building. They proceed to the door of the exchange, where pursuant to this odd custom they are permitted to march about singing and beating upon their drums.

The origin of this custom, it is said, is as follows:

One afternoon in the year 1622 a crowd of boys playing in the Dam lost a ball in the canal that in those days skirted one side of the square. One of the lads, while climbing in among the piles on which the building stood, found, instead of his ball, a boat moored in a dark corner and loaded with boxes of gunpowder. This showed clearly enough what was afterward ascertained with certainty, the intention of Spanish conspirators to blow up the stock exchange while it was crowded, as it was every day, with the leading citizens of the city.

The boy who stumbled upon the gunpowder at once hurried to the town authorities with the news. The boatload of explosives was quietly sunk in the canal and the Spanish plot thus frustrated.

When the burgesses asked the boy what reward he desired for the service he had rendered the town he replied that so long as there was a stock exchange in Amsterdam the boys of the town would like to be permitted to make the floor of the exchange their playground during a certain part of the year. The request was granted, and so the custom survives.

PRECIOUS ASHES

Radium Burned in Grate by Accident and Mixed With Cinders

A firm of Birmingham chemists undertook a delicate task—that of recovering from some ashes about $500 worth of radium. This substance is frequently used for the treatment of skin diseases by private practitioners, who hire the precious mineral. It is contained in what is known as an applicator.

A doctor having removed from a patient's body the applicator and surgical dressings, inadvertently threw them both on to the bedroom fire. The doctor, much distressed, hastened to direct that posession should be taken of all the ashes from the fireplace, and this was done at once. The cinders, contained in a cardboard box, weighed about two pounds and it was found by scientific investigation that they were radio-active. The method of recovering the radium is very slow as all the ashes have to be reduced to powder by slow ignition in oxygen, but eventually it is hoped to regain about half of the precious stuff.

LICENSED HAWKERS

Street Vendors in London City Now Wear Badges

Sir Montagu Allan, president of the Montreal Jockey Club, while visiting Vancouver, came out with a vigorous interview condemning the length of the race meeting there. He said:

"This province is apparently undermining the work we are trying to do in the east, that is improve the standard and tone of horse racing. Two weeks at a time is long enough for any meet. Out here I notice that the Minoru meeting is running 60 days. That means that it soon degenerates into a mere gambling concern. Both the horses and legitimate public interest are played out long before half the Minoru races are over. I do not know what the authorities out here are thinking of to permit a 60 days' meet. It simply means that a gambling crowd come in here from the United States and take away all the money they can secure. The race horses become played out and the better class of patrons refrain from going after two or three weeks. If a meeting lasts longer than two weeks it simply degenerates into a betting proposition and the 'wise ones' carry off the public's money.

RE-STOCKING THE LAKES

How the Fish Supply of the Northern Waters is Kept up

During the last few years the Ontario Government has planted in the Lakes in the Highlands of Ontario thousands of parent fish for the purpose of increasing the supply in these waters. A special fish car was built a few years ago by the Grand Trunk Railway for the transportation of these fish. The Provincial Government of Ontario is operating fish hatcheries with very successful results and the season of re-stocking finished with the following results:—74,000 black bass fingerlings were planted in the following waters: Muskoka Lakes, 35,000; Gull Lake, near Gravenhurst, Ont., 2,000; Sturgeon Lake, Cameron Lake and Balsam (Kawartha Lakes), 10,000; Fair Lake, Vernon Lake, Peninsular Lake and Mary Lake (Lake of Bays District), 10,000. Lakes reached by the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, 12,000; and Cache Lake, Algonquin National Park, 5,000. These small fish were transported with great success and without any loss in transit so that they were depoited in the several waters in splendid condition. The black bass grow very quickly and within three years are beyond the prohibited limit in size. This re-stocking has continued for a number of years and the fishing in all these waters is improving annually.

THE GOLDEN NORTH

Canada's Arctic Region Abounds in Mineral and Animal Wealth

Rev. Father Lefevre, procurator of the missions and industrial schools under the direction of the Sisters of Charity, and located between Fort McMurray and the Arctic Red river, said in the course of an interview at Edmonton, that the north country, on the rim of the Arctic circle, abounds in untold mineral wealth, including gold and copper. He brought samples of coal oil and asphalt from the Mackenzie and Athabasca rivers.

"Gold has been found in the Liard river, where the Hudson's Bay company maintains a trading post," the missionary declared. "Copper outcroppings at Coronation Bay indicate that great stretches of this metal underlie the grass roots. Little or no work has been done in the way of prospecting, but I am satisfied the mineral is there in quantity and quality. It is not difficult of access."

Replying to a question, Father Lefevre was emphatic in his denial that cannibalism is practiced by the Indians in the far north. He said the missionaries living there had never known such a state of affairs, adding: "There are no man-eating Indians in our country."

Father Lefevre told about a large herd of wild buffaloes in the vicinity of Fort Smith, saying also that the northern country is full of black, white, red, cross and silver foxes, otter, marten, lynx, beaver, mink and muskrat, while the streams literally teem with whitefish and trout, the main sustenance of the Indians.

Three months is required to make the trip from Fort McMurray to the Arctic Red River country, including stops of a day or so at the various missions.

CROWDED STREETS

Tremendous Traffic on Thorouhfares of Old World Cities

The City of London streets near the Mansion House have the heaviest foot passenger traffic of any in the world—500,000 persons a week day; while the Place de Opéra in Paris has the heaviest vehicular traffic—63,000 vehicles a day, as compared with 50,000 a day at the Mansion House corner. The Place de Opera has 450,000 foot passengers a week day.

After these two streets come the Friedrichstrasse in Berlin, with an average of 300,000 foot passengers a day; the Graben, Vienna, with an average of 275,000, and the Vladimerski Prospekt, in St. Petersburg, with an average of 250,000 daily.

New Universal Language

Ernest Thompson Seton, an English-born author, has perfected what has been the hope of great philologists and statesmen for three centuries—a means of easy communication between people of every nation and speech.

And the wonder of this universal language, the dictionary of which is to be brought out simultaneously in Great Britain and in other countries, is that it is not the creation of an arbitrary tongue. Volapuk was a flat speech. It struggled for expression for a decade until Esperanto supplemented it. The latter tongue was chosen by a Russian scholar to overcome the feuds between the Germans, the Poles, the Russians, and the Jews in the discordant corner of the Empire in which he lived.

The language that Mr. Seton is to give to the world as a finished product does not come from the cloister. It is older than the pyramids—older than written words.

For the context of his dictionary Mr. Seton has gone to the Indians of the Canadian plains. For years he has been in correspondence with the deaf and mute throughout the world. Mr. Seton had the collaboration of great experts. Mr. Seton, who is the Chief Scout of the Boy Scouts of the New World, is to teach the language to his enormous following. Already they adopted a number of its forms. His dictionary is to be the official glossary of the Boy Scout movement throughout the world.

Switzerland Has Admirable Way of Dealing With Negligent Parents

The Swiss have a practical, quick and successful method of treating unworthy fathers of families who ill-treat their wives and children or desert them.

A Swiss butcher, who is a widower, and has a large family, appeared before the tribunal at Nyon, near Geneva, on charges of ill-treating his children and deserting them, and was found guilty. He was sentenced by the magistrate to two years' confinement in the "Colonie of Orbe" (Canton of Vaud), which is in reality a prison for the "work-shy" and where they are forced to work, the profits of their labor being employed to support their wives and families, and the money sent regularly to the commune of the prisoner.

If after two years, when the butcher will be liberated, he desires to re-start his home and work, he is at liberty to do so.

A Light on Egypt.

Many remarkable discoveries, taking the mind back to nearly 6,000 B. C., and lifting the veil of centuries from Egypt's romantic story, have been made recently by the British Archaeological School in Egypt. Among these are coffins of basketwork, reeds or withes, sandal trays, a pot of unburnt incense for a fire offering of 4,000 B. C., and numerous pieces of timber, showing by their formation the principles of building construction that were in vogue nearly 6,000 B. C. Most of the relics come from Tarkhan, an extensive cemetery about 35 miles south of Cairo, which dates from the earliest historic age down to the pyramid period.

There are bedsteads with hoof-like feet, which although nearly 6,000 years old look capable of sustaining a fair weight to-day, and long rolls of soft linen cloth, also 6,000 years old, but as tough and pliable as any modern texture straight from the loom.

One of the withy hampers now in the Cairo museum, although of the same age, had the small leaf buds of the withes still showing when it was found. Some of the bedsteads even retain the rush webbing and plaited palm fiber.

The graves of the early Egyptians were always well provided with such necessaries as were thought essential for the spirit of the departed when it again materialized. Consequently the relics from Tarkhan include head rests (some of them carved out of trees trained specially into peculiar shapes), sandals, large jars of food and various vessels of gypsum and semi-transparent alabaster.

Olive-Growing In Australia.

Probably in no country in the world could the olive be more widely grown than in Australia; yet, with the exception of some slight development in South Australia, it has till recently been practically a neglected industry there. But the steady increase in the importation of olive oil into Australia of recent years had turned the attention of Australian agriculturists to the attention of Australian agriculturists to the cultivation of [illegible] olive, particularly as a sheltering barrier of state protection (50 cents a gallon) gives the grower an increased chance of profit, and it now looks as though the olive were destined to assume important dimensions as an Australian rural industry. The climate and soil of the greater part of New South Wales are said to be splendidly suited to the production of this sub-tropical fruit.

When the Birds Get Up.

Ornithologists in England have been investigating the rising habits of small birds, with special reference to the hours when they begin to sing. It appears that the green finch is the earliest riser, as it pipes as early as 1.30 in the morning. The black cap begins at about 2.30.

It is nearly 4 o'clock before the first real songster comes in the person of the blackbird. He is heard half an hour before the thrush. The chirp of the robin begins about the same length of time before that of the wren.

The tomtit and house sparrow occupy the last place on the list. The investigations of the ornithologists would appear to have damaged the lark's reputation for early rising. That much celebrated bird is something of a sluggard.

ROMANCE OF MINING.

British Columbia's Annal. Make a Fascinating Story.

Some idea of the extent of the mineral resources of British Columbia can be gathered from the well-ascertained results of mining operations carried on since the year 1852. There was mining at that time, especially the mining of gold, and the official computation of production begins with that year. The total production for all years up to and including the year 1911, amounts to the enormous sum of $397,696,722. Of this sum gold has contributed $137,175,683; silver, $32,053,895; lead, $25,715,126; copper, $65,315,049; the remainder being made up by the contributions of coal, building stone, and metals such as zinc.

Between 1852 and 1891 the production by years has not been tabulated, but since 1891 the total production year by year is given. Of these years, 1910 still holds the record of $26,377,066. Last year the output was three millions less, the decrease being largely due to a falling off in the output of coal, owing to certain disturbances in the labor market.

Last year the output of the three precious metals—gold, silver and copper—had a total value of $10,681,450, gold leading with a value of $5,151,513, but copper was a close second, with a value of $4,571,644.

And some say that mining has only commenced in British Columbia, which is another way of saying that the present operations, output and profits, are small in comparison with what they will be when operations are more fully developed, when other known deposits are worked, and when further discoveries are made. But it is not to the future that it is here proposed to look, but to the past—to the long ago time, when gold was discovered in British Columbia and gold mining commenced.

It has been stated that as early as 1852 Chief Trader McLean, of the Hudson Bay Co., when at Kamloops, procured gold-dust from the natives of the Thompson River. Respecting the truth of this statement some doubt has been expressed, and it is pointed out that three years later the same man was "singing the praises of the mines in the American territory, without saying a word of any in his own vicinity"—which is held to make it quite unlikely that he knew of gold having been found in British Columbia.

Coming down four years in the history of the Province, one reaches surer ground respecting the date of date of the discovery of gold, for it is certain that in 1856 or 1857 gold was found in the crevices of rocks on the banks of the Thompson River. Hearing of the find, Chief Trader McLean, of the Hudson Bay Co., went up the river and examined the banks. Sure enough gold was there as reported, and McLean promptly sent down to Fort Victoria for what he called "iron spoons to be used in digging out the nuggets." These were promptly sent up to him with the instructions that he give "as much encouragement as possible to the Indians willing to devote their time and energies to that purpose."

News of the discovery traveled fast, and soon reached the Pacific Coast states, which had had the gold fever ever since the days of the Californian "Forty-Miners." Soon a party of explorers and miners arrived at Victoria, and thence ascended the Fraser River to within a short distance of Fort Gale where they discovered Hill's Bay, which proved very rich.

These miners on Hill's Bay "panned out" daily from one hundred to one hundred and fifty dollars' worth of gold dust, and after a considerable quantity had been secured it was sent down to Victoria in charge of a celebrated character, "Billy" Bardou, an expressman, who had had much experience among the gold camps of California. As soon as it was known that gold dust was being shipped out of the camp more miners came pouring in, and so the gold fever spread as more gold was found.

The Rev. A. G. Morice, O.M.I., in his History of the Northern Interior of British Columbia, states that "the first lot of the precious metal to leave the limits of what is now British Columbia, found its way into San Francisco, where it was taken in February, 1858, by the company's steamer Otter."

In Celtic Revival.

Mr. Stephen Gwynn, the Nationalist member for Galway City in the British Commons, has played a prominent part in the Celtic literary revival, and has achieved no small measure of fame by his own writings.

He is one of six brothers who have achieved distinction in various walks of life. His father, Dr. John Gwynn, is a Biblical scholar of note, and for many years was regius professor of divinity at Dublin University. Mr. Stephen Gwynn's mother, who died five years ago, was a daughter of the famous William Smith O'Brien, who was sentenced to death for being concerned in the rising of '48.

Mr. Stephen Gwynn was educated in Ireland and at Oxford. He had a brilliant scholastic career, and on leaving the university entered the teaching profession. After a time he drifted into authorship and journalism. He has produced some delightful books of a topographical nature, and one remembers with pleasure "A Holiday in Connemara" and "Highways and Byways in Donegal and Antrim." Mr. Gwynn is an enthusiastic angler, and has written much on his favorite pastime.

Rossmore Stories.

Here are some stories from Lord Rossmore's new book:

"Percy La Touche is the leading sportsman of Ireland. He has a keen sense of humor, and when the late King once playfully hit him over the shoulders with his walking-stick he turned to his majesty and said, in rather rueful manner: 'Sir, I don't know whether you've knighted me or broken my collar-bone.'"

"The late King was a great stickler about the proper 'get up' for the races. At Epsom by some oversight I was not wearing the silk hat demanded by etiquette. The prince looked at me critically from top to toe, and said, half in jest and half in reproof: 'Well, Rossmore, have you come r-r-ratting?'"

Bacon vs. Beef.

Bacon seems to be even better liked in England than beef. The imports of bacon last year were 4,868,738 hundredweight against 3,863,389 in 1910, whereas the imports of frozen beef were smaller in 1911 (3,420,071) than in 1910 (3,766,878).

IS HIS FATHER'S SON

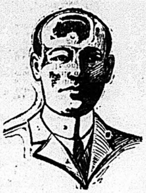
H. C. COX IS ONE OF CANADA'S FIRST BUSINESS MEN.

Youngest of Senator George A. Cox's Sons Who Has Just Been Made President of the Imperial Life Assurance Co. Is a Music Patron and Horse Lover as Well as a Master of Finance.

Herbert C. Cox of Toronto, the new president of the Imperial Life Assurance Co., is one of the foremost young business men in Canada and inherits in a marked degree the financial ability for which his father, Senator Geo. A. Cox, is distinguished.

In the first place his face could not be mistaken for any but the Cox countenance—and it is a physiognomy famous in Canadian finance. He has more paternal traits than are exhibited in an external physical resemblance to the Senator. He possesses a desire to do things for himself and map out new lines of action.

He believes in getting started as early as possible. As a youth at the University of Toronto he could not wait to graduate, his fingers so "itched for the feel of a typewriter," as he once expressed his ambition. The Senator gratified his youthful commercial tendencies by taking him out of college and giving him a job in the Canada Life. He rose through all the grades to managing the business of that big insurance company. As he grew in business stature he found his services in demand in the board rooms of leading corporations throughout the country.



HERBERT C. COX.

He is the youngest son of Senator Cox, and was born in Peterborough, Ont., in 1873. He entered the service of the Canada Life Assurance Co. in 1894 and in 1899 entered into partnership with his father under the firm name of George A. & H. C. Cox, in the management of the eastern Ontario and Michigan branches of this company. Not long afterwards he became sole manager of these branches and now has been appointed to the responsible position of president of the Imperial Life.

He is connected with numerous business and financial concerns besides being a director of the Dominion Securities Corporation, the Central Canada Loan & Savings Co., the Robert Simpson Co., a trustee of the Toronto General Hospital and the Toronto Conservatory of Music, vice-president of the local branch of Underwriters Association of Canada, and vice-president of the Provident Investment Co. and chairman of the Symphony Orchestra. In religion he is a Methodist and a trustee of the Metropolitan Church. He belongs to several of the leading clubs of Toronto, among them being the National Club, Ontario Club, Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto Hunt Club and Lambton Golf Club.

Away from his office Mr. Cox has cultivated a variety of interests. He is one of the leading patrons of music in Toronto; in his devotion to the affairs of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra resembling a young Montrealer, Col. Frank S. Meighen, who has been trying to give Canada grand opera at his own expense. Horses are another of Mr. Cox's diversions. He owns some of the best known thoroughbreds on the continent. He is a breeder rather than a race track devotee, and has exhibited with much success in Montreal, Toronto and New York.

O, HAPPY LAND!

In Australian Wilds Scolding Can Be Stopped.

When she begins, crescendo, to tell you what she thinks of you, out of the limitless wealth of her acquaintance with your character during the term of your married life, you know what is coming. You either light a cigar, like a sensible husband and do a marathon; or you sit there, mumchance, until you simply can't stand it any longer, and explode into something which, as she expressly informs you, is more than sufficient ground for divorce, with an alimony that'll put a crimp into any more gallivanting to lunch with handsome blond customers.

Is there no hope? Men, there is. Where all others failed, explorers of the wild of far Australia have brought back joyful news.

A little co-operation, a mere tribal, and you can make a woman hold her tongue until the warmest depth of the warmest place you so loyally keep from wishing her in is frozen over and fit for skating.

Where all men has to do is to say to his wife, in the Warrrrramunga—doesn't it sound fine?—language:

"Shut up!"

That's all. He doesn't have to bat her over her oratorical head with a club; he needn't appeal to the sympathetic mother-in-law of reality, who cuted husbands more often than the humorists let us surmise. He simply says, "Shut up!" and she shuts.

Oh, woman in your hours of ease the hardest in the world to please, can you conceive of any land of people under whose sky the priceless privilege of your sex has been abandoned at the behest of that pitiless tyrant man? Yet it is true. Men's eyes have seen this marvelous thing; men's ears have strained in vain to hearken to the protest of the afflicted and the oppressed.

There are two of them, Englishmen, named Baldwin Spencer and F. J. Gillen, and they made a journey across Australia in the doubtful expectation of coming across some discovery or other which would let them lay claim to the immortal fame that goes to persons who beat Marco P[illegible] and Munchausen, and can prove it.

When Messrs. Spencer and Gillen encountered the Warramungas, in Australia's innermost wilds, and found half the women acting as if they were stricken dumb, they suspected they were in the presence of some marvel. They hastened to get the Warramunga population with the goods, by photographing the women, not only in the act of silence, but also in the instant when they were released from their horrible ban. The joyous emancipation came when her husband placed his right hand before her mouth, and, with a peculiar gesture, moved it to show that she was once more free to speak.

Those ignorant savages, in their simple, innocent way, had eliminated the source of a marital misery—is the testimony of the age and the sages counts—with neatness and despatch. Yet they were merciful withal. Not lightly did they put on the ban. While it was employed for the more exasperating occasions of domestic life in dire extremity, as when Oscar J. Warramunga refused to stand for his Annabelle's kicks on the subject of rabbit for three meals a day, the formal occasion for its enforcement was when death came into the tribe. If four men, one in every class into which the tribe was divided happened to die within a short time, the man put the silence ban on every woman in their district. And not until the formal release was gestured did a single woman in the lot dare utter a syllable.

Thus, in Warramunga, the eternal problem has been solved. Thus, too, is man provided food for thought during that vacuous period of the curtain lecture, when he wishes his wife were somewhere, but remains too thoughtful of her comfort to be specific as the locality he may have in mind. Well after this discovery has been bruited about generally, the women who, while she jaws, is tortured with the doubt that he is wishing she is elsewhere, and feels sure in her own soul that she knows exactly where, can take heart in the thought that it may not be as bad as she surmises. He may only be wishing her in Warramunga.

By the way, the two travelers noticed that, while the women of Warramunga didn't dare open their mouths so long as the ban lasted, they did the finest lot of talking ever seen with their fingers.

Meredith and Women Suffrage.

George Meredith, whose letters have just been published was one of the pioneers of woman suffrage in England and unlike Browning he retained his belief in the movement to the end. Mr. Herbert Paul considers that the greatest service Meredith's books rendered, apart from their literary value, is their exaltation of women in the economy of the world. The effect of his belief in the possible enlargement of women's sphere, and the development of their powers, was all the gerater because it was subtle, because it reached the public through a few minds to whom Meredith at once appealed, and because it inspired confidence in women without parading their claims. The comparative freedom and independence which women now enjoy is due more to Meredith than to Parliament or to Mill.

Gold In Wales.

Welsh gold mines, in one of which a rich vein is reported to have been struck, have been systematically worked for over sixty years. Gold was first discovered in the principality in 1845, in a lode on the Clogan mountains.

The Cricket on the Hearth.

The cricket on the hearth is still a welcome guest in many English households, for the cricket is believed to bring good luck to a house, while his departure is a certain harbinger of evil tidings. It is unlucky to kill a cricket. A Lancashire correspondent of The London Notes and Queries records a local superstition "that crickets are lucky about a house and will do no harm to those who use them well, but that they eat holes in the worsted stockings of such members of the family as kill them." The writer adds that he was assured of this "on the experience of a respectable farmer's family."

Church Members.

Three and one-half years ago, it was estimated that there were 900,000 church members in the Dominion. This has increased in the three years so that the total to-day is undoubtedly very close to 1,100,000, divided as follows: Anglicans, 188,000; Baptists, 135,000; Congregationists, 12,050; Friends, 1,000; Lutheran, 100,000; Methodists, 338,500; Presbyterian 288,000; other bodies, estimated 10,000. Total, 1,073,150.

The number of places of worship, both self-sustaining and assisted, is about as follows: Anglican, 2,500; Baptist, 1,307; Christian, 14; Congregational, 199; Friends, 32; Lutheran, 500; Methodist, 5,600; Presbyterian, 4,122; other organizations, estimated, 250. Total practically 15,000.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $1[illegible] a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

Making ONE Dollar Do the Work of Two

YOUR DOLLARS vary in value according as they vary in purchasing power.

THE MAN or woman who studies advertising is able, frequently, to make one dollar do the usual work of two.

THE EXPERIENCED reader of advertisements will always make a dollar command a premium, that is, make it buy more than the dollar of a non-reader of advertisements.

HOW MUCH "above par" are the dollars in your packet?

IT WILL depend on how closely you study the buying opportunities outlined in the store advertisements.

APPROPRIATE SERMON AT ST. ANDREWS CHURCH SUNDAY BEFORE SONS OF SCOTLAND

The Sons of Scotland in a body visited St. Andrew's Church Sunday morning, and listened to an able and interesting sermon by the pastor, Rev. A. S. Kerr, on Andrew, the Patron Saint of Scotland.

Selecting his text from the first chapter of John, fortieth verse, which read: "One of the two which heard John speak, and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother," the preacher brought out the important features in the life of this great patron saint. Peter, James and John came first in the apostolic annals, and were the favorites of Christ. Andrew occupied a difficult position, coming after these three, but nevertheless he was willing to occupy a secondary place. While James and John were ambitious, wanting first honors in the Kingdom, and on the other hand, Peter was impulsive; Andrew was always of the retiring and unassuming kind, whose crowning glory was that he was content to be passed over. Andrew was not envious or jealous, and while he did not have the gifts of other men, he was the first to believe in Jesus, and was largely instrumental in bringing Peter to the Christ, whom he afterward denied. Furthermore, he was a man who was firm in his convictions and when he believed* in Christ he was not afraid to step out and acknowledge his decision. He was of a liberal heart and had the faculty of leading others in paths of righteousness, and his greatest gift was that of introducing men to Christ. The preacher heralded Andrew as one of humble and lowly spirit, and in reality was the first missionary in bringing men to the new Messiah. His life was that of true brotherhood, and he was adequate and able for difficult duties. He was not brilliant, but one who could be trusted. He was a good character to measure up to, and had many things in his favor which could not be said of some of the other apostles. Andrew's character was stainless, compared with Peter's, who denied his Christ and disgraced himself. In all the records in scripture, history or anything else, St. Andrew has been proven as a man of most exemplary character, and taking his life as a standard to go by, it is possible for us to be true and faithful at all times.

Dates Selected For The L.Y.R.A. Meet

The meet in the Lake Yacht Racing Association will be held next summer at this end of Lake Ontario, the spot chosen being Prinyer's Cove, Prince Edward. The dates set are the 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th of July. It is understood that an effort will be made to have the annual George Cup races at the same place the week before. Commodore Hansard Hora and Dr. Black represented the local club at the annual meeting of the association in Toronto on Saturday. It is three years since the races were sailed at this end of Lake Ontario. Among the clubs represented will be Hamilton, Toronto, Watertown, Rochester, Oswego and Big Lodus.—Picton Gazette.

Congress Opposes Carnegie Pension

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2?.—As a result of the announcement by the Carnegie Corporation that a pension of $25,000 would be offered each ex-President of the United States, a strong movement is expected in the coming session to induce Congress to provide a pension.

Senator Culberson, of Texas, long Democratic leader of the Senate, declared it would be "undemocratic" to have former Presidents pensioned from a private fund.

Several other members of the House and Senate to-day expressed their opposition to a private pension and suggested means by which Congress could provide for the retirement of men who had held the chief office of the nation.

Killed His Wife At Her Request

PARIS, Nov. 23.—M. Beguery, a sexagenarian and former procureur de la Republique at Arles, whose wife had suffered from the agonies of an incurable malady, Friday yielded to her oft-repeated requests, and killed her with three revolver shots. The couple were very attached, but her sufferings made the wife twice attempt to commit suicide. M. Beguery surrendered to the police after he had ended his wife's sufferings.

The sister of the wife arrived at the station house shortly after, and exclaimed, "Beguery, you are a saint. I know what she suffered for a year and what you endured."

Madame Beguery's sufferings had made her husband a neurasthenic, so much so that his friends feared for his reason. The event occurred at Sannois, near Paris.

Red Cross To Aid

WASHINGTON Nov. 24.—Disregarding race and creed in the hour of distress, the Red Cross has stretched out a helping hand to the Red Crescent. Ambassador Rockhill at Constantinople to-day cabled the State Department that the Red Cross relief organization in that city under American supervision has not only supplied the Red Crescent with complete outfits for several hundred wounded in the military hospital at Tashkissla, but has equipped a ward in an operating room and supplied surgeons, assistants and nurses under the supervision of Major C. Sinclair Ford, of the Medical Corps, U. S. A. Relief work will be carried on elsewhere with the assistance of the missionaries among the refugees in Asiatic Turkey.

Train Wreckers Were Tardy

LONDON, Nov. 21.—A despatch to a news agency from St. Petersburg says that an unsuccessful attempt was made last Monday to wreck the train on which Emperor Nicholas and the members of the Russian Imperial family were returning from Spala to Tsarskoselo by tearing up the rails and sleepers near Koslowa Ruda. The correspondent adds that owing to misinformation as to when the Imperial train was due the work of the would-be wreckers was done after the train had passed the spot picked out for its ditching.

SOUTH HASTINGS DISTRICT DAIRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION

Saturday afternoon the annual district dairy meeting for South Hastings was held in the Council Chambers in the City Hall. The attendance was fair. Mr. W. C. Farley occupied the chair. The first business transacted was the election of a director on the Board of the Eastern Dairymen's Association, and Mr. W. C. Farley, who has occupied that position for two years, was unanimously re-elected.

Mr. H. Howie, instructor for this dairy district, presented his annual report, which was an interesting document.

Mr. G. G. Publow of Kingston, Chief Dairy Instructor for Eastern Ontario, gave a valuable address. In his opening remarks he said we have had a fairly good year. It was a good year for the caring of milk, the temperature not being as high as in previous years. Cheese and butter today were commanding good prices and it was essential that the very best articles be produced. The speaker then showed a chart upon which was drawn three cheeses of various sizes, all of which had been made from the same quantity of milk—325 pounds. It was clearly demonstrated that the better the condition of the milk sent to the factory, the better will be the result of the product. Prof. Publow spoke at some length on the cool curing of milk and the beneficial results which follow. In a cool curing room there should be appliances for providing heat when the atmosphere is damp. The proper caring of whey was referred to and the idea of allowing it to go to waste was against the law. Prof. Publow advised all to feed the whey, or if they did not do this, to throw it upon the manure pile, where it will prove of some service. In speaking of cheese generally, Mr. Publow stated that the September make of cheese this year was not generally equal in quality to that of October, owing to weather conditions. In hot weather the quicker milk is cooled the longer it will stay sweet, and will reach the factory in better condition. In closing Mr. Publow enjoined upon all the necessity of doing all in their power to make the cheese business the best it was possible to make it.

Mr. Henry Glendenning of Manilla gave a brief address, his remarks being solely along the line of food for the cows. He stated that winter dairying was developing in some portions of the province. The cow is simply a machine and we should make every effort to get out of the cow all the milk that is posible to get. The cow that is well fed during the winter will give better results during the summer months. Alfalfa hay is an excellent feed for cows to supplement grass when the pasture is light.

Corn silage in the winter is a cheap succulent food, but a person who depends on this food to produce a good flow of milk will be disappointed. Feeding corn silage with alfalfa makes an excellent food. The seeding of alfalfa was then referred to. It will not stand tramping or close cropping.

In answer to a question Mr. Glendenning stated that he sowed 15 lbs. of seed to the acre.

A number of questions were then asked, all of which were satisfactorily answered by the speaker.

Jailed For Attempting Libel

BERNE, Nov. 24.—The practice of writing romans a clef is not encouraged in Switzerland.

Some years ago Prince Louis Ferdinand of Bavaria made the acquaintance of an actress, with whom he lived for some time. After the inevitable parting the Prince's mistress went to live at Bale, and being dissatisfied with the provision made for her son, wrote a novel in which her late lover was figured, under the thinnest of disguises as the villain of the book. This she sold to a Swiss publisher, who forwarded a copy to Prince Louis, saying he would suppress the work on payment of $40,000.

His letter was placed in the hands of the Bavarian minister, and both publisher and author were promptly arrested.

They were tried at Diesbal, the chief town of the Canton of Bale, on the charge of conspiring to produce a libel. The court found them guilty and sent the man to prison for eight months and the woman for three months.

Confesses To Burglary

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 23.—Charles Evans, alias Harris, Friday pleaded guilty to a charge of burglarizing the house of Mrs. William Tierney, 155 Albert Street, and stealing therefrom $150 worth of jewelry owned by Miss Maude Bradshaw and Miss Minnie Keating. Evans will be sentenced on this charge, and also on a charge of stealing a watch from Miss M. M. Cartie, of the City Hotel, by Police Magistrate Judd in one week. In the meantime, his record will be obtained.

A York Street man yesterday indentified the prisoner as a thief sought here eighteen months ago. At that time a mysterious "keyman" entered several houses during daylight and stole large quantities of jewelry. His procedure was to ring vigorously, and if no answer was obtained to enter and ramsack the rooms.

3,000,000 One Cent Christmas Stamps

TORONTO, Nov. 23.—Three million of the one-cent Christmas stamps issued by the National Sanitarium Association are ready to be placed on sale throughout Ontario. These attractive little stamps serve a triple purpose, in that they express the spirit of the holiday season, create an interest in the work done for the cure and prevention of tuberculosis throughout the province, and help to swell the funds available for the fight against the white plague.

Dr. James L. Hughes presided yesterday at a well-attended luncheon of business and professional men held at the National Club for the purpose of organizing committees to arrange for the widest possible distribution and sale of the stamps. The thoroughness with which this work is carried out is evidenced by the fact that the channels of sale include the railway news companies, the leading hotels and departmental stores, the schools and the churches, while among the bodies that take an active part in the scheme are the Canadian manufacturers and the Board of Trade, the Y. M. C. A., the Boy Scouts, the School Cadets, the military organizations, the banks, the legal profession, the insurance offices, the fraternal societies and the Roman Catholic and Hebrew societies.

Last year $18,000 was raised by the sale of the stamps, and this year it is hoped to secure $30,000. The proceeds will go toward making up the million-dollar fund for consumptives, which is being raised as a memorial to the late King Edward.

Fountain Of Youth Here

HONOLULU, Nov. 25.—If Ponce de Leon had gone around the other way in his quest for the fountain of youth and landed upon West Hawaii there can be little doubt as to what he would have done, according to Chief Clerk Henry O'Sullivan, of the territorial offices, who finds that in one small district there are over a hundred natives more than 90 years of age, several who are past the century mark and one who has lived in the same house or upon the same parcel of land for 108 years.

Mr. O'Sullivan became interested over his official returns and made a personal visit to the section to verify them, and he says that they are all correct, so far as he has been able to find out. All these aged persons, he says, are pure-blooded Hawaiians, who have lived pastoral lives, have seen little or anything of civilization and know not the vices of the white man. Most of them are ardent and continuous smokers and use gin whenever it is around.

Hostilities To Cease

SANTO DOMINGO, Nov. 24.—A decree is published here calling Congress into special session on Nov. 26, when President Eladio Victoria will resign. Pending the President's retirement there will be a cessation of hostilities between the revolutionists and the government forces. Many political prisoners have been released. Archbishop Adolfo Nouel seems to be the popular candidate for the office of provisional President of the Republic.

FIFTY PERSONS DEAD

Panic Occurs in a Picture Show in Bilbao, Spain.

Film Ignites and Operater, Losing His Nerve, Calls Out "Fire," Whereupon Audience Struggles to the Door—Most of the Dead Are Children — Circus Was Crowded With Women and Little Ones.

Bilbao, Spain, Nov. 25.—A terrible panic was caused yesterday afternoon by the cry of fire at a moving picture show here. About fifty children and others were killed. Only one woman up to a late hour last night had been found among the dead. The number of injured is not known, as most of them were taken to their homes by friends.

The scene of the accident is a large circus, which had been converted into a continuous cinematograph show. As the price of admission was only two cents the building was crowded to its utmost capacity, for the most part with women and children.

The operator of the machine lost his nerve when a film ignited, and screamed "fire." He was able to extinguish the flames himself without difficulty, but the effect of his cry upon the audience was instantaneous. Almost everyone within the building sprang up. The police and attendants were powerless to control the panic-stricken people and were swept away by the surging mass which sought to fight a way to the exit. Scores were knocked down and trampled upon and many were crushed to death in the passages from the galleries and to the streets.

The news of the disaster brought large crowds, who gathered in a frenzied manner outside the building, and the authorities had great difficulty in carrying on the work of rescue and extricating the dead and injured from the piles of wrecked seats.

The manager and other employes have been arrested and are held pending an inquiry.

Hockin Imprisoned.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 25.—Imprisonment of Herbert S. Hockin, one of the chief defendants, in default of an increased bond which was required by the court "because he had deceived everyone," the denouncing by a woman writer in the court-room as an "anarchist," and a denial of knowledge by attorneys for the defence of some of the acts of the defendants, were among sensational incidents at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial Saturday.

Hockin was declared to have been in the employ of detectives soon after The Los Angeles Times' explosion. He was also accused of having told a witness of overhearing J. J. McNamara talk to President Lynch of the International Typographical Union "about an explosion on the Pacific coast."

Miss Mary Field of New York was branded by the district attorney as an "anarchist who ought to be excluded from the courtroom" for certain articles she published concerning the trial in The Union Magazine.

Drawing-Room at Capital.

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—The second Canadian edition of a royal drawing-room held the stage at Ottawa on Saturday night, when over one thousand people made their bow to Their Royal Highnesses and admired the pretty princess seated beside the throne occupied by her parents. All the arrangements were as smooth as those of last year, and there was not nearly so much evidence of stage fright noticed in those presented. People are now getting used to the terrible ordeal of bowing to royalty, and only one woman of the many hundred seemed to completely lose her nerve and stand paralyzed before the throne for an appreciable time. The dresses were much more beautiful than at the previous drawing-room, and the flowers were magnificent, orchids being there in profusion in bouquets of a size undreamed of a few years ago.

By Hudson Bay Route.

Edmonton, Alta., Nov. 25.—That within three years more than fifty million bushels of western wheat will be finding its way annually to the markets of the world by way of the Hudson Bay Railway and Port Nelson, if present expectations are fulfilled, is the statement made by R. H. McNeil, secretary of the company.

"It is because the people of the west demand it," said Mr. McNeil, "and it is a moral certainty that the line will be operated by the Government and that it will be one of the most profitable railroads in the Dominion."

The length of the line from Lepas to Port Nelson, on the Hudson Bay, is 500 miles, and to-day 75 miles of road are graded and ready for track, while there is on hand a sufficient quantity of steel for the first 150 miles.

Boy Shot While Hunting.

Leamington, Ont., Nov. 25.—Lyman Miller, about 16 years old, of Leamington, was shot through the side on Saturday afternoon by a companion, while hunting rabbits.

Miller, his grandfather and a boy friend were walking through a piece of wooded land on the fifth concession of Mersea, when the accident happened. Miller was carrying a ferret in a box over his shoulder. His friend was following close behind with a shot gun, and not knowing the gun was loaded, was playing with the trigger. The gun went off and bored an inch hole through the ferret box and Miller's side, without injuring the ferret.

GIBSON IS CONVICTED

Toronto Youth Found Guilty of Murder of Rosenthal.

Jury Returns After a Short Deliberation and Announces Agreement on Gibson's Guilt — Defence Asks a Reserved Case on the Grounds That Dunkleman's Evidence Was Not Admissible.

Toronto, Nov. 25.—Without a tremor or even a flush upon his cheek, Chas. Gbison who, since last Monday morning, has been on trial charged with the murder of Joseph Rosenthal on Good Frdiay last, listened to the jury foreman announce the verdict of "guilty" at 2.05 p.m. in the criminal assize court on Saturday.

Aubrey Bond, defence counsel, immediately rose and asked Chief Justice Sir William Mulock for a reserved case on the question of the admissability of the evidence of Eli Dunkleman, with regard to the assault upon him on that fateful night. His lordship will dispose of Mr. Bond's action to-day.

Just after Gibson had eaten dinner, he was offered the services of a spiritual adviser. In a clear voice Gibson thanked the offerer. "I'm not guilty," he declared, "or I couldn't feel the way I do now. I didn't do it." Gibson at this time said he expected a disagreement amongst the jury.

In one of the ablest and most powerful addresses delivered in the history of the Toronto Bar Defence Counsel Bond put before the jury arguments as to Gibson's innocence.

"Do you think this weak boy of 20 years would smash up a man the way Rosenthal was found? Was it the job of a man intent on robbery, or was it the job of two or more men?"

Mr. Bond impressed upon the jurors the inadvisability of convicting on circumstantial evidence. "No one," said he, "saw Gibson lay hands on Rosenthal. The crown says the fact of Gibson giving his wrong name, and having bloodstains on his clothes is evidence of guilt. But has some one an axe to grind? Is there treachery here?"

Crown Prosecutor Meredith in reply, scouted the statement that Gibson could not have done the deed. "Anyone could have done it had they had a hammer in their hands.

"Why in the name of Almighty God should Dunkleman seek to send Gibson to the gallows by swearing to what he did, if it were not true?

"The prisoner might have had someone there to assist him in his deed, but if he did, he is just as guilty as the man who struck the fatal blow."

Chief Justice Sir William Meredith occupied nearly an hour in his charge to the jury. Going over the evidence piece by piece, he told them that if they had settled in their minds as to whether they would believe Dunkleman, the biggest part of their task was finished.

With regard to the evidence of the three soldiers, which was a strong factor in the defence, the chief justice asked the jury if it was feasible that they could with such a short glimpse of the men upon the bridge that night, describe them with any degree of accuracy.

"One of them tells us he had been to a building bee, where there had been a keg of beer, and was hurrying back to the barracks to get more beer before the canteen closed. Was he in a condition to accurately set the time, or describe men whom he met upon this occasion?"

At twelve fifteen the jury retired, and the court adjourned till two o'clock, when the jury returned their verdict.

It's no easy task to convince a farmer that city people ever get up early enough to do an honest day's work.

BEWARE YOUNG MAN

IT'S THE LITTLE DANDRUFF GERMS THAT ARE CAUSING YOUR HAIR TO THIN OUT.

Parisian Sage, Stops Falling Hair and Does Not Contain Poisonous Leads or Dyes.

The clever young man of today doesn't take any chances on losing his hair. A man who is baldheaded at 30 looks like 45, and is placed at a disadvantage when seeking employment.

If you have dandruff it means down near the roots of your hair an army of dandruff germs are attacking the hair root and destroying its vitality.

Then hair falls out; grows thin and baldness results. Young man, put your faith in delightful PARISIAN SAGE, it will stop falling hair, kill dandruff germs, abolish dandruff and itching scalp, or money back.

PARISIAN SAGE is only 50 cents a bottle at J. V. Doyle's and dealers everywhere. Girl with Auburn hair on every carton. Ask for PARISIAN SAGE.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT

ning of Messiah's reign, Divine Wisdom will insist that, although the Redeemer may give to humanity every opportunity possible for recovery from sin and death, and every assistance possible for Restitution, nevertheless, none shall have eternal life except as perfect beings in heart harmony with the Creator. Therefore the work of Messiah's Kingdom will be to deliver humanity from sin and death, and to give opportunity for all to return to harmony with the Father; and any who will not so do, Justice will insist shall be destroyed in the "Second Death." Against such a decision, Divine Wisdom, Love and Power will offer no objection, nor will any redemption be effected for their wilful sin.

The Scriptures declare that the world knows not God, and that only the eyes of the consecrated Church are open to behold the "Love of God, which passeth understanding." This class only, therefore, is in any sense prepared to give thanks to God now for the unspeakable Gift. Their thanks go up, not only in words, but also in actions, which "speak louder than words." These thanks ascend as sweet incense to God as His blessings and mercies abound in all spiritual things toward those who are in Christ Jesus.

By and by, "All the blind eyes will be opened and all the deaf ears will be unstopped." Then the whole world of mankind, including those awakened from the sleep of death during Messiah's reign, will be in a condition to recognize God's unspeakable Gift and to render thanks. When the wilful evil-doers shall have been destroyed, "Every knee will bow and every tongue will confess, to the glory of God." Then every creature in heaven and on earth and in the sea shall be heard saying, "Praise, glory, honor, dominion and might be unto Him that sitteth on the Throne, and unto the Lamb, forever," for the unspeakable Gift.

Tobacco at Harvest Home.

At the harvest festival at Methwold Parish Church the scheme of decoration included some green tobacco leaves, presented by Major G. F. Whitmore. It is believed this is the first time that English-grown tobacco has been thus exhibited.

Incandescent Mantles.

To save incandescent mantles when lighting turn on the gas for a second before applying the match, then hold the match about two inches above the top of the chimney and the mantle will last much longer.

Human Vision.

The normal eye, at a distance of ten inches, cannot detect an object of less than 1-250 of an inch in diameter. Two black objects, if separated by a bright interval less than this, are perceived as one.

HUNDRED YEAR CLUBS

Believe Life May Be Prolonged.

Men who are devoting their lives to the study of longevity believe that in the days to come a man of ninety will be in his prime, and old age will begin long past a hundred years.

Scientists have proved that the simple life, temperate habits, exercise, and an active mind are essential to a long and happy life.

When the blood gets thin and sluggish and creeps lazily through the veins, and the arteries begin to harden, there is nothing that will enrich the blood, improve the circulation and restore strength to every back-sliding organ in the body so quickly as our delicious cod liver and iron tonic Vinol. Here is proof.

Mrs. Michael Bloom of Lewiston, Pa., at 81 years of age was so weak she had to be wheeled around in an invalid's chair—she writes that after taking a few bottles of Vinol she could take long walks and do her housework. That shows how Vinol strengthens old people.

Try Vinol on our guarantee that it will do you good or cost you nothing. Red Cross Drug Store. J. S. McKeown, Belleville, Ont.

BOY SCOUTS TO HELP "THE OTHER FELLOW."

The co-operation of the Boy Scouts of Ontario has been enlisted in the movement to have the first day of December generally observed as Tuberculosis Sunday throughout the province. Members of each local corps should attend the various churches in uniform, and distribute literature regarding the care and cure of consumptives, and reviewing the progress made in the fight against Tuberculosis. Each boy might wear a special badge bearing the legend, "Help the other fellow," the principle of "helping the other fellow" being one of the chief obligations laid upon the members of the organization. The purpose of Tuberculosis Sunday is purely educative and it is not proposed to take up special offerings for the work.

In Hurricane's Trail

KINGSTON, Nov. 23.—Normal conditions gradually are being restored in the hurricane-swept districts of Western Jamaica. Railway communication has been resumed, bu the telegraph lines have not yet been repaired. In the absence of detailed reports it is still impossible to state the full damage done by the hurricane and tidal wave.

Advices received here yesterday are to the effect that there has been considerable looting at Savanna la Mar and Montego Bay, and a force of armed constabulary has been sent to both places.

"Lord Mayor's Fool" Is Gone

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Although much of the mediavel character of the Lord Mayor's office is still retained, there is at least one adjunct to it which has disappeared—namely the "Lord Mayor's Fool," a personage who filled in the city an office similar to that which the court jester undertook in the Royal household. There was one feat, however, which was probably peculiar to his office—the leaping fully dressed into a bowl of custard.

This took place at a certain moment during the Lord Mayor's banquet and Shakeespeare mentions it in "All's Well That Ends Well," where Lafen remarks, "You nave made shift to run into't, boots and spurs and all, like him that leaped into the custard."

Wagon Seat Killed Boy

KINGSTON, Nov. 23.—Robert Dick aged 14 years, who resided at Joyceville, was killed Friday morning by being run over by a wagon and the seat falling on his neck. About 7 o'clock he went to the cheese factory and had unloaded his cans and started for home. One of the cans got loose and the lad got off to fix it. While he was thus engaged the horse backed up with the result that the boy was knocked under the wagon. One of the wheels passed over his leg and the seat fell on his neck, causing instant death. The boy came from Brockville.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

POLICE CALLS

During Saturday evening the police answered two calls, one of which resulted in a drunk being taken care of.

FINED FOR DRUNKENNESS

In the absence of the Police Magistrate, His Worship Mayor Vermilyea to-day presided over police court business. A drunk named Benjamin Barker was the only case to be disposed of. Barker pleaded guilty to the charge and a fine of $2 without costs was imposed.

WELL KNOWN IN THIS CITY

While in church yesterday morning Rev. A. M. Hubly received a telegram from Rev. Bishop Robert L. Rudolph, D. D. of Philadelphia, stating that Rev. Bishop H. S. Hoffman, D. D. had died Saturday. Bishop Hoffman is pretty well known in Belleville having made several Episcopal visitations to Emmanuel Church from 1900 to 1906.

INJURED BY A SNOWBALL

Snowballing is a dangerous practice and often results in injury inflicted upon the person who happens to be hit. At noon to-day a son of Mr. Frank Bryant was walking along the gangway leading to the footbridge when he was strruck by a snowball thrown by a boy. The result was that young Bryant sustained a severe cut just below the left eye. Had the missle struck squarely upon the eye, blindness mig't have resulted.

COL. PONTON AT ST. CATHARINES

A brilliant address on Patriotism was given by Lt.-Col. Ponton of Belleville, who was a guest at the annual banquet of the 19th regiment. He pointed out that a regiment should be the symbol of comradeship and goodwill and the visible signs of the spirit of municipality. Good comradeship is the essence of soldiering and was responsible for the successes of Great Britain. The uniform of the King stands for all that is chivalrous and true.—St. Catharines Journal.

A synopsis of Col. Ponton's speech will appear in to-morrow's Intelligencer.

DEATH ROLL.

MARGARET GIBBS

On Saturday afternoon at Foxboro Village, Mrs. Margaret Gibbs passed away. Senile decay was the ultimate result of death. Deceased who was 87 years of age, was born in Thurlow Township where she had resided all her life. For the past 20 years she had lived in Foxboro. Mrs. Gibbs was the widow of the late Mr. E. R. Gibbs and was a lady well-known and much respected. For years the deceased had been a member of the Methodist Church. No family survives. Two brothers, Calvin and Harvey Daise are residents of Manitoba and a sister Mrs Gillett lives in the States.

LAID AT REST

That the late Mr. William P. Hudson ex-M. P. P. had many friends was evidenced on Saturday afternoon when the obsequies took place. Not only were many present from the city but from various parts of the County. Despite the fact that a request was made to omit flowers, a number of floral tributes were sent by friends. At the family residence on Bridge Street west an impressive service was conducted by the Rev. A. S. Kerr, pastor of St. Andrews Church, who also officiated at the grave at the Belleville cemetery. The bearers were Col. Lazier, Col. Ponton, Messrs. J. W. Johnson, M. P. P., C. M. Reid, W. J. Campbell and N. Vermilyea.

LOCAL LEGAL

At Osgoode Hall, before Kelley, J. —Pigden v. Pigden—E. J. Butler, (Belleville) for plaintiff. E. G. Porter, K. C., for defendant. An action by a father, 80 years of age, against his daughter to have annulled a deed from plaintiff's wife made in favor of daughter one month before wife's death without the knowledge of plaintiff, induced, as he says through coercion, duress and undue influence. Plaintiff alleges that though the conveyance was in his wife's name the property was his. Judgment: A personal representative of estate of plaintiff's wife has not been appointed, and the estate is not represented in the action. All the necessary parties are, therefore, not before the court. Defendant moved for a non-suit both by reason of want of parties and on the evidence. The non-suit is granted, but without costs. The costs are refused because of lack of consideration on part of defendant towards her father and a harshness of treatment which one cannot understand.

Canada Was Third

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Holland, England, Canada, was the order of the finish in a spirited contest for the American Cup, a $750 trophy, at the Horse Show last night. A notable crowd of society folk saw the event, which came toward the close of a day featured by a number of narrow escapes of riders and fine feats of horsemanship.

England finished second, the riders being Lieut. R. M. Stewart Richardson of the 11th Hussars, England; Col. P. A. Kenna and Capt. Mervyn Crawshay of the 5th Dragoon Guards, England. Canada was third, with Major C. T. Straubenzie of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, Major Joseph Kilgour of the Queen's Own Rifles, and Lieut. Bates.

The high jumping contest was won by Miss Mona Dunn's Biskra, the horse that cleared eight feet two inches at The Hague last year. Lady Jane, owned by J. E. Aldred and ridden by E. Carberry, was awarded second prize. Lieut. R. M. Stewart Richardson of the 11th Hussars, on Danleno, was third. Biskra's jump was six feet eight inches, and he was the only horse able to get over cleanly at that height. St. Richardson had a fall at six feet.

"DION O'DARE"

"Dion O'Dare," the latest Irish romantic comedy drama, will be the attraction at Griffin's Opera House Friday evening, Nov. 29. It will serve to introduce Bernard Daly, the Irish tenor, who has made such a pronounced hit in the last few years. The piece is in four acts and the entire action of the play takes place in Ireland. During the action of the play Mr. Daly will sing a number of popular songs, several of his own composition, the most worthy of mention being "Many Years Ago," "Rose Serenade," "See-Saw," "Call of the Wind," and "Macushla." The support for Mr. Daly has been carefully picked, and the greatest pains have been taken in casting the piece. The scenic embellishments are masterpieces of the stage-mechanic's skill.

Saturday night at Albert College, the Y. M. C. A. played off the game postponed from a week ago. It turned out to be the fastest and roughest game of the series up to date, and kept the gallery in a roar throughout the game.

At the half-time period Albert was in the lead, 10–9. The last half commenced with a rush and soon after the Y. M. C. A. team made a spurt and three baskets by Ketcheson and one by Alexander gave them the necessary lead, which they were able to keep until the whistle blew.

Mr. Dyer and Mr. Powers were the officials.

Expressions of Gratitude For Favors

The Quarterly Official Board and the Building Committee of Holloway St. Methodist Chruch, wish to publicly convey their heartfelt thanks to all who have so kindly and generously contributed during our re-opening services, to the raising of our entire indebtness of ten thousand dollars. The ladies who provided the supper and the orchestra, that furnished the music, kindly accept our thanks. Chas. A. Ostrom, Treasurer. A. R. Sanderson, Pastor.

Of Interest to Poultry Breeders

Mr. C. Wilmot, the President of our progressive Belleville Poultry Breeders Association, has just received from J. W. Johnson Esq., M. P. P., the following letter, for which he begs to thank our local M. P. P. for his kind attention in this matter which will make the breeders' heart glad.

Toronto, November 21, 1912.

Dear Sir.—Following up our conversation of this morning in which you intimated that Belleville had organized a large progressive Poultry Association, I beg to say that I looked into the question of a grant.

We have a fund for assisting Poultry Associations, the regulations providing that there can be only one Association in a Riding unless there is a city in the Riding, and then there can be one in the city in addition to one in Riding. I find there is no Association in the Riding at present receiving a grant, and consequently we shall be glad to recognize the Belleville Association and make a grant. I would suggest that the Secretary communicate with Mr. Westervelt, head of our Live Stock Branch, who has the administration of this work, and who will advise them as to details. They will, of course, be expected to submit report, etc., before a grant is made.

I may add that the Department is glad indeed to see this evidence of the interest in poultry which has been aroused in your city, and, knowing something of the energy with which the Associations of your district are managed, we anticipate great prosperity for the new Association. Wishing your Association every succes, I am, Yours very Truly,

W. BERT ROADHOUSE
Deputy Minister.

DEATHS.

GIBBS—In Foxboro on Saturday, November 23rd, 1912, Margaret Gibbs, aged 87 years, widow of the late E. R. Gibbs.

The funeral will take place from her late residence, Foxboro, tomorrow, Tuesday, November 26th, at 11.30 a.m. Services at the house at 11 o'clock. Interment Belleville cemetery.

Bye-Election Goes Liberal.

London, Nov. 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Bolton bye-election, caused by the death of George Harwood, previous member, resulted: S. Taylor (Lib.), 10,011; A. Brooks, (Con.), 8,825, the Liberal majority being reduced 500.

Liberals attribute their success to industrial Lancashire's aversion to the Unionist tariff policy, declaring also that hostility to the Insurance Act is dying.

The late member, though a Liberal, was wholly against his party on the disestablishment question.

The Labor vote went Liberal.

Proposed Extra Call.

Toronto, Nov. 25.—To meet the financial ravages of death which have been rapidly depleting their reserve, the Ancient Order of United Workmen have found it necessary to levy a special assessment upon all members this month. The necessity for this temporary relief comes as a result of the quashing by the courts of the advance in the regular assessment passed by the last grand lodge officers, but attacked at law by Guelph members of the order. The special assessment doubles the present regular assessment and is to be paid with it.

Autumn.

The gentle spirit of the fall
Will come to glorify the air,
And the football player will appall
The population with his hair.
The referee will climb the poles
And sound his shrill official toot.
And the moths will drill a few more holes
In everybody's winter suit.
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Trade Indicators.

Customer—How's the business?

Merchant—It's variable. Over there in the mattress section it's so quiet you can hear the bed ticking, but here in the towels we're so busy you can't hear the crash.—Fort Wayne Journal.

Alas, Poor Venus!

The Venus di Milo is perfect, I'm told,
In pose—and a figure that charms,
But if she has a heart, 'tis marble—and cold,
And how could she hug—without arms?

REVISION OF THE BANK ACT

According to the Monetary Times of November 22nd there is general expectation that the revision of the Bank Act will be among the early legislation to come before the present session of Parliament, and while no authentic information is as yet forthcoming, it is thought that the bill will contain a provision permitting the chartered banks to increase their note circulation against gold. Additional safeguards may be enforced respecting the organization of banks in their early stages. The new bill may also contain clauses dealing with the question of the responsibilities of directors and officers of banks.

Mr. John T. Knight, secretary of the Canadian Bankers' Association, states that efforts in the United States to place private banks under some sort of supervision are likely to succeed, owing to the heavy losses sustained by those who pin their faith to the supposed protection offered by the supervision given to the affairs of a legally established bank. Even the excellent clause now contained in the Canadian Bank Act, by which the use of the word "bank" is denied to any but chartered institutions is likely to be amended at the next revision of the Bank Act, owing to foreigners using the equivalent for the word "bank," and thereby luring the poor and illiterate among their countrymen to financial ruin and disaster. To immigrants, a bank means a safe place in which to deposit their savings; and, if the use of the word in English is forbidden by the law of the land, the substitution of the word "banco" or "banca" should not be permitted to any bold and unscrupulous adventurer, either in the United States or Canada. In some States any man can open a bank without a license, and he is subject to no inspection of the way of doing his business. But if he elected to drive a cab for a living, a license fee and conformity with the regulations governing public vehicles would be necessary.

When the Bank Act is taken up in committee Western delegations representing various agricultural organizations intend to ask for certain modifications. The most important of these is the proposal that banks be allowed to grant new loans with grain and cattle as security. At present banks may lend money on natural products in the hands of wholesalers, so that a farmer's crop is security when it reaches the elevator or box-car, but not while it remains in his hands. The claim is made that if the farmer could raise money on grain in his possession he would not be in such a hurry to ship it out, and so the present rush, with its danger of congestion, would be avoided.

The question of external bank audit may be dealt with in the legislation, and will probably cause much discussion, it being one of the most difficult problems. Discussing the matter at the last annual meeting of the bank of which he is president, Mr. William Molson Macpherson did not anticipate any radical change in the Bank Act. Full inspection by Government, he said, would be very difficult to carry out, but a moderate system of audit and inspection of a bank's position, and securities, would prove of advantage, and tend to prevent a repetition of some failures of the past.

There are likely also to be several changes in the form of the bank statement made to the government.

THE NEW SENATORIAL LEADER

Speaking of the appointment of Sir George W. Ross as leader of the Liberal majority in the Senate, the Hamilton Herald (Independent) says:

"The choice of Sir George as leader by the Liberal senators is something of a surprise, and may have a significance not pleasant to many Liberals. Cartwright was a party man, first, last and always. Whatever his personal opinions and inclinations with regard to public policies might have been, he suppressed them if they were not in harmony with the declared policy of his party. The welfare of his party was the first consideration with him, and he was not at all scrupulous in the means he chose to promote its welfare. Ross is a man of larger views and more independent character than his predecessor. Although an ardent party man, he does not hesitate to criticize Liberal policies when he believes them to be wrong and against the country's welfare, and he is incapable of the philosophic cynicism which was so conspicuous in Sir Richard's political actions and utterances. Sir George does not believe in reciprocity, and has not hesitated to openly avow his hostility to it. He is an imperialist, and he believes that Canada should assist generously and co-operate loyally and actively in imperial naval defence.

In view of Sir George's want of sympathy with official Liberalism in regard to more than one important matter of public policy, it would not be strange if Sir Wilfrid Laurier were not to view with enthusiasm the choice of leader made by the Liberal senators. Whoever may be the Liberal leader in the senate, Sir Wilfrid will lead the whole party, and his will is certain to be dominant."

— Mayor Gaynor of New York says some people who run newspapers are afflicted with mental and moral "spissitude." Looking up the dictionary, it was found that the word meant "thickness, viscosity." Looking up "viscosity" it was found that that ment "stickiness, or gumminess." And nobody is yet able to find out what Mayor Gaynor thinks is the matter with the people who make the newspapers.—Montreal Herald.

A FINANCIAL EXPERIMENT

We are all familiar with the fact that if Adam had deposited a single cent in a savings bank and it had remained there till this day accumulating interest, there would not be enough money in the world to satisfy the claims attached to it.

This is all very fascinating as a mathematical study, but few have shown a disposition to put the idea to practical use. A retired manufacturer named Adolf Melzer, whose home is in Evansville, Indiana, now proposes to test it out. He has presented $1,000 to Evansville with the stipulation that it is to remain in trust and draw compound interest for a period of 250 years. The amount will then have grown to $19,956,000 and will be applied to civic improvements.

However, it is to be hoped that not many philanthropically inclined gentlemen will follow Mr. Melzer's example. There are many public needs in Belleville more than there are public funds to satisfy adequately, that should be looked after sooner than 250 years from now; primarily the paving of Front street.

JESUS IS GOD'S GIFT TO HUMANITY

Salvation Is Divine Mercy—Thanks Are Due to God Therefor.

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 24.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn is here. We report one of his addresses from the text, "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable Gift." (II. Corinthians ix, 15.) He said:

Jesus, our Saviour, is God's great Gift. To appreciate the teaching of the Bible on this and on every subject, we must handle the Word of God honestly, not deceitfully. We must recognize that our Lord Jesus is one person, and the Heavenly Father another person. Only thus can we appreciate how God could give His Son, and how Jesus could consent to be the Gift of God to man. As we have previously seen, the oneness between the Father and the Son is not that declared by the creeds, a oneness of person, but is that declared by our Master Himself, saying that He and the Father are one in the same sense that He desired all of His disciples, His followers, to be one—one in mind, in purpose, in will, in effort. "That they may be one, even as we are one."—John xvii, 21, 22.

Jesus is God's unspeakable Gift in that it is impossible to tell the riches of God's grace in this connection—the numberless blessings and mercies which are ours through Jesus. He represents to us the very fulness of every Divine provision for our eternal welfare. "In Him dwelleth all the fulness of the Deity bodily." (Colossians ii, 9.) In a certain sense all of God's intelligent creatures are in His image and represent Him. Thus the angels and cherubim are Godlike; even Adam, made a little lower than the angels—of human nature—was an image of God in the flesh—fully in harmony in every line of his character and being with the Divine character. Adam, bodily, represented God in the world.

But all these things, true of angels and of men, are still more true of Jesus; and the Scriptures tell us that He was the "Logos," the Father's Word or Messenger—Jehovah's active Agent in all the work of creation. "By Him were all things made that were made, and without Him was not one thing made." The Logos, the highest, the first, the Alpha and the Omega of Jehovah's Creation, became the Gift of God to man.

Nor was this Gift compulsory; rather the Logos entered fully into the transaction. He had absolute faith in the Heavenly Father's Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power; hence, when the proposition opened that He might leave the heavenly condition for an earthly condition, in which He would perform a great service pleasing to the Father and beneficial to men, the Logos delighted to do the Father's will. He was made flesh. The disciples and others beheld that He as a Man was not as other men, but was "holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners."

The Redeemer's difference from the fallen race is again declared in the statement: "A body hast Thou prepared Me for the suffering of death." The Scriptures declare that He took the same nature as the flesh that had sinned, in order that He might redeem sinners. But in His flesh was no sin. Otherwise, He could not have been our Redeemer. Only a sinless one could fill the Divine requirements and give to God a Ransom for Father Adam, the perfect man, thus redeeming his life from destruction and, at the same time, redeeming all of his family involved in sin through him.

God's Gift was not completed in merely arranging that His Son should temporarily become a man, to be our Redeemer. Indeed, the transfer of nature from the heavenly to the earthly was merely an incidental, made necessary by the Divine Law: "An eye for an eye; a tooth for a tooth; a man's life for a man's life." And so we read that the Father set before the Son "the great joy," the influence of which was to lead the Son cheerfully to endure the bitter experiences of His earthly life, as we read: "Who, for the joy that was set before Him, endured the cross, despising the shame."

This joy is intimated to have been: (1) the Saviour's pleasure in doing the Father's will; (2) The joy of bringing many sons to glory—the Church; (3) The pleasure and joy of being the world's Restorer, delivering them from the power of Satan, sin and death. These joys, commingling, were quite sufficient. The Redeemer endured such contradiction of sinners against Himself as eventually brought Him to the cross, saying, "Not My will, but Thy will, O Lord, be done." He realized that under the contract into which He had entered, His loyalty to the Father would mean His faithfulness "unto death, even the death of the cross. Wherefore, also, God hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a name above every name." (Philippians ii, 8, 9.) Thus the Redeemer has attained this glorious exaltation to the Father's right hand—to the Divine nature, glory, honor and immortality—as the result of His faithfulness.

The Apostle, evidently, purposes to d[illegible] Attention to the difference between the course of Satan and that of the Logos in respect to loyalty and obedience to Jehovah. Satan proudly assumed that if he had a separate Empire he could manage it better than was the Divine arrangement. Lucifer, the morning star, said in his heart: "I will ascend above the stars (the other angels); I will be as the Most High (a dictator, a ruler)." Pursuing this ambitious course, Satan beheld in our first parents a new order of beings, with procreative powers designed to bring into existence a race that would fill the earth. Lucifer assayed to be ruler over this human creation. He became a rebel against the Divine arrangement in so doing; he captured the first pair by his misrepresentations, and not only did he thus become the "prince of this world" (the present order of things), but additionally, as Jesus explained, he became the "murderer of the race." (John viii, 44.) He has, indeed, had a reign of thousands of years, but with what horrible results! The whole creation is "groaning and travailing in pain," under the death sentence.

St. Paul intimates that although the Logos was still higher in glory and honor than Lucifer, in that He was "the Only Begotten," the chief representative of Jehovah, nevertheless He was humble. The Logos "meditated not a usurpation to be like God." (Philippians ii, 6. Emphatic Diaglott.) On the contrary, he was very willing to accept the Divine proposal that He should take the lower nature of man for a time, in order to carry out the Father's Plan. How detestable the pride of Lucifer afterwards called Satan! On the contrary, how beautiful is the humility exhibited by the Redeemer! He was loyal to the core. He would be merely the Father's Word, Logos, mouthpiece. His joy should be, not in seeking self-advancement, but in glorifying the Father; and the Apostle points out that He faithfully and loyally carried it out to the conclusion of His course—in all things desiring the will of the Father who sent Him.

What an exhibition this was to all the holy angels! And did the Father permit Him to really suffer loss because of His loyalty, His faithfulness? Assuredly not! He was not left in death. He was raised from death. Neither was He left by the Father on the lower plane of human nature, which He took merely for the purpose of suffering death on man's behalf. On the contrary, the Father highly exalted Him and exhibited to angels and to men the character pleasing in Jehovah's sight. Bringing the Only Begotten One forward, Jehovah prophetically declares: "Let all the messengers of God worship Him!"

This same privilege has come to the Church. In response, the invitation to become joint-sacrificers with Christ, to walk in His steps, and to enter into a share of His glory, has been accepted by one after another of God's saintly people, from Pentecost until now. They have confidence that "He who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep," is both able and willing to bring them also, through Him, to eternal glory. As He walked the "narrow way," they have courage to walk in His steps. As He overcame, they have the encouragement of His promise that "His grace will be sufficient" for them.

To this class Jesus is God's unspeakable Gift. To these favored ones, His footstep followers, the Saviour is specially an unspeakable Gift of God. If as a Gift to the world His merit is beyond the power of tongue to tell, how much more so is He the unspeakable Gift to the Church—to the Elect! As the "Captain of their Salvation," He is leading forth these other sons of God, His younger brethren, to glory.—Hebrews ii, 10.

The Saviour is an unspeakable Gift to the Church as the Bridegroom. The thought of becoming an associate and joint-heir in all the glorious work of God throughout the Millennium, is an inspiration which makes the trials and difficulties of the way seem as nothing. Besides, we have the assurance of the Lord that in subsequent Ages the Father will continue to show special riches of grace and loving-kindness toward us who are in Christ Jesus. As our "Elder Brother," the Saviour is an unspeakable Gift. Our interests are His interests; our welfare, His welfare; all of the journey in His footsteps which He invites us to take, and which He arranges for us, He has passed over before. We merely walk in His steps.

As our great High Priest over the House of Sons, He is an unspeakable Gift. Through Him we are privileged to be the Royal Priesthood. Our offerings to Jehovah, our little all, would be unacceptable, because we are all by nature sinners, children of wrath, blemished. But our great High Priest's merit, imputed to our sacrifices makes them acceptable. As Christ's "members" we are privileged to "present our bodies living sacrifices, holy and acceptable to God." (Romans xii, 1.) From whatever viewpoint we look, the Saviour is God's unspeakable Gift, especially to His Church.

Undoubtedly Justice must be recognized in respect to the Creator's dealings with His creatures. God, being the great Representative of the principle of Justice, continually holding it up before His creatures, and demanding their obedience to this Law, surely could not be exempted from its operation Himself. To this the Scriptures agree, assuring us that "Justice is the foundation of His Throne." Our endeavors in the past to harmonize Love and Justice with our great Creator's dealings with humanity have continually involved us in difficulty. We were assured by the prominent creeds of the world that the Creator had knowingly and willingly brought us into existence under such conditions that the great majority of mankind would spend an eternity in torture.

We were unable to see Justice in any such arrangement, yet feared to criticize our Creator, lest He should, if possible, do something still worse for us. But our reason balked at the proposition, while we desisted from criticizing the Creator. We could not endorse such a program, nor could we see it to be in harmony with the Divine regulations governing ourselves. If we are to love our enemies and be compassionate toward them, should more be exacted of fallen beings than of our perfect Creator?

From the Divine standpoint the human family are all convicts, under death sentence, dead in trespasses and sins, wholly without rights or privileges. As the French Government, not unjustly, has allowed the medical profession to make experiments with convicts who are under death sentence, to try upon them the effects of fear, poison, etc., so God not unjustly has allowed mankind, all under death sentence, to practice all kinds of evil upon one another, and to learn from each other great lessons respecting the exceeding sinfulness of sin and the wages or penalty of sin—death.

Justice merely exacts its penalty; but that penalty paid by Adam and his family left them hopeless respecting any future life. Unworthy of everlasting life, they died; and surely they become no more worthy while dead. None has any claim upon Justice. Adam at the very moment of his fall might have been smitten with a thunderbolt, without having any claim upon Justice; for he was under a death penalty. The fact that Justice allowed him to live for many years with a forfeited life meant not a waiving of the death penalty, but Divine liberality in respect to the execution of the criminal.

When, therefore, in the Bible God presents a hope of a future life through the death of His Son, His unspeakable Gift, it must not be understood as signifying obligation on God's part toward the sinner. It means mercy, grace. Nor does God ignore His own sentence and the justice of the case in the exercise of His mercy. His Law must stand. The death sentence must stand. Justice must be vindicated without a shadow of turning. Divine Mercy is made to intervene by providing the unspeakable Gift.

"Herein was manifested the love of God," in that "He gave His Only Begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him might not perish, but have everlasting life." As we have just seen, Adam and his race under the death sentence had perished, except as God from the beginning foreknew His intention to send His Son into the world for human Redemption—His unspeakable Gift. The Redemption, when finished, will fully have satisfied the claims of Divine Justice—not only as respects the little company now being selected—the Church, the Bride of Christ—but ultimately also as respects the "sins of the whole world." This is a Gift, then, pure and simple, not called for by Divine Justice, but merely prompted by Divine Love.

After the unspeakable Gift shall have been made applicable to the whole world of mankind at the begin-

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—A rather one-sided game was pulled off Saturday between the Torontos and the Alerts, with Toronto winning the "joke." About 75 attended the game, which was a farce from start to finish. The score was 39 to 7, which evidently speaks for itself without further comment.

VARSITY STADIUM, Nov. 24.—Varsity and the Argos played an exhibition game here Saturday before a comparatively small crowd, which, despite this fact, proved to be an interesting game. The score was 22 to 16 in favor of the Argos.

YALE FIELD, New Haven, Conn., Nov. 24.—Yale went down to defeat Saturday before the Harvard squad to the tune of 20 to 0. The "crimson" will now loom up with considerable brilliancy in old Cambridge.

Ontario Crop Report For November, 1912

The following statement regarding crop conditions, based on the reports of 2,000 correspondents, sent in during the first week of November, has been issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Fall wheat: This crop has fallen off in average yield, and the grain is hardly up to its own standard of quality. The wet weather during harvest caused considerable sprouting in the stook, and a portion of the crop was also hauled in before being dry. Harvesting was relatively late, owing to the comparatively cool and wet weather then prevailing.

Spring wheat: This class of wheat is not now largely raised in this province, but where grown the quality was relatively better than that of fall wheat.

The New Fall Wheat: A smaller area of wheat has been sown this fall, owing largely to the lateness of the harvest, and the difficulty of getting on low lands owing to the frequent rains. The Georgian Bay district is the only fall wheat section closely approaching its own normal acreage. Correspondents report a favorable seed bed, and most of the fields of new wheat look fairly promising, although there is a rather small top owing to the cool fall weather. Sowing ranged from the last week of August until the first week of October, most of the crop having been put in between the 9th and 15th of September. Only scattering mention was made of the Hessian Fly, in the counties of Elgin, Norfolk and Grey.

Barley: There has been a good yield of barley, but the quality of much of the crop is not up to the mark, considerable of the grain having been discolored by the almost continuous rains prevailing during harvest. Some of the barley also sprouted after being cut. Owing to the rainy weather, harvesting was considerably delayed.

Oats: Like the other cereals, oats were much damaged both in grain and straw by the wet weather during the period of harvesting. In fact, much of the crop had to lie in the fields for weeks after being cut, which in some instances started fresh growth in the shocks, sprouting of grain, etc. While much of the oat crop may be classed as A1 in every respect, the general condition may be summed up as large in yield, but rather lighter in weight and poorer generally in quality.

Rye: There is not much rye grown for grain in Ontario. What was raised did well despite the drawback of the unusually rainy weather.

Peas: The wet season was very trying to peas, there being some sprouting of the grain and considerable injury to the straw. However, practically no mention was made of the weevil.

Buckwheat: This crop has come in to favor during the last two or three years, and considering the prolonged wet weather this season it has given good satisfaction so far as yield and quality of grain are concerned. Harvesting was unusually late, and as the land was too soft for harvesting machinery to work upon, most of the crop had to be cradled.

Beans: But for the continued rains of the early fall beans would have done well. The wet weather, however, was hard upon the crop, many of the pods being imperfectly filled owing to uneven ripening, and the beans in some cases were discolored and rather soft. Harvesting was late on account of the almost steady rains; in fact, some beans were yet unpulled at the end of October.

Corn: While some correspondents report favorably regarding corn, the general opinion is that the crop is not up to the average in either yield or quality. There was too much rain and not enough warm weather for the best results. As a rule there is much soft, immature corn both for husking and the silo. Some of the crop was cut by frost, but not to a serious extent.

Mixed Grains: There appears to be a lessening of enthusiasm over the growing of mixed grains. Oats and barley are by far the most popular mixture, as these grains can be selected to ripen closely together, and they make a good chop for all kinds of live stock. Some growers prefer to add a little peas. Wheat, barley and oats, and oats and peas, are also said to give satisfaction as grain mixtures.

Tobacco: The growing season was too wet and cold for the best results with this crop, and some of the plants got a touch of frost. The yield and quality vary greatly, some describing the leaf as very poor, while others clasify it as being fair to good.

Potatoes: This crop has been the disappointment of the season. The fields promised most liberal at the time of digging, and the appearance of the tubers was first class. Since being taken up, however, considerable of the crop has rotted in the cellars and pits; and while some correspondents report no injury from this cause, the bulk of the returns place the losses from rot at from 5 to 60 per cent. The rot has been the worst on low-lying fields and heavy soils. Correspondents found it difficult to estimate the yield of sound potatoes. Their remarks show that a record crop would have been reported but for the unusual severity of the rot, and that material deduction should still be further made from the results of these estimates, tabulated elsewhere in this bulletin; in account of the continuance of the rot. The white grub also did injury to the growing potatoes.

Turnips: This crop was not very promising in the early part of the season but the frequent rains later on helped growth wonderfully and a good yield has resulted. Some remained to be pulled when correspondents wrote in the first week of November.

Mangolds: This class of roots also did well, a good yield being reported in nearly every locality. Most of these roots were under cover by the end of October.

Carrots: Field carrots are now but little grown, but where raised they did fairly well.

Sugar Beets: Although not so generally grown as turnips and mangolds, sugar beets also made an excellent showing, nearly every report received being favorable.

Fruit: Fruit trees as a rule are in fair condition where cared for, the season having been a good one for general growth. Some correspondents however, more especially in some of the Lake Erie counties, speak of the serious injury done to orchard trees where the San Jose scale has been neglected. Although considerable spraying is reported to have been done, there is room for more of it. The codling moth was much in evidence, and some of the apples were also spotted and scabby. There has been a considerable surplus of apples, more especially of the earlier varieties. Instances are reported in western Ontario where it was impossible to find a market for all the fall apples, and thousands of barrels had to be fed to live stock or be left on the ground to rot, after the evaporators were supplied. Even good winter varieties have not commanded satisfactory prices in the orchard. A scarcity of apple barrels has been complained of. There was also a surplus of pears, plums, and cherries of a good saleable character, but peaches, although fairly plentiful, were of a poorer quality than usual. Grapes also were slow in ripening and were not up to their usual quality.

Pastures and Live Stock: Summer and fall pastures were never better, the frequent rains keeping the grass green and fresh. All classes of live stock are reported to be in good condition for entering the winter; and to add to the cheerfulness of the live stock outlook it may be said that all classes are reported to be remarkably free from disease. Cattle for beef are comparatively scarce, but those offering are of fair quality as a rule. Cows for the dairy [illegible] also in brisk demand. Sheep are [illegible] ful as they ought to [illegible] l to be, in fine co[illegible] g the unusual [illegible] being continually marketed at good prices, but there were not sufficient to meet the demand, and some are said to have been disposed of in a rather unfinished condition. Silos for corn are steadily increasing in number, and are strongly recommended by those who have them.

At Address

Dairying: Unusually green pastures have prevailed this season, and the flow of milk this fall has been larger than usual, although not in proportion to the appearance of the fields, as owing to frequent rains the grass was more watery or "soft" than ordinarily. With high prices for cheese and butter, particularly the latter, dairymen have had a good year, and as one correspondent phrases it, "Will break the record for fall supply." More cream is being shipped to towns and cities than ever before.

Fodder Supplies: It is several years since the outlook for fodder supplies were so generally promising in this Province. A good hay crop, such as that realized this season, is the basis of successful winter handling of live stock, and added to this there has been a fair yield of roots. While corn and straw have not been up to the standard in quality, there is enough of these and other roughage to ensure reasonable cheap feeding. While much of this year's grain is inferior in quality it will have a fair feeding value. For these reasons, and on account of more alfalfa being fed, less mill feeds will be purchased, which means much to farmers, with bran costing from $22 to $25 a ton, and shorts from $26 to $30. The excellent fall pastures have also contributed to lightening the task of winter feeding in the stables. In most localities an increase in market prices would still coax out a fair supply of hay and grain, although most farmers prefer to feed all their supplies.

Poultry: Reports concerning poultry are on the whole favorable. High prices for both eggs and flesh have encouraged many farmers to give more intelligent care to this branch of the farming industry. The very wet season, however, was somewhat trying to all classes of poultry, excepting ducks, turkeys being most affected. A few complaints were also made that hens fell off in their laying sooner than usual this fall. Poultry profits are estimated by correspondents, range all the way from 150 per cent. to zero.

STATISTICS OF LIVE STOCK.

The numbers of live stock on hand on July 1st, 1912, were as follows:

Horses: 742,139 against 727,916 in 1911 and 724,384 in 1910.

Milch Cows: 1,044,177 against 1,045,610 in 1911 and 1,052,796 in 1910.

Other Cattle: 1,5[illegible],603 against 1,547,595 in 1911 and 1,514,332 in 1910.

Sheep and Lambs: 1,021,848 against 1,010,245 in 1911 and 1,065,101 in 1910.

Swine: 1,702,652 against 1,744,983 in 1911 and 1,561,042 in 1910.

Poultry: 13,024,983 against 12,942,293 in 1911 and 12,460,787 in 1910.

The numbers of live stock sold or slaughtered in the year ending June 30, 1912, were as follows:

Horses: 101,511 against 105,741 in 1911 and 97,900 in 1910.

Cattle: 849,140 against 837,544 in 1911 and 817,239 in 1910.

Sheep: 531,957 against 505,015 in 1911 and 512,909 in 1910.

Swine: 2,088,874 against 1,936,937 in 1911 and 1,844,4[illegible]5 in 1910.

Corn for silo: 377,982 acres yielded 3,969,597 tons (green) or 10.50 tons per acre as compared with 3,764,227 and 11.21 in 1911.

Hay and Clover, (including Alfalfa) —3,367,369 acres yielded 5,220,713 tons or 1.55 per acre as against 4,238,362 tons in 1.28 in 1911. Annual average 1.46.

Mme. Elka Perra S. Tamboraski, a rich Servian lady, is now called the "Florence Nightingale of the Balkans," because of her patriotism and generosity, for she has given all her money and her palatial home to the Red Cross Society, and has gone to the front where she will organize the hospital corps.

THE JOY OF GIVING

"'Tis more blessed to give than to receive," says the Good Book, and we are continually receiving letters that prove the truth of this maxim.

Here's an extract that tells how the good work we are doing in the fight against Consumption appeals to every section of the community.

A well-known citizen of Brantford writes: "On Christmas morning my boys gave me $2.50 to get some present for myself that I wanted. I think you can use it to good advantage in your noble work in the National Sanitarium Association, so am enclosing it for that purpose."

Doesn't it make you feel proud to know that there are Canadian fathers with the self-sacrificing instinct so strongly imbued in them?

Isn't it good to realize that the rising generation is getting such a splendid example shown them? Last year it cost over $62,000.00 to keep the Muskoka Free Hospital open. More money is urgently needed to provide for those seeking admission.

The needy Consumptive is right at your door. Won't you help him to help himself?

The smallest gift will be most acceptable. Just slip your contribution in an envelope to-day, while you think of it, addressed to MR. W. J. GAGE, Chairman of the Executive Committee, 84 Spadina Ave.; or MR. R. DUNBAR, Sec. Treas., 347 King West, Toronto, and experience the real joy of giving.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

IOTING IN SALONIKI

English Correspondent Describes Terrible Lawlessness.

Citizens of Captured Town Declare That They Were Robbed and Maltreated by Bulgarian and Greek Soldiers—Denial Comes From Athens — Hostilities Are Now Half-Hearted.

London, Nov. 25.—A story of lawlessness and looting by Bulgarians and Greeks at Saloniki, where the inhabitants have been in a state of terror lest the allies in occupation fall to fighting each other, has been sent by the correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company under date of Nov. 16. The correspondent is an Englishman of many years' residence in Saloniki and thoroughly acquainted with the city and surrounding country. He writes:

"The Bulgarians on the march to Saloniki had already more than a taste of blood and rapine, having ravaged without mercy the Turkish villages on their route, and as soon as they entered Saloniki they instituted a systematic pillage of the quarters occupied by them, regardless of the remonstrances of the Greek officials.

"A continuous fusilade was kept up on Nov. 10 and 11, both by the soldiers of the Bulgarian and Greek armies and the Christian populace. The firing resulted in numerous casualties. A stoker of the steamer Medea was killed while in the pinnace alongside the ship. A hail of bullets, according to the reports of the ship's officers, fell on the decks of the foreign warships several nights.

"The soldiers, guided by roughs entered whatever houses appeared to offer prospects of good booty and cleared out everything worth taking. The terror-stricken owners offered no resistance. It would have been useless, in view of the bayonets held to their breasts and the revolvers thrust against their temples.

"Hundreds of cases of this kind have been reported by the victims, who poured their complaints into the ears of the foreign consuls. The indignant protests of the consuls to the Greek authorities have had little effect. The arrival of a body of Greek gendarmerie Nov. 12, however, improved the situation.

"In the meantime a violent anti-Jewish outbreak occurred, apparently because the Jews abstained from de[illegible]ing their property with Greek [illegible], and did not join in shouting a [illegible]come to the soldiers. The Greek [illegible] spread a story that Jewish liquor sellers had poisoned twelve Evzones, supplying them with corrosive sublimate instead of cognac. A number of Jews were arrested, but were released the next day. The mischief had already been done, and many Jews suffered at the hands of the soldiers. Their assailants were not punished.

"The differences between the Bulgarians and Greeks regarding the ultimate destiny of Saloniki have reached an acute stage and there is no fraternizing. King Ferdinand is expected to reach here soon for the purpose of reminding King George by his presence that the Greek sovereign is not the only potentate in Saloniki.

"The Bulgarians are firmly resolved that their occupation of Saloniki shall be permanent. There are many incidents to prove that the relations between the Bulgarians and Greeks at this moment are really those of inveterate enemies, who are prevented from flying at each others' throats only by a frail and temporary truce.

"The people of Saloniki, who lately feared that Hassan Tahsin Pasha intended to make their city a second Saragossa, and who have already suffered much at the hands of the allies, are now haunted by the terror that the allies may at any moment come to blows. The departure of almost all the foreign warships is surely ill-timed."

No serious fighting is reported on the Tchatalja lines, where both sides appear to be awaiting the issue of the armistice negotiations. Meanwhile all the necessary dispositions are being made for a resumption of the war should the negotiations fail.

Bulgaria is shipping her forces from Saloniki in Greek transports, presumably for transfer to Gallipoli Peninsula, where Turkey is also strengthening her forces by Anatolian troops. Here an attempt will be made by the allies, assisted by the Greek fleet, to take the Dardanelles.

The rest of the allied forces, liberated in Macedonia, will be sent by rail as speedily as possible to reinforce the Bulgarians attacking the Tchatalja lines. Their places will be taken by the Bulgarian 1912 recruits, who, after three weeks' training, are being drafted into Macedonia for garrison duty.

The only news of military importance is the occupation of Ochrida, a large town near Monastir, by the Servians. The position at Adrianople and Scutari is apparently unchanged.

Official statements issued at Vienna continue to deny the reported war preparations. Letters from Vienna have reached London, however, confirming the reports that the strength of six different army corps is being increased, and that a large number of reservists have been called out.

Greeks Deny Outrages.

Athens, Nov. 25.—Formal denial is made here of the reports that the Greek soldiers at Saloniki have committed excesses against the Jewish inhabitants. Even before the capitulation of Saloniki, it is pointed out, efforts were noticeable in both Turkey and Europe, to show that there was dissension between the better class of Greeks and the Jews in the Macedonian city.

Pioneer Farmer's Sudden End.

To Train for Farms.

Australia has established a training school for boys who wish to become expert farmers but who lack the means to obtain proper instruction.

TO FIGHT FOR FRENCH.

French-Canadians Pass Resolution Against Bilingual Rule.

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—About 1,000 young French-Canadians, the majority from this city, but a number from outside places, met in the Monument National Saturday, listened to addresses, and passed resolutions expressive of their protest against the new regulations of the Ontario Government in regard to bilingual schools.

Trustee Genest asserted that in framing them the Ontario Government must have had the advice of his Satanic majesty and the question was getting too hot for Premier Whitney to handle.

The following resolution was passed:

Like our fathers who have proved their attachment to the British crown in twice saving Canada, we are loyal subjects and submit to laws which are just and do not violate the principle of liberty, conscience or those of the rights of man or the spirit of the constitution.

"We entirely approve the attitude of the Ontario Educational Association, of the school trusteeships, of the newspapers and of all French-Canadians in protesting against unjust laws and in maintaining the respect due to their sacred rights.

"We protest against the new regulations of the Ontario Minister of Education, which restricts French in the school and tend to completely anglicize our children; we protest in a like manner against the inspection of our Catholic schools by Protestant inspectors.

"Considering that we have the right to speak and to teach French in this province, by the natural right of any man to speak his own language, by the constant use of French in this province since its first discovery, by the resolutions, statutes, provincial regulations previous to circular 17, officially recognizing French in Ontario for no less than fifty years past and approving of French textbooks to that end, by the spirit and letter of the British North American Act, which recognized French as an official language in Canada.

"We ask, therefore, that the last enacted educational regulation be modified in a manner to give full satisfaction to the French-speaking people of Ontario."

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

John Brydson died of injuries sustained in a motor cycle collision in Toronto.

The first snowfall of the season commenced yesterday afternoon in many parts of Ontario.

The Bank of Montreal has raised the salaries of 1,600 employes, the increases averaging $100.

J. F. Whitson of the Ontario Lands and Mines Department, has left for the north to continue his development work.

John Connell, St. Thomas, and Charles Ryckman, London, were killed in a radial railway collision near London Saturday.

The Bell Telephone Co. has taken its poles off a hundred and twenty-five streets in Montreal and placed the wires underground.

Jos. Tomalin, a middle-aged man, committed suicide Saturday in Toronto by inhaling gas at his residence, 187 Delaware avenue.

The annual Boys' Workers' conference, held by the Provincial Y.M.C.A. and Ontario Sunday School Association at Galt, closed with impressive meetings.

Samuel Gompers was re-elected president of the American Federation of Labor yesterday afternoon over Max Hayes of the International Typographical Union. All other officers were re-elected.

Roy Scott, who pleaded guilty to charges of stealing brass from the M.C.R. car en route from Hamilton to St. Thomas, was sentenced at St. Thomas Saturday to six months in the Central Prison on each charge.

It is the intention, it is said, of the Federal Government to test the practicability of winter navigation the coming season on the lower St. Lawrence. One of the ice-breakers is to form a regular monthy service between Quebec and St. John's Nfld.

Royal George Floated.

Quebec, Nov. 25.—The C.N.R. liner Royal George, which went ashore on the Isle of Orleans, was floated off at four o'clock, or an hour before high water, on Saturday afternoon.

The Royal George, at 6 p.m., left for Quebec under her own steam, making eight knots an hour. She entered port at seven o'clock, the Lord Strathcona and Lady Grey accompanying her. She had to remain out in the stream until the steamer Megantic left the breakwater, so as to enable the damaged steamer to enter the Louise Basin.

As to the damage the Royal George sustained, Joseph Begin, the veteran diver, says vessels much more damaged have been floated above and below Quebec, brought back and either permanently or temporarliy repaired and sent across the Atlantic.

Drowned While Delirious.

Amherstburg, Nov. 25.—While delirious from illness, Charles Blute, a farmer, who lived at the home of his son, Edward Blute, in the township of Malden, fell into an open cistern in the dark of the night and was drowned in two feet of water early Saturday morning.

The son heard the agonizing cry of his father, and, finding his room vacant, searched the premises outside. Half an hour later he found the cistern top off, and by a lantern light discovered the body floating in the water.

Hon. Mr. Perley In Berlin.

Berlin, Ont., Nov. 25.—Hon. G. E. Perley spent the week end as the guest of Ward H. Bowlby, K.C. He was en route from Hot Springs, Va., to Ottawa. He will leave for home on Monday in order to be in the House when the naval debate comes up.

CLOUSTON HAS STROKE.

Montreal Banker Dies of an Attack of Apoplexy.

Montreal, Nov. 25.—The death of Sir Edward Seaborne Clouston, Bart., one of the best-known bankers and financeris of Canada, occurred here on Saturday.

Sir Edward fainted in the morning while engaged in a conversation with a friend in the Royal Securities Building. Recovering a few moments later he objected to being removed to the hospital, contending that he was all right. On the advice of his friends, however, he allowed himself to be conveyed to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where an examination was made.

The hospital authorities at first issued a bulletin announcing that the baronet's condition was not very serious and that the fainting fit had been brought about by acute indigestion.

About 2.30 p.m. Sir Edward's condition began to grow rapidly worse and he passed away at 2.45 p.m., death being due to apoplexy.

Sir Edward Clouston was connected in one capacity or another with twenty large financial and commercial concerns and is reputed to have been worth well over a million.

In private life he was generous, a supporter and worker for practically every charitable organization in the city.

SIR EDWARD S. CLOUSTON.

He was a great sportsman and in his younger days distinguished himself as an athlete, playing lacrosse, football and racquet equally well. He captained a Canadian team which played Harvard University football team in 1875.

Sir Edward Seaborne Clouston, baronet, vice-president of the Bank of Montreal, and a former president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, he having resigned that office a week ago, and was born at Moose Factory, Hudson Bay, May 9, 1849. His father, James Stewart Clouston, was a native of the Orkney Islands and was the chief factor in the Hudson Bay Co. As a lad young Clouston attended the public schools and the Montreal high school, and in 1865, at the age of 16, he entered the employ of the Bank of Montreal as clerk. In 1877, he was advanced to the position of assistant inspector. In 1881, he was made manager of the Montreal branch, and in 1887, was appointed assistant general manager, and in 1890, became general manager, being further honored in 1905 by election to the vice-presidency, which positions he filled at his death.

ABLE DISCOURSE BY REV. DR. CARMAN AT HOLLOWAY ST. METHODIST CHURCH

Re-opening services in connection with Holloway street Methodist Church were continued yesterday, and despite the inclemency of the weather there were good congregations present at both services. The attendance at the morning service was augmented by the members of the Tabernacle of Holloway street church. The preacher of the day was the Rev. Dr. Carman of Toronto, the General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, who despite the fact that he is in his 80th year, preached two sermons with his usual vigor and earnestness. At the morning service, the pastor, Rev. A. R. Sanderson, Rev. Dr. Dyer, Principal of Albert College and Rev. W. G. Clarke of the Tabernacle, assisted. After the usual devotional exercises the General Superintendent preached. The basis of his remarks was the 12th verse of the 4th chapter of Hebrews: "For the word of God is quick and powerful and sharper than any two-edged sword piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart.

The theme of the Rev. Dr.'s remarks was the power of God's word. In his opening remarks the divine stated that God's word was quick and is powerful. We have evidences of it on every hand. In nature what is quicker than electricity? Its effect is felt in an instant. In speaking of nature the speaker said quick lime has a wonderful grip, and when mixed with sand and other ingredients assists in forming a hard substances quick flour has a grip upon the yeast it seeks its affinity and makes its product in the staff of life. There is life and grip in a germ of corn. It is responsive to its relationship with earth which it grips and brings forth its product. Lime can be deadened, it can lose its grip and power, and though you use it by the ton it will not hold even a pebble. But quick lime, has a power of relationship to the stone and other material. Dead lime and dead flour are of no value. The grain we cast into the earth has a living force. It comes out of the earth, greeting the sunshine and partakes of the refreshing dews and showers. In life there are some earthly pleasures that some seek after, namely, pleasure of association and pleasure of money. Earthly associations are necessary and money is necessary, but not to be sought after exclusively. The life that we have has been purchased by the redeeming love of Christ. Grip upon that love and adhere to it. Let our lives be lives of rectitude and honesty, stability and nobility. The word of God is quick; it carries life in it. Give the word a chance and it will lead men to a strong, noble life, a life of stability. This is the religious life and it will work in us if we will but allow it to nourish this grand life. God comes to men with the possession of something men have not, namely, atoning grace. Let us be responsive to God meet God. From our nature we have to do what God commands us to do The God of nature is the God that sent redemption to the human race. God in his omnipotence made everything that is glorious. See how magnificently is displayed in the word the handiwork of the Divine Majesty. This alone ought to convert unbelievers. The law of the Lord is perfect His statutes are right; His commandments are pure. the judgments of the Lord are true and much to be desired, and in the keeping of these there is great reward. The heaven above is a great demonstration of the glorious handiwork of God. The life in us should respond to the call of God; the mercy of God is boundless. Develop the life that is in us to his glory.

During the service the choir rendered a special selection and Mr. F. Burke sang a solo in an acceptable manner.

Why?

The sunshine smiles and dies away,
The planets circle through the sky,
Each hour fades into yesterday,
And we can only murmur, "Why?"

And comes the coal man by and by,
The schoolboy heeds the ringing bell,
And we can only murmur, "Why?"

Useful Animal.

It seems that little Jessie had written her first "composition." The subject of this literary effort was "The Cow." The essay was brief and to the point. It read as follows: "The cow is a very useful animal."

Jessie's parents were very proud of this masterpiece, and when the minister came to dinner on the following Sunday afternoon they persuaded her to read it to him. She did it, but she amended it a bit to suit the occasion:

"The cow is a very useful animal except religion."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Boycott.

"How can I give the stuff away,"
Exclaimed the man of wealth;
"This gold that haunts me night and day
In public or by stealth?
If for a campaign fund I draw
A check with generous hand
They'll say I wish to break the law
And boss my native land.

"Assistance on a needy friend
I must bestow with care.
He'll scan each dollar that I lend
For motives all unfair.
To simple joys I dare not stop,
Like folks of humble lot.
They've got me where I fear to drop
A nickel in the slot!"
—Washington Star.

Negligent.

Complainant — Your worship, she struck me in the face with her clinched fist. That cut was caused by her ring.

Magistrate—Where did she get the ring?

Complainant—I gave it to her. It was our engagement ring.

Magistrate—The prisoner is discharged. That is clearly a case of contributory negligence.—Tit-Bits.

Disenchantment.

She had a face divinely fair,
A face to make an artist glad.
She had a wealth of auburn hair,
And, oh, the figure that she had!
Her soulful eyes were big and brown;
A rounded softness graced her arms.
I fancied that in all the town
No girl could boast of rarer charms.

Her fingers tapered and were white.
I paused to gaze a little while
And fancied that the day was bright
Because she had so sweet a smile.
But all my happy fancies fled,
And gloomily I went my way
When to a passing friend she said,
"I seen your brother yesterday."
—Chicago Record-Herald.

Accomplished.

"Daughter," called the conventional comic paper father from his regular position at the top of the stairs at the well known hour of 11:55 p. m., "doesn't that young man know how to say good night?"

"Does he?" echoed the young lady in the darkened hall. "Well, I should say he does. That's why it takes him so long."

Habit Brings Ease.

When ma writes papers for her club
The house is awful still.
We don't get any fancy grub;
We don't speak to her till
It's meal time. If we do she'll say:
"Now, I can't think at all
Unless you children run away!
Hope no one comes to call!"

The Weekly Journal editor
He looks real pleasant when Folks call. He doesn't mind what for.
His pencil or his pen
Keeps on, but he says, smiling, "Well,
What news? Crops pretty fair?
How do you like this rainy spell?
Wife well now? Take a chair."
—Judge.

Uncivilized.

"Now, Johnny," said the teacher to a small pupil in the botany class, "give me the name of some wild flower."

"Indian meal is the wildest flour I know of," replied the bright youngster.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Inquest on Death Of Frank Phillips

The Bancroft Times gives the following particulars in reference to the untimely death of Mr. Frank Phillips at Cannifton and the result of the inquest.

Frank Phillips of Cannifton met a horrible death on Saturday last when he was struck and instantly killed by the Central Ontario train going north in charge of Engineer Michael Connor and Conductor Robertson.

The accident took place at Brown's Crossing, about two and a half miles south of Maynooth. The engineer first noticed the man walking on the track about three hundred yards ahead of the engine and coming towards it. He paid no attention to the warning signal, although looking directly at the oncoming train, and when Connors saw that he was not going to step off the track he applied the emergency brake, but it was too late, and the entire train passed over him, mangling him in a terrible manner. The remains were placed on board and brought to Bancroft, where they were taken in charge by Undertaker Towle.

Coroner A. T. Beeman ordered an inquest for Monday at 11 o'clock, and empanelled the following jury: Wm. Detlor, foreman; Chas. Mullet, D. H. Morrison, W. N. Simmons, Frank Walker, Ralph McGee, Wm. Wilcox and George Mitchell.

After viewing the body the jury adjourned to the town hall and heard the evidence of the train crew, and Robert Fuller, who was a passenger. It appeared from the evidence that the deceased must have been laboring under a fit of mental aberration. In giving his evidence the fireman, Frank Fairman, stated that the man was looking at the engine when it was not more than 20 feet from him, but apparently made no attempt to save himself. When he saw what was going to happen he (the fireman) turned his back on the scene.

The jury returned the following verdict: "That Frank Phillips was killed on Saturday, Nov. 16th, 1912, by Central Ontario Ry. train No. 1, in charge of Conductor G. E. Robertson and Engineer Michael Connors, and that we exonerate the crew from all blame in connection with the accident."

Phillips went north on Tuesday of last week to work in the woods for Thos. Netterville. The work did not suit him and he quit. He left Baragar's boarding house at Lake St. Peter on Friday morning and had dinner at Brown's, near where he was killed, the same day. He is said to have slept in the station at Hybla Friday night.

GRAND TRUNK SYSTEM NEWS ITEMS

The decision of the Grand Trunk Pacific to name its new $1,000,000 hotel in Regina, "The Qu'Appelle," has been generally welcomed by that city. The historic name is one that has a warm place in the hearts of all westerners and the beautiful legend attached to it has a wide appeal. As told by the celebrated Indian poetess, Miss Pauline E. Johnson, it is this: "An Indian voyageur on the eve of his wedding day, is paddling his canoe swiftly along across the waters of Echo Lake, west from the present site of Fort Qu'Appelle. As he paddles he sings, 'Our voices keep time and our oars keep time.' Suddenly the stillness of the night is broken by a sharp cry. He ceases his song and rests his paddle, listening for a further sound, fancying that he has heard his name uttered by someone. Again across the waters there comes a shrill cry. This time it is no doubt but that it is the name of the voyageur. Placing his hands to sis mouth, he shouts 'Qu'Appelle,' sounding his name. The Indian recognizes the voices of his sweetheart and fearing some mischance puts all his strength in his paddle. Looking over his shoulder to judge of his position he sees the moon rising. At length arrived at the reservation where the Indians are camped he finds them mourning and is told that his sweetheart is dead, that she has passed away just as the moon was rising in the east, after having called his name three times." And thus was given to the river, lake and town, the name "Qu'Appelle." To this day the Indians declare that when the moon rises to a certain point on Echo Lake one can hear the spirit of the girl calling to her lover as she haunts the valley.

Mr. A. K. Bourheier, the original pioneer of the Fort George settlement in British Columbia, who went into that country from Ashcroft in 1906 as a freighter of supplies for the Grand Trunk Pacific with a gap of 125 miles between Fort George and Fraser Lake and a few minor gaps, the roadbed of the G. T. P. has all been graded from the end of steel at Tete Jaune Cache to the end of steel at Hazelton. The right of way is now practically cut through from the eastern to the western ends of the construction and by next spring will have been completed. Rapid progress has been made throughout the summer and fall months. On the western end Mr. W. C. C. Mehan, general superintendent, reports that the line is completed and ready to operate as far as Mud Creek beyond Hazelton. It should, therefore, only be a short time before this extended line is thrown open from Prince Rupert.

Native silver has been discovered in good quantities at Stewart Lake, 114 miles northwest of the Grand Trunk Pacific line at Fort George, and is being diligently followed up.

Would Make Two Proposals.

London, Ont., Nov. 25.—Col. Davidson and Engineer McRae of the Canadian Northern Railway were in the city Saturday and arranged with Mayor Graham, to hold a conference with the London & Port Stanley Railway Board this week. They intimated that they would make two proposals, one to buy the L. & P. S. Ry., and the other to lease it, though nothing is known as yet as to the terms or conditions. The offers may be submitted to the ratepayers as an alternative to Hon. Adam Beck's scheme of electrification.

Sir Donald Mann, vice-president of the C.N.R., when asked regarding the negotiations with the London & Port Stanley Railway, said: "I know little or nothing about the scheme, and I only heard this evening regarding the proposals."

A French jeweller has invented a process by which jewelry can be perfumed with any scent without harming the valuables. The process consists in the use of an adhesive paste which is perfumed according to the wishes of the customer and the mixture is applied to the unseen part of a jewel, the odor lasting for several years until the paste has gradually worn off, when it can, of course, be renewed.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Land Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within 9 miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him, by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

FALSE COLORS.

Iridescence of the Opal Is Merely a Matter of Formation.

The opal has no color in the sense of pigmentation. To break open an opal in order to observe its hues would be the equivalent to killing the goose that laid the golden eggs. Neither golden eggs nor rainbow hues would be found.

Opal consists of hydrated silica. It is not uniform in texture. If the word surface may be used for interior conditions it might be said that the opaline silica is in the form of surfaces and layers that lie compactly against one another. These layers refract the light at various angles, giving forth the colored flashes in the same way that a pure crystal prism refracts the colors of the spectrum. Technically speaking, these layers of silica are said to possess a different index of refraction from that of the matrix. As the opal is moved the various layers break the light into colors, which change, of course, according to the position of the stone.

The iridescence of nacre, or mother-of-pearl, is also a matter of form and not actual color. In fact, all "changeable" colors are more or less the result of form even where there is pigmentation beneath, such as in certain ribbed silks. When sunlight bears directly upon finely ribbed metal, as a file, there is the same play of colors.

In the case of mother-of-pearl an interesting experiment has been made. An impression of the pearl was taken upon pure white wax. It was then found that the apparently smooth surface of the pearl had still sufficient irregularities to impress upon the wax a surface that resulted in similar color manifestations.—Harper's Weekly.

Belled Horse.

The Swiss horse is apparently a very musical animal—or not, according to the hearer's ear. Strings of bells are hung round its neck, producing a musical jangle at every step.

Lead Pencil Writing.

Sometimes in an emergency one has to address a letter or a postcard with a lead pencil, and there is always the danger that the writing will become blurred before it reaches its destination. To prevent this breathe on the writing and then blow on it, and it will remain clear for some time.

Flight of Birds.

Some birds have a long range of flight, such as the martingale, wild goose and several members of the vulture tribe. In general birds are restricted to certain geographical areas, although the same fishing eagle that inhabits the shores of Scotland is seen in south Europe.

NATURE'S ESSENCE.---Extracted From Forest Plants.

Nature's laws are perfect, but disease follows if these laws are not obeyed. Go straight to nature for the cure, to the forest; there are mysteries here that we can fathom for you. Take the bark of the wild-cherry tree, the root of mandrake, stone, Oregon grape root, queen's root, bloodroot and golden seal, make a scientific, non-alcoholic extract of them with just the right proportions and you have Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

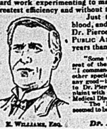
It took Dr. Pierce, with the assistance of two learned chemists, eight years of hard work experimenting to make this pure glyceric extract and alterative of the greatest efficiency and without the use of a particle of alcohol.



E. WILLIAMS, ESQ.

Just the sort of remedy you need to make rich, red blood, and cure that lassitude and feeling of nerve exhaustion. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery bears the stamp of PUBLIC APPROVAL and has sold more largely in the past forty years than any other blood purifier and stomach tonic.

"Some time ago I got out of health—my stomach seemed to be the seat of the trouble," writes MR. EZRA WILLIAMS, of Belleville, Kans. "I commenced to doctor with all the doctors at home as well as with other specialists on stomach and digestive organs. None seemed to do any good—in fact, most of the medicines did me harm. Finally, I wrote to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., who replied, stating that I had liver complaint with indigestion and constipation, and advised Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets.'

"The 'Discovery' and 'Pellets,' have 'put me on my feet again'—seemed to be just what I needed. I could not have recovered without them."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are for liver ills.

KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER

By C. J. CUTCLIFFE HYNE

He rebuilt them into their own wooden case and he primed them, and when this was full, dragged it out through the doorway into the casemate of mattresses. Laura and White-Man's-Trouble still crouched there helplessly, and the tornado still yelled and roared and boomed. It was carrying water with it now, bitter salt from the sea, and whipping the face like hail where it impinged.

Carter was breathless and panting by the time he had managed once more to drag himself under the shelter of the bedding; but he was keenly alive to the needs of the immediate future. Already he noted a diminution in the tornado's fury; the hustling clouds of sticks, and leaves and branches, which it carried along was growing less thick, and although this was by far the hardest hurricane he had ever seen, he knew from previous acquaintance with the breed that it might well drop to perfect calm as suddenly as it had arisen.

As a point of fact it deceived him. The wind lulled, and the forest trees swung upwards in unison as though they had been performing a trick. The air cleared, and Carter raised his head to try and spot the part of the bush where the brass gun was masked. A black man sprang from the undergrowth, lifted a gun, fired and missed. Carter threw up the Winchester for a snapshot.

"Got him—Laura, for the Lord's sake keep down in shelter, or they will pick you off to a certainty. Trouble, you hound, roll up those pillows and blankets underneath you into a hard wad, and stuff them into that gap at the corner there——"

"Isn't there a splendid chill after that awful heat?" the girl said. "Wrap up, George, or you'll have fever. Here's your coat."

'Look out," Carter shouted. 'Hold on all with those blankets. Here comes more tornado."

Once more the wind slammed down upon them with insane fury, and once more all loose inanimate things rose into vigorous flight. The forest trees cowered down into the swamps from which they grew. Solid rods of rain split against the factory buildings, and sent deluges of water squirting through the bamboo walls as though the matchwood backing had not been there. The roar was like the continuous passing of a hundred heavy trains over a hundred iron bridges all side by side.

Gone altogether now was the stagnant heat. The air was scoured clean, and it was forced into the lungs at such high pressure that it exhilarated one like some deliciously choice vintage of champagne.

"I'm hanged if I let those beggars kill us." Carter bawled out during one of the lulls. "In this splendid air life's too gorgeous." And then bump came the wind upon them again.

But the tornado had blown out the heart of its strength. In five more minutes the wind had dropped the rain ceased, the air cleared, the sun glared out overhead and began to heat the tropical day, and white steam oozed up from all the face of creation.

This time Carter's rifle represented the whole orchestra of death for the defence. The factory Krooboys' flintlocks spoke no more; the ill-aimed Winchesters of the snuff-and-butter colored da Silva and his wife were silent. The Portuguese and the factory clerks, and the factory porters had cannily crawled away into the bush. They knew nothing of what was ahead of them in those steamy shades. One certainly alone fluttered in their minds, and that was that they were leaving massacre behind.

CHAPTER VII
The Invisible Fire

In the factories which dot the West African seaboard and rivers, death is such a constant visitor that much of his grimness had faded. At home, in England, or America, or Hamburg, we shiver with apprehension whenever our relative who is "out on the West Coast" comes up into the mind but the relative himself takes his doses of fever when they fall due with a certain callous philosophy, and on his emergence shattered and shrunken from the attack, congratulates himself on not being a candidate for a guncase and a top hat that time. Those who go up in the bush and are there engulfed, those who get drowned in the ever grinding surf, those who go out by the thousand and one opportunities which the climate and the surroundings offer slip of their human garb with an easy nonchalance; and those who are left pronounce some pithy epitaph over the deceased and go on with their quicker interests.

With the native African death is an event of even smaller moment still; and in the event of a quarrel one competiteor will often sit down cuddle his knees, shut his eyes and there and then deliberately suspend his vital processes merely to cause temporary annoyance to his rival.

Now the above paragraphs are somewhat of the nature of a footnote elevated to the text. But they are necessary at this point in these memoirs to explain the coolness with which Laura and Carter viewed the near prospect of extinction. Neither of them of course in the least wished to die, but it never occurred to them to face death with anything beyond the usual Coast philosophy.

'I shall stick Mr. K. for a rise in screw if we get through this," said Carter.

"If I hadn't made a promise," said the girl, "I could tell you something about Mr. K. that would startle you."

"You're a tantalizing baggage, and I've a good mind to pick you up and shake it out of you. Gad! Here they come. Now, I'll shoot, and you get a box of matches and light those bombs for White-Man's-Trouble to throw."

"Bombs! Do you mean the cigarette-tins?

"Yes. You'd a big brazing lamp in the factory. Remember it? Well, you had. And that meant benzoline, I guessed. I found a drum full of it anyway, and I've loaded up those tins with benzoline. It'll burn like winking in this sun, and the niggers will never see the flame. Only thing to take care of, is not to set light to the factory. Now, do you understand?"

"Yes, dear."

'And d'you savvy, Trouble?"

"Savvy plenty. Oh Carter, I burn my leg plenty-too much with dem dam hot lamp on steamah. No can see flame when sun lib for shine. I fit for serve as stand-by-at-crane boy once, sar, on steamah."

'Well Mr. Engineer throw straight and don't get hoist by your own petard. By the living Jink we're in for it now. Thraw Trouble for all you are worth right into the blue of them.'

The four-fifty repeater yap-yapped its mesages and the man who had learned to shoot quick and straight amongst the rabbits and grouse of Upper Wharfdale made deadly practice at this bigger game. But two eighty-shot Winchesters are of very little more value than catapults in stopping the rush of two hundred fighting black pagans officered by Moselemin Hausas. Beforehand the fire of the Portuguese and the factory Krooboys had held them off, much more by its noise than its deadliness. The one solitary shooter powder in the Winchester and the smallness of the noise and the absence of smoke encouraged them. They scorned to shoot at him with their flintlocks. They would rush in and put this man to the matchet and save the girl alive. And thereafter, when they rolled the red head at King Kallee's feet, and made the girl standup before him, many and fine presents would be given to gladden them and their women.

So they gave the Okky yell, and sprang out of the bush into the open and rushed across the clearing.

But lo, presently the white man called out, "Behold I put ju-ju on you blighters," and a black man who carried between his brows the Kroo tribal mark began throwing green tins which contained some liquid distilled by witchcraft. And thereupon the clinging fires of hell broke out amongst them, and burned the skins on their bodies till they screamed and danced in their frenzy of pain, and the air was rich with the smell of their cooking. Even Kwaka, who led them, though he was the boldest fighting man in all King Kallee's armies, showed by the grayness that grew upon his face that he that day learned the lesson of fear. And when presently they broke and fled for the bush (the flames, be it understood still sticking to them), it was Kwaka who led that disordered retreat, and held a sleeve of his jelab before his eyes lest the white man might bring further witchcraft to bear, which would make his face a derision for the houris in Paradise.

"My Christian Aunt!" said Carter up on the factory veranda, "but benzoline is filthy stuff to fight with. The place stinks like a cookshop, and I feel like a beastly Russian anarchist. Don't throw any more tins, Trouble. We've saved our bacon, Laura, I do believe, but I hate being unsportsmanlike. It's worse than netting your neighbor's grouse moor, this. But they came up to the gun too quick for me to stop them alone. White-Man's-Trouble, if you throw another of those infernal bombs, I'll slip a shot into you."

"Laura was crouched in behind the mattress casemate, her face tucked away into the crook of an elbow, and her shoulders heaving with sobs.

"Hullo, old lady what's the row with you? You're not hit? Good God don't tell me your're hit. What a careless hound I am to let you get out of cover. I could have sworn there wasn't a shot being fired. What a miserable incompetent brute I am to get rattled and not see after you better."

"Oh George I'm not hit. I almost wish I were. That would be fairer."

Carter stared. "What's the matter then?"

She pulled herself together with an effort. "I suppose I must feel very much as you do about the matter, only more so. You see I lit the matches for each bomb Trouble held out to me. It was I who am really responsible——"

Sheep's Leg Is A Man's Arm

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—At the Harlem hospital here is a patient who has a new arm made from a sheep's leg. This sounds remarkable even in this age of medical marvels. It is one of the wonders performed before the delegates of the Clinical Congress which has been in session there for the past week.

The operation was performed by Dr. Walter Ambrickner.

Just why a sheep's leg was chosen for substitution in place of a decayed bone in the man's arm may not be clear to the layman, but it is to the surgeons. The leg bone of a sheep, they say, has the right knitting tissues and flexibility, and in formation lends itself well to replacement in the human arm.

The leg was amputated from the sheep early Thursday morning, remained in a solution twenty hours after being scraped, and was carefully treated before being ready to become part of the human frame.

Every particle of the decayed bone in the patient's arm was carefully cut away, leaving a gap into which the sheep's bone was dovetailed, then fastened with sterilized wire nails.

The fleshy portion of the arm, which was sliced open, will be kept so for two or three days, until there is no doubt of the bones knitting properly. Then the slit will be sewed up and in a couple of weeks Mr. Patient will have an arm as good as new.

There was exhibited at the Harlem hospital a most remarkable case of surgery. The patient was a woman who had fallen four floors down a circular stairway and crushed her face beyond all recognition, fracturing many bones. Dr. H. J. Kauffer, a surgeon-dentist, reset the broken bones and wired the jaws together, and today the patient hasn't a blemish on her face.

Dr. Kauffer, who is a consulting surgeon at the hospital, also gave a demonstration of wiring broken jaw bones. He exhibited one patient who had just broken his jaw, but could eat without any trouble whatever.

Dr. Luckitt, another Harlem hospital surgeon, today performed a rare operation—the only one of its kind attempted since the clinical congress convened. A patient with a broken back was brought into the hospital recently, and Dr. Luckitt wired together the broken vertebrae.

It is said for the operation that if it is a success the patient will not be deformed in any way. It is a more delicate operation than reducing the fracture of the neck.

Telling of the progress made in combating the terrible 20th century plague—Consumption.

Notwithstanding the enormous increase in population in Canada in the past few years, it is more than gratifying to be able to record that the fight which the National Sanitarium Association are putting up against the "white plague"—consumption—is proving a winning one.

Prior to 1896 deaths from Consumption were on the increase every year. In 1910, despite the greater number of citizens, the figures in Ontario alone showed a decrease of 1118 over those of ten years ago. Isn't this splendid testimony to the noble work going on?

Maybe you haven't a father, mother, sister or dear friend of your own afflicted, but wouldn't it feel good to help some poor soul in the throes of the dread disease to get back into the wage-earning class—to return cured to wife and loved ones?

Our proud boast is that no needy Consumptive has ever been refused admittance to our Free Institutions at Weston and Muskoka because of poverty. But the good work cannot expand without your kindly sympathy and material help.

The need is urgent. If you are blessed with that greatest of all blessings, good health, think of your needy suffering brother and sister.

Send along your mite, however humble, to MR. W. J. GAGE, Chairman of the Executive Committee; or to MR. R. DUNBAR, Sec. Treas., 347 King West, Toronto.

Austrian Navy Has Started For Belgrade

BUDAPEST, Sov. 25.—The Austrian Danube flotilla consisting of two monitors, two torpedo boats and four gunbeats, started for Belgrade this afternoon. It was not announced on Saturday that they were on a hostile mission, but the development was considered extremely ominous. Employes of the street railroad system also received order to report to their reserve regiment commanders immediately.

The flotilla's departure created a tremendous sensation and the newspapers offices were deluged with telephonic enquiries as to whether war had been declared. For many days past they have been forbidden under the heaviest penalties to publish anything concerning military or naval movements.

Driver of The Murder Auto

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—William Shapiro, driver of the "murder car" in which the gunmen rode to and from the scene of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, was released from custody Friday, on an order from Justice Goff of the supreme court.

Shapiro was indicted with the four gunmen but his evidence against them at the recent tral, which resulted in their conviction, won him freedom.

United States Senator Dead

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Senator Isidor Rayner, of Maryland, died this morning of neuritis, aged 62 years. Senator Reyner was one of the striking figures of the United States senate and was one of the several men whose names William J. Bryan suggested as suitable candidates for the presidential nomination. His illness from neuritis covers a period of nearly five years. Complications began about six weeks ago and his serious illness dates from that time.

Lake Superior a Foaming Fury

SAULT STE. MARIE, Nov. 25.—Terrible tales of the fury of Lake Superior during the past three days were told by all incoming steamers yesterday and this morning. The Agincourt, a Clydebank steamship, which carried her wheel amidships, had every pane of glass broken by the mountainous waves which swept her. The Angeline, with a full cargo of ore, had to berth at the Soo while her cargo was adjusted, as she had a terrible list to starboard. Captain Massey, of the Sylvian, said it was the worst storm in his experience, and that the wind shifted from northwest at midnight Saturday, the vessel became almost unmanageable, and he could not tell in which direction to steer to keep her head on, for the sea seemed to come from every direction. He said: "When the cargo shifted, she became like a submarine and her decks were shorn of their entire outfit of deck gear". A steel trust boat, which locked through on the American side, had lost her mainmast this morning. The wind keeps up, and the canal is lined with many anxious watchers.

PLEASING PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS TO FR. MEEHAN BY THE CADET CORPS

On Sunday afternoon at St. Michael's Academy a very pleasing event took place, when the Cadet Corps of the school met in a body and made a meek presentation of a leather-bound travelling case, with his initials suitably engraved in silver, to the Rev. J. A. Meehan, curate of St. Michael's Parish, who, we regret to say, is being transferred to the parish of Morrisburg, and leaves for his new home on Friday. His sudden removal from our city is deeply regretted by all his friends, who all fervently wish him success in his new parish.

The following address was then read and the presentation made by the officers of the corps, in charge of Sergt. Jas. Freeman.

Rev. Father J. A. Meehan.

Dear Rev. Father.—It was with feelings of deepest regret that the news of your sudden removal from our parish came to us; for your little visits among us have always been a source of pleasure and joy, and we feel certain that, when you are gone, your absence will have a telling effect on our work as a Cadet Corps, for your cheerful advice and assistance in many ways has been of the greatest aid in putting spirit and heart into our work. Moreover, we also feel that your loss will have a deep effect on us in other ways, for all the members of our Cadets have always looked on you, Dear Father, as our first aid, and our best friend in all our wants and needs. Furthermore, we feel that your absence from among us, particularly in time of trouble, will take all spirit from our work, and the lack of your cheerful aid will tend to bring disunion among our Cadets.

However, we realize that "Orders must be obeyed," and that you must leave us, as your beloved work, Dear Father, is devoted to a more fervent cause than ours; and we all, as Cadets, fervently wish you the greatest success in your new field of labor, and we sincerely hope and pray that God will grant you a long and happy life in your new parish.

Before leaving we would be highly pleased to have you accept this modest present as a mark of our deepest love and respect, to be held as a token of "dear old Belleville."

With heartfelt regret at your departure, we, as Cadets, remain,

Sincerely yours,
ST MICHAEL'S CADET CORPS.
November, 24, 1912.

In closing Father Meehan made a feeling reply, graciously thanking the Cadets for their kind remembrance of his work among them, assuring them of his best wishes for success in their efforts as Cadets, and urgently besought them to remain loyal and true, and live up strictly to their promises made on joining the corps. Before leaving he imparted his fervent blessing on them in their work and the meeting was brought to a close by the recital of the closing prayers.

Senator Rayner's Death May Change Senate Standing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The control of the United States Senate after March 4 may hinge on the death of Senator Rayner. The Republican whom it is expected Governor Goldsborough will appoint in his place will hold office at least until the Maryland Legislature meets in January, 1914.

Senator Rayner's death removes one of the Democrats on whom the control of the Senate depended in the new Congress. With his vote the Democratic leaders counted on mustering forty-nine, or one more than a majority of the total membership of 96. In any event 48 votes, with the vote of the Vice-President in case of a tie, was looked upon as sufficient strength to insure control.

Austrian Sailors Are Recalled From Bosphorus

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Daily Chronicle's Constantinople correspondent telegraphs:

"The Austrian sailors received orders this afternoon to embark. One Austrian cruiser has already sailed. The other will leave tomorrow. I am assured here that the purpose of the move is to make a naval demonstration off the port of Durazzo, on the Adriatic.

"The Austrian doctors and nurses have also received orders to depart."

VIENNA, Nov. 25.—It is rumored in political circles that the conversations between Emperor William and Archduke Franz Ferdinand will result in a sort of mediation between Austria and Russia, which will be conducted by Emperor William. It is hoped in this way to avert for the present the crisis that is evidenced by the military preparations throughout Europe.

The police yesterday dispersed a riotous demonstration of Servian and Croatian students outside the German Embassy. Many of the students were arrested.

Grand Vizier Angry

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 25.—Kiamil Pasha, the grand vizier, yesterday confirmed the fact that the arrest of the Young Turks was due to the discovery of a plot to upset the government. The matter, he said, was now in the hands of a court martial and the law would take its course. Referring to the Turkish position at Tchatalja, he declared that it was impregnable and that the Bulgarians would learn this to their cost.

Complaining of Europe's indifference to Turkey's fate, he said: "It should not be forgotten that Russia is behind the Balkan league, which has been in fact, engineered by Russia, it will not be long before Europe feels the consequences of its present policy, for a strong Turkey is necessary for European peace."

Sir E. Clouston's Funeral Attended By Royalty

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—The funeral of the late Sir Edward Clouston, first vice-president of the Bank of Montreal, who died suddenly on Saturday afternoon, took place this afternoon after the cremation of the remains.

Among the mourners were Captain T. H. Rivers Bulkeley, C.M.G., M.V.O., representing T. H. R. the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia, who sent a wreath. Upon the card attached to it was the following: "A token of great regard and deepest of regret. Arthur, Louise Margaret, Patricia."

Another wreath from Their Royal Highness staff had a card attached upon which the following was inscribed: "In grateful remembrance of many kindnesses."

Sir Edward was a nephew of Mrs. William Hamilton of this city.

Police Chief Convicted

COBALT, Nov. 25.—C. H. Goodman, chief of police in New Liskeard was fined $50 in a private session of court Thursday on a charge of having muskrat skins in his possession out of season. Eli Thibb, of Charlton, was fined $100 on the same charge. Both pleaded guilty. As a result of the appearance the chief has been asked for his resignation. The affair dates back to last May, when the skins were seized from Angus Wabi, an Indian, by Game Warden McKelvie. The Indian's case was continued, and later the skins disappeared. The ex-chief, Goodman, will appeal.

Messina Cemetery Was Flooded

MESSINA, Nov. 25.—A wave of abnormal size flooded the cemetery yesterday, where earthquake and cholera victims were buried, and caused great havoc. Many tombstones were destroyed and hundreds of skeletons were washed into the sea.

Strike Situation Quiet

SOUTH PORCUPINE, Nov. 25.—Special—Affairs in the strike have been very quiet today. Men going on at the various properties have been unmolested in any way, but one arrest has been made. This was the detaining of Frank Radcliffe by a Thiel detective, who has charged the man with disorderly conduct. His case will come up in court tomorrow morning, and all other cases have been continued until Friday.

Several carloads of men have been brought into the camp for the Dome and the Hollinger mines, and each successive day sees the forces augmented by the arrival of others. Bert Maybee, who was held without bail, and who has several charges against him, has since been released on bail.

Denounce European War Talk

Intelligencer Special.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The London press today is almost unanimous in denouncing the alarmist reports foreshadowing a general European war over Servia's claim to a strip of land on the Adriatic. It is generally agreed that Servias claim is absurd, and that she must abandon it.

Lawrence Strike Leaders Acquitted

Intelligencer Special.

SALEM, Mass., Nov. 26.—The jury in the case of Jos. J. Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti and Jos. Caruso, charged with the murder of Annie Lopizzo, killed in the Lawrence strike riot last winter, returned a verdict of "not guilty."

Gunmen to Die

Intelligencer Special.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—"Gyp the Blood," "Whitey" Lewis, "Lefty Louie," and "Dago Frank," convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, were sentenced today by Justice Goff to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing, during the week of January [illegible].

Woman Suffrage Defeated

Intelligencer Special.

DETROIT, Nov. 26.—The official returns from 80 of 83 counties in the State of Michigan, and unofficial figures from the remaining three counties show an adverse majority of 723 against woman suffrage.

Jury Disagrees

(Intelligencer Special.)

GOSHEN, N.Y., Nov. 26—The jury in the case of Burton W. Gibson, charged with the murder of Rosa Menschin Szabo, after being out all night, reported at 9.40 o'clock this morning that they had been unable to reach a verdict. The Court sent them back for a second deliberation, but after being out for several hours, they again reported a disagreement.

Wedding In a Smallpox House

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—Special—Cupid and smallpox had an encounter in a little village, St. Elizabeth, near Joliette, today, when inspectors of the Provincial Board of Health were hurried to the scene in order to prevent a marriage which was booked to take place in a family where smallpox was raging.

The descent of the inspectors unearthed a veritable hotbed of the disease, no less than thirty cases being discovered in the village. According to reports received at the local headquarters of the Provincial Board, the malady was allowed to run its course untrammeled by any restrictive action on the part of the municipal officers.

Big Fleet Sails For Ft. William

FORT WILLIAM, Nov. 25.—Special—Fourteen vessels, eight being big American freighters, were docked at the different elevators today, and sailed for eastern wharfs before night with total cargoes of upwards of 3,000,000 bushels of grain. This is the largest fleet any day this fall, and the shipment is one of the heaviest in the history of Fort William. The steamer Emperor was loaded with 330,000 bushels in four hours this morning at Elevator D.

Wife Burned to Death

EDMONTON, Nov. 25.—Special—Because somebody had said that she had escaped and gone to the house of a neighbor, Mrs. F. S. Bradley was burned to death in her home in Battleford this morning, while her husband, three children and a servant girl stood by and watched the building being enveloped in flames.

TWO KILLED IN WRECK

Many Others Are Hurt In Disaster on the C.P.R.

Early Morning Train From Kootenay Landing to Medicine Hat Is Derailed at Fitzgerald While Running at a High Rate of Speed—Engineer and Fireman Are Killed—One Other Will Die.

Medicine Hat, Alta., Nov. 26.—The early morning crow train, due in Medicine Hat at 4.30 o'clock, from Kootenay Landing, piled in a heap about 3.30 p.m., at Fitzgerald, a small crossing between Seven Persons and Bull's Head. Two enginemen lost their lives and some 17 people were more or less seriously injured. Two or three of the injured are seriously hurt; one will likely die.

Engineer James Cain, a veteran at the throttle, lay under the firebox of his engine. He suffered a terrible death, as did also his fireman, H. H. Flower. When it struck the switch the engine careened and rolled completely over, the train broke loose and the baggage, express, mail car and coaches left the track and rolled over.

Engineer Cain's head was badly cut, but he evidently died as the result of escaping steam from the broken and twisted engine boiler. When the rescuers found him he was dead.

Fireman Flower of Calgary died like his chief, at his post, and in the same manner, only that there is not a mark of any kind on his body other than the scalds.

Of the eight injured who were taken to the hospital on the arrival here of the rescue train, one, Geo. Dowling, a carpenter of this city, will likely die. He is in a precarious condition. The others are seriously hurt, and it will be a few days before it is known what the outcome will be.

At the C.P.R. offices last evening the following official statement was issued:

"Herewith list of persons killed and injured at wreck of train No. 514 this morning at Fitzgerald:

"J. Cain, engineer, scalded to death.

"H. H. Flower, fireman, scalded to death.

"Injured: William Smith, passenger, Lethbridge, forehead cut; George Dowling, car repairer, Medicine Hat, right leg badly crushed, amputation necessary; William Cross, passenger, Lethbridge, right ear cut, shoulder bruised; George Russell, passenger, Keeler, Sask., hand cut; Henry Hendrickson, passenger, Finland, three scalp wounds; Joseph Wynn, passenger, Central Butte, Sask., abdomen injured, not seriously; Abraham Dougless, passenger, Kipp, Alta., scalp wound, five inches long, left shoulder severely injured; Martin Edwardson, passenger, Seven Persons, right arm broken in two places, right shoulder cut and bruised.

"All the above were taken to the Medicine Hat Hospital and attended to. Those able to do so returned to their homes.

So far the investigation shows that the accident was due to the excessive speed of the train when passing over the west switch, at Fitzgerald."

A CLEAN SCALR MEANS BEAUTIFUL HAIR

There is nothing "just as good" as Newbro's Herpicide. Some dealers will even go so far as to tell you they have something better.

That dealer has an axe to grind.

You can't stop his grinding, but you can prevent him grinding it at your expense.

There is one sure, swift way to do it. Go where you can get what you ask for.

You won't be obliged to do this very often, as fortunately the majority of druggists are honest and conscientious.

Newbro's Herpicide has been so long and favorably known as the original dandruff germ destroyer that no one should be deceived.

When you need a hair remedy, you don't want one which merely promises to kill the dandruff germ and prevent the hair from falling.

You want one that will do it.

Herpicide does it.

The hair becomes soft and lustrous. There is life, snap and beauty where formerly the hair was dead, dull and brittle.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c. and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Doyle's Drug Store, Special Agents.

Applications of this wonderful prophylactic may be obtained at the best barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

Send ten cents in postage or silver to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich., for a nice sample of Herpicide and a booklet telling all about the hair.

JUNE 16th 1657

June 16th, 1657, the first advertisement of Chocolate appeared. Here it is from the "Public Advertiser" of London:

"In Bishopsgate Street, in Queen's Head Alley, at a Frenchman's house, is an excellent West India drink called 'Chocolate,' to be sold, where you may have it ready at any time; and also unmade, at reasonable prices."

And the people of London flocked to the Frenchman's house and drank his chocolate. They paid for it as high as $6 a pound.

It was some time after this that cocoa was first made. It is simply chocolate with the excess cocoa butter removed.

If you want a cup of cocoa in its most delicious form, make it from Lowney's. Handlers of cocoa beans will tell you that we buy the finest flavored and most costly cocoa beans that the tropics yield. In our model Montreal factory we convert these beans into delicious Lowney's Cocoa.

Sold by grocers. In tins—10c to 50c sizes.

LOWNEY'S COCOA

The Best Way to Make Cocoa:

Mix two even tablespoonfuls of cocoa with two of sugar. Add ¼ teaspoonful of salt. Mix gradually with two cups of boiling water. Stir to a smooth paste. Boil 5 minutes. Add two cups of scalded (not boiled) milk, and beat with an egg-beater until frothy.

WHY KEEP ON COUGHING?

Here Is A Remedy That Will Stop It

Do you realize the danger in a neglected cough?

Then why don't you get rid of it?

Yes, you can shake it off, even though it has stuck to you for a long time, if you go about it right.

Keep out in the fresh air as much as you can, build up your strength with plenty of wholesome food, and take Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne.

This reliable household remedy has broken up thousands of hacking, persistent coughs, which were just as troublesome as yours, and what it has done for so many others it will do for you.

Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne contains absolutely no harmful drugs, and so can be given safely to children, as well as adults. Your physician or druggist can confirm this statement, for we are ready to send them on request a complete list of all the ingredients.

ARE YOU "AFRAID TO GO HOME IN THE DARK?"

Then why not have your front porch lighted so you can see what you're doing, and not have to creep into your own house like a burglar?

And speaking of burglars, a porch light makes one of the best protections against the visits of the man with the "jimmy." He does his best work in the dark, and an electric porch light (equipped with Holophane Reflector, of course) will discourage his efforts quicker than any burglar alarm.

If the porch light is the bane of the unwelcome guest, it is just as much a boon to the guest who is welcome. It is a promise of hospitality within and makes the visitor glad he has come. And when the porch light is equipped with Holophane Glass, the light is subdued yet of sufficient intensity to make reading in the open air a pleasure.

Whether there is electricity in your house or not, an electric light with a Holophane Reflector should be on your front porch.

May we not send a representative to call on you?

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

"DION O'DARE."

BERNARD DALY.
In "Dion O'Dare," at Griffin's Opera House, Friday, Nov. 29.

Bernard Daly, the clever young Irish singer, with his happy infectious laugh, his beautiful tenor voice and his handsome manly face will be the attraction at Griffin's Opera House on Friday evening, Nov. 29th, presenting his popular romantic Irish comedy drama, "Dion O'Dare," under the management of the Broadway Theatre Company. The play is purely Irish in locale and all the characters are historical. It relates to the adventures of a young Irish lad, who rises from the humble position of a poor boy, and becomes the most famous sculptor of Ireland. There is a sweet love story running through the piece of an Irish girl, whose birth is of higher degree than O'Dare's, but all ends well and Dion comes to Dublin as the honored guest of the Lord Lieutenant-General and finally wins his sweetheart. Mr. Daly will sing several songs especially adapted for his play, among which are "Many Years Ago," "Rose Serenade," "See-Saw," "Call of the Wind," "Macushla," and the latest compositions, "The Rose of Yesterday" and "Love is Like a Shoogy-Shu."

MADAME HALLOCK COMING.

The last concert of the "Nordica" series will take place in the city hall on Wednesday, Nov. 27, when Madame Hallock, the greatest female pianiste of the age, will give one of her brilliant concerts. "Hallock" has a world-wide reputation and needs no introduction to the musical people of Belleville. Seats now on sale at Doyle's. Prices $1.50, $1.00, 50c.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

A DEILGHTFUL CLIMATE

Mr. Charles Kindred who resides on North Front Street in the city, on Friday last, the 22nd of November, picked sweet peas from vines which were in his garden. This is an evidence that Canada has indeed a fine climate.

HOLLOWAY ST. LEAGUE

The usual meeting of the Holloway St. Methodist Church League was held last evening with a good attendance. Mr. E. Jones had charge of the meeting, his subject being "The Pledge taken on entering the League." He brought out many good points interesting to all who were fortunate enough to hear him.

THE ONWEGLIDE CLUB

About sixty couple attended the dance given by "The Onweglide Club" last evening at the Academy. The hall was tastely decorated for the occasion, and music was discoursed by O'Rourke's orchestra, consisting of six pieces. The ladies in attendance were very prettily gowned. Those present included guests from Napanee, Trenton, Picton and other outside points. A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all who attended.

THE LAST SAD RITES

The funeral of the late Mr. Allen Anderson, whose remains were brought here from Lethbridge, Alta., took place yesterday afternoon and a number were present. At the mother's residence, Mrs. G. Gamble, Station Street, a service was held by the Rev. W. G. Clarke, Pastor of the Tabernacle Church. That the deceased had many friends was evidenced by the numerous and beautiful floral tributes which were contributed. At the Belleville cemetery the interment took place. The bearers were, Messrs. H. Henderson, C. Hall, C. and W. Moore, F. and R. Donaldson.

HIS FIRST OFFENCE

George Fisher, a stranger in the city was arested last evening on a charge of drunkenness and this morning before the Magistrate pleaded guilty to the charge. He was allowed to go being his first offence.

JOINED FOR LIFE

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Spencer, Grove Street, a quiet wedding took place. The groom was Mr. William Michaud and the bride Miss Emily Eves. Rev. Mr. Meyers was the officiating minister.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

At a regular meeting of Mizpah Lodge, No. 127, I. O. O. F. last evening, the following offiicers were elected for the ensuing term:

P. N. G.—C. Cochrane.
N. G.—W. A. Pringle.
V. G.—J. Neate.
Fin. Sec.—J. Duckworth.
Treasurer.—L. B. Cooper.
Rec. Sec.—C. A. Ostrom.
Physician.—Dr. Platt.

After the business of the lodge was completed some time was spent in social intercourse. Addresses were given by a number present and these were interspersed by vocal selections. Brother L. B. Cooper presided over the function which was a most pleasing affair. During the evening refreshments were served.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

James Munro, alias Jefferson D. Mahoney, was this morning brought up before Magistrate Masson charged with highway robbery. The accused through his solicitor Mr. Carnew, made no election as to his trial. George Doherty, a man of advanced years is the complalinant in the case and he testified that on the evening of the 29th of October, Munro stole $28 from him. The complainant stated that Munro placed his hand in his pocket and took out his purse and then ran away. Doherty was positive the accused was the man who committed the offence. As a result of the enquiry Munro was committed for trial. Mr. Anderson County Attorney, prosecuted.

WORK OF THE TWELFTH PARLIAMENT

The twelfth Parliament of the Dominion of Canada opened on the 21st inst. under the most auspicious circumstances. There was extraordinary interest in the opening ceremonies, and when the Governor-General read the speech from the throne there was an exceptionally large attendance of members. It is generally recognized that this session will be an epoch-making one as far as Canadian history is concerned.

The session started with the legislative programme in good shape. The Cabinet has been working long and hard, and seldom has Parliament opened with a Ministry so well prepared. The departmental reports are nearly all in shape, while the estimates will also be presented at an early date. There will be none of the interminable delays which marked the Laurier regime, when the House waited weeks at a time for the procrastinating Cabinet to bring down its legislation.

The big outstanding question of the session is of course the proposal of Premier Borden to make an emergency contribution to the navy of the empire. An early announcement of the policy of the Government is expected from the Premier. Without anticipating the policy of the Government it may be said that he will present to the House proposals for aid to the navy which will be in keeping with Canada's position as the most important of the over-seas dominions. Consistent with the policy the Premier advocated while in Opposition, the permanent naval policy will be drafted later after mature consideration, and it will be submitted to the people before finally becoming law.

One of the first measures which will be brought down by the Government will be the Bank Act, which will be introduced by Hon. W. T. White. No authoritative announcement as to the measure will be made until it is introduced by the Minister, but it is understood that there will be a number of important amendments looking towards the protection of depositors and the general public, and towards the prevention of the serious failures which have occurred within recent years. The bill will be sent to the Banking and Commerce Committee, where it will be thoroughly threshed out in every phase.

Another important bill to be introduced shortly after the opening of the House will be a measure to assist agriculture in the provinces. This was one of the planks of the party in Opposition, to give further encouragement in agriculture and to co-operate more closely with the Provincial Governments in fostering the industry. Last session before a permanent policy was decided upon subsidies were granted to the provinces on a basis of population, under agreement with the Dominion Government. Half a million dollars was voted by Parliament, and the plan worked out very successfully. C. C. James, formerly Deputy Minister of Agriculture in Ontario, was appointed to work out a permanent policy, and has spent the last six months in a careful study of the agricultural needs in the several provinces with a view to having the federal subsidies applied to the best advantage. He conferred with all the provincial governments, and has presented his report to Hon. Martin Burrell. A Bill will be brought down based upon this report, and it is understood that even larger subsidies will be granted in the future to be spent by the provinces and under arrangement with the Dominion and subject to general supervision by the federal Department of Agriculture.

Last session the Senate killed a bill introduced by Hon. Frank Cochrane designed to carry out another plank in Premier Borden's pre-election platform, a measure to encourage the building of highways by a plan of co-operation between the Dominion and the Provincial Governments. Provision was made in the estimates for subsidies to the various provinces (on a basis of population) of no less than a million dollars. This measure was exceedingly popular, and has been endorsed by farmers' organizations and Good Roads Associations from all parts of Canada. It will again be introduced by the Government, and it is believed in view of the popular sentiment behind the measure that the Senate will not dare to again defeat it.

The West Indies trade agreement will also come in for attention. This has already been approved by the British West Indian legislatures, and it is hoped to have it ratified by the Dominion Parliament in time to go into effect by January 1. Early in the new year the Minister of Trade and Commerce will leave for Australia to complete negotiations for a treaty with the Commonwealth.

Another measure which promises to take considerable time of the House is the consolidation of the Railway Act. Samuel Price, K.C., of St. Thomas, Ont., has had the work in hand for some time, and the consolidated bill will be introduced early in the session. It is understood that there will be a number of important amendments. One new clause will be to prevent the wholesale granting of blanket charters.

These are but a few of the measures which will be introduced this session and which promise to make it the most memorable since Confederation.

CURRENT COMMENT

Sir Edward Clouston's remains are to be cremated in Montreal. Sir Edward was a rich man, and the expense of cremation will not prevent his wishes, as to the disposal of his body, being carried out. Peace to his ashes.

The municipal grafter is given short shrift in England. There the law has a summary method of dealing with him. It does not appoint a commission to discover nice words with which to describe his ugly acts, or to find that he is a psychological freak not responsible for his actions. It puts him on his trial, and when he is found guilty, sentences him to imprisonment, for the ruffian that he is.—Montreal Star.

But when you come to leave out Adam and Eve as in the latter case something seems lacking. One naturally would like to know who started the discord in Eden, and who was to blame—a man or a woman.

It is not yet authoritatively known what will be the permanent policy suggested by Premier Borden, or what the measures are that will be adopted by Parliament in the present session. But one thing is sure—the proposal of a cash contribution is most in line with progressive action concerning the futurity of peace, and should win the warmest approval of all those who hold the peace of the world to be more desirable than the militaristic glory of any country.—Hamilton Herald.

Bernhardt and a Bear

LONDON, Nov. 25.—While visiting Cross's famous menagerie in Liverpool, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt had an exciting experience, narrowly escaping injury from a large bear.

The famous actress had previously telegraphed from Leeds intimating that on visiting Liverpool she would call at the menagerie as she was desirous of obtaining certain animals.

On arrival she was escorted round the establishment by Mr. W. Simpson Cross. When in the lion-house she approached a full-grown bear which had only just arrived, and could not be handled by anybody on the premises, with the intention of stroking his muzzle. The bear, with a savage snarl, made a clutch at the famous actress, but it only succeeded in seizing her fur necklet.

Mr. Cross had to beat the animal off with his walking stick.

Turkey Would Enter Balkan Confederacy

PARIS, Nov. 25.—The Belgrade correspondent of the Matin says:

"Turkey now requests that she be admitted to the Balkan confederation, retaining of course all the territory she had before the war.

"This extraordinary proposal as yet has only been semi-officially made, and it causes no surprise in Servian official circles, which are well acquainted with the Ottoman mentality and know that Turkey never would accept accomplished facts except with the knife at her throat."

GRAND TRUNK SYSTEM NEWS ITEMS

In accordance with the cutting privileges granted to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway by its Dominion charter, the company has notified Mr. R. H. McMillan, chief forester of British Columbia, that approximately 600,000 ties will be cut in the vicinity of Tete Jaune Cache. Under its agreement the G. T. P. is entitled to take all of these from live wood but an arrangement has been made whereby 150,000 will be taken from wood fire-killed last year. This is an experiment to test the relative durability of live and fire-killed wood. The railroad has further agreed to burn all the brush for a distance of 300 feet on either side of the right-of-way. As an indication of the development which is to take place in the Upper Fraser Valley one firm has made arrangements to put in two sawmills which will each have a capacity of 175,000 feet per day.

To the initiated the Grand Trunk's passenger train between Montreal and Cornwall is known by the nickname of the "Moccasin train," and light has recently been thrown by an old-timer of Upper Canada upon the origin of the expression. He states that the late Hon. D. A. McDonald and his brother, Ranald Sandfield McDonald were the contractors for the building of the line between the two points in question which was finished or at any rate sufficiently advanced for the operation of construction trains in 1851. The first regular train left Cornwall at that time early in the morning, returning from Montreal the same evening, and as its passengers were then for the most part habitants with moccassined feet, Ranald McDonald remarked that it ought to be called the "Moccasin Train." The name stuck and the train remains the "Moccassin" to this day. The author states that there have been several other explanations but that his is the only authentic one.

In view of the fact that the "Fort Gabry" hotel at Winnipeg is now approaching completion, that the "Macdonald" at Edmonton is well under way and that work has been started on the "Qu'Appelle" at Regina, the duties of Mr. F. W. Bergman, manager of the Grand Trunk system hotels, will become very much more onerous in the near future. Several other hotels are to follow at such points on the Grand Trunk Pacific line as Mount Robson and Prince Rupert, so that, in order to keep in sufficiently close touch with the entire chain Mr. Bergman who has hitherto made his headquarters at the "Chateau Laurier," the company's pioneer hotel in Ottawa, will take up his residence in Winnipeg, while Mr. A. T. Folger will assume charge of the "Chateau" as resident manager.

Fresh evidences of the unsurpassed mineral wealth opened up by the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in Western Canada are brought to light almost day by day, and the latest find is mentioned in a report just received from Hazelton, which states that a body of high-grade coking coal has been discovered lying south of that town. The property in question is on the Kitseguk-la River, 12 miles from the G. T. P., and contains 31 seams, two of which have been partially developed. Of these last one is seven feet in thickness and the other four. According to assays made in Vancouver the coal yields 68.5 per cent. of coke, but is also a high-grade steaming and domestic fuel.

We would rather have our faults overlooked than overheard.

Hurled Pet Names At The Editor

MONCTON, N. B., Nov. 25.—A Sunday temperance mass meeting, attended by several ministers and prominent citizens, broke up in disorder. Dr. O. B. Price, M.P.P., for Moncton city, called J. T. Hawke, editor of The Transcript, a liar and scoundrel for some statements in his paper and the latter promptly replied by reiterating them.

After another heated controversy between Dr. Price and Rev. H. E. Thomas, a joint debate was arranged between the two, as to which province, New Brunswick or Ontario, had the better temperance law.

The meeting was called to protest against the action of certain citizens trying to oust Chief of Police Rideout for enforcing the Scott Act.

IT GROWS HAIR

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove At Our Risk.

In all our experience with hair tonics there is one that has done more towards gaining our confidence than any other. We really believe this remedy, known as Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, is so superior to other preparations that we offer it to you with our personal and unqualified promise that if you use it and it doesn't prove in every way satisfactory to you, we will, upon your mere request at our store, return to you the money you paid us for it.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic acts scientifically, destroying the germs which are usually responsible for baldness. It acts to penetrate to the roots of the hair, stimulating and nourishing them. It is a most pleasant toilet necessity, is delicately perfumed, and will not gum nor permanently stain the hair.

We want you to get a bottle of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and use it as directed. If it does not relieve scalp irritation, remove dandruff, prevent the hair from falling out and promote an increased growth of hair and in every way give entire satisfaction, come back and tell us, and get your money back. Fortune's Vagaries

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 25.—Weary and footsore from a tramp over the railway ties from Golden to Vancouver, and bordering on a fever caused by constant exposure, Henry Llewelyn Lewis, once a wealthy colliery owner in Wales, and cousin of the late Sir William Thomas Lewis, a world-famous philanthropist, walked into the police station and requested to be locked up as he was destitute, hungry, and without a place to go. His request was acceded to.

Chapped Hands AND Cold-Sores

Are your hands chapped, cracked or sore? Have you "cold cracks" which open and bleed when the skin is drawn tight? Have you a cold sore, frost bite, chilblains, or a "raw" place, which at times makes it agony for you to go about your household duties? If so, Zam-Buk will give you relief, and will heal the frost-damaged skin. Anoint the sore places at night, Zam-Buk's rich healing essences will sink into the wounds, end the smarting, and will heal quickly.

Mrs. Yellen, of Portland, says: "My hands were so sore and cracked that it was agony to put them near water. When I did so they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. I seemed quite unable to get relief from anything I put on them until I tried Zam-Buk, and it succeeded when all else had failed. It closed the big cracks, gave me ease, soothed the inflammation, and in a very short time healed my hands."

Zam-Buk also cures chafing, rashes, winter eczema, piles, ulcers, festering sores, sore heads and backs, abscesses, pimples, ring-worm, etc., cuts, burns, bruises, scalds, sprains. Of all druggists and stores, or post free from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Price 50c a box.

HOCKEY

TORONTO, Nov. 25.—The National Hockey Association held a very lengthy meeting at the King Edward hotel Saturday.

Those who expected a very exciting session were somewhat disappointed, as the principal discussion was in connection with the alteration of some of the playing rules.

The rules laid down are as follows:

1. The referee has the right to over-rule an umpire's decision in the case of a disputed goal.

2. Players may be changed at any time during the game.

3. Coaching through a megaphone will not be allowed.

Minor, major and match fouls were defined and the penalties for same were decided upon.

a. A minor foul consists of holding an opponent or his stick, also tripping when a goal is not in danger. Loafing offside is also a minor foul.

A player who makes a minor foul is to be warned once for each offense, and for a repetition of the offense he is to be fined $2, with the exception of loafing offside. The third time that the latter offence is committed it constitutes a major foul and is to be treated as such.

b. Cross-checking, charging from behind, kicking, collaring, throwing stick to prebent a score, tripping an opponent while he is attempting to score, stopping a goal by intentionally kneeling or lying on the ice, and abusive language to any of the officials, constitutes a major foul.

The penalty will be a fine of $5 for the first offence; for the second offence an additional fine of $10 and suspension from play for 20 minutes; for the third offense an additional fine of $15 and expulsion from the play for the rest of the game.

c. A match foul consists of deliberately disabling an opponent.

A player who offends in this manner will be fined $25 and be banished from the game for such time as is required for the injured player to return to play, unless the offence is the second or third major foul, when the penalty for the major foul will be imposed.

T. E. Quinn was instructed to complete his negotiations with the Maritime League and form a working commission between the two associations.

"Cyclone" Taylor has gone to the coast league and Cameron of Port Arthur goes to Toronto.

The following delegates were present: Ottawa—M. Dosenthal.

Canadiens—George Kennedy.

Torontos—F. Robinson, B. Ridpath and P. J. Quinn.

Tecumsehs—W. J. Bellingham, Wm. Nicholson and E. J. Williams.

Wanderers—S. Lichtenhein.

Quebec—M. J. Quinn (no relation to the president of N.H.A.) and J. Malone.

RUGBY

TORONTO, Nov. 25.—A large crowd saw the soccer game on Saturday at Rosedale between intermediate players divided into English and Scottish sides. Scotland won by two goals to one, scoring their two goals in the second half, while England put through their only tally in the first.

KINGSTON, Nov. 21.—At the annual meeting of the Intercollegiate Rugby Union next month Queen's University will seek amendments to the rules. It will ask that the rule regarding offside interference be made more explicit, so that the individual opinions of referees may not have to constantly be a bone of contention.

Honorary Coach Silter is in favor of allowing more offside interference just as the ball is scrimmaged, but points out that the rules should make it clear just how far interference is to be allowed. At present the rules say nothing about it. Queen's claim that they lost games to McGill and University of Toronto this season by playing "straight football." Queen's will also ask for the appointment of a Board of Referees for the season.

Some men are modest enough to admit that they only know everything worth knowing.

"The Day of The Saxon" a New German Scare

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—General Homer Lea's book, "The Day of the Saxon" which he completed a few months prior to his death, is about to be published by the semi-official Berlin printing house of Mittler & Son.

In order to popularize the work for German readers, it has been re-christened "The British Empire's Fatal Hour," with sub-title of "The Warning of an Anglo-Saxon General."

Mittler & Son, who are bringing out the new book, are practically the Government publishing house, and it is almost certain that they received high official sanction for printing the German translation of "The Day of the Saxon."

Its leit motiff, that the British Empire is destined to crumble and that Germany will be its heir, is a popular theory with German political writers.

Greeks Torpedo Turkish Gunboar

ATHENS, Nov. 25.—A Greek torpedo boat entered the harbor of Aivala Sunday and attacked a Turkish gunboat there. On the appearance of the Greeks the Turkish sailors abandoned the gunboat after opening the vessel's stop-cocks. Greek marines went on board, but were unable to stop the inrush of water. They then blew up the gunboat with a torpedo.

CATTLE MARKET.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 23 were 2300 cattle, 1975 sheep and lambs, 2350 hogs and 750 calves, while the offerings on this market this morning for sale consisted of 1600 cattle, 750 sheep and lambs, 1460 hogs and 525 calves.

Altho the supply of cattle was large and generally of a medium quality, a steady feeling prevailed in the market and prices showed no important change, as compared with a week ago. The weather was stormy, but notwithstanding this fact the gathering of buyers was large. A good trade was done, with a fairly active market. Picked lots of choice steers sold as high as $6.25 and full loads of good cattle brought $5.75 to $5.90 per cwt. Canning stock was fair at prices ranging from $2 to $2.50 and cows $2.40 to $3.15 for bulls per cwt.

There were no further changes in the condition of the market for sheep and lambs, but the feeling was strong and prices have an upward tendency on account of the falling off in the receipts and the continued good demand from butchers and packers. Calves were active. The tone of the market for hogs was stronger and prices advanced 25c per cwt. The demand from packers was good and sales of selected lots were made at $9 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6 to $6.25; medium, $5.25 to $5.75; common, $3.50 to $4.50; canners, $2 to $3.15; choice cows, $4.75 to $5; medium, $4.25 to $4.50; bulls, $3.25 to $3.75; milkers, choice, each, $60 to $80; common and medium, [illegible]; springers, $4.50 to $6.75; fresh cows and springers, $56 to $85.

Sheep—Ewes, $4 to $4.25; bucks and culls, $3.50 to $3.75; lambs, $6 to $6.50.

Hogs—F.o.b., $9.

Calves—$3 to $12.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Nov. 25.—Cattle—Receipts, 6800; fairly active and 15c to 25c lower; prime steers, $8.85 to $9.25; butchers, $5.75 to $8.50; bulls, $4.25 to $6; stock heifers, $4.25 to $4.50; shipping, $7.50 to $8.75; cows, $3 to $6.50; stockers and feeders, active and firm, at $5 to $5.

Veals—Receipts, 1000; active and fifty cents lower, at $4 to $10.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 2300 head; active and strong; heavy, $7.90 to $7.95; mixed, yorkers and pigs, $7.75 to $7.90; roughs, $6.85 to $7; stags, $5.50 to $6.50; dairies, $7.50 to $7.75.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2900 head; steady; sheep, slow; lambs, active; lambs, $4.50 to $7; yearlings, $5 to $5.25; wethers, $4 to $4.50; ewes, $2 to $3.75; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Cattle—Receipts, 18,000; market strong. Beeves, $5.35 to $11. Texas steers, $4.30 to $6.70; western steers $5.50 to $9.10; stockers and feeders, $4.25 to $7.50; cows and heifers, $2.70 to $7.50; calves, $6.50 to $10.

Hogs—Receipts, 42,000; market weak; light, $7.45 to $7.80; mixed, $7.40 to $7.85; heavy, $7.35 to $7.85; rough, $7.35 to $7.55; pigs, $5.75 to $7.65; bulk of sales, $7.65 to $7.85.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 50,000; market steady; native, $2.25 to $4.50; western, $3.90 to $4.35; yearlings, $4.60 to $5.50. Lambs, native, $5.40 to $7.35; western, $5.50 to $7.25.

Liverpool Cattle.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 25.—John Rogers & Co. cable that trade in Birkenhead today remains about the same, the demand is good and quotations may be given the same as Saturday, say 11½c to 12½c per lb. for Irish steers.

POWERS ARE ANXIOUS

Peace of Europe Now Hangs by a Slender Thread.

The Effort Made by European Governments to Deny That Warlike Preparations Are Under Way Is Taken as an Ominous Sign—Servia's Refusal to Negotiate With Austria Complicates Situation.

London, Nov. 26.—The extreme anxiety manifested by all the European Governments to deny the reports of warlike preparations and to represent the political situation as peaceful and satisfactory is in itself an indication of on how slender a thread the issues of peace and war in Europe now hang.

The danger arises not alone from the conflicting interests of Austria, Servia and other powers, but from the possibility that Turkey, following the traditional policy of profiting by the embroilment of the great powers, may adopt an irreconcilable attitude in the peace negotiations.

Beyond the fact that the plenipotentiaries met yesterday, nothing is yet known—even whether an armistice has been arranged. There appears to be a suspension of operations at Tchatalja, apparently by tacit consent rather than by formal government.

"The semi-official Bulgarian newspaper, The Mir, in an editorial, voices the Governmental irritation at Turkey's dilatory methods of negotiation, and accuses the Porte of deliberately nominating delegates from remote points in order to gain time. This probably refers to Osman Kizami Pasha, the ambassador to Germany, who only arrived at Constantinople from Berlin yesterday.

In the diplomatic field the most important reports are that Servia declines to reply to the Austrian demands until the war is concluded, and that Germany has not undertaken to mediate between Austria and Russia. The news that Servia is throwing further obstacles in the way of the Austrian representative in search of Prochaska, the Austrian consul at Prisrend, is another disquieting feature.

Fighting continues around Adrianople, where the besieging forces are reported to have drawn their investing circle to within two-thirds of a mile of the town.

No further operations have taken place on the Tchatalja lines, says The Morning Post Constantinople correspondent. The Bulgarians are believed to have withdrawn considerable of their forces in the direction of Adrianople and the Dardanelles. A vigorous action against the Dardanelles by the Greek and Bulgarian forces is expected unless an armistice is promptly concluded.

The Daily News' correspondent in a despatch which evidently evaded the strict censorship, says the cholera is pressing north from Constantinople. Already there are several hundred cases at Mustafa Pasha, and the scourge has entered Bulgaria. The foreign doctors have met to consider what advice could be offered to the Government respecting precautions against the spread of the disease.

The cholera, the correspondent adds, is raging at Adrianople and is spreading among the Servians.

The losses to both Turks and Bulgarians have been enormous, but the demoralization of the main Turkish army has not extended to the garrison at Adrianople, which daily displays desperate gallantry.

NOW ENJOYING SPLENDID HEALTH

Nervousness And Dyspepsia Cured By "Fruit-a-tives"

WALKERTON, ONT., MAY 9TH 1911

"My trouble was extreme Nervousness, brought on by Indigestion or Dyspepsia, from which I suffered in its worst form.

I asked Mr. Hunter, my druggist, about "Fruit-a-tives" and he advised me to try them.

I took several boxes and am pleased to say I am now enjoying fine health.

I honestly believe I owe my health to "Fruit-a-tives" and strongly advise anyone suffering from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Nervousness or Sleeplessness, to commence using "Fruit-a-tives" and continue this remedy until a cure is accomplished".

NOT A CRYING NEED.

Canada Not Terribly Hard Up For Women, Says Harcourt.

London, Nov. 26.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Col. Yates, calling attention to the decision of the Canadian Government to establish a women's immigration branch in England, asked if Colonial Secretary Harcourt would consider the question of forming an Imperial emigration board with the overseas representatives, to go thoroughly into the question of women's emigration. The excess of female over male adults in 1911 was nearly a million and a half.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt was not prepared under present circumstances to consider the question of forming such a board. The subject, he said, is under consideration of the Dominion's royal commission. It has not been considered necessary for the British Government to offer any special encouragement to female emigration.

Col. Yates: "Will His Majesty's Government take no steps whatever?"

Hon. Mr. Harcourt: "I don't think there is any necessity for female emigration to Canada and other parts of the dominions has been greater in the last twelve months than at any previous period."

In the House of Commons last night Hayes Fisher proposed an amendment to clause 15 of the home rule bill, providing that the Irish Parliament should not be allowed to interfere with any Imperial taxes under the bill. He contended that the Irish Parliament could vary the income tax to any extent.

The amendment was rejected by 145 to 117.

Telling of the progress made in combating the terrible 20th century plague—Consumption.

Notwithstanding the enormous increase in population in Canada in the past few years, it is more than gratifying to be able to record that the fight which the National Sanitarium Association are putting up against the "white plague"—consumption—is proving a winning one.

Prior to 1896 deaths from Consumption were on the increase every year. In 1910, despite the greater number of citizens, the figures in Ontario alone showed a decrease of 1118 over those of ten years ago. Isn't this splendid testimony to the noble work going on?

Maybe you haven't a father, mother, sister or dear friend of your own afflicted, but wouldn't it feel good to help some poor soul in the throes of the dread disease to get back into the wage-earning class—to return cured to wife and loved ones?

Our proud boast is that no needy Consumptive has ever been refused admittance to our Free Institutions at Weston and Muskoka because of poverty. But the good work cannot expand without your kindly sympathy and material help.

The need is urgent. If you are blessed with that greatest of all blessings, good health, think of your needy suffering brother and sister.

Send along your mite, however humble, to MR. W. J. GAGE, Chairman of the Executive Committee; or to MR. R. DUNBAR, Sec. Treas., 347 King West, Toronto.

Every penny you send goes to help.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

DEBATE WILL BE LONG

Macdonald Bye-Election Figures in House of Commons.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Moves a Vote of Censure In Reply to the Speech From the Throne and Taunts Mr. Borden With Preparing For an Imaginary War Crisis — Premier Scores on Every Point.

Ottawa, Nov. 26.—The debate upon the address, which began yesterday afternoon, may last for several days. It lost something of interest from the fact that the naval issue is being reserved for another debate, but it has already developed a great deal of partisan bitterness. The alleged misconduct of the Government in the Macdonald and Richelieu bye-elections furnished the basis for attack by the Liberals. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in opening the debate for the Opposition, offered an amendment to the address censuring Ministers of the crown, presumably Messrs. Rogers and Roche, for conniving at nefarious practices in these electoral contests. Hon. Frank Oliver, who followed Mr. Borden last evening, devoted almost his entire speech to the Macdonald bye-election. Mr. Borden had little time to reply before the recess for dinner and spoke almost too briefly.

The address was moved by Mr. Rainville, Conservative M.P. for Chambly-Verchere, who, like the ex-Premier, is eloquent in two languages. He spoke first in French and then in English. W. F. Nickle of Kingston seconded the address in a thoughtful speech, which touched upon the naval question and the highway bill slaughtered by the Senate at the last session. Rather out of the ordinary, but of interest, was his earnest advice to the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Agriculture to get together and evolve a plan by which the penitentiaries of the country could be transformed into farms of demonstration.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier explained that he would not discuss the naval policy of the Government until it was disclosed to Parliament. What that policy was no man knew. "The Lord knows," he continued, amid Liberal applause and laughter, "because He knows the minds of the Ministers. The Ministers do not know their own minds."

He would say, however, that the statement put in the mouth of the Governor-General to the effect that England needed assistance, was in direct opposition to statements made by Mr. Asquith and Mr. Churchill, who had declared over and over again that England feared no enemy. He would deal with the Government's proposals when they came before Parliament, with the evidence to support them.

Sir Wilfrid then criticized the action of the Government in having the railway companies procure special rates from the U. S. Commerce Commission for the transportation of western grain.

Reference was then made to the cut in the cement duty last summer, and complaint was made because the speech from the throne did not promise a redistribution bill. "What sinister design," enquired Sir Wilfrid, "is in the mind of the Government?"

The main portion of the ex-Premier's speech, however, dealt with the Macdonald bye-election. "The Government," he declared, "had connived at practices in Macdonald and Richelieu which would put to shame the most infamous practices of Tammany Hall."

Sir Wilfrid closed by offering an amendment to the address and reply to the speech from the throne, expressing regret that in the Macdonald and Richelieu bye-elections "practices calculated to terrorize and corrupt the electors were connived at by Ministers of the crown, for which they deserved the censure of the House."

Mr. Borden spoke briefly in reply. Referring to Sir Wilfrid's statement that England feared no enemy, the Prime Minister said he would prefer to say that the Empire feared no enemy, and we should all see to it that the Empire was well prepared for all dangers that might ever assail it.

He asked Sir Wilfrid whether he objected to the arrangement made for the speedy transportation of grain, and the latter said that he did not.

"Then we will not waste time upon it," Mr. Borden retorted.

Mr. Borden then intimated that the highway bill would be again passed by the House and advised the Opposition leader to warn the Senate against laying unholy hands upon it.

As to redistribution, Mr. Borden said that it could not become effective before the next general election, and that if redistribution was made by April, 1914, the present Government would have acted as promptly as did the Laurier Government after the census of 1901.

The charges made in his speech by Sir Wilfrid and in the amendment offered by him were characterized by Mr. Borden as baseless, supported only by newspaper gossip and unworthy a man who had been Prime Minister of Canada.

Mr. Borden spoke glowingly of Canada's prosperity. No one in this country regretted the defeat of reciprocity. He said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was embarrassed by this issue which he had not the courage to abandon.

Hon. Frank Oliver, in the course of his speech presented affidavits showing that wrongful arrests of Liberal workers had been made just before the Macdonald bye-election. He denounced the Roblin Government for diverting the funds of the province to the upkeep of a "standing army of political thugs."

Finance Minister White will resume the debate today.

MANY HURT IN FIRE.

Brooklyn Explosion Results In Huge Loss of Property.

New York, Nov. 26.—Brooklyn's east river waterfront was the scene late yesterday of the most serious explosion and fire which that section has known for years. Fifteen men were removed to hospitals suffering from burns and injuries, from which a number may die, and several persons on the scene at the time were missing last night, but late reports discredited earlier beliefs, that several lives were lost. The area of three blocks was swept and a loss of nearly $1,000,000 caused, despite the fact that the Brooklyn firemen were aided by New York fireboats and apparatus rushed across the bridges from Manhattan.

The fire started with a series of explosions of chemicals on the ground floor of the five-story building of the Union Sulphur Co., in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn. Of seventy men at work in the building, a dozen on the main floor were hurled in every direction, suffering terrible burns, bruises and broken bones. A series of four other explosions followed in quick order, and the building was soon enveloped in the weird blue flames of burning sulphur. Workers who had escaped from other floors, some by jumping, sought to fight their way through the billows of sulphur fumes to the rescue of their comrades, and were themselves overcome, but although late last night, half a dozen employes had not been accounted for, it was regarded as doubtful that any had been left in the bulding.

U. S. Warships May Have To Go.

Washington, Nov. 26.—All United States naval vessels may be withdrawn from the great lakes as a result of a refusal of the shipbuilding companies on the lakes to enter into repair contracts with the Navy Department on account of their hostility to the eight-hour law. The lake plants are operated on a ten-hour basis, and although Attorney-General Wickersham ruled that a company working on a Government contract could use its men on other work after employing them eight hours on the Government job, none of the companies wants a contract from the Department. The test case came when the Department vainly endeavored to have repairs made on the converted yacht Dorothea.

The situation is not considered particularly serious, because the U. S. keeps vessels on the lake only for use in training naval militia. Under existing treaties the Government has no police boats along the Canadian border, and if the training craft cannot be repaired on the lakes they will be withdrawn and sent to other waters.

"NA-DRU-CO DYSPEPSIA TABLETS Proved of Great Value to Me"

There is only one explanation for the numbers of enthusiastic letters that we receive praising Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, and that is that these tablets certainly do cure any kind of stomach trouble.

Here is a typical letter from Miss Eliza Armsworthy, Canso, N.S.:

"It is with pleasure I write to inform you that your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets have proved of great value to me. I tried remedy after remedy but without any lasting good. Having heard of your tablets curing such cases as mine I decided to give them a fair trial. They proved satisfactory in my case."

The remarkable success of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets is such a success as can only come to an honest remedy, compounded according to an exceptionally good formula, from pure ingredients, by expert chemists. If you are troubled with your stomach just ask your Druggist about Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, and sold throughout the Dominion at 50c. a box. 142

Judge Declines to Sit on Case.

Kingston, Nov. 26.—Because he is a former shareholder of the Saskatchewan Land & Homestead Co., Ltd., Hon. Justice Britton, yesterday afternoon refused to sit on a case in which the company was involved, at non-jury assizes, as plaintiffs against John T. Moore.

The defendant has asked to have the case tried in Toronto and the plaintiffs want it heard in Napanee, but this has not yet been decided upon.

Local Option Fight In Galt.

Galt, Nov. 26.—In Galt the local optionists have entered on a house to house canvass with the object of enlisting votes and influences to sustain the act, which the antis are making a systematic and vigorous effort to have repealed. Galt is said to be looked on as a test case of local option strength, and if the act can be repealed here, the antis will consider fighting changes good elsewhere.

Gibson's Fate In Jury's Hands.

Goshen, N.Y., Nov. 26.—The fate of Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer, charged with the murder of his client, Mrs. Rosa Menschik Szabo, last July, was delivered into the jury's hands at 7.30 o'clock last night by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins.

Cochrane Leaves Treasury Board.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—It was announced after the Cabinet session yesterday that William Nickle, M.P. for Kingston, would move the reply to the speech from the throne. The seconder will be J. H. Rainville of Chambly Vercherres. Mr. Rainville is one of the most finished speakers among the French Conservative members.

Hon. Frank Cochrane, because of the pressing duties of his Department, has resigned from the Treasury Board. He will be succeeded by Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Customs.

License Reduction In Guelph.

Guelph, Nov. 25.—It is understood that the citizens' league are seriously considering the bringing out of a number of candidates for municipal honors this year. The object, it is hinted, is to secure a council that will reduce the number of hotel licenses in the city.

Gibson Gets Respite.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—Charlie Gibson, convicted murderer of Joseph Rosenthal, was granted a slight respite by Chief Justice Sir William Mulock yesterday, when he allowed defence counsel Aubrey Bond's motion for a reserved case, as to the advisability of the evidence of Eli Dunkleman. Should the court of appeal decide that the evidence should not have been admitted, another jury will be empanelled and Gibson given a new trial. On the other hand, should they conclude that Chief Justice Mulock was right in admitting such evidence, the chief justice will have no other course but to pass the death sentence.

Prince Victor to Rule Albania?

Paris, Nov. 26.—Reports are current in Bonapartist circles that Prince Victor Napoleon, cousin of King Victor Emmanuel, will be named as sovereign of the future State of Albania. It is said that with the support of Austria, Italy has secured the prince's candidacy, and that King Ferdinand of Bulgaria approves it. These reports, however, lack confirmation.

Empire Without Geography

Its Boundaries Unknown, Said Lt.-Col. Ponton in Addressing the St. Catharines Canadian Club Thursday Night.

Few addresses delivered before the Canadian Club have been more cordially received than that given last night before a large gathering by Lieut.-Col. Ponton of Belleville, who spoke on "Canada and the Empire."

In introducing the guest of the evening President Muir referred briefly to the annual banquet of the Canadian Club in New York, which he attended as representative of the St. Catharines organization, and to the warm welcome extended by the New Yorkers. He also remarked upon the excellent speech Col. Ponton had given before the Chambers of Commerce Congress in London, England, early last summer.

Delving into his subject, Col. Ponton made the significant observation that he did not favor Canada giving one dollar toward Imperial defence because of the German menace, because of any emergency, or because of the trouble arising out of the Balkan war, but what Canada gave should be given because of its own interests, because of a sentiment, deep, strong and abiding, which should animate our lives, because the prosperity of Canada depends upon the continued dominance of the British Empire among nations.

Loyalty and patriotism, observed the speaker, were the foundations of national strength and influence, not a vainglorious kind of loyalty, which waved the flag for appearance only, but a loyalty which found its expression in social, moral, educational and commercial development.

There should be no east and no west, no sectionalism and no racial strife. Canada should be the arch of Empire and as Earl Grey and Lord Milner have said, this Dominion may become the centre of Empire and the duty of Canadians is to realize the responsibilities which may fall to them.

Owing to lack of space in to-day's edition, The Journal regrets that it cannot publish a full report of the address, because it contained many facts and apt quotations. We summarize them:

"The British Empire has no geography. We do not know its boundaries."

"We of the British Empire have had a great past and a splendid present. Who shall say that we are not to have a great future?"

"True loyalty is backed by strenuous thought."

"The whole of nationhood, like the whole Church, is built upon social intercourse. Canadian Clubs are promoting such intercourse. They are teaching us to know ourselves and our problems."

"The fleet of England is her all. It must ever be dominant."

"You people of Lincoln must keep the British language, British character, British patriotism ever before you and be worthy of the memories of the brave pioneers and soldiers who wrote their names in history throughout this peninsula."

"One hundred years ago only twenty million people were speaking the English language. Today there are one hundred and eighty million."

These and other crisp, thoughtful observations were woven in a wealth of word and picture, forming a speech full of sentiment without being too demonstrative.

During the evening Col. Ponton referred to the old Lincoln Regiment and to the present 19th Regiment. He likewise showed to the audience several valuable relics such as an inkwell made out of Russian shot, a book containing decrees condemning British loyalists in the United States to death in earlier days, a copy of The Friend, a newspaper published in South Africa during the Boer War, the New York Morning Post of primitive style, and other records and papers. They proved most interesting to Club members.

A motion of thanks was moved by Mr. Geo. Burch and seconded by Ven. Archdeacon Perry, and warmly carried, for the kindness of the speaker in coming so far to address the Club, and in offering so inspiring an address.

Col. Ponton returned to Belleville this morning.—St. Catharines Journal, Nov. 22.

Interesting Overseas Target Match

A competition was held a few weeks ago between teams representing the 23rd Battalion, London Regiment, England, and a team representing Belleville. The conditions were: 8 men a side, at special targets sent from England, .22 calibre rifle, 25 yards range, any position.

Considering that this is the first shoot of the kind the Belleville team has taken part in, they are to be congratulated on their score, as the team they were shooting against are undoubtedly the best team in London, Eng. The cards for another competition have arrived, which will take place between now and the New Year. As it is desirous of getting the best team together posible, any person who is interested in rifle shooting, please forward his name to Sergeant Harman, Box 215, City. Great Benefits Of Co-Operation Stirling, Ont., Nov. 25.

Dear Editor:

Hon. W. J. Hanna, at a farmers' mass meeting in Convocation Hall, Nov. 13, says: "Lambton county produced this year about 50,000 barrels of apples; 35,000 barrels have found their way to the markets or are on the way now, and 15,000 barrels, or thereabouts, have gone to waste. This is a very interesting story of the value of co-operation among the fruit-growers themselves. You know what happened the market this year.

"But let me tell you the prices received by those interested in apples in Lambton. One small association that sold 11,000 barrels did not sell a solitary barrel for less than $3.00. It was because of the reputation that that particular association had for quality, to start with, and because that association knew where they could go to sell. The association produced the quality of goods, were in touch with those who wanted that quality of goods, went out and sold their apples, and no doubt have today the money in the bank.

"Four associations sold their apples for about $2.25 per barrel, but the apple-growers of the county who were not in associations either failed to market or failed to get their apples in shape for marketing in many instances, but those who were outside the associations sold many and many a barrel for fifty cents and one dollar. Of the 15,000 barrels gone to waste every barrel, practically without exception, was grown by people who were not in an association. I give these simple facts and figures. Co-operation has meant a great deal to our county in the last three or four years."

WEDDING BELLS.

SAYERS—TAYLOR

James Everett Sayers and Eva Maude Taylor of this city became man and wife yesterday November 25th. Ceremony was performed at the Tabernacle Parsonage by the Rev. W. G. Clarke. The young couple were attended by Mr. John A. Stark and Miss Carrie Symons. The many friends of the bride and groom wish them every prosperity.

Was Released On $1,000 Bonds

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Lucile Cameron, whose association with Jack Johnson led to the negro pugilist's arrest for alleged violation of the Mann white slave act, was released from custody today in bonds of $1,000.

The young woman had been held as a witness in the Johnson case for several weeks, most of the time in the Winnebago county jail in Rockford, Ill., where her mother was allowed to go with her. The bond was signed by the young woman and her mother, and was accepted by United States District Judge Carpenter, who instructed the young woman to be present as a witness when the Johnson case comes up for trial.

In the early stages of the case Lucille Cameron was looked on as a highly important witness against Johnson, but with the presentation of other evidence the government decided that it would not be necessary to keep her in custody longer.

Suicide of Young Woman in Hotel

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 25.—A refined looking smart-gowned young woman, believed to be Lucy M. Cain, 27 years of age, of 149 East 22nd Street New York City, was found dead in bed late Friday, in a room at the St. James Hotel. Indications point to suicide, but the circumstances surrounding the case are so strange that the police have joined with the District Attorney's office and the Coroner's office in a rigid investigation and search for a young man who accompaned Miss Cain to the hotel on Thursday night, and who is now missing.

Just before midnight on Thursday the couple appeared at the hotel and registered as "James Sanders and wife, New York City." They were given a room on an upper floor.

In the early hours of the morning the woman called the office several times and asked for writing paper. The porters who answered the calls did not see any man in the room.

Maids at work in the hall at four o'clock in the afternoon noticed a strong odor of gas. They traced it to the woman's room, and notified the office. Porters forced the door and found the young woman stretched upon the bed, lifeless. Two gas jets were found turned on, and the key hole and cracks in the door were stuffed with cotton.

A sheet of writing paper covered the dead woman's face. Upon it was written, in pencil, a man's name. Other papers found strewn in the room evidently were meant as messages to the same man, and they mentioned a "wrecked life," etc. When the police arrived, no trace could be found of the man who had registered with the young woman as "Sanders."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Land Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within 9 miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him, by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER

By C. J. CUTCLIFFE HYNE

Carter tackled the situation with ready wit. "Now, look here. I'm not going to have you presuming on being my sweetheart. I know you'd like to have the credit of routing the enemy, but you are not going to have it. I want all the kudos I can get in that line for business purposes myself. I'm going to point out in my report to Mr. K. that it was my brilliant genius alone that rootled out that drum of benzoline, and put it to a new and unpleasant use, and that any idea of refusing me the ten-pound a year rise in screw that I ask as a reward would be bang against all O'Neill and Craven's most cherished traditions of fairness. So just you remember Miss Slade, and don't go off and brag about doing one single thing that wasn't ordered by your superior officer in this Service (as old Swizzle-Stick Smith would say.) and that's me."

"You're a dear, good boy."

'I am,' said Carter cheerfully. 'I am rather surprised people don't see it oftener. You're the first person in Africa who's made the discovery so far. Now I can't have you eating the bread of idleness out here any longer. Indoors you go and tidy up.' He took her by the arm and led her gently to the living room. 'Hasn't that breeze made hay of the place? Sorry the houseboys have left this desirable situation without warning and I can't lend you White-Man's-Trouble just now. So I want you to wade in, my dear, and show me what an extremely domesticated person the future Mrs. G. Carter can be when she tries. "We wish to make a point," said Mr. K. in one of his typewritten letters, "of having all our factories neat and comfortable."'

Laura shivered. "If I were to marry you, I wonder what K. would say."

"Say nothing. We should absolutely draw the line at interference there, eh? But in the meanwhile there is no harm in following out the gentleman's advice, which is invariably sound, on the other points."

'When you see Mr. K. I'm very much afraid you'll change your mind about me."

Carter drew the girl to him and kissed her on the lips. "Don't you be jealous of K., sweetheart. Mine's only a business admiration in that direction."

"At present," she persisted. "Wait till you meet."

"When we meet, I shall say, 'Sir this very lovely and desirable person here is my wife,' and then we shall go on to commercial topics. There's nothing romatic about the boss. If you'd studied the Epistles of K. to the Coasters as closely as I have, you'd know that off by heart."

Laura still shook her head. "I love you," she said, "more than any one else in life, and I can think of no greater happiness than to be your wife. But I would never marry you if I thought you could repent of it afterwards. You can't deny that you are wrapped up in K. You must see K. before you marry me, George."

"If K. comes along before the parson, well and good, you shall have your own way of it. But if a missionary of the right complexion (if there is such a thing down here) casts up at this factory, there'll be a wedding cake put on the festive board, Miss Slade, and you'll be the bride that will cut it. Don't you try and wriggle out of your solemn promises with me. Hull, what's that?"

"Thunder. Is the tornado coming again?"

"No listen. It isn't thunder. It's people thumping monkeyskin drums. I've made dozens of those tuneful instruments for the curiosity dealers at home, so I know the note. Well you get on with your dusting, there's a nice girl, and I'll go out and have a cigarette."

"You are going—to——"

'What, clean up the mess outside? No, we'll leave that for the present. Now don't be scared, there's a sweetheart. But, to tell the truth, those drums interest me. The natives signal through the bush with them, you know, in a sort of dot-dash-dot style, and so far their local Morse alphabet has been a bit beyond me. Perhaps White-Man's-Trouble may be able to decipher it. Now, don't you try and shirk that dusting one moment longer."

He went out onto the verandah, shutting the door behind him, and question the Krooboy sharply about the drummings. Did he understand them?

"Savvy plenty," said White-Man's Trouble gloomily. "Dem Okky-man's drums."

'Well, I didn't suppose it was a Chinaman's, you patent idiot. You fit for understand dem tune?"

"Savvy plenty. Dem tune say Okky-men fit for make custom."

"That means 'ceremony,' I suppose. Now, what sort of a ceremony will suit the occasion? Dirge of defeat by the ju-ju men, presumably, and then they will crucify some wretched slave so that his spirit can go into the Beyond and arrange to have the luck changed. I wish Mr. Smith were here, or Slade. No, I'm hanged if I do, though. I've worked this thing off my own bat so far, and I'll see it onto the finish. Dem Okky-men make crucify palaver?" he asked, and translated the hard word by standing up himself spread-eagled against the factory wall.

White-Man's-Trouble nodded a dismal assent. "Then, by an' by they grow plenty-too-much brave, an' they come back one-time an' fight some more."

"Then you bet your woolly whiskers it wont do for us to sit quietly taking the air here. Ju-ju's the correct card to play in this country anyway."

The Krooboy shivered. "Oh, Carter, I no fit for touch ju-ju."

"Well, I am. With thought and care, I believe I should develop into a good practioner. Besides, the subject fascinates me. No white men seem to know anything very definite about it, above the fact that it is beyond their comprehension, and it would be rather fine, if the unlikely happened, and one chanced to survive, to be known as the one authority on West African magic."

"Oh, Carter, if you meddle with dem ju-ju palaver you lib for die plenty soon. If you walk in bush, tree fall on you; if you ride in canoe, arrow jump on you; if yo' chop, dem chop be fill with powdered glass and presently you lib for die tear-tear-belly. Oh, Carter, you lib for Coast now one year; I lib for Coast all my life; I savvy plenty; you alle same damfool."

"My dear Trouble, I've admitted already that I know meddling with ju-ju isn't altogether an insurance proposition. Much obliged to you for the fresh warning all the same. But I'm afraid your constitutional nervousness rather clouds that massive brain of yours at times, or you would see that Smooth River factory and its three occupants are in the devil of a fix just now. You say the Okky-men when they've rubbed up their courage wil presently return; and I don't dispute your reading of the omens. If they do come, we cannot shot them off, and that's a certain thing. As I'm sure Mr. Smith woud say, it's a case of Aut ju-ju aut nullus, and to follow his rather objectionable knack of translating for a man who happened to have been at a different school from his own, that means that we've either got to play the ju-ju card or be scupered. White-Man's-Trouble, you are hereby made conjurer's confederate."

'I no fit.'

"Am I to hurt your feelings with this piece of packing case lid?"

"Oh, Carter, you look see. There's a nail in him there."

"I know there's a nail in it. The occasion demands a nail, and I picked the weapon for that reason. Now, then, are you going to obey orders, or will you take a first-class licking?"

'Oh, Carter, I fit for do what you say."

"Good. You're an excellent boy when you are handled the right way. Now go to the feteesh and bring the biggest coil of that inch lead piping you can stagger under."

Carter himself went to Slade's room and brought from there one of those crude carved wooden figures which the natives make and the traders pick up as curiosities. At home they are sold for stiff prices as the gods of the heathen; but the negroes that make them are not idolaters, and what they exactly are for the present writer knoweth not, save only that they are not articles of worship. Locally they come under that all-embracing term ju-ju, which includes so much and explains so little.

Carter found a brace and bit—an inch twist bit, which for a wonder was in a calabash of yellow palm oil, and so not rusty—and he worked on these carved men till the sweat ran from him. Laura came out and told him that he was inviting a fever which was obvious, since by then it was high noon, and violent exertion for a white man with the thermometer above par always has to be paid for on the Coast. But he drove her back again and again into the house and out of the heat with a volley of chaff, and went gaspingly on with his tremendous work.

The mouths of the figures were wide, but with knife and drill he splayed them wider, but was careful always not to distort them beyond the canons of local art; and in a couple of hours' time he was ready for WhiteMan's-Trouble and the heavy coils of lead piping.

"Regard," he said, "Oh thou assistant to the great white ju-ju man. We will place one of these graven images opposite the entrance of each road which comes from the bush into this factory clearing. We'll hoist it up onto a green gin box, so, and give it a bit more height and dignity. And we'll add a necklace of these green cigarettes tins, which have already advertised themeselves into an ugly notoriety. Then, into this hole you see in the back of each image, we will fit an end of lead piping, and as the holes are tapered, the unions will make themeselves good. Then, O helper of dark schemes, we will pay out the coil, as far as possible in swamp where it will sink out of sight, and bring all ends into the house here. Any piping that shows, you must throw earth over. Savvy? And the inside ends we'll splay with hardwood cone that I've made, till a man can get his mouth well into them and shout down the tube comfortably. I'm sure you catch the idea?"

Fire At An Asylum

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Hundreds of insane and feeble-minded persons of all ages of both sexes in a group of institutions at Amityville, Long Island, for the mentally afflicted, were thrown into great excitement by fire which raged there yesterday. One male inmate was burned to death, two frame buildings of the group were destroyed, and while the fire threatened other buildings, several hundred inmates were led out in confusion.

Fire believed to have been started from a defective light wire in the Brunswick Home for the Idiotic and Feeble-minded, threatened sixty patients, fifteen of whom were bedridden. Attendants managed to get all the patients out before the fire had caught them but Fritz Monrady, an insane patient about 30 years old, after he had been rescued eluded the guards and ran back into the building to save a pet canary. The flames were then at their height and he was not seen again.

Twenty-Four Victims

ALAIS, France, Nov. 25.—Twenty-four men lost their lives yesterday when fire damp exploded in a coal mine. The explosion occurred bebetween shifts. Only 38 men were in the mine at the time. Of these 14 were warned by the sudden extinction of their lamps, and managed to escape. A rescue party found 21 bodies. The other three are apparently in a remote part of the mine.

Alais is a city of 20,000 souls, in the mining department of Card, about 25 miles from Mines.

T. P. J. POWER FETED BY LOCAL ADMIRERS

Friends of The Genial "Tom" Take Him Captive, Feed Him, And Load Him Down With Sterling Silver—Prominent Citizens Participate—The Presentation

As it was generally known that Mr. T. P. J. Power, who, until recently the popular proprietor of the New Queen's Hotel, had relinquished his interests in this regard, and was about to depart from our midst, a quartette of gentlemen comprising Messrs. Chas. Wilmot, William Carnew, John B. Harker and Arthur Harman, came to a definite decision of the utter impossibility to permit of the utter impossibility of permitting "T. P. J." to decamp without showing some mark of the brotherly friendship and popularity which has so completely encircled him. In view of this fact a complimentary banquet was tendered to Mr. Power at the New Queen's Hotel last evening, and while it was a hurried affair from the standpoint of time involved for preparation, it was easily the crowning event of anything of its kind which will occur in Belleville for some time to come.

At 9.30 o'clock about seventy surrounded the festive board, to which all displayed a well developed appetite. The tempting menu arranged by Host D. C. Harrison, who recently succeeded Mr. Power as proprietor of the hotel, proved conclusively that he was an artist of the first water in the arrangement of a line of edibles for those in attendance. The repast was to the "Queen's" taste and fit for a King.

After the inner man had been sufficiently appeased, all settled down to enjoy the evening's entertainment. Mr. Wilmot, Chairman of the evening and also of the committee on arrangement, started the ball to rolling with a few well seasoned remarks, amongst which was the gratifying statement that of all those who were solicited in connection with the affair, not one refused to contribute to the occasion, which, in the opinion of all present, elected "Tom" the "premier" of Belleville's most popular men. Mr. Wilmot felt that the speech in connection with the presentation be given by one who had known the guest of the evening for a long period of time.

To Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., fell the honor of presenting to Mr. and Mrs. Power beautiful gifts of sterling deposit over limoges on behalf of the subscribers. Mr. Johnson said these charming and serviceable articles would remind their departing guests of the old home, the old city and the old friends, and they would also be substantial evidence to the new friends that Mr. and Mrs. Power would assuredly make of the esteem in which they were held in the land of their birth. Many times in the past citizens of Belleville had met in this hotel and in others to speed a parting guest, and on no previous occasion had a more representative or more enthusiastic body of men assembled in this locality with that purpose.

Tonight they must give Mr. Power his boyhood name, "Tom," and in speaking of Tom's good qualities his friends cannot do otherwise than include his brother, Mr. Wm. Power, whom we know best as "Billy." These brothers emerged from the saw-dust at Cannifton at the time when saw mills lined the banks of the River Moira and the Bay of Quinte, when boys rolled off the pine logs into deep water and were obliged to learn to swim in order to save their lives. Finally the brothers settled at the mouth of the river, and coming in touch with Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario craft and sailormen began to yearn for a wider horizon and a world wide knowledge of men and things. Tom has been all round the world three times and half round innumerable times with the "Belleville Kilties Band." He is likely the original man of whom it is said, "he has appeared and performed before all the crowned heads of Europe." By royal command he and his great organization appeared before the late King Edward, of blessed memory, and I have heard it said that the King's personal friendship for Tom was evinced more than once by the exchange of cigarettes, and, mind you, during all his wanderings over the continents of the world, Tom was ever advertising Belleville. Now he is going off again, and again it is the "Kilties Band of Belleville" he will control and direct. As I look at Tom to-night, possessing a physical finish that creates admiration and a charm of manner that might well be envied by the fair sex, and a honorable record as a business man unsurpassed and unsurpassable, I say without flattery that he has endeared himself to all of us and to thousands more, and I will go farther, and say that the one word that is adequate to express the feeling of the men around this table for him is that we love him as a brother.

You often hear it said that when people visit New York they go out to see the Elephant; well, Billy Power possesses and exhibits the great and original herd. They are celebrated only for their wonderful tricks and high intelligence, conveyed to them in early youth through contact with their owner; they are not like the other elephant which is of unsavory reputation.

A word now about the father of the Power boys; he was a fine old Irish gentlemen, one of the olden time; he was a captain in the Canadian Militia, known everywhere and always as Captain Wm. Power, and the most noted horseman in the province for a quarter of a century. These boys come from as fine stock as Canada possesses. There are two other old

Kaiser Ready to Back Austria

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Daily Mail's Berlin correspondent sends this despatch:

"Archduke Francis Ferdinand left Potsdam for Vienna at 9:30 o'clock last night after a thirty-six-hour visit to the Kaiser.

"Their conferences, in which the chiefs of the German Army and Navy participated, sealed beyond all doubt Germany's readiness to support Austria in the event of a war with Russia and Servia.

"The semi-official Cologne Gazette addresses a veiled warning to Russia 'to speak the word' which can alone save the situation.

"The Vossische Zeitung adopts the same admonitory tone.

"The Pan-German press, going further, directly threaten Russia with another glimpse of the Kaiser in 'shining armor' with which he coerced her into surrender on the Bosnian annexation in 1909.

"Germany's position is neither the blandly pacific one depicted by the semi-official press for the benefit of the nervous financial world nor the bellicose one set forth by the 'armorplate' newspapers.

"What the Kaiser gave the Archduke to understand was practically this: "That Germany does not want war, and does not think any situation has so far arisen which justifies it, but that she is unflinchingly true to her Austrian ally and will support her unreservedly the moment she is attacked by two powers, in this case, Russia and Servia.' "

Tepees In a Banquet Room

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 26.—Twenty Indian chiefs from the Blackfoot Reservation at Glacier National Park, including Medicine Owl, the medicine man held responsible by the Federal Government for the Indian outbreaks in the early '80's, were brought to Chicago Sunday night to officiate at the initation of twelve prominent Chicagoans into the Order of Spanish Athletes headed by Louis W. Hill of St. Paul. The initiation took place in the banquet room of the Hotel Sherman, which was transformed into a reproduction of the Gunsight Pass on the Continental Divide. Indian tepees were erected about a real campfire, and the aspirants, mounted on bronchos, were brought to the assembly place by freight elevators. As each member was accepted he was greeted by a fusillade from the six-shooters of a band of cow punchers.

Cholera Going North

LONDON Nov. 26.—According to the special correspondent of the News-Leader, the cholera is pressing north from Constantinople. Already there are several hundred cases at Mustapha Pasha, and the scourge has entered Bulgaria. The foreign doctors have yet to consider what advice could be offered the government respecting precautions against the spread of the disease.

The cholera, the correspondent adds, is raging at Adrianople, and is spreading among the Servians.

INTERESTING DEBATE ON "BANISH THE BAR VS. LOCAL OPTION" AT BAPTIST CHURCH

A large audience gathered at the Baptist Church to listen to the debate on "Banish the Bar vs. Local Option,' between two students from Albert College, and two from the High School, given under the auspices of the "Y" Association of this city last evening. Rev. H. S. Osborne of Bridge street church presided in an able manner, carrying through the following programme, which proved very interesting:

Hymn—"Stand Up for Jesus."
Scripture—Rev. Mr. Osborne.
Prayer—Rev. C. G. Smith.
Quartette—Albert College.
Debate—Affirmatives: Mr. Weese and Mr. Dixon of Albert College; Negatives: Harold Ingram and George Howard of the High School.

In the debate some very original ideas were brought out on both sides. Messrs. Weese and Dixon for the affirmative holding that the liquor traffic should come under an act of the Dominion Government, covering the entire country, banishing the evil in all its phases from our land, thus doing away with the treating system and attractions which lead so many astray and proves so expensive to the country at large.

Messrs. Ingram and Howard for the negative upheld the theory that Government laws took away the freedom of individual action, thus depriving local communities of a voice as to whether the traffic should be harbored or prohibited for a season—that it brooded club drinking, kitchen barrooms and other hidden places of resort.

The Boys did remarkably well, and the decision by the judges, Messrs. Denyes, Mott, and Simpkins was awaited with interest, who finally declared a verdict in favor of the affirmative.

Then followed a solo and quartette; a reading by Mr. Andrews of Albert College, who was called forth a second time; remarks by Mrs. Ray, president of the "Y": and a silver collection. The occasion concluded with light refreshments and social intercourse. Upon Miss Sheffield's motion, a vote of thanks was extended to the participants, and all who contributed to the entertainment, which was enjoyed by all present.

Eighteenth Annual Convention

Belleville District Epworth League To Be Held in The Tabernacle Church Tomorrow and Friday of This Week

Two big conventions will be held in Belleville this week—the annual convention of the twenty five Methodist Epworth Leagues and Young People's Societies of the Belleville District on Thursday afternoon and evening, Nov. 28, and the annual convention of the Methodist Sunday Schools of the Belleville District on Friday afternoon and evening, Nov. 29.

Both these conventions will be held in the Tabernacle Church. The League and Sunday Schools have united this year in what is practically a two day joint convention for the sake of securing better speakers. Rev. D. M. Perley, B.A., B.D. of China, will speak at both conventions. He was right in the midst of the recent war in China and had a most exciting time, more so than many of the other missionaries. Rev. F. L. Farewell, B.A., will also have a large share in both conventions. He is the traveling secretary of the Methodist General Conference, having the oversight of the Epworth Leagues and Sunday Schools of the two Provinces of Ontario and Quebec. Many other strong speakers have also been secured for both days, and it is expected that these two conventions will be the very best that these two district organizations have ever held.

THREE YOUTHS JAILED

Toronto Boys Are Charged With Several Crimes

Police Believe That In the Arrest of James T. Latimer, Wm. Reilly and Norman Ryan, They Have Run to Earth Three Young Bandits Who Have Committed Many Outrages—Loaded Revolvers Under Pillows.

Toronto, Nov. 27.—By the arrests of three youths yesterday morning the city detectives believe they have solved the mystery of several daring robberies and also have in custody the young men who fired at John E. Bell, a farmer from Cooksville, about two miles west of Islington early Saturday morning.

Just after they had broken into W. J. B. Hayes' cigar store at 1,298 West Queen street about 4.30 yesterday morning Norman Ryan, aged 18; Windmere street; James T. Latimer, aged 17, Dovercourt road, and Wm. Reilly, alias Robert McCue, aged 16, Crawford street, were disturbed by Constable Courtenay. The three ran along Queen street, and the officer pursued them. At length he caught Ryan and took him to No. 6 Police station.

Detectives Guthrie, Murray and Jarvis searched until 8 o'clock for the other two youths. At 9 o'clock they visited a house kept by a woman at 539 West King street. After forcing an entrance the officers discovered Reilly and Latimer. Both boys had loaded revolvers under their pillows, and Ryan, when searched, also had a gun in his possession.

The three boys are charged with the following crimes:

Burglary at W. J. B. Hayes' cigar store, 1,292 West Queen street, cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and match safes, taken.

Burglary at R. Ball's house at 263 Dovercourt road, overcoat and $5 taken.

Attempted burglary at Sneath's dry-goods' store at Garden and Sorauren avenue, several windows broken.

Theft of $125 from Moore's butcher store at Bloor and St. Clarens avenue.

Theft of three motor cycles.

Shooting of J. E. Bell, farmer, near Islington.

Stealing money from 544 Gladstone avenue.

With regard to the theft of the motor-cycles evidence has been secured showing that the youths were riding on two of the machines when they encountered the farmer. The motor-cycles were stolen from 452 Grace street, 562 Bathurst street, and 547 Crawford street. One of these machines was wrecked when it collided with Bell's wagon.

The boys all appeared in court yesterday.

Suffragist Defeated.

London, Nov. 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Bow bye-election, through the resignation of George Lansbury, resulted: Blair (Unionist), 4,042; Lansbury (Suffragist), 3,291.

Lansbury resigned because he wanted a straight fight on the question of woman's suffrage, but owing to the many other issues which were introduced, the election cannot in any way be regarded as a reliable criterion of the views of the constituency regarding votes for women. The Liberal party ran no candidate, recommending the Liberals to abstain from voting. Suffragettes worked hard for Lansbury throughout the campaign.

In the general election of December, 1910, George Lansbury, running as a Labor candidate, polled 4,315 votes to 3,452 for L. S. Amery (Unionist), a brother-in-law of Hamar Greenwood, M.P. It will be noted that in the bye-election Lansbury's vote fell off by 1,024, while the Unionists' vote increased by 590. The Bow seat is one of the Tower Hamlet seats in the east end of London.

Dr. Bunmueller Dead.

Constantinople, Nov. 27.—Dr. Bunmueller, a German correspondent and a former attache of the German Foreign Office, died yesterday of cholera at San Stefano. He is the first cholera victim among the Europeans. Two other German correspondents have been stricken.

The death of Ecumenical Patriarch of the Greek Orthodox Church has produced a deep impression on the Greek community and the public generally. Joachin III., Archbishop of Constantinople, had attained the age of 78 years. He had a noteworthy career and had held the office of patriarch for eleven years. His body will lie in state for three days and the funeral services will be conducted with great pomp.

Large Soo Steel Plant.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 26.—The steel plant of the Lake Superior Corporation is to be greatly extended at once at a cost of several millions.

Another blast furnace will be built, coking plant increased, and other activities necessary to steel-making proportionately enlarged.

J. F. Taylor, manager, said the corporation had made plans to greatly extend the steel plant so as to increase the output. To do this a new blast furnace would be built and corresponding increase in coking plant and other factory plants would have to be made.

Not To Relieve Britain.

London, Nov. 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Pall Mall Gazette, in its principal editorial yesterday, joins The Times in insisting that Dominion naval contributions must never be used to relieve the Home Government in any part of her responsibility.

"Nothing," says The Gazette, "has been more magnificent than the now fast-ripening fruits of Canadian patriots' long labor—but the fruit may yet be nipped by the chilly frost of our own indifference."

France Has Eye on China.

Paris, Nov. 27.—A special mission composed of French deputies and senators, is to be sent to China, under the auspices of the Parliamentary group devoted to the development of Franco-Chinese friendship, to attend the opening of the Chinese Parliament in January next. The members of the mission will also devote some time to a study of the political and economic conditions of China.

ANOTHER WORD ON THE PAVING OF FRONT STREET

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Dear Sir.—In consideration of the fact that it has not yet been finally settled as to the kind of material Front Street shall be paved with, the writer considers it not inopportune as yet, to lay before the tax-payers through your valuable journal, some additional information he has been able to procure since the last meeting of the Council. Notwithstanding the fact that Ald. Clark, when discussing this subject in Council, when this body last met, intimated in a very dogmatic manner that it was the height of absurdity to claim that a gravel foundation could be used effectively for brick pavement. I think the following information from the City Engineer of St. Thomas will convince all fair minded people that Ald. Clark's opinionated dogmatism is after all, worthy of very little confidence. To my mind the information given should be considered very valuable at the present time, not only to the Council and the real estate owners of Front Street but to every taxpayer in our city; and I think it will be so estimated by the great mass of those interested in the matter of street pavements.

St. Thomas, Ont., Nov. 21, 1912.

Ald. A. Robinson,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir.—Your communication has been referred to me and I beg to return it herewith. I trust the information contained therein will be satisfactory.

Yours truly,
M. H. Baker,
City Engineer.

Belleville, Ont., Nov. 20th, 1912.

The Mayor,
St. Thomas, Ont.

Dear Sir.—Our Council and Real Estate owners are at present considering the matter of street paving and as I am advocating vitrified brick for our principal business street and as I know your city has considerable quantity of this class of pavement, I would consider it a great favour if you would have the proper official answer the following questions in the spaces left open for that purpose and return same to me at your earliest convenience as this matter will be closed at our next meeting of the Council, and I wish to have the information at once on that account.

1.—How long has the Vitrified brick pavement on your principal business street been down?

Fifteen years.

2.—Has it given general satisfaction?

Yes.

3.—In what way did you prepare or construct the gravel base (or foundation) on which the bricks rest, on your principal street?

Eight inches of creek gravel were rolled with a 12 ton roller until thoroughly compacted. Gravel containing a small portion of loam will solidify better than clean gravel.

4.—Do you approve of making the foundation or substructure of gravel, or do you think it more advantageous and economical in the end to have a concrete foundation?

Concrete foundation is better in the end and gives better satisfaction.

5.—What was the cost per square yard of the brick pavement with gravel foundation?

About $1.75 per yard to $2.00.

6.—What did your brick pavement cost per square yard with concrete foundation?

From $2.00 to $2.25 per square yard.

7.—What does each of the above pavements cost per mile anually for repairs exclusive of necessary openings to get at underground pipes, sewers, etc.?

On concrete foundation—nil.

On gravel base—no repairs were made till two years ago on one main street—$600 was spent on repairs.

8.—How often do you have to sweep or clean the brick pavements?

Business street is swept with sweeper twice a week, side streets once a week. Patrol-men keep droppings, etc. picked up all the time.

9.—How long do you estimate that these pavements will last before paving to be taken up and renewed?

With heavy traffic, estimated life is 20 years. Under light or moderate traffic, life is indefinite.

10.—Do bricks stay in place on the gravel, or do some of them sink and the pavement become very uneven?

On gravel, slight depressions occur in places, but if well and carefully laid, it is very satisfactory.

11.—What do you think of sheet asphalt for such streets as your principal business street?

Brick is more durable, and gives better satisfaction, although it is a little more noisy.

12.—Please give me any information you can as to the cost and maintenance of sheet asphalt.

As we have no sheet asphalt, I am not prepared to give any information.

13.—How does it compare in this respect with vitrified brick pavements on streets with heavy traffic like your principal business street?

14.—What do you think of concrete pavements for heavy trafic?

I consider concrete pavements to be excellent if PROPERLY constructed. A strong mixture (1—1—3) should be used, cement sand and gravel accurately measured for each batch and materials of best quality. Pavement should be well reinforced and in expansion joints, the 'Baker' joint, or something similar should be used. Concrete pavements will be unsatisfactory unless laid in the BEST manners.

By giving me the desired information your kindness will be very much appreciated.

Respectfully yours, etc.,
A. Robinson,
Alderman.

Now, Mr. Editor, notwithstanding Ald. Clark's profound wisdom and his faculty of superlative discernment, I venture to say with considerable fear and trembling (on account of Alderman Clark) that the foregoing information is absolutely reliable in every particular and therefore we can conclude, (1) that vitrified brick can be successfully laid for pavement purposes on a gravel foundation; (2) that for 13 years at least, there should be no necessity for any expenditure of money for repairs, and even then only a very small amount, comparatively, and this would have the effect also of prolonging the life of the pavement for several additional years; (3) that vitrified brick laid on a concrete foundation, if properly constructed, would be indefinitely without repairs or renewal; (4) that the original cost of these pavements is quite moderate; (5) AS COMPARED WITH SHEET ASPHALT, BRICK IS MORE DURABLE AND GIVES BETTER SATISFACTION, although a litle more noisy; (6) the information referring to concrete pavement intimates that the construction of this kind is very precarious an therefore risky.

As to the noise caused by traveling over vitrified brick, I will just mention, on the quiet (for I do not want to unduly excite Ald Clark,) that the most approved formula for constructing vitrified brick pavements, makes it as noisless as sheet asphalt, or concrete. In this method a cushion of two inches of sand is placed between the concrete base and the brick surface. What! sand? Yes, Ald. Clark, SAND. Of course to Ald. Clark I presume this will be the rottenest rot that has ever been put up in reference to pavements but this is not the whole formula. But we all know that sand is a splendid article for many purposes, and it is the humble opinion of the writer that this year's Council would have shown better results in some respects if some of its members had been possessed of a greater amount of sand. In another communication I shall quote the formula referred to complete with some other matter I have at hand showing that vitrified brick pavements, when properly constructed in accordance with sand formula, will wear for 20 years without repairs of any consequence, and at the same time be as noiseless as concrete or asphalt.

Yours for the Taxpayers,
A. ROBINSON.

CONSIGNED TO THE TOMB

Yestreday the funeral of the late Mrs. Margaret Gibbs of Foxboro took place. At her late residence, services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. McGinnis, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Brown. The remains were interred in the Belleville cemetery. The bearers were Messrs P. Sills, J. Gowsell, F. Sine, H. Simmons, G. Wickett and W. Clarke.

ST. ANDREW'S FORTUNATE

Mrs. A. P. Allen has been appointed soloist and choir director of St. Andrews Church, a position that will be greeted with delight by many admirers of this lady's exquisite voice. As few if any in this section possess so rare a gift of voice and expression. The fact that she is to be heard again each Sabbath in our city will be a strong attraction to that church. The congregation of St. Andrews is extremely fortunate in securing this popular singer.

FOREIGNER HEAVILY FINED

Magistrate Masson was yesterday busy hearing evidence in the case of three Hungarians of Point Ann, who were charged with having for barter liquor without the necessary license. Point Ann is under local option and a few days ago Provincial Officer Morrison with others made a large seizure of liquor, with the result that three parties were summoned up. As a result of the investigation Vlada Cirquanoqua was found guilty of the charge and a fine of $100 and costs was imposed. In the case of the other two foreigners, judgment was reserved until Tuesday next. Mr. Anderson for the prosecution and Mr. Carnew for the accused.

DRUGGIST RECOMMENDS

VINOL FOR RUN-DOWN PEOPLE.

If any one person should know the value of medicines it is the druggist who dispenses them and from our experience we want to say if people in this vicinity only knew the value of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil) at this season of the year, we would not be able to suply the demand.

This is because Vinol is a combination of the two most world famed tonics, namely, the medicinal curative elements of cods' livers without the oil, and iron for the blood.

Vinol tones up the digestive organs, purifies and enriches the blood, promotes healthful sleep and a normal appetite.

Old people, delicate children, rundown, overworked and tired women, should try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. —Red Cross Drug Store—J. S. McKeown, Belleville, Ont.

Seats at Doyle's. 200 rush seats at 50c.

AN IRISH MASTERPIECE

An Irish play, presenting an Irish star, with all the characters Irish, and the entire action of the piece laid in the emerald isle, is always welcome to the average theatre-goer. Such a play will be seen at Griffin Opera House, Friday evening, Nov. 29. The production is under the management of The Broadway Theatre Co., and serves to introduce Bernard Daly, the clever popular Irish tenor, who has met with unbounded success in the last few years. The piece is entitled "Dion O'Dare" and tells a pretty love story of a young Irish peasant lad, who finally rises to the pinnacle of his ambition, and becomes the greatest sculpter in Ireland. There is a pretty love story running through the play and a vast amount of comedy predominates. Mr. Daly will sing a number of his popular songs also several new ones which he has composed especially for this production.

Belleville boys whom we not long ago entertained in this room who are keeping the name of Belleville prominently before the people of Chicago, and who are equally enthusiastic about the city and the Bay of Quinte as are the Power boys. I refer to Tom and Maurice Lynch, whom we bear in kindest remembrance while we are enjoying this splendid social time. No city on the continent has more loving and loyal sons and daughters than Belleville, and, in conclusion, I express the hope of all of us that such financial success will attend Mr. and Mrs. Power in the immediate future that at the end of a brief period we shall have the great pleasure of again assembling in this room to welcome back the pilgrims. Mr. Johnson proposed the health of Mr. and Mrs. Power with a response from the audience that clearly shook the roof.

Though visibly affected, Mr. Power in his usual interesting way, got around the situation admirably, and in well chosen words accepted the gift on behalf of Mrs. Power and himself. While unassuming in the matter of taking credit for being largely instrumental in advertising Belleville on his various tours with the famous "Kilties Band," including the world wide trip, he said, however, that when it came to boosting a town, Belleville would be on the tip of his tongue first, last and always.

Mr. Wm. Carnew followed the guest of the evening, and very eloquently portrayed many incidents from the days when they were boys together up to the present time, and in an extremely interesting way brought out many good things appreciated by all present. Following were many timely remarks given by Messrs. F. S. Rockwell, J. F. Wills, K.C., J. B. Harker, Alderman Bogle, D. J. Fairfield, T. Blackburn, Capt. McFee, W. J. Connolly, J. O. Herity. Vocal selections were admirably rendered by James Doyle, and Fred S. Rockwell. Of the pleasing numbers of the evening were two superb recitations, entitled "Dear Old Ace," and "Cremation of Sam McGee," given by Mr. Irving Beers in a very masterly way.

Mr. D. C. Harrison was called upon to make a few remarks and in his amiable manner assured all of his pleasure in knowing that his part of the programme had been well received.

Letters were received from Col. Ponton, E. Guss Porter, M.P., and Dr. Dolan, expressing regret of their inability to attend.

Many who were not in attendance last evening will regret the departure of Mr. Power from our city, but still it is with a feeling that it is but temporary and that some day he will wind up his affairs on earth right in this little spot on the Bay of Quinte where he first saw the light of day.

At the close of the banquet everybody joined in singing Auld Lang Syne; For He's a Jolly Good Fellow, and God Save the King, interspersed with cheers galore.

Those in attendance were as follows—

C. Wilmot, chairman; J. W. Johnson, M.P.P.; T. P. J. Power, guest; J. F. Wills, K.C., Wm. Carnew, Dr Yeomans, W. J. Connolly, W. Connolly, Chas. Hilton, J. D. Macfarlane, J. O. Herity, S. Carman, S. Committee of management—C. Wilmot, Chairman; William Carnew, John B. Harker and Arthur Harman.

Applications for the position of permanent Auditor for the City of Belleville, will be received by the undersigned addressed to Ald. W. H. McINTOSH BROS.

ARE YOU "AFRAID TO GO HOME IN THE DARK?"

Then why not have your front porch lighted so you can see what you're doing, and not have to creep into your own house like a burglar?

And speaking of burglars, a porch light makes one of the best protections against the visits of the man with the "jimmy." He does his best work in the dark, and an electric porch light (equipped with Holophane Reflector, of course) will discourage his efforts quicker than any burglar alarm.

If the porch light is the bane of the unwelcome guest, it is just as much a boon to the guest who is welcome. It is a promise of hospitality within and makes the visitor glad he has come And when the porch light is equipped with Holophane Glass, the light is subdued yet of sufficient intensity to make reading in the open air a pleasure.

Whether there is electricity in your house or not, an electric light with a Holophane Reflector should be on your front porch.

May we not send a representative to call on you?

CEMENT IMPORTS LARGELY INCREASED

During the months of June, July, August, September and October, the imports of cement into Canada totalled 988,393 barrels, valued at $1,328,937, a rate of $1.34 per bbl. This was the period during which provision was made by Order-in-Council for the importation of cement at fifty per cent. off the regular duty, increasing the supply available for building in the western provinces. During the same period last year the imports amounted to 449,584 bbls., valued at $560,550, a rate of $1.24 per bbl. It will thus be seen that during the five months of the present year the American manufacturers increased their price by ten cents a barrel.

The imports during the five months under the reduced duty were under a million barrels. The total cement consumption in Canada this year is established at eight million dollars. The reduction in the duty was of benefit to the prairie provinces as is shown by a statement of imports by provinces. The price of cement in Canada remained unchanged. Of the total imports the prairie provinces took:—

Province.	1911 (5 months) Bbls.	1912 (5 months) Bbls.
Manitoba	4,491	100,287
Saskatchewan	....	85,856
Alberta	309	183,616
Totals	4,800	379,879

In addition British Columbia increased her importations from 200,136 to 393,460. In the other provinces there was little change; in Ontario and the maritime provinces there was an actual decline in importations.

During October the importations were 194,734 barrels; the importations into the prairie provinces being 38,836 barrels, divided as follows:—

Manitoba	10,735
Saskatchewan	4,053
Alberta	23,548
British Columbia	100,400

BOOMING BELLEVILLE'S PRODUCTS ABROAD

During the summer of 1910 while Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, the present Vice-President of the Board of Trade, and Mr. J. Elliott, the President of the Belleville Board of Trade, were visiting in England, they called on Mr. N. B. Colcock, representative of the Ontario Government, at their office, 163 Strand, London.

After going carefully into the manner in which Mr. Colcock was endeavoring to advertise Ontario throughout the British Isles, they decided there was a good opening for making the natural advantages of Belleville known to the British people by means of an advertising scheme which they discussed with the Government agent and were assured of his hearty co-operation in any such work they might undertake.

On their return to Belleville, the matter of advertising was taken up with the Belleville Cheese Board, Belleville Board of Trade and Belleville City Council, with the result that a decision was arrived at to carry out the suggestions made by Messrs. Ketcheson and Elliott.

With this object in view, a grant of two hundred dollars was asked for and obtained from the City Council and a similar grant of one hundred dollars from the County Council of Hastings. Only a small portion of the said grant has yet been used, in fact that said amount does not exceed one hundred dollars.

Several views taken by our local photographer, Mr. W. S. Clarke, descriptive of the cheese interests are now on exhibition in London, England, also a complete set taken by the Topley Company, Ottawa, as well as a number of those taken by Mr. Swan, photographer for the Grand Trunk Railway.

In addition to the photographs above referred to, the Belleville Cheese Board sent over a sample for exhibition in the London office.

Mr. Colcock did everything in his power to aid in the scheme of advertising, and with the assistance rendered by our local representative, Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., a sum was expended by the Ontario Government, in having our Belleville views enlarged, framed and properly exhibited, and any resident from Belleville who happened to be in London would at once see what a very prominent position Belleville occupies in the Ontario Government office.

The display of Ontario goods is so great, that the limited space available in the Ontario Government office was not sufficient to properly display all the exhibits, and the Government agent, to remedy this, arranged for a window display in the office of Thos. Cook & Son, Tourist Agents, Ludgate Hill, London. In the windows of both Messrs. Cook & Son and the Ontario Government Office, numerous photographs of Belleville and district are on exhibition.

We are informed that the cheese sent from the Belleville Cheese Board has been very favorably commented upon by the thousands who daily see it as exhibited on the Strand. Not only has the cheese been on exhibition to the general public, but through the efforts of Mr. Colcock, samples of the said cheese were sent to numerous importers in England with the request that they pass an opinion on the merits of the cheese and its suitability for the English market.

Mr. Elliott is in receipts of numerous replies to these letters and everything indicates that a still larger market will be opened up through the efforts now being put forth by the Belleville Board of Trade, assisted by the Ontario Government office.

That the Board of Trade might have some idea as to how the photographs and cheese appeared in the various windows in London, Mr. Colcock has very kindly procured photographs of the same, of which copies are now in Belleville and may be seen at the office of the President of the Board of Trade in the Standard Bank, where they are daily admired and highly commented upon by the numerous citizens of Belleville and surrounding district.

Owing to the immense traffic on the Strand, the Government photographer was unable to get a negative during the day time and that procured was taken at midnight and required one hour's exposure.

The Board is assured of the assistance of the Ontario Government in any effort made to benefit the Bay of Quinte district, which spirit, undoubtedly, is appreciated by our people.

A CURIOUS MISTAKE

So many people ask "Why should Canada help Great Britain to maintain its Navy?" But the question betrays a point of view such as the Tailors of Tooley Street possessed when they mistook themselves for the people of England.

We loom too large in our own conceit. We forget that the task of Great Britain's navy is world wide, and that we have really added enormously to its responsibilities. What obsesses us in our importance, wealth and possibilities? We do not realize that those very things have caused Great Britain to feel the strain of Empire and its protection far more than when we were of little account.

To use a commercial phrase, her line of insurance is far too small to cover her war risk, which includes Canada in its new and wealthy condition.

But Canada today reaps herself the benefit of the insurance provided by the British navy. We pay no tribute to the motherland out of which she can pay the increased premium. We keep all our increase; and if Great Britain fell, how else would we be compelled to spend that increase but in building a huge navy?

Let us be sensible. We are but making the very best and cheapest investment in paying an insurance premium to Great Britain until we can afford to insure ourselves.

HIS BLADDER WAS TERRIBLY INFLAMED

GIN PILLS Brought Relief

Larder Lake, Ont., March 26th.

"I had been suffering for some time with my Kidneys and Urine. I was constantly passing water, which was very scanty, sometimes as many as thirty times a day. Each time the pain was something awful, and no rest at night.

I heard of your GIN PILLS and decided to give them a trial at once. I sent my chum 60 miles to get them and I am pleased to inform you that in less than six hours, I felt relief.

In two days, the pain had left me entirely. I took about half a box and today I feel as well as ever and my kidneys are acting quite natural again."

SID CASTLEMAN.

GIN PILLS soothe the irritated bladder—heal the sick, weak, painful kidneys—and strengthen both these vital organs. Money back if they fail.

CURRENT COMMENT

The News says that Toronto has ceased to be a village. But by the way the local newspapers are condemning the condition of the streets we should judge it was an overgrown village.

The Socialists in convention at Basle, Switzerland, have declared war against war. Very good; but one wonders what course these same Socialists would have taken had they been Bulgarians or Servians, Greeks or Montenegrins.

By the crossing of swords of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Premier Borden, in replying to the speech from the throne, the twelfth Dominion Parliament may be said to have started on a record breaking session, and from present indications it would appear that Sir Wilfrid has met his match in debate.

It seems almost disrespectful to Sir Wilfrid Laurier to ask whether Canada is or is not a nation—almost an expression of want of confidence in him. For Sir Wilfrid has assured us more than once that Canada is indeed a nation, and that it was he who elevated his country to nationhood.—Hamilton Herald.

A correspondent of the Buffalo Courier, dating his stuff from London, Ont., seems to possess enough exclusive "inside information" to give him an acute attack of stomach ache. For instance, Canadian readers are informed that, for the past two years, under the tuition of experienced British officers in each district, our militia is being placed quickly on a ready footing for war. Have any of our local officers become wise to the fact?—Hamilton Spectator.

Men Who Seek Beauty Doctors

The latest fashions among modern men are still largely influenced by the modes and manners of 1830. Sides whiskers continue to be favored by men in the van of fashion, and the stock-collar and wide bow tie complete a picture which until quite recently could only be seen in a Victorian picture.

But men are also cultivating a young look, and the "beauty doctor" is enjoying an unusual prosperity. "Men come to be manicured, and generally beautified," said a beauty doctor in London recently, "and they all want advice as to how they may best preserve youthful appearance. Many of my men clients will sit for over an hour having their nails polished and their hands massaged. They will buy any kind of powder I care to recommend for the face, any lotion for the skin, and remedy for the hair. I believe the American is responsible for this new desire to appear young. The American man spends hours at his hair dresser's, and buys all manner of powders, skin lotions, and hair oils."

A hairdresser in Bond Street also told of the modern man's passion for scent, perfumed hair dressings, skin lotions and face massage. "I should say that many men nowadays take as much care of their faces as women do.

COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE

MADOC

We have had a change at last in the weather conditions. Our Sunday storm was six inches of the beautiful snow, no rain.

Today the Whytock Bros. and Mr. W. Flemming made shipments to the Toronto market of some fine fat cattle.

Daily shipments of poultry are made to the Montreal market.

Mr. W. W. Hudgins is going into the poultry business on a large scale. His farm is outside the Village and has fine conditions to make it pay handsome profits.

The new fire hall is about completed and the Village has taken possesion. The hall is a large one, thirty-six feet by thirty-four. Few towns can boast of a finer hall.

The new Talc Mine Company are sitting up a boiler and putting in a pump to pump out the mine. The Company will commence mining on a larger scale. They claim to have an order for sixty cars. The order to be filled as soon as possible. There is some talk of putting a spur line to the mine. If the Company erect a mine here, it will give our Village a big boom and will start house-building, if there is a scarcity.

Next Sunday will be Anniversary Sunday in the Methodist Church. Rev. W. P. Rogers, B. A., will preach the anniversary sermons. Monday evening the Ladies will give the annual supper.

The different churches are making their preparations for the Xmas entertainments for the Sunday schools.

Potatoes put away in good condition are roting very fast. The tubers have advanced in price.

Rev. Mr. Williamson of Hollowell took charge of the services at the Methodist Church during Mr. Elliott's absence at Oakwood on Sunday.

Our merchants have their Christmas stocks all in, and are hoping for a good seasonable Xmas.

All extend sympathy to the widow and family of the late Alton Haight in their bereavement. The death occurred on the 20th inst., after a very brief illness. The funeral was held on the following Friday from the residence and was conducted by Rev. R. Garratt, a cousin of the deceased. Interment was made in Wellington cemetery. A number of relatives and friends were present from a distance.

Hospital To Study Child

Georgetown University Hospital, Washington, Ind., has installed a labratory such as was conducted by Dr. Mary R. Campbell, of Milwaukee and Chicago, at the fifth international congress on hygiene. In this new department of the institution a careful study of children will be conducted along lines which, it is expected, will aid in the development of the abnormal child.

Clinics will be held in the hospital by Dr. Hickling and his assistants every Saturday morning from 10 to 11 o'clock, and on Wednesdays from 2 to 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Numerous tests will be made in the preliminary examination, including the Binet-Simon test for intelligence. Anthropometic examinations will be made by Miss Stewart, after which the physicians will conduct thorough mental examinations.

A child that seems different from its companions in its play is the type that will be given the most study. In many cases it will be a simple matter, it is believed, to remedy conditions which have proved troublesome to parents and teachers.

Tests have been arranged for children of all ages, the initial examinations to be followed up from time to time as the child progresses. By these methods and the administration of the proper treatment, it is believed that the condition of the so-called weak-minded, or abnormal, child will be improved.

HOCKEY

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—The Ottawa professional club has signed all its players, but there is a big scramble in progress for the amateur stars. The Edinburgs and Stewartons are fighting tooth and nail for material, with Nationals and Coopers taking a hand in it. Coopers, a new club, will have Jerry Davidson, who was with McGill last year, as their captain. Ottawa College will play a student team.

Prospects are that amateur hockey will cut a much wider swath around Ottawa this season than the pro. game. The simon pures became very popular last season, and with six-man teams again in vogue in the N. H. A. this winter the professionals will have serious opposition. The continued raiding of the N. H. A. clubs by the Pacific Coast League and the weakness of the Toronto and Tecumsh teams will tell against the National Association.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—The latest and most remarkable news of the entire hockey situation is that Jimmy Gardner has signed up Didier Pitre for the Pacific Coast Hockey League at a salary of $2,000. Pitre is bound by his contract to leave here within 48 hours, but the local magnates are doing their hardest to keep him here. Next to Fred Taylor, who has already gone to the coast, Pitre was the N. H. A.'s best drawing card.

A gentleman who is familiar with the Patricks, says that Donald Smith wired the coast promoters, asking for his release, as he is anxious of signing with the Montreal Wanderers. The reply of the B. C. H. A. magnates was sharp and to the point, informing Smith that under no circumstances would they release him, and that they would regard him as a contract-breaker if he did not fulfil his agreement to come to the coast this winter. Hugh Lehman has also wired that he has been tendered a more tempting contract than that which he signed to play with New Westminster.

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—Jack Fournier, one of the best amateur defence players in the east, who has been claimed by Bruce Ridpath for the Torontos, George Kennedy for Les Canadiens and L. N. Bate for the Ottawas, announced tonigat that he had desired to remain an amateur and that he would line up with the Stewartons in the Ottawa section of the Interprovincial Union. Fournier turned down an offer of $1,000 from Les Canadiens last year, and it was thought that he would take the plunge this year, but he took Eddie Gerard's advice and decided to wait until the present crisis in the professional league is over. Fournier is a big, strong skater and would have no difficulty in making good in the fastest company.

The Maritime Provinces League is now cutting in on the National Hockey Association, offers having been made to Tommie Smith, Horace Gaul, "Ras" Murphy, Joe Denison, and other local players. These men had been dickering with the Toronto and Tecumseh clubs, and the western men will have to increase their bids to get them.

RUGBY

Hamilton Herald—Fans who have followed the Alerts state that the team played like it never did before. The inability of the back division to get away with any great combination work was attributed to the fact that the Tigers got through.

Hamilton Spectator—Manager Tope lost no time in making a move for next year. Right after the game he approached "Toni" Leckie, and told the Alert star that the Tigers would like to have him with them next season. Leckie was non-committal, however, for he does not expect to be in the city.

Hamilton Spectator—Charley Disney, the well-known Ottawa player, who took in the game, stated that it was his opinion that Argos would have beaten McGill, and that on Saturday's form the Alerts and Tigers could have come so, too. Disney says that Billington muffed seven times in the game against Varsity, and that seven muffs by any one player would have been fatal on Saturday.

A Kingston despatch says:—Every effort is being put forth to ensure that Queen's will be Intercollegiate champions in Rugby in 1913. A school for Rugby football will be held this winter for instructions in the elements of the game, and beginning Nov. 26 classes will be held every Tuesday and Friday for the instruction of players and those wishing to learn the game.

Mistreated Arab Lad Will Find A New Home

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—The little here from Port Arthur. The deceased Hassan Ben Ali troupe, who is at present recovering from his injuries at the Royal Victoria Hospital, where he was taken over a week ago, suffering from bruises alleged to have been cause by ill-treatment at the hands of the leader of the troupe, has been promised a home as soon as he leaves the hospital. The Society for Protection of Women and Children, who interested themselves in his case, are satisfied with the arrangements that have been tentatively made until it is decided whether the mother of the little lad in Tangier wants her son.

When the case was made public in the press, Helo Damanatty, the leader, accused of cruelly treating the boy, was released on personal bond to keep the peace.

Niobe's Plans Changed

HALIFAX, Nov. 25.—Special—There is fuch disappointment today aboard the Canadian cruiser Niobe because of orders received from the naval service at Ottawa cancelling the cruiser's departure for Enbland, which had been fixed for December 10th. The cruiser will come out of drydock on December 3, wher she has been undergoing repairs after her experience on the rocks of the Nova Scotia coast sixteen months ago.

After getting a new crew in England it was proposed that the Niobe should take the naval cadets from the college here and go to Bermuda. The unexpected order directs the cruiser to continue routine at Halifax.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat was good, and at a decline of 3d in the prices bid a fair volume of business was worked as prices were also lower in Winnipeg. A weak feeling developed in the local market for oats and prices declined 1c per bushel, and even at this reduction buyers were slow in taking hold as most of them are pretty well supplied for the present. A fair trade is passing in flour and the demand for millfeed is increasing. Butter is fairly active and firm and the demand for cheese is improving. Eggs active.

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 175 cars—3174 cattle, 1366 hogs, 1348 sheep and lambs and 147 calves.

Butchers.

Best butchers sold at from $6 to $6.25, and probably a dozen extra choice brought $6.50; loads of good, $5.60 to $6; medium, $5.25 to $5.50; common, $4.25 to $5; inferior, $3.75 to $4.15; cows, $3.50 to $5.25; canners, $2 to $2.50; bulls, $3.15 to $5.25, and a few extra quality bulls sold up to $5.75 and $5.70.

Stockers and Feeders

Best feeders, $4.75 to $5, and $5.10, but [illegible] stockers, $4 to $4.60; common stockers, $3.50 to $4.

Milkers and Springers.

Fresh milkers and forward springers are in as good demand as at any time this season. Feed being plentiful, causes dairymen to be anxious to keep their stables full of the best cows to be had, as it costs no more to take care of good cows than an inferior milker. Prices ranged from $50 to $80. More would be paid for the big Shorthorn and Holstein cows of top quality.

Calves.

Common, rough eastern calves sold at from $3.50 to $4.25; medium calves, $5 to $6.50; good calves, $7.50 to $8; choice, $8.50 to $9, with very few at the latter price.

Sheep and Lambs.

"The real simon pure" is one of those phrases which every one understands and not one in a hundred could account for. Simon Pure was a Pennsylvania Quaker in Mrs. Centlivre's "A Bold Stroke For a Wife," produced at Drury Lane theater, London, in February, 1718. One Colonel Felgnwell passes himself off as Simon and wins the heart of a Bristol heiress, Miss Lovely, after which the real Simon Pure turns up.

Telling of the progress made in combating the terrible 20th century plague—Consumption.

Notwithstanding the enormous increase in population in Canada in the past few years, it is more than gratifying to be able to record that the fight which the National Sanitarium Association are putting up against the "white plague"—consumption—is proving a winning one.

Prior to 1896 deaths from Consumption were on the increase every year. In 1910, despite the greater number of citizens, the figures in Ontario alone showed a decrease of 1118 over those of ten years ago. Isn't this splendid testimony to the noble work going on?

Maybe you haven't a father, mother, sister or dear friend of your own afflicted, but wouldn't it feel good to help some poor soul in the throes of the dread disease to get back into the wage-earning class—to return cured to wife and loved ones?

Our proud boast is that no needy Consumptive has ever been refused admittance to our Free Institutions at Weston and Muskoka because of poverty. But the good work cannot expand without your kindly sympathy and material help.

The need is urgent. If you are blessed with that greatest of all blessings, good health, think of your needy suffering brother and sister.

Send along your mite, however humble, to MR. W. J. GAGE, Chairman of the Executive Committee; or to MR. R. DUNBAR, Sec. Treas., 347 King West, Toronto.

Every penny you send goes to help.

Many a man who howls for justice would probably try to sneak up an alley if he saw it coming.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Britain Could Stop a War Says Liberal Press.

London Papers Urge England to Insist on Observing Neutrality In the Balkan Crisis and Thereby Force Opposing Powers to Desist From Interference—Austria and Russia In Cordial Relations.

London, Nov. 27.—The possibility and danger of a greater war than that between the Balkan States and Turkey absorbs public interest far more than the first bout of diplomacy between the belligerents outside of Constantinople.

The steps towards mobilization which Austria and Russia are taking, although but preliminary precautions, have made possible a vision of the vast consequences which, as far as Great Britain is concerned, are considered nothing less than appalling.

The British public apparently has no desire to sacrifice lives and money, paralyze commerce and risk the navy over the settlement of the status of the Balkan peninsula. Yet its is uneasy, because ignorant of how far Great Britain's diplomatic engagements with France and Russia extend in the direction of an alliance, and of how much likelihood there is that the Government will be drawn into a conflict in which one or both of its partners in the entente may be engaged.

The Liberal press is unanimous in urging Great Britain to preserve neutrality. The majority of the Conservatives demand the same policy. The Times declaring that none of the European peoples want war, and says: "Yet that is whither the nations are blindly drifting."

It asks: "Who then makes war?" and replies: "The answer is to be found in the chancelleries of Europe, among the men who too long have played with human lives as pawns in a game of chess, and who have become so enmeshed in formulas and the jargon of diplomacy that they have ceased to be conscious of the poignant realities with which they trifle."

The Pall Mall Gazette, almost alone, speaks in a warlike voice. It declares: "England ought to act firmly with France and Russia in refusing simply to be swept aside. If the conference desired by the British Government is refused, we ought to face the alternative and stand by our friends."

The mobilization of the Austrian and Russian armies requires weeks for what Germany and France can accomplish in days. In Russia's case this is on account of the great distances the troops must travel; in Austria's because the units of the army are on a peace footing, which is only one-third of their war strength. Therefore, considerations of safety compel them to begin when the danger signals are remote.

England, France and Germany are playing a peace-making role. Their efforts are directed apparently towards [illegible] the powers together in a compact to refrain from taking up piecemeal the questions which the war raises, and defer their consideration until the general conference.

The withdrawal of the Austrian warship at Constantinople to join the fleet is taken as an unfavorable sign, and the imminent Servian occupation of Durazzo, on the Adriatic Sea, tends further to bring Austria and Servia toward the breaking point.

On the other hand, the safe arrival at Uskup of the Austrian consul, Prochaska, who it was feared had been killed, will lessen the tension, and the fact that the Austrian ambassador lunched yesterday with the Russian Emperor would seem to indicate that the relations between these two powers are still cordial.

The latest news received here yesterday foreshadows the breakdown of the armistice negotiations, probably over the demand of the Bulgarians for the evacuation of Adrianople, to which Turkey will not listen.

The Turkish view is that while the allies have no more reserves which they can draft upon, Turkey is drawing a plentiful supply of fresh troops from Asia and is able to continue the war for another year. The Turkish military authorities assert that Adrianople can hold out for another month and that the Tchatalja lines are impregnable. Hence Turkey's position is not desperate enough to warrant her accepting humiliating terms.

Discontent In Russia.

London, Nov. 27.—"Public opinion is slow to express itself in Russia," says a St. Petersburg despatch to the Reuter Telegram Co., "but indignation has been growing the last few weeks at the alleged lack of virility in upholding Russia's international and military dignity. A few brief statements have been issued denying all military preparations, and Russians are allowed to know nothing more about the Government's attitude.

"In a country where every family is represented in the army," the despatch continues, "serious sentiment is inevitable. The officers complain that they are treated as supers, while any display of enthusiasm for the Balkan states has been repeatedly repressed.

"Nevertheless, the pro-Balkan feeling is developing and societies to carry on the campaign are being formed in St. Petersburg and the provinces. A street collection at Moscow Monday for the war reached $100,000."

Horses at Winter Fair.

Guelph, Nov. 27.—Secretary Westervelt was here yesterday, and says the entries for the Winter Fair are practically all in, Monday being the closing day for entries. There will be a great exhibit of horses this year, the entries for the new class of Percherons exceeding all expectations.

The other entries for horses are larger than ever, and this feature of the show will exceed any previous one.

NOT POLITICAL TRICK

Hon. W. T. White Says Cemet Tariff Cut Was a Success.

Minister of Finance Shows That Last Summer's Action Had the Effect of Causing Cement Merger to Put a Fleet of Ships on the Lakes—Quebec Liberals Recite Their Adventures In Macdonald.

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—The debate upon the address made some progress yesterday and will be resumed to-day, probably by Hon. Mr. Rogers.

The speech of the day was delivered by Finance Minister White, who repudiated the charge that the cut in the cement duty made last summer had been made for the purpose of influencing the elections in Saskatchewan. He demonstrated that the suspension of the duty had been urgently demanded by the people and press of Western Canada, irrespective of party. The Government of the day, he said, had not hesitated to deal effectively with the cement combine when it failed to serve the people. The Macdonald bye-election was again to the front, being discussed interestingly and at some length by two of the visiting statesmen, L. J. Gauthier, M.P. for St. Hyacinthe, and G. Boyer, M.P. for Vaudreuil.

Mr. Burnham, West Peterboro, created a mild sensation by his reference to an alleged conspiracy in Canada to deprive French-Canadians of their language.

Hon. Mr. White, in opening the debate, resented the insinuation that the cut in the cement duty, made by order in council last summer, had been made as a political expedient. He read to the House a large number of letters and telegrams received by the Government from municipalities, boards of trade, construction companies and others throughout the west, urging suspension of the duty on account of a cement famine. These representations came from Winnipeg, Brandon, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton and many other points. They were supported by all the western newspapers irrespective of party.

The Minister said that he found, upon investigation, that the Canada Cement Co., commonly known as the cement merger, supplied western Canada exclusively. He communicated with that company and the company admitted the existence of the famine in the west, but blamed conditions upon the transportation companies.

He found that relief could only be given by a cut in the cement duty, and the cut in the duty had been ordered, not as a political expedient, but in the public interest. It was the merest accident that the cement famine chanced to sychronize with the Saskatchewan election. He was glad to say as a result of the cut in the cement duty the cement merger had placed a new fleet of vessels on the great lakes and was about to establish branch factories in the west.

Mr. Gauthier, the Liberal member for St. Hyacinthe, testified from personal experience, to the tribulations of the Liberals in the Macdonald bye-election.

"I was shadowed," he declared, "by provincial detectives for 11 days, my hotel bedroom was entered and ransacked and even my grip was examined."

He asserted that the liberty of the subject and the right of free speech had been assailed by the Roblin Government. He also complained of the alleged action of the Dominion Government in discharging men at Sorel shipyard because of their support of the Liberal candidate in the Richelieu bye-election.

Mr Gauthier touched the naval question gingerly, insisted that if Mr. Monk was right in leaving the Cabinet, Messrs. Pelletier and Nantel were wrong to remain.

Mr. Burnham, the Conservative member for West Peterboro, was of the opinion that the persons arrested in Macdonald deserved more punishment than they got, at the same time lamenting the low standard of political morality in Canada.

"Had I been the Attorney-General," he said, "or a provincial constable, I would have made many arrests in West Peterboro at the last election."

Mr. Burnham, in closing, made a curious statement to the effect that he had heard that there was a conspiracy on foot to deprive the French-Canadians of their language. Personally, he would rather forego speaking English for the balance of his life than see any such conspiracy succeed.

Trip Cost $4,838.

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—According to a return tabled Premier Borden's expenses while in England this summer totaled $4,838. Othere items of unforeseen expenditure included in the return were $1,000 for the sufferers from the Titanic disaster, $20,000 for the Regina cyclone sufferers, and $3,000 to assist in the removal of buildings in Frank, Alta., to a site secure from danger from the crumbling mountains overhanging the town.

He was a popular citizen and famed as a crack cricketer.

Public Contracts Awarded.

Ottawa, Nov. 26.—Several contracts for public works were awarded at yesterday's sitting of the Cabinet. The new rifle range at Long Branch is to be constructed by A. T. McMaster at a cost of $18,400.

To John Stockton was awarded the contract for the construction of the rifle range at Collingwood, the contract price being $5,512.

Russian Mutineers Executed.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 27.—Eleven men of the Black Sea fleet, who were recently condemned to death for inciting mutiny, were shot at Sebastopol yesterday by firing parties from the warships. Four hundred sailors of the fleet are being transferred to Reval and Vladivostok.

Strikes are being declared in various parts of the country as a protest against the action of the Government.

Charged With Abduction.

Galt, Ont., Nov. 27.—Fred. Flower, a young man charged with abduction of a young girl, was arrested here and will be tried Saturday on that, and perhaps more serious charges. The alleged victim is said to be living in Toronto, and the police have been asked to locate her.

The grand jury in Toronto yesterday returned five true bills of fraudulent returns to the Government against Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, in connection with the Farmers' Bank.

Col. D. McLeod Vince, member of the New Brunswick Public Utilities Commission, twice Conservative candidate for the House of Commons, is dead at Woodstock, N.B., aged 64.

THE BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT EXPLICITLY OUTLINED AT CITY HALL LAST NIGHT

Owing to counter attractions and the inclement weather last night the meeting called in the city hall to hear an address on the Boy Scout movement, was rather slimly attended. Mr. H. G. Hammond of Toronto, Provincial Secretary of the Canadian Boy Scouts, was the speaker of the evening and he certainly made an excellent address relative to the organization.

Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., was chairman, and without any preliminary remarks introduced Mr. Hammond who at the start launched into the subject which he has at heart. In speaking of the cadet movement, the speaker said it was a good movement and was doing much to help the boys. The Scout movement was not a military movement nor an anti-military movement. The organization is under the patronage of His Majesty the King and a representative governing council. Responsibility for the administration in Canada is delegated to the Dominion Council, with His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General, as Chief Scout, with a strong and representative Council in each Province, who are responsible for the work in their Province with local associations in each town or centre.

The movement has been granted a Royal Charter of Incorporation.

The boys themselves are enrolled between the ages of 12 and 18 into patrols of nine. Three patrols constitute a troop. Each troop has a scout master and assistant scout master, who must be over 20 and 18 years of age respectively. The greatest possible care is exercised in the selection of scout masters, who are entirely responsible for the training of their troop. They are nominated for the office by the local association in each district, recommended by the Provincial Commissioner, who is the headquarters representative, who works with the local associations, and appointed by warrant from headquarters. Scout masters are the backbone of the movement, and the finding of suitable men is sometimes a difficult task. It is of first importance that the scout master should secure some sort of club room for scouts to meet in of an evening where they can receive instruction and play games. The more the management of the club room is left in the hands of the boys the better. Training divides itself into three heads, namely: Individual, for development of character, in resourcefulness, self-reliance, obedience, pluck and persistency. Handicrafts, by which a boy may be helped to make a career for himself. Public Service, troops of patrols can specialize in different forms of usefulness to others such as fire brigades, ambulance, missioners.

The scouts are trained to pass tests for which they receive badges. There are at present 41 of these badges, of which four or five, besides those already specified, may be considered of public utility, such as cyclist, marksman, pathfinder, signaller, life-saver. The remainder are for proficiency in various subjects and handicrafts, such as carpenter, plumber, clerk, cook, farmer, engineer, printer, gardener, etc. The wearing of the badge does not signify that the scout is qualified to make his living by the knowledge gained in earning the badge. Districts or troops before organizing should communicate with headquarters for the province when the necessary forms will be supplied for registration, and, if possible, a representative will visit the town and assist in creating an interest in your citizens for the movement. It is the object of the organization to work in with other existing boy organizations, and is intended to supplement, not supplant their work. The scout's motto is "Be Prepared,' and means that a scout is always in a state of readiness in mind and body to do his duty.

The scout oath is three-fold, as follows: To do his duty to God and the King; to help other people at all times and obey the scout laws. A scout is a friend to animals. A scout obeys the orders of his parents, patrol leader or scout master without question, obeying same cheerfully and readily. A scout is also thrifty, as he is taught to save, and is taught to be pure in thought, word and deed. In speaking of militarism the speaker said that there is no military meaning attached to scouting, although it does instil in boys the military virtues of honor, loyalty, obedience and patriotism. Under patriotism they are taught that a citizen must be prepared to take his fair share among his fellows in the defence of his home land against aggression in return for the safety and freedom enjoyed by him as a citizen.

Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P. said that we feel we have a nation and the boys are touched with the feeling of patriotism. Patriotism does not mean militarism, but good will towards each other. There are two things we value, namely: our patriotism and love for the Empire of which we form a part. He agreed absolutely with the underlying principles of the scout movement. In referring to the proposed assistance to be given by the Canadian Government for the Empire, the speaker said there would be no more trips by him to England if Canada did not do its duty in this matter. Canada in the past had held its own and could do it again if occasion demanded it. Any work to train boys in this country from the Atlantic to the Pacific would meet his approval.

Rev. A. S. Kerr stated that he was in hearty sympathy with every effort which was for the advancement of the boys of our country.

Rev. G. R. Beamish said he agreed thoroughly with the sentiments expressed by Mr. Hammond in regard to the scout movement. In speaking of patriotism he said it did not imply merely shouting, but something far deeper. It meant sacrifice, and the law of life was sacrifice. He was in favor of the scout movement, as it meant much for the boys, teaching them to be courteous, kind, obedient, patriotic and disciplinarians. Give us manly boys and they will make manly men.

Mr. W. B. Deacon said he was in had to do with the bettering of the had to do with the betering of the boys. The scout movement no doubt brought out the best there was in the boys.

Rev. R. C. Blagrave said he was a believer in the scout movement, because its tendency was to improve the boys and make manly men of them. It should be a movement in affiliation with the church work. It would prove helpful to the boys, and it was imperative that all should do what they could to help and encourage the boys.

Mr. J. Elliott was in favor of the scout movement as it was an excellent movement. His idea was to make the movement interdenominational. He was in hearty sympathy that could be done for the boys.

Rev. A. M. Hubly said that all were or should be interested in the boys as we want them to grow up to be even better men than the men of today. He believed in the scout movement and its patriotic side. He referred to the late war in South Africa, and to the fact that he lost a son in that war.

Messrs. H. J. Clarke and W. Maclachlan spoke briefly in support of the movement.

This concluded the speech making and Mr. Johnson, on behalf of those present, tendered a vote of thanks to Mr. Hammond for his address.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the proceedings to a close.

Probe Into Election.

Regina, Sask., Nov. 27.—After an all-night debate on the question of an investigation into the registering and voting of aliens in the late Saskatchewan election, in which the opposition appealed for a judicial commission and cited the Gamey case of Ontario as a precedent, the Legislature, by a strict party vote, decided to refer the investigation to the House committee on election, consisting of three Liberals and two Conservatives.

The Opposition reiterated the charges that aliens were registered and voted, and that the Liberals repeatedly during the campaign insisted that citizenship was not necessary to vote providing the names were on the list. Further, no citizenship oath was required in preparing these lists.

Fired On a Reporter

—LONDON, Nov. 25—Ashmead Bartlett, Turks to explain that the victim was shot in action. The life of the correspondent at the front is made intolerable. There are no rules nor regulations and no censor, and they are subjected to a series of persecutions, which some may escape only through sheer luck, but all are liable to suffer. Carrying all the necessary permits makes no difference.

The correspondent says that the Turkish government has given Nazim Pasha the power to meet the Bulgarian delegates at any time he sees fit, to discuss the terms of peace, but he seems to be marking time, pending the receipt of fresh proposals less unreasonable than the first.

A despatch from Constantinople sent by way of Constanza, says that while returning from the front he was fired on by Turkish troops, whose comrades explained to him that it was not through accident but due to orders they had received to shoot any foreigner found within the lines. By bribing the pickets Mr. Bartlett says he was taken before the commanding officer who provided another officer to escort him to Constantinople.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Land Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within 9 miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him, by his father, mother, son daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

N. B.—Unauthorised publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

Copenhagen, Nov. 22.—Premier Bernstein yesterday introduced a franchise reform bill whereby women will be allowed to vote and will be eligible for seats in the Folkething.

Montreal Branch Secured.

Montreal, Nov. 26.—It is officially stated here that the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway's long-talked-of Montreal branch has been solved by an agreement entered into with the North Railway Co. whereby the G.T.P. will secure running rights over that line from Montreal to the Bell River, where the North Railway crosses the Transcontinental 250 miles from here and half way to the James Bay.

The North Railway, which has been subsidized to the extent of $6,400 per mile for the total 500 miles from Montreal to the mouth of the Nottaway, will be put under contract from the Bell River to the bay by the first of the year when the locating party of engineers are expected at the Transcontinental.

R. W. Newman, the naval architect of the North Railway Co., has also prepared plans for two 6,000-ton steamers, carrying each 200,000 bushels of grain and with accommodation for 100 first and 200 second-class passengers. These steamers to ply between Nottaway and Nelson will be named after those two ports.

To Develop Western Rivers.

Portage la Prairie, Nov. 26.—Hon. Hugh Armstrong, who has just returned from Ottawa, states that Hon. Robert Rogers has promised to have surveys and estimates made at once for the proposed canals to connect Lakes Manitoba and Winnipeg, and also the last named lake with the Saskatchewan River, also for canals to connect Lake Manitoba with Lake Winnipeg via the Waterhen river, Lake St. Martin and the Dauphin river, with continuous navigation on these rivers.

Blames Bad Whisky.

Kingston, Nov. 26.—Believing doped liquor is being sold in local hotels, Canon Starr has called upon temperance workers to ask that an inspector be appointed to test the quality of liquor given over the bar. The canon states that inspection otherwise is good, but that drunkenness has not decreased as it should. He declares that there is more drunkenness on the streets here now than there was five years ago, and puts the blame on bad whisky.

Steamer Sinks; No Lives Lost.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 26.—The steamer South Shore, bound from Sault Ste. Marie to this port, sank off Sable Banks, Lake Superior, Sunday afternoon during the violent windstorm. The crew of ten and four passengers, were rescued by the local life-saving crew. The South Shore was owned by R. G. Endress of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. She was built in 1899 and had an 84-foot keel with 20-foot beam.

A WOMAN'S WISDOM.

The worried mother wakes up to hear her baby's heavy breathing—a little cough—perhaps the croup or whooping cough. She does not want to send for the doctor when perhaps the trouble does not amount to much. Finally she thinks of that medical book her father gave her, The Common Sense Medical Adviser, by R. V. Pierce, M. D. She says "just the thing to find out what is the matter with the little dear." Two million households in this country own one—and it's to be had for only 31c. in stamps—1,000 pages in splendid cloth binding. A good family adviser in any emergency. It is for either sex. This is what many women write Dr. Pierce—in respect to his "Favorite Prescription," a remedy which has made thousands of melancholy and miserable women cheerful and happy, by curing the painful womanly diseases which undermine a woman's health and strength.

MRS. ZUBERT AND BABE.

"My desire is to write a few lines to let you know what your valuable medicine has done for me," writes MRS. MARGARET ZUBERT, of 323 S. Bentalon Street, Baltimore, Md. "Before the storck came to our house I was a very sick woman. I wrote you for advice which was kindly given and which made me a different woman in a short time. After taking the first bottle of 'Favorite Prescription' I began improving so that I hardly knew I was in such a condition. I did my own housework—washing and ironing, cooking, sewing, and the worst of all nursed three children who had whooping cough. I hardly knew of the advent ten minutes before—so easy was it. The baby is as fat as a butter-ball. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best medicine for any woman to take when in this condition. I recommend it to all my friends."

KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER

By C. J. CUTCLIFFE HYNE

"Oh Carter, I plenty-too-much afraid. Presently I lib for die."

"No you. If I see any signs of your starting to fade away, I'll whack you into life again with a piece of board with two nails in it. Wherefore; O feared of the uninitiated, buck up, and get a shovel, and cover that lead out of sight where it shows. Afterwards I'll show you the working of that early British contrivance, an office speaking-tube. That is, if we have time for a rehearsal, but by the extra big dot-dashing of those monkey-skin drums just now, it rather looks as if we shall have the next act of this play crowding down on us without much more interval."

The burned warriors had not, it appeared, retreated very far. Their spiritual advisers, the ju-ju men, had by King Kallee's orders been waiting not very far away down the several bush roads; and when presently fugitives began to come trotting in through the steamy forest shades, these ecclesiastics rallied them, and when enough were collected, they commenced a "custom" for the renewal of the soldier's bravery.

Savage superstitions, savage terrors, savage thrill at the raw smell of blood all worked upon with a high dexterity. King Kallee had made a fine art of these incitements; he had gained a throne by their practice, and had danded them on to chosen ministers, who practiced the cult of ju-ju with a single eye to advancing the interests of their king.

The black soldiers were wearily tired, and many of them carried wounds. They listened at first with a sullen terror. They heard without interest that the white man's bullets were non-consecrate, and therefore the wounds they made would soon heal. They learned, with a little thrill wonder, that the green tins which poured burning flame were not true ju-ju, since the King of Kallee's ju-ju men declared them unorthodox. And by degrees their dull nerves worked up till at the proper moment sacrifice was made, and the screams and smells of the victim maddened them. Even the Hausa officers, who were Moslem, and therefore contemptuous disbelievers in all pagan ceremony, were stirred up almost equally with their men, and when as a final exhortation they were bidden to return once more to the factory, and bring the red head and the white girl as presents for the King, they forgot their qualms and their burns, and led on with a new, fierce courage.

But whether the African be savage bushman or cultivated Moslem gentleman, superstition is part of the very marrow in his backbone. These men had felt the bullets, they had felt the infernal burnings of the benzoline, but they were wound up now to a pitch above dreading either. Orders were given to concentrate in the edge of the bush, as near to the clearing as they could get without being sighted from the factory, and then when all was ready the monkey-skin drums would beat the charge.

The first comers peered through the outer fringe of the cover, and saw the clearing desolate, and the factory buildings to all appearance tenantless. The dead that they had left in their hurried retreat still lay where they had dropped, and glared up glassy stares at the outrageous sun. But with eyes keen to pick up any hint at ju-ju charm, the gaze of all this vanguard fell on five little wooden mannikins set opposite the points where several bush roads cut into the open.

There was nothing about the mannikins themselves. They were merely the things that their own uncles and their grandfather carved for a purpose which they themselves knew better than did that tricky white man with the red head who had doubtless put them there. But then each of these mannikins was perched on a pedestal made of one or more green gin cases, and that in itself looked suspicious—or, in other words smacked of ju-ju. And, moreover, each was garlanded with those infernal green cylinders which they had just been informed officially were in truth not orthodox ju-ju, but which they knew from their own painful experience could, upon occasion vomit forth the most horrible flames.

They crouched in the edge of the cover once more thoroughly shaken, and it only required the final portent to fray their courage utterly.

In the factory, tucked snugly out of sight in the messroom, Laura Slade, Carter, and White-Man's-Trouble lay stretched out wearily upon the floor. A length of match boarding had been stripped away from the wall, and only a paling of vertical bamboos stood between them and the external world.

It was the code message of the monkey-skin drums, as read by White-Man's-Trouble, that first gave them the news that the Okky-men had rewound up their courage and were returning once more to the attack; and so they promptly retired out of sight. Guns and defenders would have been a reassuring touch to the enemy, who had seen such things before. But for them to find no guns, and no human being in view, would accentuate the effect of the graven images which gazed woodenly upon them from the green gin-box pedestals.

For long enough they lay there in the sicky heat, staring out over the litter of the morning's battlefield, which danced up and down in the shimmering sunlight. The factory lizards came out in full numbers for their daily sun-baths, and most of the flies of Africa seemed to be congregated in the clearing.

Laura caught the first note of invasion. "Do you see," she asked, "those two swallow-tailed butterflies flittering about by that big silk cotton-wood that lost his top in the tornado? They were feeding contentedly enough on that stuff like meadow-sweet, but someone or something disturbed them, and they flew up. If you notice, they dare not go back so that rather hints that the someone is still hidden in the meadow-sweet."

"Which said clump," observed Carter, "is just two yards off the graven image which commands bush road number three. Oh, assistant conjurer, canst thou swear?"

'Oh, Carter," said the Krooboy with simple dignity, "I no bush-boy. I speak English. I learn him on steamah. I work up to position of stand-by-at-crane by before I lib for come ashore to work at factory. Ah, Carter, I savvy swear-palaver plenty much-too-good. You fit for hear me?"

'Not for one instant. I want you to make all your remarks in Kroo, or preferably Okky, if you are not too rattled to remember any of that fashionable tongue. Here, put your sweet lips to the tube, and just say in thickest language you can think of 'Get away back to Okky City, you bushmen. If you hesitate, your noses shall drop off, and your great fat lips shall follow, and red ants shall spring up out of the earth to eat them whilst you wait.' Savvy the idea?"

"Savvy plenty," said White-Man's-Trouble, and rattled venom into the tube with a savage gusto.

The result was sufficiently surprising. Spear-heads and gun-barrels bristled suddenly upwards from the clump of meadow-sweet, as ambushed Okky-men scrambled to their feet. For a full two minutes they stood there listening to the abuse heard pouring from the lips of the wooden mannikin close beside them, with eyes goggling, and mouths gaping and knees chattering, the worst scared blacks in all the Oil Rivers.

For the moment they were mesmerized by fright. But then the two mannikins which were nearest on either side began cackling with uncany laughter, and a ju-ju man who was with them recognized an art higher than his own, and allowed the superstition that was native to him to rub away the thin veneer of his education. "Let us begone from here," he moaned, "even if it be to meet the curved execution axe of King Kalle in Okky City. Better the sharp edge of that; yes, better even lingering days on the crucifixion tree than the neighborhood of these devils. Wood they are now, I do believe. But they can talk as no thing of the wood ever could talk; and presently they will come to life, and hurl at us those green tins of liquid fire with which they are garlanded. If there are any that wish to see more, let him stay. For myself I return to Okky City, even if it means impalment."

The other wooden mannikins broke out into words, and immediately the bush around each of them ripled with men. Carter, whose knowledge of the native was growing, used every syllable of his vocabulary down the tubes alternately.

FASHIONS IN TOMBSTONES

The Celtic Cross Is Quite the Proper Thing in Tombstones

"There are fashions in tombstones, just the same as in hats and clothes," said a monument worker, "and even if they don't change quite as often we have to keep up with them. A few years ago broken columns were all the go, and we had our hands full executing such orders. Then came the St. Andrew's Cross. It's shaped like an X and most of our orders ran to that sort of cross.

"Now the Celtic cross is in vogue, and it is quite the proper thing to have put on your monument. They offer a considerable field for decoration and traceries, but I suppose they will have their run and something new will come in. An experienced tombstone maker can tell approximately when a monument was put up without looking at the date on it, if he has kept up with the fashions."

Queen and Gambling

Knowing as they do how many fortunes have been lost by gambling, the King and Queen are most strongly opposed to any forms of gambling, particularly at cards. When making trips or visiting, it is a strict rule that there shall be no playing cards for money—if there is, that the stakes shall be so small that there shall be no inducement to gamble.

CHRISTMAS APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE OF ONTARIO FOR The Hospital for Sick Children

Dear Mr. Editor:—

It would take more space than you can spare to tell of the good work done by the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, for the sick and deformed children of this Province. Let me, in a few words, tell you of the steady growth of this Hospital.

In the year 1875 there were only six cots and beds, one nurse, 44 in-patients and 67 out-patients. In 1912 there were 250 cots and beds, 64 nurses, 1,294 in-patients and 17,862 out-patients.

During the 37 years of the Hospital's existence, 19,370 in-patients have been admitted, and 133,724 out-patients have been treated, a total of 153,094, or an average of 4,138 per year. Of the 19,370 in-patients, 5,495 were from places outside of Toronto. 9,644 of the total in-patients were cured, and 5,711 were improved. This is a great record.

Of the 1,294 in-patients last year, 341 came from 218 places outside of Toronto, so that the Hospital is not a local, but a Provincial Institution.

In the Orthopedic Department in 37 years, nearly 700 boys and girls have been treated for clubfeet, and about 600 were corrected. Half of these came from places outside of Toronto, so surely we have a fair claim for help from the people of this Province.

The Corporation of Toronto grants $25,000, not only for the city children, but towards the maintenance of all patients in the Hospital, and the citizens of Toronto donate an average of $15,000 annually to the funds of the Hospital.

Will you, kind reader, think of what your money will do? It helps to restore health and strength, and gives sound limbs and straight feet to crippled boys and girls.

Remember that your pocket-book must be the Hospital's friend, if the Hospital is to be the children's friend.

Remember that Christmas calls you to open the purse of your kindness to the Hospital, so that the Hospital may open the heart of its help to the children.

Remember that your money can help the Hospital build a bridge over which the feet of little children may travel on the journey from sorrow to joy, from sickness to health—aye, from death to life.

Please send a dollar, or more if you can spare it, to Douglas Davidson, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Hospital, or J. Ross Robertson, Chairman of the Trustees, Toronto.

Chicago Pastor Gets Denial From The King

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—King George has instructed his private secretary to write to Rev. Dr. John Lees, and Dr. Lee has received the letter, denying the assertion that on the Balmoral estate were large distilleries:

"Buckingham Palace, Oct. 30.—The private secretary presents his compliments to the Rev. Dr. John Lee and is commanded by the King to acknowledge the receipt of his letter on the 14th inst.

"In reply the private secretary begs to inform Dr. Lee there is no truth in the report referred to in his communication."

The assertion has been published that King George was a distiller on a large scale. Dr. Lee wrote to find out.

Diamond Found In Fire Ruins

KINGSTON, Nov. 27.—After having been in the ruins of the Columbian Hotel, which was destroyed by tire at the Thousand Island Park last Summer, a rough diamond, valued at about $200, has been found by workmen employed in cleaning up the ruins fro the new structure. The gem was taken to L. A. Johnson of Watertown, N. Y., who for several years has managed the hotel, and was immediately identified by his daughter, Miss Helen M. Johnson, as her property.

Notwithstanding the tremendous heat to which the stone was subjected, it was not damaged.

Forged Name Of The Mayor

STRATFORD, Nov. 27.—The police of this city are on the lookout for a man calling himself Clarence Little, who this morning attempted to pass a $75 cheque in P. J. Kelly's clothing shop and Badour's boot shop. In both cases the proprietors became suspicious, and an enquiry found it to be a forgery. The Cheque was supposed to have been drawn by John Brown, and was made payable on the Bank of Montreal. Mayor John Brown was informed of this and said he knew nothing of the cheque.

Bear Acts as Nursemaid

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—In his New Brunswick bear, Blitzen, the Rev. Chauncey J. Hawkins of 34 Elm Street, Jamaica Plain, has found a satisfactory solution of the nurse-girl problem.

Blitzen has taken a decided liking to Mr. Hawkins, and will play with him or wheel his carriage about the yard all day.

The public safety laws forbid Blitzen to take her charge outside the yard, but she manages very well, wheeling the carriage up and down the walk beside the house. When the baby starts to cry the bear's idea oi comforting him is to kiss him, but little Robert seems to think that bear kisses cover too much territory and are entirely too damp.

Mr. Hawkins says that Blitzen and her mate, Donner, make ideal playmates and keepers for his little boy. They are not at all savage, and he has no scruples about leaving the baby alone with them for hours.

Austria Rejects Peace Proposal

VIENNA Nov. 27.—Austria has rejected Emperor William's proposal to submit her controversy with Servia to a Council of the Powers, adding a new note of alarm to-day to a situation already over-burdened with peril.

Austria has adopted a "hands off" policy, the Foreign Minister, Count Von Berchthold, and the Emperor Francis Joseph having arrived at a programme by which they are determined to deal directly with Servia without outside interference.

The duel monarchy has given notice of her willingness to go into an international conference after her quarrel with Servia is settled, but not before.

Although reports of the safety of M. Proschaska ,the Austrian Consul at Prisrend, who was reported to have been killed by Servian troops, removed one obstruction to peace, yet the controversy over the Servian occupation of Adriatic ports and autonomy for Albania is no nearer settlement than before.

Russian Deck Hand Killed At Cornwall

CORNWALL, Nov. 27.—As the barge Fred Mercer, westbound, was about to enter lock 19 of the Cornwall canal yesterday one of the deck hands, a Russian, whose name nobody seems to know, lost his life in an attempt to descend and place the hawser around a snubbing post. He slipped and fell between the barge and the stone coping and his life was crushed out almost instantly. He was 25 years of age. It is said that he has two brothers in Syracuse, N.Y. Dr. Hamilton, coroner, was notified, and after inquiring into the circumstances, gave permission to the captain of the barge to take the remains on to Ogdensburg.

Canadians Prominent

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The National Horse Show Association brought its anual show in Madison Square Garden, accounted one of the most brilliant and successful in its history, to a close, Saturday night. Unofficial figures announced at the close of the Horse Show gave Judge Moore twenty blue ribbons, and nine red ribbons, the week's record. Judge Moore's nearest competitor, according to this announcement, was Miss H. D. Atterbury of this city, whose horses gathered ten blue ribbons. The entrants of eight-year-old Miss Mona Dunn, a Canadian resident of England, won four blue ribbons and ten red ribons. Those of Hon. Adam Bec of London, Ont., took three blue and six red ribbons.

Lost City Under Seville

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Bernard and Ellen M. Wishaw, writing from the Museum of Andalusian Pottery and Lace, at Seville, report discoveries, supporting the evidence collected by the late Joaquin Costa, that Seville stands on the site of the lost city of Tharsis.

The discoveries, made during excavations at a cliff known as Cuesta del Rosario, include the capital of a large column, dating from a period far earlier than is commonly accepted for the foundation of Seville by Julius Caesar; a mosaic floor of Roman design, dating from Visigothic times; below this a second floor of Roman mosaic with a fragment of a Roman inscription of Julius Caesar's time, and below this another floor of mosaic, composed of black and white marble and cubes of repottery, worked into a complicated design which included the well-known Greek key pattern.

Beneath the third mosiac were found walls, built of brick, evidently the outer part of an edifice, extending beneath the cliff, showing the latter to be an artificial mound, formed by building tier upon tier of houses on the debris beneath.

Going lower, the excavators found a fourth and a fifth floor, the latter being composed of hormigon.

The soil beneath the two floors contained fragments of Samian and Etruscan pottery, also pottery of Iberian or Tartessian origin.

From the fifth floor downward were found relics of the bronz age, including fragments of pottery, petrified horns, and bones.

Heavy Woman Buried

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 27.—The body of Mrs. Mary Ellen Fike, who was reputed to be one of the heaviest women in Middlesex County, was interred yesterday at Delaware Cemetery. Mrs. Fike, although only five feet tall, weighed over 300 pounds. She was 55 years of age, and had been in poor health for the past two years. A special casket was required for her, and eight pall-bearers bore the coffin.

Child Smothers To Death

KINGSTON, Nov. 27.—A little daughter of Captain Green, of the schooner Britton, lost her life Monday afternoon. The child, who was only about a year old, was left by her mother for a few moments while she went for a pail of water. She left it tied to a high chair, from which the child tried to get down by crawling through between the chair and keeper, and in doing so she got caught face down and before the mother had time to return the child was smothered.

Reports Groundless

(Intelligencer Special.)

KONENSBURG, Germany, Nov. 28—Dr. Von Bethnann Hollwegg, Imperial Chancellor, in a despatch received by the Provincial President, declares that the alarming reports of war preparations on the German and Russian sides of the frontiers are wholly groundless. Germany has taken no special military measures, he says, and there is no news of any such measures by the Russians.

Intelligencer Special.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A St. Petersburg despatch says that in its stand in diplomatic circles there, Russia is negotiating direct with the ports on the question of the Dardanelles.

Machine Agent Killed By Robbers

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.—Special—Blood flowing freely from an ugly gash on the side of his head, his body a mass of bruises, and with his purse and coat both missing, Joseph Lalonde, 52 years old, staggered into his home at 1,051 St. Denis street early yesterday morning. He died last evening.

While on his death-bed Lalonde told his aged mother that he had been in a saloon on Mount Royal avenue, where he met four men. The quartet, hearing that he was an agent for the Singer Sewing Machine Co., enticed him along Mount Royal avenue and into a stable, stating that they intended to purchase a sewing machine.

Lalonde declared that he followed the men into the barn, where they set upon him, beat and kicked him, tore off his coat and robbed him of his purse. He next found himself lying on the roadway near the mountain. He could not give any description of his assailants.

Powers Fail To Effect Peace Understanding

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Powers' efforts to persuade Turkey and the Balkan allies to agree on terms of peace seemed to-day doomed to failure. Beyond a narrow strip of territory along the Turko-Bulgarian frontier, and autonomy for Albania, the Sultan refuses to give anything, it is said.

With conditions steadily improving in Constantinople and reinforcements constantly arriving from Asia, it is believed here that the Ottoman capital can hold out easily throughout the winter, and that in the spring the Turkish troops will be able to take field in better and in larger numbers than those of the allies.

This undoubtedly is what has encouraged the Turkish emissaries to demand trems which would make the war's result little better for the Allies than a draw. If, after the sacrifices they have made, they were to accept such an arrangement, they would almost certainly precipitate revolutions at Sofia and Belgrade, and perhaps also at Athens. The deadlock, it is consequently feared, will be very hard to break.

In the relations between the bigger Powers there is no particular change to-day. The conviction is strengthening everywhere that all differences of opinion will be adjusted peacefully.

Andy Spends All But $25,000,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Andrew Carnegie in a statement last night announced that all but $25,000,000 of his fortune, which will be disposed of under his will, will be left to the Carnegie Corporation of New York, which has been made his residuary legatee and which will carry on his educational and charitable work. Mr. Carnegie's statement likewise explains his reasons for planning to pension ex-Presidents of the United States as he provided for recently through the Carnegie Corporation.

In making his announcement telling how he had gone about putting his "gospel of wealth" into practice, Mr. Carnegie said:

"I resolved to fulfil the requirements of the "gospel of wealth" by transferring funds and have done so except that I have found it desirable to retain for a while personal distribution of my United States military telegraph corps pensions and Pennsylvania Railway Road pensions to widows, because my old boys would dislike the change, and so no doubt would others upon my pension list. To meet these payments and others under my will twenty millions of bonds upon which the New York State tax has been paid have been reserved. But the New York corporation has been made my residuary legatee and all surplus left after meeting the provisions of my will goes to it.

"I am happy in getting all this off my mind. It is a gruesome business, but I find that this earth is rapidly becoming more and more heavenly so many good men and women I know labor for others. Surely Luther, Franklin, and their fellowers were right who held that service to man is the highest worship to God."

Christians Massacred In Turkish Armenia

ODESSA, Nov. 27.—Moslem fanaticism is reaping its harvest of blood in Turkish Armenia, and the Russian Government will check the massacres with troops if they continue.

Reports from Kars, in the Russian Trans-Caucasia, and Baiburt, in the Turkish vullayet of Erzerum, to-day, said that more than 200 Christian men, women and chidren had been massacred in the districts of Bitles, Van, Mush, and Erzerum.

Wild Kurds are reported to be devasting hamlets along the southern slopes of the Pontino mountains. Christians are arming themselves and banding together for protection, as appeals to the local governments are unanswered.

Kingston Convict Is Deported

KINGSTON, Nov. 27.—A prisoner by the name of D. Williams, who has served a three-year sentence in the penitentiary, was deported by Officer Peter Devlin yesterday. He formerly came from the Old Country, and is being sent back there.

Greeks and Burglars Clash

SOFIA, Nov. 27.—Special—There was a serious fight recently at Serres between Bulgarians and Greeks, the latter having tried to enter after the Bulgarians had occupied the place. Both lost men killed and wounded. The Greeks retreated. There is considerable uneasiness here and at Athens, and it is reported that the situation at Salonika threatens to become untenable.

Niagara Falls Heroes

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 27.—Special—Agents of the Carnegie Hero Fund have been here for a couple of days investigating the circumstances attending the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Stanton of Toronto and Burrell Hecock, of Cleveland, who lost their lives when the ice bridge went out February 4th, last. The object of the investigation at this time is for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not there were any acts of heroism worthy of recognition by the commission.

The investigators have been working quietly, and have seen all the immigration and Custom officers on both sides of the Upper Bridge, and others who were witnesses to the passing of the mass of ice on that fatal Sunday afternoon.

A Murderous Attack

BERLIN, Ont., Nov. 27.—Conrad Thiel, owner of a local billiard parlar, was waylaid on Queen street south shortly before midnight last night by three highwaymen, and was struck on the head three times with a club. He was not rendered unconscious, however, and his cries of "murder" frightened his assailants away without securing any money. The police kept up the search during the night, following tracks in the snow, but were unsuccessful in capturing the would-be robbers. Thiel's head was cut open, necessitating several stitches. He cannot describe his assailants.

Child Burned by Celluloid Comb

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 27.—Special—Pearl, the eighteen months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Madden, died yesterday afternoon from burns received the previous day. The child found a celluloid comb, and was playing with it in front of an open gas heater. The comb became ignited and set fire to the child's clothing. Her screams brought her mother who managed to extinguish the flames, but not until the child was burned about the arms face and body.

Canadians Hurt by Auto in Rome

ROME, Nov. 27.—Special—While an automobile was speeding down a steep incline today it skidded to the sidewalk, smashed a shop window and knocked down and ran over two Canadian students at the College of the Propaganda Fide. They were Alphonse Roney of Newfoundland, who was seriously injured, and John Carter of Nova Scotia, who was slightly hurt. Roney was taken to the college unconscious, but it is expected that he will recover.

A crowd which witnessed the accident became furious and threatened to lynch the driver and four occupants of the car, including two women. These people became greatly frightened and fled. They have not yet been found.

TO STICK TO POLICY.

Sir George Ross Indicates Naval Position of Liberals.

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—The debate on the address was commenced in the Senate yesterday and three strong speeches were made. The first, by Senator Daniel of St. John, who moved the address; the second by Senator Rufus Pope of Compton, Que., who seconded it, and the third by Sir George Ross, the new leader of the Opposition in the Upper Chamber, who eloquently foreshadowed the line he would take when the naval proposals of the Government came before the Senate. Sir George dealt chiefly with the main item in the speech from the throne.

The address, after saying four Ministers had conferred with the British authorities and "conditions had been disclosed which rendered it imperative," said that Canada should give naval aid. Imperative was a strong word. What was the matter with old England? Had she no more sailors to man her ships? Has she no longer the exchequer with which to build and maintain her fleet? If these were the conditions which rendered aid imperative, let Parliament know, and out of her abundance Canada would give aid cheerfully and take a part of the burden from the weary Titan. But before Parliament gives it must know the facts of the case.

"A Minister said during the summer that England was on her knees," said Sir George. "If she is let us help her at once, and if it takes a few millions to get her on her feet let us place here there by all means. If she is on her knees, it is the first time in the history of Great Britain that she ever was."

A naval policy on the basis of a contribution was no policy at all, he said. It was like throwing a penny in a beggar's cup. There was a naval policy on the statute book now. It had been put there by the late Government. It provided for the construction of a Canadian navy, which would have been built in Canada and which would have enabled Canada to send ships to the aid of the British cause in the Mediterranean, in Australia or anywhere in the world where aid was needed. Canada had the maritime people to man a navy, the steel with which to build and the spirit with which to maintain a navy. It was looking forward with eagerness to the Government's promised announcement.

Hon. Mr. Lougheed adjourned the debate, and the Senate adjourned until this afternoon.

Wouldn't Unionize Jobs.

Indianapolis, Nov. 27.—As tending to show the implication of labor union officials in plots, the Government introduced at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday, testimony that explosions on non-union ironwork followed the refusal of contractors to unionize their job after personal visits by some of the defendants.

Before two charges of dynamite exploded on a bridge in St. Louis, on August 9, 1908, John T. Garrett, president of a construction firm, testified he was visited by John H. Barry, of the local ironworkers' union. "Barry wanted me to unionize the job," said Garrett. "He said, 'you will find it a great deal cheaper, for you know what will happen,'" he said. I told him I suspected he was going to dynamite the job and he had better be careful. It was blown up latter."

Disliked Insurance

George William Whittaker, an undertaker, was summoned at Liverpool on two informations for obstructing and assaulting an inspector under the Insurance Act.

The inspecor, named Varna's went to Whittaker's premises to see the contribution cards of the workmen. Mr. Whittaker refused information and eventually pushed the inspector into a yard.

The assault was denied, although it was not contended that Whittaker did not commit an offence under the Act. What he complained of was the manner in which the demand for the cards was made. He was annoyed a' being called from his work for such a purpose. He admitted that he lost his temper. A fine of $2.50 and $6.50 costs in each case was imposed.

Barbers' Ages Ago.

The first barbers of whom there is any record plied their trade in Greece in the fifth century B. C. In Rome the first barbers operated in the third century B. C. In olden times in England the barber and the physician were identical. Thus a king's barber was also his chief medical adviser. In the time of Henry VIII. of England laws were made concerning barbers, of which the following is an extract: "No person occupying a shaving or barbery in London shall use any surgery, letting of blood or other matter, except the drawing of teeth."

VISITING THE CITY

Mr. N. B. Colcock who was for some time the representative of the Ontario Government at their office on the strand at London, England, was in the city to-day renewing acquaintances with our citizens who called upon him this summer whilst on a visit to the Metropolis of the world. Mr. Colcock has resigned his position and will again take up his residence in Canada.

A POPULAR COUPLE UNITED

At the town of Picton last evening a quiet wedding took place, the principals being two wellknown and popular young people of this city. The groom was Mr. Raymond Zufelt and the bride Miss Mabel Wallace, daughter of Mrs. James Wallace. Rev. W. H. Emsley, Pastor of the Methodist Church was the officiating minister. Mr. and Mrs. Zufelt will take up their residence in this city. Their many friends will join with the Intelligencer in wishing them every happiness and prosperity.

DEATH OF AGED LADY

Mrs. F. Catharine Simonds, widow of the late Mr. Samuel Simonds of Ameliasburg Township, Prince Edward County, died last night. Deceased some months ago was the victim of a paraletic stroke from which she never recovered. Mrs. Simonds was born in Prince Edward County 81 years ago and had lived there all her life. She was an estimable aged lady respected by all who knew her. For many years she had been a member of the Methodist Church. Three sons and one daughter survive. The sons are Phillip, Joseph and Edward, and the daughter Mrs. Mary J. Hawley. All reside in the Ameliasburg Township.

CONSIGNED TO THE TOMB

One of the largest attended funeral which has occured in Thurlow Township for some time, was that yesterday of the late Mr. James Clarke, who in life was widely known and in death was revered. At the family residence and at Bethany Methodist Church services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Kemp, Pastor of the circuit, assisted by Rev. R. N. Adams of this city. The church was filled by relatives and friends. Rev. Mr. Kemp preached a most appropriate discourse. At Elmwood cemetery near Corbyville, the interment took place. Many beautiful floral designs were placed upon the casket. The bearers were Messrs. P. H. Phillips, Jas. Tuffman, R. Ketcheson, A. Heaton, C. Liddell and M. Brown.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Bernard Daly in Dion O'Dare, at Griffins Tomorrow Night

DION O'DARE

One of the promised attractions of the theatrical season is the prominent Irish tenor Bernard Daly in a romantic play entitled 'Dion O'Dare' under the management of The Broadway Theatre Co., which comes to Griffin's Opera House, Friday evening, Nov. 29. A production is promised that for excellence of cast, magnificence of scenic and costume equipment and completeness of detail cannot be surpassed.

THE HALLOCK CONCERT

The appearance of Madame Mary Hallock at the City Hall last evening completes a series of musical events in our city which will long remembered.

While Hallock is not so well-known here as other artists, she proved her right to the title of the "Feminine Paderewsky" by superb execution and control of the piano. Words, so to speak, are inadequate to portray this wonderful artist. She is finished in every way, her technique and expression magnificent, and the fact that her whole soul is in her work seems to permeate her audience and carry it with her. Like David Bispham who opened the series here in September, Madame Hallock believes in taking the audience into her confidence, as it were, and explaining in words, what the music would seem to impart, and these little descriptive talks were instrumental in bringing those in attendance, into a closer relationship with the artist in her exquisite and masterful rendition of classical productions.

The programme of the evening was excellent in every way, and covered a wide range of musical thought, permitting the celebrated pianist to vividly portray the best works of Chopin, Schuman, Bach, Liszt and others. It is difficult to decide the numbers in which she excelled last evening, because the entire recital was most excellent from start to finish, but "Nocturne G Major" by Chopin, and the "Rhapsodie No. 8" by Liszt were most artistic, finished and select in every way.

The local manager, Mr. T. P. J. Power, who had charge of the series, has given Belleville an opportunity of hearing three of the world's greatest artists in music, namely, Bispham, Nordica and Hallock, and great credit it to be given him for his efforts in endeavoring to elevate the musical tastes of our community.

Zam-Buk Cures Piles

READ WHAT THOSE WHO HAVE PROVED IT SAY!

Mr. Thomas Pearson, of Prince Albert, Sask., writes: "I must thank you for the benefit I received from Zam-Buk. Last summer I suffered greatly from piles. I started to use Zam-Buk and found it gave me relief, so I continued it and after using three or four boxes I am pleased to say that it completely cured me."

Mr. G. A. Dufresne of 183-185 St. Joseph Street, St. Roch, Quebec, P.Q. writes: "I can highly recommend Zam-Buk to everyone who suffers from piles. I have also found it most effective in curing a sore thumb with which my little son was suffering. The thumb had begun to swell and fester and had lost the nail. I persevered in the application of Zam-Buk and the sore is now entirely healed. Zam-Buk is indispensable as a household remedy."

Not only for piles, but for inflamed sores, ulcers, eczema, ringworm, boils, eruptions, scalp sores, itch, children's sore heads, old wounds, cold sores, chapped hands, etc., Zam-Buk is without equal as a healer, and also for cuts, burns, stiffness, etc. All druggists and stores at 50c. box.

Zam-Buk Soap will be found as superior amongst medicinal and toilet soaps as the balm is amongst salves. Mothers should use it for baby's bath. 25c. tablet, all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

MONEY BACK IF IT DOESN'T.

Don't say: "I've read all that before"—just go to your dealer right away, lay down 50c, say "I want a bottle of that PARISIAN SAGE that so many sensible people are using." Then take it home and use it as directed and then if you are not satisfied that it is just as advertised take back the empty bottle and your money will be refunded.

"Pretty risky offer," you'll say; not at all, dealers know just what PARISIAN SAGE will do and have the promise of the Canadian distributors, the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont., that they will back him up in his strong guarantee. Pretty fair and square offer isn't it?

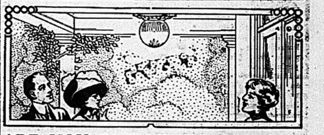
McINTOSH BROS.



ARE YOU "AFRAID TO GO HOME IN THE DARK?"

Then why not have your front porch lighted so you can see what you're doing, and not have to creep into your own house like a burglar?

And speaking of burglars, a porch light makes one of the best protections against the visits of the man with the "jimmy." He does his best work in the dark, and an electric porch light (equipped with Holophane Reflector, of course) will discourage his efforts quicker than any burglar alarm.

If the porch light is the bane of the unwelcome guest, it is just as much a boon to the guest who is welcome. It is a promise of hospitality within and makes the visitor glad he has come. And when the porch light is equipped with Holophane Glass, the light is subdued yet of sufficient intensity to make reading in the open air a pleasure.

Whether there is electricity in your house or not, an electric light with a Holophane Reflector should be on your front porch.

May we not send a representative to call on you?

GATTY SELLARS HERE MONDAY

Gaty Sellars the well known English, Organist, Composer of the Queen Hall London Concerts is meeting with immense success in Ontario this week. Brockville have had three recitals in one week, the church at the last on beeing crowded out. Other cities which have already been visited twice, have been on the long distance telephone asking for a third date. It is interesting to note that it was through being heard in Switzerland that Mr. Sellars was first engaged for the Queens Hall Concerts, appearing with the well known veteran Sir Charles Santley and Kirkby Lunn. Later he appeared with Albani, Busoni, Marchesi and in the same series of concerts as Paderewski and Kubelik.

He is the son of the Rev. S. Sellars, his mother being a Miss Gatty, a name well known in musical circles through the reputation of Sir Alfred Scott Gatty, Garter, Principal King of Arms.

His appearance at St. Andrews Presbyterian Church next Monday is being awaited with interest, especially as the programme is to include popular descriptive pieces new to this country, also the Coronation Music in which Cathedral Chimes will be introduced with the organ.

BUILDING HUDSON BAY RAILWAY

The energy and determination of Hon. Frank Cochrane in pushing the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway is bearing fruit. Grading has already been done for a distance of sixty miles, and with the whole line now under contract work will be rushed next year. The contractor, J. D. McArthur, is getting his supplies for the construction work on the ground this fall and is confident of completing the road by 1914. The Hudson Bay project which, under the former government was never more than a project, with a habit of livening up on the eve of elections, has become a certainty since the new government took hold of the question. In two years the railway will be there, and the west will have what it asked for so long in vain from the Laurier government. The building of the line is being undertaken in a businesslike way by the Minister of Railways, who has availed himself of the best engineering advice obtainable.

BRITAIN WANTS OUR FLOUR

Again the value of the British market. Under the proposed reciprocity agreement Canadian wheat was to go to the United States, a country which is a great competitor of the Dominion in the export of wheat and flour, and which wanted Canadian wheat only for the benefit of the milling industry and the carrying trade of the United States. A report to the Department of Trade and Commerce from J. E. Roy, trade commissioner at Birmingham, shows that the demand for Canadian wheat flour in England is increasing. Inquiries are reaching the office for hard wheat flour, and Mr. Roy understands that a big demand for the Canadian product is likely, as the quantity and quality of British and continental wheat are not up to the average this year. Mr. Roy further states that firms in a position to export Canadian brooms, whisks and brushes, should be able to do business in Birmingham, but that the Canadian home market is absorbing the supply.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

There is advice and advice, given freely and gratis as to how intending Christmas shoppers should govern themselves, for their own convenience, and with thought for the overworked clerks of our stores, but the following, suggestive of the annual rush, which we clip from the Montreal Gazette, seems to apply as well to local mercantile houses as those of the Canadian metropolis. We reproduce it with the same spirit that apparently prompted the writer—a hope for the consideration of the other fellow.

The usual advice to do Christmas shopping early in order that the retail store clerks may not be rushed in the last few days before the holiday is being given in many quarters. Probably it will have some effect on people who still have spare cash after paying their coal bills and buying winter overcoats and furs. But there are many people who are just now saving up for the glad day in order that they may buy presents for acquaintances they like, and some they do not like. This class, which is considerable in size, will be ready to purchase on the last pay day before Christmas, when there will be a real rush made on the stores, which by that time will be advertising what you can buy for $1 for man or woman or boy or girl, etc. From that moment until midnight on Christmas Eve the clerks will have to work with a will to keep up with the calls made by the swarm of purchasers. No early buying plea can prevent this. It is a matter of necessity. There is a busy season in every business, and Christmas is the boom time for the retail stores. Therefore the workers in them have to work their hardest then. Much unnecessary trouble may be avoided, however, if buyers act reasonably, as the majority do. One cause of worry to the seller is the woman who does not want to buy, but does want to see and show off. It is cruel to make a clerk show a dozen varieties of dress goods just for the fun of the thing. It is also exasperating to persons who are there really to buy and who are kept waiting by the frivolous and selfish individual who, when she is sufficiently bored, marches off to another counter to repeat the performance. Let this type of shop runner hold itself in check until after New Year's, when the January sales will be on, and articles that now cost $1 will be offering at 99c., and others now at 95c. will be marked to 94c. Then the shop attendants will be comparatively at ease, and the sight-seer may revel in the midst of bargains without buying and without worrying the person behind the counter and the other person in front of it. The stores themselves can do considerable to bring about as much early buying as possible by advertising their wares at the beginning of December as well as towards the end. To the buyer of Christmas presents it may be said that it is unwise to leave the purchasing till the last minute. The early caller gets a better service than the late one, and generally he has a wider choice.

Events are shaping for a Canadian navy. Not today nor tomorrow, but still at no distant time. The waters of two oceans wash our shores. On the Pacific, we, and not Great Britain must face the nations as a Power. Our national life has until recently, centred in the East and on the Atlantic, where Britannia still rules the waves. But Canada is changing its aspect and at no distant time the hub of our new nationality will be in the West and its outlook is naturally the Pacific.

Canada therefore must join hands in the Pacific with Australia, New Zealand, and those British Settlements which even now are stirring with Imperial sentiments. In the Atlantic we can still unite with the motherland. But in each ocean it is inevitable that we will have a fleet.

Is there anything in that aspiration that requires us to attempt to question our responsibility as part of the British Empire? Even if our fleets fly a Red Ensign, are they to ignore the call of the Union Jack? If war comes—as it may—will Canada be willing to wait to see how the British navy fares before clearing the decks for action?

We cannot be part of the British Empire with limited liability. Is it to be "Britain and Canada" or merely "Canada Limited"?

THE SCOTCH OF IT

A striking incident in the proneness of a Scotchman to "stay by the stuff" is to be found in Sir Richard's story of Confederation. He holds that Sir John A. Macdonald was opposed to the idea and that he gave strong reasons for his opposition; that Brown more than anyone else forced the confederation into being; that Galt found the basis on which it became possible and that Cartier, by working with Galt, completed the work which Brown had begun. All these men worked together to get it done, but when the thing was accomplished, Brown retired from Parliament. Galt went to the cross benches, Cartier, who had been slighted, nursed the grievance; but Macdonald, who thought the one important business was that he should rule, stayed on and ruled.

Since 1903 the Imperial government has advanced to Irish farm tenants over $240,000,000 for the purchase of their holdings. Applications have been made for $180,000,000 more, much of which will be allowed by the commissioners. The lands purchased have been divided among 140,291 buyers, while 5505 estates have been affected. Applications relate to 4,238 other estates. Under acts of 1885 to 1903, 72,000 tenants became owners, receiving government advances of $110,000,000. More than 320,000 occupants of one acre or more in Ireland own their holdings. This is some three-fifths of the whole number. In England not one sixth of the holdings are owned by the occupant. The proportion in Scotland is about one in eleven.—Vancouver News-Advertiser.

LOUGHEED ON NAVY.

Leader of Senate Replies to Sir George Ross.

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—An important speech on Canada's present and future position in the British Empire was delivered in the Senate yesterday by Senator Lougheed, Minister without portfolio, and Government leader in the Upper House. Senator Dandurand replied, forcibly touching on the naval question.

Senator William B. Ross of Middleton, N.S., was introduced and took his seat in the Senate.

Speaking of the navy, Hon. Mr. Lougheed said the Premier's visit to Britain had been commented upon in a friendly way. He was not open to criticism for not having made in England an announcement of his naval policy. The correct constitutional course required him to formulate that program in Canada. Sir George Ross seemed to expect that Premier Borden should have stepped into the Admiralty office with a check for the 10, 20, 30 or 40 millions, asked them to cash it and go buy a few Dreadnoughts with the proceeds. That would not have been a feasible or proper course. The proper one was that which was followed.

In the opinion of the speaker a point had been reached when Empire consolidation must take a prominent place in the consideration of the British people.

Canada was as much concerned as was Great Britain in preserving the integrity of the Empire. In his opinion this could only be done by a consolidation which would give one fleet, one army, one exchequer administered by one Imperial Parliament. Australia, New Zealand and the Straits Settlements had already been giving naval aid and to-day the eyes of the world are on Canada. The time was not distant when Canada will be the seat of Empire. The present generation will live to see the trade and wealth of Canada greater than those of the Mother Country and from Canada will radiate influence equal to that of the Mother Country. These considerations should be borne in mind when dealing with the naval bill, which would speedily be brought before Parliament.

Senator Dandurand said he did not know what mandate the Conservatives felt they had received from the people in the last election on the naval question. It could be better told when the bill came down.

It was understood that the Government proposed an emergency grant to satisfy one wing of followers and later a permanent policy voted on to satisfy the other wing.

If Britain needed emergency financial aid towards naval construction, everyone in Canada would be glad and anxious to extend that aid. It might be that the situation had changed since last June. The country would be glad to learn the contents of the naval bill and the reasons on which it should be built.

Senator Roche of Halifax adjourned the debate.

Railways To Issue Debentures.

Montreal, Nov. 28.—The G.T.P. and the G.T.R. have each applied to Parliament for authority to issue $25,000,000 four per cent. debenture stock, or $50,000,000 in all. When Parliamentary authority is obtained the two issues will have to be sanctioned by the shareholders in London. It is understood that this issue is to be devoted to the purchase of equipment for both roads, as the previous votes have become exhausted.

The sum appears a large one until it is realized how much traffic is being handled by the Grand Trunk system and how many cars are required to carry the immense volume of freight constantly moving over the road. The statement was made yesterday that no less than 15,000 loaded freight cars are being moved over the G.T. system daily. Hence the preparations now being made to provide for the ever-increasing traffic.

Body Exhumed.

Kingston, Nov. 28.—When the body of a man buried at Flower Station, on Kingston & Pembroke Railway, a short time ago, was exhumed it was identified by brothers as that of Harry Powers, a former storekeeper at Flower Station, who had for some time been living at Caldwell, Ont. He had been missing since May.

Powers' disappearance from his home was a mystery. It appears he left his home in Caldwell to go to a mill six miles away, but never returned. Afterwards he went to Flower Station and searched for work, but failing wandered away into the woods, where his body was found later.

There were no marks of foul play on the body. It is supposed deceased, who was about sixty years of age, dropped dead.

Brilliant State Ball.

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—The state ball held in the newly-enlarged ballroom at Government House last night was one of the most brilliant functions held in the capital in recent years.

It was the first state ball given since the Duke of Connaught came to Canada. Upwards of 1,200 were present. The big event of the evening was the state quadrille, those taking part in its being the duke and duchess, Princess Patricia, Rt. Hon. and Mrs. Borden, Hon. Martin and Mrs. Burrell, Hon. Frank and Mrs. Cochrane, Hon. J. D. and Mrs. Hazen, Hon. W. T. and Mrs. White, Mrs. Sam Hughes, Hon. Dr. Reid, Hon. Robert Rogers, and Hon. George H. Perley.

Seven Years for Robbery.

Toronto, Nov. 28.—Chief Justice Sir William Mulock imposed the following sentences on prisoners in the Criminal Assize Court yesterday.

Ovid Latremouille, robbery, seven years in Kingston penitentiary.

Matilda Samilla, manslaughter of her infant babe and concealment of birth (two charges), three years in Kingston penitentiary, sentences to run concurrently.

Philip Kauffman, manslaughter of Lillian Stein, eight months in the common jail without hard labor.

SCOTCH GIRLS' FRIEND

Mrs. Radford Undertook Big Task at Advanced Age

Mrs. Jane Radford, founder and principal of the Women's Canadian Employment Bureau of Montreal, has big ideas for encouraging the best type of Scotch immigrant girls to come to Canada.

Mrs. Radford is considerably over the allotted span of years, and a very interesting story she had to tell of her work among girls who forsake the Old for the New World. Her public life commenced by her appointment to the Selecting Committee of an agency which was bringing girls out to Canada by the hundred. Her experience in this capacity gave her an idea of the great injustice done by the system under which these girls were sent out. Promises were made that never could be realized, with the result that disappointment and despair invariably made miserable the existence of girls who left the Old Country full of high hopes and ambitions. Realizing all this, Mrs. Radford, although seventy-four years of age, went to Canada and asked to be permitted to put her scheme into operation. That was to tell the truth with regard to the wages domestic servants would receive; to give opportunities to girls to select whom they should work for and see that the particular work of a domestic servant was made clear to her before any contract was closed; and to provide amusement and social intercourse for the girls during their free hours. This was rather a big undertaking for a woman, but the Women's Canadian Employment Bureau was organized as the result of Mrs. Radford's efforts, and part of its activity consists in bringing the girls into touch with ministers of their own denomination, whether Protestant or Roman Catholic; and giving them the advantage of a home at a very low rate for at least twenty-four hours after their arrival—a rest being desirable after the fatigue of their passage. To perform all these obligations, Mrs. Radford arranged a system of work which does her credit.

SAD END OF BARONESS

Member of Noble German Family Died in Straightened Circumstances

There died at the Aged Women's Home in Toronto, Baroness von Heimrod, widow of the late Baron Ernest von Heimrod, who lived on a little farm at Humber Bay. Her husband died about two years ago. The Baron von Heimrod came from a distinguished noble Prussian family and when he came to Canada many years ago he had considerable money, which however, he lost in unfortunate speculations. The old couple for many years eked out an existence by selling chickens, eggs, vegetables, etc, which they raised at their little farm at Humber Bay.

Robbers Hold Up Gambling House

CALGARY, Nov. 26.—Two masked men held up a gambling house on Ninth avenue early yesterday morning, after lining up seven men against the wall at the point of revolvers, and obtained between $1,500 and $2,000. After cutting the telephone wires the bandits made their escape. Up to a late hour tonight the police had not been notified of the holdup. Fearing prosecution the gamblers refrained from putting any information in the hands of the police.

The robbery took place within a stone's throw of the Canadian Pacific Railway depot. It was a few minutes after 1 o'clock this morning when the robbers, masked with handkerchiefs, walked boldly into the room and commanded the seven players to hold up their hands. There was no hesitancy about obeying the command. "Red George," George Henthorn and Morris Daly, three of the visitors to the place, and their four companions, were promptly lined up with their faces to the wall. George was relieved of $685, Henthorn of $375 and the other players of lesser amounts. No shots were fired. One man attempted to slide his bankroll down his neck, and was rapped on the head with a gun by one of the highwaymen.

The general belief is that the gamblers, who knew of the high play of the place, had something to do with the hold-up.

GRAND TRUNK SYSTEM NEWS ITEMS

A report originating from Ottawa to the effect that the Delaware & Hudson Railway has refused to ship any more coal into Canada as they are unable to obtain return of their cars from the Canadian Railroads is officially denied by the Grand Trunk Railway. Mr. D. C. Crombie, Assistant to the Vice President in charge of Transportation, states that far from this being the cause the Grand Trunk has supplied the D. & H. with empty cars which is needed for its own purposes in order to assist the latter company in getting anthracite coal into the Dominion. During the period between November 1 and November 17, 547 D. & H. cars were delivered to them by the G. T. R. as well as 452 cars the property of the Grand Trunk and other roads, making a total of 999 cars. During the same period only 379 cars were received by the G. T. R. from the Delaware and Hudson so that there is now a deficit of 620 cars to be returned by the D. & H. to the Grand Trunk loaded with coal.

Tuesday morning at the 11 o'clock service there was dedicated in Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal a handsome memorial tablet to the late Vivian Payne, secretary to Mr. Chas. M. Hays, who went down with his chief on the ill-fated "Titanic." This memorial wes erected entirely by Grand Trunk employees, a large number of whom were present at the dedication.

The Grand Trunk Railway has just placed 10 new engines on the Middle Division in Ontario to take care of the manifest freight traffic and within a short time a total of 40 locomotives will be added to the power equipment for the same purpose. This first consignment has been assigned to the Sarnia terminal. The locomotives were built by the Kingston works and are modern in every detail. The latest improvements include the Walchaert valve motion; Smith's super heater; and steam grate shakers. Immense power is provided by 23 inch cylinders that make the engines capable of hauling heavy manifest freight at great speed. For the first time, it is understood, the company is equipping its engines with electric head-lights and a complete electric lighting system.

Mayor's Chain of Office

Vancouver has an elaborate chain of office which is worn by the Mayors on special occasions. It was purchased by the city at a cost of twelve hundred dollars, and consists of five shields representing the great industries of the province—agriculture, mining, timber, fishing and the industrial arts. Suspended from these is a larger shield bearing the coat-of-arms of Vancouver, carved and enamelled in colors. The smaller shields measure two and one-half inches by two inches, and the larger measures four and one-eighth inches by three inches. The chain wighs two and one-half pounds.

SPORTING NEWS

HOCKEY

Montreal, Nov. 27.—The exodus of eastern hockey players to the west continues and tonight Jimmie Gardner, who will again manage the New Westminster team, last year's champions, leaves for the coast. Along with him will go "Siby" Nicol, the former Shamrock player, who made a big reputation on the coast last year.

Although Pitre is said to have signed with Quebec, the westerners have not yet given up hope of the French-Canadian crack going west.

Montreal, Nov. 27.—Quebec has their revenge on the Patricks. Didier Pitre after signing a $2,000 contract with the Patricks on Saturday, signed another contract with the Quebec Club.

It is not yet known what action the Patricks will take about the matter, but it is expected that it will embroil them and George Kennedy, because it is understood that between them they had an arrangement to the effect that Lalonde should go to Kennedy, if he would send them Pitre in return. To tell the truth the juggling with players is taking such strange shape that the people are becoming suspicious that this supposed fighting between Patricks and the N.H.A. is all a bluff, and that on the quiet they are arranging things most amicably any way they like.

Regina, Nov. 27.—From advices received in this city it would appear as though the Saskatchewan Hockey Association will have four districts this year, embracing nearly every section of the Province.

The central division will, as formerly known, include Regina (two teams) Moose Jaw and Weyburn. A north central division will have Lumsden, Craikie, Davidson and Dundurn. Division No. 2, the northeast, is to be composed of Watrous, Melville, Seamans and Saskatoon, the entry of the latter city in the Provincial League being a pleasant surprise. Now it seems that a southern division is also to be formed and will possibly include Rouleau, Yellow Grass and Estevan, while communications from Prince Albert show a desire to form an amateur league in that section of the province.

BRANTFORD, Nov. 27—The building of a new rink here with two floors exclusively given to hockey and skating will furnish a great impetus to Brantford's junior and intermediate O.H.A. teams this year. Without a rink last winter, local hockeyists were enthusiastic enough to capture the Wood-Burnley trophy for the first time from Paris in the post-season play off, although the local players were handicaped by having only open air rinks to play on. This year Brantford is regarded as a strong contender in the series with London, Woodstock, Paris and Ingersoll.

With one floor of the new Arena devoted exclusively to O.H.A. and City League hockey, it is anticipated that this city is due for the development of real strength. The new rink is being built by John Teach, formerly of Teeswater. It is of concrete and reinforced steel construction. The entrance will lead into the hockey arena, where seating arrangements will be provided for 1,500 people. Below will be the skating arena, this being made possible by the location of the arena on the steep bank overlooking the canal basin.

It is not expected that the rink will be finished until well on in January, owing to an accident in the construction, when four large wooden arches in the interior slipped from the cables with which they were fastened and fell. Managers Ness and Hanley of the intermediate and junior teams have made arrangements for one of the outdoor rinks, pending the completion of the Arena.

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—The professional hockey situation was touched up with additional complications and possibilities last evening, when it was announced that several of the Ottawa boys, already claimed by the Toronto Clubs, had decided to go back to the Maritime Province League to play this winter.

Scouts for the Moncton, New Glasgow and Halifax clubs arrived this morning and made offers to all the loose men in sight, including Tommie and Harry Smith and Horace Gaul, who had been booked for the Tecumsehs. They signed "Ras" Murphy, and Billy Hague and have practically closed with Gaul. Tommie also received an offer from the Quebec club, which wants him to fill Eddie Oatman's place. He says that the Maritime Province clubs are offering more money than the National Hockey Association clubs, and intimates that he will go there. Moncton had six Ottawa boys on her team last year, and won the championship, being defeated by Quebec in the Stanley Cup series at the Ancient Capital.

It is understood that the Tecumsehs have agreed to waive claim to Tommie Smith, providing Quebec can land him, but Smith prefers the Maritime League. The majority of local players are fighting shy of the Queen City.

Two Liberals Find Food For Speeches in Macdonald Bye-Elections—Barnard of Victoria Reminds Opposition of Pugsley Telegram — Sam Sharpe's Bill Would Force Companies to Hold Annual Meeting.

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—The debate upon the address in the House of Commons yesterday was continued by Mr. Barnard, Conservative member for Victoria, B.C., who expressed his surprise at Sir Wilfrid Laurier's criticism of the promises made by Sir Rodolphe Forget in the Richelieu bye-election. Mr. Barnard said that at the last general election in Victoria Mr. Templeman used a telegram from Hon. Mr. Pugsley, then Minister of Public Works, promising a $2,000,000 breakwater and other huge public improvements. He declared for a prompt and generous contribution to Imperial naval defence, saying that British Columbia hoped the Government would err on the side of generosity.

Mr. MacNutt, Liberal member for Saltcoat, Sask., and Mr. Cruse, Liberal member for Dauphin, Man., discussed the Macdonald bye-election. The latter was challenged by Dr. Schaffner (Souris) when he stated that separate schools had been re-established in Manitoba. As neither member had the statute before him, the dispute was still on when the House adjourned at 6 o'clock. Mr. Cruse insisted that his statement was borne out by an article in The Orange Sentinel.

Mr. Armstrong, Conservative member for North York, made a fighting speech, strongly tinged with Imperial sentiment. He denounced election misconduct by Liberals, and doubted if there had been any wrongful arrests of Liberal workers in Macdonald.

Mr. Armstrong believed that all immigrants entering Canada should be taught to respect and admire the British flag and British institutions. He also advocated such amendments to the Bank Act as would make the president and directors criminally liable where a bank was wrecked through any misconduct.

He said he had no fear that the naval question would, as the Opposition hoped, "wreck the Conservative party." He had no hesitation in declaring himself in favor of such generous contribution by Canada to Imperial defence as would forever secure Britain's supremacy at sea.

Mr. Ball, Conservative member for South Grey, admitted that he had at one time inclined to the idea of a Canadian navy, but in the disturbed condition of Europe, with the ever present danger of the Mother Country becoming involved therein, he believed that a contribution should be made by Canada to the defence of the Empire.

Major Sam Sharpe of North Ontario introduced a bill to require every incorporated company to hold an annual meeting to make an annual statement to stockholders, and to have an annual audit.

Hon. Mr. Cochrane announced that the Dominion Express Co. had been given the same facilities over the Intercolonial as the Grand Trunk.

Americans Voting In West.

Winnipeg, Nov. 28.—The subject of American citizens voting in Western Canada is now exciting much attention. The Conservatives claim that during the last Saskatchewan election Americans voted and were urged to do so, regardless of the fact that they were not naturalized. Liberal papers published advertisements asserting that it was not necessary to be a British subject to vote. These charges are now before a Saskatchewan legislative investigating committee.

It is asserted that so many Americans have exercised the franchise in many municipal elections as to hold the balance of power. At Edmonton Tuesday, before the Improvement Association, the fact was brought out that in one rural municipality there were not sufficient persons eligible to fill necessary offices.

May Call for Plebiscite.

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—Mr. Mondon, Conservative member for Yamaska, who sprang into prominence last session with an amendment to the Manitoba Boundaries Bill, is talking today of proposing another amendment to that part of the address from the throne which forecasts a naval contribution.

He would give no details, but it is intimated that he takes a stand similar to Mr. Monk, that any move of the character should be preceded by a referendum.

Fellow-members from Quebec have strongly counselled Mr. Mondon to save his powder till the bill comes down, and he may do so.

London Police Chief Shot.

London, Nov. 28.—Sir Edward Henry, K.C.B., chief commissioner of the London Metropolitan Police, was shot by a would-be assassin Tuesday night with a revolver and wounded in the neck.

He is believed to be seriously injured. The outrage was committed outside his private residence in Kensington. The assailant was arrested.

Sir Edward Henry is 62 years old, and has been commissioner of police since 1903. He was inspector-general of police in Bengal, India, for some years.

"Sleeps Like a Mouse."

We all use the expression "Sleeps like a top," but few know from what the term arose. It is a proverb of Italy. The Italian word top means a mouse, and the proverb is "El dorme como un topo," or, "He sleeps like a [illegible]"

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Lower, Chicago Higher—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27—Unfounded but disturbing rumors that French troops were being mobilized led to a decided advance today in wheat. The close was firm, 5-8c over last night. Corn showed a gain of 1-8c to 1-4c, and oats a rise of 1-8c to 3-8c. In provisions the outcome varied from unchanged figures to an upturn of 25c.

The Liverpool market closed ⅛d to ¼d lower on wheat, and ⅛d lower on corn. Antwerp wheat closed 1⅜c lower, Berlin ¾c lower, Budapest unchanged and Paris unchanged to 2½c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.—Cables on Manitoba spring wheat came weaker this morning at a decline of 3d to 6d, but later ones were firmer and 3d higher. The demand was fair, but the volume of business was small. There was no further change in the local market for oats, but the feeling is still easy with only a small trade passing, as buyers are pretty well supplied at present. The demand for corn is fair. Flour is fairly active and steady. Millfeed in fair demand. Demand for butter is quieter and the tone of the market is not so firm. Cheese is steady. Eggs fairly active.

Corn—American No. 2 yellow, 69c to 70c.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 44½c to 45c; extra No. 1 feed, 44c to 44½c; No. 2 local white, 42c; No. 3 local white, 41c; No. 4 local white, 40c.

Barley—Manitoba feed, 61c to 62c; malting, 80c to 82c.

Buckwheat—No. 2, 56c to 57c.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.40; seconds, $4.90; strong bakers', $4.70; winter patents, choice, $5.25; straight rollers, $4.95 to $5; do., bags, $2.35 to $2.40.

Rolled oats—Barrels, $5.05; bags, 90 lbs., $2.40.

Millfeed—Bran, $22; shorts, $25 to $26; middling, $28 to $30; mouillie, $30 to $35.

Hay—No. 2, per ton, car lots, $13 to $13.50.

Cheese—Finest westerns, 12¼c to 12½c. Finest easterns, 11¾c to 12c.

Butter—Choicest creamery, 30½c to 30¾c; seconds, 28¾c to 29c.

Eggs—Selected, 30c to 35c; No. 2 stock, 21c to 22c.

Potatoes—Per bag, car lots, 70c to 85c.

Dressed hogs—Abattoir killed, $12.25 to $12.50.

Pork—Heavy Canada short cut mess, barrels, 35 to 45 pieces, $29; Canada short cut backs, barrels, 45 to 55 pieces, $28.50.

Lard—Compound tierces, 375 lbs., $9.50; wood pails, 20 lbs. net, $10; pure, tierces, 375 lbs., $15; pure, wood pails, 20 lbs. net, $15.50.

Minneapolis Grain Market.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 27.—Close—Wheat—December, 80½c; May, 86⅝c to 86¾c; No. 1 hard, 83¼c; No. 1 northern, 81¼c to 83c; No. 2 northern, 79¼c to 81c.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 44c to 46c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 29½c to 29¾c.

Rye—No. 2, 55c to 57c.

Bran—$18 to $18.50.

Flour—First patents, $4.15 to $4.45; second patents, $4 to $4.25; first clears, $3 to $3.30; second clears, $2.20 to $2.50.

Duluth Grain Market.

DULUTH, Nov. 27.—Close—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 82⅝c; No. 1 northern, 81⅝c; No. 2 northern, 79⅝c; December, 80⅜c to 80½c; May, 86½c bid.

CATTLE MARKET.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.—At the Canadian Pacific Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 23 were 3000 cattle, 2500 sheep and lambs, 1400 hogs and 800 calves. The offerings on the market this morning were 1200 cattle, 1300 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 300 calves.

Owing to the colder weather and the better class of stock offered there was an improved demand from butchers and packers for supplies and a fairly active trade was done in cattle. The top price realized for steers was $6 and sales were made from that down to $4, while cows sold at from $2.50 to $5.20 and bulls at $2.50 to $3.25 per cwt. The demand for canning stock was firm at from $1.50 to $2.50 per cwt.

Lambs firm, under a good demand and small supplies and sales were made at $6.25 to $6.50, while sheep brought $4 per cwt. A stronger feeling prevailed in the market for hogs and prices advanced 25c per cwt. on account of the smaller offerings and in sympathy with the higher prices ruling in the west. Packers bought freely. Selected lots were made at $9.25 per cwt., weighed off the cars. A good trade was done in calves at prices ranging from $3 to $12 each, as to size and quality.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Nov. 27.—Cattle—Receipts, 600; fairly active and steady to easy.

Hogs—Receipts, 2400; active and 15c to 25c higher; heavy and mixed, $7.85 to $8; yorkers, $7.65 to $8; pigs, $7.65 to $7.75; roughs, $6.90 to $7.10; stags, $6 to $6.50; dairies, $7.50 to $7.85.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, four head; active; sheep, steady; lambs, 4c higher; lambs, $4.50 to $7.50; yearlings, $5 to $5.25; wethers, $4 to $4.50; ewes, $2 to $3.75; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Cattle—Receipts, 15,500; market strong to 10c higher. Beeves, $5.65 to $11; Texas steers, $4.40 to $5.75; western steers, $5.60 to $9.20; stockers and feeders, $4.35 to $7.85; cows and heifers, $2.70 to $7.65; calves, $6.50 to $10.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 30,000; market weak; light, $7.25 to $7.75; mixed, $7.35 to $7.80; heavy, $7.35 to $7.80; rough, $7.35 to $7.56; pigs, $5.50 to $7.50; bulk of sales, $7.60 to $7.76.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 20,000; market strong; native, $3.75 to $4.75; western, $4 to $4.65; yearlings, $5 to $6.35; lambs, native, $5.75 to $7.75; western, $5.85 to $7.75.

Glasgow Cattle Market.

GLASGOW, Nov. 27.—Watsonian average supplies of Irish cattle offered. Good all round demand. Best steers, 13¾c to 14c; secondary, 11½c to 12½c.

Asks $10,000 Damages.

Toronto, Nov. 28.—Acting for Isabella Craven, executrix of George J. Craven, T. J. W. O'Connor has issued a writ at Osgoode Hall against D. Robertson & Co., and the Crescent Concrete Co., to recover $10,000 damages. Craven met his death as a result of falling down a shaft at the new General Hospital buildings on May 28th last. He fell from the top and struck a beam part way down. He died eight days later.

Telling of the progress made in combating the terrible 20th century plague—Consumption.

Notwithstanding the enormous increase in population in Canada in the past few years, it is more than gratifying to be able to record that the fight which the National Sanitarium Association are putting up against the "white plague"—consumption—is proving a winning one.

Prior to 1896 deaths from Consumption were on the increase every year. In 1910, despite the greater number of citizens, the figures in Ontario alone showed a decrease of 1118 over those of ten years ago. Isn't this splendid testimony to the noble work going on?

Maybe you haven't a father, mother, sister or dear friend of your own afflicted, but wouldn't it feel good to help some poor soul in the throes of the dread disease to get back into the wage-earning class—to return cured to wife and loved ones?

Our proud boast is that no needy Consumptive has ever been refused admittance to our Free Institutions at Weston and Muskoka because of poverty. But the good work cannot expand without your kindly sympathy and material help.

The need is urgent. If you are blessed with that greatest of all blessings, good health, think of your needy suffering brother and sister.

Send along your mite, however humble, to MR. W. J. GAGE, Chairman of the Executive Committee; or to MR. R. DUNBAR, Sec. Treas., 347 King West, Toronto.

Every penny you send goes to help.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

ANXIETY IS RELIEVED

Great Britain and Germany Are Working For Peace.

Every Effort Is Being Made to Patch Up the Differences Between Austria and Servia — Turkish Forces at Tchatalja Number 100,000 Fresh Men, Well Fed, and Battle Will Be a Fierce One.

London, Nov. 28.—The tension of the Balkan crisis is sensibly relieved by the news that the peace plenipotentiaries are continuing their negotiations, and that Great Britain and Germany are working actively to secure a peaceful settlement between Austria and Servia.

According to one Constantinople report, the difficulties in the way of arranging a formal armistice are so great that the negotiations are taking the form of seeking a basis for peace.

The danger of the reopening of hostilities, however, is still serious. Apparently only an informal armistice of 48 hours has been agreed upon, and it is reported that the Bulgarian forces are already moving closer to the Tchatalja lines and are entrenching themselves in readiness to renew the attack.

The Turks have an army of more than 100,000, and soon will have 130,000, for the most part fresh picked troops, behind the lines, and it is certain, according to all the correspondents, that they will give a good account of themselves if the fighting is resumed.

Under these circumstances, with Adrianople and Scutari still holding out, Turkey is little likely to show a very yielding attitude in the peace negotiations.

The report that the Servians have reached Durazza appears to be premature. A wireless despatch of yesterday's date brings the interesting news that Albanian independence has been proclaimed there, that the Turkish governor is preparing to depart and that the town is accepting without opposition, the new regime.

What attitude the Servian army and Government will assume towards this development should afford some idea of whether, as reported, Servia is willing to accept the suggestion of an autonomous Albania.

The greatest weight is attached in the diplomatic world to the seemingly well authenticated reports that Germany and Great Britain are now acting in cordial co-operation on the basis of postponing all side issues until after the war settlement. A reassuring statement also comes from St. Petersburg that Russia and Austria do not desire to fight over a port on the Adriatic.

Thus what appears to be an imminent danger of Europe being divided into two hostile camps seems to be dissipated for the time being at least.

A Constantinople despatch to the Evening Telegraph Co., says that the Council of Ministers has telegraphed new instructions to the Turkish peace delegates, and that a more optimistic feeling as a result of the negotiations prevails to-day.

A despatch from Sofia says that the president of the Sobranje, in an interview, asserted that the Bulgarian peace delegates have informed the Turkish delegates that if Turkey failed to accept the Bulgarian conditions within 48 hours hostilities would be resumed immediately.

Adrianople on Fire.

Sofia, Nov. 28.—A large part of Adrianople has been set afire through the dropping of pyroxylin bombs from aeroplanes, according to a despatch from Mustafa Pasha.

Unofficial reports say that partial mobilization of the Roumanian army has been ordered.

The Bulgarian recruits of the 1914 class have been summoned to join the colors by Dec. 3.

Mobilized In Error.

Nancy, France, Nov. 28.—A flutter of excitement was caused along the Franco-German frontier Tuesday evening by the receipt of an order to mobilize by reservists in the seven townships comprised in the district of Arracourt.

Throughout the night the men hurried through the streets on their way to the garrison towns of Nancy and Luneville, only to find on their arrival at headquarters that an error in the transmission of a despatch addressed to the brigadier-general.

Jail Faces Defendants.

Indianapolis, Nov. 28.—On the ground that their present bonds, aggregating $105,000, were indemnified and therefore invalid, 14 of the 45 defendants in the "dynamite conspiracy" trial were instructed by the court yesterday that within a reasonable time they must procure new bonds or remain in jail during the intervals between sessions of the trial.

The court held, as it was on the eve of a holiday, he would not enforce his ruling last night, in which event, attorneys for the defence said, the defendants must inevitably spent to-day in jail, for new bonds could not be had on such short notice.

Fire at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N.J., Nov. 28.—Fire on the Board Walk always creates much excitement in Atlantic City, and yesterday's outbreak drew thousands of persons to the scene. The fire was in the section of the city known as the "Bowery." A strong west wind carried sparks along for two blocks. Loss $40,000.

Another Charge Laid.

Toronto, Nov. 28.—Another burglary is charged against the three youths, Reilly, Latimer and Ryan, who were arrested on Tuesday. This affair happened in Parry Sound, where the premises of I. Haddele were entered and $12 taken from the cash register.

Killed and Burned In Wreck.

Fort Frances, Ont., Nov. 28.—J. W. Redmond, office manager for the Johnson Corey Co. here, was killed and his body burned in a rear-end freight collision on the Canadian Northern Railway four miles east of here.

MAIN LINE VIA LONDON

C.N.R. Transcontinental Passes Through Western Ontario.

Important Announcement Is Made Regarding Western Line to Detroit and Thence by American Roads to Vancouver — To Take Over Port Stanley Line—London Will Benefit By the Scheme.

Toronto, Nov. 28.—The Canadian Northern Railway Co. has at last brought to light the final plans for the completion of the Ontario portion of the C.N.R. transcontinental system. Up to the present time the plans of this railway regarding the Western Ontario outlet, the main transcontinental line, have been kept secret, but they have now reached the stage which makes their announcement feasible.

These plans include the running of the Western Ontario line of the transcontinental southwest from Toronto to Hamilton and from that city to London. From London the line goes through the western portion of the province to Detroit, at which place connection will be made with the big American roads of the west.

January, 1914, by which time it is predicted, the C.N.R. transcontinental will be built right through from Vancouver to Montreal, is the date for the completion of this railway's Western Ontario line to Detroit. This is the date on which the lease expires and the C.N.R. could obtain possession of the London and Port Stanley Railway, for the acquirement of which C.N.R. are now concluding arrangements. It is the intention of the C.N.R. to have their line through to Detroit ready for operation at the same time as they take over the L. & P. S. R.

The final arrangements for the acquiring of the L. & P. S. R. are to be made to-day, the matter only needing the ratifications of the citizens. There has been a proposition put forth by the Hydro-Electric Commission to electrify the L. & P. S. R., but this would mean that the C.N.R. would run their main line to Detroit through St. Thomas instead of London.

With London on the Western Ontario through line it is the intention of the Canadian Northern to make the City of London a second Toronto. With the deepening of the harbor at Port Stanley, the C.N.R. will make it one of the calling ports of the eighteen great lake steamers controlled by the Mackenzie and Mann interests and thus give London and Western Ontario a through water connection for freight with the west and Montreal.

In the development of the City of London itself the C.N.R. agrees to put up a large new hotel, to cost at least $250,000, in addition to providing modern station facilities. Although this latter has not been definitely decided upon as yet, the C.N.R. also state that in addition to the above it is altogether probable that London will be selected as the location of the Western Ontario divisional shops.

Practically the only objection raised by the people of London was that it might interfere with the service of the Pere Marquette Railway, the present company operating the L. & P. S. R. This objection has been met by the assurance of the C.N.R. that they will, on acquiring this line at the expiration of the lease at the end of 1913, grant the Pere Marquette running rights, and further state that if an agreement between the two railways cannot be reached, they are willing to let the matter of terms be decided by the Railway Board.

Halifax For C.P.R. Traffic.

Montreal, Nov. 28.—The C.P.R. is evidently making for Halifax, and the opinion gains ground daily that the vast terminal project unfolded a few weeks ago by the Minister of Railways and Canals had not been perfected without the knowledge of the Canadian Pacific, whose intentions to make Halifax the ocean port for their passenger business are most apparent.

It is now known that the C.P.R. will build a new line across Maine from Megantic to a point near Centreville, in New Brunswick, and from thence to Chipman and Moncton. A look at the map will show this to be as straight as the crow flies, and will be by all odds the shortest railway line from Montreal to Moncton. From Moncton it is understood that the C.P.R. have likewise plans for reaching the port of Halifax by a line having the lowest possible grades, the intention of the great company being to secure a fifteen-hour service between Montreal and Halifax, this line to be especially used for fast freight, passengers and mails.

Electrocuted In Window.

Fort William, Ont., Nov. 28.—In the sight of a number of people, David Johnson, a clerk, aged 23, was electrocuted by a common tungsten lamp in the show window of a men's furnishing store Tuesday night.

A lamp had burned out and without turning off the current Johnson mounted on a radiator to renew it. The socket is believed to have been defective.

Another clerk tried to pull him away, but did not succeed until the fixture with the wiring had been torn out. The current was of 120 volts.

Knights of Columbus Held "At Home"

The concluding evening of the series of weekly "At Homes" was given by the Knights of Columbus in their club rooms last evening. About one hundred couples were present and all agreed that the efforts of those in charge of these entertainments had culminated in the most successful affair ever held under K. of C. auspices.

Progressive euchre was the order during the earlier part of the evening. The keenest interest was evident in this section of the entertainment, the prizes being finally won by Mrs. Fairman and Mr. S. Flagler.

Dancing was indulged in by the younger members of the party until an early hour this morning, the music being supplied by O'Rourke's Orchestra. At midnight dainty refreshments were served.

Snow, Sleet and Thunder at Kingston

KINGSTON, Nov. 27.—The second big snow and sleet storm of the season visited Kingston during the night, and telephone communication between here and Toronto was cut off.

At 1.30 o'clock this morning, in the midst of the storm, the citizens were startled by several loud claps of thunder and vivid flashes of lightning This morning the weather was clear.

DEATH ROLL

AILEEN VANDERWATER.

The death occurred at Moira last week of Aileen, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vanderwater, after an illness of two weeks from meningitis of the brain.

The funeral was conducted at the church at nine o'clock on Tuesday by the Rev. E. A. Tonkin. A very impressive and appropriate sermon was preached from the 12th chapter of Samuel and 23rd verse: "Can I bring the child back again? I shall go to him but he shall not return to me." The remains were laid to rest in the Vantassel cemetery beside the other little sister who went a few years ago. The bearers were Messrs. Melville Donnan, Norman and Roy Welsh and Carman Foster. Although she was but three years of age, she had won the affection of many with whom she came in contact. The parents have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

Tender Shepherd thou hast stilled
Now thy little lamb's brief weeping;
Oh, how peaceful, pale and sweet,
In its narrow bed it's sleeping.
And no sigh of anguish sore
Heaves that little bosom more.

FOR CONSTIPATION

A MEDICINE THAT DOES NOT COST ANYTHING UNLESS IT CURES.

The active medicinal ingredient of Rexall Orderlies which is odorless, tasteless and colorless is a comparatively new discovery. Combined with other extremely valuable ingredients it forms a perfect bowel regulator, intestinal invigorator and strengthener. Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy and are notable for their agreeableness to the palate and gentleness of action. They do not cause griping or any disagreeable effect or inconvenience.

Unlike other preparations for a like purpose, they do not create a habit, but instead they act to overcome the cause of habit acquired through the use of ordinary laxatives, cathartics and harsh physic, and permanently remove the cause of constipation or irregular bowell action.

We will refund your money without argument if they do not do as we say they will. Two sizes, 25c. and 10c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store—J. S. McKeown.

NOT CUTTING DOWN.

Colonial Aid Not Altering the British Naval Plans.

London, Nov. 29.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Joe Martin in the Commons last night asked Premier Asquith if he had seen the statement in the Duke of Connaught's speech from the throne to the effect that certain naval disclosures were made to the Canadian Ministers on their recent visit to London, which had made it imperative that the naval forces of the Empire should be strengthened. If so, was the Canadian Government warranted in coming to that conclusion?

Coupled with this question was another from Hogge, Liberal member for East Edinburgh, who wanted to know why such an announcement as that of the Duke of Connaught had been made if, as was represented, the relations of Britain with foreign countries still remained of the friendliest character.

Premier Asquith's reply was purely non-committal. He said a memorandum had been prepared at the express wish of the Canadian Government, which defined with fullness and precision the position adopted by the Imperial Parliament. This would be laid before the House without delay, but must go first before the Canadian Government.

The First Lord of the Admiralty asked what man-of-war for defence of the Empire had been built during the last four years by New Zealand, Australia, South Africa, Canada and the Malay States, and if these ships would be in addition to those voted by Parliament, and if the shipbuilding program was deemed sufficient by the Admiralty, Churchill said New Zealand had one battle cruiser nearing completion for the royal navy, Australia had one battle cruiser and two second-class protected cruisers nearing completion, one second-class protected cruiser building, three destroyers in commission, and two submarines building, all for the royal Australian navy. South Africa and Canada had none, but the Niobe and Rainbow have been purchased by Canada. The Malay States had one armored ship for the royal navy, recently offered, and one accepted. None of these vessels affect the forecast of new construction already announced.

Arthur Lee enquired whether the Malay ship was to be an addition to the program announced in July?

Churchill: The Malay ship is additional. (Prolonged cheers.)

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Land Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within 9 miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him, by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

SILVER ORE STOLEN

Mining Men Lost Valuable Box of Cobalt Product

A wooden box containing 170 pounds of silver ore, the property of J. N. Sechrest of Buffalo, was stolen from the rear platform of a car on the Michigan Central between Bridgeburg, Ont., and the Black Rock station.

The stolen ore was nearly pure silver. Mr. Sechrest told the police that he was returning with George M. Kellogg and Frank Mattereck from Cobalt, where they had bought a mine. They gathered up a box of ore valued at about $1,700 and started for home. As the train pulled out of Bridgeburg the three men went inside to look after their suit cases and left the box of ore on the platform. They returned to the platform before the train stopped at Black Rock and the ore had disappeared.

Stole Money to Wed

Charles H. Doss, aged 22, of Leamington, stole $80 from his former employer in order to marry Miss Grace Dodge, of Leamington. The wedding took place and the young couple went to Detroit to live. A week after the ceremony Doss was arrested for theft found guilty and sentenced to two years in Kingston. Doss' bride who is but 19 years old, was not in court and her parents say she will have nothing more to do with him after his release.

Back From Ungava

William and Wilfrid Donaldson reached Cobalt from Ungava, where they went in the interests of the Montreal syndicate headed by John Black.

They would say nothing of the results of their quest for gold before reporting to Montreal. The party, which consisted of twenty-one men, had an arduous journey into a district never before visited by white men.

Coast to Coast Highway

The first sign-post of the Transcontinental highway was planted in the town of Alberni, on the west coast of Vancouver Island. The Canadian Highway Association, which is responsible for the inauguration of the idea of a highway from coast to coast was formed at New Westminster, B. C., and in the words of its president "From now on the route of the Canadian Highway is eastward, with Halifax as its destnation."

Acetic Acid for Rum

Two men named Cosgreave and Allen were given acetic acid by a ship's captain at Limerick Docks in mistake for rum, and although both were treated in Barrington's Hospital, Cosgreave died. The other man recovered.

KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER

By C. J. CUTCLIFFE HYNE

Laura who had grown up bilingual, commenced at first timidly. But the desperate peril of their surroundings the excitement of battle, the thrill of seeing men run, the drop of the negro blood that colored her veins, were all circumstances that presently whirled her into a resistless torrent of words. Never has she spoken with such a fluency; never had she framed such sentences. It was all in the Okky tongue, accurate, biting, glib, telling. Carter broke off from his own halting speech to listen. He could not speak the language yet with any great ease, but he could understand almost every word. He chilled as he listened to her. He coughed a warning. He called sharply that she should stop. But that drop of negro blood held her to her speech. The Krooboy thoroughly warmed up to his work, was yelling infamies down a tube at the other end of the mess-room. Laura, with eyes glinting and hands clinched, was growing almost beside herself with speech... .. ..Carter gripped her arm and plucked her almost savagely away.

"You had better shut up. The Okky men have gone, minutes ago, and I do not think you know what you are saying. Laura, do you hear me?"

She stared at him, and then spoke with a dry throat. "I said only what you told me. It was to save our lives. And you—you could not understand what I said. It was Okky talk; you surely could not follow it. Why do you look at me like that? George, what is it?" She laughed rather wildly, and plucked herself away from him. "Oh, I see. Well, I warned you before that I was black, and now I suppose you believe me."

He returned her look steadily enough. "My dear girl you've gone through more than you can stand, and you've just worn yourself to rags. I never quite knew what hysterics meant before, but I fancy that in about two minutes more you would show me. Now the trouble's over; we've fixed them tight this time, and you needn't worry yourself any more. Just go to your room and lie down and sleep."

"Sleep! You think I could sleep?"

"Very well," he said coolly, "then Trouble and I must wait till you can. But please understand, my sweetheart, that until you have put in a four-hours' spell of sleep, and can get up rested to stand a watch, neither the boy nor I must close an eye. So you see it's up to you to arrange whether we shall have a dose of overwork or not."

She came to him and put her slim brown hands on his shoulders and looked him in the face. There were black rings under her eyes, and her cheeks were white and drawn, but somehow with her delicious curves she appealed to him more than ever and he let her see it in his glance. "You still call me by that name," she said, "you still call me sweetheart even after what you have seen and heard?"

"Of course. Don't be stupid. A man doesn't change towards a girl just because she happened to get a bit excited when she was doing her best to save his life. I'm half sorry now I stopped you, only the myrmidons of my rival, his Majesty of Okky, had run away, and you really were rather working yourself up." He drew her to him and kissed her on the forehead. "And now you will go and turn in, won't you, like a good girl?"

"I'll do anything my lord wishes. But you will look after yourself, promise me?"

"Rather."

"Let your boy get you a meal. You've not had a crumb all day, and you must be starving. It was horribly careless of me not to have thought of it before."

"That is rather a bright idea. Had anything yourself? No, I see you haven't. Well, we'll sup, Laura, before you're packed off to bed. It's five o'clock in the afternoon, but we will call it supper. Trouble?"

"Oh, Carter?"

"We fit for chop. You kill two tin, one-time."

'Oh, Carter, three tin. Me one, Missy two——"

Bang, went a gun, as it seemed to their jangled nerves, close at their elbows. They all started violently, and the girl clutched convulsively at Carter's sleeve.

"Dem Okky cannon," wailed the Krooboy, and burrowed forthwith into the casements of bedding.

"Not it," said Carter. "It's all right, Laura. It's a steamer's mail gun. I never heard the roar of a loaded cannon till this morning, but once heard, you can't mistake it for blank cartridge."

"Are you sure?"

"Absolutely. I jumped when the thing went off, but then I suppose we're a bit fagged. Here, Trouble, you shirker, get dem chop one-time, and then find some limes. We shall have the steamer people ashore in ten minutes, and when they hear the yarn they'll want about five cocktails apiece to congratulate us in. Lord! Laura, but I'd give a tooth and two finger nails to have K. dropping in on us during the next hour or so, to see the fine way we have saved O'Neill and Craven's factory from a total loss. I believe he'd raise my screw with such a jump that you and I might get married out of hand. Let's see, what boat's due. I've hardly got your time-table in my head; one gets so rusty at Malla-Nulla."

"It's the M'Poso, George. She's straight out from home. Just think you may really have K. descending on you in half an hour's time."

"No such luck. It will be Cappie Image-me-lad, with his green umbrella and his best thirst, and that hearty Balgarnie, who'll rob every corpse in the clearing if he thinks he can collect on Aggy bead and a good slave dagger. By Gad I wondre if I can screw some money out of Balgarnie. I sent at least eighty sovereigns' worth of most carefully made curios home with him last time the M'poso tried to roll herself over off our beach at Malla-Nulla."

'I think', said the girl, 'I'll just go to my room for a minute.'

Carter pointed the finger of derision at her. "O vanity," said he. "You're going to tidy your hair, and smarten your frock just for the sake of old Cappie Image and the plump Belgarnie. By the way, now that you are an engaged woman, are you going to let those genial old ruffians take you on their knees and kiss you just in the old sweet way? Of course don't mind me if you'd like it so."

"Pouf!" said Laura, "they have both known me since I was a baby, but I'll be as distant with them as you like if you feel jealous, sir."

"I think I will wash off some of the battle scars myself," said Cartre. "One looks a bit melodramatic in the filthy, smeary mess. Not to mention uncomfortable. I suppose, by the way, somebody will turn up to pay a polite call. They'll judge that something's wrong when they see that all the factory boats and canoes have been cleared out of the creek."

Even White-Man's-Trouble stole palm oil and attended to his toilette in honor of the expected visit, and it was a very gleaming and oily Krooboy in some clean (stolen) pyjama trousers of Slade's that showed Captain Image, and his passenegers, and purser up the stair.

Laura and Carter were there, spruce and smart to receive them. Laura said, "Kate! I knew you'd come," and ran forward and shook the pasesnger by the hand. "There, you see George," she said over her shoulder, "how accurately I can keep a secret."

"Hullo, Carter, me lad!" said Captain Image. "Glad to see you looking so fit. You are a fine advertisement for those pills of mine, and I am sure you're glad now you kept away from old Swizle-stick Smith's nostrums. You see to have been having a bit of a scrap round the factory here. However, we will hear about that, and have your tally of cargo you want to ship from here and Malla-Nulla afterwards. But for the present I want to introduce my passenger and boss, Miss O'Neill."

Carter swallowed with a dry throat. "Mr. K. O'Neill's sister?"

"Miss Kate O'Neill, who is head of O'Neill and Craven.

Carter blinked his tired eyes, and saw a girl of three-and-twenty, half a head shorter than Laura Slade, dressed as simply, but with that something that somehow speaks of Europe and money and taste. Her eye was brown and her hair was the color of his own—nearly. No, it was darker. She was holding out a hand to him—a neat, plump hand that looked white, and firm, and cool, and capable, and which somehow or other he found in his own.

'Laura calls you George, I notice,' he heard her saying.

"Yes, of course she would. We are engaged, you know."

He felt his hand dropped with suddenness, and up till then he had never known how thoroughly objectionable a laugh could be when it came from the lips of Mr. Balgarnie. Everything swam before him, and he lurched against the messroom wall. But with an effort he pulled himself together. "Miss Slade and I are engaged. We are to be married as soon as we can afford it. When you look round, and see how we've saved the factory from the Okky-men, we hope you'll raise my salary."

"Yes, I think I can promise to do that," said Kate O'Neill. "I had my eyes open when I came across the clearing. But do you think you are wise to marry?"

"Ha, ha, Carter, old fellow," laughed little Captain Image, "got you there! Get dollars first. Find connubial bliss later."

"YOU'LL SUFFER ALL YOUR LIFE"

That's what the Doctor told him

"Fruit-a-tives Cured Him

CHESTERVILLE, ONT., Jan. 25th 1911

"For over twenty years, I have been troubled with Kidney Disease, and the doctors told me they could do me no good, and that I would be a sufferer for the rest of my life.

I doctored with different medical men and tried many advertised remedies, but none of them suited my case.

Nearly a year ago, I tried "Fruit-a-tives". I have been using this fruit medicine nearly all the time since, and am glad to say that I am cured.

I give "Fruit-a-tives" the credit of doing what the doctors said was impossible.

I am now seventy-six years old, and in first class health"

GEO. W. BARKLEY.

In all the world, there is no other remedy that has cured so many cases of so-called "incurable" kidney disease, as "Fruit-a-tives".

This famous fruit medicine acts directly on the kidneys—healing and strengthening them—and ridding the system of the waste matter that poisons the blood.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Irish Home Rule Amendments Are Voted Down.

London, Nov. 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Three Opposition amendments to clause 15 of the home rule bill were rejected in the Commons last night. The first, by Mr. Hewins, proposed that the Irish Parliament should not be empowered to discriminate in levying taxes, in order to provide bounties on production of export of native goods, was defeated by 111.

The second, moved by L. S. Amery, sought to reserve all power of Irish customs excise to the Imperial Parliament, was rejected by 133.

The third, proposed by Mr. Cassel, provided that the Irish Parliament should impose no taxes that were not of identical character with the Imperial taxes, was defeated by 130 majority.

Several others were guillotined.

On behalf of the Government, Postmaster-General Samuels moved the import amendment prohibiting the Irish Legislature from reducing customs duties. This carried by 106 majority, the Nationalists deciding not to interfere at the present juncture with the progress of the measure.

The final amendment relating to duties payable on release of goods from bond carried by 103.

Owing to the operation of closure clause 16 was then added to the bill.

Upon the discussion of clause 17, Mr. Goldsmith moved an amendment, providing certain deductions should be made from the Imperial grant before the sum was transferred to the Irish Exchequer, urging that insertion of the amount would not add a single penny to the deduction which would be made by the Imperial Exchequer. The amendment was rejected by 108.

The guillotine fell on clauses 17 to 21, shutting out 38 amendments to clause 17, five to clause 18, four to clause 19, three to clause 20, and eleven to clause 21.

CHRISTMAS APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE OF ONTARIO FOR The Hospital for Sick Children

Dear Mr. Editor:—

It would take more space than you can spare to tell of the good work done by the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, for the sick and deformed children of this Province. Let me, in a few words, tell you of the steady growth of this Hospital.

In the year 1875 there were only six cots and beds, one nurse, 44 in-patients and 67 out-patients. In 1912 there were 250 cots and beds, 64 nurses, 1,294 in-patients and 17,862 out-patients.

During the 37 years of the Hospital's existence, 19,370 in-patients have been admitted, and 133,724 out-patients have been treated, a total of 153,094, or an average of 4,138 per year. Of the 19,370 in-patients, 5,495 were from places outside of Toronto. 9,644 of the total in-patients were cured, and 5,711 were improved. This is a great record.

Of the 1,294 in-patients last year, 341 came from 218 places outside of Toronto, so that the Hospital is not a local, but a Provincial Institution.

In the Orthopedic Department in 37 years, nearly 700 boys and girls have been treated for clubfeet, and about 600 were corrected. Half of these came from places outside of Toronto, so surely we have a fair claim for help from the people of this Province.

The Corporation of Toronto grants $25,000, not only for the city children, but towards the maintenance of all patients in the Hospital, and the citizens of Toronto donate an average of $15,000 annually to the funds of the Hospital.

Will you, kind reader, think of what your money will do? It helps to restore health and strength, and gives sound limbs and straight feet to crippled boys and girls.

Remember that your pocket-book must be the Hospital's friend, if the Hospital is to be the children's friend.

Remember that Christmas calls you to open the purse of your kindness to the Hospital, so that the Hospital may open the heart of its help to the children.

Remember that your money can help the Hospital build a bridge over which the feet of little children may travel on the journey from sorrow to joy, from sickness to health—aye, from death to life.

Please send a dollar, or more if you can spare it, to Douglas Davidson, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Hospital, or J. Ross Robertson, Chairman of the Trustees, Toronto.

BAY OF QUINTE CLAIMS TWO MORE VICTIMS

Husband and Wife Meet Watery Graves--Ice Pierced Motor Boat, Causing it to Sink With Its Human Freight

A tragedy was enacted on the Bay of Quinte yesterday in the vicinity of Point Ann, whereby two lives were sacrificed. Although the distressing affair occurred between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock in the morning, it was evening before it was generally known. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sweeney, aged respectively 45 and 40 years.

It appears that Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney, who resided at the extreme end of Point Ann, desired to visit the city, and for this purpose started out in a motor boat, of which they were the owners. The craft was in a cove and the frost of the previous night hac coated the water in the cove with a fair thickness of ice. The motor boat had not proceeded far when the ice acted in the same manner as a saw would, with the result that the side of the craft was ripped open and water pouring in caused it to at first list and then sink. Mrs. Sweeney, it is stated, and facts bear it out, made every effort to reach the shore. She had taken off her shoes and some of her wraps, no doubt with the idea that this would assist her in reaching the shore. She, however, became thoroughly chilled and no doubt died of exhaustion. When her body was recovered late in the evening it was partially upon the ice and partially in the water. No trace of her shoes could be found. It was afterwards ascertained that the unfortunate woman had not met death by a watery grave as there was no water in her lungs. No trace, however, could be found of Mr. Sweeney, and up to the hour of going to press his body had not been recovered.

The motor boat was found in a horizontal position, and about fifty yards from the shore. A young daughter of the victims, we are informed, was an eyewitness to the heartrending affair, but owing to her youth did not realize the gravity of the situation and did not say anything about it until her brother came home for tea in the evening. An alarm was immediately raised, but owing to darkness the exact spot where the calamity occurred could not be located for some time. The finding of Mrs. Sweeney's body told the tale. After it was recovered it was, on direction of Dr. Yeomans, coroner, removed to Tickell & Sons' undertaking establishment in this city to be prepared for burial.

This morning at an early hour searching parties were out in the vicinity wher the motor boat went down, endeavoring to locate Sweeney's body, but the general supposition is that it has been carried out some distance into the bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney came to this city about five years ago from England. They lived on the Canniffton road for about three years, and some two years ago moved to Point Ann, where they had since resided. Mr. Sweeney was employed in the cement works and was regarded as a painstaking workman.

As a result of the terrible affair four children are fatherless and motherless. One son, Donald C., a young man, is employed at the cement works; two daughters, Agnes and Sorah, live at the Point, and Mrs. Robert Tarlington resides in this city.

Traitors In The Ranks

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 28.—Juarez, the important border point threatened by insurrecto attacks, has found that rebels are enlisted among the town's few defenders. A series of arrests was begun today which, it was said, would materially diminish the 500 federal soldiers of the local garrison. A half dozen men selected from the ranks weer placed in jail, charged, not with being sympathizers, but with acutaly being rebel soldiers.

General Trucy Aubert, left with only a few federal regular and no artillery, found it necessary to recruit his ranks to full strength. Rebels crossing from El Paso joined the federal army, and today the Mexican secret service exposed a plot wherein the so-turn on the regulars when the expect-called volunteers were preparing to ed insurrecto attack was made. The arrival from the state capital of some artillery is expected to materially assist in defending the town should an attack be made. It developed today that three trains, supposedly of troops, which left Chihuahua city a few days ago for the north were merely work trains with a small troop escort. The federal government has refused to send reinforcements into the northern part of the state, where rebels appear as numerous as at the beginning of the revolution, and where the federal garrisons admittedly are inadequate.

But the best way to balance an account is to square it.

Complete Faith In the Premier

HALIFAX, Nov. 28.—The Halifax County Liberal Conservative Association, at its anual meeting tonight, adopted a resolution, which is ordered to be wired to the Prime Minister, and which after expressing gratification at the elevation of Mr. Borden to the Premiership and voicing appreciation of the Government's plans for the development of harbor terminals at Halifax, concluded as follows:

"We record our unbounded faith in the ability of Right Hon. R. L. Borden properly to solve the question of Canada's part in the defence of the Empire, believing that through his leadership we shall soon be lifted from our present position of dependence for safety upon the burdened British taxpayer to the dignity of becoming a sharer in the defence of the greatest Empire the world has ever known."

Educational Bill Is Defeated

(Intelligencer Special.)

QUEBEC, Nov. 29.—Dr. Winnie's bill for compulsory education was defeated on its third reading in the Quebec legislature yesterday by 62 to 61. An amendment to refer the bill to the council of public instruction was defeated by 79 to 10.

Servians Capture Town

Intelligencer Special.

BELGRADE, Nov. 29.—The Servian troops captured the town of Dibra in Albania only after a desperate encounter with the Turkish troops who had rallied there after their retreat from Monastir. The whole of Macedonia is now subdued.

18TH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF BELLEVILLE DISTRICT EPWORTH LEAGUE

Under favorable auspices the 18th annual convention of the Epworth Leagues of Belleville District was held yesterday afternoon and evening in the Tabernacle Methodist Church. There was a fair attendance of delegates and considerable interest was taken in the proceedings. General regret was expressed that the President, Mr. J. A. Marsh of this city, was unable to be present, owing to illness. Rev. W. T. Wickett of Shannonville was on motion voted to the chair.

The proceedings opened by singing and prayers by Revs. E. A. Tonkin and J. Ward.

Miss Collins of Plainfield was selected Secretary pro tem.

"Some Practical Junior League Methods" was the subject of an address read by Rev. W. T. Wickett, for Mrs. Wickett, who was unabe to be present. The purport of the address was her mode of gathering together the children as early in life as possible. The Junior League over which she presided was composed of Methodist, Presbyterian and Anglican children, the two latter being associate members. The temperament, disposition and ability of the children were carefully studied and her motto was to see that all the children have something to do in the League. The joy and pride of her life was with the Junior League.

"Comments and Suggestions" was the subject of an address by the Rev. F. L. Farewell, B.A., Field Secretary of the Epworth Leagues of Ontario and Quebec. In his opening remarks the speaker said that our greatest national asset is our boys and girls. We will be a nation only as we preserve and conserve the moral and intellectual possibilities of the youth of our country. The function of the League was, or should be, to study child life and get all the good that is possible out of them. The speaker then referred minutely as to topics for discussion at League meetings. As this was an age of hero worship he suggested that such Biblical heroes as Moses, Daniel, Solomon, Jacob, Paul, etc. be subjects for study by the members of the League. Take up these Bible heroes and spend an evening in finding out what was good in each. The League also had an effect of habit-forming, namely, punctuality, reliability and obedience. These should be carefully considered in the Junior League.

A number of questions as to conducting League meetings were asked of Rev. Mr. Farewell, all of which were answered in a satisfactory manner.

The nominating committee was then appointed, being as follows: Rev. S. A. Kemp, Messrs. J. Hamilton and J. McPherson, Misses Hardy and Taylor and Rev. Mr. Joblin.

Rev. S. A. Kemp of Canifton gave an excellent address on "The New Movement in Young People's Work." He gave in an explicit manner the reasons why he preferred the Young People's Societies in connection with church organizations rather than Epworth Leagues. In this society there was no distinction as to active and associate members, but naturally there would be members more active than others. Every member of the Young People's Society feels that he or she has a responsibility and everyone has a part to perform. A programme well and carefully prepared will entertain an audience and be instructive. An annual event of the socities on his circuit was the gathering together on the parsonage lawn, usually in June or July. Our aim in these societies is much the same as the League. We aim at missionary work, and interest the young people in missionary giving. We aim first and last for the salvation of souls. This is our great aim. Through these societies the pastor was able to know all his young people.

Rev. Mr. Farewell then gave a brief address relative to the missionary side of the Epworth League movement.

"Christian Endeavor Department" was the basis of a few remarks by Rev. W. T. Wickett. He said that there was no work of more importance than the Christian Endeavor Department of the church. Before we can lead others to Christ we must have a conception of Christ and this is taught in the League. We emphasize in our Leagues the monthly Christian Endeavor meeting. To develop Christian character, to lead men and women and girls and boys to Christ should be the ultimate end of the League and other church organizations. He hoped all Leagues would emphasize this part of the League work.

The nominating committee presented their report, making the following recommendations:

That each League be taxed $1 for the publishing of the Bulletin.

Independent Rulers Will Contribute

Intelligencer Special.

BOMBAY, Nov. 29.—Three superdreadnoughts and nine first-class cruisers shortly will be presented to the British government by the independent rulers, princes and nobles of India if plans now drawn up can be carried out successfully. The vessels would cost from seventy-five to a hundred million dollars.

Bulgarians Slowly Closing on Enemy

Intelligencer Special.

SOFIA, Nov. 29.—The lines of investment drawn by the Bulgarians around Adrianople are being tightened day by day and the attackers' trenches are now within 1100 yards of the city. The Turkish garrison is reported to have lost onehalf of its original strength of 80,000 by losses during its desperate sorties and by disease.

Powderhouse and Sluice Gates Burned

Intelligencer Special.

DRYDEN, Ont., Nov. 29.—The powerhouse and sluice gates of the Dryden Timber and Pulp Co., just approaching completion were burned last night. The loss will reach nearly $10,000, which will fall on the contractors, Harris & Harris, of Toronto.

Turkish Division Has Surrendered

(Intelligencer Special.)

SOFIA, Nov. 29.—An announcement is made that two entire divisions of Turkish reserves surrendered today to the Bulgarian troops near the village of Marhamli, about 50 miles southwest of Adrianople. The prisoners number nearly 2,000 men.

Famous Inventor Dead

Intelligencer Special.

MASSILLON, O., Nov. 29.—Joseph Davenport, inventor of the locomotive cab and pilot and builder of the first wrought-iron bridge in the United States died yesterday at Sevan, near here, aged 97 years.

Every Jar Breaks Her Bones

HUTCHISON, Kan., Nov. 28.—The victim of a rare disease of the bones, Margaret Williams, 12-year-old daughter of a wealthy farmer living near Medora; has suffered 70 fractures of the legs and more than a dozen of the arms.

Ever since she had been old enough to walk the bones of her legs and arms have snapped at the slightest jar or quick movement.

Physicians say her bones lack some element. They are soft and spongy.

Fortunately the girl doesn't suffer as much pain from these fractures as do others under normal conditions, but it is necessary to treat the fractures the same as in other cases and the child has spent fully half her time lying with her legs in splints.

The parents say they know of 70 times that her legs have been broken, but they have kept no count of other breaks.

Trial Costs $150,000

TORONTO, Nov. 28.—Part of the scene of the trial of the Hawthorne Silver and Iron Mines Limited, which is creating a sensation in New York's financial world, has been laid in Toronto. Two witnesses, Professor C. Carr-Harris and J. G. McNulty, have been examined here before the American consul. These two engineers are witnesses for the defence and their examination has been lengthy. For a whole week they have been plied with questions and their testimony will amount to between 250,000 and 300,000 words. For every hundred words a fee of fifty cents has to be paid to the American consul, who transmits it to Washington.

The consular fees alone in this evidence will cost the defence in the neighborhood of $1500. When the stenographers' fees are added this sum will be raised to $2000. But the cost of this evidence will be only a flea-bite in comparison with the total cost.

"I suppose the defence will cost $80,000 before it is finished," remarked M. P. Vandervoort, who is familiar with the case. "I believe the prosecution will cost $100,000—$150,000 altogether."

Arbitrators Make Award in Extended Local Case

The long continued arbitration between the Ketcheson brothers (Harry and James) against The Canadian Northern Ontario Railway to fix the amount of compensation and damages that should be paid by the Railway for their right of way across the Ketcheson farms on the Front of Sidney before Mr. John Williams, Deputy Clerk of the High Court of Justice, A. M. Chapman, County Clerk, and Mr. James Barbour, Right of Way Agent for the C. N. O. Railway came to a conclusion yesterday by the two first Arbitrators publishing their Award, Mr. Barbour dissenting. The case has been a subject of great interest to the farmers of that and adjoining townships through whose lands the C. N. O. R. runs and the C. P. R. is now building.

The award fixes the sum of $3328.00 and interest at five per cent from the 1st day of September A. D. 1910 as the amount of damages to be paid by the railway to the owners, and The Railway Act on their Award compels the C. N. O. R. Railway to pay all the costs of the owners and the Arbitrators, the Company having offered before arbitration only $800.00 which the owners refused to accept and took proceeding by way of arbitration under The Railway Act to have the amount determined.

The railway passes through nearly the centre of the Ketcheson farm which is one of the most valuable in the township of Sidney and in addition to the land taken has rendered the working of their farms much more difficult and unprofitable and will necessitate many changes in the operation of it. The Award seems to be a very just determination of a very difficult question.

Messrs. Porter & Carnew conducted the case for Ketcheson brothers and Mr. Biggs of Toronto and W. C. Mikel, K. C., conducted the case for the railway.

Gatty Sellers a Great Organist

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Sir,—I had the great pleasure last evening, of hearing the great English organist, Gatty Sellars, play in Napanee and if you will be good enough to accord me space, would like to advise my musical friends in Belleville not to miss hearing him on any account when he plays at St. Andrews Church next Monday evening. Mr. Sellars is the most consummate master of the organ I ever heard. His technical skill and artistry are absolutely amazing. His chats between the pieces kept the audience in good humor the whole evening. His descriptive storm-piece with the church in darkness, his wonderful chimes in the Coronation music, his Russian Patrol with the strands of marching troops were marvellous but not more so than his artistic rendering of classical gems. What Paderewski is to the piano the world famed artist is to the organ.

Bryant and Major were high men for O. B. C. Moore, Finkle and Alexander did most of the scoring for the Y. M. C. A., although all of the men contributed something toward the score.

Ketcheson was forced to leave the game during the last half because of an accident and Alexander took his place.

AN AGED LADY DEAD

Mrs. Mary Harriett Bowen passed away to-day at her late home on Everett Street. An obituary notice will appear to-morrow.

FINED FOR DRUNKENNESS

A drunk named Bott, a stranger in the city was this morning fined $5 by Magistrate Masson for being intoxicated.

COURT ADJOURNED

A city voters list court was to have been held to-day but owing to the indisposition of Judge Deroche it was adjourned until next Wednesday the 4th of December.

AGAIN REMANDED

William Pakkalla, the young Findlander who was convicted of being implicated in the theft of brass from the Kilties band car, was to-day by Magistrate Masson again remanded for a week for sentence.

COLLECTOR RECOMMENDED

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the City Council held last evening, Mr. J. Wilfred Holmes of this city was recommended as tax collector in place of Mr. F. D. Diamond who has resigned. The Council will decide the matter at its meeting on Monday evening next.

I. O. O. F. OFFICERS

At a regular meeting of Belleville Lodge I. O. O. F. No. 81 held last evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term:

C. Frost, I. P. G.; J. W. Carter, N. G.; L. E. Walmsley, V. G.; W. Embury, Rec. Sec.; R. W. Adams, Fin. Sec.; J. Coon, Treasurer; L. C. Pascoe, H. Ransom and C. F. Sharpe, trustees; A. E. MacColl, Physician.

A SUCCESSFUL ASSEMBLY

The Non-Commissioned officers and men of the 34th Field Battery held their first Assembly last evening at Symon's Academy. There was a very large attendance, fully one hundred couple being present. The scene was very entrancing with the charming costumes of the ladies and the many officers and men in their bright uniforms. There were a number of distinguished military men from other units. The music was supplied by the Sill's Orchestra of eight pieces and was of a very high order. The N. C. O.'s and men are to be congratulated on the success of this their first Assembly.

MEMBERS OF MOIRA LODGE A. F. AND A. M. AT HOME

The members of Moira Lodge, A. F. & A. M., were last evening "at home" to their many friends. The affair took place in the Masonic temple and it proved to be most enjoyable. A large number were present and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves. During the evening the following program was rendered:

Chairman's address—W. Bro. John McIntosh, W.M.
Piano Duet—Mrs. A. E. MacColl, Miss Milburn.
Song, "Sweet Island of Ulva"—Bro. Harry C. MacKay.
Belleville Male Quartet—W. Bro. Geo. Dulmage, Bro. H. Wrightmyer, Bro. E. Mouck, Mr. R. Minns.
Piano Solo—Mrs. Col. Campbell.
Song—Miss Price.
Address—W. Bro. Rev. R. C. Blagrave, I. P. M.
Recitation—Miss Jean McIntosh.
Piano, "Badinage"—Mrs. A. E. MacColl.
Song—Bro. H. Wrightmyer.
Song—W. Bro. John McIntosh.
Address—R. W. Bro. Col. Penton.

W. Bro. Rev. R. C. Blagrave was the recipient of a handsome cut glass celery dish, and replied in a most appropriate manner to the presentation.

At the conclusion of the program refreshments were served.

On motion of W. Bro. Dr. MacColl, seconded by R. W. Bro. John Newton, a vote of thanks was tendered to those who had taken part in the program.

Four Years For Stealing

PARRY SOUND, Nov. 28.—Yesterday morning F. Doyle, aged thirty-seven, hailing from Nova Scotia, was sentenced to four years in the Provincial Penitentiary for burglarizing the store of Begg & Company here early Saturday morning and stealing a complete suit of clothing and some jewellery. Doyle took all his old clothing off in the store and fitted himself out with everything in the way of clothing he required, including boots and overcoat, leaving the old clothes in the store. He was seen in the vicinity of the store by Inspector E. Hyman, who with William Elliott followed and captured the thief with the store tags still on on the clothes. Doyle pleaded guilty in the Police Court. It is believed the three men captured in Toronto recently are the men who burglarized Haddell's store recently.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

"DION O'DARE"

Ambition, energy, a knowledge of what you aim at and a determination to accomplish it, are the moving characteristics of Bernard Daly, the young comedian and singer who will be seen in the romantic Irish play "Dion O'Dare" at Griffin Opera House to-night. Mr. Daly is an Irish American, but to all intents and purposes he might as well have been born in Ireland. Nature has blessed him with a sweet tenor voice, pleasing personality, good looks and manly acting has placed him in the front rank of Irish stars in the dramatic world.

BERNARD DALY,

18th Annual Convention

That the League and Sunday Schools pledge to support Percy Jones in China.

That the officers be as follows:

Hon. President—Rev. W. G. Clarke
President—J. M. Denyes, Belleville.
1st Vice. President—Mr. Kincaid.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. T. Phelps.
3rd Vice-Pres.—Miss Hardy.
4th Vice-Pres.—Mr. J. McPherson
5th Voce-Pres.—Mrs. Young.
Sec.-Treas.—Miss Adams.
Conference Representative—Rev. F. Joblin.

The report was unanimously adopted.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $1 on hand.

"The story of a Successful Citizenship Department," and "The Literary Department" by Miss Mildred L. Hardy were papers which showed careful preparation.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening session of the Epworth League convention opened at 7.45 with a brief song service conducted by Rev. A. L. Brown of Foxboro. Devotional services were in charge of Rev. E. A. Tonkin of West Huntingdon. In the absence of the President, Mr. J. Arthur Marsh, the Rev. W. G. Clarke, chairman of the Belleville district, presided. An interesting paper left over from the afternoon session was read by Mr. J. McPherson of the Aikens' League.

Rev. F. L. Farewell, B.A., gave an able address on "Citizenship." It was a stirring appeal to young people of both sexes, for the speaker did not hesitate to range himself on the side of Woman's Suffrage, as a right, first and foremost. Life in this age puts the highest demands upon us. One can afford to do only that which will strengthen his moral power and usefulness. Alongside of the great opportunity for service to our humanity in far fields is the equally great opportunity for doing good in Canada. Our duty is not only to Christianize but to Canadianize the multitudes flocking to our shores.

Rev. D. M. Perley, B.A., returned missionary from China, was the last speaker. The address was intensely interesting and realistic. With kaleidoscopic rapidity and minuteness of detail, the missionary set before the mind and imagination glimpses of the real life and problems of the great Central Kingdom. The difficulties presented by the language, superstitions, ancestral worship, economic and political conditions were vividly portrayed. Signal successes nevertheless had attended the work of the Christian churches and especially of the mission of the Methodist church in West China.

In closing, the chairman announced that the Revs. Farewell and Perley will be the speakers at the Friday evening session of the Sunday School convention.

The evening session for to-day (Friday) begins with a praise service at 7.30 p. m. The public are invited.

WEDDING BELLS.

HASLIP—WAY

A very nice wedding took place Wednesday afternoon in this city, when James E. Haslip was united in marriage to Miss Nellie Way, at the home of the bride's parents, by the Rev. Mr. Hubly, pastor of the Emmanuel Church. The bride was dressed in a pink silk gown, trimmed with Duchess lace. Miss Lena Morrison was bridesmaid, while Mr. Jerry Morrison assisted the groom. After the ceremony a wedding supper was partaken of afterwhich dancing was partaken of until the small hours of the morning. There were guests in attendance from Rochester, St. Catharines and Niagara Falls. Mr. and Mrs. Haslip will reside in this city and their many friends join in wishing them every happiness and prosperity.

BRENNAN—BROWN

At St. Michaels Church Presbytery last evening a quiet wedding took place, the principals being two well known and popular young people of this city. The groom was Mr. J. Vincent Brennan, merchant tailor and the bride Miss Jennie Brown. Rev. Father Meehan, Curate of St. Michael's performed the ceremony. Miss Minnie Bulger was bridesmaid whilst Mr. Charles Bawden did honors for the groom. After the ceremony a wedding repast was partaken of. The popularity of the bride was allerted to by the many beautiful gifts she was the recipient of. Mr. and Mrs. Brennan have taken up their residence in the city. Their numerous friends will wish for them a prosperous and happy wedded life.

McINTOSH BROS.

ARE YOU "AFRAID TO GO HOME IN THE DARK?"

Then why not have your front porch lighted so you can see what you're doing, and not have to creep into your own house like a burglar?

And speaking of burglars, a porch light makes one of the best protections against the visits of the man with the "jimmy." He does his best work in the dark, and an electric porch light (equipped with Holophane Reflector, of course) will discourage his efforts quicker than any burglar alarm.

If the porch light is the bane of the unwelcome guest, it is just as much a boon to the guest who is welcome. It is a promise of hospitality within and makes the visitor glad he has come And when the porch light is equipped with Holophane Glass, the light is subdued yet of sufficient intensity to make reading in the open air a pleasure.

Whether there is electricity in your house or not, an electric light with a Holophane Reflector should be on your front porch.

May we not send a representative to call on you?

NEW LIVE STOCK COMMISSIONER

John Bright, of Myrtle, Ont., one of the best known stock breeders in Canada, has been appointed Dominion Live Stock Commissioner to succeed Dr. Rutherford, who resigned last spring. Dr. Rutherford was Veterinary General as well as Live Stock Commissioner, but upon his leaving the service it was decided to divide the positions in order that the closest attention might be given to the work of each branch, Dr. Torrance, of Winnipeg, was appointed Veterinary General, and now Mr. Bright takes the position of Live Stock Commissioner.

Mr. Bright is a live stock breeder with extensive experience. He has been intimately associated with most of the leading live stock organiaztions of Canada, and in connection with them has held the highest and most important offices; he is thoroughly familiar with the live stock interests of Canada, and has been frequently called upon to act as judge of live stock in provinces other than that of Ontario, and his advice on live stock matters has frequently been asked by Ministers of Agriculture in the Dominion.

It may also be noted that when a delegation of the most prominent live stock men recently waited on the Minister urging the appointment of a Dominion Live Stock Commissioner, they stated that the appointment of Mr. Bright would be thoroughly satisfactory, as his long experience as a practical live stock man and his thorough knowledge of the live stock industry generally well qualified him to fill such a position.

A NEW NATION

While the question of what was to become of Albania was agitating the world, some combination of forces succeeded yesterday in partially providing the answer. The Albanian flag was run up over the Government offices and the Turkish officials were invited either to retire or to continue under the new regime. Whoever ordered the change was sensible enough to appeal to Austria, Italy and France to support it, not an altogether unwise precaution, considering that Servian armies were within ten hours march of Durazzo, where the revolution was effected. It would not be at all surprising if by this act Albania ceased to be as they used to say of Italy a geographical expression, and became a serious political entity. It may take time, however, before the new order is established, for Albania has probably the most difficult corner in Europe in which to obtain an agreement among the several elements of the population. There is little in common between the almost pure descendants of the ancient Greeks, who are still to be found there, and either of the more numerous peoples who have accepted the Moslem faith, for part of the Moslem population is racially allied to the Servian and Bosnian peoples, being of Slavonic origin, and another part is pure Mussulman—perhaps the best fighting remainder of the fighting tribes who carried the creed of Mohammed into Europe at the point of the sword. Nevertheless, as all the rest of the peninsula is likely to be accounted for by partition amongst the allies, this little bit will be subjected to a civilizing pressure which before long must produce its effect.

A POPULAR ANTISEPTIC

Professor Wenck, Ph.D., of the Imperial Institute, Berlin, has made the interesting discovery that tobacco and tobacco smoke has the property of destroying germs of that grimmest disease—Asiatic cholera. The saliva is purified from all fear of infection by tobacco smoke almost immediately. For many years, a number of medical men have been in the habit of employing tobacco as a rough and ready preventive of smallpox, and probabily had good reason for their smoking in the contagious disease hospitals. But smallpox never has been such a scourge to the world as has cholera. Canada had its battle against it in the first half of last century, and the remembrance of its awful ravages has not yet passed away.

Scientific men are already expressing their fear that the Balkan war will be followed by frightful diseases, owing to the privations endured, especially by the Turks. Cholera is especially dreaded, and Dr. Wenck's discovery will occasion much satisfaction, and, accomplish much good, if only by preventing fright, which in former visitations had a good deal of influence in bringing on the disease.

Ladies, we notice, are taking to the use of tobacco, perhaps from that prescience one commonly associate with their sex ,and because of its prophylactic properties. Not many of the male sex are likely to require excuses for their devotion to "My Lady Nicotine." But those who suffer at home from opposition to their use of the weed, have good reason to thank Dr. Wenck for his discovery. They will for the future smoke as a matter of duty, to keep their homes and their country free from the scourge of cholera.

CURRENT COMMENT

Preliminary political piffle.—Ottawa Citizen.

What's that?

* * *

There is a prospect of the Bulgars warring with the Greeks over the possession of Salonika.

The declaration of Albanian independence should help to make the solution of the Balkan problem easier.

An Austrian countess says her visit to New York cost her three dollars per minute. Apparently, the golden hours sped on at $180 per.

An error grave to make,
Would all the Bostock faction claim
It was a G. Ross mistake?

By the way, did the Toronto Globe ever liquidate that little bill of $25,000 for excess postage on its campaign literature during the last election? If not, why not?—Hamilton Spectator.

It MUST be investigated.

Sir George Ross, in his speech on the address in reply to the speech from the throne, said a naval contribution was no policy at all. "It was like throwing a penny in a beggar's cup." Well, even a penny is better than nothing. The only criticism we expect to hear when Mr. Borden proposes a contribution is that it is too large, not that it is too small. Will Sir George promise to be silent if the offering turns out to be a pretty big penny—something really worth while?—Hamilton Spectator.

We don't like to throw bouquets at ourself, but in order to encourage Kingston, Belleville and Brockkville, we might say Windsor started twelve years ago to put down permanent pavements, that we now have 25 miles of paved streets, five or ten miles being of asphalt. We are still doing it and we have the lowest debenture debt of any city in Ontario.—Windsor Record.

There is nothing of a jealous nature about us. We congratulate Windsor. But we are coming, never fear.

Cholera Claims Hundreds Daily

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The Daily Telegraph's Constantinople correspondent says: The hospitals have undergone a great improvement. The cholera patients have been cleared out of Hademkeui and are now isolated in a special camp where the victims obtain some attention. The cholera itself shows pronounced signs of diminishing, which fact is due to the cold spell of the last three days. Nevertheless, it is far from over and daily claims hundreds of victims. Although the exact figures are not known, it is calculated that 17,000 deaths have resulted from the epidemic. Only eight per cent. of those have died from dysentery and enteric fever.

The medical authorities are greatly alarmed and fear an even worse epidemic in the future. The season altogether is abnormal. The rains are long overdue. If a wet spell comes two or three days before the snow, the cholera is sure to spread with terrible rapidity. On the other hand, two or three days of snow and frost probably will wipe it out altogether.

BOILS—PIMPLES—ABCESSES

ALL EVIDENCE OF IMPURE BLOOD AND RUN-DOWN CONDITION.

When the blood becomes thin, poor, devitalized, nature cries out through such external and often painful evidence for help, and the safest, surest and most helpful remedy we know is Vinol.

This is because it is a combination of the two most world famed tonics—the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil (without the oil) and tonic iron for the blood. Vinol strengthens the digestive organs, creates a hearty appetite, purifies and enriches the blood, creates strength.

Mary Lang of Altoona, Pa., says:—"Ever since childhood I have been delicate, and my blood poor, thin, and devitalized. Nothing seemed to help me until I took Vinol and it has built me up and made me strong."

We say positively there is nothing like Vinol to purify and enrich the blood and build up weak, run-down people. If it should fail in your case we will return your money.—Red Cross Drug Store—J. S. McKeown, Belleville, Ont.

Predicts European War In 3 Years

"A general European war cannot come just at present—in about three years it will come, and when it does it will be the greatest struggle between nations in history."

So declared Mr. Fritz Ehrensperger, of Paris, who arrived in Montreal to-day and is registered at the Windsor.

"The European nations are not yet ready for the great crucial conflict," declared Mr. Ehrensperger. "Russia in particular is not now prepared to fight. She is spending huge sums on railway development and has not been able in the last few years to bring her offensive forces to the point aimed at. Nor are the nations she opposes in a position to take advantage of her. Had such not been the case, general war would have broken out over the Balkan question some weeks ago. In three years the nation will likely be the one to set all Europe by the ears. When the conflict comes it will be the most stupendous in history."

President Taft Not a Candidate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—President Taft has quietly informed friends that no matter how active his participation in a reorganization of the Republican party may be he is not to be regarded or publicly referred to in political speeches by Republicans as a possible candidate of the party in 1916.

The president intends to do all in his power to help rejuvenate the party and probably will make political speeches befoare March 4 and after he re-enters private life, but according to close friends, he is in the fight to continue the party and to return it to power, as a man who has been its standard bearer for four years and not as a man seeking a nomination.

Greeks Arrest Turkish Officers

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The report of the arrest of five hundred Turkish officers and a number of civilians, including Dr. Nazim Bey, the chief organizer ot the committee of Union and Progress, by the Greeks in Salonika is telegraphed here by a special correspondent. The arrested men have been deported to Greece.

The correspondent says this step by the Greeks was justified because the Turks violated the terms of capitulation, broke their parole, and got away in some cases by using fraudulently obtained passports.

The correspondent adds that the importance of this development will be understood when it is realized that the character of the war in Macedonia has changed and that the Greek army is now seriously harrassed by numerous guerilla bands, largely composed ot liberated soldiers.

Moreover, the Bulgarian commenders have complained that Turkish officers have left by steamer from Salonika to proceed to Constantinople for the purpose of joining their comrades fighting at Tchataldja.

It was discovered that Dr. Nazim Bey was orginizing meetings and leading numerous intrigues against the authorities.

Four Gunmen Reach Sing Sing

OSSINING, Nov. 28.—The four New York gunmen: "Gyp the Blood," "Whitey Lewis," "Lefty Louie" and "Dago Frank"—who were on Wednesday sentenced to be electrocuted at Sing Sing during the week of January 6, reached the prison at 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

They were lodged in the death chamber in cells near that of former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, who is also awaiting electrocution for the murder of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal.

The wives of "Lefty Louie," and "Gyp the Blood," and "Whitey Lewis'" sister, were permitted to walk with their relatives from the train to the prison. Sheriff Harburger, and a heavy guard of deputies escorted the gunmen, and hundreds of Ossining people joined in the procession.

The official party went inside the main gate of the prison, where on being given over to the warden each of the gunmen shook hands with Sheriff Harburger. "Each promised to call on him in New York as soon as we are released," they said.

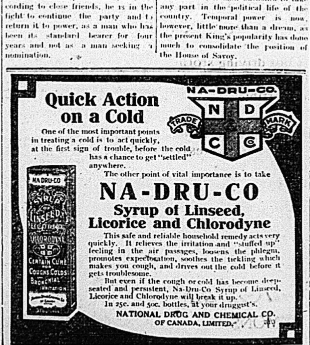
The four men filled the last vacant cells in the death house, where there are now seventeen men awaiting electrocution. They are not on the same tier with Becker, but can talk to him if they wish, as words spoken in an ordinary conversational tone can be heard throughout the death house by all the inmates.

To Be Emperor Of Rome

ROME, Nov. 28.—It is again stated on high authority that the King of Italy is about to assume the title of Emperor of Rome. If this be true it will be symbolical of the last step in the union of the kingdom of Italy, for the Papal States, or the "Holy Roman Empire," were the last part of the present kingdom to accept the new regime.

Supported by France, Rome resisted all the attempts of Garibaldi to capture it, and the House of Savoy had to be content with a kingdom without its capital. It was not until the overthrow of the French Empire in 1871, that the Italian Government was able to deal an effective blow and Rome was taken by force. The Pope, Pius IX, then withdrew to the Vatican in enforced confinement.

The Popes have always been opposed to the kingdom, and even up to 1905 forbade Roman Catholics to take any part in the political life of the country. Temporal power is now, however, little more than a dream, as the present King's popularity has done much to consolidate the position of the House of Savoy.



Quick Action on a Cold

One of the most important points in treating a cold is to act quickly, at the first sign of trouble, before the cold has a chance to get "settled" anywhere.

The other point of vital importance is to take

NA-DRU-CO
Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne

This safe and reliable household remedy acts very quickly. It relieves the irritation and "stuffed up" feeling in the air passages, loosens the phlegm, promotes expectoration, soothes the tickling which makes you cough, and drives out the cold before it gets troublesome.

But even if the cough or cold has become deep-seated and persistent, Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne will break it up.

In 25c. and 50c. bottles, at your druggist's.

Biggest Woman In The World is Dead in Montreal

MONTREAL, Nov. 28.—The biggest woman in the world died to-day in Montreal. She weighed 780 pounds. Her name was Justine Masson. Her mind became affected some time ago, and she was taken in charge by the Assistance Publique.

During her stay here her case became famous. She was so big and so strong that in her fits of insanity she used to break down the walls of rooms in which she was closed, and it was finally found necessary to build a special house for her outside the main building. She was so large that special coffin had to be built for her. Then no undertaker could be found who would endanger his hearse with the weight, so the body had to be removed in an express waggon.

On one occasion she caused a sensation at Bonaventure station by insisting on getting into a Victoria to be driven home. She got in, but the carriage had not proceeded very far befoe it broke down. She then it is said took a street car, but could not get through the door, and had to stand on the back platform, blocking the passage so that no one else could get in.

On another occasion, she was arrested and an attempt made to take her to the police station. Four policemen from nearby beats were unable to handle her, so the reserves were called out. Ultimately eight officers bundled her into a piano waggon.

THE CARE OF MARKET EGGS

By direction of the Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture a timely bulletin on the care of market eggs has been issued from Ottawa. It directs particular attention to the nature of the enormous losses that result from inadequate and unsatisfactory methods in the handling of market eggs, and suggests means by which permanent and needed improvement may be brought about in the Canadian egg trade, to the corresponding advantage of both producer and consumer.

This bulletin which is No. 10 of the Live Stock Branch constitutes a pamphlet of 24 pages in which are shown a number of clear photo engravings which are very helpful to a clear understanding of the text. Copies may be had free by applying to the Publication Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa

After describing the usual method of handling eggs and the result of lack of care of various kinds, the bulletin offers specific suggestions to the farmer, the merchant, the egg buyer, the railway and express companies, the dealers and packers, the retailer and the consumer. The farmer is enjoined among other things to remove the male bird immediately after the breeding season and market no fertile eggs; to provide roomy nests and plenty of clean nesting material; to collect the eggs regularly at least once, better twice, a day in moderate weather and more frequently in very warm and very cold weather and to remove them at once in clean utensils to a cool dry cellar; to cover with a clean cloth to prevent dust from settling upon them and also to prevent evaporation and fading; to market them in suitable cases as frequently and as directly as possible. The suggestions offered to merchants, buyers, transportation companies and others are equally specific and practical.

Wonderful Cures Reported in Germany.

The use of simple herbs as remedies instead of the more concentrated and usually more dangerous inorganic substances, has been revived very widely of late. In Germany a new school of physicians has arisen which throws out almost a whole of the pharmacopeia and relies on an adaptation of the method of wild animals in curing themselves. . . . . N. Y. World.

It was Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., who first advocated the extended use of some of our native roots, such as: Golden seal and Oregon grape root, mandrake and queen's root, black cherrybark. These are the chief ingredients in Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which has been so well and favorably known for nearly half a century. A harmless cleanser and stomach tonic that nature has provided.

J. DONALD MATHESON of Ossining, N. Y. says: "I suffered for over five years with what the doctors told me was dilated condition of the stomach, associated with a catarrhal condition of same, and nervous heart. I had tried enough nux, bismuth, gentian, rhubarb, etc., to float a ship and naturally thought there was no cure for me, but after reading what eminent doctors said of the curative qualities of the ingredients of 'Golden Medical Discovery' I gave it a fair trial. Took the 'Discovery' and also the 'Pleasant Pellets,' and can truthfully say I am feeling better now than I have in years. I cheerfully give permission to print this testimonial, and if any 'doubting Thomas' writes me I will 'put him wise' to the best all-around medicine in the country to-day."

CARVELL GIVES HINT

Down East Member Foreshadows New Liberal Policy.

In Debate on Speech From the Throne Member For Carleton, N.B., Says the Opposition Stands For Better Living at Lower Cost—Would Increase British Preference—Rogers Denies Corruption In Macdonald.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—F. B. Carvell, the Liberal member for Carleton, N.B., perhaps prematurely disclosed to the House in the debate upon the address, yesterday afternoon, some outline of the so-called "New National Policy," upon which the Liberal party hopes to unite before the next general election. He declared that the chief aim of the Liberal party was to reduce the cost of living. Cheaper clothes, cheaper food, cheaper homes and general comfort for the people would be their slogan in the next campaign. To this end he declared for an increase in the British preference, and reaffirmed the fealty of the party to reciprocity and wider markets everywhere. Before Mr. Carvell arrived at this point, however, he had been the centre of a stormy scene in the debate on the Macdonald election. One of the Liberals arrested had been lodged in jail at Portage la Prairie, he said, and in spite of Mr. Meighen's statement to the contrary, Mr. Carvell insisted that he had not been allowed to consult a lawyer for several days. This was proved to be untrue by the affidavit of the man himself.

The Minister of Public Works declared that the victory in Macdonald had been an honest, clean-cut victory. The Conservatives had won because they denounced reciprocity. The Minister had stated reciprocity in that campaign and now declared to the House that there was no honest sentiment for reciprocity in Western Canada.

The Liberals had attempted to win in Macdonald by appeals to the Roman Catholic voters, he said. Such appeals had been made by Mr. Boyer and by Mr. Gauthier and by a French Liberal newspaper in Winnipeg, which had described the Conservative party as "the slave of the Orange Order." These appeals had failed in their design. But they had not been relied upon exclusively by the Liberal party, which he charged with seeking by bribery and every kind of electoral corruption to snatch a favorable verdict from the Macdonald electorate.

According to Mr. Rogers, no one had been improperly arrested and the authorities had erred only in showing too much leniency to men who were very properly placed under arrest.

As to the Richelieu bye-election Mr. Rogers denied authorizing Sir Rodolphe Forget to promise the marine railway to the electors of Sorel. "I never heard of the marine railway," he continued, "until weeks after the election."

In conclusion Mr. Rogers said that he believed the Government could carry any riding in Canada where reciprocity was the issue. He quoted from a speech by President-elect Wilson, to the effect that the Canadians had better adapt the tariff to their economic needs than had the people of the United States.

Mr. Carvell, after discussing the Macdonald bye-election, outlined the ideal of the Liberal party. "We want cheaper food for the working people," Mr. Carvell said, and at the suggestion of someone sitting near him, declared that the chief purpose of the party was to reduce the cost of living and improve the general condition of the people. To this end he favored an increase in the British preference and all arrangements within and without the Empire which would increase the trade of Canada.

As to reciprocity Mr. Carvell declared himself strongly in favor of it. He did not believe that the Tories could carry another election on the reciprocity issue, "even though they waved the flag and crucified Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Ontario because of his creed."

Mr. Carvell then presented tables of statistics to show that the Canadian people were paying millions of dollars into the United States treasury because of the defeat of reciprocity. The Canadian producers, in his opinion, paid the duty upon all cattle, fish, hay, lumber, lathes and shingles exported from Canada to the U. S.

One Canadian to his knowledge had lost fifty thousand dollars on account of the hay duty. In New Brunswick and Quebec, according to Mr. Carvell, the people all regretted the defeat of reciprocity.

Trade arrangements with the British West Indies and Australia were commendable, as were all arrangements that gave us wider markets. Wider markets, cheaper living, and a substantial increase in the British preference were, together with reciprocity, "nailed to the mast" by Mr. Carvell.

Mr. Boyce, who followed Mr. Carvell, called upon Mr. Graham, Mr. Lemieux and Mr. Pugsley to also stand up and declare where they stood on the reciprocity issue.

Mr. Placaud, the Liberal member for Megantic, Quebec, said that the people of his province were not unwilling to contribute to Imperial defence, and that no sensible person would condemn the proposals of the Government in advance.

Mr. Turriff, Liberal member for Assiniboia, declared that the Government was under the influence of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. This accounted in Mr. Turriff's opinion, for the refusal of a conciliation board to the men in the recent strike.

That strike, he said, was causing a grain blockade at Fort William. It was at the instigation of the C.P.R. that the standard of the National Transcontinental had been degraded between Cochrane and Quebec.

Woman Perishes In Field.

Brockville, Nov. 29.—Miss Louise Moore, daughter of F. L. Moore, justice of the peace, residing near Addison, was found dead in a field twenty rods from her father's home, clothed only in her night dress.

She had been ill for some time, and it is supposed that during the night, unnoticed to the other members of the family, she walked from the house and perished from exposure. She was about 40 years of age. No inquest will be held.

THE JOY OF GIVING

"'Tis more blessed to give than to receive," says the Good Book, and we are continually receiving letters that prove the truth of this maxim.

Here's an extract that tells how the good work we are doing in the fight against Consumption appeals to every section of the community.

A well-known citizen of Brantford writes: "On Christmas morning my boys gave me $2.50 to get some present for myself that I wanted. I think you can use it to good advantage in your noble work in the National Sanitarium Association, so am enclosing it for that purpose."

Doesn't it make you feel proud to know that there are Canadian fathers with the self-sacrificing instinct so strongly imbued in them?

Isn't it good to realize that the rising generation is getting such a splendid example shown them? Last year it cost over $62,000.00 to keep the Muskoka Free Hospital open. More money is urgently needed to provide for those seeking admission.

The needy Consumptive is right at your door. Won't you help him to help himself?

The smallest gift will be most acceptable. Just slip your contribution in an envelope to-day, while you think of it, addressed to MR. W. J. GAGE, Chairman of the Executive Committee, 84 Spadina Ave.; or MR. R. DUNBAR, Sec. Treas., 347 King West, Toronto, and experience the real joy of giving.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

CHALLENGE TO AUSTRIA

Servia Has Rendered European Situation Critical.

The Occupation of Durazzo By Balkan Kingdom Is Taken as Equivalent To a Challenge and Diplomats Are Anxiously Awaiting the Outcome—Powers Are Seeking a Conference —Excitement In Vienna.

London, Nov. 29.—The Servians, ignoring the proclamation of Albanian independence, have occupied the port of Durazzo without resistance. This information comes in a direct despatch from that town last night.

Thus the conflict is now raised in acute form between Austria and Servia, and it remains to be seen whether the Austrian Government will take any direct action or will be content to leave the question for the after-the-war settlement.

The Servian action, coupled with the eminently warlike feeling prevailing at Vienna, is likely to keep Europe in a continued state of anxiety. On the other hand, the fact that the negotiations are progressing at Baghtche, and that there is no sign of the resumption of operations on the Tchatalja lines, while the great powers are exchanging proposals for the assembling of a European conference, all make for a peaceful settlement.

Should the proposed conference materialize — for apparently Austria has not yet consented to participate—it would be considered as preparatory to a later full conference, which would include the Balkan States and Turkey, for a final settlement of all questions.

Nothing has been decided as to where the conference will be held or precisely what questions will be discussed.

The project appears to have arisen out of a general sense of irritation at the inevitable delays necessitated by the constant telegraphic interchanges of views.

Great secrecy is preserved regarding the conference at Baghtche, and it is not known whether the plenipotentiaries are discussing the terms of an armistice or bases for the conclusion of peace.

It is reported from Rome that a provisional Albanian Government has been constituted by eighty Albanian delegates.

No Resistance at Durazzo.

Durazzo, Albanian, Nov. 29.—The Servian troops occupied the town yesterday. No resistance was offered.

The Austrian Lloyd steamer Graf Wurmbrand left immediately with a number of refugees.

Durazzo is the port on the Adriatic which Austria is determined Servia shall not hold.

Austrian Army Mobilized.

Vienna, Nov. 29.—Much excitement has been occasioned by the action of the Government in arranging for the mobilization of the Austrian army, which proves the Ministers' determination to be fully prepared for any developments in the Balkan crisis.

The Parliamentary leaders met last night and decided to allow the Premier's three bills dealing with matters connected with the mobilization to go to committee without the customary first reading.

According to The Neue Freie Presse, the Premier in announcing the bills to the procedure committee told the Parliamentary leaders that there was no change in the international situation. The Neue Freie Presse regards this as an admission that the situation is still critical.

Another incident commented upon as being of equal importance to that of the recent visit to Berlin of Gen. Schemua, chief of staff, is the visit of Field Marshal Baron von Hoetzendorf, inspector-general of the Austrian army, to Bucharest, where he arrived Wednesday as the guest of King Charles. He bears an autograph letter from the Austrian Emperor, and will confer with the Roumanian chief of staff.

War Feeling Strong.

London, Nov. 29.—The Daily Mail's Vienna correspondent says it is believed in military circles that Austria will take no steps to drive the Servians out of Durazzo, at least until her preparations are completed, because such a step would almost certainly bring her into conflict with Russia.

The war feeling in Vienna is very strong. Patriotic songs are sung in the music halls and there are military concerts nightly.

From Alaska to Balkans.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Of all the natives of the Balkan States who have returned to their respective countries to take part in the present Turkish war, the long-distance record must be conceded to a party of 48 Servians from Fairbanks, Alaska. In miles the distance of the journey of these soldiers is 4,500.

The party came by way of Seattle, Wash., and passed through Chicago on Wednesday evening. A special G.T.R. car carried the men from Chicago to New York, where they caught the boat yesterday.

Big Price For Winnipeg Land.

Winnipeg, Nov. 29.—The property formerly owned and occupied by the Eastern Townships Bank, on the east side of Main street, near the corner of Portage avenue, and now owned and occupied by the Canadian Bank of Commerce, has been purchased by the Dominion Trust Co. The price was $300,000, or $7,500 a foot. This is the highest price ever paid for Winnipeg property. The lot has a frontage of 40 feet on Main street.

Montreal Votes Cost $6.25.

Montreal, Nov. 29.—Each man who voted in the St. Denis Ward election Wednesday to fill the vacancy in the City Council cost the city $6.25. The expenses of the city for the election amounted to $15,000, and as only 2,406 out of more than 15,000 voters went to the polls, the average cost was $6.25 per man and woman who cast their ballots.

Cheese Markets.

KINGSTON, Nov. 28.—At a meeting of the Frontenac Cheese Board today 828 boxes of colored cheese were boarded; 120 sold at 10¾c.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 28.—At today's cheese board meeting the offerings were 305 colored and 125 white. The highest offer, 10¾c., was refused. Board adjourned for the season.

GERMANY'S AIR NAVY

Fleet of Twenty Zeppelin Dirigibles Will Be Built.

Powerful Airships Will Be Equipped For War Service, According to Well Founded Stories Current In Lobby of Reichstag — Air Craft Passed Over Sheerness on Oct. 14 Hon. Mr. Churchill Admits.

Berlin, Nov. 29.—In the lobbies of the Reichstag yesterday discussion centred on what is now regarded as the certain appearance of Germany's first aeriel navy law.

I am able to state on reliable authority that the recommendations of the German War Office and Admiralty include the creation, as a beginning, of a fleet of twenty Zeppelin airships of about 920,000 cubic feet capacity, capable of traveling fifty-one miles an hour, and remaining aloft four days and four nights without landing, and capable of carrying and discharging a ton of explosives.

From the same authority I learn that Gen. Von Moltke, chief of the general staff, a few months ago unsuccessfully sought to induce the Government to bring in estimates for a fleet of twenty-five Zeppelins.

Mr. Churchill's Admission.

New York, Nov. 29.—A London cable says: Following an announcement from Berlin that the latest Zeppelin dirigible, manned by a crew of 18 men, and costing $175,000, on her test flight flew successfully for four days, dropping a third of a ton of high explosives on to a huge raft, which was destroyed. Mr. W. Joynson Hicks, M.P., in the House of Commons yesterday questioned the First Lord of the Admiralty as to the identity of an airship which passed over Sheerness on Oct. 14.

Mr. Winston Churchill admitted that it was not a British airship, and confessed that England had no airship equal to Zeppelin's, or capable of traveling sixty miles an hour. The navy has aeroplanes capable of traveling seventy miles an hour, but there was no doubt Germany held pre-eminence in airships.

Col. Seely said the army has five aeroplanes capable of making seventy miles an hour, and fifteen now are being constructed. He refused to tell whether Great Britain has guns capable of hitting air craft six thousand feet high.

Mondou's Amendment.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—The amendment to the speech to the throne proposed by A. Mondou, member for Yamaska, reads as follows:

"This party is ready and willing at all times to adopt effective measures for the defence of Canada as a self-governing colony under the British crown, but we are nevertheless of the opinion that the Parliament of Canada is not justified in imposing upon the people of Canada obligations for the general defence of the Empire, so long as under the existing constitutional relations between Canada and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, His Majesty's Government, which is solely responsible to the people of the United Kingdom, retains exclusive control and direction of Imperial and international affairs."

Austria Demands Evacuation by Servia

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The Vienna correspondent of the Times says that some of the Foreign Office organs assert that the Austrian demand on Servia is an irreducible minimum from which neither the Powers nor Servia will be able to subtract an article.

The Neuer Wiener Tagblatt declares, he adds, in a semi-official note, that Austria will not allow Servia to possess Durazzo under any circumstances whatever, and that Servia will be obliged to evacuate Durazzo together with the rest of Albania.

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Belgrade says he learns from a reliable source that Servia is abandoning her claims to Albanian territory, but insists upon an independent action on the Adriatic.

In leaving Albania to the care of the Powers, the correspondent adds, Servia hopes that her claim to a port on the Adriatic will be admitted by all the powers, including Austria.

All the officers and military officials of the special Servian reserve forces, not hitherto summoned, have received orders to join their commands within twenty-four hours.

Women would never be successful as plain clothes detectives.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION TO REV. FATHER MEEHAN

The spacious lecture room of the T. A.S. in St. Michael's Academy was crowded to over-flowing last evening by members of the society as well as of the congregation, who assembled to do honor to Rev. Father Meehan, who leaves today for Morrisburg, Ont.

Since the advent in this parish nearly six years ago of Rev. Father Meehan, he has, by his untiring zeal and never ceasing work done much for the Catholic people of Belleville and has not only endeared himself to the congregation, but to all who came in contact with him. As a strong advocate of temperance, one of his first efforts here was the establishment of St. Michael's Total Abstinence Society, which today is a widely known power for good. Father Meehan has been the leading spirit in this movement since its very inception and has seen it grow until today it stands as the most progressive element in the Catholic congregation. His place in this organization will be a very hard one to fill.

Dr. Dolan acted as chairman of the meeting last evening in his usual gracious manner and he explained that the object of the meeting was to present Father Meehan with an address and purse of gold as a mark of appreciation of his great services here. Father on being escorted to the hall was roundly cheered. The address was read by Mr. T. J. Hurley, president of the T. A. S., while the presentation was made by Mr. Jno. Donovan on behalf of the congregation and the T.A.S.

Father Meehan, though visibly affected, replied eloquently to the address and interspersed his remarks with some of the rare humor for which he is noted. In reviewing his ministry here he stated that he had acted under three of the noblest men he ever hoped to meet—the late Rev. D. A. Twomey, Archibishop Spratt, and the present incumbent, Father Killeen. "The first of these, Father Twomey, is in Heaven—while Archbishop Spratt is detained at Kingston," said Father Meehan, "and as I wish to stand in the good graces of the authorities in both places, will say nothing of their good work here." He classed Father Killeen as a worthy successor to those who preceded him.

Rev. J. A. Meehan was born at Panmuer, Ont., in 1879. He attended the district public school, entering Ottawa University in 1893 and was graduated from that seat of learning in 1900 with the degrees of Ph.B. and B.A. Father Meehan delivered the valedictory address for his year. He began the study of theology in the Ottawa Seminary, where he remained one year, finishing his studies in the Grand Seminary in Montreal. On Dec. 19th, 1903, he was ordained priest by Archbishop Bruchesi in St. James Cathedral, Montreal, his first appointment being in Gananoque, where he labored for three years, coming to Belleville in the spring of 1907 as assistant to the late Rev. D. A. Twomey. Father Meehan refused the appointment of Parish Priest at South Mountain, Ont., to come to Belleville.

Father Meehan was a class leader all through his course in the university and won many medals. In the year 1899 he won the medal presented by His Excellency the Governor General for competition among the medalists of Ottawa University and which therefore represented the highest average for the year, of any student in the college.

The following is a copy of the address presented to Father Meehan:

Rev. J. A. Meehan,
Belleville, Ont.

Rev. and Dear Father,—

It was with a sense of sincere regret that we learned you are soon to leave us to assume charge of the Parish of Morrisburg and we have come tonight to meet you to give expression to the promptings of our hearts by publicly tendering our felicitations on the promotion with which you have been honored, and which we take to be the issue of your eventful and successful sojourn here. The pride we feel in your advancement is, however, mitigated by the sorrow that is ours since we must say tonight so reluctantly, the words which on this occasion are so full of pathos—farewell.

The Catholic people of Belleville will ever cherish for you a grateful pride, for here it was that you erected the first monument of your priestly zeal the Total Abstinence Society of St. Michael's Church—since its inception the most progressive element in the congregation. We realize that to you, more than any one else, is due the credit for establishing on such a firm basis this most worthy institution, and also, that you have safeguarded its interests with unceasing vigilance.

The fruits of the Total Abstinence Society are manifold—the standard of Catholic manhood in Belleville has been raised, the minds of our young men have been inspired by a spirit of temperance and they have been taught to take their place in the public discussion of affairs; and the practice of the virtue which this noble society extols, has reclaimed to society and to their dear ones, many who had fallen beneath the level of man's estate. This has been a great work. We firmly believe that the progressive development of this organization was due in a great measure to the fact that it looked to you for its fatherly counsel and example, and we find, through your spiritual ministrations and kindly offices to all, you had, quite unconsciously of course, moulded our minds to the persuasion that your inspiring presence was a necessary element to its continued success, since it would seem that Heaven had gifted you with a prudence not often found in men of more mature years. St. Michael's Total Abstinence Society yields to none in the expression of their keen sorrow at your departure.

The congregation as a whole have also benefitd by your unflagging zeal for Holy Mother Church. Your aims have constantly been toward the uplifting of all to a higher and better understanding of the Christian virtues which give glory to God and true character to fellow-men.

In parting with you tonight we promise you our prayers for length of days in the noble work of His Church; for God's abundant graces and His blessings on all your undertakings, and we trust hat you, too, may sometimes think of us.

We, the members of St. Michael's Abstinence Society, assisted by many voluntary expressions from the congregation, ask you to accept this purse of gold as a remembrance of the Total Abstinence Society and St. Michael's Congregation.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Land Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within 9 miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him, by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER

By C. J. CUTCLIFFE HYNE

"But," continued Miss O'Neill, "you and I and Laura will talk over that later when we are alone."

Captain Image felt that he cleared away an awkward situation with all the savoir faire of a shipmaster. "Well, Carter, me lad," said he, "we know you've had a lot of lessons from old Swizzle-Stick Smith, but what about a cocktail? My Christian look out, Balgarnie, there's Laura fainting."

Carter stared at them dully but did not try to help. "My God," he mutterer, "to think I never guessed that K. could stand for Kate."

CHAPTER VIII

Presents The Head of The Firm.

"I don't care what you say, Purser, me lad," Captain Image repeated, "but I call Miss O'Neill pretty."

"Well," admitted Mr. Balgarnie, who prided himself on being a bit of a judge, "she may be that as well, but I still stick to it that her face is what I call strong."

"I hate the word 'strong'. When a she-missionary is too homely looking to be anything else, she prides herself on wearing a strong face."

"No, sir. 'Intense' for lady missionary," Mr. Balgarnie corrected.

'Strong,' snapped his superior officer. Captain Image was of Welsh extraction and disliked contradiction.

The purser shifted his ground. "Well, at any rate, sir, you'll own she's mighty standoffish. I used to call good old Godfrey O'Neill, Godfrey, and therefore naturally I called his daughter Kate, and told her why. She didn't seem to hear me."

"She wasn't Godfrey's daughter, anyway. Godfrey never married, but I believe he'd nieces. Probably Miss Kate is one of them. The old man must have left her the business. Thing that amazes me is the way she's taken her grip of the concern, and made it hum."

"And kept it dark even in Liverpool that she was a woman. That old head clerk of hers, that people thought was the manager, must be a rare close-lipped one."

"He is, blight him!" said Captain Image with emphasis "I called in htere two or three times after I had got some of those please-buck-up letters from O'Neill and Craven, that I didn't care about, and the cauliflower-headed old humbug clean took me in. He was Mr. Crewdson, to be sure; no, he was not Mr. K. O'Neill; no I couldn't see Mr. K. just then; no, he couldn't make an appointment for me with the gentleman; anything I wanted he would attend to personally. If I re-read the letters he was sure I should find that they were not unreasonable, but, on the other hand, would put me in the way of earning extra commission on cargo for myself. So it ended in my being civil to him, and he was really nothing more than a clerk. You can just picture to yourself, Purser, what I felt when I found out that I'd been civil to a clerk by mistake."

"It was pretty hard lines, sir."

"Of course a West African merchant's business is a rum contract for a young girl to catch hold of, and I don't say Miss Kate was wrong in keeping in the background to start with. In fact I'll own up straight that she was right and the proof's plain in the way that firm's come back tolife . Why, Purser, I'll bet you a bottle of Eno, that O'Neill and Craven are doing just double the turn-over now they did twelve months ago."

"You'll know best about that, sir," said Mr. Balgarnie with a sigh, as he remembered that only Captain Image touched commission on the cargo which the M'poso collected on herthe Coast. "But I will own up that she has got the knack of making all the smarter men in the firm both on the Coast and at Liverpool keen on her when they thought she was a man. Of course it was a bit unlikely that the old-timer palm-oil ruffians like Swizzle-Stick Smith and Owe-it-Slade would take to new ways that meant more work, all at once, thought for that matter I'll bet Slade put off making up his mind for so long as to whether he liked hustling or he didn't, that finally he dropped into the new ways without knowing it."

"Slade's gone off up-country to find the firm a rubber property, purser, me lad. Laura told me about it last night. She hasn't heard of him once since he pulled out of Smooth River, and she's very anxious about him. I hope none of those up-country bushmen have chopped Slade. I should be sorry to lose that man. He owes me a matter of three sovereigns, and that old Holland gun of mine that he borrowed for half an hour eighteen months ago has gone up-country with him. I believe he's in the ribs of the fo'c'sle shop, too, for the thick end of a fiver."

'Four-seventeen-nine. I've given both Chips and the bo's'n a rare dressing down about it. They've no business to let anyone with Slade's reputation have as much tick as that. The bo's'n's new to the Coast. Our bo's'ns always do seem to die, sir—but old Chips ought to know, that's no way to run a fo'c'sle shop. They can chuck away their own money as they choose, but I told them both plainly that I can't afford to drop my share in a sum like that."

"Nor can I," said the other sleeping partner. "You can let both Chips and the bo's'n understand that unless I see a good round sum in hard cash as my share of profits when we get back to Liverpool, they don't ride in the old M'poso next trip. They can put their book debts where the monkey put the nuts. They don't pay me out with those. No, by Crumbs!"

"Mis Kate, by the way, was mighty anxious to know what profits there were in fo'c'sle shops. Of course I said I'd heard of them on other boats, but we'd never allow such a thing on the M'poso."

"Um," said Captain Image thoughtfully, "that tale's all right for most passengers, but I don't think I'd risked it with Miss Kate. She strikes me as being a young woman who likes to hear one's opinion on things, but generally has her own information on the matter already cut and packed beforehand. I told her last night how sorry I was to see all that cargo waiting at the factory with no Krooboys to work it out of their creek to the steamboat. By Crumbs! Balgarnie, me lad, she had nipped off back to the M'poso her, and had hired our own blessed deck passenger boys for th job before you could say 'gin.' You know what an independent lot they are, going home with money in their pockets. I bet you a box of oranges you couldn't name me two white men on the Coast who could have persuaded them. Bus she did it, onetime, and only paid regular wages, too. Dressed for dinner in the evening when she'd finished, just as if she was merely a tripper going home from the Islands, and hadn't an object in life outside trying to tickle the boys with looks. I tell you, Miss Kate's a very remarkable young woman, Balgarnie, me lad, and if she doesn't peg out here on the Coast, or go broke over floating a rubber swindle, or get married and chuck it, I shall feather my nest very nicely over the cargo she gets shipped."

"I say Captain, what's between her and Laura? They seem to know one another pretty intimately."

"Met in Las Palmas when they were kiddies. Pass me the compasses oft that chart table. My pipe's jammed. Thank you, lad. Owe-it Slade got two years' tick at that convent school out on the Talde road for Laura and Miss Kate was running about the islands a good deal then with old Godfrey. Godfrey had a tomato farm out past Santa Brigida, and they used to have Laura up there for her holidays. By Crumbs, Purser, me lad, how that little girl's shot up. It's a dashed pity she's a nigger."

"D'you suppose Carter knows it?"

"If he doesn't I shan't tell him, and don't you; for two reasons. First, there is Miss Kate to be thought of. I watched the way the girl eyed him, and by Crumbs, I tell you, me lad, I was glad he was booked. She's going to stay out here on the Coast for a good spell, and he'll be close and handy, and somehow I've got the opinion that red-headed chap is just the sort of man she'll marry. He's not a beauty, but he's a good, tough, wholesome face on him; he's a lot struck on her and he's a gentleman. I can do with her bossing; she's a nice way of wrapping up her pill and ramming it home with a smile. But I'd not like to see a red-haired youngster I brought out here as a clerk eighteen months ago, head of the O'Neill and Craven concern and expecting me to knuckle under. I'd do it, of course; I'd be civil to the old Harry himself me lad, if he could bring cargo to the M'poso; but I'll not deny to you it would stick if I had to start ladling out champagne in this chart house to Carter, and sit and listen whilst he strutted out his views on the decay of British influence in West Africa."

"It would be pretty tough," Mr. Belgarnie admitted. "But you said there was another reason why you wanted him to marry Laura."

Walked in Her Sleep, Found Dead In The Snow

Getting out of her bed in what is persumed to have been a period of somnambulism, Miss Louise Moore, thirty-five years of age, daughter of Frederick L. Moore, a prominent farmer of Elizabethtown, met a terrible death early Wednesday morning. As she did not answer the call for breakfast, investigation was made, and tracks in the snow led to the finding of her body in a field nearby. She was attired in her nightdress, with but one stocking on and the other in her hand. Dr. Hart, of Athens, was called, and found that death was due to exposure.

Bought For Berlin Gallery

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—At the Lippman art sale today the following purchases were made for the Kaiser Frederich Museum:

A relief portraying a gladiatorial combat, by a German artist of the middle of the sixteenth century, price $5,875; "The Death of the Virgin," a small bas-relief by a German artist of about 1470, price $4,750; a small relief representing Christ and the Virgin, which was executed at Augsburg about 1520, price $1,000; "The Virgin's Visit to the Temple," a polychrome relief by a Westphalian artist of about 1470, price $10,000.

A Vienna collector gave $8,000 for a figure of St. Stephen by the sculptor Tilman Riemenschneider. A Paris collector paid $3,875 for a painting of the Magdalene by a Netherlands artist.

Youthful Witness at Trial of Dynamiters

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 29.—As the youngest witness yet to testify, Miss Clo Beard, fourteen years old, picked out from the forty-five defendants at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial to-day two men whom she said she saw shortly before an explosion at North Randall, Ohio, on March 25, 1911. In that explosion an ore conveyor was blown up by nitro-glycerine with $50,000 damage.

The little witness, garbed in a pink dress, climbed the high witness chair and looking toward the accused "bomb plotters," told her story.

Proposed Trenton Club

A general meeting of the Trenton Club was held in the Town Hall on Monday evening and many of the gentlemen interested in the scheme were present.

Plans were considered for a Club House which if adopted will be an attraction to the Town. The site proposed is on the Bay near the park.

It was decided to form a company with shares at $25.00 each to pay for the erection of buildings, dock, etc.

A committee was appointed to obtain names of subscribers, consisting of Messrs. Isley, McIntyre, Fellowes, Hooey and Dunkley.—Trenton Courier.

THE BELLEVILLE DISTRICT SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

The annual Sunday School Convention of the Belleville District of the Methodist Church was held yesterday in the Tabernacle Church.

There are about thirty-five Sunday Schools included in the District. Delegates were present from Belleville Schools and many surrounding points, at Canifton, Moira, Sidney, Wallbridge, Plainfield, Wesley, Eggleton, Zion's Hill, Shannonville, Melrose, Centenary, etc.

Rev. E. B. Cooke, District S. S. Secretary, occupied the chair at the afternoon session. Rev. C. H. Coon, chairman of the Peterborough District being present, conducted the opening exercises. Addresses were given by the following speakers: W. H. Finkle, Rev. E. A. Tonkin, H. F. Denyes, Rev. F. L. Farwell, Field Secretary, Toronto. The subjects dealt with were: "Teacher Training," "What Shall we Teach in our Sunday Schools?" "Mission Work in Sunday Schools," and "Round Table Conference." The evening session was opened with Rev. W. G. Clarke, B.A., Chairman of the Belleville District, in the chair.

"My faith Looks up to Thee" was sung and the Revs. Sanderson and Osborne led in prayer. Mr. Finkle presented the report of the Business Committee. The main feature of the report was the decision to join with the Epworth Leagues in the support of Dr. Percy Jones in China and the Bentley Mission in Alberta. A committee consisting of Revs. Clarke and Cooke, and Messrs. Denyes, Bailey and Finkle were appointed to give effect to this movement. To this committee was also assigned the duty of arranging a system of grouping of the Sunday Schools of the district for the purpose of holding Sunday School Institutes. Rev. E. B. Cooke was appointed Convener.

Rev. F. L. Farewell gave a most valuable address on the vital subject of "The Need of Evangelism in the Sunday Schools." The reasons advanced were:—

1. Present conditions.
3. The Sunday School years are the natural time.
3. Youth is the time of forming character and habit.
5. It gives youth the privilege of multiplying itself in service.
6. It is the time of strongest temptations.

Mr. Farewell further set forth methods by which the work of evangelism should be promoted.

Rev. D. M. Perley, B.A., returned missionary from West China, spoke on the special work of the Methodist Church in West China.

As John Hay, recently Secretary of State in the United States, has said: "The present era is the Era of Asia."

All our great religious classics come to us from the orient. Looking at China the field as a whole is so immense, we can only attempt to set before you one small part of it—West China, the province of Sz Shuen. And yet this province alone contains about as many people as the whole German Empire, variously estimated from 67 to 90 millions of people. There are at least five distinct races in Sz Chuen. The real Chinese, the manchus, the Thibetans, the Aboriginal tribes and the Mohammedans. These are as distinct as the English and French in Canada. Nevertheless, China is a sea that salts everything that comes into it.

Sz Chuen is the most progressive and open minded of all the Chinese Empire.

We are carrying forward our mission work in four ways: by means of the press, education, medicine and evangelism.

The address was replete with information and natural touches that held the closest attention of the audience. Hearty expression of appreciation was given by the audience. This interesting convention closed with singing "God be With You till we Meet Again."

Drowned Near Trenton

There was a drowning accident here last Saturday of which a man named Daly was the victim. He arrived in town only a day or two ago and engaged as a laborer with Larkin & Sangster, government contractors, who are at present occupied in the work of removing the lower dam. In some way Daly slipped off the scaffolding and was immediately carried over the dam. There is a large body of water going down the river at present and he was carried under the current. His body had not yet been recovered. He was a stranger in town except that his name was Daly. He was apparently about thirty years of age.—Trenton Advocate.

Innocent in Prison

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Fresh from a Thanksgiving Day that was one of real thanksgiving, Albert T. Patrick, pardoned from Sing Sing a dozen years after the death of William Marsh Rice, for whose murder he was convicted, today went down to hold a conference with his counsel, William M. K. Olcott, preparatory to his fight for vindication and the Marsh millions.

Patrick said that he would soon leave New York with his daughter and faithful wife who married him ten years ago while he was a prisoner in the Tombs, but he would not say where he planned to go. He was also uncertain whether he would attempt to resume the practice of the law, but said he would make an effort to be reinstated in the New York bar.

Leaving the home where he spent his first night of liberty, Patrick said he first was going to see some relatives of Sing Sing prisoners, to deliver in person messages which were entrusted to him.

"There are in the prisons of New York many men innocent of the crimes for which they were committed, and who could not get justice because they were cut off from relatives and friends," he said. "I know of many such cases."

The freed man intimated that he might take up the cases of some of these men and try to regain their liberty for them.

Poets are born—likewise also those who only think they are poets.

Plays For The Children

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—A children's theatre, the only playhouse in the world devoted exclusively to the entertainment of children, is to be opened in New York next month. The funds for the enterprise were provided by William K. Vanderbilt but it is expected to be self-supporting. The auditorium, which is placed on the roof of the building erected by Mr. Vanderbilt and others for their new theatre enterprise, will seat 800 children and has twelve boxes. The wall decorations are in nursery style and great arched windows, looking out over Central park give it an abundance of pure, fresh air. Plays are to be given in the afternoon beginning at 3.30 o'clock, an hour convenient for school children.

Hickey Confesses

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 29.—J. Frank Hickey, of Quincy, Mass., has confessed to the murder of seven-year old Joseph Joseph, of Lackawana, the crime of which he stands indicted.

He has also confessed to the murder of Michael Kruck, the young New York newsboy, ten years ago.

The confessions came yesterday, as the result of a conference by District Attorney Dudley with the man, and were made public by the country prosecutor shortly after noon to-day.

Calmly and deliberately Hickey told the story of his crimes. He related the facts leading up to them with consummate sang froid of an arch fiend and the face of a child, but when he came to the actual tale of the committing of the murder, he broke down and wept.

"Drink, drink, that is what caused my terrible downfall!" exclaimed the man, as his frame shook with sobs.

BELLEVILLE MAN FOUND DEAD IN TORONTO HOUSE

TORONTO, Nov. 30.—Special—Andrew Latta of Belleville, aged sixty-seven years, was found asphyxiated in his bedroom at 83 Ann street yesterday morning. He had arrived in the city the night before from Manitoba and intended visiting relatives in the city for a few days before returning to Belleville.

Mrs. Hamilton had warmed his room by means of a gas heater connected with a tube from the illuminating jet and had carefully turned off both taps before Mr. Latta retired. It is thought he got up towards morning and endeavored to turn the heater on again, as it was turned on full when the fatality was discovered. Besides his sister, the deceased had two nieces in the city. The Chief Coroner is investigating.

Turkish Losses Heavy

Intelligencer Special.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 30.—The Turkish losses since war started are estimated at 200,000, of which 50,000 have been killed or died of cholera.

Find Refuge In Switzerland

Geneva, Nov. 29.—Expelled from nearly every European country, the Mormons have made Switzerland, with headquarters at Zurich, their working centre on the continent, and continue to exploit Swiss and other girls without fear of interference. The Mormons who were condemned to prison won a test case some years ago before the federal tribunal at Lausanne on the grounds that they were allowed the same privileges as other religious bodies in Switzerland, and that they could be expelled only for moral reasons, as, for instance, if they preached polygamy, a subject which they are careful to avoid in public.

A hundred Swiss girls and a thousand European girls of all nationalities, under golden promises are sent across the Atlantic to Utah every year. England and Switzerland are the only European countries in which the Mormons are tolerated.

FOWLER VS. PUGSLEY

Old Antagonists Have Tilt in the House Debate.

Member For King's Sharply Resents the ex-Minister's Attack on Sir Rodolphe Forget In the Latter's Absence—Pugsley Does Not Believe There Is a Naval Crisis — Still Strong For Reciprocity.

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—There was a lively time in the House yesterday between Hon. Wm. Pugsley and G. W. Fowler, the Conservative member for King's, N.B. They have met on many a field in New Brunswick, and Mr. Fowler has more than once entertained the House with his version of Mr. Pugsley's somewhat kaleidoscopic political career. Yesterday he followed the ex-Minister and challenged sharply many of the statements made by Mr. Pugsley in a long speech, which touched upon reciprocity, the navy and the bye-elections in Macdonald and Richelieu. Mr. Fowler succeeded where others failed in procuring a re-affirmation of their belief in reciprocity from prominent Liberal members, including Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Wm. Pugsley and Hugh Guthrie. Mr. Pugsley, following the lead of Mr. Carvell, also declared for an increase in the British preference, and for the new Liberal platform, and declared the party's mission to be "to alleviate the burdens now imposed on the great masses of the people, and reduce the steadily increasing cost of living."

Mr. Pugsley said he favored a Canadian navy. Mr. Borden and colleagues had gone to England to find an emergency, and, from what we can learn they were disappointed.

Mr. Pugsley described the part which Sir Rodolphe Forget played in the Richelieu bye-election. Sir Rodolphe, in the presence of Mr. Lemieux and another M.P., and also as reported in La Patrie and The Montreal Star newspapers, told the electors at Sorel that he was authorized by Hon. Mr. Rogers to promise a subsidy for the marine railway in case a Conservative candidate was returned at the bye-election. Now Mr. Rogers having denied that he ever heard of the marine railway, or in any way authorized Sir Rodolphe to make this announcement, the latter, according to Mr. Pugsley, was guilty of conduct unbecoming a member of Parliament.

A statement made by Mr. Pugsley in reference to the naval question was to the effect that the present Government had refused to award the contract for dredging and other works at the harbor of St. John, N.B., to Cammel, Laird & Co., the British shipbuilding firm, who couple with their tender for the work an undertaking to establish a shipyard at St. John for the construction of war vessels. Had the contract been awarded to this firm Canada by this time would have had at least one warship ready for service.

The Borden Government, he said, had turned down this tender for the express purpose of destroying the prospects for Canadian-built ships for service in naval defence.

Mr. Fowler declared that since the member for Charlevoix (Sir Rodolphe Forget) was not in his seat, he was therefore being stabbed in the back. He assured the House that a satisfactory explanation would be forthcoming.

Mr. Fowler, referring to the navy question, said that Canada should be as patriotic as the Malays and the Hindus.

He dealt with the economic arguments of Messrs. Carvell and Pugsley. These gentlemen, he said, could not agree whether it was the producer or the consumer who paid the tariff tax. In this connection, he read a telegram to the effect that the price of potatoes was practically the same in Maine and New Brunswick. Mr. Carvell had told the House that there was a spread of 45 cents a barrel in favor of the Maine potato grower.

Mr. McKay, the Conservative member for Prince Albert, opened the debate upon the address yesterday afternoon, dealing principally with the cut in the cement duty, which he said had been demanded by the entire west.

Hon. Mr. Coderre, Secretary of State, was introduced by the Prime Minister as the member-elect for Hochelaga, and the Conservatives gave him a great ovation. Applause greeted Hon. George E. Foster when he entered the chamber for the first time this session.

The debate upon the address will be resumed on Monday by Mr. Wilson of Wentworth.

The debate on the address was closed yesterday in the Senate, which is now ready to receive any naval bill or any business which may be brought before it. The address was adopted.

A resolution was adopted declaring vacant the seat of Michael Sullivan (Conservative) of Kingston, who had failed to his attendance in the Senate during two consecutive sessions.

The debate was closed by the adoption of the address.

The Senate adjourned until Tuesday.

Congress Opens Monday.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 30.—No legislation of importance outside of appropriation bills will be passed at the short session of Congress opening Monday, in the opinion of Republican Leader Mann of the House, who returned yesterday after a trip to the Panama Canal with the House appropriation committee.

TRIBUTE TO PATERSON.

Veteran Liberal Is Honored By the Electors of Brant.

Brantford, Nov. 30.—The Liberals of Brant, together with many Conservative friends, last night presented Hon. William Paterson with an illuminated address, enclosed in a case of birdseye maple, embellished with oxidized silver. The veteran Parliamentarian, who has served 38 years all told at Ottawa, was in such a precarious state of health, that he was unable to be present at the Liberal club rooms where the address was read. Signatures to the number of 800 from both ridings of Brant was appeneded.

T. H. Preston, Frank Cockshutt, J. R. Layton and Dr. Addison, tendered the presentation to Mr. Paterson at his home, after which the address and Mr. Paterson's reply were read to a large gathering at the Liberal club rooms.

The ex-Minister of Customs leaves next week to sojourn in California for the winter and the best wishes of both Brants were last night tendered him.

Letters were read from Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier Borden, Senator Ross, Hon. W. S. Fielding and others, all extolling the high character of the veteran campaigner, both in private and public life.

The casket enclosing the address was a work of art. It carried as a crest the Dominion coat of arms upheld on each side by a beaver. On the front was a portrait in a wreath of laurels of Hon. William Paterson, and on the reverse side a portrait of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The exterior of the casket was of royal purple plush.

Sir Edward Vincent Appointed.

London, Nov. 30.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Sir Edgar Vincent has been appointed chairman of the Dominions Royal Commission in succession to Rt. Hon. Arnold Morley, who, under medical advice, resigned the post.

Sir Edgar Vincent was born in Stinfold, Sussex, in 1857. He was educated at Eton College. He joined the Coldstream Guards in 1877, and resigned as lieutenant in 1882. He was appointed private secretary to Lord E. Fitzmaurice, commissioner for Eastern Roumelia, in 1880, and was assistant to Her Majesty's commissioner for evacuation for territory ceded to Greece by Turkey in 1881. He was appointed British, Belgian and Dutch representative on the council of the Ottoman public debt, Constantinople, in 1882, and the year following was elected president.

He was financial adviser to the Egyptian Government in 1883-1889, and governor of the Imperial Ottoman Bank, Constantinople, 1889-1897. He was Conservative member for Exeter from 1889 to 1906, and has published a number of works, including "A Grammar of Modern Greek," in 1881, which was adopted by the University of Athens.

Poles Are Excited.

London, Nov. 30.—Pamphlets have been distributed in the streets of Warsaw, calling upon the people to celebrate the anniversary of the Polish revolution of 1830, by declaring that the Polish nation must take active measures against Russia, says a special despatch received here from Warsaw.

Troops patrol the city, the despatch continues, and there have been numerous arrests of students and workmen. The managers of the Polish schools have been informed that their institutions will be closed if the students attend church services commemorating the revolution.

Milk Reaches Limit.

New York, Nov. 30.—Farmers supplying milk to New York will after Dec. 1, get the highest price ever paid by dealers for milk in this city, since the civil war. This was announced yesterday by members of the milk exchange, who stated that after that date, they would offer farmers $1.80 per forty quart can, an advance of ten cents a can over the previous price.

The increase in population and a shortage of cows were given as reasons for the advance. The retail price, however, would, it is stated, remain the same as before, at nine cents a quart.

Triplets By Instalment.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Mrs. A. V. Grantout, wife of a laborer, became the mother of a son last Wednesday night. Grantout started to celebrate Friday night another child was born —again a son. This spurred Grantout on. Sunday night he returned home ready to act host to the twins. He was knocked off his feet when he discovered that his wife had just given birth to a third boy. The mother weighs 400 pounds.

Berlin's Fine Park Plans.

Berlin, Nov. 30.—An important deal was consummated by the parks commission last night whereby the parks system will be greatly enlarged. They have secured about 70 acres of the best wooded land to be had, part of which is in the city, while the balance is just adjoining. To begin with, through the generosity of the executors of the Louis Breithaupt estate, they were donated ten acres, and Messrs. Louis and E. O. Weber also donated ten acres and the balance was purchased to complete the park.

Artificial lakes will be laid out, sanitary drinking fountains put in and roadways and walks laid out.

The whole scheme is a part of the boom for city planning. Mayor Schmalz is a strong advocate of an enlarged parks system. The purchase will be about $10,000.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

THE VICTIM TO BE BURIED

Mrs. Daniel Sweeney the victim of Thursday's drowning will be buried tomorrow afternoon, services being held at St. Michael's church.

BURGLARY AT BRIGHTON

The police here have been informed that a residence at Brighton Village was on Thursday night entered and a large quantity of valuable silver and other articles were taken.

A FALSE REPART

A report became quite freely circulated about the city that Mr. John Brintnell of this city had been killed or fatally injured owing to an accident to his automobile. There was no foundation whatever for such a report.

CASE ENLARGED

Harry Whittaker who is accused of stealing a watch and a vest from fellow boarders, was to have been tried yesterday before Judge Deroche, but owing to illness of His Honor the case was enlarged until Wednesday next.

INSPECTION OF CANTON

Major Foster of Toronto was in the city last evening and officially inspected Canton Belleville No. 8. The members of the Canton were out in full force and performed the various manoeuvres in an acceptable manner.

ST. ANDREW'S TO CELEBRATE

The 81st Anniversary of St. Andrews Church will be celebrated tomorrow by specially attractive services. Rev. S. T. M. Compton, B. D. who succeeded Dr. Mackie in St. Andrew's, Kingston will preach. An enlarged choir will render music appropriate to the occasion.

DESERTER APPREHENDED

Frank Dawes a young man 23 years of age was last evening apprehended in the city and taken care of by the police. It appears that Dawes was connected with the R. C. R. at Halifax and deserted. An escort from Toronto will arrive in the city and take Dawes to the Queen City where he will appear before a Military Court.

SEARCHING FOR BODY

Although searching parties have made every effort to locate the body of Mr. Daniel Sweeney, one of the victims of Thursday's drowning accident at Point Ann, up to the present time the search has proven futile. It is feared by many that the body has been by the current carried out into the channel of the bay in which event it will be some time before it is found.

OBSEQUIES OF MRS. SIMMONDS

At Roblins Mills, Prince Edward County yesterday the funeral of the late Mrs. Catharine Simmonds took place and it was largely attended. At the Methodist Church Rev. Mr. Wallace conducted an impressive service. Interment took place at the Salem cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. J. Nightingale, M. Graham, H. Fox, F. Fyle, W. Coves and J. Ferguson.

HELD BASKET SOCIAL

The Leap Year Basket Social held at Point Ann school house last night proved a great success. The house was filled to its utmost capacity, a number not being able to gain entrance. The programme was under the direction of Mr. H. R. Moorman whose troop excelled themselves in all numbers. The programme consisted of quartettes, duets, readings, solos, instrumental and vocal and a number of able speeches. Rev. Mr. Wickett of Shannonville filled the chair in a most exceptible manner. Following the programme beautifully decorated and well filled baskets were served. Great credit is due to the ladies of Point Ann for their enthusiastic work and preparations. A vote of thanks was tendered those furnishing the programme. In the wee small hours of the morning the merry crowd wended its way back to the city.

How to Tell If Your Hair is Diseased.

Even if you have a luxuriant head of hair, you may want to know whether it is in a healthy condition or not. 98 per cent of the people need a hair tonic.

Pull a hair out of your head, if the bulb at the end of the root is white and shrunken, it proves that the hair is diseased and requires prompt attention if its loss would be avoided. If the bulb is pink and full, the hair is healthy.

We want everyone whose hair requires treatment to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We promise that it shall not cost anything if it does not give satisfactory results. It is designed to overcome dandruff, relieve scalp irritation, to stimulate the hair roots, tighten the hair already in the head, grow hair and overcome baldness.

It is because of what Rexall "93" Hair Tonic has done and our sincere faith in its goodness that we want you to try it at our risk. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. J. S. McKeown.

BASKET BALL

A game of basket-ball took place at 8 o'clock last evening between the 34th Battery and Albert College in the latter's gymasium. Judging from the score, which was 96 to 18 in favor of the college, it must have been "some" game.

Divisional Court—Before Falconbridge, C. J., Britton, J., Sutherland, J.—Parks v. Simpson; Simpson v. Parks—W. B. Northrup, K.C., and A. A. McDonald (Marmora), for Parks. E. G. Porter, K. C., for Simpson. An appeal by Reuben Parks from the judgment of Deroche, J., of County of Hastings of June 19, 1912. An action by Parks to recover possession of certain hives of honey bees and honey alleged to have been purchased from Simpson, or $50 damages for their detention, and $50 for other damages, and an action by Simpson for balance of purchase money alleged to have been unpaid by Parks, and a counter claim for care, pains and trouble in caring for Parks' bees. At the trial the judge found Parks entitled to a return of all his bees and honey and other chattels bought on Simpson's place and to $25 damages for detention of same, and found Simpson entitled to $165, balance of purchase price, with interest, and no costs to either party in either action. Judgment Appeal dismissed with costs.

15,000 Killed And Injured

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—That fifteen thousand people were probably killed and wounded in a typhoon that swept the Philippine Islands last Tuesday was reported in cable dispatches to the bureau of insular affairs today.

News of the catastrophe came in a despatch from the governor-general of the Philippines. No figures of the dead or injured were given, but it was stated that probably half of the population of two cities had been lost.

The typhoon swept the Viscayas Islands and is said to have practically destroyed Tacloban, the capital of Leyte, on the northeast coast of the island, and to have wrought enormous damage and loss of life at Capiz. Leyte has a population of 11,000. Capiz has a population of over 20,000. Capiz is the terminal of the railroad from Iloilo. It is a most important sugar point.

The dispatch containing information of the typhoon was sent Thursday. The governor-general informed the department that he was rushing a shipload of food and clothing and all available medical supplies to Tacloban. All telegraphic communication has been destroyed, and it is impossible to get other than vague reports of the extent of the disaster. That Tacloban has suffered an enormous loss of life it is believed certain.

The scene of the disaster is just north of the destructive typhoon which swept the Viscayan Islands on October 15, inflicting a heavy toll.

Following receipt of the dispatch, announcing the heavy casualties in the Viscayas the Red Cross prepared to rush a relief fund to the governor-general. The Washington office has cabled the insular government asking how great is their need.

The war department will not order supplies to the Philippines until further information is received as to the extent of the damage. At Manila there are plenty of military supplies, which it is assumed have been utilized to care for the sufferers.

From reports received, it appears that the typhoon swept from the east in a southerly direction, crossing the Island of Leyte, where Tacloban is located, going on to Panay and whirling south, doing great damage along the coast of Mindanao. Iloilo, where the damage is said to have been even greater, is one of the most fertile of the Philippine Islands, with vast sugar and hemp plantations. These are mainly owned by natives, although many former American soldiers are interested.

Capiz is 250 miles from anila, and Tacloban 370 miles.

Beware of Blood-Poison

Zam-Buk Is A Sure Cure.

Mr. Jas. Davey, of 786 Ellice Avenue, Winnipeg, says:—"A few months since I was cured of a poisoned finger through the timely use of Zam-Buk.

"I cut a deep gash across the knuckle on the first finger of my right hand in opening a lobster can. I suffered at the time with the soreness and the pain, but had no idea it would become a serious wound. However, in about two days I was greatly alarmed; so my whole hand and arm to the elbow became suddenly inflamed, and the finger was much discolored, showing signs of blood-poisoning. The pain was dreadful and I was forced to leave off my work and go home.

"The wound on the knuckle had been poisoned by dust and dirt getting into it. I then decided to start the Zam-Buk treatment, and having first bathed the cut, I applied the healing balm. It soothed the pain almost instantly, and by next day there was a great improvement.

"In a week's time, through perseverence with this wonderful preparation, a complete cure was brought about."

Zam-Buk is just as good for eczema, ulcers, scalp sores, abscesses, piles, ringworm, boils, varicose ulcers, running sores, cold sores, chapped hands, etc. It draws all poisonous foulness from a wound or sore and then heals. Use it, too, for cuts, burns, bruises and all skin injuries. Zam-Buk Soap should be used in conjunction to the balm for washing wounds and sore places. Excellent, too, for baby's bath.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box and Zam-Buk Soap at 25c. tablet. Post free upon receipt of price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Recalls Progressives

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Restoration of peace and harmony and the elimination of all factional differences in the ranks of the Republican Party as it existed prior to the Republican National Convention in Chicago last June is proposed by the Hamilton Club of Chicago.

To further this purpose 3,000 calls to Republicans and former Republicans to attend a "harmony meeting" in Chicago about January 15 are being sent out by William B. Austin, President of the club.

The call sets forth the principals upon which the Republican Party was established more than fifty years ago, and enters the plea that the believers in these principles, which the call declares are as old as the American Republic and will live so long as does the Government, meet and join hands for the preservation of those principles and the party which was founded upon them.

The four principles upon which stress is laid in the call are a reiteration of belief in the principles of government as outlined by Alexander Hamilton; a protective tariff as opposed to a tariff for revenue only, sound money instead of a 16 to 1 basis, and equal civil rights and equal protection to all citizens.

"We propose to eliminate the firebrands in both factions of the party", Mr. Austin said to-night. "We are going, if possible, to eliminate Murray Crane, Boise Penrose, others of the Old Guard who are obnoxious to the mass of the Republican Party as are the members of the Old Guard to followers of the third party movement."

Take a Lesson from the Hotel Man

The best lighted room in a hotel is the lobby, not only because it is a general meeting place for the guests, but because it is the first room they enter on their arrival and the one from which they get their initial impression of the "house."

For the same reason, care should be taken in lighting the front hall of your home; it is there that your guests are received. Electric light and Holophane Reflectors will add much to the visitor's impression of your home—the electric light giving the warm glow of welcome and the Holophane Reflectors making this light most economical.

In many homes the hall is practically a part of the living room, a place that, above all else, should be bright and cheerful. And it is here that Holophane Reflectors can be used with especially good effect.

The telephone, usually, is in the hall and an electric light placed near the instrument will save many steps.

Why not let our representative talk to you about the economical lighting of your house?

THE UNTHINKABLE THING

The story of the present struggle in Europe up to date reminds us once more that war is hell and that there is no use at all in referring to it in euphemistic terms. When the whole tale is told it will be found that one of the very darkest chapters has been added to the awful tragedy of human suffering in Eastern Europe in the year of grace 1912. Altogether inadequate provision for the care of the sick and wounded; Turkish soldiers torturing and ravishing and mutilating as they are forced to retreat through Christian villages, and Bulgarian soldiers wreaking their vengeance when opportunity comes; the outbreak of cholera in Constantinople; the rigors of winter coming to a multitude of homes from which the bread-winners have been taken to fight the battles of the country—all of these things call up pictures of misery and suffering terrible to think upon.

Of course it will be said that, awful as it is, this war was inevitable and necessary and out of it will come in the end the blessing of a larger liberty and progress. Admitting that the blessing will come, is it not an awful price to pay for it? And at least we can ask the question, might there not have been, even in this case, a tbetr way?

And whatever answer there comes to us touching the present situation, there is only one satisfactory answer in general. War is not a glorious thing; it is a horrible, a devilish thing. In the progress of the nations it is not to be looked forward to as a necessary thing any more than cholera or smallpox. It is a crime against humanity, against everything good and beautiful that God has made.

As we think of the heroism of the allied troops and rejoice at the victories of Christian arms it is well that we remember these other things also. At our distance it is easy to forget and to cover the whole struggle over with a false light and glory. War is crime and diabolicalism and hideousness.

If as Christian and cultured nations we remembered this we would not look forward with such light-heartedness and indifference as we sometimes do to the possibility of our nation coming into armed conflict with any other. If we had become anything like as Christian as we ought to be, considering our opportunity, war would be to us an unthinkable thing, a crime against God and humanity that we could never commit.

U. E. L. PIONEERS

Just upon the hillside yonder
Overlooking Quinte Bay,
Is the Taylor burying ground
Where the brave old pioneers
With their descendants lay.

To this cradle of the white man
They were among the first to come
From New York, brought all their kindred—
All was left of war and rapine,
Fire—and battle bravely done.

How they fought and how they suffered,
Should the page of history tell.
A daughter last by Indians stolen,
Husbands of two in battle fell,
Two brothers Burgoyne, aides as well.

Then John Taylor, just fourteen
When first the call to arms was sent,
Left the plough, grasped the sword,
And forthwith to the battle went,
Seven long years in war he spent.

In all those years he never met
Mother, brother, sister, friend,
For his undaunted soul was set
To serve his King unto the end,
To fight the rebel to the end.

Aide-de-camp Neil Taylor, when pursued,
The enemy on either side,
Into the North River, leaped and cried
"Though I die, traitors I defy,"
Sunk his dispatches in the tide.

Twice he swam the river o'er,
Sadly gazed upon the shore,
Upon his home, his mother there,
His sisters crying heaven in prayer,
When down upon him the enemy bore.

How ignominiously he died
To satisfy the rebel hate,
They hung their victim to a tree,
To villify the hero's fate,
To lower him to their traitor state.

So Daniel Taylor died likewise,
General Burgoyne's faithful aide,
Who brought the General's family safe,
Disguised as farmers, the journey made,
From Quebec to New York, undismayed.

Later captured, his dispatches swallowed,
Brought before Governor Clinton, when,
His life forfeit, deemed it nought,
So cruel were those rebel men
To brothers of one parent stem.

Great great grand dame, rest her soul!
Mary Campbell, her King served well,
Sheltered his soldiers, brought them aid,
Carried dispatches when the soldier fell,
Thrice her home in ashes laid.

Six score and ten of years have passed
Since Britain's loyal subjects came
As pioneers the second time,
Their King's reward of land to claim,
From whom a nation sprang again.

And Canada so fair and wide,
Stretching far from coast to coast,
This rich and fertile, great domain,
Her children's joy, her nation's pride,
First settled by the Brave, her boast.

COMMONERS WANT $3,000 INDEMNITY

So says the Ottawa correspondent of The Globe on the 27th inst. This correspondent informs The Globe's readers that "a movement has been started to increase the pay of members of Parliament to $3,000. For the past six or seven years the allowance has stood at $2,500, and last session an allowance was made for stenographic help. Sixty-five thousand dollars was voted for the purpose, which amounted to about $400 per member. This year some of the members desired to draw the allowance that they might spend it on help as they wished. However, the Auditor-General decided this could not be done, but that the money had to be paid to stenographers direct on the certificate of members. It has been arranged that groups of members shall employ a stenographer for each group, and these shall be paid direct by the Government. The movement for the indemnity increase has just been started, but it seems to be popular, and the Government is likely to have a vigorous demand for it presented before the session is much older. The question will be broached at a Conservative caucus soon."

If there is any truth in this statement it is to be hoped that the Government will stamp out the proposition at once. The indemnity of $2,500 which the members now receive is quite sufficient.

At Confederation the indemnity was $600 only. A few years after in 1873, the Macdonald Administration increased it to $1,000 per annum, at which sum it remained, until the economical Liberal Government came into power, when it was raised to $1,500 per session, short or long. This did not satisfy the Laurierites, so about three years ago they claimed and secured an additional $1,000 added to the allowance for sessional indemnity, together with an increase of some $5,000 a year added to the Premier's salary, making it $12,000 per annum, to which is added the sessional indemnity of $2,500 per session, making the total yearly income of the Premier $14,500 per annum. In addition to these increases, a new principle was incorporated in the law which provided for the payment of a salary to the leader of the Opposition, of a sum equal to that of a Cabinet Minister, $7,000 a year.

It is scarcely creditable that the statement of The Globe's correspondent is correct. If it is, the Government should not parley with the demand, but refuse it at once.

Look at the bare foot of the average man and you will see a scar where he cut it when a boy.

INASMUCH AS YE DID IT UNTO THE LEAST

The spectacle last evening of two local young ladies attired for the ball, supporting an aged and helpless man to his home on the Canifton road, was an incident that caused a number of onlookers to breathe a prayer of praise for a thoughtfulness on the part of others too seldom evidenced in our midst. Hastening to the place of enjoyment, their beautiful white garments glistening in the darkness, the white-slippered feet daintily tapping the walk, the happy chatter indicative of hearts filled with joy, little thought was given to the lives of others until, beside the road a form was seen in a helpless conditon, breathing heavily and apparently in a critical state. The hour for the ball was drawing near; the task of assisting the unfortunate to his feet seemed herculean; the contamination of carefully prepared attire for a moment possessed the young minds; yet the sight of a human being in distress demanded action; the four strong young hands reached down, grasping firmly the weighty burden, and raising the stranger to his feet, conducted him to his home, fully a mile out of their intended route. Breathless and a little belated, yet a peace filling their hearts, the two young missionaries entered the ball room, to enjoy to the full the evening's entertainment, their steps undoubtedly the lighter because of a helping hand extended in the hour of need. Would not the world be better; would not humanity rise to a higher standard if such deeds were of more frequent occurrence? Let others of our city, of all ages and stations, take note of this incident, the result of spontaneous heart-feeling for others, and follow the example.

SOMETHING OF A FIGHTER HIMSELF

Referring to the pugnacious tendencies of Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Richard Cartwright in his memoirs, just published, resurrects the following, which brings himself somewhat into the lime-light as a fistic performer:

"Sir John, at the election of 1872, so far forgot himself as to strike his opponent, Mr. Carruthers, on the hustings at Kingston. This incident, as might have been expected, had made no little noise at the time, and when I finished my remarks, I did observe that as I had given him very much more cause for assaulting me than he had for attacking his rival candidate at Kingston, he was welcome to do the same thing then and there; or, if he wished to obtain any further satisfaction at my hands, I was perfectly at his service if he liked to cross over to the Yankee frontier, a few miles distant."

And so there were some things that Sir Richard, ashamed to do in his own country, was ready to adopt "over the Yankee frontier."

IT WAS ANOTHER "MAC"

In his reminiscences, the late Sir Richard Cartwright states that on one occasion Sir John Macdonald insulted Princess Louise, so that she was compelled to request his departure from her presence. No sooner did this story appear in print than a number of competent authorities hastened to contradict it. Among these are Sir Joseph Pope, Sir John's private secretary and biographer; Lieut Col. Gourdeau, who was an eye-witness of the incident that gave rise to the false rumor; and Mr. C. H. Mackintosh, who was Mayor of Ottawa at the time. The facts are simply these: At a dance at Rideau Hall, Princess Louise had as a partner in a quadrille a Senator from British Columbia, who made a remark to her, which caused her quietly to ask an aide-de-camp to find her another partner. A similarity of name, and the natural distortion of gossip, allowed the offense, in the course of years and in unfrindly quarters, to be attributed to Sir John Macdonald, who was always the very soul of chivalry. He and the Princess were on the very friendliest of terms as long as he lived, and the last telegram he dictated was a reply to a kindly enquiry from her regarding his illness.—Hamilton Spectator.

Or he might have interrupted the speech from the throne to give expression to his naval policy.

The News now wants "action, not words," regarding the question of naval defence. Which reminds an interested public that The News has been talking for over a year in favor of Borden's naval policy and does not know yet what that policy will be.—Toronto Globe.

Well, what has the Globe been saying about it for the past year—and yet it knows as much, or less, about it than The News.

The permanent committee of the congress of the French language in Canada has adopted a resolution censuring the Ontario Government for its policy in regard to education in the bi-lingual schools, approving resistance to such policy by the French and Catholic schools commissions of Ontario and assuring the latter of its entire sympathy.—Despatch from Quebec.

It is to be regretted that these fanatics were not a little more reasonable. The proposition of the Ontario Government is both reasonable and equitable in an English-speaking province, and should be accepted by our French-speaking citizens. The more the question is agitated, the worse it will be for the agitators.

A Montreal correspondent writes:—"That the suffragettes were justified in the measures they were taking to get the vote in England, was the contention of James Keir Hardie, M.P., the eminent English Socialist, in the course of an interview here yesterday.

"'Would you advocate their carrying on their methods and even causing bloodshed?' Mr. Hardie was asked.

"'Why, yes,' was his emphatic remark.

"Mr. Hardie was also asked if, in the event of the Socialists getting the upper hand in England, the King would be blown up by a bomb.

"'There is no fear of that' he replied. 'He's too insignificant.'"

A year or two in the penitentiary breaking stones might assist in bringing this fellow Hardie to his senses.

1,000 Tons of Iron Per Day

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—"Literature" containing the grossest misrepresentations of worthless Canadian mining properties was prepared by the skilled pen of Julian Hawthorne, son of Nathaniel Hawthorne, himself a writer of romance, and scattered broadcast through the United States, so it was charged before Judge Hough of the Federal District court.

Among other things the District Attorney alleges—

That two silver veins described to the public as being three and one-half miles long were 300 feet long and had no commercial value.

That a silver vein described as being 1,060 feet long was fifty feet long and then became barren rock.

That property described as having ore carrying 20,000 ounces of silver to the ton has never shipped a dollar's worth of ore.

That a force of girls were trained to imitate the handwriting of Hawthorne and that they executed in longhand what purported to be personal letters from him to his friends urging them to invest.

That distribution was made of letters purporting to come from a mining friend of Hawthorne named Brooks, in which conditions at the Cobalt properties were described favorably, but that Brooks never wrote to Hawthorne, had never been at Cobalt, and had only been in a mine once in his life, on which occasion he was five years old.

That many acres of property described as being silver land was really swamp.

That "a great vein running half a mile across the property" was an outcropping of rock in swamp land, while elsewhere the vein was two inches wide and of no commercial value.

That stripping moss from the rocks was all the "mining" work done on some property.

That the defendants incorporated the Hawthorne Silver and Iron Mines Company with $15,000,000 capitalization and then formed the Julian Hawthorne Company to underwrite this first company, when the second company had nothing in its treasury but worthless stock of the Temagami-Cobalt Mines, Limited, another corporation of the defendants.

That the defendants told the public they were going to manufacture pig iron and make $3,000,000 a year for investors and that not a pound of such iron was made.

That an "expert" was quoted in some to the wonderful value of the property, this expert having been branded as a crook by one of the defendants.

The language used by "experts" was similar to language used by Hawthorne and Freeman in their publications.

That on one property there was $50 of ore in an outhouse, while the prospectus said $1,000,000 was accessible.

That while stock was being sold to the public at 10 to 50 cents a share under a promise of 20 percent. dividends, and the possibility of 100 per cent., the defendants had given options on their big block of promotion stock at 20 cents.

That from an iron mine stated to be ready to ship 1,000 tons a day 100 tons a day were shipped for a brief period and then the ore ran out.

That a Canadian explorer made a glowing report on one of the properties as a mining geologist for public consumption.

That 35,000,000 tons of iron ore is a single bed, with millions upon millions of tons of other iron ore, were stated to exist upon the property which has since proved almost worthless.

That the defendants told the public they had silver ore extending over two square miles and had 163 veins, while they really only had a little silver in

GRAND TRUNK NOTES

Of all the natives of the Balkan States who have returned to their respective countries to take part in the present Turkish war, the long distance record must be easily conceded to a party of 18 soldiers of the Cross who are covering the 4,500 miles that lie between Fairbanks, Alaska, and New York city, to catch a homeward bound vessel. From Fairbanks the party proceeded to Seattle, which place they left for Chicago last night. From Chicago to New York they will travel over the Grand Trunk via the Suspension Bridge in a special car.

The second Christmas tourist season of the Grand Trunk Pacific will shortly be inaugurated when a through train will be run from Edmonton to Portland, Me., to connect with the White Star SS. "Laurentic," which sails on Dec. 7. On this train will be standard as well as tourist sleeping cars, dining cars and every convenience of modern travel. Just so strongly the Christmas vacation idea has seized the west can be gathered from the fact that in Regina alone arrangements are being made for a carload of passengers. A second train will

"Petie" Green will again manage the Ottawa pros.

Alf. Smith of Ottawa may act as coach of the Toronto Tecumseh professionals.

Winnipeg Victorias, holders of the Allan Cup, may lose the services of Fowler and "Coo" Dion.

Allan Davidson, formerly of Kingston Frontenacs, has returned from Calgary and will try for a place on the Torontos.

London will stick to the O.H.A. intermediate series. There was talk of the Forest City entering a team in the senior race.

Wellington, who played for Port Arthur pros. last year, has received an offer from the Patricks. He has not decided whether to accept, but it is likely that he will go to the coast for a tryout.

Jack Aldous, who was expected to play for Winnipeg Vics., has cast in his lot with the Winnipegs. The latter club will be very strong this winter, and are expected to capture the Allan Cup from the Vics.

The playing surface at the Toronto Arena is larger than that at Montreal or Vancouver. Ice is being made rapidly, the pipes which cover the floor being almose hidden from view by the congealed moisture. The Arena will be ready for skaters in a few days.

The dispute between the Monarch, Victoria and Winnipeg amateur teams of Winnipeg, caused by the refusal of the former club to play their games on the same rink as the other two clubs, has been settled. The Monarchs will live up to their agreement, and accede to the demands of the other clubs.

LISTOWEL, Nov. 29.—The annual meeting of the Northern Hockey League will be held in Palmerston on Tuesday, December 3, at 4 o'clock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 29.—It looks very much as if the two senior Montreal hockey teams, the Wanderers and the Canadiens, might practise in the Toronto arena after all.

Mr. Kennedy of the Canadiens put himself on record yesterday to the effect that if there is no ice here on December 15 he will send his team to Toronto for practice, as he has made arrangements for their accommodation there.

Mr. Lichtenhein also says that he has made arrangements to use the Toronto Arena if necessary, and may send the Wanderers there also.

Hamilton Spectator—It is the expectation that the new artificial ice plant will be ready for use about the third week in December. It is altogether likely that Ottawa College will be the first team seen in action with the Alert seniors. The collegians want to play here on December 23. Varsity seniors are also being communicated with for an exhibition game here the same week.

BARRIE, Nov. 29.—At a well-attended meeting of hockey enthusiasts held at the Queen's Hotel it was decided to place an intermediate team in the O. H. A. Steve Vair has consented to act as coach, and the Barrie players are expected to give a good account of themselves. At the meeting many feeling references were made to the death of the late John Dyment, who was always a staunch friend of the local sporting clubs and did much to promote hockey in Barrie.

The following officers were elected:—Patrons, W. A. Boys, M.P., Judge Wismer, Simon Dyment, P. J. Lynch, Dr. Arnall, H. A. Sims, Dr. Lewis, L. J. Salter, F. T. Short, Mayor Cowan, A. J. Habbick, W. R. King, H. D. Jamieson; Hon. President, H. J. Grasett; Hon. Vice-President, Jas. Vair; President, H. E. Jory; First Vice-President, James McMartin; Second Vice-President, W. J. Fowler; Secretary-Treasurer, W. R. Cruickshank; Manager, C. O. Hinds; Management Committee, G. S. Caldwell, D. Stewart, G. O. Cameron, John Barr, George Rogers, Harry Riddell; coach, S. J. Vair.

OTTAWA, Nov. 29.—United States clubs are now stretching out their tentacles to Ottawa in quest of hockey stars. Jack Fournier, who has declined several offers from the National Association Clubs, received a wire from Boston yesterday offering him a good position there in exchange for his services. Fournier has also been asked to gather two or three other men to play in the New England Hub. He is not likely to accept.

Arrangements are being made for the organization of still another section of the Inter-provincial union. It will be formed in the Upper Ottawa Valley, consisting of Pembroke, Almonte, Carleton Palce and Arnprior. Messrs. Larocque and Iveson of Ottawa will go up next week to organize it.

Coopers have resigned from the Ottawa section of the Inter-provincial Union and will amalgamate with the Stewartons. All the other clubs have finally succeeded in securing rink accommodation, and will play at the Arena. Con Dion is on his way home, and will likely play with Stewartons. He was in the west on a government contract which is about finished, and may not return to Winnipeg, though he has not yet received his departmental instructions.

Dion's brother is already with Stewartons. The professional situation has calmed down, and it is evident that the war is about over.

The Ottawas met last night and elected D'Arcy McGee president again. Petie Green was re-engaged as manager. The weather has turned cold, and they will likey get out to practice next week.

THE RING.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 29.—Joe Rivers of Los Angeles won the decision over Joe Mandot of New Orleans in a twenty-round bout here today. Rivers is now the logical man to meet Willie Ritchie, who won the lightweight championship from Ad Wolgast at San Francisco yesterday.

DALY CITY, Cal., Nov. 29.—Willie Ritchie of San Francisco became the lightweight champion of the world by defeating Ad. Wolgast yesterday afternoon at the Daly City open-air arena. Referee Jim Griffin awarding him the decision in the sixteenth round. Wolgast had fouled him twice. The champion had been sent to the floor in this round, Ritchie catching him with a right cross that came as unexpectedly as did the foul blows. Wolgast tottered about the ring, but the Californian apparently lacked the power to land a finishing punch. Both men were strong at the end of the fifteenth round and each had suffered considerable punishment Ritchie presenting a battered appearance. One of his eyes was entirely closed and the other partly so. The fight was in Wolgast's favor up to the turning-point in the sixteenth round.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Leach Cross outpointed "Battling" Nelson in a ten round bout here yesterday. Nelson took a great deal of punishment, but was forcing the fighting at the finish. Cross weighed 138 pounds at the ringside, and Nelson was four ounces heavier.

The "Durable Dane" was outclassed as a boxer, but took his beating and kept coming back for more.

Nelson's willingness against sure defeat was remarkable, and at times he actually made Cross back up, forcing him from corner to corner until the final bell. It was a wonderful showing on Nelson's part, and Cross did not gain any laurels by outpointing him.

Cross jumped out of the ring after shaking hands with Nelson, but the latter remained in the center of the ring until the cheers which greeted him subsided. Holding up his right glove for a hearing, Nelson shouted: "Despite all that has been said of my poor condition, I am glad I got this opportunity of showing you all how feeble I am in going up against one of the best men you have got here. I thank you."

Guelph, Nov. —At a meeting of the Ontario Agricultural College hockey men last night it was decided to enter a team in the O.H.A. intermediate series. This is in addition to the proposed senior and junior Guelph teams.

LITERARY NOTES.

"A beautiful number" might well be the remark as to the Christmas Canadian Magazine. The cover decoration is a charming bit of painting by Arthur W. Parsons. It shows a north country trapper travelling with his dogs over a sun-bathed winter landscape. The first literary contribution is by Kathleen R. Coleman ("Kit"), and Mr. Parsons has illustrated it also. The drawings of immigrant types by Andre Lapine, reproduced in colors, are unusually fine. Newton MacTavish gives an account of "A Day in the Luxembourg," with illustrations by John Russell. There are stories and verse by Arthur Stringer, Isabel Ecclestone Mackay, L. M. Montgomery, Madge Macbeth, S. A. White, J. J. Bell, Paul Sheard, Marjorie L. C. Pickthall, Estelle Kerr, Peregrine Acland, H. Isabel Graham, Lucy Betty McRaye, Margaret Bell and J. C. M. Duncan.

DECEMBER CANADA MONTHLY

The name of Mackenzie is written broad across the maps of Western Canada, and it is rather surprising to find that the last days of Donald Mackenzie, the explorer, were spent in an unpretentious New York village. But there is where Ernest Cawcroft found his sons and grandsons, and the story of the family is written by him in December CANADA MONTHLY, accompanied by some remarkable photographs. James J. Larkin writes in the same number about the recent experiments of the government in peat-production and shows how they succeeded to the point of furnishing fuel to Ottawa house-wives at $3.50 a ton, one and one-eighth tons being equal to a ton of best quality coal. Frank R. Adams, co-author of "The Time, The Place and The Girl," etc., has a snappy story of "The Firing of Bo" from a theatrical road-company playing the number of two towns; Elliott Flower writes breezily of "Katy of Calgary", who made a man that came to the Albert city to sell bonds remain to buy real estate; H. M. Clarke discusses the growth of art in Canada and cites some interesting examples of the influence of French artistic ideals on modern Canadian architecture; Frank Lee Benedict tells the story of a girl with a long nose and two pretty sisters under the title of "No More of Me You Knew;" "Just Smith", the Mounted Police serial, is continued, as is "Kit's" Pedlar's Pack and "In the Heart of Old Mexico." There is also fiction and verse by Thomas A. Daly, Mary Wheelwright, Hubert McBean Johnston, Kathleen K. Bowker, Louis Upham Brooks, Wulbur D. Nesbit and others. The cover design, appropriate to Christmas, is by F. D Schwalm, and many illustrations brighten the number.

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHTER

Fortnight's Armistice Is Now Thought Probable.

Doubt Exists However as to Whether Whole Field Will Be Included in the Truce—Severe Fighting Is Reported — No Fresh Developments Regarding Conference of the Powers.

London, Nov. 30.—Constantinople last night reported the probability of a fortnight's armistice being signed by Sunday by the peace plenipotentiaries, who are negotiating for a cessation of hostilities between the Turks and the allies. From the Bulgarian side there has been no news concerning the peace negotiations except the vague statement that they are making satisfactory progress.

Nothing has transpired as to whether the proposed armistice will effect the whole field of war operations or only the Tchatalja lines.

The news received yesterday of the surrender of two entire divisions of Turkish reserves to the Bulgarians, in the neighborhood of Demotica, a short distance south of Adrianople, after severe fighting, shows there are still isolated bodies of Turkish troops unaccounted for and which must be considered in arranging an armistice.

The allies are said to have large numbers of men who are proceeding in Greek transports from the Gulf of Saloniki either for Gallipoli Peninsula, which separates the Dardanelles from the Aegean Sea, or to join the allied army at Tchatalja. No news has been received concerning these transports as yet, and the disposal of the men they carry, in the event of an armistice being arranged, would present some difficulty.

Although it is not safe to assume that the armistice is in sight, the fact that the negotiations continue at Baghtche and that apparently no definite time limit has been fixed as to the duration of the existing suspension of hostilities, tends toward the belief that a peaceful solution of the trouble is approaching.

There were no fresh developments yesterday concerning the proposed conference between the powers on the Balkan situation, or concerning the dispute between Austria and Servia as to the occupation by the latter country of a port on the Adriatic.

Germany Ready For War.

Berlin, Nov. 30.—The German Minister of War, Gen. Josias Von Heringen, declared yesterday in the imperial parliament:

"I can give the positive assurance that everything necessary for the eventuality of war has been done."

He made this statement in answering an enquiry as to whether the 111 new machine gun companies provided for in the law of 1912 could be organized without delay.

French Army Fading.

Paris, Nov. 30.—The number of recruits available for the French army has been reduced from 238,000 in 1906 to 215,000 in 1911, owing to the diminution of the birth rate in France, according to Joseph Reinach, who made this startling assertion in the course of a debate in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday on the bill relating to infantry enrollment.

Crushed Under Elevator.

Kingston, Nov. 30.—Jos. Lamonde, aged 70 years, employed as a sweeper at Wormwith's piano works, was crushed by an elevator just before quitting time last night, and received probably fatal injuries. Doctors say he has but slight chance of recovery. He was sweeping under the elevator and did not see nor hear it coming down. His left hip was dislocated, right leg broken in two pieces, and head crushed.

Five Per Cent. Now.

London, Nov. 30.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Saskatoon's decision to offer her new loan on a five per cent. basis is regarded here as a wise proceeding. It recalls the last words of G.T.R. President Hays before boarding the Titanic, that "Canada is not getting too much money, but she is getting it too cheaply."

Five per cent. seems likely to be the ruling figure for Canadian issues, except for the highest class of provincial and municipal stocks.

There is little doubt that numerous other Canadian issues would appeal if they had any chance of success.

Peonage Is Charged.

Winnipeg, Nov. 30.—If the request made from Washington, through U. S. Consul Jones here, be granted by the Ottawa authorities and a rigid enquiry be instituted into alleged conditions in the construction camps of the Foley, Welch and Stewart Construction Co. on the Grand Trunk Pacific throughout the west, sensations are promised, if the complaining laborers substantiate their charges.

Conditions of virtual slavery are alleged to exist once the men get into these camps. It is too far in the wilderness to get out readily, and those leaving are forbidden, they say, under penalty to be given food or shelter at other camps on the long tramp out. If the men quit, a series of deductions are made from their pay checks for all sorts of things, and it is usual for the men to get no pay until after they have worked a month or six weeks.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Higher, Chicago Lower—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Rumors that peace terms had been reached with Turkey put a finishing touch today to a declining market for wheat. Prices closed at a loss of ½c to ¾c net. Latest trading left corn unchanged to ⅛c higher, oats off ⅛c to ½c, and provisions varying from the same as Wednesday night to 7½c lower.

The Liverpool market closed ¼d to ¼d higher on wheat and ¼d higher on corn, compared with Wednesday. [illegible] wheat closed ⅜c higher, Antwerp 1¼c higher, Berlin ⅛c higher and Paris ½c to ⅝c lower.

Pittsburg Child Murdered.

Pittsburg, Nov. 30.—Efforts yesterday to trace the murderer of Lillian Schadle, aged 12, whose body, cut and bruised, was found in a reservoir near Ardmore, a suburb, Thursday night, were futile. The child left her home after school Wednesday to purchase supplies for the Thanksgiving dinner. That she was cruelly treated and thrown into the reservoir, probably unconscious, was determined by a coroner's autopsy yesterday.

One way to go broke in a hurry is by attempting to get rich quick.

Telling of the progress made in combating the terrible 20th century plague—Consumption.

Notwithstanding the enormous increase in population in Canada in the past few years, it is more than gratifying to be able to record that the fight which the National Sanitarium Association are putting up against the "white plague"—consumption—is proving a winning one.

Prior to 1896 deaths from Consumption were on the increase every year. In 1910, despite the greater number of citizens, the figures in Ontario alone showed a decrease of 1118 over those of ten years ago. Isn't this splendid testimony to the noble work going on?

Maybe you haven't a father, mother, sister or dear friend of your own afflicted, but wouldn't it feel good to help some poor soul in the throes of the dread disease to get back into the wage-earning class—to return cured to wife and loved ones?

Our proud boast is that no needy Consumptive has ever been refused admittance to our Free Institutions at Weston and Muskoka because of poverty. But the good work cannot expand without your kindly sympathy and material help.

The need is urgent. If you are blessed with that greatest of all blessings, good health, think of your needy suffering brother and sister.

Send along your mite, however humble, to MR. W. J. GAGE, Chairman of the Executive Committee; or to MR. R. DUNBAR, Sec. Treas., 347 King West Toronto.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

FARM HELP PROBLEM

Immigration Men Urge Better Conditions For Men.

Major McGillivray of the Salvation Army and Supt. Clark of the Federal Service Declare That Higher Pay, Better Housing and Less Work Are Necessary, If Farmers Wish to Keep Their Hired Men.

Galt, Nov. 30.—In vigorous addresses before the Waterloo County Board of Agriculture, Major McGillivray, representing the Salvation Army Immigration work, and J. M. Clark, superintendent of the Dominion immigration department, united in plainly telling a large gathering of farmers of one of the notable agricultural sections in Canada, the causes of the shortage of farm help.

The keynote of the speeches was "The laborer is worthy of his hire." The labor problem in this province would never be solved until better wages were paid and conditions made reasonable for the newcomer.

As a man improved, so should his wages increase. Everlasting work from day break to sunset was the cause for a good deal of the difficulty. In many farming communities there was lack of house accommodation for help. The demand for labor was greater yesterday than ever before, and while justice was due to the farmer, justice was also due to the men. From experience the success of the farm laborer is due to his first employer.

Three thousand old country laborers had been placed in Ontario this year, or 2,000 short of the demand. Scarcity of farm help existed in the old land, and other countries besides Canada were seeking such labor. Said Mr. Clark: Here is a question I would like you farmers to solve in your farmers' clubs. If seven years ago unskilled labor received $1.50 a day in Toronto, four years ago the same labor $1.75, and to-day $2.25, how are you going to compete with this? The ambition of the farmers should be to try to keep the men on the farm and not let them get into town to work. One thing is necessary for the farmer to make these men valuable to them and that is kind treatment."

Alberta Bye-Election Charges.

Edmonton, Alta., Nov. 30.—Particulars of charges of corruption upon which the petition protesting the election of Hon. C. W. Cross are based, have been filed in the Supreme Court by C. F. Newell, counsel for Lt.-Col. Carstairs, the petitioner. This election was held last spring when the Cabinet was reorganized by Mr. Sifton.

The documents consist of 39 pages of typewritten matter and contains a list of names of all persons who are accused of irregularity in connection with the election. Included in this list are nearly all the Liberals who took an active part in the provincial bye-election.

With regard to the much-talked-of railroad vote, it is alleged James McGregor was paid $50,000 to be used in contravention of the election act. It is alleged that many persons were brought to Edmonton on election day on free fares. W. P. Hinton, general passenger agent of the G.T.R., is named as one of the parties to this arrangement.

Bribery is also alleged.

Third Member Appointed.

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—Owing to the failure of E. R. Duval and J. R. Macdonald, the representatives of the C.P.R. and the C.P.R. Brotherhood on the board of conciliation appointed by the Minister of Labor to investigate the trouble between the company and the union, to choose a third member of the board to act as chairman, Hon. Mr. Crothers yesterday appointed Judge D. McGibbon, County Court Judge of Brampton. Judge McGibbon has had considerable experience under the Industrial Disputes Act, and has already sat on boards which were appointed to look into trouble on the C.P.R., C.N.R., G.T.R. and I.C.R. The investigation will commence at once in Ottawa.

Winnipeg Fair Mismanaged?

Winnipeg, Nov. 30.—The exhibition association at its annual meeting yesterday heard some surprising attacks made on alleged lax financial administration in recent years.

A committee was appointed to go over the accounts for the past five years.

Allegations of irregularities were made by some speakers.

Ten Million Sugar Refinery.

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—The Canada Gazette gives notice of the incorporation of the "Atlantic Sugar Refineries, Limited," with a capital stock of ten million dollars into one hundred thousand shares of one hundred dollars each.

The chief place of business will be Montreal.

Royal George Crew Pacified.

Quebec, Nov. 30.—The enquiry into the stranding of the Royal George will begin in the court house here on Tuesday. The liner, it is expected, will be able to sail at the end of next week.

The trouble with the stokers has been settled by the payment of double wages. This increase is granted to all the crew.

Dynamiter Dillon To Be Released?

Kingston, Nov. 30.—A report on good authority states that Luke Dillon, leader of the Welland Canal dynamiters, who committed an outrage twelve years ago, will be given his liberty within a short time. He was given a life sentence, but in the last two years great efforts have been put forth to get him out.

Hon. W. J. Hanna To Open Hospital.

Kingston, Nov. 30.—Hon. W. J. Hanna has accepted an invitation to open the Sir Oliver Mowat Memorial Hospital. The opening is likely to take place Dec. 12.

"ACT OF MADNESS."

Churchill Thus Characterizes the Threatened War.

London, Nov. 30.—In a speech at a banquet given in his honor here last night, Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, said that while a strong feeling naturally existed between Russia and Austria over the Balkan question, a resort to war by them would be a horror utterly disproportionate to any cause existing or any compensation that might be achieved.

"Christian civilization," continued Mr. Churchill, "looks across the tangles of diplomacy to the sovereigns of those august empires and asks whether kingship might not in these modern democratic days win for itself new lustre and proclaim to the multitudes of enfranchised toilers in whose hands power is being increasingly reposed the fact that the monarchy is the bulwark of European peace."

A great gulf, Mr. Churchill said, separated the affairs of Russia and Austria from those of the other European powers and they had only to pursue the policy of trusting one another which they had been pursuing and nothing could drive them from the path of sanity and honor. A general war might plunge Europe almost into the desolation of the middle age. "The only epitaph history could write upon such a catastrophe," Mr. Churchill declared, "would be this, that a whole generation of men went mad and tore themselves to pieces.'

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

It is reported that the C.P.R. have purchased the Oscar Mines south of Hanna, Alta., for the sum of $135,000.

Emmett S. Bagby, assistant cashier of the city National Bank of Paducah, Ky., shot and killed himself in the basement of the bank here yesterday.

The St. Catharines' police are investigating some sensational rumors which allege inhuman abuse of a seven-year-old boy who died early in the week.

The death occurred yesterday of one of Welland's most prominent business men, in the person of Wm. Beatty, of M. Beatty & Sons, Welland Ironworks.

U. S. Ambassador Whitelaw Reid is threatened with a nervous breakdown so serious as to make probable the cancellation by him of all social engagements.

A telegram addressed to His Majesty, the French Republic, announcing the proclamation of the independence of Albania, has been received at the French Foreign Office from Ismail Kemil, the Albanian leader.

While cleaning clothes on Thursday with gasoline, the fumes were ignited by the heat from a coal stove, which caused an explosion, resulting in the death of Mrs. Peter Caughell of Niagara Townships, seriously burning two others.

Five months to Get McNamara.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 30.—Five months and six days was fixed by witnesses at the "dynamite conspiracy" tried yesterday as the time it required to arrest James B. McNamara, dynamiter of The Los Angeles Times' building, in which twenty-one persons were killed, after the dynamiter had been pointed out to detectives.

Wickersham Hint To Gov. Wilson

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Out of a pleasant remark made by Attorney General Wickersham to James C. McReynolds of New York has grown another Cabinet story. Mr. McReynolds was formerly an Assistant Attorney General. He is a Democrat. When he appeared before the Supreme Court of the United States when it was last in session Attorney General Wickersham, congratulating him on an argument before the court, said, "And I also want to congratulate you as my successor."

In view of Governor Wilson's attitude of reticence in regard to selections for his Cabinet, rumors of Cabinet appointments at this time do not gain credence in well informed circles in Washington.

Whether to begin a globe-trotting trip in the direction of the setting sun or turn his face eastward is the problem that now is occupying the attention of Attorney General Wickersham, who has announced that he is contemplating a trip around the world with Mrs. Wickersham as soon as he retires from public life.

Some men are Johnny-on-the-spot when it comes to paying a grudge, but when it comes to paying the butcher and grocer—well, that's another story.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The 35th Convention of The Woman's C. T. U. Held at Renfrew

The local option town of Renfrew entertained the 35th annual convention of the Ontario W. C. T. U., which proved to be one of the best yet held. The delegates were received first in the Baptist church, where they were tendered a banquet. The attendance was very good. The sessions were all held in the Presbyterian church. Greetings were given by the Sons of Temperance, the Good Templars, etc. The warden of the county also welcomed them. A Montreal lady also brought greetings from Quebec W. C. T. U., and told that the city of Montreal still has 600 licenses; in the whole province there are 700 municipalities without a bar. Renfrew's late police magistrate was a strong believer in local option, seeing the great decrease in crime since its introduction.

The convention lasted two days. Good reports were given in the work of prison reform, juvenile work, Loyal Legions, parlor meetings, work among Indians, law enforcement, Local Option, and for lumbermen, "Y" work, etc.

On account of the illness of the president, Mrs. Thornley, the chair was filled by Mrs. A. E. Stevens of Toronto, who in closing the convention, asked all to join in singing, "God be with you till we meet again."

HAVE YOU MADE YOUR WILL ¿

IF NOT, YOUR FAMILY IS UNPROTECTED.

No Lawyer Is Necessary.

For thirty-five cents you can make your will and be absolutely assured that it is perfectly legal in every respect, and that it cannot be broken by anyone no matter how he may try.

Delay in making your will is an injustice to those whom you wish to be taken care of. The courts are full of will cases where by legal technicality or the absence of a will the people who inherit property are almost the last ones that the deceased would want to share in it

Life Is Very Uncertain.

So if you wish to assure those who are nearest and dearest to you of receiving all that you wish them to have, instead of paying $5 to $10 to a lawyer, send 35 also includes a specimen will for your guidance. Fill it out according to simple instructions and you may be perfectly sure that it will stand every legal test and cannot be broken under any circumstances.

Why not send today, while it is on your mind, to the Bax Will Form Co., Room 2H, 280 College street, Toronto.

Sold by all druggists and stationers, and may also be obtained from Mr. C. B. Scantlebury and Mr. G. L. Sills, Belleville.

DEATH ROLL.

MRS. HARRIETT BOWEN

Mrs. Harriett Bowen an aged lady died yesterday at the family residence Everett Street in this city. Deceased who was 85 years old, had been for many years a resident of this city where she wes well known and much respected. Her husband preceded her to the tomb some years ago. Mrs. Bowen had been for years a member of the Methodist Church. Surviving are two sons and four daughters. The sons are John and William of this city and the daughters are Mrs. Robert McCoy. Mrs Jane Dawzer, Misses Emma and Annie all of this city.

MRS. WM. HARRIS

After being ill for some time Mrs. William Harris passed away last evening at the family residence on Geddes Street. Deceased who was in her 40th year, was a daughter of Mr. James S. Meagher of Tyendinaga Township where she was born. For the past 18 years she had been a resident of this city. Mrs Harris was a member of St. Michael's Church, and a lady respected by all who knew her. In addition to the husband four children, one son and three daughters survive, aged respectively 13 11, 7 and 4 years.

Excused Women Jurors

PITTSBURG, Kan., Nov. 29.—On the plea that it would be "ungallant" to allow women to sit in the trial, nine women jurors, empanelled in what is known as the "Enoch Arden" case, were released today in the court of Justice Pomeroy, and a jury entirely of men empanelled. The case is one in which Antoine Bognu charged Antoine Grover with improper attentions to Mrs. Bogan.

"This is a mean case for any one to handle," said the State's Attorney, A. B. Morris, "and as gallant men we would not ask ladies to try it."

The women summoned included Mrs. Elizabeth Callon, a newspaper writer and originator of 'the bonnet bonfire,' lighted by women here, following the recent victory of equal suffrage in Kansas.

AMUSEMENTS

CATTY SELLARS,
England's Organist-composer Who Plays at St. Andrew's Monday next.

Reports from different cities in Ontario show that Gatty Sellers, the English organist of the Queen's Hall, London, (Eng.) concerts is meeting with unprecedented success, churches being crowded night after night. The largest audiences in the history of the cities for an organ recital are attending. Correspondents describe him as "The Paderwski of the organ." His visit to St. Andrew's church next Monday should again attract a large audience.

DION O'DARE LAST NIGHT.

The appearance of the Irish musical drama, Dion O'Dare, at the local play house last evening, presented an excellent portrayal of real Irish life, sweet, romantic and wholesome in every respect. Mr. Bernard Daly in the title role is a very pleasing character, both as an actor and singer, with excellent stage presence, and an accurate exponent of the happy, witty ways typical of the Celt. In his vocal productions, Mr. Daly's sweet tenor voice was in evidence, which is one of wonderful range, as was demonstrated in rendering the "Call of the Wind," "Many Years Ago," "A Rose of Yesterday," and "Love is Like a Shoogy Shu." The company in a general way was good, all playing their respective parts well. Mr. Herbert White in the role of Algernon Goldingay aroused considerable mirth in his "extraordinary" way. Miss Grace Norman as Little Gillie, a waif, displayed excellent talent as a child actress. The drama was well staged, the scenic effects very good, and the character of the same was such as to be inoffensive to the most fastidious.

Young Fugitive Located

SARNIA. Nov. 28.—Fred Buchanan, the seventeen-year-old Sarnia lad who escaped from the local police a couple of times and who is wanted here for burglary, has been located at the home of his grandmother. The lad has been seen in several different places and is wanted in Port Huron and Sarnia. The interesting part of the whole case is that he had been going around the town at night dressed as a woman, and in such a disguise was caught. A person at Point Edwars saw him cross to Canada at that point, and recognized the boy in spite of the rig-up. Numerous burglaries have been admitted by the lad.

Women would never be successful as plain clothes detectives.

Itch Gone Instantly—Proof at 25c

What Eczema sufferers would not spend 25 cents to cure that terrible agonizing itch?

Since our repeated recommendations failed to induce some Eczema sufferers right in this town to try D.D.D. Prescription at $1.00 a bottle, we arranged with the D.D.D. Laboratories to offer a special trial—for the present—at only 25 cents for this special bottle. This nominal price is made to assure trial by every skin sufferer.

D.D.D. Prescription will convince you instantly, for it takes the itch away the very moment you start to wash the skin, and it cures—as we KNOW.

Sons of Scotland Commemorate Patron Saint

For some years past. Camp Rob Roy Sons of Scotland, of this city, have provided entertainments to commemorate St. Andrew's Day, and this event has always been looked forward to with interest. This entertainment was held last evening in Johnstone's Academy, Alberta Hall, which was filled with an appreciative audience. It partook of the nature of a concert and the programme provided was all that could have been desired. The local talent was good, but the chief attraction was the appearance of that well known comedian, Eddie Piggott of Toronto; Miss F. McNeil, soprano; and Miss O'Neil, a reader and vocalist, also of Toronto. This celebrated trio are artists in their line, and their various numbers were given in a manner that was most entertaining. The ladies have sweet voice, which were heard to good advantage in the selections they rendered. Miss O'Neil, as a reader, was most enchanting. Mr. Wm. McIntosh, in a few well chosen remarks, extended to all present a hearty welcome, after which the following programme was carried out:

PART I.

Opening Overture—Electric Orchestra.

Bagpipe Selection—Pipe Major Johnstone.

Song—Life's Merry Moon—Miss McNeil.

Reading—Her First Shopping—Miss O'Neil.

Comic Song—I Got Spooney on Mary—Eddie Piggott.

Reading—Selected—Jean McIntosh.

Duet—Ye Banks and Braes—Misses McNeil and O'Neil.

Reading—Billy and His Dog—Miss O'Neil.

Highland Fling—Master J. McIntosh.

Comic Song—Breaking. Up the Home—Eddie Piggott.

PART II.

Piano Selection—Scotch Airs—Mrs. Col. Campbell.

Song—Battle of Stirling—John McIntosh.

Reading—Song of the Camp—Miss O'Neil.

Song—Caller Herrin—Miss McNeil.

Sword Dance—Master J. McIntosh.

Comic Song—Police Brannagan—Eddie Piggott.

Reading—Selected—Miss O'Neil.

Comic Song—I Went to Sleep Again—Eddie Piggott.

Song—Selected—Miss McNeil.

Duet—Reuben and Rachael—Miss O'Neil and Eddie Piggott.

Mrs. Col. Campbell played the accompaniments in her usual artistic manner.

At the conclusion of the programme the hall was cleared and dancing was indulged in for some time, in which many participated. All voted the evening's entertainment to be the best ever held in commemoration of the occasion.

BOILING AN EGG.

If It Gives You Trouble You Might Try John Randolph's Way.

The boiling of an egg seems a simple matter, but many a breakfast has been spoiled and many a temper rasped by the cook's failing to observe the precise number of minutes the process should occupy.

That very original man, John Randolph, is said to have invented a method of getting his eggs cooked exactly to his taste that worked perfectly. As is the case in many country homes in the south, the kitchen was in a separate building at some distance from the house, and servants were plenty.

When the "sage of Roanoke" took his seat at the breakfast table there was a line of servants from the dining room to the kitchen. Mrs. Randolph, the mother of the statesman, held an open watch in her hand.

"In!" exclaimed Mr. Randolph, and the word "in" was passed from mouth to mouth until it reached the waiting cook, who dropped the eggs into the water. After the requisite number of seconds the holder of the timepiece signified that the cooking was done. "Out!" went forth the command in like manner, and the eggs were quickly removed.

The system required six or seven servants to cook one egg, but Randolph was accustomed to declare that this was the only way that he could get it cooked to suit him.—Youth's Companion.

AN INGENIOUS CLOCK.

Curious Automaton That Was Made In London a Century Ago.

One of the most wonderful timekeepers known to horologists was made in London, England, a hundred years ago and was sent by the president of the East India company as a gift to the emperor of China. The case was made in the form of a chariot, in which was seated the figure of a woman.

This figure was of pure ivory and gold, and the right hand rested upon a tiny clock, fastened to the side of the chariot. Portions of the wheels which kept track of the flight of time were hidden in the body of a tiny bird, which had seemingly just alighted upon the woman's finger.

There was a canopy above, so arranged as to conceal a silver bell. The bell was fitted with a little hammer, also of silver, which, although it did not appear to have any connection with the clock, struck the hours regularly and could be made to repeat by touching a diamond on the woman's bodice.

In the chariot, at the woman's feet, there was a golden figure of a dog, and above were two birds, apparently flying before the chariot. This beautiful ornament was made almost entirely of gold and was elaborately adorned with precious stones.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

KATE MEREDITH, FINANCIER

By C. J. CUTCLIFFE HYNE

"Well. I do. I like that girl. I knew her when I first came down Coast as mate. I remember the first time I saw her as if it was yesterday. I was standing up against the tally desk beside number three hatch, ticking off the cargo list as they hove stuff up and dropped it in the surf boats. It was on the old Fernando Po., that beat her bottom out afterwards when Williams tried to drive her over Monk bar at half ebb. There was a case marked with double-diamond that was O'Neill's and Craven's consigning all right, but with no name of factory. I knew old Swizzle-Stick Smith and Malla-Nulla well enough and I didn't know Slade, and so naturally I thought Smith should have it, and ordered the case back again into the hold. But just then up came a little nipper of about eight or ten years old, as self-possessed as you like, and says, 'Are you Mr. Image?' 'That's me,' says I. 'What's the message?' 'Oh, no message,' says she, 'only Dady says that if I can find you and stand by your heels and not bother I may stay aboard, but if not I'm to go ashore by the next boat and get on with my lessons.' Well, it didn't take much seeing throught what she meant there."

"No, sir," said Mr. Balgarnie heartily. "By all accounts old Cappie Williams was the hardest case they ever knew even on the West Coast and that's saying a lot. I only knew him for a year, and I wasn't particular in those days, but he was more than even I could stand."

"He was the limit. Well, me lad, that was the first time I saw Laura and she stood beside me half the day at the tally desk there, and thanked me for the entertainment when Slade sent off a boy to take her ashore. She gave me a kiss when she turned to go down the side—well, you see, I've—I've never quite forgotten that kiss, Balgarnie, me lad."

"I know skipper," said Mr. Balgarnie rather thickly. "A kid once kissed me, of her own blessed accord too, like that. It sort of burnt in. I beg your pardon sir, for interrupting."

"Not at all, me lad. Here you, Steward. Hi, Brass Pan."

A Krooboy ran up.

"We fit for two cocktail, plenty-long ones. Well, as I was saying, Balgarnie, me lad, I've always had a bit of soft place for Laura, though I suppose she rightly is snuff and butter, by Crumbs you'd never guess it from her looks unless you went over her with a lens, and I'd just feel all broken up if she was to go the way that lot usually do go. So if this Carter, who seems a nice clean-run sort of lad, will marry her with a ring, I'm going to weigh in with at least a best silver-plate teapot for a wedding present."

"You can put me down for the ditto sugar and cream," said the purser with emotion. "It was a kiddie just like Laura I was fond of myself. Only—only—Well Skipper, I seppose a good many of us are blackguards down here on the Coast. Why the sulpher doesn't your boy bring those cocktails?"

But at this point Captain Image broke off the conversation. "By Crumbs!" said he, "here's Miss Kate." And then he did a thing that made Mr. Belgarnie whistle with sheer surprise. He went down the ladder to help his passenger on board.

"Now, if I had done that," the Purser mused to himself, "it would have meant a lot. But my Whiskers! I never thought I should see old Cappie Image trotting down on to the front doorsteps to receive a mere female passenger. The Old Man must see enough solid dollars to the front doorstep to receive a farm outside Cardiff he hopes to retire upon."

Captain Image stood on the grating at the foot of the ladder and waved his panama in respectful salutation. The beer-colored river swirled along the steamer's rusty flank a foot beneath him, and the pungent smell of crushed marigolds which it carried made him cough. The sun shimmered exactly overhead in a sky of the most extravagant blue, and the greenery which fenced in the slimy mud banks hung in the breathless heat without so much as a twitter.

Miss Kate O'Neill was seated in a Maderia chair which stood on the floor of a big green surf boat, and the gleaming Krooboys perched on the gunwales paddled with more than their usual industry. The headman, who straddled at the steering oar in the stern, wore a tail-coat of an extremely sporting cut and pattern and a woven grass skull-cap in honor of the occasion. And all this pomp and circumstance was uninvited. But somehow people had the knack of offering special service and deference to Miss O'Neill.

The only other woman of the M'poso, the austere of a Benin trader, looked over the steamer's rail in gloomy disapproval. These were no modes for Coast wear. A billowy grass-green muslin dress that no Krooboy laundry-man could wash twice without spoiling; neat, narrow pipe-clayed shoes with no thickness of sole, and ridiculous heels; a pale green felt hat, actually insulted by a feather in its band; and final absurdity af all, a parasol, a flimsy thing of silk, and ribbon, and effervescent chiffon, which would absolutely be ruined by a splash of rain instead of the big sensible white cotton affair, with the dark green lining which all ordinary people know is the standard wear on that torrid Coast.

"Faugh," said the trader's wife, "and Captain Image says she's one of the smartest business women in the world to-day and that fat, greedy purser would propose to her in the next five minutes if he thought he'd a cat's chance of being accepted. They think her good-looking, too. I will be bound just because she wears suitable clothes and has pink color in her cheeks. Well, the clothes will be whisps of rag by this day week end—" and the poor woman sighed her—"the Coast will get the color and the plumpness out of her face," and make her as lean and yellow as the rest of us in a month."

"You're a good, kind man," Miss O'Neill was saying to a very smiling Captain Image, "and I know I did tell the bedroom steward to have my big trunks got up on deck; but, you see, Im a woman, and therefore it's my preogative to be able to change my mind without being openly abused for it. So I want you, please, to be very nice and let me stay on the M'poso a little longer."

"Miss Kate, I was sure you'd find that I was true, and that Smooth River factory was no place for a lady like you. You see those dead niggers are fresh now, but when the sun gets on 'em—er—I mean there's no trade coming into this section of the Coast just now till that blessed old King of Okky opens the roads again, and he won't do that yet awhile on his own dirty account and neither you nor I have got the ju-ju that will make him. My dear Miss, I'm just as pleased as a monkey with green—er— with a green tail to hear you're going to take the round trip home with me, and if my clean collars do run out, you must remember that we all wear pyjamners when we're south of the Islands and the trippers. If only I'd thought of shipping a jack-wash when I got my Krooboys at Sarry Leone. Well, one can't be prepared for everything."

The girl laughed. "I wouldn't strain the supply of collars for worlds. I only want you to take me two days on from here and drop me at the factory again on the way back."

The tint of Captain Image's vermilion face deepened to plum color. He scented irony, and his touchy Welsh temper bubbled up into view. "Miss", he said, "when I pull my anchors out of Smooth River mud in ten hours from now, I go out on the flood across the bar, and as you must know I walk in and do the civil in Water Street, Liverpool, before I smell the stink of these particular mud banks again."

She slipped a plump firm hand on his white drill sleeve. "Won't you ask me into the chart house, Captain and send Brass-Pan for some tea? I'm absolutely dying for tea. And you can have a cocktail. I've got a long story I want to tell you. There is a cargo waiting for you, Captain, up a creek that opens off Smooth River which you've never been up, and which I think will pretty well fill the M'posa without your troubling to call anywhere else."

Captain Image's face cooled to vermilion again, and puckered into a smile in spite of himself. He even went so far as to pat the fingers that rested on his arm. "By Crumbs, Miss, I'd ordered them to boil up that tea when I saw you shoot out of the factory creek in your surf boat and till you reminded me I'd clean forgotten it. And here you've been standing and yarning to me on the front door step all the time. They will call the M'poso a dry boat with a vengeance if this tale gets about. I shall be chaffed to death over it. Come up on top"

Mr. Balgarnie saw them ascending the ladder, and rushed into the chart house and pulled down three photographs that had been fastened on the wall with drawing pins since Miss Kate O'Neill's departure. He was thumped on the back his grateful skipper who caught him in the act of pocketing them.

"Belgarnie, me lad," said Captain Image, "you'll have to keep that hard collar of yours bent for two days longer. You'll be pleased to hear that Miss Kate's not going to throw us over yet. Just you go and see the chief steward and the cook and ask them what they've got left in the refrigerator. And I want you to break the rule of the ship, and make all the other passengers jealous, and dine at my table in honor of the occasion. Come in Miss and please take the settee. You'll find this cushion soft and free from mildew."

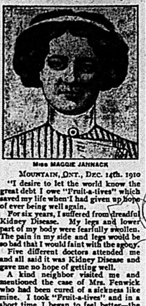
SHE FAINTED WITH THE AGONY

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Her Kidneys



Miss MAGGIE JANNACK

MOUNTAIN, ONT., DEC. 14th. 1910

"I desire to let the world know the great debt I owe "Fruit-a-tives" which saved my life when I had given up hope of ever being well again.

For six years, I suffered from dreadful Kidney Disease. My legs and lower part of my body were fearfully swollen. The pain in my side and legs would be so bad that I would faint with the agony. Five different doctors attended me and all said it was Kidney Disease and gave me no hope of getting well.

A kind neighbor visited me and mentioned the case of Mrs. Fenwick who had been cured of a sickness like mine. I took "Fruit-a-tives" and in a short time, I began to feel better—the swelling went down—the pains were easier—and soon I was well.

I have gained over 30 pounds since taking "Fruit-a-tives"—and my friends look upon my recovery as a miracle."

(MISS) MAGGIE JANNACK.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c.—or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

NO MORE DANDRUFF, NO MORE FALLING HAIR

Nearly everyone has dandruff, and must reconcile themselves to the idea of becoming completely bald or resort to the use of Newbro's Herpicide.

The manufacturers have absolute faith in Herpicide to kill the germ and remove all traces of dandruff. So perfect is this belief that all dealers are instructed to sell the preparation with a "money back" agreement.

Such supreme confidence is the best evidence in the world of the merit of Herpicide. They know the result, hence the guarantee. It protects the purchaser.

Used as directed, Newbro's Herpicide kills the germ that causes dandruff and prevents the hair from coming out. It stops itching of the scalp, which is so disagreeable.

Send 10c. in postage or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c. and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

ENLARGED RIDEAU HALL

Governor General's Official Home at Ottawa Has New Wing

Rideau Hall, the official residence of the Governor General, continues to expand. An addition eighty feet long, twenty feet wide, and one storey in height has been made to Government House which is to be used as a sitting-out parlor when big functions are given by the Governor-General. As the ballroom is on one side of Rideau Hall and the new sitting-out parlor on the other, guests will have the opportunity of making a thorough inspection of the building in going to the new wing.

THE JOY OF GIVING

"'Tis more blessed to give than to receive," says the Good Book, and we are continually receiving letters that prove the truth of this maxim.

Here's an extract that tells how the good work we are doing in the fight against Consumption appeals to every section of the community.

A well-known citizen of Brantford writes: "On Christmas morning my boys gave me $2.50 to get some present for myself that I wanted. I think you can use it to good advantage in your noble work in the National Sanitarium Association, so am enclosing it for that purpose."

Doesn't it make you feel proud to know that there are Canadian fathers with the self-sacrificing instinct so strongly imbued in them?

Isn't it good to realize that the rising generation is getting such a splendid example shown them? Last year it cost over $62,000.00 to keep the Muskoka Free Hospital open. More money is urgently needed to provide for those seeking admission.

The needy Consumptive is right at your door. Won't you help him to help himself?

The smallest gift will be most acceptable. Just slip your contribution in an envelope to-day, while you think of it, addressed to Mr. W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Executive Committee, 84 Spadina Ave.; or Mr. R. Dunbar, Sec. Treas., 347 King West, Toronto, and experience the real joy of giving.

ADDRESS DELIVERED BY MR. W. L. SCOTT AT LOCAL CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

The following address, delivered by Mr. W. L. Scott of Ottawa at the recent annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society in the City Hall, will prove of interest to many readers, as it deals largely with conditons and possibilities of the young.

Have your ever stopped to think why it should be that in a country like Canada which affords for all such great opportunities of success, so many thousands should be in jail, so many thousands should be found in the ranks of the criminals, the paupers, the ne'er do wells? Ask these criminals, these outcasts, these tramps and paupers how they come to be what they are and they would reply, if they knew and would speak truly: "We are what we have been brought up to be, what we have been made while we were children." As the twig is bent the tree will incline. The character of adults are fixed. What we grown up people are we will for the most part remain to the end of the chapter. But with the children it is different. They are still in the formative period, still capable of being moulded. What the country will be twenty, thirty, forty years from now will depend on the kind of men and women that are in it. The children of today are the men and women of tomorrow in the making. It is the work of the Children's Aid Society to make into good citizens and good Christians those of them who might otherwise grow up paupers or criminals. Is there within the length and breadth of the land a work more praiseworthy, a work more important? The work of the Children's Aid Societies is largely based on two propositions. The first proposition is that children are product of their surroundings. Children who break the criminal law, or who are growing up to evil or idle lives are precisely what any children—your children or my children—would have been if similarly situated. Criminals, unlike poets, are made, not born. This is now the more generally accepted view. It is the almost universal view of those who are actively engaged in child rescue work. Judge Almstead said: "I don't believe there are any essentially bad—the principal trouble is with the bad environment."

The second proposition is that the proper and natural place in which to bring up a child is a good domestic home—its own natural home, if that is at all compatible with the interests of the child; otherwise a fosten home. Institutions are necessary for the permanent care of the feeble minded and for the temporary training and education in exceptional cases of delinquents or children from bad surroundings, in order to fit them for domestic home life. But the place to bring up a normal healthy child is a domestic home. The matron of an orphan asylum, however well fitted for her position, cannot possibly give to each child under her care the individual love and attention that every child needs. Moreover, an institution tends to destroy individuality and initiative. The children become "institutionalized"; all are trained to think and act alike under orders, and the child comes out knowing nothing by experience or home life or even of the world. Such a child will certainly be handicapped in making a happy home for itself.

The first of the principles to which I referred on which the work of the Children's Aid Society rests, is that every child has a right to a happy, wholesome childhood. Surely this needs no elaboration. Is there anything worse or more inhuman than cruelty to a helpless child. Yet how comparatively common it is. There is also the cruelty that comes from thoughtlessness or wrong methods. Children can be managed by kindness and tact rather than by force and repression.

The second principle is that every child has a right to a fair chance of growing up to be a respectable and God-fearing citizen. Have you ever thought of it? What chance has the daughter of a prostitute if left with her mother to be other than a thief? And why should this girl be condemned, through no fault of her own to a life of prostitution or that boy, unwittingly, to a career of crime? The rights of parents are sacred and ought not lightly to be interfered with; but they may be forfeited by abuse; and the rights of the children are paramount. The state, too, has rights, and should not stand idly by while children are trained to disobey her laws.

Based on these two propositions and guided by these two principles, the work of the Children's Aid Societies is two-fold—that with neglected and dependent children on the one hand, and that with delinquents on the other. It must not, however, be thought that the neglected and the delinquent constitute very distinct classes; they but only largely overlap, but differ from each other mainly in the extent to which causes common to both have operated. Every delinquent child is in some way neglected and if a neglected child is not delinquent it is a mere accident. But the treatment of the two classes differs not only somewhat in method but also and mainly in the authority under which the society in each case acts. Neglected children are governed by provincial laws, while a child who violates any provision of the criminal code can be dealt with only under a Dominion statute. The work with the neglected and dependent children is carried on under the authority of the Ontario Protection Act, and is very familiar to you all. Its chief feature is the securing of proper homes for children, either by improving the natural home where that is possible or where that is not possible the removal of them to good foster homes. When the case of a neglectful or evil home is brought to the attention of the society every effort is made by tactful admonition and advice to make the home what it should be. Failing this the child is removed and by an order of the Court is taken from the control of its parent and made a ward of the court. Even after this drastic step the society does not always give up hope of keeping the home together but frequently places the child back with its parents to give them another chance. But when all else fails the children are placed in good foster homes in the country where they are visited once a year by officers of the department at Toronto. Fortunately the supply of good foster homes is always greater than the demand. It has been calculated that of the many thousands of children who have been placed in foster homes 98 per cent. turn out well. There are only 2 per cent. of failures. This holds good for the British immigrant children also and is a conclusive proof of the correctness of my statement that environment and not heredity is the dominating factor in determining the moral character of the child.

Those of you who are in touch with this work know how full it is of consolations. First the homes we are able to keep together. The fathers and mothers who are keeping sober and in the right path for the sake of their children. Second, the immense happiness which the advent of the foster children has brought into so many childless homes. And, best of all, the happiness and good that has come to the children themselves.

The work with delinquent children as such must of necessity be carried on under Dominion legislation. But where the Juvenile Delinquents Act is not in force the legislation is very inadequate indeed. Apart from probation, which is the chief feature of the Juvenile Delinquents Act, in dealing with a delinquent child, only two courses are open: commitment to the Industrial School and release on suspended sentence. I say nothing of the jail or penitentiary as no child should ever visit them. To a child it is nothing but a school of crime. Yet there are hundreds of children in the jails and penitentiaries of the country today.

Commitment to an Industrial School has many serious disadvantages. However well conducted it is, it is not better than a forlorn hope. A reform school, in fact, never reforms. There are many reasons for this. The contaminating influence arising from the segregation of delinquents is very difficult to prevent. It is difficult, if not impossible for those in charge to deal with the inmates as individuals and not merely as a class; yet without the personal touch little can be accomplished. Boys in an institution are living in an artificial atmosphere and however well beloved they may be while there, they are apt as a rule to be found unable after their release to resist temptations from which they were shielded while in the institution. They are, moreover, branded, and find it extremely difficult to live down the disgrace of having been confined in a reformative institution. While, therefore, some cases must go to the industrial school, don't send a boy there unless you have made an honest and patient effort to deal with him otherwise.

Suspended sentence without probationary care is equally objectionable. The boy is apt to go back a hero to his companions from having been in court. He is apt to conclude that as nothing was done to him he will run no risk in offending again. At the best, he is expected to succeed where so many adults fail, in keeping a good resolution.

The choice therefore is between a reform school which seldom reforms and suspended sentence which means doing nothing and trusting to luck. But when the Juvenile Delinquents Act is in force there is another and most effective method and that is probation. Probation has been spoken of as the keystone of the arch of the modern juvenile court. The juvenile court, as it is now generally understood, is a most wonderful development chiefly of the last ten or twelve years. It is far more than a separate court for children. It has a spirit and a viewpoint and methods the very opposite of those of the criminal court. The chief characteristics of the court are, first, its consideration of the great value of the child both for its own sake and for the sake of the state. Second, its advancement of the idea of retributive justice. The juvenile court inflicts no punishments on children. A child may be committed to the industrial school but he is committed not for punishment but for training. The criminal court asks What has this child done and how is he to be punished? The juvenile court asks, What is the condition of the child; in what respects does it need help, and how best can it be helped? Briefly, the fundamental idea of the court is paternalism, the assumption by the court of the position to the child.

It has already been pointed out that the child is the product of its environment. When, therefore, a child is brought before the juvenile court, the first care of the court, after making sure of the facts is to endeavor to ascertain, through the probation officer or otherwise, what in this particular case is the cause of the trouble. The probation officer's duty is to go and see the child or a friend, to win its confidence and get its story of what has taken place. He then goes to the home, to the school, to the place of employment and anywhere else where information can be got, in order to find out all that is ascertainable about the child and its past history. The necessity for this obvious. How can a wise decision be come to with regard to the child unless the fullest information is at hand? Having ascertained what the trouble is the Judge is in a position to deal with the case. In the vast majority of cases the action taken will be the release of the child on probation in charge of the probation officer. The probation officer should thereafter see the child frequently—at first it should at least be every day—and endeavors to impress the stamp of his own personality on the child. His idea is not so much reformation as formation—to form the character of that child, still in the formative period. The child is like a lump of putty, soft at first, but gradually hardening until it is like iron. It is the work of the probation officer by gentle continued effort to efface the marks of evil surroundings or perhaps of years of neglect and to replace them with lines of virtue and honesty and truth. He goes into the home as a friend and tactfully endeavors to remove or alter whatever is wrong. In brief, he endeavors, if possible, to remove from the environment of the child that which was causing its downfall. In order to reform the child he must frequently reform first the whole family. If the family cannot be reformed the child is removed to a foster home. It must always be remembered that probation is not mere supervision or watch care, or rather it is much more than that. It means character building and home improving. Unless the probation officer can feel that he has by his influence made a lasting change for the better in the character of the child and left the home and the environment in general better than he found them, he cannot claim to have succeeded even though the probationer has not been returned to the court for a new offence. The probation officer should be sympathetic, tactful and resourceful, and should possess a large fund of optimism, balanced by good judgment. He should act through kindness, but wisdom is even more important. Without insight kindness will be of little use. It is just as in medicine, unless the doctor knows what is wrong he cannot cure. But while there must be kindness it must never degenarte into weakness. There must be firmness; the parties must be made to feel that behind the officer there is the firm hand of the law. A few days in the detention home or shelter is often useful in this regard. And once it is plain that probation will not succeed there should be a commitment to an industrial school.

A powerful adjunct of probation is the Big Brother Movement. In 1910 the Big Brother organization in New York alone handled 1242 boys of whom only 3 per cent. were returned to the court on any charge whatever.

The committee of the Society should play an important part in the carrying on of probation, chiefly in the way of supervision, and also along the line of Big Brother work. Our committee meets once a week, hears reports on the cases, discusses them and endeavors to assist the court and the probation officer in deciding what action to take. More than this, a certain number of the committee are themselves doing personal work with the children, or in other words, "acting as Big Brothers and Big Sisters" This at first sight may seem like making a great sacrifice, but it is extremely interesting work, takes far less time than might be imagined, and is certainly worth while. It is generally admitted that a hobby is an excellent thing. What better or nobler hobby than that of making good citizens and good Christians out of these poor little victims of circumstances?

Probation has been in voluntary operation in Ottawa since 1906 and it has proved most successful. We have found it necessary to send only about 2½ or 3 per cent. to the industrial schools, and while we have always on hand a certain number of troublesome cases, the great majority of those who have passed through the court have done extremely well.

I do not know to what extent you carry on this probation work here, but if you are not carrying it on you are neglecting your duties, neglecting your opportunities. You should for one thing have the Dominion Juvenile Delinquents Act put in force. You have now all the essentials necessary. It will very greatly facilitate your work with delinquents. If, as I think likely, Mr. Wrightmyer is too busy to do full justice to the work, why not engage a lady assistant who could act as assistant probation officer under his direction and supervision?

In this work of the Children's Aid Society all should feel in duty bound to join. Do not lay yourselves open to the reproach conveyed in the motto which was so conspicuous at the recent splendid child welfare exhibition in Montreal: "The voice of the child cries out against you."

We spend vast sums in sending missionaries to distant lands. Here is missionary work at our very doors to which both duty and interest call. Duty, for it means the salvation of souls and the making of good citizens, and is not our first duty in this respect to our own people? Interest, for the neglect of it means increased cost of supporting paupers and of prosecuting and supporting criminals in the future. It is wiser and less expensive to save children than to punish criminals.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

To Remove Rust

Keep a piece of coarse sandpaper near the kitchen sink and use to scrape bottoms of cooking utensils. It will also remove rust from irons, knives, or burned grease from top of steel range.

Prevent Tears

To prevent tears in children's underwaists where the garters are fastened, stitch a stout tape from the armhole down to the first button; slip on a brass ring, then fold the tape and stitch back to armhole. Then fasten pins to this ring.

Stops Curdling

If a tablespoonful of sweet milk is added to each yolk of egg when making custards, the mixture will not curdle when added to the boiling milk.

BRAVE FRENCH WOMAN

Saved Valuable Letters, Won a Medal—and a Husband

Among the women who received the French war medal for the disastrous campaign of 1870 is Mme. Zimmerman, who distinguished herself in the early days of the war, when she was postmistress at Reichthoffen, the scene of the famous charge of the French cavalry. After the defeat of the French troops Mme. Zimmrman succeeded in keeping intact all the postal documents and money which had been committed to her care. The victorious Prussians raided the post-office, but found nothing, as the valuables had been hidden in a vault by the courageous postmistress. A few days later Mme. Zimmerman remitted all the cash and important letters to a French officer, whom she afterwards married.

Allowance for Mothers

The Australian House of Representatives passed a bill providing a "maternity allowance up to a maximum of five pounds in respect to any child born in Australia and not of aboriginal or Asiatic parentage."

GREAT DRY-DOCK TO LIFT WARSHIPS

Largest Vessels Can be Accommodated for Repairs at Montreal—A Perilous Voyage

For two years and a half dredges delved into the bed of the St. Lawrence River near Maisonneuve, scooping out a basin to act as a resting place for the huge Montreal dry dock, "The Duke of Connaught" which was placed in position after an adventurous trip across the Atlantic in tow of two powerful tugs. During the voyage the hawsers broke five times and the unwieldly dock narrowly escaped being dashed to pieces on the rocky shores of Cape Breton.

The best speed the tugs made with the great dry-dock was four miles an hour. The dock itself is capable of accommodating the largest ships of the British navy, and is of the self-docking, double sided type, known as the bolted sectional. The pontoon is divided into three sections, surmounting two parallel side walls, which, when bolted together, form one huge dock. Each section may, if required, be operated independently of the others, and this is likely to be of advantage in handling small ships. From the sea-level to the bridge the dock measures some sixty feet, length over platforms, 600 feet; beam 135 feet, depth of pontoon at centre 17 feet, draught of vessel 27½ feet, and lifting capacity, 25,000 tons.

Despite her long and stormy journey the dock arrived in perfect condition. The crew numbered fourteen all told, and was composed entirely of Dutchmen.

When a ship, crippled by one of the many mishaps of the sea, is in need of repairs, it is towed toward the dry-dock which floats high in the water like an immense square ship with open ends. Slowly the dock commences to sink, this being accomplished by admitting water to its air-chambers.

Finally it rests on the bottom. Then the ship is towed in by tug, and is brought to a stop between the walls which now rise only a few feet above the surface of the water. Then an order is given, and slowly the mass begins to rise. Air is being pumped into the chambers, and the whole dock with the ship securely supported between its walls, rises to view again. It is a tremendous lifting force that is being brought into play. By it, a vessel weighing 25,000 tons may be raised completely out of the water.

The lifting accomplished, chains which pass through big pipes in the wall and are anchored inside, and which are attached to winches on the dock operated by electricity, begin to wind up, and the dock, ship and all, is drawn close to the wall of the basin. There all is made fast, and the work of repair begins.

AFTER HUGE DIAMOND

According to Theory It Should Weigh Many Tons

There is now in active operation what is probably the most wonderful mining venture ever recorded. The object of the quest is an enormous meteor which struck the earth ages ago, and is believed to be practically a solid diamond worth untold millions of pounds. The scene of this amazing mining operation is Meteor Mountain, in the heart of the Arizona desert The top of the mountain is hollowed out into a huge bowl-shaped depression about 600 feet deep and perhaps a mile across, much like a volcanic crater, and there exists a belief that this crater marks the place where a giant meteorite, as large as the circumference of the bowl would indicate, struck the earth many thousands of years ago and buried itself deep in the earth. The theory that the main body of the meteor may prove to be one huge diamond is based both upon the finding of gems in scattered fragments and on the opinion of Sir William Crooks that the bottomless bores, known as "diamond pipes," in which these gems are usually found are the result of falling meteors.

AFTER THE FAKES

Mails of Canada Closed to Questionable Enterprises

The Postmasters-General of Canada and the United States are uniting in a crusade against mail order sharks who have been using the mails of both countries for fraudulent purposes.

Get-rich-quick men are, according to the post-office authorities, increasing in Canada at a disturbing rate, many of those who were driven out of New York, Chicago, and other cities across the line by the activities of the United States officials having turned their attention to Canada as a particularly ripe field for their line of endeavor.

Lived 110 Years

Jospeh Marshi, a carpenter, 110 years old, who died at Chicago, was born in Germany in 1802, and emigrated when he was 40 years old. At the age of 80 years Marshi ceased the use of intoxicating liquors. When he was 105 years old he stopped the use of tobacco.

Killed by Son's Auto

Samuel McDowell was run over at Winnipeg, sustaining fatal injuries, by an automobile truck driven by his son. He was riding on the truck when the machine skidded, throwing him to the ground. The left hind wheel passed over his body.

QUEEN IS MODEST IN HER DRESSING

She Spends About $4,000 a Year on Gowns, Much Less Then Other Royal Personages

Queen Mary is not so liberal a customer to the modistes and milliners who have the honor of royal patronage as was Queen Alexandra. As Princess of Wales her expenditure on dress was extremely low. She and her husband did not entertain upon a large scale, but lived comparatively quietly. Hence her orders to her modistes and milliners were neither lavish nor frequent.

Though she spends much more on dress now than she did as Princess of Wales, she still spends less than the consort of any other great European sovereign. The principles of strict economy instilled into her by her mother are not easily forgotten.

It is not that she is not always attired as becomes a queen, but she makes her dresses last longer than her modistes like. Moreover, she does not leave the scrutiny of her bills to others. She goes through them all with her chief dresser, Mrs. Clark, who is a well trained modiste and thoroughly familiar with the profits of the great dressmakers. The result is that the overcharges which formerly made the royal custom so profitable have become things of the past.

Queen Mary buys between forty and fifty gowns in a year. For her morning gowns she seldom pays more than $125. Her evening gowns rarely cost more than $200. She wears a morning gown frequently a couple of dozen times before it is put out of the wardrobes and an evening gown about a dozen times. There are ladies of the royal household who never wear an evening gown more than three times and frequently but once.

QUEEN MARY

Her Majesty in one of her favorite driving costumes.

Her Majesty's expenditure on gowns alone rarely exceeds $4,000 in the year. This is less by at least a thousand dollars than the sum annually spent on dresses by, say the Queen of Spain, the German Empress, or the Czarina.

The Queen is fond of serge tailor-made walking dresses and scarcely ever wears any other sort of costume when she is at York Cottage or Balmoral. For these dresses she pays but $35. A tailor who sent in a bill for two walking costumes, one of blue serge and the other of Scotch tweed, charged at $45 each, was promptly paid, but he lost the royal custom.

On hats Queen Mary spends less than $1,000 a year. She does not buy more than half a dozen really expensive hats in the year. These may cost from $50 to $75 each. She has paid $100 for a hat, but not often. Open tagal is a very favorite material for her hats. She keeps about two dozen hats in regular wear and buys about the same number in the year.

Her expenditure on boots and shoes runs to about $300. She keeps a couple of dozen pairs of day boots and shoes and a dozen pairs of evening shoes in regular wear, and buys about a dozen pairs of the former and half a dozen of the latter in the course of a year. For the latter she pays $25 a pair. The Queen's favorite is a Louis XV. heeled patent leather shoe the price of which is $12.50. Buckskin shoes she also favors. For these Her Majesty pays $10 a pair.

For her corsets she pays $50—never more and never less. She keeps two dozen corsets in stock.

On her lingerie her expenditure is small for the simple reason that she possesses a superlatively magnificent collection of lace, linen, and silk underwear, which formed part of her wedding trousseau. The Queen's underwear fills three large linen chests at Buckingham Palace and $25,000 would be a fairly accurate estimate of its value.

On her court gowns the Queen spends from three to five thousand dollars every year, but these cannot be reckoned as part of her ordinary attire. The German Empress spends $10,000, and the Queen of Spain, who is one of the most extravagantly attired of European royalties, at least $15,000 a year on her court dresses.

CANADA EXPORTS HUGE FUR CATCH

The Far North Still Abounds in all Kinds of Valuable Wild Animals

Seven hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars was the value of furs brought to Edmonton from the north country and trans-shipped in one week recently to London, Paris, St. Petersburg, New Nork, and Boston. The Hudson's Bay Co. headed the list, with $375,000 worth of furs, Revillon Brothers had $150,000, the Northern Trading Company $100,000, and independent fur traders make up the balance. The skins were of the highest quality and were in the best of condition.

There were several silver fox skins, each valued at from $1,250 to $1,500, and others ranging in value from $500 to $1,000. The catch of fox furs was larger than in former years. The other skins were marten, mink, beaver, fox, bear, deer of various kinds and muskrat. Most of the furs were from the country north and east of Slave Lake and the Mackensie River, and from the Peace River district and the northern portion of the Provinces of Alberta and British Columbia.

Indians are the principal hunters at the northerly posts of the trading companies, although a number of white men are engaged in the business. The average catch for an experienced trapper is valued at from $1,500 to $2,000 a season, though at times the hunter earns from two to three times that amount by taking silver foxes, which are not only rare, but also difficult to lure to the baited traps. The Chippewyan Indians, who are the chief hunters for the Hudson's Bay Company, make their largest catches in the Great Slave Lake district, where the country is as wild and unpeopled as Nature left it centuries ago.

SIR HENRY M. PELLATT

Some Side-Lights on the Career of One of Canada's Big Men

A man who has achieved notable success in Canada's financial circles is Sir Henry M. Pellatt of Toronto. He it was who accomplished the plan of bringing power from Niagara Falls to the city of Toronto for use for street railway purposes, and also for lighting the streets and houses of the citizens, and he became president of the companies formed for that purpose, the Electrical Development Company and the Toronto and Niagara Power Company; he is also president of the Toronto Electric Light Company, and is upon the directorate of a number of important Canadian enterprises, such as the Dominion Steel Corporation, the Toronto Railway Company, the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company, the British American Assurance Company, and a number of others.

A native of Toronto, born in 1860, he is the son of Henry Pellatt, who, on crossing the Atlantic from England to Canada, became a resident of Toronto and in due course of time figured prominently in the financial world as the senior partner of the famous stock broking firm of Pellatt & Osler.

Henry Mill Pellatt was educated in Upper Canada College and received his business training under his father's direction, entering the office and becoming thoroughly familiar with the stock brokerage business in principle and detail. Upon the dissolution of the firm of Pellatt & Osler in 1882 he was admitted to a partnership by his father under the firm name of Pellatt & Pellatt.

Sir Henry has been one of the foremost men in Canada to encourage every description of manly, outdoor sports, games and pastimes. He himself is a fine practical sportsman. As a youth he was an expert at many games and forms of athletics and was the American amateur champion runner at a mile, having won that much coveted title in a competition held in New York City against all contestants on the American continent. He is an enthusiastic yachtsman and fisherman, and is also a most ardent supporter of horticulture.

Sir Henry Pellatt is moreover a prominent figure in military circles. In his youth he became a private of the Queen's Own Rifles, the largest volunteer corps in the Dominion, and with this Regiment has since been associated, retiring but recently with the rank of Colonel. He is now Brigadier in Command of the 6th Infantry Brigade. In 1910 his broad outlook showed him a way of promoting his strong Imperialistic ideas, and at his own expense, which must have been very heavy, he took his Regiment, the Queen's Own Rifles, consisting of over 600 men, to England to take part in the manœuvres of the British Army at Aldershot. While there he was sent for by the King to Balmoral Castle in Scotland, and received from him the distinction of Commander of the Victorian Order.

At the Coronation of King George V. Sir Henry and Lady Pellatt were given seats in Westminster Abbey, and Sir Henry received an appointment for special military duty in the grand procession the day following.

BEAUTY PROBLEM EASY TO SOLVE

Anita Norris Tells How to Remove Superfluous Hair by Several Methods

Little fuzzers that grow where they should not are regarded with antagonism by the majority of women. They realize full well that a growth of hair on the lips or cheeks or arms is destructive to their good looks and to their peace of mind.

It may interest you to know that there are several ways out of the trouble. Some require the expenditure of much cash and others levy unstintedly on your stock of perseverance and faith.

Suppose we take up the electrical way first. It is sure and harmless but somewhat expensive. In some cases, where the operator is usually expert, as high as $15 an hour is asked, but the usual charge is $5 for a full 60 minutes.

"Do the hairs return?" you ask. No, they do not. The electric needle, in the hands of a skillful operator, kills the hair root in the twinkling of an eye. This should be good news to all those who desire a downless skin.

BEAUTIFY YOUR ARMS

And now let me tell you of other ways of banishing an unwanted growth of hair. While I do not advise the use of a strong depilatory on the facial skin, yet it can do no harm, and may do much good, if applied to hairy arms. A simple hair remover, which works quickly, is made according to the following recipe:

Depilatory Liquid

Sulphuret of barium	3 ounces
Water	12 ounces

Make into a paste by wetting cornstarch with the solution, then smear thickly over the offending hairs. Let the paste dry and then rub off with a rough towel, when you will find that the hairs have mysteriously disappeared.

Do not be disappointed if another growth of hair appears within a few days. It is said, however, if this liquid is applied again and again during the course of a few months, that eventually the hair roots will give up the battle and fade gracefully out of existence.

It is of the utmost importance that the strength of a depilatory should be tested before applying to the face or arms. Neglect of this precaution may spell trouble, as different skins vary as to sensitiveness. What affects your skin may not burn the cuticle of your best friend. Be careful.

If you are afflicted with only a few scattered hairs, it would be foolish to use a depilatory, as a pair of tweezers will quickly remove the despised fuzzers. Then if you are wise you will dampen each little red spot with camphor water.

Did you ever hear of pumice stone being a hair remover, and a first rate one at that? Hold a small cake of pumice stone in your palm and pass it gently over the unwanted hairs for a few minutes. The result will be all you could ask.

VALUE OF SPICES

Cinnamon a Good Preservative, Ginger the Very Opposite

Experiments conducted with a view to determining the preservative value of various spices and condiments seem to establish the fact that certain spices have a marked preservative effect on foods.

Cinnamon, for instance, is found to be a more powerful enemy of ferments than benzoic acid and at the same time quite harmless. Other condiments that are useful as preservatives are cloves and mustard, with nutmeg and allspice effective in somewhat less degree.

On the other hand such drastic condiments as ginger, black pepper and cayenne pepper do not hinder the growth of germs.

Thus it appears that cinnamon, cloves, mustard, nutmeg and allspice may be used with good advantage in seasoning foods, since they are not only palatable, but also exert a good effect on the food itself. Ginger and pepper, on the other hand, may well be avoided, since they do not exert any good effects on the food and are irritating to the stomach.

Curtain Renewer

If ecru curtains become bleached on the lower half where they hang at the window unprotected from the sun try dissolving two or three teaspoonfuls of yellow ochre in a half cupful of warm water and putting it in your starch. There is nothing in it harmful to the curtains, and it does not streak them. Yellow ochre can be obtained at any hardware store where paint is sold.

Toronto may have an alderwoman in the city council next year, Mrs. Elizabeth Crockett having entered the field as a candidate of the Socialist party.

$1,000 REWARD

For information that will lead to the discovery or whereabouts of the person or persons suffering from Nervous Debility, Fits, Skin Disease, Blood Poison, Genito Urinary Troubles and Chronic or Special Complaints that cannot be cured at The Ontario Medical Institute, 263-265 Yonge Street, Toronto.

WHAT IS A LADY?

Sometimes the Definition is Made Apparent in a Strange Way

Some one has defined a "lady" as one who talked in a low tone, and thought in a high tone. There are other definitions, many of them, but most people travel through the world wondering just what is the difference between a "woman" and a "lady." Some think that perhaps money makes the difference, others consider that it is an accident of birth.

It was on a crowded Vancouver streetcar at the rush hour. Working men were piling in, crowding and struggling for a place. Women were in the minority, and most of them were forced to stand. Near the back of the car, where the crowd was thickest, two women stood together. One was a tiny Japanese, no longer young, her arms encircling a huge bundle, her tired eyes half closed. Beside her was—"a lady." Young and charming, dressed as for some smart social function, and carrying herself with the unconscious arrogance which protests against unusual and unpleasant surroundings, she appeared oblivious of the heaving crowd of roughly-clad men. At her side one rose to leave the car, leaving the tempting seat for whoever could snatch it from the others. About to sit down, the girl caught sight of the pathetic little figure. She hesitated and a man attempted to slide past her into the seat. With one hand she held him back; the other was placed gently about the shoulders of the little Japanese, who was drawn protesting to the vacant seat.—Vancouver Sunset.

A FAD FOR ODD EYES

Parisian Women Like One Blue and the Other Black

It is no new thing for lovely woman to endure discomfort or ridicule in the pursuit of the elusive "up-to-date" idea, but to risk positive danger is a boundary of folly that she has not hitherto touched. Yet the persistence of the "odd" idea in frocks, hats, and cloaks, has mounted to the eyes, and some women with more vanity than brains are now actually acquiring "odd optics."

The fashionable English woman has not gone further than dropping belladonna into one eye, which makes it larger and brighter in appearance than the other. This is not at all a safe thing to do, but the French woman does more. The beauty salons of Paris are besieged by foolish women who attend so many times a month to have coloring matter dropped into one eye to make it different from the other. Possessors of blue eyes, have one black, and those with brown eyes choose a yellow one. A well-known Parisian beauty specialist said that "odd eye" owners told her the fashion had proved wonderfully attractive to men, whose attention is usually captured by something unusual in a woman, and that it gives an air of mystery also which increases their interest in them.

DO YOU KNOW?

That to prevent tomato soup from curdling add hot tomatoes with soda to the thickened milk.

That if you paint your tin wash basins on the inside with a good white enamel paint it prolongs their usefulness.

That when mashing turnips to add just a little potato and mash with the turnips, a few sprinklings of sugar, too, make a tasty addition.

That if the water supply becomes muddy it can be cleared for laundry purposes by stirring in a little corn meal. When saturated, the meal will sink and carry with it the particles of soil.

That lemons may be kept for some time by wrapping each in tissue paper and putting in a tightly covered jar or pail.

Heating a Pie

When heating a pie, stand it in a deep baking dish filled with boiling water and place on the stove for half an hour; then, twenty minutes before it is required, place it in the oven to heat the crust. It will be as good as if freshly cooked.

EASY VICTIMS OF CLEVER ROGUES

Fortune Telling Fakir Did a Big Business—Clients Were Mostly Women

Something like 1,500 letters containing money and addressed to a certain "Professor," were sent in one batch by the Montreal Post Office to the dead letter department at Ottawa. Most of these letters came from young women in the United States and Canada who desired "inside information," and were willing to pay for it.

The young women wanted to know what their future husbands would look like—whether to marry the tall fair man or the short dark fellow. For the small sum of two dollars the "Professor" guaranteed to wrest the desired information from the stars.

Cash Rolled In

The professor advertised in a number of magazines and newspapers, and for a time the money just poured in. He was first heard of in St. John, N.B., where the post office authorities quickly put him out of business. Then for a short time he did a thriving business at St. Lambert, Quebec. Finally the professor changed his address to Montreal. About that time the post office authorities in that city became suspicious of him, and the professor in turn became wary and neglected to call for his mail.

Women are the easiest victims for such sharks. They send money to learn needle-work or how to make garments at home. Patent medicine enterprises and matrimonial bureaus are also among the most prolifically employed.

Another Scheme

Upon the representations of a Florida land company a Montreal man purchased some land in Florida with a view to acquiring a quick and easy fortune raising celery. Investigation of the purchase proved the "city" to be a bogus place twenty or twenty-five miles from the nearest settlement.

A specimen of the soil on his land was submitted to the Dominion Experimental Farms at Ottawa. Following is the report the Montrealer received from Ottawa:

"An examination of the sample accompanying your letter shows it to be practically pure sand. It would have no agricultural value and I do not think that any treatment with fertilizer with the view of making it productive, would prove remunerative."

"We close about five or six swindlers a year," said a post office inspector. "But the Canadian laws are becoming so strict that get-rich-quick-brokers are not using the mails to defraud to any great extent now."

INDIANS NOW WORK

Scarcity of Game and Fur Animals Brought About the Change

That the day is coming to an end when the red man will live as fisherman, hunter and trapper is declared in a report of the Indian Department issued at Ottawa. The growing scarcity of game and fur-bearing animals in many districts is driving many of the hunting tribes into the occupations of the palefaces. The services of Indians are becoming more generally utilized as farm hands and in other industrial pursuits.

The earnings of the red man in agriculture for one year amounted to $1,464,347, and in wages to $1,616,046, while at hunting and trapping during the same time they made $804,517.

Canada's Indian population is placed at 104,956, and the Eskimo population is 4,600. The additions to the Provinces of Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec added 7,619 Indians to the Indian population of these provinces, and reduced the total in the North-West Territories to 5,262. Ontario has more Indians than any other province, a total of 26,393. British Columbia formerly led, but the addition to Ontario brought in 3,237 Indians.

NOT MUCH LARGE TIMBER

But Much Pulpwood Found in Lac La Biche Region of Alberta

It had been reported that there was considerable large timber north of Lac LaBiche, in northern Alberta, but an examination by Mr. S. H. Clark for the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior, brought out the fact, which has, too frequently been the case, that the quantity of large timber is small and only in a few scattered areas. There is, however, a large quantity of immature spruce and jack pine which needs only protection from fire to be a valuable crop from pulpwood or lumber. The land is generally covered with muskeg, and the soil, nowhere first-class, becomes lighter and sandy towards the east, where it consists of sandy jack pine ridges with muskeg between. The undrained muskegs make the timber growth slow, but the whole district is more suited for timber growth than for agriculture.

Paint From Rocks

Millions of dollars are expected to be added to the wealth of Wisconsin as the result of experiments carried out in the mining laboratory of the University of Wisconsin on the merits of Wisconsin paint materials. Immense quantities of rock containing these materials have for centuries been lying idle in the southwestern part of Wisconsin.

A university professor produced from the same ore paint of every hue and color, from mahogany to colonial oak. All proved fast colors and every color showed a good body and lustre. The different colors were produced by a difference in the length of the roasting period.

Interior decorators are laying stress now on the beauty of straight lines, and most curtains are allowed to hang simply from the top of the window to the sill.

CANADA BIGGER THAN THE UNITED STATES

Latest returns give Canada's area as 3,745,574 square miles. The United States, not including Alaska and dependencies, covers 3,026,789 square miles, so that if the United States without Alaska, were placed upon Canada, British Columbia, Alberta, and one-third of Saskatchewan would be left uncovered. Including Alaska, the Philippines, Hawaii, Porto Rico, and a few scattered islands in the Pacific Ocean, statistics give the United States an area of 3,743,344 square miles, still less than the area of Canada. Strictly speaking the United States lays claim to about 3,642,122 square miles, as against Canada's 3,745,574.

Canada is, therefore, much larger than the United States, fifteen times as large as France, twenty of Spain, more than sixteen times the size of the German Empire, and more than twenty-five times larger than the British Isles.—Guelph Herald.

MAPS OF TEMPERATURE

Canadian Professor Makes Suggestions as to Overcoming the Ice-Lurking Peril

Professor Barnes, of McGill University, Montreal, submitted to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries an interim report on his investigations of methods whereby ships may be warned of the nearness of ice or land. The professor regards the results of his work as highly satisfactory.

Professor Barnes has now for three years investigated conditions in the St. Lawrence, in the Straits of Belle Isle and along the Labrador coats, the Department of Marine and Fisheries supplying him with a steamer.

The concluding portion of Professor Barnes' report was as follows:—

"Very important results have been obtained indicative of methods which should be developed for equipping ships for avoiding ice and land. The experiments have been so decisive and reliable that I must strongly recommend that attention be devoted by the Government and by steamship companies towards adopting accurate temperature recorders on board ship.

"Again I must emphasize that it is to a study of the variations of temperature in the sea and not the temperature itself which will enable navigators safely to avoid ice and land at night or in time of fog. I would strongly recommend the Government to equip at once a ship to map out the isothermal lines around the coasts of Newfoundland, Labrador and the shores of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Straits of Belle Isle, for in so doing a chart could be prepared which would be of great assistance to navigators using these waters.

"Similar charts should be made all over the world, but this is a matter for international action and not for one Government alone."

SCARS THAT STAY

Marks of Superficial Injuries Soon Disappear—Deeper Wounds Show

There are people who say that everything in the body is changed every seven years, and that there is no part of it which was there seven years ago. This does not mean that we slough the whole thing off at once, as a snake does its skin or a deer its antlers, but simply that the innumerable and tiny atoms which are used up by the daily wear and tear are replaced by fresh atoms supplied by our food and drink, which keep the body going.

But these changes are so minute and gradual that the form of the body remains the same, although such things as scars take a long time to disappear, and sometimes they remain for life, although they always lose a great deal of their prominence.

You may have noticed that if you cut your finger lightly it will soon heal up and the scar presently disappear, just as the marks of a superficial burn will gradually go away; but if the cut is deep the scar remains. This is because it went down to what is called the true skin. Any cuts, stains, or burns on the outer skin are gradually pushed up and worn or washed off, just as the hair on the back of your hand wears off without your cutting it and grows again; but anything that goes down to the true skin, like tattoo marks, always remains.

Big in Stature and Name

Commissioner J. E. Starr of the Toronto Juvenile Court helped to reinforce the Bulgarian army when he sent Theophilus Brecediciouski, a youthful Bulgar, to the only Bulgarian priest in the Queen City, for the purpose of having him shipped back to his native country to join the army.

The young Bulgar with his long name, is but fifteen and a half years old, but stands six feet tall and weighs about 170 pounds. He was charged with stealing a pair of scissors and the case was proved against him. The boy was unwilling to enlist and return home.

Perjury Denounced

In trying a case at Hamilton Judge Monck said that in Division Court cases most of the evidence was perjured, and it was difficult for Judges to make decisions. "There is altogether too much perjury, and I am going to stamp it out," he announced. "I think every member of the Bar should do all in his power to prevent perjury, and if a lawyer knows a witness is committing perjury, he should publish the fact."

Shoots His Divorced Wife

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Mrs. Dorothy Pusey was shot and fatally injured by her divorced husband yesterday as she was preparing a Thanksgiving Day dinner for her five young children. Pusey then failed in an attempt to commit suicide.

Mrs. Pusey had roasted a large turkey, and was at a delicatessen store near her home when her former husband called. Unaware of his presence she returned with her arms full of dainties for the dinner.

"Are you going to invite me to your dinner?" asked the former husband.

"No, I'm not," replied Mrs. Pusey, "the children are all I want. This is going to be a happy party."

Pusey then drew a revolver and fired three times. One of the bullets struck her in the head.

After he saw his wife fall, Pusey turned the revolver on himself. He fired into his neck, but surgeons say the wound would not cause death.

Negress Nearly Kills Jail Matron.

Owen Sound, Nov. 29.—Mrs. Percy Ringo, a colored prisoner, made a murderous attack upon the county jail matron, Jennie McNeill, Wednesday, and the matron lies in a precarious condition as a result of the beating that she received. Her assailant, Mrs. Ringo, will be sent to an asylum, as she has lately developed maniacal tendencies.

Mrs. Ringo had, among other hallucinations, the idea that Miss McNeill was trying to poison her, and her insane attack may be attributed partly to this belief.

The matron was rescued by County Jailer Miller, after she had been thrown down and beaten, kicked and choked into insensibility.

Kingston Railway Not for Sale.

Kingston, Nov. 29.—H. W. Richardson, president of the Kingston Street Railway, told a deputation which waited upon him from the City Council to secure a price for the sale of the road to the city, that the road was not for sale. He says that the company financed it when it was not on a paying basis, and now that it is paying the company wants to get the cream.

Three years ago the city could have purchased the railway for almost nothing, and the citizens are agitating for the purchase of the road.

This was brought about owing to the fact that the council and company are at loggerheads over the paving of Princess street.

Changed Auto Licenes.

Toronto, Nov. 29.—Magistrate Denison meted out a stiff sentence to Henry H. Hackett, of the Hackett Automobile Co., yesterday, when he sentenced the man to fifteen days in jail for transferring the license number from Reuben Hobson's car to his own and placing the number of his own machine on Mr. Hobson's car, while it was in the Hackett garage. Hackett pleaded not guilty, but one of the employes testified that the accused had ordered him to change the numbers. The magistrate refused the option of a fine to Hackett, although the latter asked for one for his family's sake.

For Outdoor Schools.

Galt, Nov. 29.—In a report of wide range evidencing much research, Dr. Vardon, medical health officer, advocates outdoor schools and medical inspection of pupils, and urges on the council to adopt such measures in the interest of the rising generation, 25 per cent. of whom, he declares, are mentally or physically defective.

Dr. Vardon strongly affirms the necessity of laws providing for medical examination of all candidates for matrimony and granting licenses only to couples absolutely fit in mind and body to contract marriage.

From Marsh to Farm

The land in Kent County, Ont., near the lighthouse on Lake St. Clair, which has been considered nothing but a worthless marsh was purchased by a Toledo syndicate that will conduct farming operations on a modern and large scale. The land is being reclaimed for agricultural purposes and it is expected to turn out to be the most productive in the district.

CHANGE OF CLIMATE DID NOT HELP

But GIN PILLS Conquered His Rheumatism

THE fact that men of standing and responsibility do not hesitate to come out and state frankly how much good GIN PILLS have done them, speaks volumes for this good old remedy.

Mr. W. G. Reid, of Hamilton, whose statement we publish below, with his permission, is one of the best known commercial men in Canada. His many friends throughout the country will be delighted to learn that he is quite himself again. He says:

"I have been for the last two years a cripple with Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I have tried almost everything known to medical science to relieve me of the intense pain and inflammation. I sought change of climate in Kentucky and other Southern points without relief. Your manager in this city recommended GIN PILLS and I have since taken eight boxes and am now cured. I consider GIN PILLS the conqueror of Rheumatism and Kidney Disease".

(Signed) W. G. REID.

Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica and all other troubles arising from weak, inactive or diseased kidneys, have little chance against GIN PILLS.

The curative properties in these pills go straight to the root of the trouble—the failure of the kidneys to keep the blood free from the irritating Uric Acid which is continually being formed in the body. GIN PILLS help the Kidneys to perform this function properly, and the train of troubles vanish.

Just try it and prove it to your own satisfaction. There is no risk—money back if GIN PILLS do not help you.

BOUNDARY MARKED BY BIG FENCE LINE

Limits of Canada and Alaska Now Shown After Years of Perilous and Costly Work

After seven years work the boundary survey between Canada and Alaska is finished, and there is now up in the left hand corner of the continent a long, narrow fence-line that was very hard to cut, and that cost a lot of money.

Until this boundary was marked out Canada and the United St..es never knew just where each other's land in the far North began and ended. It was very desirable, as between neighbors, that this should be settled, and seven years ago the two Governments set about the finding out of the line which, in legal terms, had been agreed upon and defined by treaty. Both Governments realized the bigness of the job, and made liberal appropriations for it and sent engineer experts to the North with instructions to mark out every foot of the boundary, whether it should be over glacier peaks or through widlerness swamps.

The job is done now and the long hard fence-line has been drawn clear to the Arctic. It is known now where Canada ends and Alaska begins.

The first part of the boundary located was that from Portland Canal, the southernmost point, to Mount Elias, and north of Mount Elias the boundary follows the 141st meridian in a bee-line to the Arctic, a distance of about six hundred miles.

In general the marking of the line was done in three ways: By the placing of monuments, by cutting out a sky-line, and by ascertaining the exact position of turning angles. The greatest care was always taken that the calcuations should be exact. Wherever the line crossed a river or a trail, or where it came to the summit of a ridge or mountain spur, a monument was placed in the form of an aluminum-bronze cone. These monuments, which vary from fifty to nearly three hundred pounds, were securely set in rock or concrete beds, so they shall be permanent marks of the boundary.

When the surveyors came to a belt of timber, they cut a sky-line through it, clearing ten feet on each side of the meridian, and so making an international right-of-way twenty feet wide.

In addition, accurate maps were made, showing the topography of the country. Every year the survey parties not only left their marks behind them, but they have brought out with them at the end of their season's work a mass of data and technical information that has an international importance.

The getting of all this data and the location of the meridian frequently made necessary the climbing of ugly mountains, some of the peaks being eight and ten thousand feet high. Glaciers were scaled, and perilous ascents made, all in order that the boundary might be rightly determined. Much of the country had never been visited by man until the boundary-hunters came, and found nature at it's hardest and roughest.

LASH FOR WIFE BEATERS

Toronto Authorities Giving Brutes Some of Their Own Medicine

The new method which the Toronto police are employing to deal with wife-beating, namely, sending them down for a short term and giving them a taste of the lash, is expected to have a noticeable effect on the number of cases of this kind which come up in Police court.

A subsection of the Criminal Code says that, "Everyone is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to two years' imprisonment or to be whipped who . . . assaults or beats his wife or any other female, and thereby occasions her actual bodily harm."

Although this subsection is an amendment which came into force in 1909, wife-beaters usually got off with sixty-day terms minus the lash.

Immediately on assuming his duties as head of the Morality Department, Staff-Sergeant McKinney began to work on this amendment with the result that the first wife-beater who came up before Magistrate Denison received the surprise and the shock of his life when, after hearing a thirty-day sentence imposed, he awoke to the fact that he was to get ten lashes as well.

SMUGGLING COCAINE

Drug Said to be Reaching Calgary by of Brandon

Western authorities declare that cocaine is being smuggled into Calgary from Brandon, and illicitly sold. Brandon is near the American border and it is an easy matter for people coming from the United States to conceal the drug on their person and bring it into Canada. The drug is mixed with baking soda by the illicit dealers, who sell the mixture to cocaine fiends at exorbitant prices.

Huge Excavation

The earth and rock excavated from the Panama canal, if it could be piled into a column a yard square, would reach two-thirds of the distance from the earth to the moon.

To Prevent Accidents

A permanent exhibit of devices and means to prevent accidents to workmen has been started at Copenhagen.

Hours of Sunshine

In one year 4,472 hours of sunshine are possible, but few places on the globe experience the maximum.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 28.—Owing to the unfavorable weather in Argentine, which is doing some damage to the wheat crop, cables on Manitoba spring wheat were strong at an advance of 4½d to 6d. The demand from foreign buyers was very large, there being orders in the market for over 1,000,000 bushels for Dec.-Jan. and Jan.-Feb. shipment, and a fair amount of business was done. There was also a fair enquiry for oats, but prices bid were 3d out of line. Spring wheat flour was firmer in tone. A fair local trade is doing. Demand for millfeed is fair. Butter quiet with an easier tone. Cheese steady. Eggs active.

CATTLE MARKET.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Nov. 28.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 138 carloads, comprising 1510 cattle, 3282 hogs, 2005 sheep and lambs and 124 calves.

Butchers.

Choice butchers, $6 to $6.25; loads of good, $5.60 to $6, and not many at these prices either; medium, $5 to $5.40; common, $4.50 to $5; inferior, $2.50 to $4.25; cows, $3.50 to $5.25; bulls, $3.15 to $5.25.

Stockers and Feders.

Best feeders, $4.75 to $5.25; stockers, $4 to $4.65; common stockers, $3.50 to $4.

Milkers and Springers.

Buyers of milkers and springers have been on keen edge for the best quality cows. Offerings of really good-to-choice class do not fully satisfy the demand for such, and twice as many of extra breeding, either in the Holstein or dairy Short-horn classes, could find sale as are coming. These latter classes sell at $80 to $90, and sometimes $100 each. The bulk of the offerings sold at $60 to $75; medium cows, $50 to $56, and ordinary cows, $40 to $45.

Veal Calves.

Common rough calves sold from $3.50 to $4.50; medium calves, $5 to $6.50; good, $7 to $8; choice, $8.50 to $9 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The sheep and lamb market ruled about steady. Sheep, light ewes, $4 to $4.50, with a few at $4.60; heavy ewes and rams, $3 to $3.50; culls, $2 to $2.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

Heavy receipts of hogs caused prices to weaken from 5c to 10c. Selects, sold from $8.35 to $8.50, the bulk going at $8.40 fed and watered, and $8 to $8.15, f.o.b. cars.

German Jesuits Curbed.

Berlin, Nov. 29.—The Bundesrat has reached a decision regarding the administration of the anti-Jesuit bill, which, in effect, holds that Bavaria's recent course was illegal.

By the Bundesrat's ruling the Jesuits will be permitted to hold family masses in the home, administer extreme unction, deliver scientific addresses, which, however, must not touch on religion; but they are permitted no further activities.

A secret order issued last spring by the President of the Bavarian Council of Ministers permitted the holding of "conferences" in the churches, at which sacraments might be administered.

Man Found After Eight Years.

Woodstock, Nov. 29.—After a search lasting many years, in which the police of the whole Dominion and the United States took part, Heber Lane, who disappeared from his home in Ingersoll eight years ago, has been found, and a wire received by Chief Fish of Ingersoll Wednesday night, from Chief of Police Koehler of Cleveland, gives the information that the young man, who has been sought after for so long a period of time, is on a boat plying between Duluth and Buffalo. He will return to his home in this county in a few days, where an aged father has been anxiously waiting for news from him for several years.

To Confer With Bryan.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 29.—Woodrow Wilson has written a letter to William Jennings Bryan, inviting him to a conference after Mr. Wilson's return from Bermuda. The President-elect wishes to consult with Mr. Bryan as one of the leaders of the Democratic party, but he will take counsel with a number of the other Democratic leaders also on his future program.

It is definitely announced, however, that Mr. Bryan is not coming to Bermuda, and that he has not been invited to do so.

Couldn't Wed In Sarnia.

Sarnia, Nov. 29.—Being granted a decree of divorce in Michigan Tuesday morning, Azara Whitacre Finley and May Helen Crakel, came to Sarnia the same day and secured a license for marriage. They proceeded to a local minister's house, where they were acquainted with the fact that it was against the rules to marry a couple under such circumstances, a resolution having been agreed on last year by the Ministerial Association not to marry divorced couples other than those divorced under Canadian laws.

Woodstock's Civic Reform.

Woodstock, Nov. 29.—There is a strong feeling in this city for Government by commission, and when the Legislature gives the necessary powers it is likely that Woodstock will be among the first to try this form of Government. In the meantime a more progressive, energetic and capable council is wanted, and municipal elections will likely see a hot fight.

G.T.P. Appeal Failed.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—The appeal of the G.T.P. Railway to the Governor-in-Council against an order of the Railway Commission to make an opening for navigation purposes in a revetment wall at Prince Rupert has been dismissed; the company claimed outright ownership.

Roosevelt Beat Taft.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 29.—The popular vote for President in the election of 1912 shows that Wilson polled throughout the country a total of 6,156,748 votes, Roosevelt 3,928,140, and Taft 3,376,422. The socialist vote for Debs was 678,783, with the socialist count lacking in seven states. Chafin, the prohibitionist candidate, received 160,644 votes.

The combined vote for Taft and Roosevelt, therefore, exceeded that for Wilson by 1,147,814. Roosevelt led Taft by 551,718.

In 1908 Bryan's popular vote was 6,393,182, and that of Taft 7,637,676. This shows that the Democrats lost 236,434 votes, while the Republicans and Progressives together polled 333,114 less than Taft in 1908.

C.P.R.'s New Cars.

Montreal, Nov. 29.—Forty-eight million dollars' worth of rolling stock has been ordered this year by the Canadian Pacific Railway according to a statement issued yesterday.

It is double the amount ever ordered by any other railway system in North America in the same period.

The new equipment ordered during 1912, includes 467 locomotives, 26,653 box cars, 626 flat cars, 401 coal cars, 300 stock cars, 227 refrigerator cars, 94 first-class sleepers, three compartment cars, 20 observation cars, 25 diners, 57 tourist cars, 117 first-class and suburban cars, 4 motor mountain climbing cars, 138 baggage, mail and express cars.

States Case Ends.

Indianapolis, Nov. 29.—The Government has almost completed its presentation of testimony at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial.

District Attorney Charles W. Miller announced yesterday the Government would end to-day or to-morrow. Then the defence will begin its case in denial of the charges that the 45 men on trial aided in the McNamara dynamite plots by illegally transporting explosives on passenger trains.

Mr. Miller also served notice that to-day he would insist on a prompt enforcement of the court's ruling that the bonds of fourteen of the defendants are invalid because they are indemnified.

Explosion Cost $300.

Indianapolis, Nov. 29.—Frank Higgins, of Boston, was accused of having admitted that the blowing up of the tower of the municipal buildings at Springfield, Mass., on April 4, 1911, had cost $300, by a witness at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday.

Daniel Gallagher also testified that after the explosion, Higgins admitted he had gone to Hartford, Conn., to establish an alibi.

Judge Anderson declined to suspend court on account of the holiday.

No One Is Blamed.

Montreal, Nov. 29.—That the sinking of the Cecilia L., the Lake St. Louis steamer, which went down on Nov. 1, twelve lives being lost, was due to the shifting of the cargo which had been properly secured, was the decision given yesterday by Wreck Commissioner H. St. G. Lindsay.

In his judgment the commissioner says the boat listed in the gale and even if the cargo had not shifted, would have capsized. No blame is attached to anybody.

An Austrian countess says her visit to New York cost her three dollars per minute. Apparently, the golden hours sped on at $180 per.

A RECORD LAND DEAL

Over Half a Million Acres for Colonization in British Columbia

Another of those gigantic land deals for which western Canada is attaining a wide reputation was made public in the purchase of 550,000 acres of land in Northern British Columbia by Mr. Laughlin Maclean and his associates for a consideration of $2,730,000. This constitutes what is probably the largest real estate transaction ever carried through in the Pacific northwest. The land which was selected along the northern lakes and rivers was acquired from various British Columbia syndicates and six months was required to complete the deal. Of the holdings affected, 150,000 acres are in the Nation Lakes district; 100,000 on Babine Lake; 200,000 on the North Tacla Lake; and 100,000 on the Naas River. The general character of the soil is a deep black loam and probably 25 per cent. of the land is open meadow, the remainder being covered with light growths of timber and underbrush. In the work of colonization the purchasers will have the co-operation of the provincial government which has already built trunk highways through the districts and as fast as they are colonized will construct school houses and lateral highways. Babine Lake is 110 miles long and 5 miles wide and is navigable for the largest steamers.

A CHILD'S VOCABULARY

Take a paper and pencil, follow the child for several days, several weeks, putting down every new word that is uttered. And when the word "child" is used, it does not refer to a boy or girl of seven or eight, but one of three.

An investigation recently made by following a child at that age and noting every word that was used showed that it had memorized 1,771 different words. They covered practically everything with which the child came in contact, and were words the child had never heard before.

Another investigation of words used by children between 16 months and 19 months old showed that the lowest vocabulary that was reported included the use of sixty words. The highest was 282 words. From two years on the vocabulary of a child increases rapidly, until at 3 years the average child has a vocabulary of at least 1,000 words.—Answers.

ECONOMICAL MEATS

With a Little Study the Cheaper Cuts Prove Very Acceptable

A famous chef says that cooking reduced to a science, covers only three ways of cooking meat. The first is the application of intense heat, to keep in the juices, and it is suitable only to portions of clear meat, where the fibre is tender. By the second method the meats are put in cold water and cooked at a low temperature. This is suitable for bones, gristle and the toughest portion of the meat, which for the purpose should be divided into small pieces. The third method is a sort of combination of the other two, dealing mostly with stewing meat, which is neither tender nor tough.

The housewife who buys only the first kind of meat, whether she order it to be cooked, or cooks it herself, is expending very little brain-power on the management of her menu. The cheaper cuts are just as nourishing and, if properly cooked, very palatable.

"What is this? It is delicious," a housewife asked of another when she was served with a tender, thinly-sliced meat, fine in grain and delicate in flavor. It was a second cut of brisket, which cost twelve cents a pound. This meat requires to be rolled, tied firmly, put into cold water and cooked slowly until tender, the time required depending upon the toughness of the meat. It should then be cooled in the water in which it was cooked.

Another cheap meat which is very delicious is the hock, the next cut above the pig's foot. It may be cooked in the same way as the brisket and is good hot, in a "boiled dinner" or cold, moulded in its own jelly. The thrifty housewife will serve it hot first and make a shape from what is left over.

WHEN BABY CRIES

Usually There is a Reason and the Summons Should be Heeded

Sometimes a nervous child will cry from a sense of loneliness or fright upon awakening from sleep. Often the low crooning of a song or a softly spoken sentence of love will relieve fears. Until an infant is six weeks old, however, it does not hear very well, and until then the caress of your hand will quiet your baby.

It is not necessary that you should take baby up as soon as it awakens. Indeed, it is much better not to do so unless necessity requires, but you should let it know in some way that you are near.

Fear, or a sense of loneliness, is one cause of baby's crying. A second reason is hunger and a third pain. For each, the cry is different, and the loving mother soon learns to interpret each, and the wise mother responds to it at once. Babies do not cry for the fun of it; when they cry there is some cause; when this cause is removed they stop.

The cry of loneliness is a little sad whimper, the cry of hunger is loud and long, and the cry of pain is apt to be a short, quick, spasmodic call for help. There is another cry which baby will soon learn, a cry of temper—to this one should pay no attention.

WHEN COOKING POTATOES

The only way to test a potato so you will know to a certainty what it is and what it will do is to cook it. For the potatoes which are to be cooked up light buy the kind that will, when cut in two, stick together. They will make fluffy-ruffle potatoes, but when you want potatoes which, when cooked, will hold their shape, and do things in the manner you want them to, buy yellow ones that won't stick together.

Potatoes cooked in dry heat, as by baking in the oven, roasting in ashes, frying in deep fat, or steamed in their jackets, retain all their good qualities and flavors very much more than those cooked in water, but potatoes so cooked must be served just as soon as they are done or they will become soggy and bad flavored.

MILK AS A FOOD

It is More Nutritious Than Either Meat or Vegetables

Milk, even when the price is high, is always an economical article of diet. Practically 100 per cent. of the total food value of milk is taken up by the body in the process of digestion, while vegetables, for instance, yield little over 80 per cent. of their nutriment.

Milk is a perfect food that doesn't need any chewing or macerating. It makes no work at all for the teeth and little for the muscles of the stomach. It is passed from the stomach in an hour and a half.

So if you relish milk don't be afraid to use all that you want. Buy less beefsteak and more milk and you will be better off, physically and financially.

Give the baby a full dinner pail and room to kick and he will be happy.

Many men, many minds—but it's usually one woman of many minds.

THE WOMAN THAT IS TOO FRIENDLY

She always is running in just for a few minutes' chat. Probably she comes in just when you are putting forth every effort to finish an important piece of work. She says: "Don't let me interrupt you. Just go right on with your work. I only ran in for a few minutes." She does not stop to consider that it is impossible for you to concentrate your mind on your work when conscious of the fact that she is making a mental inventory of every thing in the room.

If she happens to come in just as you are dressing for the street, she immediately offers to accompany you. Perhaps you are expecting to meet a friend and have a social time, together. You have a number of things to say to this friend that you do not care to say in the presence of a third party.

This same woman probably is one of the inveterate borrowers. She borrows your groceries, your thread, your clothing, your chairs, your bed and table linen, everything, in fact.

Then there is the woman who imitates. If you get an especially becoming dress, she immediately has one made so similar that when you meet some of your mutual acquaintances they say: "Why, you have a dress like Mrs. B——'s."

It is not only your clothes she borrows, or imitates, but your style of speech, your ideas, your expressions. In fact, this social pirate coolly will appropriate anything she happens to admire. As your ideas have not been copyrighted you have no recourse.

USE OILED DUSTERS

They are More Sanitary Than Dry Ones and do Better Work

Most housekeepers use dry cloths or rags for dusting, and some of the dust is wiped in streaks over the furniture and brushed into the air. Why not prepare your dust cloths at a trifling cost so that the dust will stick to them, and not get into the air again? Take one part raw linseed oil and mix with four parts gasoline, and bottle, taking the same precautions as with gasoline alone, guarding against fires. Take the cloth or rag used for dusting, merely moisten it by pouring the mixture on it while wadded together, then open it out and swing it a few moments in the open air until the gasoline has evaporated out of it, when a slight film of oil will remain in the cloth, sufficient to hold the dust firmly on its surface and wipe cleanly and quickly a varnished surface, and if properly prepared, will not leave any undesirable oil on the furniture.

Morning Cap

The easiest and cheapest way to make a very pretty morning cap is this: Cut a circle, 20 inches in diameter, out of dotted muslin, or any thin material. Put a three-inch hem all the way around the circle and sew lace, an inch or wider, straight on the outer edge of the hem. Run about 20 inches of elastic through the hem, and fasten. Put a small ribbon bow on one side, and you have finished. These caps may be made entirely by machine, and they launder easily when the elastic is removed, as they are then but a flat circle.

Lingerie Frock Trimmed With Silk Fringe

The blouse is heavily embroidered and has yoke and collar of point desprit net. A deep pleating of this finishes the short kimona sleeve. A deep and broad belt of the crepe is about the waist. On this, too, is shown the embroidery.

Perhaps platonic love by any other name would give rise to just as much gossip

CANADIAN WEST RICH IN FOSSILS

One Animal of Bygone Ages Had Two Thousand Teeth, Another a Seven Foot Skull

The richest country in the world is the manner in which Charles H. Sternberg, an explorer engaged by the Canadian government, described western Canada when he arrived in Ottawa with over 20,000 pounds of fossils for the Victoria Memorial museum, which included perfect skeletons of two of the most wonderful and extraordinary animals ever unearthed. One of the skeletons named by Sternberg a duck gill dinosaur, weighed over 6,000 pounds and was 35 feet in length. This animal, Mr. Sternberg explained, lived 3,000,000 years ago, which makes the discovery of the skeleton in perfect order all the more wonderful. Another specimen he discovered, known as the triceratops (three horn trace), had a skull seven feet in length with horns over each eye, and one at the end of the nose. In describing another specimen of the dinosaur, found not very far from the first one, Mr. Sternberg said that he had enough material to complete a mount 40 feet in length. The front part of the mouth of the dinosaur was expanded into a duck bill, and covered with a horn. The teeth, 2,000 in number, were arranged in magazine form, and made a decidedly interesting study.

Mr. Sternberg was enthusiastic in his praise of Alberta and declared that in all his 40 years of exploration he had not lived in a richer country, nor had he ever made a bigger collection of fossils in the same length of time. He spent the greater part of his time in the Red Deer district. In this region he also found remains of lizards of enormous proportions.

LOCATES LEAKS IN PIPES

The Detectophone Will Save Money for People of Montreal

It is anticipated that many more hours of unnecessary labor and much money will be saved by the adoption by the Montreal water department of the "Detectophone," an electrical instrument by means of which it is possible to locate leaks in water pipes without excavating.

The machine, like a large syringe in appearance, is fitted at one end with a thin steel rod. This is driven into the ground near where the earth is damp from the escaping water, while the operator places over his ear a receiver identical with those used on telephone head sets.

As soon as the apparatus has been adjusted the operator presses a button, which has the result of electrifying the earth round the steel rod in the ground, while the hiss of the escaping water may be distinctly heard.

By following up the damp earth and properly using the "Detectophone," it is claimed that the position of a leak can be located to inches.

MAORIS BECOMING WEALTHY

Former Canadian Tells of New Zealand Aborigines

An exceedingly interesting talk on New Zealand was given in Toronto by Mr. George McCaul, a well-known public citizen of that country.

Mr. McCaul was born in this country, but emigrated to Galt, New Zealand, when very young. He said that many of the Maoris were educated and highly cultured. Some were even wealth, and their estates were larger than those of the white intruders.

Was 106 Years Old

Alexander Renaud, probably the oldest man in Ontario, died at the home of his son in Haileybury at the age of 106 years, 10 months.

The longest journey he ever made in his life was to St. Anne's on a pilgrimage when he was 104 years old. Ten years ago he left off the use of alcoholic liquors, although he was a constant smoker and chewer of tobacco until a week before he died.

To Sugar Dates

When stuffing dates for a confection, instead of rolling each one separately in powdered sugar, put a tablespoonful of the sugar in a glass jar. Then put in the jar about a cupful of the suffed dates, seal the jar and shake well. You will be surprised to see how evenly the dates are dusted with the sugar and how much time is saved in doing.

From its very beginning, Halifax, Nova Scotia, was destined to be a Naval station for British ships, its natural advantages claiming every right to that honor, and by way of recognition of this suitability there was established, in 1758, the beginnings of the dockyard.

In 1758-9 Halifax was the rendesvous for an army and navy meant to attack the positions of the French in Canada and the Dockyard, then furnished with a careening wharf and mast house, played a part by no means unimportant in the fitting out of the vessels destined to win for the British Empire the whole of Canada. Up to the close of the war in 1763, Halifax was the rendesvous of many transports and ships of the line who kept the Dockyard busy supplying and repairing them.

In 1765 a lot of land adjoining the north end of the naval yard was granted by Montague Wilmot, captain-general and Governor of Nova Scotia, to the Right Hon. Alex. Covill, rear-admiral and commander-in-chief and his heirs and successors in the command for extension of the naval yard.

In 1783 John Parr, captain-general and governor-in-chief of Nova Scotia, granted a lot of about 20 acres to George Thomas, naval storekeeper, and to John Haliburton, surgeon, and agent for hurt and sick seamen of H.M. Royal Navy. In 1770 the excavation earth from the citadel was used to fill up the southern end of the yard. In 1790 five and one half acres adjoining the yard were deeded over to the naval authorities by the executors of Joshua Mager. In 1784 a new naval hospital was erected.

The difference between France and England during the Napoleonic Wars led to no small number of marine engagements between the rival nations and their allies in American waters, and the Dockyard lived in stirring times. Shattered ships of war were repaired and re-fitted, and foreign prizes made into British ships of the line. Prison hulks were anchored off the busy wharves and French and Spanish prisoners kept on board.

The most noticeable feature of that period was the arrival in port in the year 1813 of the British ship-of-war the Shannon, accompanied by her prize, the Chesapeake, which she worsted in the battle of the 1st of June, 1813. The two ships anchored off the Dockyard, and the wounded men were taken ashore and cared for.

On New Year's Day, 1907, the H.M. Dockyard passed into the possession and control of the Dominion government, and the keys were handed over by the Imperial officer in charge to the representatives of the Canadian government.

PRESS GANG DAYS

Manning the Navy Was Different in Nelson's Time From To-day

One of the complaints that are heard as to the British navy to-day is that it is undermanned because it is underpaid. In the days of Nelson the pay was a matter that received little consideration.

The news of a shortage of men in the Navy and the hint of action by the Admiralty would put the merchantman on guard. Towards the end of the eighteenth century, for instance, there was a call for sailors for the Navy, and "persuasion" was the rule. "The press in the Thames for the last three days has been very severe. Five or six hundred seamen have been laid hold of." Thus runs one of many entries in the papers of the period. It was not always peaceful "pressing" as this item in the "Times" of 1795 will prove. "There was a very hot press on the river on Friday night last, when several hundred able seamen were procured. One of the gangs, in boarding a Liverpool trader, were resisted by the crew, when a desperate affray took place, in which many of the former were thrown overboard, and the lieutenant who boarded them killed by a shot from the vessel."

Bought Canadian Land

One of the largest individual land deals ever effected in England was completed when Lord Joicey, an owner of extensive collieries in the Newcastle district, and one of the wealthiest Liberal peers bought nearly 24,000 acres of mixed farming and dairy farming land in the vicinity of Fort George, B.C., for which he paid $450,000.

Eggs Caused Death

Moses Massove, a Russian, died at Vancouver from the effects of eating 21 eggs immediately upon being discharged from the hospital where he had been suffering from fever. The feast of eggs was to celebrate his convalescence.

Ban on Kissing

The Bavarian railways have placed a ban on kissing on trains, platforms, or the premises of the companies. Farewells or greetings to friends must be said elsewhere or be limited to the conventional handshake.

Making ONE Dollar Do the Work of Two

YOUR DOLLARS vary in value according as they vary in purchasing power.

THE MAN or woman who studies advertising is able, frequently, to make one dollar do the usual work of two.

THE EXPERIENCED reader of advertisements, will always make a dollar command a premium, that is, make it buy more than the dollar of a non-reader of advertisements.

HOW MUCH "above par" are the dollars in your packet?

IT WILL depend on how closely you study the buying opportunities outlined the store advertisements.
